

BMIRLB3

Scanned from the collection of Shane Brown

Coordinated by the Media History Digital Library
www.mediahistoryproject.org

Funded by a donation from David Sorochty

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2012 with funding from
Media History Digital Library

<http://archive.org/details/motion1724moti>

JUNE

25¢

CLASSIC

A BREWSTER PUBLICATION

Florence Vidor

Now I Ask a Favor of the Ladies

I have a great delight—an Olive Oil Shampoo for them

V. K. CASSADY, B. S. M. S., Chief Chemist

Dear Madam:

OUR husband knows me—the chief chemist at Palmolive.

I have just given him a new delight; a gentler, quicker shaving cream.

Now I have as great a joy for you. A gentle shampoo—olive oil!—that does not make hair dry and brittle, that leaves it soft and gleaming.

The favor I ask is that you try it. And then give me your opinion.

I Asked 1000 Women

Recently I asked over 1000 women what they wanted most in a shampoo.

They named but one requirement. But as yet had failed to find it:

A thorough cleanser that would take out all grime and foreign matter—yet which would not take away the life and lustre that adds so much to charm.

Scores of scalp experts agreed. They said ordinary shampoos were too harsh. And advised the oil shampoo—but made a point of olive oil.

So the Olive Oil Shampoo

Now I offer you the olive oil shampoo—world famous—for you to use at home.

After the ordinary harsh shampoo, results will be a revelation. You will note them in your mirror. Your friends will note them.

And then you will do as thousands have done—thank me for a new delight.

PALMOLIVE SHAMPOO

CLASSIC

The Picture Book De Luxe of the Movie World

A BREWSTER PUBLICATION

Vol. XVII

JUNE, 1923

No. 4

COVER PORTRAIT—FLORENCE VIDOR

Painted by F. Dahl from a photograph by Witzel

PAGE

The Remedy for Censorship. The final article by.....	Stanton Leeds	11
Classic's Gallery of Photoplayers: Robert Frazer, Betty Compson, Anna Q. Nilsson, Mary Philbin, Lois Wilson, Charles de Roche.....		12
Hungry Hearts of Hollywood. Heretofore suppressed desires told to.....	Harry Carr	18
The Tragic Muse. A character portrait of Mme. Jetta Goudal.....		21
The Return. Of Francis X. Bushman.....	Susan Elizabeth Brady	22
Foreign Films. At a glance.....	Maurice Rosett	24
Trilby. Andree Lafayette, a Du Maurier ideal.....		26
Little Old New York. Told in short story form.....	Patricia Doyle	27
At Lunch with Gloria. An interview.....	Jeffery Carter	32
Idol Worship. Betty Blythe in an odd pose.....		35
The Heavy. "One may smile and smile and be a villain".....	Jane H. Lipman	36
Hollywood Homes. Charles Ray.....		38
A Song of the Screen. Verses and pictures.....	Dorothy Rosecrantz Brighton	40
Half Chinese and Wholly Lovely.....	Barrett Clark	41
Frank Lloyd's Jackie Coogan.....	Faith Service	42
The Tragic Comedian. An unusual photographic study of Max Linder.....		44
The Celluloid Critic. The newest picture plays in review.....	Laurence Reid	45
Iris In. Pertinent and impertinent screen comment.....	H. W. Hanemann	48
The Photographer Takes the Stage. Classic's monthly department of the theater.....		49
Flashes from the Eastern Stars. Of the stage, on the screen.....	Caught by the Editor	52
The Madness of Youth. A short story.....	Grace Lamb	54
Classic Considers—The great and the near great.....		58
The Heir to the Throne. Of Barthelmess.....		59
The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats.....	Harry Carr	60
Katinka From Chauve-Souris.....		64
The Modern Movie Hero.....		68
The Movie Encyclopaedia.....	By The Answer Man	70

Subscription $2.50 per year, in advance, including postage, in the United States, Cuba, Mexico and Philippine Islands. In Canada $3.00; Foreign Countries $3.50 per year. Single copies 25 cents postage prepaid. United States Government stamps accepted. Subscribers must notify us at once of any change in address, giving both old and new address.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, INC., AT JAMAICA, N. Y.

Entered at the Post Office at Jamaica, N. Y., as second-class matter, under the act of March 3rd, 1879.

PRINTED IN U. S. A.

Eugene V. Brewster, President and Editor-in-Chief; Guy L. Harrington, Vice-President and Business Manager; L. G. Conlon, Treasurer; E. M. Heinemann, Secretary.

EXECUTIVE and EDITORIAL OFFICES. 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Copyright, 1923, by Brewster Publications, Inc., in the United States and Great Britain.

SUSAN ELIZABETH BRADY, Editor

ADELE WHITELY FLETCHER, Managing Editor

Harry Carr..... Western Representative
A. M. Hopfmuller..... Art Director
Duncan A. Dobie..... Director of Advertising

This magazine, published monthly, comes out on the 12th. Its elder sister, the MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE, comes out on the 1st of every month. SHADOWLAND appears on the 23rd of the month. BEAUTY is on the stands on the 25th.

Announcement for July

Do you recognize an anachronism when you see one?

Fred Gilbert Blakeslee has written a penetrating, and what is rarer, a constructive criticism of the so called "costume pictures" that are sweeping the country today. He has the sanest and most intelligent suggestion to offer for the prevention of historical errors and absurdities that we have yet seen. Read COSTUME RESEARCH in the July CLASSIC.

If He Had Passed It Up

He Would Still Be A Laborer At $2 A Day. No Money, Nothing Ahead But Hard Work, Longer Hours—and Regrets. But He Didn't Pass It Up.

He decided to learn Mechanical Drawing. He buckled down to work with the Columbia School of Drafting. When he had a quiet half hour to spend he spent it—as a wise man spends money—to get full returns.

MADE $275 EXTRA IN 3 DAYS. He recently received $275 for one drawing that only took him three days to draw.

NOW HOW ABOUT YOU? Are you working up hill or down? Count the money in your pay envelope next pay day. You'll find the answer there.

MAKE $35 to $100 a WEEK. We will train you to be an expert Draftsman in your spare time at home by mail. There's lots of room for you if you act now.

PROMOTION IS QUICK. We'll qualify you for a high-salaried position in the drafting field and keep you in touch with openings for Draftsmen in the big machine shops, industrial plants and United States Government departments. Men who start as Draftsmen are often advanced to Chief Draftsmen, Chief Engineers, Production Managers and so on.

GET THE RIGHT TRAINING. Mr. Claffin, the founder and director stands personally in back of the Columbia School of Drafting. You spend no time in long-winded theories—useless and expensive to you. You start on actual drawing work the day you receive your first lesson.

YOU NEED NO PREVIOUS TRAINING. The course is easy to understand and easy to follow. Many students are qualified even before they complete the course.

SUCCESS CALLS MEN OF ACTION ONLY. If you are a man of action clip the coupon now and show that you are a man of action. Keep right on top of this opportunity to make real money. Don't go looking for a pair of scissors. Tear the coupon off and mail it right now.

We have a special offer for those who reply promptly. Get started now.

What We Give You

PRACTICAL PROBLEMS. You are carefully coached in practical Drafting work.

WE HELP YOU GET A JOB. We help you get a position as a practical Draftsman as soon as you are qualified.

PERSONAL INSTRUCTION AND SUPERVISION THROUGHOUT THE COURSE. You receive the personal instruction and help of Roy C. Claffin, president of the Columbia School of Drafting and a practical Draftsman of many years' experience.

DRAFTSMAN'S EQUIPMENT. We furnish you with a full set of Drafting Equipment and Drafting Instruments as shown in the picture below when you enroll. You keep both sets on completing the course.

CONSULTATION PRIVILEGES. You are free to write us at any time for advice and suggestions regarding your success.

DIPLOMA. The diploma we give you on completing the course attests to your proficiency as a Draftsman. It is an "entering wedge" to success.

FREE SUBSCRIPTION TO DRAFTSMAN'S PUBLICATION "THE COMPASS." You are given free a subscription to our helpful, inspiring publication "The Compass."

Given to Students

U. S. Civil Service Commission Needs DRAFTSMEN

The following are a few of the many positions open in Government Departments from time to time. The salaries are starting salaries, subject to increase. Practically all of them carry a bonus of $240 a year additional.

Architectural Designer, $4,000.

Chief Draftsman (Aeronautical) Naval Aircraft Factory—$15.04 per day.

Aeronautical Draftsman—Field Service of Navy Department—$5.20 per day to $12 per day.

FREE BOOK

Send in this coupon today. Immediately on receipt of it we will send you our book, "Drafting—Your Success," which tells you all about our new method of teaching Mechanical Drawing and gives full details of our special offer to those who reply promptly.

THE COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING

Roy C. Claffin, President

Dept. 2001. 14th & T Sts., N. W. Washington, D. C.

— FREE BOOK COUPON —

COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING,
Dept. 2001, 14th and T Sts., N. W.,
Washington, D. C.

Enter my name for a free subscription to "The Compass" and also send me without charge your illustrated book on Drafting, telling me how I can secure your complete Home Study Course and your help in securing a position as Draftsman.

Name.....
Address.....
City.....
State..... Age.....

Current Stage Plays

(Readers in distant towns will do well to preserve this list for reference wherespoken plays appear in their vicinity.)

Ambassador.—Tessa Kosta in the musical gem "Caroline."

Apollo.—"The God of Vengeance." Rudolph Schildkraut in an unusual play.

Astor.—"Lady Butterfly." Slight as to plot but a charming musical comedy.

Boyes.—"Liza." Another "Shuffle Along," destined to be even more popular.

Belmont.—"You and I." H. B. Warner, Lucile Watson and star cast in the Harvard Prize Play.

Belasco.—Lenore Ulric in "Kiki," David Belasco's production of his own piquant adaptation of André Picard's French farce. Miss Ulric scores one of the big hits of the season with her brilliant playing of a little gamine of the Paris music halls. You will love Kiki as you loved Peg—but differently. A typically excellent Belasco cast.

Booth.—The "heaven" in "The Seventh Heaven" is the top floor of a Montmartre tenement in Paris. It is a story of love and regeneration with touches of humor and unreality. Helen Menken gives an excellent performance.

Broadhurst.—"Whispering Wires." One of the numerous mystery plays now trying to puzzle Broadway. This one succeeds.

Cosino.—"Wildflower," with Edith Day. The music is exquisite.

Central.—The home of Shubert vaudeville during the week. Two concerts are given on Sunday.

Century.—In "The Lady in Ermine" we have a musical comedy with a plot that it follows effectively or comes back to after each departure as if it really meant to be something more than vaudeville. The action concerns a romantic legend about an ancient European castle. Wilda Bennett as the heroine sings charmingly.

Century Roof.—"The Chauve-Souris" of Nikita Balieff and his Russian entertainers from Moscow. Fourth bill. Better than ever.

Cohan.—"The Exile." A romantic comedy by Sidney Toler featuring Eleanor Painter and Jose Ruben.

Comedy.—"Anything Might Happen." Delightful comedy with Estelle Winwood and Roland Young.

Cort.—Harry Leon Wilson's popular story, "Merton of the Movies," has lost none of its charm and humor in the dramatization. Glenn Hunter and Florence Nash are perfectly cast as the hero and heroine.

Earl Corroll.—"The Gingham Girl." A very tuneful, interesting musical comedy with a chorus of eight lively flappers. Helen Ford is the gingham girl, and Eddie Buzzell furnishes the comedy. A triumph of quality over quantity.

Eltinge.—"Morphia" is a play that acts as a vehicle for Lowell Sherman to give a realistic portrayal of a drug fiend.

Empire.—"Zander the Great." Alice Brady's return to the stage. Review later.

Forty-fourth Street.—"Sally, Irene and Mary" is a musical comedy full of the usual pretty girls, dancing and songs.

Forty-eighth Street.—"Anathema." Review later.

Forty-ninth Street.—"Give and Ke." Aaron Hoffman's new play, withouts Mann and George Sidney.

Frosce.—"Barnum Was Right An American Farce. Review later.

Gaiety.—"If Winter Comes. The stage version of Hutchinson's ular novel with Cyril Maude giving a add characterization of Mark Sabre

Henry M.—"Romeo and Juliet." Jane Cowl her performances a remarkable precision of youth in love. Her ciation of Shakspere's lines is perfect.

Hippodrome.—"Better Tim." The largest coast, and most n and prettiest of ries. The Fan Bt of more than fhundred persons perhaps the st feature.

Hudson.—"So This Is Lon!" George Cohan new English cedy, which sufficicewhat from aggeration, but is a most amusing y of clashing temperaments—the Eng and the American. Worth seeing.

Jolson's Fifty-ninth Street.—"ene." Second engagement of the popular isical comedy.

Klondike.—"The Last Warning," a stery play that fairly congeals the audie with terror. Every trick is used to bu up a perfect atmosphere of horror, bning with the tarantulas that swarm r the walls of the green room in the r act.

Knickerbocker.—"The Clinging Vine," a comedy with music. Clever, mul and the welcome vehicle that bring?eggy Wood back to Broadway.

Liberty.—"Little Nelly Kelly." ne of George M. Cohan's best. Quite eigh to say about a play.

Little.—"Polly Preferred." A comedy of modern business, in which Cevieue Tobin does some excellent acting.

Longacre.—"The Laughing Lady." Ethel Barrymore in Alfred Suti play has found herself again.

Lyceum.—"The Comedian." Fturing Lionel Atwell. Review later.

Marine Elliott's.—"Rain" is a bitter tragedy by Somerset Maugham; violent attack on the repressions of Punnism. Jeanne Eagels is superb in the lead; rôle.

Morosco.—"The Wasp." A playcating Otto Kruger, Emily Ann Vilman, and Galina Kopernek.

Music Box.—"The new "Revu"—No pains have been spared in the mter of delighting the eye.

Notionol.—"The Dice of the God' The incomparable Mrs. Fiske charming her audience in spite of a poor play.

New Amsterdam.—"Ziegfeld Fcies of 1922." "Glorifying the America Girl." More gorgeous, more elaborate, mre expensive, more distracting, and a lite funnier than usual.

New Winter Garden.—"The lincng Girl"—A musical extravanganzz with Trini, Spain's most beautiful girl!

(Continued on page 92)

COURSE Harold and his le went trouble when in-law's youngsters were with them over the week-
t they had only the interest of what they were in for.
was Harold to know that d have to put a nipple on y's bottle? Why is it any-at nipples are always three o small, and babies' bottles l at the bottom? And who ell that a pet menagerie reak loose?
ble? Yes, but just look at rling baby. Isn't he worth trouble he costs?
ll be sure of it when you old Lloyd in "I Do."

you've lost your funny-bone—

IF you think no motion picture in the world can make you laugh a good old-fashioned laugh again—take this prescription. It's tested and unfailing, especially compounded for just such a critical case as yours.

R Six Encore Pictures of Harold Lloyd.
Sig: Take one after meal time. Alone or accompanied by friend, member of family or stray child. Get into comfortable seat at motion picture theatre and—shake well!
S. Q. Lapius, M.D.

After the first treatment you will feel so much better you'll think you are cured. But don't stop with one picture. Keep the treatment up. Take all six—and you'll want to cure others!

Ask your theatre manager for this tested group of gloom-destroyers. He will be glad to give you the genuine—bearing the signature of that distinguished producer, Hal Roach.

Distributed by Associated Exhibitors, Inc. Arthur S. Kane, President, 35 West 45th Street, New York. Physical Distributors, Pathe, Inc.

If you think a comedian is only clown or a buffoon you will certainly change your mind when you see this poor timid, lovable boorn the secret of Courage. Andrew, loving Grandma—show what he needed. No war "Grandma's Boy" was vo among the best ten motion pics of the year.

HAROLD and Mildred find in "Never Weaken" that true love runs a dangerous course, often high in the air. Lovelorn Lloyd, perched on a girder, doing his level best to get back to solid ground—and to his sweetheart—may not sound funny, but it is an uproarious spectacle.

WHEN a fellow who has never been outside his home town gets into society, and is asked to tell of his African hunting experiences—just what would the book of etiquette advise? Use his imagination, is our guess.
And in "Among Those Present," Lloyd does use his imagination—recklessly and wondrously as you can judge from the expression of his hostess.

IT doesn't seem quite fair to ask a painfully respectable, undomesticated bachelor to play chaperon to a full-of-the-mischief, four-year-old girl in a crowded Pullman. But in "Now or Never" Lloyd does find a way out of his troubles—after his own fashion.

SOMEHOW Lloyd feels that the bathing pool of the Sultan's Harem is no longer safe. Where will he go? How can he rescue his sweetheart from the Sultan's clutches? These are only two of the perplexities which beset Harold Lloyd in "A Sailor-Made Man." When you see his uproarious adventures you'll wonder how he could cram so much hilarity into one short hour.

Encore Pictures

ENCORE PICTURES are chosen from hundreds of new motion pictures offered us each year—chosen because they actually entertain the private audiences who see them in advance.
This line of high grade pictures includes:

Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy," "I Do," "Now or Never," "Never Weaken," "Among Those Present," and "A Sailor-Made Man."

Constance Binney in "A Bill of Divorcement"—an absorbing drama revealing the depths of human feeling.
"Head Hunters of the South Seas"—a truthful record of a thrilling adventure.

Florence Vidor in "Alice Adams"—a wonderfully faithful and artistic picturization of Booth Tarkington's prize-winning novel—and other superlatively fine productions.

To be sure of having all the better photo-plays shown in your neighborhood you should form a Better Pictures Council to work with the managers of your local picture theatres.

More than 600 communities have organized such Councils. Every month the members receive impartial reports of all worthwhile photoplays, not Encore Pictures alone. The Council recommends the best pictures to the theatre manager and endorses them to the public.

Thus everybody benefits—theatre goers can make known in advance what pictures they want to see; and the theatre owner is assured of good audiences.

Why don't you take the initiative in getting better pictures for your community? Write me personally for the booklet, "Getting Better Pictures,—the Plan that Works." Arthur S. Kane, 7th Floor, 25 West 45th Street, New York City.

Will Your Conscience Let YOU Marry?

Regrets will haunt you all your life if you marry before you are physically fit and a real man in the full sense of the word.

Lionel Strongfort

When Marriage Means Misery

Marriage always means failure, disappointment, hard luck and misery to the man who has neglected his health and undermined his vital powers. You know that excesses have sapped your many powers—you know that you are not the ideal man that some pure innocent girl believes you to be. It's a crime to deceive her and wreck her happiness. It is doubly a crime to bring onto the Earth sickly, defective children, who will be a burden and reproach as long as you live.

Root Out The Crop of Youthful Folly

You have sown a big crop of "wild oats." You have lived as you pleased without regard to your responsibilities as a man.

But now you know that you are not fit to be a husband and a father. You dare not marry and pass on your acquired taints and tendencies. It surely looks dark and gloomy for you, but cheer up—I want to help you—I can help you build up your body and brain and regain those vital elements that make a man—red-blooded—magnetic—popular—successful. Come to me in full faith as you would to a brother and let me help you.

Regain Your Vital Powers

I'll show you how to conquer your weaknesses. I'll teach you how to overcome your defects and ailments such as Catarrh, Constipation, Indigestion, Prostate Trouble, Impotency, Vital Depletion, Rupture, Rheumatism, Bad Blood and the numerous other results of Youthful Errors, Bad Habits and Excesses. I'll make a real man of you, restore your pep and power and fit you for the responsibilities of Marriage and Parenthood with

STRONGFORTISM

The Modern Science of Health Promotion

Once you accept Strongfortism, you enter a new life. The results are immediate and positively thrilling. You feel the rich blood racing thru your body—you acquire new power and a magnetic personality—you feel new strength developing in every organ and structure. I guarantee that you will be 100 per cent. successful with Strongfortism, irrespective of your age, sex, occupation, or surroundings.

Send For My Free Book

The truth about the scientific application of Natural Law is contained in my wonderfully interesting book, "Promotion and Conservation of Health, Strength and Mental Energy." It will tell you frankly and plainly how you can banish your ailments and build up 100 per cent. Health, Strength and Vitality. It's absolutely free. Mark the subjects on the free consultation coupon on which you want special confidential information and send with 10c to help pay postage, etc. I'll do the rest. Send for my free book Right Now—TODAY.

LIONEL STRONGFORT

Physical and Health Specialist

Founded 1895

Dept. 346 Newark, N. J.

FREE CONSULTATION COUPON

Mr. Lionel Strongfort, Dept. 346, Newark, N. J.—Please send me your book "Promotion and Conservation of Health, Strength and Mental Energy," for postage on which I enclose a 10-cent piece (one dime). I have marked (X) before the subject in which I am interested.

- | | | |
|---------------|-----------------|----------------------|
| .. Colds | .. Pimples | .. Female Disorders |
| .. Catarrh | .. Blackheads | .. Increased Height |
| .. Asthma | .. Insomnia | .. Youthful Errors |
| .. Hay Fever | .. Short Wind | .. Manhood |
| .. Obesity | .. Flat Feet | .. Restored |
| .. Headaches | .. Stomach | .. Prostate Troubles |
| .. Thinness | .. Disorders | .. Neurasthenia |
| .. Rupture | .. Constipation | .. Failing Hair |
| .. Lumbago | .. Billiousness | .. Gastritis |
| .. Neuritis | .. Torpid Liver | .. Heart Weakness |
| .. Neuralgia | .. Indigestion | .. Poor Circulation |
| .. Flat Chest | .. Nervousness | .. Skin Disorders |
| .. Deformity | .. Poor Memory | .. Bow Disorders |
| .. (Describe) | .. Vital Losses | .. Lung Troubles |
| .. Successful | .. Impotency | .. Stoop Shoulders |
| .. Marriage | .. Weak Eyes | .. Muscular |
| .. Rheumatism | .. Dependancy | .. Development |
| | .. Diabetes | .. Great Strength |

Name.....

Age..... Occupation.....

Street..... City..... State.....

Manufacturers, Distributors and Studios of Motion Pictures New York

Advanced Motion Picture Corp., 1493 B'way.
Arrow Film Corp., 220 W. 42nd St.
Astra Film Corp., 1 Congress St., Jersey City, N. J. (Studio.)

Ballin, Hugo, Productions, 366 Fifth Ave.
Biograph Studio, 807 E. 175th St.

Community Motion Picture Bureau, 46 W. 24th St.

Consolidated Film Corp., 80 Fifth Ave.
Cosmopolitan Productions, 2478 Second Ave.

Educational Film Co., 729 Seventh Ave.
Export & Import Film Co., 729 Seventh Ave.

Famous Players-Lasky, 485 Fifth Ave. (Studio, 6th and Pierce Sts., Astoria, L. I.)

Film Booking Offices, 723 Seventh Ave.

Film Guild, 8 W. 40th St.

Film Market, Inc., 1482 Broadway.

First National Exhibitors, Inc., 6 W. 48th St.

Fox Studios, Tenth Ave. and 55th St.

Gaumont Co., Congress Ave., Flushing, L. I.

General Enterprises, Inc., 1540 Broadway.

Goldwyn Pictures Corp., 469 Fifth Ave.

Graphic Film Corp., 729 Seventh Ave.

Griffith, D. W., Films, 1476 Broadway. (Studio, Oriental Pt., Mamaroneck, N. Y.)

Hampton, Hope, Productions, 1452 B'way.

Hodkinson, W. W., Film Corp., 469 Fifth Ave.

Inspiration Pictures, 565 Fifth Ave.

International Studios, 2478 Second Ave.

Ivan Film Prod., 126 W. 46th St.

Jans Pictures, 729 Seventh Ave.

Jester Comedy Co., 220 W. 42nd St.

Kane, Arthur S., Prod., 25 W. 43rd St.

Metro Pictures, Loew Bldg., 1540 Broadway.

Moss, B. S., 1564 Broadway.

Outing Chester Pictures, 220 W. 42nd St.

Pathé Exchange, 35 W. 45th St.

Piedmont Pictures Corp., 45 Lighthouse St.

Preferred Pictures, 1650 Broadway.

Prizma, Inc., 110 W. 40th St.

Pyramid Picture Corp., 150 W. 34th St.

S. L. Pictures, 1540 Broadway.

Seitz, George B., 1990 Park Ave.

Selznick Pictures, 729 Seventh Ave. (Studio, W. Fort Lee, N. J.)

Stewart, Anita, Prod., Inc., 6 W. 48th St.

Sunshine Films, Inc., 140 W. 44th St.

Talmadge Film Corp., 1540 Broadway.

Topics of the Day Film Co., 1562 Broadway.

Triangle Distributing Corp., 1459 B'way.

Tully, Richard, Walton, Prod., 1482 B'way.

United Artists, 729 Seventh Ave.

Universal Film Corp., 1600 Broadway.

Vitagraph Films, E. 16th St. and Locust Ave., Brooklyn.

Warner Bros., 1600 Broadway.

West, Roland, Prod. Co., 236 W. 55th St.

Whitman, Bennett, Prod., 537 Riverdale Ave.

BE AN ARTIST

CHECK FROM MAGAZINE

DRAWN BY 14-YEAR-OLD-BOY

The above cartoon was drawn by Master Bob Brennan of the Washington School of Art. Bob writes that he is selling his work and that he is cartoonist on a small paper in Evansville, Ind. He is but one of our many students and graduates who are making money as cartoonists, illustrators and designers.

Learn By Mail at Home!

By our new method of teaching drawing by mail you can learn in your own home in a short time. Get into this fascinating work yourself! Artists earn $50 to $100 or more per week! The study is fascinating. Only a few minutes a day! Have your own studio or secure high-salaried position. Or work in spare time. Many students earn while they are learning.

Free! Handsome Illustrated Book

And a complete outfit free to all students. Includes everything required to produce hundreds of dollars' worth of pictures. Write today. Special terms to a limited number of new students. Mail postal or letter for beautiful free booklet, "How to Become An Artist," filled with drawings and full particulars of our extraordinary offer. Do it now—before you forget.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL OF ART, Inc.
Room 2112, Marden Building - - Washington, D. C.

BECOME A PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER

EARNING $35 TO $125 A WEEK

Three to six months' course. Motion Picture, Commercial, Portraiture. Practical Instruction. Modern Equipment. Ask for Catalog No. 18.

N. Y. INSTITUTE OF PHOTOGRAPHY
NEW YORK 141 W. 36th St. CHICAGO 630 So. Wabash Ave. BROOKLYN 505 State St.

WRITE FOR THE MOVIES

Ideas for moving picture plays wanted by producers. Big prices paid for accepted material. Submit ideas in any form at once for our immediate examination. Or write for FREE PHOTOPLAY BOOKLET and details of our service to Authors.

BRISTOL PHOTOPLAY STUDIOS
Suite 602 F Bristol Building, New York

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY For

For a limited number of ambitious women in certain localities we have the most remarkable business proposition ever presented. Experience unnecessary—no capital required. Net earnings should easily average $60 to $80 weekly for a few hours refined work demonstrating most wonderful article ever invented for use by womankind. Vastly superior to anything of the kind ever offered. Something that is indispensable to every woman—positively sells itself when shown. You merely do the demonstrating. We deliver and collect. For full details address
FREDERICK PFEIFFER AND CO., Dept. C 395 Broadway, New York

Beauty Culture Course

Easy to Earn $40 to $75 a Week at Home

Secrets of beauty parlors revealed. Thirty easy lessons can make you expert in all branches, massage, pedicure, dyeing, marcel, skin work, manucure, waves, bleach etc. in eight weeks. Study in spare time. Earn while you learn. Authorized diploma. Money back guarantee. 50,000 Opportunities. Get FREE book.

ORIENTAL SYSTEM OF BEAUTY CULTURE
Dept. 46 1000 Diversey Blvd. Chicago

25 YEARS THE STANDARD TRAINING SCHOOL FOR THE THEATRE ARTS

ALVIENE SCHOOL OF DRAMATIC ARTS

FOUR SCHOOLS IN ONE. PRACTICAL STAGE TRAINING. THE SCHOOL'S STUDENTS STOCK THE THEATRE AFFORD PUBLIC STAGE APPEARANCES

Write for catalogue mentioning study desired to Secretary
ALVIENE SCHOOLS, Suite 17
43 West 72nd Street
Bet. B'way & Central Park West, New York

"Monogram" Note Paper

200 Sheets Hammermill Bond, 8 1/2 x 11, 100 Envelopes to match, $1 the complete set postpaid for

This fine personal Stationery adds tone to your correspondence. We arrange your monogram on note sheets, either two or three letters, as shown at the left; print name and address on envelopes; all for $1. Distinction with a saving. Write plainly or print copy.

Monogram Stationery Co.
409 Fifth Street Des Moines, Iowa

The Remedy For Censorship

By STANTON LEEDS

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the third and last article by Mr. Leeds on the cause, result and cure for censorship. We hope you will not overlook the fact that, after all, the remedy is in your hands. If there is any other phase of the moving picture industry you would like to have discussed, let us know. We'll see Mr. Leeds.

JUST as there is a remedy for everything from spring fever to Ben Turpin's shortcomings as a romantic lead, so also there is a cure for censorship. Like all diseases, however, it requires diagnosis. Examined thoughtfully, it discloses to us, its doctors and physicians, two important aspects. It is either:

- (1) A menace to entertainment; or
- (2) An attempt to lessen the free spread of information, an attempt to curtail freedom of thought, and hence a thing political in its nature to be remedied by the voters of the republic.

In short, the remedy lies in your hands. If you are movie fans, you are voters, too, but politics is a matter, first, of argument, and, secondly, of organization. The argument in favor of censorship is that pictures of an unfortunate moral tone have from time to time been offered the public. That this, if it ever happened really, might not happen again, the picture producers themselves set up the Honorable Will H. Hays as a boss. That the production of pictures over which honest people may differ was usually the work of fly-by-nighters who sneaked into the game and sneaked out with their clean-up is not so generally understood.

Nor is it clear, generally speaking, that for such disagreeable occurrences there was a cure without resort to censorship. Granting that an immoral picture ever was shown in these United States of America, to end its run required only an appeal to the courts. Any citizen could go in and make that appeal and get immediate action. Citizens who do not like the movies have searched endlessly for causes to take to court. Failing to find them, they hit upon censorship as a scheme for bringing their prejudices to bear on our favorite amusement.

The point cannot be too strongly emphasized that there is everywhere in the union already a remedy for immoral pictures. Should one be produced and shown, all that is necessary is to call it to the court's attention. The judge will end it quickly, but this is not what censors want. They want to clamp down their narrow prejudices on every type of picture. For example, because of censorship:

Girls have no legs in many states.
Kisses must be so long and no longer. In Maryland you cannot kiss your wife's shoulder, in Ohio her foot.

Cigaretts aren't smoked by men or women in Kansas.

