GUANACO & ALPACA UMBRELLA PRICE LIST.

Qual.	No. of Ribs	DESCRIPTION.	SIZE.
			26	28	30
AQ	8	Alpaca, Satin Bordered.	1 25	1 50	1 75
A	8	"Guanaco," Fox's Solid Ribs.	2 00	2 25	2 50

D	10	"Guanaco," Fox's Paragon Ribs.	3 00	3 25	3 50

THROUGHOUT the range of the Andes Mountains are animals of the Camel family called Guanaco. The wool or hair is very fine, long and lustrous, often measuring twelve and even eighteen inches in length. It is longer than wool and finer than hair, and is remarkably free from the attacks of moths.

Umbrellas made from this material are practically indestructable. To protect ourselves and the public from worthless imitations, we have secured patents covering name and material. The name GUANACO is stamped on the stick, and is also on the inside cap in large letters.

The handles (or staffs) are the newest and most beautiful styles. The patentees beg to assure the public that in the manufacture of these goods they employ only the most experienced workmen. The "Guanaco" Umbrella as now made is the "Most Beautiful," the "Most Durable," and the "Cheapest."

CANOPY UMBRELLAS.

A NOVELTY.

THESE Umbrellas are made square, so as to conform to the sides of the body of a wagon.

The ribs are made from selected, straight grained second-growth ash, and are double the thickness of those used last season, and cannot be broken.

The cover can be removed when desired, cleaned and put back again in two minutes.

The inventor claims to have overcome all the disadvantages of the ordinary wagon umbrella,
