"The Smallest Man in the [South," advertising the Largest Shoe Manufacturers of the South, (Col. A. L. Sawyer, of Key West, Florida, advertising Craddock-Terry Co's. Celebrated Longwear Shoes at the Jamestown Exposition.) The Colonel is a little more than forty years old, but is only forty-one inches high and weighs fifty-eight pounds. However, he is a bright, intelligent Man and a good talker. He explains to the public that Craddock-Terry Co's. "Longwear Shoes" actually wear longer than other shoes, and that this is the reason why they have to build so many factories at Lynchburg, Va., in order to keep up with their rapidly increasing business. The Terry Special Shoe, a cut of which you will see on this card, is the shoe which is being manufactured by Craddock-Terry Co. in their up-to-date shoe factory at the Jamestown Exposition.