In Pennsylvania babies are neither born nor expected.

Such words as "ornery," "hot doggie," "wild oats," "bright eyes," "baby lamb" and "gimme" are looked on askance.

Robert Louis Stevenson's famous children's story, "Treasure Island," is regarded as an incentive for all youngsters to become pirates and horse thieves, while Jackie Coogan breaking windows in "The Kid" is also a bad example to other kids!

In Pennsylvania doll clothes are suggestive.

Enough! Obviously, the censors' idea is not to improve our morals, but something else again. What this something else is, we may well set out to inquire, for if these playboys of the western world are allowed to continue to act like a lot of scared cats dancing the light fantastic in a pool of molasses they will slowly but surely ruin the movies as a source of entertainment.

Obviously, if they are to continue in power, no one will dare produce anything human enough to be interesting. To do so would be to invite your film's destruction, so why continue them in power, a power they seek not for the reasons they give but for the reason given by George Bernard Shaw, the playwright, when he pointed out that the movies by improved use of the sign language, a language the same in every land, could easily revolutionize the world. Taking charge of them to see that the revolution they bring about suits a narrow minded few is a purely political action.

So far it has succeeded in great states like New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Maryland, Virginia and certain Canadian provinces, but the issue was joined last fall in Massachusetts and lost by the censorship advocates. The campaign was instructive, the majority 344,921 votes against censorship. Before this, the issue had been left to governors and legislatures.

This time the people got a chance to express their minds. The total vote was 553,173 against 208,252 in favor. The majority against censorship was 136,669 votes greater than the total negative vote, but this happy result was brought about in anything but a haphazard fashion. It was the result, first, of argument, and, secondly, of organization.

Those opposed organized a Committee of Massachusetts Citizens Against Censorship. On this committee
(Continued on page 95)

This interesting youth is a charming young man about pictures. He is the hero of Mae Murray's latest photoplay "Jazzmania"

Robert Frazer

Photograph by Edward Thayer Monroe

Betty Compson

We think this is the loveliest portrait of Betty Compson that has ever come to our offices. She is working at present on "The Rustle of Silk"

Photograph by Richee

Blue-eyed and jonquil-haired like her northern ancestors, Miss Nilsson is a sight for Kleig eyes. She was charming in "Adam's Rib" and we await impatiently her next picture, also "The Rustle of Silk"

Anna Q. Nilsson

Photograph by Freulich

Mary Philbin

*Sweet young girlhood is pictured here.
We shall see Mary again soon—in "The Merry Go Round"*

Photograph by Donald Biddle Keyes

Lois Wilson was fortunate enough to be chosen for the heroine of "The Covered Wagon" which is having an extraordinary New York run. It has been called, "The film epic of America" and you may be sure that Lois contributes her bonny share

Lois Wilson

Photograph by Pach Brothers

Charles de Roche

This is the romantic French actor who was brought to this country to take the place of Rodolf Valentino. Does anyone think he can do it? We shall see. . . . His first picture will be with Dorothy Dalton in "The Law of the Lawless"

Hungry Hearts

The Cinemese Tell

To HARRY

IN Hollywood, everybody sits around and yearns and yearns. Every one I know in the film colony wishes she were something else. They all sit around the sets and sigh for the day when the great ambish comes true!

It goes without saying, of course, that most of them crave to be something they couldn't be—and wouldn't like if they were. Which sounds a little mixed but is true.

Here's Mary Pickford the crowned queen of motion pictures—so far above all jealousies and rivalries that no other girl dreams of disputing her absolute sway . . . rich beyond the dreams of avarice . . . the most adored and most famous woman who ever lived. . . . Of course there is nothing that Mary could possibly yearn for . . . Oh, isn't there? Well . . .

Now all this fame and glory and wealth and so on doesn't mean so much to Mary. She is a lady with a crushed ambition. What

Douglas Fairbanks also yearns . . . to be a playwright . . . and the funny part of it is that Doug is quite likely to do it . . . he will get hold, some day, of the moon for which he is reaching

Photograph © by Strauss Peyton

What Mary wants to be is a painter . . . with palette on one little thumb . . . and a queen sitting on the throne waiting to be painted

Photograph by Abbé

Dorothy Gish longs to be anything but an actress . . . a cook maybe in a family where they are all compelled to fast on a hot water diet

Mary wants to be is a painter. In her soul hunger moments she sees herself standing in front of an easel, a palette on one little thumb, perhaps her hair mussed up a little and a little smudge of paint across her face and a queen sitting on the throne to be painted. Mary also mixes her dreams a little with a yearning to be an interior decorator. She can see herself walking thru a new house with a newly of Hollywood

Their Hearts' Desires

CARR

rich oil queen hanging on her words as she says: "I think you should have this room in yellow—with chairs or something scattered around."

Every time something goes wrong on one of her sets, when she is making picture dramas, Marv sighs and says, "I never should have tried this business. I should have followed my destiny and been a painter . . . away from all this fuss and worry . . . all these lights . . . and directors . . . and actors who cant act . . ."

Douglas Fairbanks also yearns.

His film career is well enough of course: one must not quarrel with one's bread and butter . . . that's true . . . that's true.

But if he had his way, he would be a playwright—a regular Gus Thomas . . . first nights with awed and frenzied crowds calling for the author . . . anx-

D. W. Griffith cherishes a desire to be a great orator swaying the masses . . . swaying the theater . . . the chandelier . . . and everything ious producers begging to be remembered when he writes his next one . . . Shakespeare green with envy in his frames. And the funny part of it is that Douglas is quite likely to do it. Of all the actors on the screen, he probably has the most accurate and inspired knowledge of the elements of true drama. Doug can find the weak spot in a play with the sure knowledge of a magnet finding a piece of iron. It is quite likely that he will get hold, some day, of the moon for which he is reaching.

In the bottom of his soul Charlie Chaplin has a hankering to be the leader of a great symphony orchestra . . . white gloves . . . a baton . . . thundering applause . . . a deprecating bow . . . savages tamed by music . . . Gosh!

And Charlie Chaplin . . .

Perhaps you think he is satisfied; but down in the bottom of his soul Charlie has a hankering that cant be stilled. Charlie wants to be the

Lillian Gish in her dreams sees herself the lady principal of a girl's college . . . telling them all about the dative case and the cum clause

Photograph © by Alb

TASKEY-

Photograph by Melbourne Spurr

She says she will be happy when she overhears someone say: "Good Heavens! There's that fat Fazenda woman. She's had another baby!"

Louise Fazenda says it means nothing in her life to be the funniest woman on the screen young ladies upon the peculiarities of the dative case as used by Cicero in his famous orations. And she can see herself getting letters from former pupils telling her that all their successes in life have come from the sweet lessons she imparted to them in the use of the cum clause in relation to the subjunctive mood.

Dorothy wants to be anything except an actress. She confesses that every time something slips the trolley during the making of a picture, she grabs up the Sunday paper and reads the "want" columns. She says she has discovered that the only thing she could do except act would be to get a job as cook in a family where they are fasting on a hot water diet.

Dorothy's husband — James Rennie — he's another yearner. One of the best juvenile actors in the world, he considers his job to be only a means to an end. What James wants to do is run a newspaper. In his dream moments, he can see himself in an editorial sanctum, moulding public opinion and just laying out the reptile contemporaries who have the audacity to dispute his views on the protective tariff—just laying them out in long cold rows.

Louise Fazenda . . . it means nothing in her life to be the funniest woman on the screen. What she wants to do is to have a ranch in California and be married to some nice man who understands pruning young orange trees and not to have worry about getting fat. She says that she will be happy when she overhears some one say (as she comes to town from her ranch) "Good heavens! There's that fat Fazenda woman. She's had another baby." Louise is quite likely to fulfil her ambition insofar as owning a ranch is concerned. A flock of ranches maybe. Louise is a miraculously successful investor. She must have all kinds of money by this time.

Harry Carey, the cowboy actor (who never was a cowboy by the way) yearns also. All his life he says he has wanted to write and act in sea stories. He wants to be a tough-rough-first-mate and buck the waves with (Cont'd on page 82) leader of a great symphony orchestra . . . white gloves . . . a baton . . . a music rack . . . a dark look at the offending slide trombone player . . . thundering applause . . . a deprecating bow . . . uplifted masses . . . savages tamed by the divine flow of melody . . . Gosh!

D. W. Griffith has always cherished a secret ambition to be a great orator, swaying the masses by his voice. His favorite characters in all history are men like Danton who have held mobs in the hollow of their hands. The only trouble is they have always been revolutionists. If D. W. could only find something eminently respectable as befitting a Kentucky gentleman to sway them about. The only outlet he can find for swaying is putting skids under censorship. The truth is, he could do it too. Griffith has an almost hypnotic power over men. The only trouble is, in his case, the mob swaying days of the world seem to be over—for Kentucky gentlemen.

Lillian Gish has a peculiar dream that occasionally afflicts her when things go wrong in the studio. Now this is a funny one. She would like to be the lady principal of a girls' college. She can see herself standing on the platform and discoursing to a thrilled and excited group of attentive

Every time Monte Blue gets out in front of a camera, his heart aches with longing to be on the other side of the instrument

THE TRAGIC MUSE

An interesting study by White Studios of Jetta Goudal, a young French actress of charm and distinction who has an important rôle in "The Bright Shawl" the last colorful Hergesheimer story to be put on the screen has been thru the mill that grinds out bitter years; but it has not destroyed her. Quite the contrary. Here for once, were the uses of adversity sweet. Hers is the peace of painfully acquired wisdom. Beverly Bayne has come thru.

The Return

Of a One-Time Idol

Francis X. Bushman is another story, another type. He is big and blond and ruddy, bristling with good health and unbelievably fit. He is robust, vigorous, aggressive. He is like a strong clean wind blowing. He really believes that all is right with the world, but what is more remarkable, makes you think so too, no matter how deep rooted your pessimism may be. He is wholesome, with a vitality that keeps that sanity and sense he possesses in so brave a measure from ever being dull. He is the husband of Beverly Bayne and beside that tie, they are alike in mind altho they seem to have arrived at the same conclusions, the same contented, ultimately wise state, so very differently.

They were completing the

Photograph by Edward Thayer Monroe

Above is the latest portrait of Francis X. Bushman, the whilom idol of the screen who has come back after an absence of nearly four years. Right is his wife, Beverly Bayne and their little boy, Richard (in the dark suit). The other child is appearing with them in their picture "Modern Marriage" soon to be released, which we await with profound interest

BEVERLY BAYNE is slender and small, with little feet and tiny little white hands. She has delicate features, a tenderly curved mouth with a wistful droop, gentle brown eyes and dark curling hair. There is about her slight person an air of pensive calm, a magnificent — a tremendous serenity. One immediately senses that this girl has suffered,

By SUSAN
ELIZABETH
BRADY

Last scenes of "Modern Marriage" out at the Whitman Bennett studios, when it was our privilege to talk to them. Mr. Bushman was about to throttle an attempted black-mailer, so we didn't interrupt and Beverly Bayne sat down beside us and talked; while her husband roared defiance on the set and the director megaphoned his approval; and her little son, the three year old Richard pictured here, climbed on and off her lap and got in the way of the carpenters and nearly pulled the scenery over on his small head like any other small boy; and the extras wandered around in their pathetically dull fashion. But Beverly Bayne never lost her poise or became even slightly ruffled.

"Do you find it very different?" we asked.

"Oh no," she replied, "not so very. Better photography and more acute direction. The only radical change I note is the generosity with footage. One is really given a chance now—that is—time to register an emotion. In the old days if ten feet of film was wasted the company contemplated bankruptcy. Now you can have all the footage you need. Except for that, it is very much the same. It is less than four years you know, actually."

We remembered this pair, tho it seemed longer ago than that. Francis X. Bushman had a vogue then comparable to that of Valentino's now. He was the romantic hero of the day. The unfortunate circumstances that forced them to abandon pictures for a time, are universally known. There is no need of going into that again. They went on the vaudeville stage and stuck to that, altho a

Photograph by Edward Thayer Monroe

Beverly Bayne has delicate features, a tenderly curved mouth with a wistful droop, gentle brown eyes and dark curling hair. There is about her slight person an air of pensive calm, a magnificent—a tremendous serenity little unwillingly, for nearly four years. They had tried to come back to their first love several times, but richer and richer contracts were thrust upon them and vaudeville claimed them with such a loud voice that there seemed to be no denying it. Now they are back and we shall see. The public is a fickle jade and the outcome is at best, mere speculation.

Driving home in the twilight with them, Mr. Bushman had his chance. He believes in motion pictures with all his heart. He said:

"I believe they are a great power, an incalculable
(Continued on page 83)

Foreign

By MAURICE

ENGLAND

Above, Lady Diana Manners in the English production of "The Virgin Queen," surrounded by the ladies of her court. Right, some of the beautiful and authentic background for the Italian film "Messalina." Below, Henry Victor in the British photoplay, "The Prodigal Son" from a story by Hall Caine

I AM glad to confirm what I said previously. England is awakening, is now very much awake, and I have noticed, amongst others presented during the last four weeks, three pictures of decided merit, one of which contains scenes which might even bear the signature of D. W. Griffith. One must certainly remember that Miss Mae Marsh who plays the lead in it, is American, but the producer is British and he has succeeded in making one of the best pictures England has so far produced. The title of the picture is "Paddy-the-next-best-thing." The other two pictures are "A Royal Divorce" of which I spoke in detail in my last article, and "The Virgin Queen" the new color film directed by J. Stuart Blackton. Both are well produced and can favorably compare with the best productions of today.

Let me just mention that "The Prodigal Son" from the book by Sir Hall Caine, and which has just been presented to the Press at the Covent Garden Theatre. London, is the longest picture made in England; as the producer wished, contrary to the usual custom, to follow page by page all the incidents of the book and reproduce them on the screen. I repeat, it is certainly the longest English picture, but the few interesting dramatic scenes are lost in the 17,000 feet of film.

FRANCE

When Henry Diamant-Berger was on location recently completing the sequel to "The Three Musketeers," he paid a visit, with some members of his company, to the great French tragedienne, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt. It was then announced that she would appear in a film directed by Diamant-Berger. It will be remembered that Sarah Bernhardt appeared in two or three films made before and during the war, amongst which are "Tosca" and "The Story of Queen Elizabeth." A friend of mine who approached the secretary of the Paris Theatre belonging to Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, told me that he did not think that the celebrated actress would be able to work at all for the cinema owing to her health which has given her much trouble of late.*

Among the latest important French films presented is "La Bouquetière des Innocents" which is a historical film of the time of Henry IV. A very interesting prologue begins this picture

*Since this was written the "Divine Sarah" has given up the battle with ill health and gone to her eternal rest.—EDITOR.

Below, Matheson Lang, an extra and Victor Seastrom in "Fire On Board" a Swedish film directed by Victor Seastrom during which in different pathetic scenes, we are shown one of the good acts which Henry IV used to do so often and which characterized him. This prologue is of a sentimental nature and contains some very attractive romantic scenes.

Films

ROSETT

SWEDEN

Among the films made in Sweden during the last few months is "Fire on Board" directed by Victor Seastrom. The scenario is written by the well-known Swedish author Hjalma Bergman who is also well known in many other countries for his book "Love's Crucible." The action of "Fire on Board" takes place in great part on board a ship and is full of dramatic excitement. It is a story of the fight of two men for a woman. Owing to the limited space it has thru the fact that the action is going on within the rails of the ship, the picture has a fascinating grip on the spectators. The part of the film where the ship is sinking is very sensational and is likely to be unique in the history of the film. The leading artists are Matheson Lang, the well known English stage actor, Victor Seastrom, and Mrs. Jenny Hasselqvist, the latter the greatest Swedish tragedienne.

During the present year, the Svenska Filmindustri will make a considerably greater number of films than before. The staff of Swedish actors is increased and furthermore the important Russian film man Dimitri Buchowetzki, the producer of "Danton" which was shown in America under the title of "All For A Woman" has been engaged. The scenario of one of the films which Buchowetzki is going to make has been written by himself in collaboration with the Hungarian author Alfred Lekete. The name of this film will be "The Masquerade of Life" and will show the individual struggle for happiness, gold and love.

RUSSIA

One seems to ignore what is done in Russia with respect to pictures. Since we heard of Soviet Russia, we have not heard very much about the cinema industry there. I am informed that during the months in which poverty reigned a society called "Russ" was formed and different pictures made. All of these photo-plays deal more with Russian customs and habits than anything else and are consequently very characteristic. I have secured some pictures of one of these films which is called

(Continued on page 81)

Film Gaumont Reproduction Prohibited

Above, a charming bit from the French historical photo-play "La Bouquetiere des Innocents." Left, atmosphere from "Les Opprimes" showing the charming old Guild Halls of Belgium. Below, Asta Neilsen, whose "Hamlet" we know over here, in a German picture called "The Downfall"

A typically Russian group from the Russian film "Polikuschka" made from a story by Leon Tolstoi

Photograph by Edwin Bower Hesser

TRILBY

Andrée Lafayette is a young French cinema actress who was brought to this country by Richard Watson Tully to play the title rôle in "Trilby." Gerald Du Maurier, son of the novelist and naturally familiar with his father's conception of Trilby, has declared her the ideal type for that ill-fated heroine. She does look like the familiar Du Maurier drawings. Another claim to distinction this talented girl has is that she is a direct descendant of General Lafayette

Little Old New York

By PATRICIA DOYLE

A story of early New York days when Bowling Green was a park and lower Manhattan was a residential district; and Robert Fulton was about to launch the first steamboat; and names like John Jacob Astor, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Henry Brevoort and Delmonico were just beginning to mean something

"THINGS do be comin' too thick and fast for this owld mon," opined John O'Day, lifting his bent back from the peat bog from which he had been cutting poor man's fuel in big square clumps. "Whist now, Alannah, howld yer peace. I'll be wi' ze."

Dancing up and down before him in a whirl of excitement was Patsy, his daughter. Tears stained her cheeks but laughter curled her lips. She scowled and smiled with one motion. Only the Irish can do this.

"They do be taking all our things father—the sheriff and the landlord and two dirty spalpeens from up Darragh way—your great big chest, father is gone—divvle a chair to sit on or bed to sleep in will be left to us—haste father—"

"Mind yer tongue, lass," her father answered stepping swiftly toward her. "'Dirty spalpeen' and 'divvle' is divvle a word for a lady to use. But what for are ye smilin' whin such misfortune comes to yer owld father?"

"Oh this letter," Patsy answered waving a bulky envelope toward him. "It seems like good news but Pat nor me—nor I—cant understand it altogether."

And good news it was; just in time too for all sorts of reasons. John O'Day's brother had died over in America, which was no particular loss to John for they had been estranged for a great many years. But his brother was a rich man and he had left all his vast fortune to John's son Patrick; instead of leaving it to his second wife and her son who had come between the brothers long ago, and for whom old John cherished a deathless enmity. This was mighty good luck for John; for John had fallen foul of the world of wealth and ease and had spent his life in impracticable dreams of Irish freedom and Irish progress and with typically Irish sentiment had overlooked entirely his own freedom and progress. Ireland must be free, but it didn't matter so much that his children were often close to starving and cold with neglect. Patricia was a hardy youngster and had survived but Patrick who was ailing from birth was now a helpless invalid.

O'Day's household goods meagre tho they were, were to be sold at auction for his debts on this pleasant summer day in the year of Our Lord 1820. With the arrival of the letter from New York he let them go cheerfully. Lamentations were turned into rejoicing and for the first time in John O'Day's life some practical plan was set on foot for hastening them to America. They had need for haste, because by the terms of the will which provided that in the event of the non-appearance of Patrick O'Day, the money was to revert to his stepson, Larry Delavan, the time had almost elapsed for claiming the fortune. Unfortunately much valuable time had been lost while the lawyer had dug them out from their obscurity.

Larry Delavan stared suspiciously at the two figures who stood somewhat dubiously before him in the hall of his spacious New York residence.

Larry Delavan stared suspiciously at the two odd figures before him. "We be John O'Day and his da—son, Pat," the old man muttered, "and we've come over the sea from Ireland to claim yer stepfather's fortune. I hev all the proofs in me coat. What's to do now?" The younger one only stared back

"We be John O'Day and his da—son, Pat," the old man muttered, "and we've come over the sea from Ireland to claim yer stepfather's fortune. I hev all the proofs here in me coat. What's to do now?"

"Good Lord! I dont know," ejaculated the young Delavan ungraciously, shaking a mental fist at this malign trick of fate's that had cheated him out of his stepfather's rich inheritance at the last minute. "I suppose you'll have to stay here. I'll have Reilly show you to a—to your room."

"Father," cried the young Pat bursting into tears when they were safely behind the door, "I can never do it. You shouldn't have asked me to— Such a handsome young man—such a fine gentleman—and it's really his money. We haven't any right to it. We—"

"Howld yer tongue," John O'Day interrupted angrily. "Is it our fault yer brother Pat died on shipboard? God rest his soul!" he added hastily blessing himself piously. "He's better off all dead than half dead, Patsy child, ye're after knowin' that. Yer uncle's yer own ain't he? Blood kin? We're entitled to his money, but even if we ain't, we be going to claim it. So now ye are Patrick O'Day, nephew to the late lamented. Whin ye git the money ye can do as it plazes ye. Come cheer up Colleen, no more tantrums and bad scran to the Delavan!"

So here was a sorry situation, not to say perilous. Unwelcome guests in an unwelcome masquerade. Unwelcome masquerade to Patricia anyway, who woman-like and characteristically Irish had complicated matters by promptly falling in love with the handsome, sulky, reckless Larry. Being a boy under the circumstances was a handicap the least . . . but still if she had stayed a girl she wouldn't—couldn't be near him at all, which fact somewhat compensated for the hateful trousers.

It was hard remembering tho. The impulse to snuggle against Larry was at times almost irresistible, but boys didn't do that. She spent hours brushing out her short jonquil yellow hair whose sacrifice she still wept over in secret. Boys certainly didn't do that. She had tried to smoke too, one of the long slender pipes the young bloods of the day were affecting; but it had made her fearfully ill and young Fitzgreen Halleck and Washington Irving, Larry's cronies had laughed at her and she had stamped her foot and run out of the room. In retrospect it hadn't seemed a particularly virile or manly performance. She must be more careful. Hang the old money anyway . . . Larry hated her for an interloper.

But when old John O'Day begrudgingly died and she was left utterly alone Larry Delavan had a change of heart. He saw in her then only a helpless forlorn lonely youngster in a foreign land, grieving for the only one who was dear to her. He was kind to her then, and Pat came so near to giving herself away that she was on the point of confessing the truth a dozen different times.

But it was wonderful to have money. It provided endless entertainment and after her first tearful grief Pat began to liven up again and be her own cheerful saucy dare devil self. Larry was her gravest care. He spent most of his time gambling and drinking, attending prize fights and balls with equal ardor. There was one mincing miss just home from London that Pat hated with all her heart. Her name was Ariana de Puyster and Larry loved her—or at least Pat thought he did. She played the piano, "Maiden's Prayer" and "Hearts and Flowers" and that sort of thing. Very sentimental. Larry seemed to like them tho. So Pat unpacked her harp that she hadn't touched since she had left the old country.

She used to sing in a sweet throaty soprano:

"The harp that once thru Tara's halls
The soul of music shed;
Now hangs as mute on Tara's walls,
As tho that soul were dead."

She really played it remarkably well and she had an inexhaustible repertoire of old Irish ballads and folk songs, plaintively melancholy, as her country and its people are at heart, for all the comic opera Irishmen one reads and hears about. Sometimes she would twang the strings suddenly and unexpectedly into one of the rollicking Irish jigs. Everyone loved Pat but no one could ever tell what she was going to do next.

Larry seemed to like her playing too. Because, once when Miss Betty Schuyler whom Pat also detested, was giving a party at her big house across the lawn from Larry's, and Ariana was playing sweetly on the piano for the assembled guests in general and Larry in particular, Larry had sneaked back across the lawn to listen to Pat playing her wistful Irish melodies and hoping he would come. She almost told him that night. He stood at the gate looking very hard at her and she trembled inside scarce daring to breathe.

"You're a queer one, Paddy," he said, "nice little kid. I'm awfully fond of you."

And "I love, love, love you." Pat's heart was sighing so loud she thought he must hear it, and blushed and ran away.

"Just like a girl!" she thought afterwards. "He's just stupid not to know it." But Pat was afraid now for the falsehoods she was involved in and held her peace as best she might.

At about this time Robert Fulton was going to launch his first steam boat. Wise heads wagged and said it couldn't be done, but the reckless foolish ones were crazy to invest their money in the venture. Larry Delavan was one of these. The only trouble was he didn't have any money to put up. Whereupon Pat gaily hoodwinked her lawyer, old John Jacob Astor into giving her ten thousand dollars, a goodly sum for those days, and promptly offered it to Larry.

To Larry's everlasting credit and Pat's intense chagrin he refused to take it. She almost wept. "Such a pretty trick I played on old Astor, to get it," she wailed. "Neat as Sunday pants. And now you go and act uppity. You're a hateful old thing and I—"

"Why Paddy, boy," the bewildered Larry objected, "I didn't know you felt that way about it. Tell you what I'll do. Give me five days to raise it—that is I'll borrow it for five days and—"

"You can have it to keep," said Pat, beaming again.

"No," replied Larry. "You see, Paddy, a big fight has been arranged over in the fire-house between Bully Boy Brewster and a man called the Hoboken Terror, a great beast, but still Bully Boy has training and skill on his side. I think he'll win but the heavy betting is on the other one. I'm going to bet on Bully Boy and I'll have that ten thousand sure. You're a great one just the same to offer it to me. Better give it back to Mr. Astor like

He stood at the gate looking very hard at her and she trembled inside scarce daring to breathe. "You're a queer one, Paddy," he said, "nice little kid. I'm awfully fond of you." And, "I love, love, love you!" Pat's heart was sighing so loud she thought he must hear it

With one twist he tore the flimsy silk shirt half off. "Stop!" screamed Pat, "Oh, stop! I'm a girl." "What the hell?" burst from the amazed Terror who stood stock still staring at her with his mouth hanging stupidly open

"a good boy." And he patted her affectionately on the shoulders.

"You darling, you darling," Pat's heart was saying this time but she had to be content with Larry's decision.

"Now Reilly," said Pat on the night of the big fight in her most wheedling tones, "I'll buy you a pound of your favorite tobacco if you'll do something for me."

"Shure an' I will, gossoon," old Reilly replied "whatever it may be."

"You've promised," said Pat and threw her arms around the old man's neck.

"Whist b'y," said Reilly, "another hug like that and this old man will turn up missing. Well, what divlement is it now you're after wantin' to do?"

But he looked doubtful when Pat told him what it was, and the bribe had to be doubled, and it took all Pat's coaxing and cajoling powers, which heaven knows, were practically irresistible, before he finally gave in.

In the spacious fire-house was a mob of impatient men. A prize fight was an event in those days of comparative calm. Bowling Green was a park, lower Manhattan a residential section, the fire house a rendezvous for all the young gallants in town —Larry of course and his pals in their long tight trousers and frilled shirt fronts; farmers in their wrinkled smocks; young toughs in short black velvet jackets handkerchiefs tied around their throats; coachmen in their coats with many little capes cracking their whips; firemen in their quaint impractical uniforms; a varied and motley throng of men.

The two fighters were at it, pounding bare flesh, punching and jabbing, responding to the cries of their various backers with fresh aggressiveness. Larry Delavan was unhappy. Brute strength was triumphing over skill. The Hoboken Terror had floored his man twice now, but Bully Boy had not taken the count either time. He was badly winded tho. Looked like a sure thing for the Terror. Bully Boy couldn't stand up under it much longer. He would give out in another round.

But there never was that other round.

Suddenly with its clanging warning the fire bell had rung out. The Terror held his hand. Bully Boy straightened up. The crowd began to scatter getting out of the way. The firemen sprang to their clumsy equipment. The fight broke up with no decision. The crowd

LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

Fictionized by permission from the Cosmopolitan production of the adaptation of Luther Reed from the stage play of Rida Johnson Young. Directed by Sidney Olcott and starring Marion Davies. The cast:

Patricia O'Day.....	Marion Davies
John O'Day.....	J. M. Kerrigan
Larry Delavan.....	Harrison Ford
Robert Fulton.....	Courtenay Foote
Washington Irving.....	Mahlon Hamilton
Fitzgreen Halleck.....	Norval Keedwell
Henry Brevoort.....	George Barraud
Cornelius Vanderbilt.....	Sam Hardy
John Jacob Astor.....	Montagu Love
Mr. De Puyster.....	Riley Hatch
Reilly (Larry's servant).....	Charles Kennedy
Bunny (The Night Watchman).....	Spencer Charters
Bully Boy Brewster.....	Harry Watson
The Hoboken Terror.....	Louis Wolheim
Delmonico.....	Charles Judels
Ariana de Puyster.....	Gypsy O'Brien
Betty Schuyler.....	Mary Kennedy
Rachel Brewster.....	Elizabeth Murray
Chancellor Livingston.....	Thomas Findlay
Mrs. Schuyler.....	Marie R. Burke

surged to the street. Everything was ready. But there was no fire. The dazed crowd suddenly knew itself sold. It was a false alarm. But who had rung the bell.

"It's that — Delavan and his crowd, I'll bet a hat!" suddenly hellowed the voice of one of the Terror's backers. "He had money on Bully Boy."

"Delavan, Delavan," the crowd began to yell, thirsting for vengeance on the man who had spoiled their sport.

"I'll horsewhip the —," snarled the Terror, "for stealing my fight."

"To the whipping post," roared the crowd and following the burly form of the Hoboken Terror they tore down the street to Larry's house.

As for that young man he had been overcome by a terrible suspicion at the first sound of the fire bell. He hurried home, but he did not get there first.

"At the sound of the terrific commotion outside the house Pat opened the front door to confront an angry mob.

"Out of the way boy," the Terror cried threateningly. "We wants young Delavan."

"What do you want him for?" said Pat standing her ground but turning pale.

"None of your damn business," answered one, and "he rang the fire bell and stopped the fight," cried a dozen voices.

"No," said Pat throwing her head back as if for air. "He didn't ring it. I did. I hid in the tower on the stairs leading up to the bell. I could see you fighting. I—I—wanted—anyway, I rang the bell."

"Of all the bloody impudence," thundered the Terror. "I'll beat the hell out o' you, you young whelp!"

He seized the terrified Pat and rushed down the street with her slender body flung over his shoulder like a sack, the crowd pounding at his heels yelling like the possessed. On the whipping block Pat was tied to a post, hands high up over her head. The Terror stripped to the waist with great drops of sweat glistening on his coarse hide, his undershot jaw thrust forward like an angry bull dog, stood beside her with a long black whip in his huge hand.

Pat closed her eyes. The long curling leather whistled thru the air and cut deep into her tender flesh. She shrieked aloud with pain. Once more the cruel thong marked its length across her back.

"Take off his shirt," bawled the crowd, blood hungry. The Terror started to obey. He untied Pat's nerveless hands and she staggered and would have fallen but he caught her and thrust her upright once more. With one twist he tore the flimsy silk shirt half off.

"Stop!" screamed Pat. "Oh, stop! I'm a girl!" "What the hell?" burst from the amazed Terror who stood stock still for a moment his mouth hanging stupidly open.

"So much the better," he said at last. "There's other ways of dealing with a girl."

He made a grab for her and the dumfounded crowd began to rumble a dissent. Just then Larry and his friends broke thru the mass surrounding the whipping post. With one blow he knocked the surprised Terror flat and picking up Pat carried her home, while his friends laid about them with their canes with a right good will.

Larry's suspicions were well founded. He had got the details from the trembling old Reilly and had come tearing like mad to the whipping block. As long as he lived he would never forget that terror struck cry, "I'm a girl!" He looked down at the white tear stained face on his shoulder and a wave of tenderness surged up thru the man like a flood-tide. "Lord what a fool I've been," he muttered, "what a blind fool." He bent and kissed the pale curved lips. (It is never too late to acquire wisdom or to rectify one's mistakes.) Pat's lips trembled and grew red and warm under his. Her eyes opened.

"Well," she said in amazingly calm tones, "what are you going to do with me now?"

"Good Lord, I dont know!" answered Larry kissing her again and fairly blushing to remember how he had said the same thing once before.

But it was not what Larry intended to do with her that was serious. It was what the Town Council would decide. For the Town Council had taken the matter up. It was a serious offense to ring the fire bell.

It was equally serious for a woman to masquerade as a man. Besides, a fortune had been acquired under false pretenses. Grave, very grave. The Town Council shook its heads over the affair. It was a clear case certainly. The culprit must be punished. The only drawback to the pursuit of justice was the culprit herself.

(Continued on page 74)

Later, in the garden, Patricia murmured something about the luck of the Irish. "And anyway," she added, "the money is just as much mine now as tho it was really mine." Which cryptic utterance Larry seemed to understand very well

GLORIA SWANSON

A drawing by Hal Phylfe from a photograph by Edwin Bower Hesser

At Lunch With Gloria

By JEFFERY CARTER

An interview with the most individually dressed woman on the screen, wherein by special request, her clothes aren't even mentioned and her undeniable brains are given a chance to air

WE stood on the curb outside the studio and debated concerning the noonday repast. The press agent had some sort of a visionary idea about a place in Hollywood where they had scrawly things painted on the wall. He was ignored with a proper measure of contempt. Some one else suggested the Writers' Club, the Athletic Club, some more clubs, a hotel frequented by movie stars, another hotel not frequented by movie stars, somebody's private house and a hot dog wagon.

Gloria stood apart, with pursed lips, as one struggling with a responsibility. Suddenly she brightened. "Oh yes," she said, "That would be nice. We'll go there. Come on."

The nice place turned out to be the Writers' Club.

A year or so ago, the literati of Hollywood and way stations bought a fine old private house on Sunset Boulevard and turned it into a most charming club. The place where you eat is a great cool room with vaulted ceilings and widely scattered tables and pattering little Filipino servants in white duck.

Gloria started to sit down, then changed her mind and moved over to a far table. From the expression on her face it was plain that somebody in the dining-room was having the most famous back in the world turned on him—or her.

"Whatever you write about me," she said, picking out the salad fork. "Don't say anything about my clothes."

"What's the matter with the clothes?"

"Nothing is the matter with my clothes," said Gloria indignantly, glancing at the fur wrap she had thrown back over her chair. "But I am tired of having people start to talk about Gloria and end by talking about clothes. Some one has called me Cecil de Mille's clothes-horse."

"Lots of girls would be glad . . ." began some one.

"True enough," said Gloria, taking the words out of his mouth. "I can remember when it would have given me a thrill to have had my clothes talked about. Last summer in Paris I was in one of those big dressmaking salons with a young regiment of designers and manikins dancing attendance. It suddenly came to me how I used to sit up nights trying to do something to my one cheap little dress to make it last another season. It made me laugh out loud."

"Are you any happier?"

Gloria considered. "What's the use," she said at last, "of thinking whether you wish you had or you wish you hadn't. When the chicken is once out of the egg, it is out of the egg. You can't return to any condition that has passed. It is futile for me to try to think whether I am happier now than I would have been if something else had happened—or hadn't happened."

Gloria savagely jabbed her salad fork into a lettuce leaf and a cruel little sneer came into her eyes . . . a look that faded into one of wistfulness. "The trouble is," she said, "that you can't succeed in the world without becoming public property. I wonder why those rotten little scandal sheets can't let me alone. If what they said were true, I wouldn't complain. But it is terrible. I haven't any private life. They tell me if I sued them for libel, they would only be worse." The look of a fighting Swede came into Gloria's eyes. "If it weren't for my baby, I would . . ."

This picture is from one of Gloria's not particularly recent photoplays but we have used it because it seems to us to represent more perfectly than we can put into words the gorgeous luxuriousness and alluring beauty of this radiant woman and being hit with water from hoses and going around bare legged. I simply walked out. Then I came over to the Lasky studio. Mr. Cecil de Mille saw me and gave me a part in 'Male and Female.' The first thing I had to do was to take off most of my clothes and scramble into the water again. I thought I had left the frying pan for the fire."

"But you learned about acting from Cecil."

"Indeed I did. I learned that the way to act is not to act. I learned that the less you actually do, the more you convey."

Suddenly, out of a clear sky, Gloria remarked:

Nobody found out just what she would do. "At any rate, you wouldn't want to go back and be a Sennett bathing girl again. . . ." Gloria looked up suddenly. "I learned a lot from being a Sennett bathing girl."

"About swimming?"

"No. About acting. Comedy is a wonderful training. You have to get the points over so clearly. You exaggerate everything; but in exaggeration, you learn just where the finished line has to go. Afterward, when you undertake another kind of acting, you can tone down your effects. It's like these artists who draw pictures with a few dabs and lines. They only learn to do that after they have mastered the art of the finished picture. The art of leaving out is the last touch you learn."

Gloria smiled at a recollection that flashed across her memory.

"I remember when I left the Sennett comedies. There was just one day too many of dodging pies

Photograph by Donald Biddle Keyes

By way of a pleasant contrast to the picture on the other page are these three informal studies. We call your attention to Gloria's remarkably large and expressive eyes. We hope you are reading this interview because Gloria's honeyed tongue has dripped words of wisdom worth anyone's attention. In her ornamental head is a brain in perfectly good working order

"I wish they would cut out the villains." And answering some one's question, she said, "There aren't really any villains; we are all villains; it's the same thing."

"Oh yes, perfectly clear."

"Well," she laughed. "I mean no one is a villain all the time. I dare say a lot of bandits are faithful, tender husbands. We are all villains Monday morning and saints Monday afternoon. There is no such thing as a good man or bad man. There are simply men who re-act differently to different situations."

"Well, us authors must have our villains."

"It isn't the authors," said Gloria glaring back over her shoulder at a long

(Continued on page 75)

Photograph by Ira L. Hill

IDOL WORSHIP

Here is the beautiful—we never can resist putting “beautiful” in front of Betty’s name—Blythe sitting on the mantel like a parlor ornament or an east Indian idol . . . well . . . we’ll fall down and worship Betty any time she will let us. She has started work on her fourth Whitman Bennett production. Wish we were a Kleig light . . . or something. . . .

Photograph by Melbourne Spurr, L. A.

The Heavy

Ernest Torrence, the screen's most villainous villain tells his story to

JANE H. LIPMAN

"One may smile and smile, and be a villain"

—SHAKESPEARE.

FOR, "one may smile and smile, and be a villain!" So said Billy Shakespeare long, long ago—and the words were echoed by Henry King, the successful motion picture director of "Tol'able David," and other large productions in Hollywood, as he sent for Ernest Torrence, prominent comedian of musical comedy fame in New York.

Thus a wonderfully fine comedian was submerged by the cruel and domineering heavy of "Tol'able David," and Mr. Torrence planted himself firmly in the depths of motion picture endeavors.

"It had always been my dream, my greatest desire, from the time of my arrival in America in 1911, to enter motion picture work," said Mr. Torrence as we sat in his cozy Hollywood bungalow and he explained how the speaking stage had lost a fun-maker, and the silver sheet gained a heavy.

"My constant entreaties to motion picture director friends at the Lambs Club, and in other theatrical circles, were all laughingly brushed aside. 'Entirely too tall,' said one. 'You wouldn't film well at all,' said another—but I kept nagging and urging for even an extra part, a simple film test, to prove either my failure or a possible chance for success. But words and prayers fell on deaf ears, and I continued to work in musical comedy on Broadway. By then I had begun to feel my constant insistence was perhaps after all, useless.

At the top of the page is Ernest Torrence as he really is. Above as Emilio in "Singed Wings" and left a character portrait. This man made the astounding leap from musical comedy comedian to the heaviest of screen villains. For this sort of thing he is in constant demand

"Then came Mr. King's proposition. I was more thrilled than words can express. I was to be given a chance in pictures—not a mere extra, but a real part in what Mr. King assured me would be one of the biggest films of the year. Imagine my chagrin, my feeling of utter despair when my director friend calmly announced my rôle was to be a very heavy, dramatic one! I felt almost afraid. I was outwardly calm, however, and as many other men and women have met the great turning point in their careers, I also met mine. I feel now that my 'villain' in my first picture was a good, solid answer to any fears I may have had that my sense of comedy would overshadow the opposite emotions and passions I had to throw into the characterization.

"I was afraid my former work would hinder me," Mr. Torrence had told Director King during the filming of Tol'able David. Mr. King's answer was an expression of the firm belief that before a man can be a real actor he must have been a comedian.

"As I see it now," continued Mr. Torrence, "Comedy and Tragedy are but twin souls in the art of acting. It is only a step around the corner to go from a laugh-provoking old character into a hateful, despicable one."

Just before Tol'able David was shown at the Strand Theater in New York, Mr. Torrence, who had then returned from Hollywood, was considered for a heavy, dramatic rôle, in a film starring John

Photograph by Clarence S. Bull

Ernest Torrence in his first screen rôle, the most depraved of the unspeakable Hatburns in "Tol'able David," an extraordinarily vivid character interpretation. Below, as that endearing old good-for-nothing Mahaffy in "The Prodigal Judge." He is now playing Clopin in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"

Barrymore, but the director concluded that because of his unction as a comedian, he could never be a successful dramatic actor.

"I hope he attended the opening performance of Tol'able David," said charming, little Mrs. Torrence, who had sat quietly during our interview. "I was actually afraid of the man Ernest seemed to be on the screen. I had always known him as such a jolly person, you know."

It is indeed hard to realize the real Ernest Torrence is the bad man we see in the films. In several pictures, however, he has portrayed rather lovable characters, as "Mahaffy," in "The Prodigal Judge," a Vitagraph picture made in New York, and "Emilio," a half-witted clown in "Singed Wings," a west coast Lasky production.

"We have just finished what I think will be the biggest picture of the year," Mr. Torrence remarked, referring to the Paramount special, "The Covered Wagon."

"In this film I am seen as a very 'hard-boiled egg,' as they say, but as I am on the

(Continued on page 77)

Hollywood Homes

Views of the house and gardens of the beautiful California home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray—and "Whiskers"

In the upper left hand corner is a bit of the "rest porch" in the rear, overlooking the bathing pool, the charming little tea house and the gardens. The floor is of smooth glazed tiling. Upper right, Mr. and Mrs. Ray and their inseparable companion, "Whiskers." Below is the front elevation, charming in its dignity and simplicity

Photograph by J. C. Milligan

The Bathing Pool

This lovely spot is a corner of the magnificent bathing pool which seems to be a necessary part of all these beautiful estates. The rear of the house is shown and the garage and a little glimpse of the extensive and picturesque gardens. An air of well-bred contentment broods over this picture. We cant imagine anything but charming things happening here, like lawn parties and moonlight bathing parties and graceful lolling in the sunshine and shade. We vote this view the pleasantest of all. Next month Classic will show you Norma Talmadge's new house, interiors and exteriors

A Song Of The Screen

Pictures and Verse

By DOROTHY ROSECRANS BRIGHTON

Two young birds that bill and coo
As no birds of our ken do,
Always herald love's young dream
—Upon the screen

And the sunny-curved young thing
Dances playfully in the spring
As the hero comes in view
—Upon the screen

When the young wife's sore and quits,
Baby son develops fits,
Crying "Doesn't ma love pa?"
—Upon the screen

Mothers totter, frail and white,
Reading Bibles all the night,
Waiting for the wayward son
—Upon the screen

When the villain's work is o'er
He's not wanted any more,
A violent death's the thing
—Upon the screen

Artist always wins the prize
Just before his child-wife dies
And they sail for sunny Spain,
—Upon the screen

Cast upon a desert isle
Marceled cutie spends a while Learning butlers are real gents
—Upon the screen

Situations like these are Much more plausible by far
Than some others you may see
—Upon the screen

And the reason, critics say
Is because draw-mah today
Is still in swaddling clothes
—Upon the screen

This may all be very well
But, poor devil, try to sell
Any movies unlike those
—Upon the screen.

Half Chinese and Wholly Lovely

By BARRETT CLARK

Photograph by Grenbeaux

SHE says it was her French mother who did it.

In which case I am in favor of giving Alsace back to Germany and burning down the statues of Lafayette.

For of course her name should have been something in Chinese that sounded like Limehouse Nights stories . . . something about scarlet petals and silver rivers . . . something about white almond blossoms and rose leaves. I know a dark smelly little dump down in Chinatown where the cockroaches gambol and frisk around the tables; and they call the place, "The Abode of Ten Thousand Jewels." And then they had to name this lovely peach blow half-caste girl "Etta Lee."

Well, it's discouraging.

But anyhow she can cling to the distinction of being the only Eurasian girl in the fillums. Every once in a while, in this picture or that, you see a willowy, lovely oriental girl go slipping thru a scene like the memory of a dream. That's Etta Lee (whose name ought to be something in Chinese meaning The Breath of the Dawn).

She was the Chinese girl in Katharine McDonald's "Infidel" (about the worst picture ever made in the world by the way). She had a little part in Constance Talmadge's "East Is West" and a better one with Ethel Clayton in "The Remittance Woman." They almost gave her the part of the Mandarin woman in "Java Head," but abandoned the idea because she had had so little experience.

Miss Lee lives in a cute little apartment on the opposite rim of Los Angeles from Hollywood. She burns punk sticks and somehow contrives to give the impression of old bald priests in far-off Bhudda temples out beyond

Every once in a while, in this picture or that, you see a willowy, lovely oriental girl go slipping thru a scene like the memory of a dream. That's Etta Lee (whose name ought to be something in Chinese meaning The Breath of the Dawn) the edge of the morning . . . of passion flowers growing in the walls of forgotten ruins . . . cherry trees blooming on the banks of the Chinese rivers . . . old jade . . . smoke rising in slender mauve spirals against the black recesses of old altars. . . .

But otherwise, she isn't at all Chinesey.

The sad and unromantic truth is that the fair Etta is a high brow young lady with a university degree and a teacher's certificate. She knows more about Maeterlinck than Confucius, more about lip sticks than Tao. Her father was a Chinese physician, her mother a very charming and well educated French lady. She spent her girlhood in California where they gave her a university education. Then she went to Hawaii to teach school to

(Continued on page 76)

Frank Lloyd's Jackie Coogan

By FAITH SERVICE

THE Classic editor said to me in her customary heartless fashion of a step-mother to an ugly duckling: "Go and see Frank Lloyd. In the altogether possible contingency that you dont know that he directed the Coogan 'Oliver Twist' I shall enlighten you; and I want you to find out so far as your feeble powers will permit just what he thinks of Jackie, just what he thought about him, day by day, in every way! I dont, remember, care in the least what he thinks about you, and assuming that he does find the time to give you a thought I shall not print one single word of it, be it flattery—or fact."

* * *

You can put any construction you please upon the above asterisks. They're often used, you know, in cases of compulsion like the one cited above. Mrs. Glyn uses, 'em 'frequent,' too . . . However, think your own thoughts . . . some of you will be right. . . .

Photograph by Witzel, L. A.

A late portrait of Frank Lloyd, whose sympathetic comprehension of the genius of Jackie Coogan made possible that beautiful photoplay "Oliver Twist." Mr. Lloyd has just finished directing "Within the Law" for Norma Talmadge. He invests his productions with humanity rather than sentimentality, a rare and invaluable quality for a motion picture director to possess

* * *

"Tell me about your Jackie Coogan," I said.

Director Frank Lloyd looked as tho the subject pleased him hugely. He leaned forward, clasped his hands, and his smile was almost tender. It was a smile that was good to see. One could tell that he was thinking not only in his directorial capacity of "Oliver Twist," but also about a little boy of whom he is paternally fond, and of a great artist to whom he would seek to pay tribute.

"Jackies doesn't belong to any one person," Mr. Lloyd said, "he belongs to the world. He has a great soul. He is not a child prodigy. He is not precocious in the way that word is usually meant. Jackie is utterly natural, absolutely spontaneous and wholly unconscious and unforced.

"I didn't realize until we were thru with 'Oliver Twist' what a great artist Jackie really is. You dont realize it, because he is so natural. You never feel that you are directing him. You never feel that he is acting . . . he isn't, as a matter of fact, he is wholly feeling.

"Jackie's greatness is in his intuitive understanding — and in his eyes. He has the most extraordinary eyes I have ever seen. Every grief, every joy, every emotion and shade of emotion are mirrored in those great eyes. The rest of his face is just like thousands of other children.

"But put the idea out of your mind, if it is there, that Jackie is 'old.' He is thoroly a child. He prefers to play with children, and when he plays with them he plays honest-to-goodness kid games.

"He has, fortunately, the right kind of parents. They are bright, simple people, who love him to death, of course, but who keep him unspoiled and a child. They dont pamper him and they dont allow him to become impressed with his own importance. He has no conception of it at all, and I have seen him shrink away from crowds or from reporters or interviewers who approach him as Jackie Coogan, Screen Star. He is a little boy and he prefers to be met upon his own little-boyish ground.

"Jackie will go on . . . and on . . . Some child 'prodigies' go so far and then stop, but Jackie, as I have said, even tho it seem paradoxical, is not a child prodigy. He is a genius and he 'has it.' There will come a time, perhaps, when for reasons of education and because he will have reached the awkward age, Jackie will leave the screen for a short while. But he will come back again and the man will fulfil the boy. I know that.

"Before we began to make 'Oliver Twist' Jackie was crazy for an electric train and tracks. He has never had one. His father told him that if he would be a good boy during the filming of the picture and concentrate very hard that when we were finished he would give him the train. But I beat his father to it. When we were finished I bought him the train and one afternoon I invited him to my house without telling him that I had it for him. He came with his grandmother and when they arrived and he saw the tracks all spread out on the floor he thought that it belonged to my little girl with whom he often plays and that she had got one first. But when I told him it was for him he simply dropped to the floor beside it, utterly lost and absorbed. His grandmother prodded his politeness. "Jackie," she said, "what do you say to Mr. Lloyd?" Then Jackie paid me a most tremendous tribute. He looked up at his grandmother for a moment with those great and grateful eyes and said, simply, "Oh, grandma, what can I say?" and then turned back again.

"That is Jackie. His emotions are authentic. He never exaggerates or pretends. His small body is all child, but it houses a great soul and thru the clear, miraculous windows of his eyes that soul shines surely thru. One may spend a casual afternoon with this child and discover nothing at all remarkable about him, nothing at all that distinguishes him from any other bright

Photograph by
Edwin Bower Hesser

"Jackie," says Frank Lloyd bellying the title, "doesn't belong to any one person. He belongs to the world. He has a great soul. He is not a child prodigy. He is not precocious in the way the word is usually meant. He is utterly natural, absolutely spontaneous and wholly unconscious and unforced. He is a great artist" youngster, no evidence of precocity; but one could not work with this malleable little bit of eager humanity for any length of time without labeling him genius. It would be to stultify one's intelligence otherwise."

* * *

This then is Frank Lloyd's opinion of Jackie Coogan. Frank Lloyd himself is a man of acute perception and unmistakable discernment. He has been directing pictures for a long time and has watched the progress of stars with an impartial eye. He is accustomed to weighing genius in the balance, and when he says that Jackie has it—well . . . His opinion of me, the Classic editor has refrained from printing as she promised.

Photograph © by Nelson Evans

THE TRAGIC COMEDIAN

A very serious portrait of a great screen comedian, Max Linder, who is at present in Paris amusing his countrymen

(Forty-four)

The Celluloid Critic

LAURENCE REID

Reviews the latest photoplays

A MAGNIFICENT achievement is "The Covered Wagon" (Paramount), which comes to the screen with a stirring, vigorous account of a bygone people—the hardy pioneers of '48. Here is stark, vivid drama—here is history being recorded in a gorgeous canvas of those adventurous days of the Roaring Forties. Gigantic in conception and execution this superb tapestry transports one with its swift hurricane of events. It instills in the spectator a genuine patriotism for his country. He lives over again the mighty purpose of these courageous pioneers who turned their faces toward the setting sun with a cry of "Westward Ho!" Theirs was an adventure which dwarfs into insignificance anything which had to do with the colonization of America.

One catches the true spirit of these people as they drove their covered wagons thru an unknown country. They would found an empire in the West; they would not be denied in their determination to gain sanctuary and soil in far-off Oregon. So we live over their arduous journey thru the trackless wastes—thru the prairies, over the mountains—a journey which took a year to accomplish—a journey which recorded but ten miles a day. Think of it!

We clamber aboard Ogle's wagon or mount Kerrigan's horse; the bugle sounds; the far-flung wagons strike out and the glorious adventure is afoot. And what a journey! James Cruze, the director of this vital screen epic—an adaptation of Emerson Hough's story, pilots us thru stirring scenes fraught with romance, thrills and excitement. The suspense is terrific because we are living over the hazardous trip of these hardy tillers of the soil. Danger is everywhere. Starvation stalks in our midst. And it is staved off when the buffaloes are sighted. What an inspiring scene—this bison hunt, one which might truly be called an animated Remington.

But the biggest, individual thrill, the most stirring moment arrives when the Platte River is reached and the pioneers face the first obstacle. To see them fording this rushing river—the oxen and horses plunging into the turbulent stream and the wagons floated with logs is a sight which is as inspiring as it is exciting.

The Indians' circle of death is a

Photograph by Richee

Above, Jackie Coogan plays tailor in "Daddy." Below, a long shot from "The Covered Wagon" which is breaking all records for a Broadway run

Above, Percy Marmont and Ann Forrest in one of the tense and dramatic scenes from "If Winter Comes." Below, Aileen Pringle and Jack Holt in "The Tiger's Claw"

Photograph by Les Rowley

Mabel Normand in the long looked for "Suzanna," a delightful picture of early California days. Mabel's indifferent companion is Walter McGrail panoramic shot of tremendous sweep—executed with accurate color and detail. But the pioneers overcome these dangers. They will not be stopped.

Right, is a scene from Rex Ingram's "Where the Pavement Ends" with Alice Terry and Ramon Navarro; much better than Rex's last picture. Below, Milton Sills and Anna Q. Nilsson in "The Isle of Lost Ships," a Tourneur production

The picture carries a romance which balances the westward march. And its intimate scenes are cameo studies. There are adventurers, farmers, and gay vagabonds who compose the motley throng. And two of its most colorful figures are the scouts played with fine sympathy and understanding by Ernest Torrence and Tully Marshall. Watching them in a little friendly play with fire-arms over their marksmanship kindles the imagination with the romance of the occasion. The entire cast is highly capable. Each player is a true representative of the type which he or she portrays. The atmosphere is rich, the settings panoramic in their scope.

In all "The Covered Wagon" makes just as vital history in the picture industry as the pioneers did in their hazardous journey. It lends a glamour of romance; it is fraught with adventure and excitement. It is a superb painting conceived on a gigantic scale—a living, breathing, accurate page from history. It carries color and movement and vital action. And it ranks with "The Birth of a Nation" in its epochal record of America in the making.

Hail to Paramount's screen epic—a reflection of the motion picture at its best.

WE leave the big outdoors to be introduced to the screen reproduction of A. S. M. Hutchinson's idealization of the character, Mark Sabre, in his remarkable study, "If Winter Comes," which Harry Millarde made for Fox. While the salient points of this book which brings spiritual comfort to the reader are brought forth upon the silver-sheet, it lacks the same vital, spiritual flavor. This stylist is difficult to record upon cold celluloid. Chapters—many of them—must be absorbed to catch the full meaning of his characterization. Yet Mr. Millarde has made a sincere effort to record Hutchinson's idealization of Sabre. It is a character study which embraces three distinct romances in the life of its lovable figure. He is caught in a maelstrom of tragic consequences before he finds a haven of happiness with a woman who understands him.

The picture is wordy and long-drawn out and rather episodic. But imaginative spectators will discover many moments of interest in it. Percy Marmont is a good selection for Sabre and enacts the character with a commendable spiritual flavor. As there are few dramatic opportunities the other players may be excused for interpreting their rôles with marked enthusiasm. The feature is best in its atmospheric quality—Harry Millarde having taken his company to the exact locations in England to provide a background of the charming countryside.

REX INGRAM'S genius for fashioning a moving, colorful story is manifested again in Metro's "Where the Pavement Ends." Here is an old friend, the South Sea Islands formula, which has been treated in such an artistic way that it never becomes conventional. It suggests the director at his best because he makes an old pattern seem new.

Here we have the usual figures—the missionary, his daughter, the vicious trader and the native lover. To escape the abysmal brute the girl turns to the islander who protects her. Perfectly obvious? Yes, in cold print, but translated upon the screen its obviousness is overcome by Ingram's dramatic treatment. What a brush he uses! There is the colorful background carrying a gorgeous design and against it is enacted a compact little story acted to the queen's taste by Ramon Navarro as the native, Alice Terry as the charming daughter of the dominie, and Harry Morey as the brutal trader. It is inspiring and optically pleasing. The very title exudes romance.

Chalk another mark for Rex Ingram.

ANOTHER Metro Attraction, "The Famous Mrs. Fair," furnishes proof that it occasionally pays to have a real playwright on the job. Here is James Forbes's stage play which met with unbounded success upon the stage which comes to the screen with its vital parts intact. Telling the story of the dissolution of a family thru the feminine urge to find expression, it sends forth truthful slants on life.

The wife and mother has her medals pinned on her. And success and popularity go to her head. Consequently she takes to the lecture tour and during her absence the house tumbles to pieces. The picture soars to a mighty effective climax when the mother and father realize they have sinned against their children. A desperate search is made to save the daughter from dishonor. Thru bringing her back to her senses a reconciliation is effected and harmony reigns supreme.

Good, sound philosophy and logical drama are neatly dovetailed in this very human story which is capitably acted by Myrtle Stedman as the mother who learns that her place is in the home. Marguerite de la Motte as the outrageously modern flapper daughter, lends a choice bit to a cast excellent in every respect. Fred Niblo has brought forth all its vital plot and characterization. It's a picture for thinking people.

(Continued on page 84)

Above, Pola Negri and Conrad Nagle in "Bella Donna" an intensely thrilling and dramatic picture. The Negri is gorgeous in the title rôle

Left, Ernest Torrence, Mary Miles Minter and Antonio Moreno in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." Below, Marguerite de la Motte in a modern—oh, very—beauty parlor. One of the scenes from "The Famous Mrs. Fair"

Photograph by courtesy of Viola Dana and Metro. The little Dana makes a mischievous Puck. She just would!

Miss Dana was unanimously chosen for the elfin sprite for a special performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" given for the benefit of the Actors' Fund

IN the official bulletin of the Big Motion Picture Industry, there It deplores the discrepancies subsequent scenes. "Twice or rousse is called for, and what a C spring Victoria!"

Of course it's all the read: James, I shall want we'll bet anybody a idiot would have cant trust them.

Brothers and Sisters to the is a criticism of "Java Head." between the subtitles and the more," says the complaint, "a turns up at the door each time is coachman's fault. If the subtitle had the C spring Victoria this afternoon, ticket to "The Queen of Sin" that the brought around a D or a G spring. You just These inaccuracies will have to stop if the motion picture industry expects ever to have a decent numerical following. "You shouldn't," so William Fox tersely has it, "make fools of all of the people all of the time." Which is only too true. We were talking to a fancy fruit dealer the other day. "Why Women Fall," said the F. F. D., "is a rotten picture. When the feller tempts the girl with an apple, he calls it a Red Astrakhan. Bah! Any boob can see it's a Newtown Pippin." So that's that.

✦ ✦ ✦

✦ ✦ ✦

Add to the dictionary of similes: as unfortunate as the choice of seats offered by a movie usher.

✦ ✦ ✦

Follows a song to be broadcast over the radio at the very next luncheon of the A. M. P. A. It is released with a full heart. Alley—oop!

Mine eyes have seen the glory of the Cecil B. de Mille,
He is whanging out the super-stuff with all his force and will,
You wouldn't think that there could be a nickel in the till,
But his roll goes marching on.
Chorus: Glory, Glory, Glory Swanson,
His roll goes marching on.

I have seen him gild the lily—seen him gild it good and gold.
And pack each smashing episode with all that it can hold,
We know it must be Art because it knocks the public cold
And his roll goes marching on.
Chorus: Glory, Glory, Glory Swanson,
His roll goes marching on.

✦ ✦ ✦

"If—er—personality counts for anything at all, Nita Naldi is easily the most prominent actress on the silversheet today. The above sen-

(Continued on page 96)

The Photographer Takes the Stage

Photograph by White Studios

Above is the upright Mr. Olin Howard in "Wildflower." The personable young woman so pleasantly at right angles with herself is Edith Day. Nonchalance is the keynote—whatever that means

Above are Joseph Schildkraut and Louise Closser Hale in "Peer Gynt"—Schildkraut as the young Peer and Miss Hale as Mother Asë. Below, Lionel Atwill and Elsie Mackay in "The Comedian," Belasco's latest Sacha Guitry importation

Photograph by White Studios

Classic's
 Monthly Department
 of the Theater

Photograph by White Studios

Photograph by Francis Bruguere

Photograph
 by Abbé

Top of the page, Pauline Frederick and Charles Waldron in "The Guilty One." We think Pauline is the one. Left, Ann Pennington whose dancing saves "Jack and Jill." Above, Dudley Digges as Mr. Zero in the Theater Guild's curious theatrical offering, "The Adding Machine." Looks like a horrible nightmare for Mr. Digges. Below, Josephine Stevens and a very pretty chorus in "Go Go"

Photograph by
 White Studios

Photograph by White Studios

Bernice Ackerman, Vihelda, and Vera Bradley in "Lady Butterfly." Wouldn't we like to be a moth miller—or whatever it is that consorts with butterflies!

Photograph by Richard Burke

Photograph by White Studios

Above is a scene from "Sandro Botticelli" and we wish the artist had made it bigger, because there are a lot of celebrities in it: Botticelli, Leonardo Da Vinci, two or three Dei Medicis, La Bella Simonetta and so on. Eva Le Gallienne plays Simonetta Vespucci and Basil Sydney plays Botticelli (center background)

Above is Louise Huff as "Mary the Third." She plays all three Marys in this new play by Rachel Crothers. We cant account for the dead men. Left is a moment from "Anything Might Happen," but the trouble is, nothing much does. Left to right: Estelle Winwood, Roland Young, Leone Morgan and Leslie Howard

Flashes From

Of the Stage

Caught by

Above is Mae Marsh in character. She is way down in southern Louisiana finishing "The White Rose" for Griffith. Center, David Belasco and Lenore Ulric in the offices of Warner Brothers, with whom they have signed an important screen contract. Below is Rex Ingram and the members of his "Where the Pavement Ends" cast. Rex doesn't seem any too well pleased. We hope he counts ten before he drops the thing

Photograph (center) by Capitol Photo Service

THE most important eastern news item of the month is that David Belasco is preparing to leave for the coast about the first of June, with Lenore Ulric, to supervise personally the production of "Tiger Rose" her first picture under Warner Brothers contract.

Belasco's capitulation to the screen is the most encouraging and significant circumstance that has ever happened to the once despised movies. Even the highbrows stand in awe of Belasco; even the intelligentsia look up to him; even the obstreperous "young intellectuals" accord him respect. This is glorious news, and Warner Brothers are to be congratulated—however did they do it?

Another important announcement is Glenn Hunter's five year contract with Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, which that favored child of fortune signed last month. His first picture for them will be "This Side of Paradise," F. Scott Fitzgerald's story of insurgent youth. Fitzgerald is scarcely more than a boy himself and the two are great friends.

Mary Astor, the most promising young girl of the screen and one of our own Fame and Fortune contest winners has also signed a Famous Player-Lasky contract. She is not yet of age and all sorts of legal difficulties had to be removed before it was finally accomplished.

Gallagher and Shean, that priceless pair who have helped keep the Ziegfeld Follies going all season, are reported about to sing their song before a camera to the tune of five thousand dollars a week or thereabouts.

They will make five two reel comedies and a five reel feature, each to be opened by Ed, with Al leading the orchestra, while verses from their famous song appear on the upper half of the screen. In the fall they expect to open in a musical comedy for Charles Dillingham called, "Stealing a Town." "Four leaf clovers, Mr. Gallagher. No, it's horseshoes, Mr. Shean."

The eastern studios are as busy as their western rivals. Mary Alden is working out at the Biograph Studios. Alma Rubens is making "Under The Red Robe" at the Tilford Studios. Gustav Seyffertitz is in the same picture, and John Charles Thomas the noted American barytone will make his screen debut in the leading rôle of Gil de Berault; Richard Barthelmess has started on "The Fighting Blade" a romantic costume story. Conrad Nagel, Hope Hampton and Lew Cody are in the Eastern Stars

On the Screen

the Editor

the midst of "Lawful Larceny" at Famous Players Long Island Studios. Bert Lytell is in New York for featured rôles with Cosmopolitan Productions. Betty Blythe is finishing her last picture for Whitman Bennett. Marion Davies has just finished "Little Old New York." Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are completing "Modern Marriage" out in Yonkers. Glenn Hunter is at the Film Guild.

Marguerite Courtot and Raymond McKee were married last month in "the little church around the corner." Their picture "Down to The Sea In Ships" has broken all records at the Cameo Theatre in New York City. Clara Bow, another Fame and Fortune Contest winner has the ingenue lead in that picture.

Alice Joyce, whom Neysa McMein has pronounced one of the six most beautiful women on the screen, is coming back to pictures after a long absence. She will make "The Green Goddess" with George Arliss for Distinctive Pictures Company.

Betty Blythe is going to Algiers. What interesting times these screen beauties do have! She will star in the Graham-Wilcox production of "Chu Chin Chow," the exteriors of which will be shot in and about Tunis. Wonderful opportunity for Betty.

D. W. Griffith is down in Florida and Louisiana with his company finishing his picture, "The White Rose" with Mae Marsh, Ivor Novello, Carol Dempster and others.

Marion Davies has had a lot of bad luck with her latest picture "Little Old New York." She narrowly escaped serious injury in one of the scenes. Louis Wolheim had to throw her over his shoulder and carry her to a whipping post with a mob of howling extras at his heels. When he reached the steps they crowded him so close in their excitement that in spite of his efforts to save her, Miss Davies fell to the platform striking her head with terrific force. She was unconscious for several minutes but when she came to, pluckily insisted upon continuing the scene. Whereupon all the extras cheered and Wolheim saluted her gallantly. When you see
(Continued on page 73)

Above, the inimitable Mr. Gallagher and the incomparable Mr. Shean pleasantly exhilarated by their new screen contract. Center, the work-shop of the Film Guild during the making of "The Scarecrow." The mask is Glenn Hunter. Below, a charming model of the 45th Street Theater where the "Music Box Revue" still draws crowds every night of its long run

A YOUNG man strolled thru the smoking car. He was correctly clad, casual. At one glance he appeared to have a bearing of some fierce inner spiritualness. At the next glance as equal a contradictory appearance, of shrewd sophistication. Calculatedness. At both glances he appeared to be singularly attractive. Even compelling. During the cross-country trip one man had been watching him with a species of concentration. This man was a detective.

The young man strolled thru the smoking car. He left behind him a spiral trail of elegantly scented smoke. Expensive. When the trail thinned to faint blueness the famous detective arose, also casually, and strolled after him. He thought that he would confront him in the narrow passageway between the smoker and the Pullman car. But he didn't confront him. When he emerged from the smoker into the passageway the young man had casually but completely disappeared.

Fifteen minutes later, precisely, from a ditch by the railroad bed, where, precisely fifteen minutes before the Transcontinental had sped by, a young man emerged. He was the same young man as to face—almost. He was quite another young man as to garb. His tailored clothes had given way to a costume somewhat bastardly a mixture between that of a Pacific beachcomber and a holy man of somewhat uncertain orders. He carried a long staff and over his shoulder, a bundle. He strode immediately off toward a destination of which he appeared definite and certain. In the deep depths of his eyes glowed a flame which was focal and baffling. Two spots of red burned on the pallor of his face. Except

The Madness of Youth

Told in Story Form

By GRACE LAMB

for soft corners in his mouth he was ascetic. He walked a long ways, unwearyedly. . . .

The Bannings were quarreling among themselves. They had exhausted most of the other worldly excitements, and really, as they would have told you, the spiritual had no attraction for them, even if they had thought about them, and the mental occupied their minds not at all.

Theodore P. Banning would have said of himself, in extenuation, that he had burned himself out as much as was good for a man in his fight for wealth. Well, he had obtained it. What then? During the process, he had lost his wife in death, lost his son and daughter in life, and gained three obsessions. Which is as much, all in all, as most men do who go into the cold bowels of mankind to bring back soulless gold.

His first obsession was the large iron-ribbed and steel-lined vault built just off the library of his pretentious Southern California residence. His wife had used to plead with him to bank it, but banks had failed him twice in his life, and he would have none of them. His son and daughter told him that one day he would be murdered and his safety vault looted, but he merely shrugged his shoulders. This potential catastrophe was beyond him. He wouldn't mind being murdered, he thought, if such should befall.

His next obsession had to do with his two children, Theodore Jr., called Teddy, and Nanette, his daughter. They had been nice children. Once, when his wife was living, he had been wont to hear them say their goodnight prayers, had kist them goodnight, loving as much as he had time, the urgent clinging of their damp, small arms. But they didn't say their prayers any longer, they knew better now . . . and of course their slim, strong arms had better uses than to be about his leathery old neck. . . . But they might, he pondered in bitterness, have shown him some filial respect, after he had amassed his glittering wealth for them. They might have been at least respectful.

This third and last obsession had to do with the tenets of spiritualism. Everything else had failed him. Everyone on earth had failed him. Once they had all worn painted, alluring, laughing masks. Then they had torn the masks away, and lo, the grimacing faces that looked upon him! Even his Teddy, sensual and cynical. Even his little Nanette, petulant, defeminized, hard like a young green apple. . . . In spiritualism he was able, he thought, to talk with his dead wife. She was gentle with him. Sympathetic. She agreed with all his grievances and was sorry for him. What he was against she was against. He had to pay vast sums of money to hear her speak so to him, but it was worth it to him. He believed in her. Rich men, too, must have their toys, nor need they ever know that they are broken.

But today the Bannings were quarreling among themselves. Ted had brought home from France a young French wife. She was delicately pretty and delicately built. Ted didn't seem to care for her as he had. Almost every day he made her cry, and when he saw her crying, with two red rims etched unbecomingly about her soft dark eyes it served to make him angrier than ever. Today she was up in her room crying. Theodore P., senior, had heard her and had been remonstrating with his son, which led him, in turn, to remonstrate with his daughter. Nanette hadn't been home for a week before one or two in the morning. Theodore P. wanted to know what the devil she meant by such carrying on? What did she think she was? Nanette sulkily replied that she had been with Pete Reynolds, that Pete was their "guest," and that he Javalié stood still. He heard his name called again, and the masked dancer stood before him stripping off her mask. "So you're here, Louise," he said without surprise couldn't be entertained sitting about this old dump like a sore finger. Theodore P. said, with some rancor, that very well, then let Pete Reynolds get out, and the sooner the better. From all he could gather Pete was nothing but a sponger on rich men's money, any way, his own father was sickened with him, and so was everyone else. Nanette sulked and flounced out of the garden. Ted followed her and they had a separate argument. "I'm tired of being bossed by that old grouch, Dad," the girl said, "Pete wants to marry me and I think I'll get away tonight. Dad'll cut us off with a shilling, but what do I care? I'm bored stiff with this stuffy atmosphere."

Ted laughed derisively. "If Dad cuts you off with a shilling," he said, "your Pete will cut you off with less. All he's after is your money, sister mine, not you."

"Is that so?"

"That is so!"

"And how do you get so wise?"

"You dont have to be wise to see thru Pete Reynolds. I dont hold any briefs for old Dad, but he can smell a sucker after money, and that's what Pete is. He's always living around in the homes of the wealthy, as he is now honoring us. He's always licking some gilded débütante's costly boots. Only most of them aren't such sweet asses as my own sweet sister. God, it's as plain as your skin!"

"But I thought you liked him . . ." Nanette whined her words.

"Oh, he's all right to have a drink with, or shoot pool, or go out with some girls. I dont have to marry him."

Javalie stood before the older man and passed his hands over the grey head. "Then sleep," he began to intone, "sleep . . . sleep . . . sleep. . . ." Banning relaxed and closed his eyes

"And you think you can help us. How?"

"By remaining with you for a few long hours. For a day or so. Simply by remaining with you. I can sleep in the open field and eat with the help in the outer places. My bed is beneath the stars as well as beneath silken coverings."

"You'll sleep indoors if you stay at all."

"That shall be as you will it. I come to bring peace."

"Well, you've come none too soon," Theodore P., already more peaceful, perhaps because momentarily arrested, lay back again in his long chair; "we're very unhappy here," he said. The stranger inclined his head. He seemed to be like a deep, cool well drawing from the air about him all that was poisonous and restless. Theodore P. found himself talking to the stranger, telling him things. . . . After awhile he rose and insisted upon his strange guest accompanying him to the house. They entered the library in the midst of which stood Ted and his sister, still disputing a point which had, by now, become wholly obscured from its source.

They stopped with the effect of clockwork when they saw their father with the stranger. "Where did you come from?" Nanette broke out, with her characteristic audacity. "Mars?"

"Great Scott, Dad," laughed Ted, "what new curiosity have you unearthed?"

Theodore P. introduced Jaca Javalie, and the man spoke a few words to them. Suddenly, for the first time in many months, Ted felt adolescent and awkward. Like he had used to feel. And for the first time in even more months Nanette felt distinctly silly, and like making amends. The two young Bannings turned suddenly gracious.

Ted bethought himself of poor, little Jeanne, crying alone in her room. He ran up to get her down. While she was powdering her face and rearranging her hair Ted kist the back of her neck, impulsively. He hadn't done that in many months, either. Jeanne felt a little stab of a come-back happiness.

"You're some man, aren't you, Ted?"

"You're some woman, aren't you, Nan?"

And into such a garden walked the man of uncertain orders with the light burning in the deep depths of his eyes and the gnarled staff in his long and slender hands.

Theodore P. removed his expensive cigar from his mouth. He sat up in his chair, straighter than the heat of the day rendered perfectly comfortable. "Well," he said, "who in hell are you? Where do you come from?"

"I am from Everywhere," said the Stranger, "from the mountains, from the desert and the sea. From the high places and out of the low I am a symbol of that beneficent power that heals the wounds of the soul."

"Oh, you are, are you?"

"My name is Jaca Javalie. There is hatred and trouble in this house. Vipers coil and stir in a nest of brooding beauty. Father is armed against son, in his soul, and son against daughter. Why this has been revealed to me, I do not know. I want nothing. I do not take. I give. I give peace."

This was spiritualistic stuff. Theodore P. sat more erect. He wanted to hear more. His spirit was sorely disturbed and the strange man's singular words were like fresh waters. "So," he said, "you think we're in difficulties here, do you?"

"Yes," said the Stranger simply.

THE MADNESS OF YOUTH

Fictionized by permission from the Fox Film of the scenario of Joseph Franklin Poland of the story by George F. Worts. Directed by Jerome Storm. The cast:

Jaca Javalie.....	Jack Gilbert
Nanette Banning.....	Billie Dove
Theodore P. Banning.....	Wilton Taylor
Ted Banning.....	Geo. K. Arthur
Jeanne	Ruth Boyd
Louise	Dorothy Manners
Peter Reynolds.....	Donald Hatswell
Mason	Luke Lucas

Dinner in the Banning home that night was the first peaceful one for as far back as any of the family could remember. The stranger talked in a low voice of pleasant places he had been, of his beliefs, practical tinged with mysticism, his dark burning eyes ranged with a sort of splendid impartiality over the faces of his host, Ted, Madame Jeanne and the rose-colored Nanette. Nanette once thought that his eyes rested longer on her, and her heart gave an inexplicable leap into a curiously high place. Pete Reynolds was the only one who did not seem to come under the stranger's spell. Nanette rather despised him for this. He didn't seem so attractive to her as he had done that afternoon. He didn't go about the world working miracles, as did Jaca Javalie. What a name . . . Jaca Javalie . . . Nanette kept rolling the syllable under her tongue. After awhile she heard them echoing in her heart . . . Jaca Javalie . . .

In the morning of the following day Nanette talked with him in the garden. He talked to her about the flowers. But now she was defiant. She felt drawn toward him, but she felt resentful, too, a little dubious. Was he "spoofing" them all? One did do much spoofing nowadays. Pete Reynolds, for instance, with his illy adjusted lover's mask.

That night the Bannings were giving a fancy dress ball. Javalie had said that he would watch from the balcony. There, radiant, late in the evening, Nanette came to him, alone. She was spiritually lovely except for her hard young eyes. "You can fool Dad," she said, without preamble, "with your supernatural stuff. But you can't fool me."

"But I don't want to fool you," Jaca Javalie said. And somehow in the moonlight his words ran with a clear conviction. No, Nanette knew, he didn't want to fool her.

"You don't want to fool me," Nanette answered him, still with a vein of mockery, "because you're human . . . not spiritual. Because I'm a woman and you're a man. That's why you don't want to 'fool' me. Isn't it? Isn't it?"

Jaca Javalie looked down on her and the light in his eyes burned more deeply, if less strangely. "That may be it," he said, "who can tell?"

After Nanette had pirouetted away Javalie put his hand to his forehead. He tried to sneer which was his habitual smile when alone, but was somehow unsuccessful. "Steady, old man," he muttered to him-

Javalie raised her hand and kissed it, and was still. They had their right to judge him . . . these people whom he had saved . . . and would have robbed self. "Steady, there! Remember that you are here for loot, not love."

A soft hand touched his arm and he looked down at the little, lonely Madame Jeanne, in a strange land and with a lover who, like his country, had proven alien and strange to her. In the moonlight her large dark eyes were misted with moon-tears. She was not so lovely as Nanette, the man thought, but she was sadder, more wistful. Just now, she touched him. . . . Down in the garden, where the supper was being served, a masked dancer had stepped lightly from a mammoth cake . . . Jazz shook the night with ribaldry. Madame Jeanne murmured in his ear, like the falling of a light rain. . . . "They say," she said, pointing down to where the dancer was flinging white arms to the music's strains, "they say she can have any man she wants. They say that men have killed themselves for love of her. Oh, holy man, she wants my Ted . . . and he has grown so weak and strange . . . since we came back from France. Won't you please save him from her? I know that you can . . ." Madame Jeanne stood on tip-toe until her soft mouth was level with Javalie's ear. She whispered a few words to him. "Please help me," she finished, helplessly.

Down in the garden Nanette was calling him. He went down and walked with her down one of the winding paths. Suddenly she turned to him and threw her arms about him. "Kiss me . . . holy man," she commanded, mockingly. Javalie took her in his arms. The thing that had been stirring within him broke and he crushed her against him. When he released her she stood back and the mockery of her words was broken by the passion of her voice. "I knew that you were human," she said. And she ran away. Javalie stood still. He heard his name called again, and the masked dancer stood before

(Continued on page 78)

Classic Considers—

OLGA PRINTZLAU

Because she's so young and so clever; because she is head of the Department of Adaptations of Preferred Pictures at the age of twenty-six and at an almost incredible salary; because she looks like the younger sister of her own child who is twelve years old; because in spite of youth, beauty, brains, and talent she resists the call of the screen and sticks to her desk. She was scenarist for William De Mille when B. P. Schulberg signed her. She is still piling up her list of successful adaptations

Photograph by Evans, L. A.

HARRY KEMP

With thankfulness for his fascinating autobiography, "Tramping On Life," the frankest and most interesting self-revelations since Jean Jacques Rousseau and Marie Bashkirtseff. Not because he was called "The Tramp Poet" but because he was that. Because he has crowded into one short life, all the beauty and romance of poetry, all the flame and daring of adventure, all the poignant wisdom of bitter lessons learned; and because he has crystallized this experience into a beautiful prose poem for all who run to read

FONTAINE FOX

In consideration of the fact that the odd little whimsies of his brain and pen have now become household words. Who is there who does not know the Powerful Katrinka, the Toonerville Trolley that meets all the trains, and the Terrible Tempered Mr. Bangs? His cartoons are not only syndicated in hundreds of papers all over the United States, but an enterprising toy merchant is now manufacturing them as toys and a farsighted motion picture producer has made a movie of these familiar comics. In the picture with Mr. Fox is Dan Mason as the skipper of the Toonerville Trolley

Photograph by Russel Ball

THE HEIR TO THE THRONE

Only it happens to be an heiress! We herewith present the first picture of young Miss Barthelmess ever taken. Mary Hay Barthelmess is her name and she has only a few weeks to her credit—but just look at the beaming parents. Dick's hair is long, he wished it explained, for the sake of his next picture, "The Fighting Blade"

The Hollywood

Transcribed by

Lew Cody and Erich von Stroheim exchange mustaches—or something like that KING Tut-ankh-Amen seems to have staged the grandest comeback in all history. And he's dragged all Egypt into the movies. William P. S. Earle, brother of the celebrated Ferdinand Pinney, is putting King Tut bodily into the screen drama. For eight months, he has been making preparations for the play which is now being filmed at the Hollywood Studios, with Carmel Myers, June Elvidge, Malcolm MacGregor in the cast. Mr. Earle is said to have unearthed an actor heretofore unknown to the screen for King Tut himself. It is to be distinguished by the most extraordinary art effects yet seen on the screen.

* * *

So convinced are the producers that a great wave of Egyptian enthusiasm is about to go sweeping over the movie colony that the art director of the United Studios has been sent to Luxor with $100,000 in his jeans to buy all the ancient "props" he can lay hands on.

* * *

While this is taking place, Cecil De Mille's representatives are scampering around the world in the other direction. A big box arrived at the Lasky Studio the other day laden with the most gorgeous Siamese embroideries and jewels which are to be used in the film play that Cecil De Mille is to base upon the Ten Commandments. Mrs. Florence Meehan is touring the Orient for that special purpose.

* * *

Douglas Fairbanks will probably be seen next in a big picture on the order of "Kismet" by Edward Knoblock. He also has it in mind to produce two other plays. The fact is Mr. Knoblock is down at the beach furiously scribbling away at the Bagdad play, while Doug's brother, Robert Fairbanks, is in the mountains with squadrons of stenographers madly writing upon the pirate play that he wants Douglas to do. Inasmuch as Douglas has thought up some very marvelous scenic effects for the Oriental, it looks like a potentate of the mysterious East for his next.

* * *

Meanwhile, Robin Hood is breaking all known records of the West. At this writing, it is doing its twenty-third week at $1.50 per seat with every prospect of Above, Dorothy Devore of Christie Comedies as an able bodied seaman. Left, Lloyd Hughes and his wife, Gloria Hope in a summery looking group. Summer girls and some are furs. ("Excuse it please.") Below, Marie Prevost calls ITS bluff and director Clarence Badger makes friends with IT. We wonder what IT is?

Boulevardier Chats

Harry Carr

twenty-five or more weeks before the box office begins to weaken. Robin Hood at the new Egyptian theater in Hollywood has been an interesting experiment; it is the first reserved seat house.

* * *

Mary Pickford is in the midst of the first real love scenes of her career in her play of medieval Spain which is being directed by Ernst Lubitsche. It has been one of the unvarying rules of Mary's screen plays that her love scenes had to be mild and pallid—just little girl fairy kisses in passing as it were. The whole studio has been thrilled to death during the making of this one because Mary is making tempestuous love. She has done her little curls up on the top of her head and—oh dear where is our little Mary?

* * *

George Walsh is the alarmed recipient of Mary's first screen love making.

* * *

On account of the very heavy studio overhead expenses, it is possible that Mary will begin work on another story—probably Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall before she is thru this other story.

* * *

Salomy Jane, the old Bret Harte favorite is soon to be seen in pictures under the direction of George Melford. Jacqueline Logan with Lefty Flynn, who is to be henceforth officially Maurice Flynn, is in the high Sierras making the picture. The picture is to be made from Paul Armstrong's dramatic version of the story.

* * *

Estelle Taylor, who is working in a picture to be called "The Children of Jazz" under the direction of Jerome Storm, has had the bad luck to be named for the second time by a jealous wife; this time by the spouse of a camera man named Barnes. Before it was by Seena Owen.

* * *

Rob Wagner, the author, is beginning his career as a Lasky director with a picture to be called "Fair Week" of which Walter Hiers will be the star. Most of it will be "shot" in Pleasanton a town in

People get arrested for this sort of thing but Walter Hiers is willing to risk it

Above, Lupino Lane; the Italian comedian just out of the hospital buys a—er—souvenir in case he needs it. Right, Bull Montana "among his books." The great star reads Æschylus every night before he goes to bed. Below, Gene Sarazen world's champion golfer and Ann Perdue to whom he is reported engaged

Photograph by Grenbeaux

Northern California beloved of location experts; it looks exactly like New England.

* * *

Norma Talmadge is starting on the biggest production of her entire career. It is a French story called "The Ashes of Vengeance." It is expected to cost in the neighborhood of $700,000; there will be over $10,000 worth of swords alone. In the story Norma falls in love with a young nobleman who, to save the life of a sister, has become the bonded servant of a rival. The peculiarity of the picture is that Norma does not appear until well along toward the middle of the picture. In honor of the affair, Norma's devoted husband, Joseph Schenk has had a gorgeous dressing room built for her on the stage and a special bungalow in the studio for her to rest in.

* * *

Renée Adoree, after plugging along in pictures for several years, has suddenly burst out as a star of the most brilliant effulgence. Reginald Barker discovered her while making a big Canadian picture and considers her as the big "find" of the year. Miss Adoree was formerly a professional dancer and is the wife of Tom Moore.

* * *

Jackie Coogan had to starve all during the making of Oliver Twist. He is now working in a picture in which he complains plaintively that they keep him stuffed to the muzzle with spaghetti all the time.

* * *

Little Ben Alexander, who played the marvelous part in Griffith's "Hearts of the World" has come to light again. He is to be "Penrod" in a film version of "Penrod and Sam" directed by William Beaudine. He will be supported by a big cast which includes Irene Rich, William Mong, Rockliffe Fellows, Mary Philbin and Gareth Hughes.

* * *

Baby Peggy also occupied the central part of the public eye for a time last week when she signed with Sol Lesser, the producer, for a series of feature pictures.

* * *

The real estate bug is biting again. Douglas and Mary Fairbanks have bought ten acres in the rear of their studio on Santa Monica Boulevard by way of investment. Little Pauline Garon has bought a place in the Wilshire district and has sent for her father and mother in Montreal. Alice Howell, when she saw all this easy money floating around in real

(Continued on page 66)

At the top of the page is Buddy Messinger, Century Comedies' youthful comedian and his leading lady, little Sadie Campbell. Center is Tom Mix holding his own wife on the top of the world. Hope he doesn't mean to drop her. Left, Mary and Doug six years ago, holding up a picture producer in the time honored fashion. The unfortunate man is Al Lichtman at present, president of the Al Lichtman Corporation which releases Preferred Pictures

Are you especially fastidious about your manicure?

WOMEN who are exceptionally critical about a manicure should "do" their nails the Cutex way. For, this new method of manicuring not only eliminates all dangerous and disfiguring cutting of the cuticle, but it leaves the finger tips soothed and comforted, the nails immaculate and lovely.

Moreover, the Cutex way of manicuring is quick and easy. It takes but five or ten minutes once or twice a week.

You just dip an orange-wood stick wrapped with cotton in Cutex Cuticle Remover (a cleansing, anti-septic liquid developed by Science for the care of the nails), work it under the nail tips and around the base of the nails, gently pressing back the cuticle. Then, rinse the finger tips in water, and wipe them off. Now, examine the nails closely, and you will see that every tiny flake of dead skin has disappeared, ugly stains have vanished, and the nail rim is thin, even, and beautifully shaped.

Then—for a Jewel-like Polish

Of Cutex Polishes there are five—the paste, cake, stick, powder, and liquid forms. All give a brilliant, lasting lustre and that rose-pearl glow approved by Fashion as the smart finish to a manicure. Obtainable at all drug stores in the United States and Canada, and at chemist shops in England.

CUTEX

EVERYTHING FOR THE MANICURE

Send for this Introductory Manicure Set—only 12 cents —Sufficient for Six Complete Manicures

New Cutex Powder Polish

A scented, rosée powder of velvet smoothness that gives a dazzling lustre. No buffer required. Just a few strokes of the nails across the palm bring out a full and brilliant polish that lasts for many days. In the attractive rose and black Cutex package. Price, 35c.

Fill out the coupon below, and mail it with 12 cents in coins or stamps for the Cutex Introductory Manicure Set containing trial sizes of Cutex Cuticle Remover, Powder Polish, Liquid Polish, Cuticle Cream (Comfort), emery board, and manicure stick, enough for six complete manicures. address Northam Warren, 114 West 17th Street, New York, or, if you live in Canada, Dept. N-6, 200 Mountain Street, Montreal.

Northam Warren, Dept. N-6
114 W. 17th St., New York, N. Y.

I enclose 12 cents for Cutex Introductory Manicure Set.

Name.....

Street
(or P. O. Box).....

City..... State.....

Write your name and address plainly on this coupon and mail with 12 cents in coins or stamps to-day.

Katinka From Chauve-Souris

The most original and popular show of the past season in New York was the "Chauve-Souris," that glorified Russian vaudeville that has set everyone to humming the March of the Wooden Soldiers. Now Herbert Brennon has re-created a bit of it for the screen. Just have patience and you can see for yourself what it is like. He has interpolated the Katinka episode pictured here in his newest picture "The Rustle of Silk"

What ten million motor cars have taught women about their skin

The method they have learned to depend on

Two unbroken lines of cars wind along the popular motor roads. Everyone is motoring—week-ending at the beach, or the country club, or just driving for the pleasure of it. Fine dust settles in their skin and the wind brings a dry tightness.

Yet many women's complexions are younger and lovelier than ever before!

The severe exposure of motoring has taught them how important it is to find the right way to care for their skin, keep it beautiful and supple in spite of all exposure.

Today millions of women have found a method so wonderful in results that in all the world it is used more than any other—Pond's Two Creams. They leave your skin softer, more supple than you could have dreamed. They give just that finishing touch of loveliness you have always wanted.

A fine light cleansing that never leaves your face heavy with cream—gives the beautiful suppleness you want and then wipes entirely off! This is why millions of women prefer to cleanse with Pond's Cold Cream.

A marvelous freshening, an adding of youth—and unailing protection. No wonder that the women of the United States alone use several millions of jars and tubes of Pond's Vanishing Cream every year!

TRY THIS FAMOUS METHOD

See the wonderful improvement in your skin

Do this tonight. With the finger tips apply Pond's Cold Cream freely. The very fine oil in it is able to penetrate every pore of your skin. Let it stay a minute—now wipe it off with a soft cloth. The black on the cloth will show you how carefully this cream cleanses. Your skin looks fresh and is beautifully supple.

Then, in the morning, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream lightly over your whole face. If you wish, rouge—powder. How smooth and velvety your face feels! How new and charming the reflection in your mirror! The appearance of your skin for the whole day will prove to you how wonderful for your skin these two creams are.

Always after a motor or railroad trip, cleanse with Pond's Cold Cream and finish with the Vanishing Cream and powder. To see how these two creams will improve your skin use this method regularly. Begin now by buying both creams in jars or tubes in any drug or department store. The Pond's Extract Co.

removes coarsening dirt—restores suppleness defies exposure—holds the powder

Photo by Victor George
Florence Nash says she likes Pond's Cold Cream because it leaves her with a feeling so refreshed—not heavy and oily. And that Pond's Vanishing Cream really keeps her skin wonderfully smooth and fresh.

Exposure starts these troubles or makes them worse

Sunburn, Windburn, Chapping

The daily repetition of weather damage does more to age your skin than any other single factor. But the process is so gradual that except on specially severe occasions you do not notice it until your skin has definitely coarsened. Do not let this happen. For the insidious everyday exposure use the same method that saves your skin from the excessive damage of a long motor ride or a day on the beach. Keep your skin properly oiled by a nightly cleansing with Pond's Cold Cream. Then always in the morning, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream. It forms a delicate but sure protection. This method will keep your skin smooth and young years longer than would otherwise be possible.

Premature Wrinkles, Scaling, Peeling

These are especially the troubles of a dry skin. To avoid them you must protect yourself from all exposure and keep your skin soft day and night. Cleanse with plenty of Pond's Cold Cream nightly and leave some on over night. This will give your skin the oil it needs so badly and keep it from scaling and peeling. Then it will not develop little lines that grow into wrinkles.

But do not let the exposure of the day undo the results of this nightly oiling. Every morning smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream liberally, prevent your skin from drying out again. Always carry a tube with you on motor trips to counteract their drying, ageing influence.

That Distressing Shine

Sometimes shine is due to a dry, tight skin, and motoring or even the slightest daily exposure aggravates the condition. You must apply an extra amount of Pond's Cold Cream at night after the cleansing and let it stay on. See how gladly your skin will absorb the fine light oil of this cream, how it will soften and relax and the shine disappear. Put on the Vanishing Cream in the morning to keep this suppleness through the day and be sure to carry it with you and use it frequently on any occasion of unusual exposure.

Accumulation of dirt and fat in the pores

Sometimes the oil in your skin accumulates in the glands and attracts dirt and bacteria—dust that blows into your face when motoring, or the daily soot of city streets. Your complexion is dulled, disfigured. You need specially careful cleansings. Pond's Cold Cream is so light it penetrates the glands and takes out excess oil and dirt together. Do this every night and always after any motor or railroad trip, and you will avoid a dull, muddy skin.

The Pond's Extract Co.,
132 R. Hudson
St., New York

Ten cents 10c is enclosed for your special introductory tubes of the two creams every normal skin needs—enough of each cream for two weeks' ordinary toilet uses.

GENEROUS TUBES—
MAIL COUPON
WITH 10c TODAY

Name _____
Street _____
City _____ State _____

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 62)

estate a year or so ago tossed up her film job; galloped forth to make a fortune; made it and has now returned to the screen prepared to say "Oh I dunno" at any fresh director.

* * *

An assortment of celebrities adorns "Wandering Daughters" now being made at the United Studios. Among them are Craig Biddle, the young Philadelphia millionaire; Lyman T. Gage, Jr., son of the former secretary of the Treasury; Princess Waldemar Valkonsky of Russia, Antonio Rolando, son of a millionaire newspaper owner of South America.

* * *

It is said that Erich Von Stroheim threatened to throw up his contract with Goldwyn if he couldn't have Zazu Pitts as his leading lady in McTeague which is to be made from the Frank Norris novel. Consequently Zazu is to have the part.

* * *

With the transfer of Emmet J. Flynn to the Goldwyn lot, the young leading men look up hopefully; for, dont y' see, he discovered both Valentino and Norman Kerry.

* * *

George D. Baker is coming West to direct Balzac's "The Magic Skin" for the Achievement Films, a new producing firm which has recently come here from Philadelphia. Baker is the director who made "Revelation" with Nazimova.

* * *

Two big pictures are making a concentrated dash for the screen as they both contain the same unique idea; that of using about half the Hollywood in the screening—directors, authors, producers etc. One is Rupert Hughes' "Souls for Sale" and the other "Hollywood and the Favorite Child," made on the Lasky lot. The latter story is a yarn by Frank Condon about a selfish flapper daughter who dragged out her whole family from Iowa to Hollywood so she could get into pictures: after they got here, every one of her family except herself got a studio job.

* * *

Fred Niblo is having a ship yard employing 200 men built for his forthcoming pirate picture "Captain Applejack." In the course of the picture he will use a whole fleet of boats—four schooners, two brigs and a frigate. Among the actors who will take part in the picture will be Enid Bennett, Robert McKim, Thos. Ricketts and Matt Moore.

* * *

Mary Pickford wants to adopt the beautiful film child

Anna May Wong, the charming little Chinese girl who lends an authentic note to Priscilla Dean's picture "Drifting," a Universal film

Phillipe de Lacey who was found on a French battlefield and brought to America by Edith de Lacey, an English nurse. Thus far, Miss De Lacey has refused Mary's offers.

* * *

Gladys Walton was sent to jail for three days for speeding by an irate Los Angeles judge. She told him she was nineteen years old and had been hitting up the pace at thirty-three miles an hour thru the center of town. "You'd better go home and get some clothes that would be good for jail," said His Honor briefly. "Three days." Just before going in, Miss Walton was edified to learn that her future cell

(Continued on page 74)

At the end of the dance

FROM the ballroom floated the strains of a waltz, and from out beyond came the sleepy night-sounds—the late call of a bird, the faint whispering of leaves in the summer breeze.

The man watched the woman before him in the mellow glow of the lanterns, drinking in her loveliness with eyes that could not leave her face.

"What is it?" she asked softly. "You look as if you were in a dream."

"I think this is a dream, and you a dream woman," he answered; "for I never saw anyone so lovely! There is something that makes you stand entirely alone, in a delicate, glowing radiance. I think the greatest charm of all is your wonderful coloring."

The last notes of the waltz were quivering into silence. "That is the end," she said. "I think it is the beginning," he answered, still watching her.

"I think it is the beginning," he answered—

A Happy Last Touch

When you use the Pompeian Beauty Trio you can feel assured that your skin is always fresh and glowing, and that it will remain so almost indefinitely.

Pompeian Day Cream is a vanishing cream that is absorbed by the skin, protecting it from dust, wind and sun. The delicate film that remains on the surface after the Day Cream has disappeared holds powder and rouge so well that constant re-powdering is unnecessary.

Pompeian Beauty Powder is of so soft and fine a texture that it goes on smoothly and evenly. A light coating will last a long time; for this powder has, to a remarkable degree, the quality of adhering.

The Bloom is a rouge that is absolutely harmless. It comes in the desired shades—light, medium, dark, and orange tint.

Use the Pompeian Trio together for Instant Beauty; for great care has been taken that all Pompeian Preparations blend perfectly.

Remember, first the Day Cream, next the Beauty Powder, then a touch of Bloom, and over all another light coating of the Powder.

"Don't Envy Beauty—Use Pompeian"

POMPEIAN DAY CREAM (vanishing)	60c per jar
POMPEIAN BEAUTY POWDER	60c per box
POMPEIAN BLOOM (the rouge)	60c per box
<hr/>
POMPEIAN LIP STICK	25c each
POMPEIAN FRAGRANCE, a talc	30c a can
POMPEIAN NIGHT CREAM	50c per jar

The MARY PICKFORD Panel and four Pompeian samples sent to you for 10 cents

Mary Pickford, the world's most adored woman, has again honored Pompeian Beauty Preparations by granting the exclusive use of her portrait for the new 1923 Pompeian Beauty Panel. The beauty and charm of Miss Pickford are faithfully portrayed in the dainty colors of this panel. Size 28 x 7 3/4 inches.

For 10 cents we will send you all of these:

1. The 1923 Mary Pickford Pompeian Beauty Panel as described above. (Would cost from 50c to 75c in an art store.)
2. Sample of Pompeian Day Cream (vanishing).
3. Sample of Pompeian Beauty Powder.
4. Sample of Pompeian Bloom (non-breaking rouge).
5. Sample of Pompeian Night Cream.

The Girl Who Was Out of Date

By MME JEANNETTE

Not long ago I had a call from a young friend. She came in wearily and sank into a chair. The brilliant afternoon sunlight fell full on her face, and I was appalled when I saw how pale she looked.

"What is the matter?" I asked, expecting to be told that she was ill.

"Oh, I'm just tired," she said; "so tired I don't care how I look."

I was so indignant that for a moment I could not speak. There is no possible excuse for such an attitude!

To make the best of herself is the conceded duty of every woman, young or old; and a modish gown means very little when her complexion is uncared for.

"Come here," I said to her, "and let me see what I can do for you."

First I used a vanishing cream, gently patting it into the skin. This was Pompeian Day Cream. I always use this, for it leaves only a faint creamy film on the surface and holds powder and rouge so well. Next a coating of the soft, clinging Beauty Powder. Then a bit of rouge blended downward and outward from the cheekbone; dusting over all with a last touch of the powder. And this I had done to only one side of her face!

I turned her around to face the mirror. You never saw anyone so surprised! She looked and looked, turning from side to side; and I don't wonder, for she saw two entirely different girls, and one was so much lovelier it seemed incredible.

"That is what you can make of yourself every day, and it will take only a few minutes," I told her.

I couldn't help laughing at her astonishment; she had never had an idea she could be so pretty. She realized now the mistake she had been making, and watched with the keenest interest, while I made the other side of her face just as charming, adding at the last a touch of Pompeian Lip Stick.

She didn't say very much, but all the afternoon I saw her eyes straying toward the mirror. I hoped then that she would profit by my little lesson, and I know now that she did, for I've never seen her looking pale and weary since.

Jeannette

Specialiste de Beauté

POMPEIAN LABORATORIES, 2128 PAYNE AVENUE, CLEVELAND, OHIO
Also Made in Canada

Pompeian

Day Cream Beauty Powder Bloom

TEAR OFF, SIGN AND SEND

POMPEIAN LABORATORIES
2128 Payne Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio

Gentlemen: I enclose 10c (a dime preferred) for 1923 Art Panel of Mary Pickford, and the four samples named in offer.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____

Flesh shade powder sent unless you write another below

© 1923, The Pompeian Co.

The Modern Movie Hero

Photograph by Freulich

Time was when a motion picture hero was a slender youth with beautifully creased trousers, slick pomaded hair and a gentle winning way. But a new sort has come into vogue—he-man stuff and growing more popular all the time. To the right is Eddie Sutherland a brilliant young athlete of the screen. Above is Reginald Denny the scrappy protagonist of the popular Universal "Leather Pushers" series

Photograph by Evans, L. A.

Photograph by Richee

Left is the newest recruit to these gymnastic heroes, Charles de Roche. Robert Ryan is demonstrating the toe hold to him. It looks a bit unpleasant POSES from the seven exquisite dances given by Marinoff as part of his training. There is a Grecian Dance, a Classical Toe Dance, an Oriental Dance, a Butterfly Dance, a Chinese Dance, a Spanish Dance and a "Raggedy Ann" Eccentric Dance.

Classic Dancing!

Now you can learn at home under the personal direction of SERGEI MARINOFF

SOMETIME in her life, every girl, every woman has dreamed of dancing. There is no more charming accomplishment — it is an important part of the cultured girl's education. Whether you study it for professional or for cultural purposes — or merely to enjoy the pleasant, body building exercises — it will bring great happiness into your life.

And now you can learn dancing at home! Here is your opportunity to enjoy the advantages of real ballet training under this great master. Anyone can learn by this method. It is simple, easy, delightful. Marinoff has pupils of all ages. He teaches every pupil individually.

Marinoff training is correct training. You could not get training like this except in the studios of the greatest masters of the dance. Tarasoff has endorsed the Marinoff system. Merriell Abbott, Director of the Abbott Dancers [Chicago Theatre, Chicago], says: "A beginner who knows nothing of dancing can learn by this system." Marinoff training includes a complete outfit — a studio bar, practice costume, slippers, phonograph records and sheet music. This is furnished to every Marinoff student without charge.

Write

for free portfolio of dancers' pictures and full information about training and the fees for tuition. Merely send coupon. No obligation.

Sergei Marinoff — SCHOOL OF CLASSIC DANCING
1924 Sunnyside Ave., Studio A-127 Chicago, Ill.

M. Sergei Marinoff, School of Classic Dancing
1924 Sunnyside Ave., Studio A-127, Chicago

Please send me free portfolio of dancers' pictures and full information about your home study course in Classic Dancing. I understand that there is no obligation.

Name

Address

Age

FAITHFUL FAN.—Here we are in the Merry Month of May. Yes, Barbara LaMarr is playing in "Captain Apple Jack." Billie Dove's right name is Lillian Dove. Yes, indeed, I always manage to keep busy. Idleness is the key of beggary.

CAROLINE SUNSHINE.—Robert Frazer in "Fascination." Ethel Clayton and Malcolm McGregor in "Can a Woman Love Twice?" Yes, Eileen Percy and Kenneth Harlan with Irving Cummings in "East Side—West Side."

DOROTHY F.—Well, we men only demand that a woman should be womanly; which is not being exclusive. Glad you liked the chat with Pauline Garon last month. No, William S. Hart is not living with his wife Winifred Westover. Jane Novak in "Divorce." If I understand correctly, she's had one already.

ADAM & EVE.—Please ter meet you! As Addison says "As vivacity is the gift of women, gravity is that of men." Yes, Sarah Bernhardt was born in Paris in 1845 and died March 25, 1923. She was planning to make a picture called "La Voyante" which was to be a story of her life, before she died. Malcolm McGregor is not married. Anita Stewart married to Rudolph Cameron, and Douglas Fairbanks was married to Beth Sully.

TELL ME.—Anything! Well I have found out that folks who never do any more than they get paid for, never get paid for any more than they do! Mabel Normand's last picture was "Suzanna" and that is her real name. Mildred Davis at the Hal Roach Studios, Los Angeles, Cal.

CHIGO H.—Well I have learned that true wisdom consists not in seeing what is immediately before our eyes, but in foreseeing what is to come. Douglas Fairbanks is 40. Nigel Barry does not give his age. That is very expensive stationery you use. Pretty nice.

MARGARET E.—Well I am glad to hear it, but as someone once said, dont always be talking of your husband's devotion. It makes less fortunate women hate you and the rest disbelieve you. Joseph Schildkraut is 28. Yes, he is married, and is playing in "Peer Gynt" on the stage. His wife was Elsie Bartlett. Write me again, I liked yours.

GUILLERMO.—Of course you can get all the back numbers by writing to our circulation department; 25 cents each you know.

JACOB E.—You say all married women are not wives—speaking of bells, the Liberty Bell at Philadelphia was cast in London in 1752 and when the bell reached Philadelphia it was cracked when it was rung to test the sound, which necessitated recasting. On July 4, 1776 the bell was rung for two hours by an old bellman, who was so filled with enthusiasm and excitement that he could not stop. It weighs about 2000 pounds. Bobby Vernon is with Christie Comedies, and he did play opposite Betty Compton when she was with Christie.

BETTY COMPTON ADMIRER.—Yes, address her at Famous Players, 1520 Vine St., Hollywood, Cal.

JUST TEDDY.—Yes, I am getting just one dozen dollars a week for answering questions. Really. Yes, still live in the hall room, and have my buttermilk daily. Thomas Meighan and Leatrice Joy with Lasky. Priscilla Dean with Universal.

MOVIE FAN.—I can see that. No Ramon Navarro is not married, and he is 24. When you have learned to make business a pleasure, and pleasure a business, you have mastered the science of living. I'm very happy.

NATURAL REDHEAD.—Yes, tears are the strength of women. The plainest man who pays attention to women will sometimes succeed as well as the handsomest who does not. Lewis Stone with Lasky and Ramon Navarro with Metro. Bessie Love and James Kirkwood are playing with Mrs. Wallace Reid in "The Living Dead." Harry Carey in "The Man From the Desert." Write me again.

DONICA D.—No I am not planning to get married next month. There are plenty who are tho. But modesty in women is a virtue most deserving, since we do all we can to cure her of it. Betty Blythe has just finished "The Girl Who Got Everything." Leave it to Betty. Francis Ford, Peggy O'Day and Jack Perrin in "The Fighting Skipper."

H. MARIE.—No record of the players you mention.

BROWN EYES.—Of course I am for the, I wont say weaker sex, because they are much stronger than men. As Emerson said "Women know at first sight the character of those with whom they converse. There is much to give them a religious height to which men do not attain." Pearl White has reddish brown hair. Clara Horton in "The Call of the Wind."

BILLIE R. A. P.—Whow! You want the address of 18 players. I'm about to expire. Is there no rest for the weary?

MRS. F. F. MC.—Oh I'm not such an old man that I dont sit up and take notice. If you intend to live into old age, study it while you are yet young; and do not be an entire novice when you get there. Bebe Daniels is not married. Victoria Forde is Mrs. Tom Mix. Bebe Daniels and Gloria Swanson with Lasky. Write me again.

BEAUTIFUL IOWA.—Beautiful letter, but all about Valentino. Why not.

OLGA.—Knowledge is power every time. Better that the feet slip than the tongue. The tongue's not steel yet it cuts. Anyway I cant hear you. Pola Negri is to start on "Don Cesar de Bazan" just as soon as she finishes "The Cheat."

WILLIAM G. C.—I'm sorry, but I cannot help you dispose of your scenarios. Most companies are buying stage plays and book rights. Send a stamped addressed envelope for a list of film manufacturers.

DOUGLAS McL. ADMIRER.—Drop your hat and somebody may bring it to you; drop your pocketbook, and somebody may carry it off. Money fits any one. Here you are: Ethel Barrymore born in Philadelphia in 1879; George Beban in San Francisco, 1873; Edmund Breeze in Brooklyn in 1871; Arnold Daly in Brooklyn in 1875 and Arthur Ashley in Brooklyn in 1886. Miss Dupont's first name is Margaret. She was Margaret Armstrong once. The "Hettontot" has been done in book form.

LOUISE S.—Interview with Richard Dix in February 1922 issue.

SPARKY DEAR.—Of course I take good care of myself. The human system—mental, moral and physical—is such a large affair, that it is hard to ruin it in all its departments; but it can be done, if you keep right at it. Norma Talmadge is 27, five foot two inches. Katherine MacDonald is five foot eight, and the rumor that she was to be married is all off, so she says. and she intends to be an old maid. Ha, ha. You know she was Mrs. Malcolm Strauss once.

LENA T.—Well I'd hate to tell you what I think of some of the pictures. Rockcliffe Fellowes in "Stranger's Banquet." Kenneth Harlan in "The Girl Who Came Back." Mae Murray and Ramon Navarro with Metro.

CUTIE ROSEBUD.—There are three things that women throw away—their time, their money and their health. So you want to watch out. Address Mary Pickford at the United Studio, 5341 Melrose Avenue, Los Angeles, Cal. Nazimova is playing in "Dagmar" on the stage.

JERNE BLUE EYES.—You are one of those who seem to want this department to be devoted to answering questions about myself. I much prefer to remain in the background and to be known by my works.

This department is for information of general interest only. Those who desire answers by mail, or a list of film manufacturers, with addresses, must enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address all inquiries: The Answer Man, CLASSIC, Brewster Buildings, Brooklyn, N. Y. Use separate sheets for matters intended for other departments of this magazine. Each inquiry must contain the correct name and address of the inquirer at the end of the letter, which will not be printed. At the top of the letter write the name you wish to appear, also the name of the magazine you wish your inquiry to appear in. Those desiring immediate replies or information requiring research, should enclose additional stamp or other small fee; otherwise all inquiries must wait their turn. Let us hear from you.

What I eat, how I sleep, how long I expect to live, the length of my beard, the size of my shoes, etc., etc., will all be writ on tables of stone for the benefit of posterity, but for the present I prefer to retire into innocuous desuetude, as far as myself am concerned, and devote these previous pages to the interests of movies. Therefore kindly shoo fly, dont bother me. Address Lloyd Hughes at the Luc Studios, Culver City, Cal.

CURIOUS.—Priscilla Dean is married to Wheeler Oakman, Bryant Washburn is married to Mabel Forrest and Dorothy Dalton has been married to Lew Cody. Alice Terry is playing in "Scaramouche."

THE KID.—So you want a name for your girls' club. What next. Call it the Chloris, the goddess of flowers, or Kama, the Hindoo god of love.

MARC MOVIES.—Poor child you have your troubles with Eliot. Mac Murray at Metro, 1025 Lillian Way, Los Angeles, Cal. Malcolm McGregor with Metro also. Before marriage, woman is a queen; after marriage, a subject. Tell me more about your favorites.

JUST ME.—Yes, indeed Elsie Ferguson is playing in "The Wheel of Life" on the stage. Of course I am always glad to hear what you like in this magazine. We want to please you, you know.

MARGARET S.—All the way from Liverpool, too. I say, old dear, you can get a list of the correspondence clubs if you send me a stamped addressed envelope. Dont put an English stamp on the envelope tho. Yes, J. Stuart Blackton is back in this country, and I am glad to say he is once more an officer in the Vitagraph Company which he helped to start years ago.

DOROTHY.—You say men would be saints if they loved God as they love women. I confess. Yes, Ethel, Lionel and John Barrymore are brothers and sister. No, Valentino will not be seen in pictures for two years.

AGNES C.—By "Iris In" we mean when you see just a small part of the film thru the lens, and gradually you see the whole picture on the screen. Fox is going to produce "The Fool" for the screen. Virginia Brown Faire in "The Vengeance of the Deep" with Ralph Lewis. Tom Moore is coming back to the screen.

S. MONTY.—Why I believe it was Marshall Neilan who discovered Wesley Barry. Alice Brady with Lasky. Lillian Gish not married. John Bowers was the policeman in "Manslaughter." David Powell is with Famous Players and Theodore Kosloff is playing in "Children of Jazz."

LITTLE ROSE; DITTO DOTTY; GALEE P.; DORIS ROSE; FRANCES S.; DORIS M.; MISS BLOOMER; MARJORIE M.; PETE; L. C.; HELEN M.; LORRAINE; JEWEL AND VAUDVALLIAN—Sorry to put you in the also rans, but your questions have all been answered above.

MURREL FROM BALTIMORE.—Well, La Rochefoucauld says, "It is valueless to a woman to be young unless pretty, or to be pretty unless young." I dont agree with him. I know lots of pretty women at forty-five. "Glimpses of the Moon" will be released soon. Lon Chaney is with Universal. Shirley Mason with Fox, and Viola Dana with Metro.

US GIRLS.—Hello, girls. You want more of Joseph Striker. I'll tell the Editor.

CAPTAIN JOE.—You know that Balzac said, "The man who enters his wife's dressing-room is either a philosopher or a fool." Take heed, young man. Robert Leonard is Mae Murray's husband. No children for the Meighans. Gloria Swanson in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife."

IRENE P.—Monte Blue will play the
(Continued on page 72)

That Living Odeur!

Here is gayety and life, a new enticement—the fragrance of living flowers to contrast the artificiality of perfumes!

VIVANTE

—as different from the odeurs one now knows as a garden in the spring-time from the stopper of a bottle—a miracle in perfume making!

As exclusive as a coronet!

As intriguing as an affair d'amour!

As tantalizingly feminine as the subtlety of a smile!

C'est tres important

So as to avoid the faux pas of discord in one's scheme of fragrance—a creme of one scent, poudre of another, rouge of yet another!—L'odeur Vivante wafts its personality through-out all articles de toilette by Lournay.

Lournay

PARIS NEW YORK
7 Rue de L'Isly 366 Fifth Avenue

You may obtain a small vial of Lournay Vivante by sending 15 cents to our American address

1885

$15.00
an ounce

$8.00 a half
ounce

The Most Precious Perfume in the World

RIEGER'S FLOWER DROPS are unlike anything you have ever seen before. The very essence of the flowers themselves, made without alcohol. For years the favorite of women of taste in society and on the stage.

The regular price is $15.00 an ounce, but for 20c you can obtain a miniature bottle of this perfume, the most precious in the world. When the sample comes you will be delighted to find that you can use it without extravagance. It is so highly concentrated that the delicate odor from a single drop will last a week.

Sample 20¢

Send 20c (stamps or silver) with the coupon below and we will send you a sample vial of Rieger's Flower Drops, the most alluring and most costly perfume ever made.

Your choice of odors, Lily of the Valley, Rose, Violet, Romanza, Lilac or Crabapple. Twenty cents for the world's most precious perfume!

Other Offers

Direct or from Druggists
Bottle of Flower Drops with long glass stopper, containing 30 drops, a supply for 30 weeks;
Lilac, Crabapple, $1.50
Lily of the Valley
Rose, Violet $2.00
Romanza ... $2.50
Above odors, 1 oz. $15

Mon Amour Perfume, sample offer, 1 oz. $1.50

Souvenir Box
Extra special box of five 25c bottles of five different perfumes $1.00

If any perfume does not exactly suit your taste, do not hesitate to return and money will be refunded cheerfully.

TRADE MARK REGISTERED
Rieger's
PERFUME & TOILET WATER
Flower Drops

Send The Coupon Now!

Paul Rieger & Co., (Since 1872)
140 First Street, San Francisco

Enclosed find 20c for which please send me sample bottle of Rieger's Flower Drops in the odor which I have checked.

Lily of the Valley Rose Violet
 Romanza Lilac Crabapple

Name.....

Address.....

Souvenir Box—$1.00 enclosed.

.....$..... enclosed.

Remember, if not pleased your money will be returned.

Osgood Perkins in his picturesque rôle in the Film Guild production of "The Scarecrow" promised for early release doctor in "Main Street," Madge Kennedy will do "The Purple Highway" when she returns from Japan. So you would like Miss Dupont to use her first name, rather than Miss. Glad you like CLASSIC.

The Movie Encyclopaedia

(Continued from page 71)

MAY F. B.—Universal City and Hollywood are very near each other.

MARGARET N.—Be sure that your husband carries each day the impression that he left at home that morning the most charming, cheery, freshly gowned woman in the city. Leatrice Joy is with Lasky. Colleen Moore with Vitagraph. Richard Barthelmess was born in New York in 1897. Baby Peggy is with Century Comedies, Los Angeles, Cal.

JANE ACER.—Leatrice Joy is married to Jack Gilbert, and her last picture was "Minnie."

GRACE D.—The popular belief that it is unlucky to spill the salt probably originated from Leonardo da Vinci's picture of "The Last Supper," in which Judas Iscariot is represented as spilling the salt. Or da Vinci may have so painted it to embody in his picture a then popular superstition. A gift of bread and salt was a token of friendship; salt was a sign of amity; so spilling a man's salt may have betokened enmity. Enough about that. Lloyd Hughes with Ince. Clara Young does not give her age.

L. M. L.—Thanks, I am glad you trust me. To be trusted is a greater compliment than to be loved. No, William Duncan is not dead. Charlie Chaplin in "The Pilgrim."

W. A. D.—No. She never does. Betty Compson is not married. Glenn Hunter has signed a five-year contract with Famous Players-Lasky.

PEGGY O.—So you don't want Pearl White to enter a convent. No, neither do I. Last report, Blanche Sweet was still living with her husband. Malcolm McGregor is playing opposite Ethel Clayton in "The Greater Glory."

ALICE A.—Of course, I am over seventy years old. My beard isn't that old, tho. Elaine Hammerstein is an American. She is twenty-six; address her at the Selznick, United Studios, Los Angeles, Cal.

BROWN EYE BILLEY.—Yes, Betty Compson is twenty-five. Vincent Coleman is married to Marjorie Grant.

SUFFOMORE.—You're right, the whisper of a beautiful woman can be heard further than the loudest call of duty. Betty Compson is playing in "The White Flower," and Pola Negri in "The Cheat."

FLORENCE MC.—Yes, Norma Talmadge is twenty-seven. Gareth Hughes played in "Kick In." His right name is Ramon Sammanyagos. Lila Lee opposite Thomas Meighan in "The Ne'er Do Well." Valentino was born in Castellaneta, Italy.

BLONDE; MARGARET R.; F. B.; ARLINE G.; PETIE; BUTER CUP; BUFFALO; DONAH; KATHERINE MACDONALD ADMIRER; BETTY H.; G. H.; WALTER BEBE DANIELS; JEANNE E.; PEGGY; THAIS; IRMA T.; APRIL K.; WANDA P.; MOLLY O.; KATHERINE; PAT; ELEANOR A.; B. B.; BLUE EYES; NAN; DOROTHY F.; RUTH O.; MOVIE FAN; BILLIE A.; and JAZIMOVA. Sorry to put you in the also-rans, but your questions have been answered up above. Write me again.

NORTH RUSTICO.—Yes, some movies do cost as much and more than $2.00 a seat in New York City. You were right.

Flashes From the Eastern Stars

(Continued from page 53)

the difference in their sizes in the picture you will remember that this was pretty brave. Wollheim is a giant of over two hundred pounds and Marion is a slender slip of a girl.

The next misfortune was that all the mules employed got a bad case of Kleig eyes! Of course they wouldn't work and production was held up for two days until they could find some blind mules which would serve just as well.

Balieff's Clauve-Souris, that gloriously original Russian Vaudeville has passed its five hundredth performance. Not a word of English is spoken at these performances, which makes it a rather remarkable record.

Gloria Morgan, daughter of one of our richest and finest families who recently became the bride of Reginald C. Vanderbilt, has a small part in "Enemies of Women" a Cosmopolitan picture now running on Broadway.

Robert J. Flaherty, F. R. G. S., producer of "Nanook of the North," has left for the Samoan Islands to film for Paramount a South Sea picture similar in treatment to the Eskimo production. He was guest of honor at a testimonial dinner at the Waldorf given by the publisher and editor of Asia Magazine. Lloyd Griscom, former U. S. Ambassador to Japan, was toastmaster and the guests included people prominent in motion pictures, art, literature, science, journalism and public affairs.

After five postponements of his sailing date brought about by the success of "The Fool," Channing Pollock will actually go to France late in April for the production of "The Sign on the Door" at the Renaissance Theatre. The French version of "The Sign on the Door" has been made by Andre Pascal (Baron Henri de Rothschild) and the rôle of Mrs. Regan, played here by Marjorie Rambeau and in London by Gladys Cooper, will fall to Louise Gauthier.

WHY

By MARGARET MAYFIELD

I'm not
Particularly beautiful, charming or wise,
But when I asked you why you loved me,
You said: Because you are
Adorably pretty, charming and wise!
I wonder why?

(Seventy-three)

It was a pity no one told him

HE was an honor man in his class at college—popular with every one—giving promise of carving his notch high up on the ladder of success.

An unusual business opportunity came his way shortly after he was out of school—better than most young men are fortunate enough to secure. He certainly started out with a bang. Every one remarked about it.

* * * Five years passed. Howard Chapman, who had set out so brilliantly, was still almost precisely at the point where he started. Other young men who hadn't nearly his opportunity had out-distanced him each year.

What invisible thing was it that held Chapman back? Some of his closer friends undoubtedly knew but didn't have the heart to tell him. It was really a pity.

That's the insidious thing about halitosis (unpleasant breath). You, yourself, rarely know when you have it. And even your closest friends won't tell you.

Sometimes, of course, halitosis comes from some deep-seated organic disorder that requires professional advice. But usually—and fortunately—halitosis is only a local condition that yields to the regular use of Listerine as a mouth-wash and gargle.

It is an interesting thing that this well-known antiseptic that has been in use for years for surgical dressings, possesses these peculiar properties as a breath deodorant. It halts food fermentation in the mouth and leaves the breath sweet, fresh and clean. So the systematic use of Listerine puts you on the safe and polite side. You know your breath is right. Fastidious people everywhere are making it a regular part of their daily routine.

Your druggist will supply you with Listerine. He sells lots of it. It has dozens of different uses as a safe antiseptic and has been trusted as such for a half a century. Read the interesting little booklet that comes with every bottle—Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, Saint Louis, U. S. A.

For HALITOSIS

use
LISTERINE

Your Figure

Has Charm Only as You Are Fully Developed

BEAUTY OF FORM

can be cultivated just the same as flowers are made to blossom with proper care. Woman, by nature refined and delicate, craves the natural beauty of her sex. How wonderful to be a perfect woman!

Bust Pads and Ruffles

never look natural or feel right. They are really harmful and retard development. You should add to your physical beauty by enlarging your bust-form to its natural size. This is easy to accomplish with the NATIONAL, a new scientific appliance that brings delightful results.

FREE BEAUTY BOOK

If you wish a beautiful, womanly figure, write for a copy of the treatise by Dr. C. S. Carr, formerly published in the Physical Culture Magazine, entitled: "The Bust—How It May Be Developed." Of this method Dr. Carr states:

"Indeed, it will bring about a development of the busts quite astonishing."

This valuable information, explaining the causes of non-development, together with photographic proof showing as much as five inches enlargement by this method, will be sent FREE to every woman who writes quickly. Those desiring book sent sealed, enclose 4c postage.

THE OLIVE COMPANY Dept. 210 CLARINDA, IOWA

The American Beauty Has Been Chosen!

At last the difficult task has been completed. Too late for editorial space in this number the judges named the winner of the American Beauty Contest which has been conducted in the four Brewster Publications.

Next Month You Will Know Who She Is

Already the cuts of her new photograph have been made and the story about the judges' final decision is now being prepared. So, without any doubts, the announcement will appear in the July number.

There Are Honorary Mentions Too

Of course the winner was selected from a certain few and the remaining members of that select group have been given honorary mention—

Dont Miss The Judges' Decision

in

The July Motion Picture Magazine

HOW TO OBTAIN A PERFECT LOOKING NOSE!

IN THIS DAY AND AGE attention to your appearance is an absolute necessity if you expect to make the most out of life. Not only should you wish to appear as attractive as possible, for your own self-satisfaction, which is alone well worth your efforts, but you will find the world in general judging you greatly, if not wholly, by your "looks," therefore it pays "to look your best" at all times. Permit no one to see you looking otherwise; it will injure your welfare! Upon the impression you constantly make rests the failure or success of your life. Which is to be your ultimate destiny?

My newest greatly improved Nose Shaper "Trados Model 25," U. S. Patent, corrects now all ill-shaped noses without operation, quickly, safely, comfortably and permanently. Diseased cases excepted. Model 25 is the latest in Nose Shapers and surpasses all my previous Models and other Nose adjuster patents by a large margin. It has six adjustable pressure regulators, is made of light polished metal, is firm and fits every nose comfortably. The inside is upholstered with a fine chamolite and no metal parts come in contact with the skin. Being worn at night it does not interfere with your daily work.

Thousands of unsolicited testimonials on hand, and my fifteen years of studying and manufacturing Nose Shapers is at your disposal, which guarantees you entire satisfaction and a perfectly shaped nose. Write today for free booklet, which tells you how to correct ill-shaped noses without cost if not satisfactory.

M. TRILETY, Face Specialist 1897 Ackerman Building, BINGHAMTON, N. Y. Also For Sale at First Class Drug Stores.

Little Old New York
(Continued from page 31)

A Patricia in poke bonnet and frilled gown was hard to deal with. A trembling girl who told her extraordinary story truthfully and tearfully managed to move the Town Council more than it would have individually been willing to admit. A timid fluttering bit of femininity who sat beside and held the hand of the man whose fortune she had stolen presented an ethical problem that was too much for the Town Council. Its moral sense had been outraged. Something assuredly must be done.

But what?

Finally old John Jacob Astor came to the rescue of the Town Council's dilemma. Larry and Pat—er—Miss Patricia would better take a trip to England until things blew over. He personally would see that there was a minister on the boat to marry them. Larry and Patricia looked at each other in joyous surprise. This was the best news in the world for them.

Later, in Patricia's own garden—rather Larry's own garden—er—that is—Larry's and Patricia's garden, Patricia murmured something about the luck of the Irish. "And anyway," she added, "the money is just as much mine now, as tho it was really mine."

Which cryptic utterance Larry seemed to understand very well, because he said, "Perfectly right Paddy darling—as long as you take me with it."

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 66)

companions had been entertaining themselves during the afternoon by trying to kill the jail matron.

* * *

Richard Walton Tully is bringing over a French actor, Maurice Cannonge to take the part of "Zouzou" in Trilby. A Parisian actress, Mlle. Lafayette will take the part of Trilby.

* * *

As an indication of the present scarcity of actors, Tully Marshall is acting in four pictures at once; he is Louis XI in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"; Professor Futvoye in the "Brass Bottle"; the hermit in the "Talisman" which will be the first picture to be made by the new Frank Woods producing corporation and has a part in a play called "Twenty Dollars."

(Seventy-four)

At Lunch With Gloria

(Continued from page 34)

table at which sat most of the distinguished high-salaried scenario writers of the motion picture industry. "They will not let an author tell a story that is like life."

"But would the public like real life as it really is?"

"I wonder," Gloria mused. And then she added. "Of course they wouldn't believe it. I imagine I wouldn't believe it myself."

"For instance there is my director, Sam Wood. The other night he was held up on the street by some bandits. One of them poked a revolver against his ribs and told him to throw up his hands. Sam said they could kill him if they wanted to but he'd be darned if he would throw up his hands. Could you make anybody believe that on the screen—a young fellow with every brilliant promise in life, ready to die rather than to hold his hands up over his head? The bandit couldn't believe it himself apparently. He ran away."

"Just so, you see every actress on the screen make wild clutching gestures in moments of great tragedy. Of course that is contrary to nature. Fear, terror, dismay are all emotions that contract. If you are really and truly terrified you can't scream; your throat contracts. Your shoulders sort of hunch into your body; you grow small; you shrink."

"One time I saw a man being sentenced to be hanged. He didn't do the way they do on the screen. He acted like an embarrassed boy who has to speak on Friday afternoon at the high school. He had a dinky little hat which he kept fingering in the most careful and painstaking way. When it was over, he slid back into his seat as tho being hanged didn't matter so much if he didn't have to stand up in the presence of a crowd."

"Some day, I imagine, some great screen genius will come along and discard all these conventionalized methods with one gesture."

"At that," said Gloria, with a sudden change of tone. "I want to go on the speaking stage some day."

"So that's the big ambition?"

"The big ambition is twins," said Gloria. "I want to be a great actress in plays that have words and I want to be a really successful mother. If you could see that baby of mine, you would realize that she is my masterpiece. She is the sweetest . . ."

But when these young mothers start like that, experience teaches us that it is high time to look at the watch and hustle back to the studio.

(Seventy-five)

Florient —a mystic fragrance of Oriental flowers.
Flowers of the Orient This rare bouquet is only one of many delightful Colgate perfumes from which you may choose your favorite—all blended with exquisite care from the finest essences the world produces.

Three little vials of perfumes, with an interesting booklet telling how to choose a perfume that fits your personality, will be sent you for a 2c stamp to cover postage.

COLGATE & CO. Dept. 15 199 FULTON ST.
PARIS NEW YORK

Look in your Mirror

PLACE the tips of your fingers at the top of each cheek bone. Push gently upward. The sagging of the cheeks disappears. Your fingers are doing the work that sagging, pulled-out, weakened muscles should be doing.

NOW RELAX

Remove your fingers. What a change! Is this the way you will continue to live—unbeautiful, showing and exaggerating your age in every line? Place your fingers once more and again make your face attractive. How different you look. Make the change permanent!

YOU CAN!

You can mould your face back to youthfulness, plumpness and normal contour as easily as the Greek Sculptors moulded their beautiful statues—taking a little off this face and putting a little on here and there wherever it gave a beautiful effect.

Dr. Lawton's FACE AND NECK BEAUTIFIER will do this for your face. Used only a few minutes each day; this unusual device will bring a new flow of healthful life blood to the sluggish parts.

After each treatment you will notice firmer tissues, loss of flabby cheeks, filled in hollows and wrinkles, and a smoother, clearer and more colorful complexion.

NATURAL TREATMENT

Dr. Lawton's FACE AND NECK BEAUTIFIER is absolutely natural in its treatment. As exercise develops the muscles of the arms and legs, so does the BEAUTIFIER develop the muscles of the face and neck, surely, harmlessly, permanently.

The outfit is simple. The wonderful little BEAUTIFIER is a small, light, soft, flesh colored vacuum cup, constructed on highly scientific lines. A full sized Vanity Bottle of Dr. Lawton's daintily perfumed FACE TISSUE TONIC and Dr. Lawton's attractive, illustrated BEAUTY BOOK.

Hundreds of women have written us grateful letters, telling how Dr. Lawton's FACE AND NECK BEAUTIFIER makes the mirror experiment permanent. Try the BEAUTIFIER for two days. If the results in that time do not more than delight you, we will refund your purchase price without question. Send your name and address—no money. When the Postman delivers the BEAUTIFIER outfit complete, in plain wrapper, simply pay him $3.75 plus a few cents postage charges. If you prefer to remit in advance, include 20c to cover postage and insurance. Write for booklet. But write today!

DR. THOMAS LAWTON
120 West 70th Street,
New York City, Dept. 256

Ask Ziegfeld--He Knows

Flo Ziegfeld is a genius when it comes to picking American beauties. His Follies are famous for their girls with perfect faces and figures. How he selects them is told by Mr. Ziegfeld to Gladys Hall in July BEAUTY.

Wouldn't You Help Her Too?

The young girl who stands with reluctant feet—waiting for some one to give her proper attention is going to be considered at last. Beauty is a vital thing in her life. Give her a chance to come into her own. Read about it in July BEAUTY. The author of the article has given the matter serious thought.

Do Clothes Intrigue You?

Then you will not want to miss the display of fascinating frocks and bewitching hats shown in the July BEAUTY.

Buy July Beauty on the newsstands June eighth

Beauty

Beauty Secrets for Everywoman

Perfume Your Bath—Softens Hard Water Instantly

Bathe with Bathasweet. It adds the final touch of dainty luxuriousness to your bath—it refreshes and invigorates. Bathasweet keeps the skin soft and smooth. It imparts the softness of rain-water and the fragrance of a thousand flowers. Always keep a can in your bathroom. Three sizes: 25¢, 50¢ and $1. At drug and department stores or by mail. Send 10¢ for miniature can. The C. S. Welch Co., Dept. A. B., New York City.

TRADEMARK REG.

BATHASWEET

Half Chinese and Wholly Lovely

(Continued from page 41)

half caste children. Somehow or other, she met the wife of a movie director at a party and . . . Well, of course, you can guess the rest.

"Say something in Chinese," I challenged.

"I—I cant, I dont know any."

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

"I am."

And then she explained. "I used to speak Chinese when I was a child, but somehow I got out of the way of it. I am awfully proud of my Chinese blood tho. It gives me a little thrill of pride when I hear some one say: 'She looks Chinese.'

"It seems to me sometimes as tho I were two persons. Especially when I get angry. My mind seems to be French and I get all stirred up. Then way down in my soul something old and oriental seems to say to me 'There, there, child, it doesn't matter; nothing matters.' And I calm down again. It seems as tho the European side of my nature kept suggesting things for me to do and the Chinese part of me sat in critical, calm judgment on the project."

"Everything in the world seems to have been discovered by the Chinese. I suppose they had motion pictures a couple of million years before we ever heard of them," I suggested.

She laughed. "Well I wouldn't say that; but it is true that my father's people were telling stories in the motion picture way when your father's people were wandering around killing animals with their hands and tearing the raw meat with their teeth."

? ? ? ? ?

"Well," she answered. "Telling stories by pictures is merely getting back to the realms of suggestive art. That is to say, discarding words which are an impediment to the imagination of the hearer. The Chinese have been telling stories that way for countless ages. For instance, Chinese poetry eliminates this clutter of words. A Chinese poem will only indicate the symbols upon which the imagination is to fasten itself. A poem will read like this:

"A tower
A dark lake
A Woman's face at a window
"Villain lurking in shadow.
"Lover with lute, etc. etc.

"If that isn't what they call 'Picture stuff' then I dont know what is!"
What I answered was, "Just indeed."

What I was thinking was, "Girl, if you aren't picture stuff, then I dont know what is."

The Heavy

(Continued from page 37)

right side of the fence, despite my questionable personality. I trust my audiences will be more kindly in their thoughts of me."

At this time Mr. Torrence is working with Lon Chaney in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," at the Universal studios. This will be a mammoth production and will keep him busy for months. In this picture, our erst-while comedian will be seen as a king of the Paris underworld.

"I wouldn't return to the speaking stage—or to the East, for worlds," laughed this versatile giant. "We are building our home here now, out at the end of Hollywood Boulevard just as you enter beautiful Laurel Canyon, and where the gorgeous mountains will greet us continually. Outside of my work at the studios, my only interests are home, my piano, my golf, and my family. We indeed a happy three."

Then I was introduced to "number three," Ian (O.K.) Torrence, a sturdy lad of fifteen who will soon be as unbelievably tall and firmly knit as his father.

Mr. Torrence is a native of Edinburgh, Scotland. Following years of study in piano and voice at Stuttgart, Germany, he taught music in his home town. Then came further study at the Royal Academy of Music, London, where he was awarded the Westmoreland scholarship, and a gold medal for opera.

It was following this training he began his stage career in comic opera, and appeared in the last work of the famous Sir Arthur Sullivan, just prior to that writer's death. For ten years he played at the Savoy, Lyric, Gaiety, and Adelphi theaters in London and in the provinces. In 1911 he came to America.

"Those ten years were filled with hard work, many disheartening experiences, and utter misery at times," Mr. Torrence said dreamily. But my coming to America brought great luck. My first appearance in this country was for Al Woods, in 'The Only Girl,' and 'The Night Boat.' I was with the latter when I got my chance for pictures."

So when you see Ernest Torrence again, tho he may be cruel to the "nth" degree, remember the many steps he has taken to reach his goal. First as a musician, then a singer, an actor, a comedian, and now a heavy. Admire him for his perseverance and undaunted ambition, which nothing could kill, even tho it landed him in the hardest rôle of his life.

O, yes indeed. "One may smile and smile, and be a villain!"

You Must Fight

The film on teeth, or you may suffer

Under old brushing methods, few escaped tooth troubles. Beautiful teeth were seen less often than now.

In fact, tooth troubles constantly increased—became alarming in extent. That's what led to this new method, which has brought to millions a new dental era.

Those dingy coats

That viscous film you feel on teeth is their chief enemy. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it. Then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. That's why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

Almost universal

Film-coated teeth were almost universal. The ordinary tooth paste could not effectively combat film. So dental science set out to find effective film combatants.

Pepsodent
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific film combatant, which whitens, cleans and protects the teeth without the use of harmful grit. Now advised by leading dentists the world over.

Two methods were developed. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. These two great film combatants were embodied in it.

The name of that tooth paste is Pepsodent, which leading dentists of some 50 nations are advising now.

Fights acids too

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Thus every use gives manifold power to these great tooth-protecting agents. That was not done before.

For beauty's sake

People who see the Pepsodent effects will always use it, if only for beauty's sake.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

This test will be a delightful revelation. Cut out the coupon now.

10-Day Tube Free ¹⁰⁸⁷

THE PEPSODENT COMPANY,
Dept. 957, 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Mail 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent to

.....
.....

Only one tube to a family.

The Madness of Youth

(Continued from page 57)

him, stripping off her mask. "I wondered what had become of you," she said. "So you're here, Louise." Javalie spoke without surprise. The dancer nodded. "Yes, I'm here. What are you going to do about it? After all, Jaca, did you suppose that you could do what you did do to me without ever hearing of it again?"

"What do you consider that I 'did' to you?"

"The writers of fiction would say that you had broken my heart. As I probably have none, you have merely made me hate you." She laughed, mockingly. (How different from the delicate mockery of Nanette!) "How funny you look in your religious rags!" she said. "How funny it will be when I tell them who you really are!"

Javalie leaned toward her. "Please," he said, "don't do that. I've been waiting three years for this chance. Don't spoil it. If I'm successful, and I will be if you will help me, I'll divide with you . . . I'll . . . I'll go away and marry you . . . only let me get the money in that safe! Later, after your dance, I'm going to speak to the guests. I want to make my final effect. They believe you a famous vampire. Help me . . . pretend that you are a convert to my spiritual fervor. Think, Louise, money and a far country . . . think!"

Louise looked at him, narrowly. If he had been thinking of her personally he would have seen that he was safe. There was love of him in her eyes. She nodded. "All right," she said, "speak your little speech, Jaca, and I'll pretend that you've saved my soul."

Javalie spoke to them. He stood on the balcony with the summer winds ruffling his sacerdotal rags and the moonlight encircling his head like a halo. He told them he was speaking, not of religion but appealing to their better selves, to the spirits that lived in their bodies, to their hearts. . . . The faces looking at him were stirred and strange when he had finished. Old Theodore P. Banning kept clearing his throat. Nanette shifted from one foot to the other and her eyes ceased their mocking and became tender and absorbed. Under cover of the rose-bushes Ted moved nearer to his wife and was silent while she told him her sweet secret. And at the very end the beautiful dancer stepped from the group and knelt beneath the balcony where Javalie stood. "I want to ask forgiveness of my sins," she pleaded. She could have had no more emotion if she had been in earnest. What an actress she was, Javalie thought, and his fine lips curled.

The Banning estate was quiet with sleep. Theodore P. alone was awake, sitting in his library pondering the events of the evening. To him came the holy man, Javalie. "Why don't you go to bed?" he asked his host, "you look tired . . . worn." Banning nodded. "I am," he said. Javalie stood before the older man and passed his hands over the grey head. "Then sleep," he began to intone, "sleep . . . sleep . . . sleep . . ." Banning relaxed and closed his eyes. When his breathing was quiet and his hands limp Javalie took him by his arm and led him softly to the great vault in the other room. "Open this," he commanded and, automatically, perfectly, Banning obeyed. As he did so, Javalie jotted down the combination in a note-book and then, as quietly, led the tranced man back to his chair.

Javalie's mission in the Banning home was complete. Where was the victory? Where the wine of triumph?

As he turned to leave the room, the older Banning being now relaxed into normal, quiet slumber, he found Pete Reynolds waiting for him. "So that's your game, is it?" he asked, grimly, "thought so. I've been watching you."

Javalie nodded. "A crook," he said, "yes. One of the best. Are you going to spill the beans?"

"I might not," Reynolds said, "for a—consideration."

The two men entered into an agreement, and Javalie promised to have the money extracted within twenty-four hours.

The only person who did not sleep in the Banning home that night was Jaca Javalie. The only man who could find no peace was the man who had brought peace to the household.

In the morning Ted came to his father and told him that he was going away with his wife to work for her with his own hands. Javalie had showed him what he was doing, he said. He wanted to "begin again . . ." He thought that he could. Old Theodore P. took his grown son into his arms and kist him as he had not done since Ted was a boy. "I'll build you a house, son," he said, "and you can start in that."

(Continued on page 80)

EYES

You Can't Forget

There's nothing so wonderful, so truly alluring as beautiful EYES. If you long to possess the charm of clear, bright, bewitching EYES, use Murine.

This time-tested lotion preserves and enhances the youthful glow and sparkle of the EYES. After a day in the open, Murine is delightfully soothing and refreshing to EYES irritated by sun, wind and dust.

EYES cleansed daily with Murine retain their beauty throughout advancing years. It's perfectly harmless—contains no belladonna or other hurtful ingredients.

Our fascinating booklet, "Beauty Lies Within the Eyes," is FREE on request

Murine Eye Remedy Co.
Dept. 23, Chicago

MURINE

FOR YOUR EYES

Pert

The Waterproof Rouge

Orange-colored, lasts all day

PERT is a Cream rouge, which means that it is a rouge plus a protective cream. It blends with amazing naturalness, its orange color changing to a becoming pink as soon as applied to the skin. For added loveliness, it should be used on the lips and the tips of the ears.

PERT lasts all day or evening until you remove it yourself with cold cream or soap and water. At drug or department stores, or by mail, 75c. a jar.

Send a dime for a generous sample of PERT Rouge. And for another dime, you will receive a sample of WINX, the Liquid Lashlux, for darkening the lashes and making them appear heavier.

ROSS COMPANY

Makers of Winx, The Liquid Lashlux

78 Grand Street

New York

No Wonder Rouge Never Gave a Natural Color!

But at last Science has solved the baffling Secret of Nature's own lovely flush ✓

SCIENCE now discloses that no known shade of purplish red—the familiar color of rouge—can ever duplicate Nature's perfect artistry. No matter how skilfully rouge is applied, the task is impossible.

In creating the wonderful new Princess Pat Natural Tint, the great handicap of rouge came to light! The startling discovery was made that to obtain perfect results, such as Nature gives, the color used must positively change upon the skin after it is applied. No wonder, then, that rouge never gave a natural color!

No more amazing development has ever been accomplished in beauty's name than the finding of Princess Pat Tint. No more fascinating story has ever been told than the long search by a famous English Scientist for the mysterious "X-Tint" which should duplicate Nature.

Like many great discoveries, chance gave the inspiration and a happy accident brought about the final triumph. Chance led the famous creator of Princess Pat Tint to banteringly criticize the tell-tale rouge upon the cheeks of a feminine acquaintance. She in turn challenged her critic to use his vast store of knowledge to produce something better. Thus a scientist turned his hand to a task which had baffled the cosmetician since rouge was first used.

Search was made first for some actual, definite color, which would simulate the marvelous beauty of Nature's handiwork when the cheek is divinely mantled with soft pink and creamy white. Time after time the attempt was made to perfect ordinary rouge, to so modify the familiar purplish red that it would appear natural. But with every resource of science available, the effort proved futile.

But the scientist worked on, with his assistant the subject for experimentation. Casting aside red tints as impossible, hundreds of differing shadings of delicate color were used. Many were an improvement, but none perfect.

Then accident stepped in, and by sheer chance a rare and costly ingredient was used. The result was an unknown shade of delicate orange, beautiful indeed, but not the color one would ordinarily select to match Nature's perfect complexion.

Idly enough, this new shade was tried upon the assistant's cheeks. And then a wonderful thing happened. Instantly the coloring underwent a subtle alteration. The orange tint changed upon the skin! The scientist exclaimed in amazement! For beneath his startled gaze there had appeared the absolute perfection of Nature's own coloring, the blending of delicate pink and white that marks the transparent beauty of the famous English Complexion. The amazing "Million Dollar Beauty Secret," Princess Pat Tint, had at last been discovered.

"The Amazing Million Dollar Beauty Secret Had At Last Been Discovered"

Princess Pat Tint Is Waterproof!

Still the scientist was not satisfied. He determined to make this new tint waterproof. And such wonderful success attended his efforts that one may actually go in bathing without the slightest impairment of coloring. Princess Pat Tint on the cheeks will not run or streak, even if rubbed with water. Perspiration does not affect it. Yet it vanishes instantly beneath a touch of cream or the use of soap.

Princess Pat Tint comes in only one shade, of course; for the one shade blends perfectly with every complexion! It is as perfect in daylight as under artificial light. So it is no wonder that Princess Pat Tint has become a sensation—the demand in New York, Chicago, and other large cities has been simply overwhelming. Dealers everywhere are being supplied as fast as possible. Meanwhile, however, we will be glad to send Princess Pat Tint free to every woman who reads this advertisement.

Princess Pat

—the New, Natural Tint—Always Ask for It By Name

PRINCESS PAT, Ltd., Chicago

Princess Pat Tint—Princess Pat Creams—Almond Base
Face Powder—Ice Astringent—Princess Pat Perfume

(Seventy-nine)

Mail This Coupon FREE
For Generous Sample

PRINCESS PAT, Ltd.
Dept. 46, 2701 South Park Ave., Chicago
ENTIRELY FREE, please forward me, postpaid, a complimentary supply of Princess Pat Tint.

Name (Print).....
Street.....
City and State.....

W. L. DOUGLAS

NAME AND PORTRAIT is the best known shoe Trade Mark in the world. It stands for the highest standard of quality, style and workmanship at the lowest possible cost.

W. L. DOUGLAS shoes are actually demanded year after year by more people than any other shoe in the world

BECAUSE W. L. Douglas for forty-six years has been making surpassingly good shoes. The smart styles are the leaders everywhere. When you are looking for the best shoes for your money examine W. L. Douglas $7.00 and $8.00 shoes. They are exceptionally good value for the price. WEAR W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES AND SAVE MONEY.

$5. $6. $7. $8. & $9. SHOES FOR MEN & WOMEN

NO MATTER WHERE YOU LIVE shoe dealers can supply you with W. L. Douglas shoes. If not convenient to call at one of our 116 stores in the large cities, ask your shoe dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. Protection against unreasonable profits is guaranteed by the name and price stamped on the sole of every pair before the shoes leave the factory. Refuse substitutes. The prices are the same everywhere.

IF NOT FOR SALE IN YOUR VICINITY WRITE FOR CATALOG.

W. L. Douglas
President
W. L. Douglas Shoe Co.
174 Spark Street, Brockton, Mass.

TO MERCHANTS: If no dealer in your town handles W. L. Douglas shoes, write today for exclusive rights to handle this quick-selling, quick turn-over line.

Ernst Lubitsch Had No Traditional Ideas About Mary---

That is why Harry Carr's story with this European director, who after his continental success has come to America to direct Mary Pickford, is so unusually interesting. And besides discovering just what Lubitsch thinks of America's Sweetheart, Harry Carr gives you a vivid impression of the dynamic little master-man himself. . . .

Also there is a fascinating story as told by Harold Lloyd's mother about the screen bespectacled comedian as a boy in the rural towns of the Middle West. There are any number of pictures showing him thru the early years of his life. And there are countless amusing incidents about his boyhood.

And, if you are interested in amateur theatricals, the July MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE will be of untold help to you. It contains the first of a series of articles on the Little Movie Theaters in America. It advises you how you can go about establishing an amateur movie company in your town. And these articles are written by experts who have already overcome all the difficulties which would arise in an undertaking of this nature.

There are pages upon pages of new pictures too—and the latest news—and more good things generally than there is room to talk about.

The July Motion Picture Magazine

On the Newsstands June 1st.

30 Days' Free Trial

Select from 44 Styles, colors and sizes, famous Ranger bicycles, delivered free on approval, express prepaid, at Factory Prices. You can easily save $10 to $25.

12 Months to Pay if desired. Parents of 16 or over advance first deposit. Boys can earn small payments.

Tires Wheels, lamps, horns, equipment at half usual prices. Send No Money. Write for our marvelous prices and terms.

Mead Cycle Company Write us today for free catalog
Dept. K-120, Chicago

BEAUTYPEEL "Unmasks Your Hidden Beauty"

NEW DISCOVERY in Science and Facial Dermatology scientifically produces "THAT NATURAL COMPLEXION" by peeling off freckles, tan, pimples, acne, blackheads, liver-spots, wrinkles, pits, muddy, oily and withered skins; thereby restoring the face to healthy color and youthful beauty. NON-ACID (patented) harmless liquid. Effects astounding. Money-back guarantee. Proofs and Beauty Book Free. Write today.

BEAUTYPEEL COSMETIC CO.
Dept. C. El Paso, Texas

The Madness of Youth

(Continued from page 78)

In his room Javalie was reading a note from the dancer, Louise. She told him that the joke was on her. That last night, in the garden as she had knelt at his feet, the game had suddenly become reality to her. The words she had meant to say with her lips had come, somehow, from her heart. "She was going away, back to her own people. . . ."

Javalie was strangely shaken. His two natures rose and fought within him. He had, like Louise, come to this house to play a skilfully contrived rôle, and lo, like Louise, too, the rôle had become reality. These people had accepted him. His exhortations had come true. He felt suddenly defiant. He would shake off this weakness, this softness, that had come to him as to the whole household. He went unsteadily from his own room to the vault room. The family were in the garden. He would accomplish his mission and steal away. It would all be over, the moonlight, Nanette. . . .

The vault room was heavy with silence. He had the combination clearly before him, but somehow the room revolved. He couldn't seem to see very well, to stand very firmly. He gave a little moan and fell to the ground in a sorry heap.

When he came to, he was in Nanette's arms. The elder Banning was standing over them. Young Ted was speaking. "A common thief," he said, "I'll phone for the police, Dad." But Nanette held him closer. "Dad," she cried, "Why, Dad, dont you see? In saving our souls, he has saved his own!"

The elder Banning nodded. "I think that's true, Ted," he said to his son, "I think Nannie is right. . . ."

Little Madame Jeanne caught her husband's hand, "That is right, Ted," she said, softly, "ah, dont you feel that it is, dear?"

Javalie had risen to his feet. His white face corroborated them all. Nanette, sobbing, clung to her father, "Dad . . . Dad . . ." she cried, "I . . . I love him . . . the real him . . . the him that saved us all . . . dont you see?"

Javalie raised her hand, and kist it, and was still. They had their right to judge him . . . these people whom he had saved and would have robbed.

Ted and Jeanne were silent, too. The elder Banning took his daughter's hand and placed it in Javalie's. "I see, Nannie," he said, "I think I see. . . ."

Foreign Films

(Continued from page 25)

"Polikuschka" from the story of Leon Tolstoi featuring the famous Russian artist Moskwin who, I am informed, is at present in America. The other artists figuring in this photoplay belong to the famous Russian company Stanislavski.

ITALY

I have not very much to say about Italy as no changes of particular interest have happened there since I wrote my last article. If I tell you what I have seen during my different visits to that country you may judge better what the situation is.

Let us start with Rome, some months ago, just when we heard that the second industry in Italy was picture production. Let us enter a shop called "Old England" and go to the top floor where one can get tea and other refreshments. At the time of which I am speaking we could find assembled at different tables producers, artistes and other cinema fans. Let us approach a table, by chance, and be indiscreet and hear what is said.

A producer.—I don't know what to do. Miss X— (here the name of a well-known artiste) has promised to appear in one of my pictures and when I told her that I had reserved for her the rôle of the girl who becomes old she refused to play. And yet the rôle is a first class one. She replied: "Well, I always want the public to see me young and not old." And do you know, old chap, continued the producer, the oldest part she will take in the picture does not give her true age. She is to play Miss F— in my film and appear thirty-five and she is now, well, I think she must be nearly forty.

Another producer.—Well you can arrange that. Try to make your heroine twenty-five instead of thirty-five and things will be settled. But what about me? My leading lady left me and she has formed her own company, do you understand? It is not a question of age.

Now, my dear reader, let us leave our tea shop as we have heard enough, in fact, more than we could learn by many visits to the studios and better than by interviewing many people.

GERMANY

Before the war, Germany had already some good stars. Among these was Asta Neilsen an artiste who was said to be of Danish origin. She appeared principally in German films and made wonderful creations, one of her best successes being "The Downfall." What I remember of this film which I saw more than ten years ago,

Posed by Lois Wilson, attractive Paramount motion picture star. Miss Wilson is one of many charming women of the screen who use and endorse Ingram's Milkweed Cream for promoting beauty of complexion. From a photograph by Donald Biddle Keys.

A complexion as fair as June roses can so easily be yours

DO YOU know how truly beautiful your complexion can be? Do you appreciate what delicate freshness, what fineness of texture you can gain for your skin? And with how little effort?

You can attain a complexion as fresh and radiant as the roses in June. You can achieve the daint bloom of a clear, wholesome skin, just as thousands of attractive women have, if you begin at once the daily use of Ingram's Milkweed Cream.

Ingram's Milkweed Cream, you will find, is more than a face cream, more than a cleanser. It has an exclusive therapeutic property that serves to "tone-up"—revitalize—the sluggish tissues of the skin. Applied regularly, it heals and nourishes the skin cells, soothes away redness and roughness, banishes slight imperfections. Used faithfully—according to directions in the Health Hint booklet packed with every jar—it will help you to gain and retain a complexion that is genuinely beautiful.

Go to your druggist today and purchase a jar of Ingram's Milkweed Cream in either the fifty cent or $1.00 size—the dollar size contains three times the quantity. Begin at once to gain a new charm of complexion. It will mean so much to you.

Ingram's Rouge—"Just to show the proper glow" use a touch of Ingram's Rouge on the cheeks. A safe preparation for delicately emphasizing the natural color. Offered in thin, artistic metal vanity-box, with large mirror and pad—does not bulge the purse. Five perfect shades, subtly perfumed—Light, Rose, Medium, Dark or the newest popular tint, American Blush—50 cents.

Ingram's Face Powder—A complexion powder especially distinguished by the fact that it stays on. Furthermore, a powder of unexcelled delicacy of texture and refinement of perfume. Four tints—White, Pink, Flesh, Brunette—in striking container, 50 cents.

FREDERICK F. INGRAM CO.

Established 1887
83 TENTH STREET DETROIT, MICHIGAN
Canadian residents address F. F. Ingram Company, Windsor, Ontario, British residents address SAUNDERS, 42A Hampstead Rd., London, N. W. 1, Australian residents address Lark, Brixton & Co., Commerce House, Melbourne, New Zealand residents address Hart, Pennington, Ltd., Ghuznee Street, Wellington, Cuban residents address Espino & Co., Zulueta 664, Havana

Ingram's Milkweed Cream

Send a dime for Ingram's Beauty Purse—An attractive souvenir packet of the exquisite Ingram Toilet-Aids. Mail the coupon below with a silver dime and receive this dainty Beauty Purse for your hand bag

Frederick F. Ingram Co., 83 Tenth Street, Detroit, Mich.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed please find one dime. Kindly send me Ingram's Beauty Purse containing an elderflower powder pad, sample of Ingram's Face Powder, Ingram's Rouge, Ingram's Milkweed Cream, and for the gentleman of the house a sample of Ingram's Therapeutic Shaving Cream.

Name.....
Street.....
City..... State.....

Brings This Genuine Diamond RING for 10 Days FREE TRIAL

$2

FREE PEARLS

Resembles $750. Solitaire No Red Tape No Delay

SET IN PLATINUM—MOST SENSATIONAL RING OFFER EVER MADE

Think of it—seven brilliant steel blue genuine diamonds massed by a secret process in a setting of solid platinum set so closely together that only close inspection will distinguish it from a solitaire valued at $750.00. Shank of ring is 14kt. solid gold.

TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL

You take no chance—if it is not satisfactory at the end of ten days or if you can duplicate this genuine diamond ring in any jewelry store for less than $65.00, your deposit will be refunded to you.

FREE "ROYALTON" PEARLS

We are giving an 18-inch strand of genuine Royalton pearls fitted with a solid gold clasp ABSOLUTELY FREE just to get you started as a customer. Retail jewelers charge $15.00 for a similar grade. The quantity is limited so be sure to send your order today.

SEND ONLY $2.00 AND RING AND PEARLS GO TO YOU IN A HANDSOME GIFT BOX. CHARGES PAID. A WRITTEN GUARANTEE BOND AS TO QUALITY AND VALUE ACCOMPANIES EACH RING. AFTER 10 DAY TRIAL, PAY BALANCE $4.65 A MONTH FOR 10 MONTHS. PRICE ONLY $48.50.

FREE BOOK OF GEMS

Most complete jewelry catalog ever issued of diamonds, watches and jewelry—newest designs at lowest prices. 10 months to pay on everything from our two million dollar stock.

Address Dept. 783
Established 1895

FREE PEARLS

ROYAL DIAMOND & WATCH CO.
35-37-39 Maiden Lane New York

UNLUCKY?

Then wear this Mystic Serpent—Replica of Ancient Hindu charm against evil spirits, sickness, spells, and bad luck. Men and women. Heavy, weird and startling. Genuine 14-Karat gold shell, 3 year guarantee. Men and Women. Secret "formula for luck" FREE. Send measure (string tied around finger) ALI G. BABA, Box 55, 116 Str. Sta. G, New York. Pay $2.27 and postage to postman on delivery.

PLAYA SAW

You can produce wonderful, soft, sweet music from a common carpenter's saw with a violin bow or soft hammer, if you know how. No musical ability required—you need not know one note from another.

Easy to Learn in 3 Weeks
I absolutely guarantee to teach you to play popular and classical music within three weeks. Give you the secrets of my 10 years' success as a saw musician, secrets I guarded carefully, until I introduced "The Musical Saw." Successfully instructed thousands. No charge whatsoever if I fail.
FREE—a special tempered Musical Saw, Saw Bow, Soft Hammer, Free with Course of Instruction. This Course is short, simple and easy. Only three lessons, one each week—no months of tedious practice. MAKE BIG MONEY and amaze your friends playing for dances, Lodge and Church Entertainments. Write today for information "How to Play a Saw"—sent free.

C. J. MUSSEHL, 333 Mack Bldg., Ft. Atkinson, Wis.

is that it was the story of a stage actress or dancer.

Now, I understand that a new film has been made which has the same name and which tells us the story of a young actress whose first husband has been very cruel to her and who falls to such a low state that she, who was once a beautiful woman, is not even recognized by the man she loves after some years during which she has been separated from him. I do not think this to be the plot of "The Downfall" which I saw before the war, but it has a certain likeness.

Hungry Hearts of Hollywood

(Continued from page 20)

a sea tramp. But he happened to get started on Western stories and made such a success that the public will not accept him in any other kind of stories. So that's that.

Monte Blue wants to be a director. Every time he gets out in front of a camera, his heart aches with longing to be on the other side of the instrument telling some inspired actor how to do it.

Helen Ferguson wants to be a short story writer with her name advertised in the magazines. It might be that she will fulfil her ambition.

Marie Mousquini, down at the Harold Lloyd studio, has a curious ambition. She wants to be a business woman. She never had the slightest idea of being an actress. She got a job in the business department of the Roach studios and she was so pretty and attractive and general colorful and had so much personality that they dragged her away by main force and put her in front of a camera. She never has gotten over the hankering to be a business young lady with a lot of card index stuff lying around—a stenographer—not a stenographer, probably a dictograph—at her elbow—sales charts with colored pins and all such junk.

Charley Ray wants to be a producer of stage plays. His movie career is just a stepping stone to Broadway. Some day he will be a David Belasco with a wistful, sad smile and teaming millions trying to get into his theater.

Jackie Coogan endures fame and wealth because he knows that he still has time enough before him to gain his life's ambition which is to be a fireman. Not just an ordinary fireman tho. Jackie aims high. He will be satisfied with no other station in life except to be the fireman who sits up in the poop deck of a hook and ladder wagon and steers the machine down thru the traffic, making all the limousines climb up on the sidewalk to get out of the way.

Lovely Eyes For All

Delica-Brow

Write for Sample Today

Delica-Brow Liquid Dressing for the eye lashes and brows makes deep, expressive eyes instantly, with long, dark, sweeping lashes that will make everyone say "What wonderful eyes."

Delica-Brow is waterproof—unaffected by rain, tears, etc. Stays on all day—harmless. Each package (even sample) contains a camel's hair and a 25c bone handled brush for applying.

Delica-Brow is for sale by all dealers—or send direct to makers, 25c for very generous sample; or $1.00 for full size. Your money back if not more than delighted. Specify black or brown. Write today—and receive by return mail.

DELICA LABORATORIES, Inc.

Dept. 34, 3933 Broadway
30 Church St. NEW YORK CHICAGO 734 Cole St. SAN FRANCISCO

Agents: 90c an Hour

Introduce "Soderze." A new wonder. A pure alderine paste form. Works like magic. Stops all leaks. Formending water buckets, cooking utensils, milk pails, water tanks, tin roofs—everything including granite ware, agate ware, tin, iron, copper, zinc, etc.

Quick Sales—Nice Profit

Everybody buys. Housewife, mechanics, electricians, jewelers, plumbers, tourists, automobilists, etc. No leak too bad to repair. Just apply a little "Soderze," light a match and that's all. Put up in handy metal tubes. Carry quantity right with you. Write for money-making proposition.

AMERICAN PRODUCTS CO., 8516 American Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio

$$ For Photoplay Ideas

Not a school—No courses or books to sell. Plots accepted in any form; revised, criticised, copy-righted, marketed. Advice free.

UNIVERSAL SCENARIO CORPORATION
940 Western Mutual Life Building, Los Angeles, California, Publishers Scenario Bulletin Digest
Send for free sample copy.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS, OF AUGUST 24, 1912, OF CLASSIC PUBLISHED MONTHLY AT 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y., FOR APRIL 1st, 1923. State of NEW YORK, County of KINGS. Before me, a NOTARY PUBLIC in and for the State and County aforesaid, personally appeared the PRESIDENT of the CLASSIC and the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit: 1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are: Publisher, BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, INC., 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y. Editor, SUSAN ELIZABETH BRADY, 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y. Managing Editor, ADELE WHITELY FLETCHER, 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y. Business Manager, GUY L. HARRINGTON, 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y. 2. That the owners are: (Give names and addresses of individual owners, or, if a corporation, give its name and the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of stock.) EUGENE V. BREWSTER, 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y. CARLETON E. BREWSTER, BAYSHORE, LONG ISLAND, N. Y. 3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.) NONE. 4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him. 5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed thru the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is . . . (This information is required from daily publications only.) EUGENE V. BREWSTER, (Signature of editor, publisher, business manager or owner.) Sworn to and subscribed before me this 2nd day of OCTOBER, 1922. E. M. HEINEMANN. (My commission expires MARCH 30th), 1924.

The Return

(Continued from page 23)

influence, an invaluable means of education. In the little far away towns, it is the one thing the people have. They keep abreast of the news. They relieve the terrible monotony of a small town—and no one knows what that is until they have lived in one—by going to the movies. It brings romance to lives absolutely lacking in that. It affords entertainment to a people who would never get it any other way. It teaches them history. It familiarizes them with the classics they would otherwise never have even heard of.

"Now I know what I am talking about," said Mr. Bushman with conviction. "We went thru all these little towns on our vaudeville tours. We came in contact with all these people. They all knew us—from pictures. It was beautiful to me.

"Why, these housewives that were never out of their own kitchens learn to set their tables from the movies. They acquire a very workable set of manners. They learn how to dress. You know these things are ordered better now than they used to be. It is safe now for people to copy the things they see in the movies, manners, clothes, customs, houses, decorations, and so on. I can only repeat that I think that the motion picture is the greatest force in the world. I believe it has a message to bring to all peoples. And I am glad and proud to be a part of it."

Now we know that most of these things have been said before, but we have never heard them said with such a ring of conviction, sincerity and truth. Somehow, when Francis X. Bushman told us these things, they took on a new vitality. We believed them. We suddenly became enthusiastic about our job. We wanted to make our magazine bigger and better. Yes, we truly did. And we too, were glad and proud to be a part of this great industry.

Surely if a man can do that, can manage to lift a job out of the humdrum, to make of his own life a consecration to an ideal, to imbue others with a new purpose, then surely there will be a place for him once more in the hearts of an adoring following.

The romantic youth has become the worth while man . . . but he still has that thick mop of leonine hair, that wont ever stay slicked down . . . the buoyant step of youth . . . the eager look of an adventurer in life that years can never take away.

The return promises to be interesting.

Earle E. Liederman
as he is to-day

Useless as a Rabbit's Tail

The best thing a rabbit can do with his tail is to sit on it. And that's about as much use as some men make of their bodies. There are so many flat-chested, weak kneed specimens walking the streets these days that a real live man is a curiosity. The average man of today has about as much ambition for exercise as a jelly-fish. If he runs 50 yards, he pulls like a steam engine, sits down and feels as though he were ready to die. And, take it from me, he isn't far from it.

Cut it out fellows. Don't be a cake eater. If you ever knew the joys of a real healthy body, you would start this minute to get one. And that is just what you are going to do. The undertaker has his eye on you, but give him the laugh and say: "Not yet, old boy."

The Gateway to Health

It is open to you. Come on in and get busy. Yes, it means work, but Oh boy! what it brings to you. In just 30 days I am going to put one full inch on your biceps; yes, and two inches on your chest. But that is only the start. Now comes the real work.

I am going to broaden your shoulders, fill out your chest and give you a pair of arms that carry a wallop. Meanwhile I work on your inner muscles surrounding your vital organs. Every breath you take brings a deep inhale of oxygen into your lungs, purifying your blood, so that your whole body will fairly tingle with new life. You will feel real pep in your old backbone.

This is no idle talk. My treatment has stood the test of years and is now endorsed by experts as absolutely the shortest and only sure route to Health and Strength. I don't promise results; I guarantee them. Come on now and make me prove it.

Send for My New 64-Page Book "MUSCULAR DEVELOPMENT"

It contains forty-three full-page photographs of myself and some of the many prize-winning pupils I have trained. Some of these came to me as pitiful weaklings, imploring me to help them. Look them over now and you will marvel at their present physiques. This book will give an impetus and a real inspiration to you. It will thrill you through and through. All I ask is 10 cents to cover the cost of wrapping and mailing and it is yours to keep. This will not obligate you at all, but for the sake of your future health and happiness, do not put it off. Send today—right now, before you turn this page.

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN

Dept. 1806, 309 Broadway, New York City

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN
Dept. 1806, 309 Broadway, New York City

Dear Sir: I enclose herewith 10 cents, for which you are to send me, without any obligation on my part whatever, a copy of your latest book, "Muscular Development." (Please write or print plainly.)

Name.....
Street.....
City..... State.....

She Found A Pleasant Way To Reduce Her Fat

She did not have to go to the trouble of diet or exercise. She found a better way, which aids the digestive organs to turn food into muscle, bone and sinew instead of fat.

She used Marmola Prescription Tablets, which are made from the famous Marmola prescription. They aid the digestive system to obtain the full nutriment of food. They will allow you to eat many kinds of food without the necessity of dieting or exercising.

Thousands have found that Marmola Prescription Tablets give complete relief from obesity. And when the accumulation of fat is checked, reduction to normal, healthy weight soon follows.

All good drug stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar a box. Ask your druggist for them, or order direct and they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid

MARMOLA COMPANY

239 Garfield Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

"LITEWATE JUNIOR" DRUM OUTFIT

for Home Orchestra
School Orchestra

Dance or Theatre Orchestra

only $48⁶⁰

$8.60 Down
$5.00 Monthly

Outfit contains one Lyon & Healy Professional Bass Drum; one Lyon & Healy Professional Snare Drum; Ludwig Pedal; Snare Drum Stand; Pedal Cymbal and Holder; Chinese Crash Cymbal and Holder; Tone Block; Pair of fine Sticks.

BIGGEST value in a complete outfit ever offered! It takes only practice to make you a Drummer—START NOW! You can practice with Player Piano or Phonograph and progress rapidly; soon give HOME DANCES; and in a couple of months be ready to step into the school or regular orchestra—and earn money evenings if you care to. Send for details or remit first payment, and we will ship outfit on trial! For sale by your Music Merchant.

LYON & HEALY, 71-84 Jackson Blvd., Chicago

Clear Tone FOR PIMPLES

Your skin can be quickly cleared of Pimples, Blackheads, Acne Eruptions on the face or body, Enlarged Pores, Oily or Shiny Skin. $1,000 Cold Cash says I can clear your skin of the above blemishes.

FREE WRITE TODAY for my FREE Booklet—"A CLEAR-TONE SKIN"—telling how I cured myself after being afflicted for fifteen years.

E. S. GIVENS, 223 Chemical Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

Masked or Unmasked

SHE can always depend on the lure of her eyes, for they are veiled by long, dark lashes. She uses WINX, the Liquid Lashlux, to bead her lashes and make them appear darker and heavier. WINX is unaffected by perspiration, swimming or even tears, and is easily applied with the glass rod attached to the stopper of the bottle.

At night apply colorless Cream Lashlux to nourish the lashes and promote their growth.

WINX, the Liquid Lashlux (black or brown), 75c. Cream Lashlux (black, brown or colorless), 50c. At drug, department stores or by mail.

Send a dime for a sample of WINX. And for another dime we will mail you a sample of PERT, the waterproof rouge.

ROSS COMPANY
78 Grand Street New York

WINX

The LIQUID LASHLUX

RUBY EMBLEM RING 14K... LADIES' TIFFANY DIBRITE 14K...

SEND NO MONEY

Any Fraternal Emblem you wish—Masonic, Odd Fellows, K. of P., K. of C., etc.—in 10k gold S ring. Any man proud to wear it. Others ask 2 and 3 times our low introductory price of $3.49.

$3.49 Ladies' Tiffany Dibrite Gem ring, diamond brilliance, fire and sparkle that fools even experts. To introduce, only $2.39. Order Quick and get FREE King Tut Luck Ring. With either ring we send absolutely free the King Tut Luck Ring that many claim brings success in love and business. Just send name, finger size and emblem desired on Fraternal ring. No Money. Pay postman on arrival. MONEY BACK if not satisfied.

FREE KING TUT LUCK RING

L & G IMPORTERS
Dept. C 6 1629 So. State St., Chicago

Free Trial

Forget

Gray Hair

Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer is a clear, colorless liquid, clean as water. No greasy sediment to make your hair stringy or streaky, nothing to wash or rub off. Restored color even and perfectly natural in all lights, no danger of streaking or discoloration. Faded hair or hair discolored by unsatisfactory dyes restored just as safely and surely as naturally gray hair.

My Restorer is a time-tested preparation, which I perfected many years ago to bring back the original color to my own prematurely gray hair. I ask all who are gray haired to prove its worth by sending for my special patented Free Trial package.

Mail Coupon Today

Send today for the special patented Free Trial package which contains a trial bottle of my Restorer and full instructions for making the convincing test on one lock of hair. Indicate color of hair with X. Print name and address plainly. If possible, inclose a lock of your hair in your letter.

FREE TRIAL COUPON

Please print your name and address

Mary T. Goldman,
377 Goldman Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Please send your patented Free Trial Outfit. X shows color of hair. Black..... dark brown..... medium brown..... auburn (dark red)..... light brown..... light auburn (light red)..... blonde.....

Name

Street..... City.....

The Celluloid Critic (Continued from page 47)

RUPERT HUGHES has taken his magazine story, "Souls for Sale" (Goldwyn), and given it a screen dressing and we must hand this gifted author and director credit for fashioning a picture which takes the spectator on a fanciful flight thru filmland. Mr. Hughes has assembled over thirty players, many of whom are headliners, and piloted them around Hollywood sets. He gives us a large close-up of studio activities—of the lives of the screen gentry on location. And while he shoots his scenes he waxes satirical in his titles. Yet beneath the humorous surface is the story of the rise to stardom of a girl who stumbled upon a company making a "sheik" picture. She had run away from a criminal husband.

Mr. Hughes would have us believe that his tale is typical of the manner in which a star is made. But the atmosphere is the most important feature of the play and one is allowed to get an eye-ful of the directors, Stroheim, Niblo, Neilan and Chaplin. Chaplin? Indeed, the King of Comedy is caught for a brief moment with the megaphone. The climax ushers in a thrilling chapter culled from the circus formula.

The story becomes artificial toward its conclusion and the cast is too large to allow any individual player's study to be absorbed by the spectator. Yet "Souls for Sale" is interesting because of its novelty and the humorous twists—to say nothing of the atmospheric touches.

WE turn to Pola Negri who looks almost like a new discovery in Paramount's "Bella Donna." Having the advantage of American methods of screen technicalities, she is able to display a charm which was lost in German productions. So much for Yankee lighting and photography. The picture embellishes her emotional gifts so that she appears to be a different personality entirely. Yet it may be that her art is so limitless in expression that each new picture brings out some heretofore hidden appeal.

It is a sumptuous production—a positive revelation from a scenic standpoint. George Fitzmaurice has achieved the well-nigh impossible task of creating a genuinely atmospheric Egypt, London and Venice—so much so, that nothing of the studio is stamped upon it. It's a passionate tale of an oversexed woman who is carried away in the arms of Intrigue, Caprice, Adventure and Tragedy.

The magnetic Pola is superb
(Continued on page 86)

Hundreds of Women Are Now Making Money Thru The Treasure Chest

If you are a woman and want a delightful way to make money, join the Treasure Chest.

Our Club has progressed far beyond the experimental stage. It has been proven time and time again, that most any woman who wants money and is not afraid to work for it, can increase her income very satisfactorily thru our plan.

The Treasure Chest is conducted under the auspices of BEAUTY, the magazine of beauty secrets for everywoman. The work of Club members is taking subscriptions for this popular magazine. For every subscription secured, a very liberal commission is paid and in addition monthly bonuses are given, ranging in amount from one to fifty dollars.

Think what it would mean to you to have $25.00 extra coming in every month. It is very possible for you to realize this amount. Judging from what our other members are doing, you should easily earn $25.00 a month by devoting only a few hours each day to our work.

IT COSTS NOTHING TO JOIN

It costs you nothing to join our money making club. Everything you need to make a success of the work, is furnished free. In other words, we simply ask you to invest your time against our money. And we are willing to pay you good interest.

Now is the best time of all the year to begin. People all around you are more interested at this season than ever, in learning how to enhance what beauty they may possess. As a member of our Club you can help your friends and acquaintances to look their best on every occasion. In addition to this being a profitable occupation for you it is very interesting work too. Wouldn't you like to try it? For further particulars address a letter, postcard or the handy coupon below to KATHARINE LAMBERT, Secretary, Treasure Chest, BEAUTY, 175 Duffield St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

----- CUT HERE -----

KATHARINE LAMBERT,
SECRETARY, THE TREASURE CHEST,
BEAUTY, 175 Duffield Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Please tell how I can make money thru The Treasure Chest.

Name.....

St. and No.....

City..... State.....

New York goes wild!

Amazing Slendaform takes Manhattan by storm!

NEW YORKERS are very blasé and sophisticated. It requires something quite sensational to startle them out of their ennui.

But they have a new thrill now!

Men and women who have dieted and drugged themselves, who have enervated their systems in Turkish Rooms, who have poured pounds of so-called reducing salts in their baths, who have jumped around in violent exercises that played havoc with their hearts—

—these folks have found a thrill!

They have found that getting thin is a matter of moments. No apparatus is required. It can all be done in the quiet of one's own bathroom! They have discovered Slendaform, the harmless amazing liquid cream that melts away the fat-cells and reduces fatty areas almost immediately, with only external application.

Cleo Madison, noted screen beauty, took off several inches in a brief treatment, and is now on the way back to California with six jars of Slendaform for some of her friends. George Trimble, important officer of the Actors Equity Association who always wore a 19½ collar, now wears an 13. He also reduced HARMLESS! Eminent doctors, great universities and famous obesity specialists certify that Slendaform is absolutely harmless. Send for copies of their letters.

Slenderize with

SLENDAFORM

FREE!

Send to the Slendaform Corporation, 500 Fifth Avenue, New York for free booklet, "The New Art of Slenderizing," giving the measurements and pictures of the ideal feminine form.

3¼ inches in the waist. Frank W. Goodale says, "Results are astounding. They are visible after few applications."

A certain famous actress, upon being refused the opportunity to play the character of the debutante in a new film, used Slendaform and returned to the studio. The director was surprised, delighted, and gave her the coveted part.

New York has a new thrill! Druggists claim that never in their experience has anything of the kind sold so fast as Slendaform. Kalish, with three stores, sold 451 jars in a few weeks. What is the answer? Why this sudden leap in public sales?

It works! That is the reason! You simply pat it on the part you wish to reduce and the fat melts away. It is almost magical in its accomplishment.

Money Back Guarantee

If, after using Slendaform according to the simple directions on each jar, you are unable to see results, we cheerfully refund your money in full.

No offer could be fairer than this; it is proof positive that Slendaform actually reduces as we say it will.

All druggists are now being supplied, but it will be months before the Slendaform Laboratories catch up with the demand. In the meantime if you want a jar or two you may have to send direct to the New York office at 500 Fifth Avenue, and we will supply you.

DORIS LLOYD
ZIEGFELD FOLLIES
FAVORITE

Slendaform Corporation, Dept. C. C.,
500 Fifth Avenue, New York

Please send me a full sized regular $5.00 jar of Slendaform. I will pay postman upon delivery. You agree to return my money in case I get no results.

Name _____

Address _____

P. O. _____ State _____

The New Science of Womanly Charm

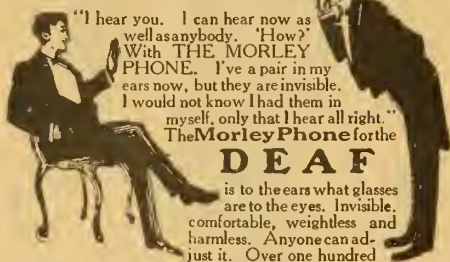

HOW a demure little wren of a girl was changed almost overnight into an attractive Bird-of-Paradise woman—how she who had been neglected by her young men acquaintances suddenly became a center of attraction, and within a few weeks the radiant bride of the man she had loved in vain for years—this is the theme of a letter received today. Hundreds of other letters just as wonderful have come to us voluntarily from readers of our new, revolutionary book dealing not with sex, but with psychology. "The Secrets of Fascinating Womanhood" shows how any woman who understands certain peculiarities about man's psychology can attract and win the love of any man she chooses. It will be mailed postpaid in plain wrapper on receipt of 10c in stamps.

PSYCHOLOGY PRESS

6309 Delmar Blvd. St. Louis, Mo.

"DON'T SHOUT"

thousand sold. Write for booklet and testimonials.
THE MORLEY CO., Dept. 792, 26 S. 15th Street, Phila.

$200 Down

For This 7 Diamond Solitaire Cluster

Seven perfectly cut and matched blue-white Diamonds are skillfully set in a hexagon mounting of Platinum resembling a large solitaire, weighing 21-2 ct. Green Gold shank artistically hand-carved and delicately engraved. Price $57.50.

Sent for only $21. By return mail you'll receive this exquisite Diamond Solitaire Cluster. Examine it thoroughly and if you are completely satisfied keep it and send only $5 a month for 10 months. Otherwise, return. No risk—no delay—transactions strictly confidential.

Send for FREE Diamond Book
Shows nearly 3,000 illustrations of the most amazing baroques in Diamonds, Watches and Jewelry—10 months to pay on everything. Write for Copy No. 4931.

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY
CAPITAL $1,000,000.

L.W. SWEET INC.
1650-1660 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

The Celluloid Critic (Continued from page 84)

against such a colorful background—a background which abounds in elaborate carnival scenes, desert sandstorms and massive reproductions of oriental architecture. A gripping document which is dramatically effective and optically pleasing and finely interpreted by the star and a company that has seemingly caught some of her verve and vitality.

RUPERT HUGHES is not the only sponsor of screen novelties for the month. He must make room for Maurice Tourneur whose production, "The Isle of Lost Ships" (First National), stimulates the imagination and excites the pulse with its fanciful story of adventure, conflict and romance in the Sargasso Sea—where all floating wreckage drifts to find sanctuary. The corpses of these dead vessels lend an uncanny atmosphere which is rich in its colorful appeal. Human derelicts find refuge among them—the sole survivors of ill-fated cruises.

It is stark melodrama punctuated with fanciful adventure and romance and the acting contributed by Milton Sills, Walter Long and other competent players is in perfect harmony with the vigorous tale.

IN turning to Jackie Coogan we discover him in a trite, hackneyed story "Daddy" (First National), which is worthy of patronage, however, because of the presence of the inimitable youngster. Follow little John thru his tender moments with an aged musician and shed a tear over him. There is no backbone to the plot and it's unduly artificial featuring as it does a mother who leaves her temperamental husband and takes her child with her. Follow Jackie thru his efforts to get his grandparents out of the poorhouse as he parades the city streets begging silver with his eloquent eyes and his violin playing. The elderly musician, the tutor of the lad's father, dies. Which offers a moment of heart interest and pathos. And the parent conveniently meets the boy. Result, happy days for all concerned except the mother who for some reason or other has passed into the Great Beyond.

With Jackie in nearly every scene the opus is saved from traveling the quick road to oblivion. We will forget it easily when the circus story, "Toby Tyler," comes along.

STORIES of moonshine, feudists and revenuers among "them thar hills" have become so conventional that "The Trail of the Lone-

Tasty~

Wintergreen—that appealing enticing flavor—a taste that lingers on and on—its use is

"a sensible habit"

Quiets the nerves

BEEMAN'S Pepsin Gum

American Chic Co.

$2.63 $3.25

SEND NO MONEY

If You Can Tell it from a GENUINE DIAMOND Send it back

To prove our blue-white MEXICAN DIAMOND cannot be told from a GENUINE DIAMOND and has same DAZZLING RAINBOW FIRE, we will send a selected 1 carat gem in ladies Solitaire Ring, (Cat. price $3.25) for Mail Price to introduce, $2.63, or in Gentle Heavy Tooth Belcher Ring (Cat. Price $6.50) for $3.25. Our finest 12k Gold Filled mountings, GUARANTEED 20 YEARS, SEND NO MONEY. Just mail postcard or this ad, State Size. We will mail at once. When ring arrives deposit $2.63 for Ladies ring or $3.25 for Gents with postman. If not pleased return in 2 days for money back less handling charges. Write for Free catalog. Agents Wanted.

MEXICAN DIAMOND IMPORTING CO., Dept. CA2 Las Cruces, N. Mex.
(Exclusive controllers Mexican Diamonds)

Will You Take Cash For Your Spare Time?

What is your spare time worth? Will you take $15 to $35 a week for one hour, two hours or three hours a day? Read my offer.

I must have at once a limited number of refined, cultured women in every community who will take cash for their spare time. An amazing new scientific discovery has been made which assures radiant beauty to every woman—in five days. A big profit is ready and waiting for just telling other women where they can get this wonderful new discovery. Just your spare time will pay you well. Others are making from $15 to $35 a week. BEAUTY OUTFIT FREE. Write me immediately and I'll explain the whole wonderful plan to you and tell you how you can secure my Beauty Outfit FREE. No obligation. I will finance you. You can start earning money at once if you write to me now. MARIE FRANZAN, Dept. 146, 2707 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

WEIRD MYSTO OUTFIT

The ORIGINAL weird Mysto Talisman Ring—wards off evil spirits, sickness, spells, etc. Ancient belief, brings Success to wearer in love, business, games, ALL Undertakings. Green Gold finish, snakes set with Lucky Mysto Ruby and Emerald, fits any finger. ALSO The startling MYSTO WONDER, amusing & mysterious instrument, answers ALL questions—LOVE? Hate? Enemies? Marriage? Children? Money? Life? Luck? FREE with Outfit—Direction and Question Booklet—A DREAM BOOK —ALSO Free plan to make money. Pay on arrival $1.97 Plus Postage.

MYSTO CO., 136 Liberty St., Dept. 900, N.Y.C.

Shampooing

A task half done

Noted actresses all recognize the fact that hair to be beautiful needs more than just shampooing. They have no more choice in the color of their hair than you have. Their hair is more beautiful, because their profession—their very environment—soon teaches them how to make the best of what nature has given them.

Practically every woman has reasonably good hair—satisfactory in quantity, texture and color. So-called dull hair is the result of improper care. Ordinary shampooing is not enough; just washing cannot sufficiently improve dull, drab hair. Only a shampoo that adds "that little something" dull hair lacks can really improve it.

Golden Glint Shampoo was made particularly for medium brown hair—to make it look brighter and more beautiful. When your hair appears lifeless, all you need do is have a Golden Glint Shampoo. It does more and IS more than an ordinary shampoo. With it you can correct—correct, mind you—any little shortcomings your hair may have. It places your hair in your own hands, so to speak.

Have a Golden Glint Shampoo today and give your hair the special treatment which is all it needs to make it as beautiful as you desire it. 25c a package at toilet goods counters or postpaid direct. J. W. Kobi Co., 115 Spring St., Seattle, Wash.

Free Book
Containing complete story of the origin and history of that wonderful instrument—the

Easy to Play
Easy to Pay

SAXOPHONE

This book tells you when to use Saxophone—singly, in quartettes, in sextettes, or in regular band; how to play from cello parts in orchestra and many other things you would like to know. The Saxophone is the easiest of all wind instruments to play. You can learn to play the scale in an hour and soon be playing popular airs. It will double your income, your pleasure and your popularity. Three first lessons sent free. Nothing can take the place of the Saxophone for

Home Entertainment, Church, Lodge or School, or for Orchestra Dance Music

You may try any Buescher Saxophone, Cornet, Trumpet, Trombone or other instrument 6 days. If satisfied, pay for it by easy payments. Mention instrument interested in when sending for Free Book.

BUESCHER BAND INSTRUMENT CO.
Makers of Everything in Band and Orchestra Instruments
204 Bueacher Block ELKHART, IND.

PIANO JAZZ

By Note or Ear. With or without music. Short Course. Adult beginners taught by mail. No teacher required. Self-Instruction Course for Advanced Pianists. Learn 67 styles of Bass, 180 Syncopated Effects, Blue Harmony, Oriental, Chime, Morle and Cafe Jazz, Trick Endings, Clever Breaks, Space Fillers, Sax Shurs, Triple Bass, Wicked Harmony, Blue Obligato, and 247 other Subjects. Including Ear Playing. 110 pages of REAL Jazz. 25,000 words. A Postal brings our FREE Special Offer.

Waterman Piano School, 250 Superba Theatre Bldg. Los Angeles Calif.

SELL YOUR SPARE US TIME

You can earn $15 to $50 a week writing show cards in your own home.—No canvassing.—A pleasant profitable profession easily and quickly learnt by our new simple graphic block system. Artistic ability not necessary.—We teach you how, and supply you with work—Distance no object. Full particulars and booklet free.

WILSON METHODS LIMITED—DEPT. E
64 East Richmond, Toronto, Canada.

some "Pue" (Paramount) does not generate much entertainment. John Fox's tale has been used as a model for this type of pictures. So it must be called the grand-daddy of them all. Most everyone is familiar with the story which if it hasn't been read, at least has been seen a score of times.

Mary Miles Minter is the little mountain wildflower who develops a romance with the young "furriner." And before the youth from the city is able to take her away from her cabin we are given a deal of local color, a fair-to-middlin' climax when the feudists tote their guns into the town and some highly picturesque settings. Ernest Torrence suggests the typical mountain moonshiner. He compels attention with every expression which flits across his face—a graphic study of a son of the soil down "thar" in ol' Kaintuck."

THE odds are ten to one that, if "Enemies of Women" (Cosmopolitan) had been produced on a modest scale, it would have been dismissed as stereotyped, dull stuff. But the sponsors have loosened the purse strings lavishly—so much so that the picture becomes one of those million dollar productions. And by giving it truly sumptuous settings and an authenticity of background as it pertains to Monte Carlo the artistic side of the picture saves it—the more than excellent interpretation by Lionel Barrymore as a wealthy degenerate and Alma Rubens as an adventuress.

The war comes sparing none but a group of wilful men who scoff at women. Yet these wealthy bounders catch the spirit of sacrifice and discover their souls. The story has gaps. You will find them when the adventuress pleads for money from the rich Russian to send to her boy at the front, and when she refuses to tell him that she has a son at all—altho her pride is so monumental that she would cry her relationship from the housetops.

There is a thrilling scene when the terrorists storm the prince's castle—and the war strips are the real stuff. The director deserves a compliment for trimming his battle scenes and handling the exceptionally large cast in masterly fashion. It is colorful. Make no mistake about it.

But its highlights are its rich backgrounds and Barrymore's portrayal.

WILLIAM de MILLE gets down to human values much better than brother Cecil. He is not afraid to tackle a character study, "Grumpy" (Paramount), and mould it into an absorbing little pic-

(Continued on page 89)

A Clear Soft Velvety Skin Quickly Yours Through My New Secret Methods

YOU CAN be beautiful, attractive, charming!
Once I was homely. The portrait above is living proof of what I can do for you, too. If your features are fairly regular, you can be as temptingly beautiful as thousands of other women I have helped. You will be astonished at the improvement you can easily and quickly accomplish. My

Banish
Coarse Pores
Wrinkles
Pimples
Freckles
Superfluous
Hair
Oily Skin

Secrets of Beauty tell you how—secrets based on the arts of beauty culture used in the days of the old French Courts, by the most beautiful women of all times. These and many other beauty secrets to give you a soft, velvety skin, flushed with the true tints of nature, to restore and preserve youthful appearance, and make you the center of admiration and attention, are all disclosed in my Booklet "Making Beauty Yours."

It tells you how to Remove Wrinkles; Refine Coarse Pores; Beautify the Lips; Banish Blackheads, Tan, Freckles, Liver Spots, Blisters, Saltos and Oily Skin; Beautify the figure, by building up or reducing; Remove Superfluous Hair; Grow Beautiful Eyebrows and Lashes; Clear the skin of Pimples; Make Hair Soft, Lustrous, Fluffy.

Send for My Booklet—FREE

Just clip this coupon, write name and address and mail to me today. Don't pass this golden chance to win Real Beauty! Investigate! It costs you nothing to write and you'll be delighted that you did. There is information in the booklet valuable to EVERY WOMAN LIVING, whether homely or beautiful.

LUCILLE YOUNG
Room 36, Lucille Young Bldg., Chicago.
Please send me, by return mail, your Free Booklet "MAKING BEAUTY YOURS."

Name.....
Address.....
City..... State.....

LEARN

Movie Acting!

A fascinating profession that pays big. Would you like to know if you are adapted to this work? Send 10c for our Twelve-Hour Talent Tester or Key to Movie Acting Aptitude, and find whether or not you are suited to take up Movie Acting. A novel, instructive and valuable work. Send dime or stamps today. A large, interesting, illustrated Booklet on Movie Acting included FREE!

FILM INFORMATION BUREAU, Sta. N., Jackson, Mich.

"HELP WANTED"
U.S. CIVIL SERVICE
RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS
WANTED

Wanted—Railway Mail Clerks. Write today for full particulars. United Government Training Inst., 215-K Dinan Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Susie had the Courage of a Pioneer

That is why she dared to leave the harbor of her home in a little Western town and come to New York—

And then New York put her courage to the test.

Hired to Live the Life of Another

But Susie did not flinch.

She dared accept an opportunity which would have tried the courage of women less brave—

And putting the disillusion and disappointment which had come to her away from her mind, Susie went on—

Susie Cast off Her own Identity Like an Old Dress

And became, for the nonce, the glamorous Magda Basarov, the motion picture star—

Where Magda Basarov was invited, Susie went—

And no one was the wiser—

Susie wore the Basarov gowns — emulated the Basarov accent — and affected the Basarov mannerisms—

WITHOUT a doubt Susie Takes a Chance is one of the greatest stories written in years. Be sure to read it— in the Motion Picture Magazine. Lucian Cary, the popular and well-liked magazine writer, is the author.

SUSIE TAKES A CHANCE

MYSTERY . . . suspense . . . surprise . . . strange situations . . . developments still stranger . . . characters so real and human that they will remind you of people you know . . . all woven with supreme skill into an absorbing story entirely unlike anything else you have ever read.

A New Kind of Story by Lucian Cary

In the July Motion Picture Magazine

THE BATHER

Acknowledged one of the best pictures on the art market today. It is REAL. It is true to life. It is EXCELLENT and very BEAUTIFUL. You cannot help admiring it because of the beauty of the scene, the woods, the water, the action, the composition, the tones, the wonderful depth, the sky light. In fact all that goes to make this picture what it is. It is Made for discriminating persons who desire to retain individuality in their art collections. Persons who know, understand and appreciate the every beauty and loveliness of this art technique will find in this picture and our other studies, treasures of loveliness. No collection soon will be complete without it and one has only started well with it.

A PICTURE

Copyright 1919

We are making the study in two sizes, 6x10 or 10x20. The pictures are obtainable framed, mounted on rich brown mounts or merely the plain pictures to suit the choice. Prices and sizes furnished as given below:

Size	Plain Copies	Mtd. Copies	Framed Pictures
6x10	$.60	$.75	$ 2.75
10x20	$ 1.60	$ 1.85	$ 5.50

If your dealer is a live wire he may have our pictures to show you, if not send us your order today. Send 10c for our illustrated pamphlet of the higher grade photographs.

Fords Foto Studios, Ellensburg, Wash.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Look Prosperous!

WEAR DIAMONDS

FOR A FEW CENTS A DAY

NO MONEY DOWN

18 kt. White Gold, 7 perfect cut, blue-white diamonds set in platinum. Looks like 3 carat solitaire.

Special No. 61
Only $59.50

Premier Cluster, 7 carefully matched blue-white diamonds set in platinum. Looks like $1-2 carat solitaire.

Special No. 71
Only $69.50

Don't send a single penny. Ten days Free Trial. When the ring comes, examine it—if you are not convinced it is the Greatest Bargain in America, send it back at our expense. Only if pleased, send $1.50 weekly—at the rate of a few cents a day. These Bargain Cluster Rings with 7 Blue-White Perfect Cut Diamonds can be yours. No Red Tape. No Risk. 8% Yearly Dividends Guaranteed. Also 5% Bonus.

Million Dollar FREE Send for it today. It Bargain Book FREE pictures thousands of Bargains. Address Dept. A-E.

J.M. LYON & CO.
2-4 Maiden Lane N.Y.

In Business Nearly 100 years

(Eighty-nine)

The Celluloid Critic (Continued from page 87)

ture story. True he has Theodore Roberts who as the irascible old lawyer, gives a powerful characterization—one which easily outranks anything he has heretofore contributed. Some might not favor this actor in the rôle since it was originally created by Cyril Maude. But should they reason from the standpoint that because Roberts doesn't look like Maude he is incapable of giving a correct rendition? This is a foolish argument with nothing to stand upon except the original creation which paints a pleasant fancy which one doesn't like to spoil. See Theodore Roberts in "Grumpy" and enjoy character acting at its best.

"THE TIGER'S CLAW" (Paramount) presents us with the old moth-eaten story of the disappointed lover who exiles himself to India where he falls in love with a half-caste girl—and wonder of wonders, he marries her! Bang goes the racial barrier, you say? But wait! The white girl comes down from England and so they conveniently kill off the native. Oh yes it contains some thrills. The young engineer is rescued by the half-caste from some man-eating tigers and out of gratitude for saving his life he is tied in the bands of holy wedlock. But the arrival of the English charmer compels the author to paint the pretty Hindu as faithless to her marriage vows. Some of the atmosphere is good and Aileen Pringle is fetching as the half-caste. Jack Holt tries to be real.

HAVE you been watching Buster Keaton the past year? Wont you agree with us that his comedies are vastly more entertaining than half the features which come under your notice? Pay particular attention to "The Love Nest" (First National) and enjoy a rollicking laugh in following Buster's take-off of a whaling adventure. He has injected several new gags and incidentally, employs the dream situation. But it isn't so irritating in this instance because there is no indication that he has been asleep until the finish. It's a whale of a comedy.

SOME marvelous backgrounds of Tahiti do much toward compensating for a highly theatrical story of the South Sea formula in the Goldwyn expression, "Lost and Found." Really it is wild melodrama which is so palpably false that the good work by House Peters who, as a skipper, searching the high seas for Reduce FAT this easy Way!

Without starving, exercising, using debilitating herbs or drugs, Dr. Lawton's GUARANTEED FAT Reducer (not electric) removes fat on any part of the body in 10 days, without rest night and morning.

Dr. LAWTON'S Guaranteed FAT Reducer

and Illustrated Course on Weight Control showing how to stay thin after the Fat Reducer has done its work.

Your money back if it fails! If no real reduction is shown in 10 days, 11 days, the full trial period, your money and Dr. Lawton will give you back your money promptly.

Only $3.75—SEND NO MONEY Mail Coupon!

Test the Reducer NOW on the Lawton GUARANTEED. Don't send any money. Simply fill out and mail the coupon. When your postman delivers your Reducer, pay him $3.75, plus a few extra post charges. If you send money in advance, add 20c for postage. That coupon is your start toward a slimmer. Mail it NOW! If you want more information first, send for them to Reduce Month Your Figure to Slenderness.

DR. THOMAS LAWTON, Dept. 6,
120 W. 70th St., New York City.

Send me Dr. Lawton's GUARANTEED FAT Reducer on delivery I will pay postman $3.75, plus few extra post charges. If, after following directions 11 days, the Reducer fails to show actual reduction taking place, I will return the outfit to you and you will refund my cost promptly.

Name.....
Street..... City..... State.....

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Scientifically Calculated offers some interesting revelations. For Analysis send $1.00 and birthdate. TRIAL ANALYSIS, 25c. Address "Modernized Astrology" offices, suite "A" 911 No. Melrose St., Glendale, California

Reduce Your Flesh in Spots

Arms, Legs, Bust, Double Chin

In fact the entire body or any part without dieting

by wearing DR. WALTER'S

Famous Medicated Reducing

RUBBER GARMENTS

For Men and Women

Anklets for Reducing and Shaping the Ankle, $7.00 per pair. Extra large, $9.00.

Send ankle measurement when ordering.

Bust Reducer, $6.00

Chin Reducer, $2.50

Send for Illustrated Booklet

Dr. Jeanne M. P. Walter

353 Fifth Avenue :: New York

LABLACHE

FACE POWDER

The subtle perfume of Lablache recalls grandmother's garden of old-fashioned flowers at dusk of a perfect day in June.

Lablache is chosen by women of all ages for its purity, fragrance and clinging softness.

Refuse Substitutes

They may be dangerous. Flesh, Pink White or Cream. 50 cents a box of drug stores or by mail. Send 10 cents for a sample box.

BEN. LEVY CO.
French Perfumers, Dept. C
125 Kingston St., Boston, Mass.

GET THIS WONDERFUL RING. If You Can Tell It From a Genuine Diamond Send It Back

These amazing, beautiful CORODITE diamonds positively match genuine diamonds in every way—same blazing flash and dazzling play of living rainbow fire. They alone stand the diamond tests, including terrific acid test of direct comparison. Lifetime experts need all their experience to see any difference. Prove this yourself. Wear a Corodite Diamond 7 Days Free Make this test. You risk nothing. Wear a genuine Corodite and a diamond side by side on the same finger for 7 days. If you or your friends can tell the difference, send it back; you won't be out a single penny. That's a fair enough. If you keep the ring, the price printed here is all you pay. No installments. Remember, Corodites alone have the same cutting as genuine stones. No. 1—Ladies' Solitaire 14K Gold S. Ring. . . $2.84 No. 4—Ladies' Hand-Carved Basket Setting, plat. finish $3.96 No. 5—Ladies' Solitaire Bridal Blossom Engraved. . . $3.54 No. 6—Gents' Massive Hand-Carved Green Gold Gypsy $4.39 No. 7—Gents' Heavy Belcher 14K Gold S. Ring. . . $3.68 Carat size gems. Beautiful mountings of most modern design. Choice of gold or latest white platinum finish. Unqualified 20-year guarantee. Conditions are in the case free with each ring. SEND NO MONEY Keep your money right at home. Just send name, address and number of ring, wanted and size as shown, by slip of paper, fitting end to end around finger joint. Your ring will come by return mail. When ring arrives deposit amount shown above with postman. If you decide not to keep ring after 7 days' wear, send it back and your money will be immediately returned. Send today.

E. RICHWINE CO.
19 W. Jackson Blvd., Dept. 477, Chicago, Illinois
Sole Importers Genuine Corodite Diamonds

MAKE MONEY AT HOME

We pay 15 to 50 Dollars Weekly for Spare Time Work at Home Writing Show Cards—No Canvassing—Experience Unnecessary—Write today. UNITED SHOW CARD SYSTEM, 215-J Dinan Building, Detroit, Mich.

Develops Busts Like Magic! During the past 15 years thousands have added to their captivating glory of womanhood by using

GROWDINA for bust, neck or arm development

Great Discovery of Parisian beauty expert. Harmless, easy, certain results guaranteed or money back. Marvelous testimonials of efficiency. Confidential proof and literature (sealed) on request. Write now.

Mlle. Sophie Koppel, Suite 903, 503 Fifth Avenue, New York

EARN $250 PER UP TO $250 PER MO.

EXPENSES PAID

MEN WANTED!

BE A RAILWAY TRAFFIC INSPECTOR

Positions Open—Must Be Filled

Fascinating work with chance to travel. Meet big railway executives; advance rapidly; field uncrowded. Any average man can quickly qualify.

Your Protection You take no risk. Read Guarantee Notice. Hundreds of successful graduates. You can succeed! We prepare you in 3 mos.' spare time at home. Don't delay! send coupon today for Booklet No. D-59 giving full particulars.

Standard Business Training Institute
Buffalo, N. Y.

GUARANTEE Our guarantee states that tuition will be refunded to you if, upon graduation, position is not obtained, paying at least $110 per mo. and expenses.

Standard Business Train. Ins. Buffalo, N. Y. Send me, entirely free, Booklet No. D-59 giving full particulars about course in Railway Traffic Inspection.

Name.....
Street.....
City.....

his wife and child, is nearly negative. Perhaps the original tale, "Captain Blackbird," possessed some virtues. But they haven't been transferred to the screen version. There is much ado over tribal rites and customs and these bits are saturated with hokum. Pauline Starke and Antonio Moreno and George Siegmann struggle bravely to appear convincing. Miss Starke, incidentally, is miscast.

IT'S difficult to imagine just what Mack Sennett was thinking of when he wrote "Suzanna" (Allied Producers and Distributors) a tale of ancient vintage which carries none of his customary satire or burlesque. He turns to the babies-shifted-in-their-cradles-at-birth formula and writes it around a Spanish setting and places Mabel Normand in the rôle of a lowly peon. And Mabel doesn't show any of her flair for comedy. We must say that audiences will probably be amused with her—at least for old time's sake. You know the story now. The old servant comes forward with a confession which gives the girl a chance to receive forgiveness from the noble don. The latter's rebellious son steals her away from a tempestuous toreador. The pursuit is on and a fight on the edge of the cliff (horses are used) brings the fiesta and the happy ending.

We look for much brighter things from the Sennett lot. George Nichols, you are wasted here.

A GARDEN

By MARGARET MAYFIELD

I've a garden
In my heart
Where flowers grow
Pale blooms blossomed there
Until your kisses
Made red roses live.
Their perfume you and I
Alone may breathe
If your love dies
There will be
Only withered flowers there
Despair in my heart
Death in the garden!

THREE TIMES TEN

GAMALIEL BRADFORD

For all her fragile ways and white
Demeanor like a lily,
She took a singular delight
In making men look silly.

She had a face would fit a nun
Devoted to the Savior;
But she was hardly such a one,
To judge from her behavior.

She played the deuce with scores of men;
But only to discover
That she was left at three times ten
With not a single lover.

"I AM GLAD TO RECOMMEND YOUR WORK TO WOMEN WHO NEED MONEY"

If you are a woman and need more money, then you will be interested in what we have to offer you.

Mrs. Fannie Jones, the lady whose picture you see above, is very enthusiastic over our money making plan for women. She heartily recommends it to every woman who may be in need of an increased income.

Time and time again we have proved that it requires no previous business experience to make money with us. It is the rule and not the exception for a new worker to earn from 75 cents to $2.50 an hour from the start.

YOU CAN MAKE GOOD TOO

No matter what your position in life may be, there is a place for you on our staff to make money. You might be a busy mother, a stenographer or clerk, a school girl or young lady engaged to marry—if you want more money, we can show you how to get it without a cent of expense to you.

This is your big opportunity.

The work we will give you to do is not hard. Because others on our staff like it, we feel sure you will like it too. If you enjoy calling on your friends and acquaintances and talking to them about clothes, beauty secrets, or moving pictures, then we are positive you will enjoy working for us.

Briefly, the work is taking subscriptions for the MOTION PICTURE, CLASSIC, SHADOWLAND and BEAUTY—the fastest growing group of magazines in the field today.

Everything that you will need to work with is furnished absolutely free. In addition we will send you a little booklet giving full instructions for carrying on the work.

Do you want more money? Then send in the coupon today.

CUT HERE

Subscription Department
BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, Inc.,
175 Duffield Street,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

I am interested in having more money. Please tell me about your plan.

Name.....
St. and No.....
City.....State.....

Manufacturers, Distributors
and Studios of Motion Pictures
Outside New York City

American Film Co., 6227 Broadway,
Chicago, Ill.

Bear State Film Co., Hollywood, Calif.
Bennett, Chester, Prod., 3800 Mission Rd.,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Carson Studios, Inc., 1845 Alessandro St.,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Century Comedies, 6100 Sunset Blvd.,
Hollywood, Calif.

Charles Chaplin Studios, 1420 La Brea
Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.

Christie Film Corp., 6101 Sunset Blvd.,
Hollywood, Calif.

Commonwealth Pictures Corp., 220 So.
State St., Chicago, Ill.

Coogan, Jackie, Prod., 5341 Melrose Ave.,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Dwan, Allan, Prod., 6642 Santa Monica
Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.

Famous Players-Lasky Studios, 1520 Vine
St., Hollywood, Calif.

Ford, Francis, Prod., 6642 Santa Monica
Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.

Fox Studios, 1401 Western Ave., Hollywood, Calif.

Goldwyn Studios, Culver City, Calif.

Hart, William S., Studios, 5544 1/2 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.

Ince Studios, Culver City, Calif.

Leah Baird Prod., Culver City, Calif.

Lloyd, Harold, Prod., Hal Roach Studios,
Culver City, Calif.

MacDonald, Katherine, Prod., 945 Girard
St., Los Angeles, Calif.

Mayer, Louis B., Studios, 3800 Mission
Rd., Los Angeles, Calif.

Metro Studios, 1025 Lillian Way, Los Angeles, Calif.

Morosco, Oliver, Prod., 756 So. Broadway,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Pacific Studios, San Mateo, Calif.

Pathé Frères, 1 Congress St., Jersey City,
N. J.

Ray, Charles, Studios, 1425 Fleming St.,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Roach, Hal E., Studios, Culver City, Calif.

Robertson-Cole Studios, 780 Gover St.,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Roland, Ruth, Prod., Culver City, Calif.

Sennett, Mack, Studios, 1712 Glendale
Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.

Stahl, John M., Prod., 3800 Mission Rd.,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Stewart, Anita, Prod., 3800 Mission Rd.,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Talmadge Prod., 5341 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.

Tourneur, Maurice, Prod., Ince Studios,
Culver City, Calif.

United Studios, Inc., Los Angeles, Calif.

Universal Studios, Universal City, Calif.

Vidor, King, Studio, 7200 Santa Monica
Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.

Vitagraph Studios, 1708 Talmadge St.,
Hollywood, Calif.

Warner Bros., Bronson Ave. and Sunset
Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.

Weber, Lois, Prod., 6411 Hollywood Blvd.,
Hollywood, Calif.

Wharton, Inc., Ithaca, New York.

A telephone personality

In your face to face contacts with people, your appearance, your bearing and many other things help you to make the right impression. But in your telephone contacts there is only one thing by which you can be judged—your speech.

An effective telephone personality is to-day a business and social asset. Everybody appreciates the person who speaks distinctly and pleasantly, neither too fast nor too slow, with a clear enunciation of each word, with lips facing the mouthpiece and speaking into it. In business, this is the telephone personality which induces favorable action on the part of the listener. To the salesman it may mean the difference between an order and no order; between an interview granted and an interview refused.

Curiously enough, people who are careful to make themselves effectively heard and understood face to face, often disregard the need for effectiveness in their telephone speech. Perhaps they shout, perhaps they mumble, perhaps they hold the mouthpiece far from their lips. And frequently they never realize that their carelessness has defeated the purpose of their talk.

The Bell System maintains for telephone users the best facilities that science, modern equipment, skilled operation and careful management can bring to telephone speech. But these facilities can be fully effective only when they are properly used.

"BELL SYSTEM"
AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY
AND ASSOCIATED COMPANIES
One Policy, One System, Universal Service, and all directed toward Better Service

REAL PHOTOS OF YOUR SCREEN FAVORITES

If you admire any of the eleven screen stars, just glance through this selected list of the BIG ONES. Wouldn't you like to receive by return mail, genuine photos of your Movie Favorites, size 8x10, in original poses by the Stars? They are beautiful and life-like—Wonderful value for the money. 50c each, 12 for $5.00. Make your selection NOW from this list.

Wallace Reid
Poia Negri
Mary Miles Minter
Mabel Normand
Milton Sills
Mary Pickford
Betty Compson
Anita Stewart
Pearl White
Earle Williams
Rodolph Valentino

Jackie Coogan
Clara K. Young
Frank Mayo
Katherine
McDonald
Mae Murray
Charles Ray
Nazimova
Charles Chaplin
Marion Davies
Richard
Barthelme

50c Each—12 for $5.00
Money cheerfully refunded if not satisfactory. Send money order, U. S. bills or U. S. stamps with name and address plainly written to
S. BRAM, Dept. 133, 209 W. 48th Street, New York City
Special prices to dealers

$1 Brings This
Genuine
DIAMOND

Blue white, perfect cut, genuine diamond 18 kt. white gold hand engraved and pierced mounting Rare beauty.
Only $32.50

Easy for you to own this beautiful ring or give it as a present. Simply send $1. Examining ring on arrival. If you don't agree it is an amazing bargain, your deposit will be returned. If you keep it, pay postman only $1 and send $1 a week until $32.50 is paid. Guarantee Diamond Bond with each ring.

FREE catalog. Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry, $10 to $1000. All on long credit. Wonderful values.
Est. 1890 Address Dept. 625

BAER BROS. Co.
6 MAIDEN LANE - NEW YORK

Alta Art Studies

A collection of exquisite photographs
posed from life

One of the most artistic and fascinating series of art studies in the nude that has ever been compiled. Artists will find this book extremely helpful. Some of these charming studies are studio poses, while others are in natural California woodland settings.

In two bindings, sent prepaid:

De Luxe Art Cover . . . $1
Dove Suede Leather Cover . $4

Order your copy before the edition is exhausted.

ALTA STUDIOS, Inc.
109 Golden Gate Avenue
San Francisco, Calif.

Alta Art Studies

WRITE FOR THE MOVIES

TURN YOUR TALENT INTO MONEY
Stories Wanted by Producers

A valuable money making field

Try it! Mail us an idea, in any form, at once for free examination and criticism. We give our honest services to amateurs who would convert their thoughts into dollars. No experience necessary.

Free booklet sent on request.
Cosmopolitan Photoplay Studio
154 Nassau St., New York
Suite 624, Dept. G.

ASTOUNDING OFFER! Beautiful 18k. White Gold Genuine Diamond Ring

No
Red Tape
30
DAYS
FREE TRIAL

No Delay
MONEY BACK
ON REQUEST

Positively the most remarkable diamond ring offer ever made! Send us only $1.00 TODAY. We'll send this exquisite 18kt., solid white gold ring set with a genuine perfectly cut, fiery brilliant, beautiful blue white diamond AT ONCE. Wear it 30 days. Take four full weeks to convince yourself that it looks and will wear like a solid platinum ring worth $150.00 and that you cannot duplicate our value anywhere. Then pay only $1.85 a month until you have paid only $49.50, the lowest price at which this ring has ever been sold. Otherwise return ring to us and we'll refund money by return mail. Only a limited number sold on this plan—rush your dollar TODAY!

Address Dept. 55-J

O.F. Bale & Co. EST. 1888
21-23 Maiden Lane New York

Current Stage Plays

(Continued from page 6)

Palace.—Keith vaudeville. The home of America's best variety bills and the foremost music hall in the world. Always an attractive vaudeville bill.

Playhouse.—"Up She Goes" is a musical version of Frank Craven's "Too Many Cooks." The company is headed by Donald Brian and Gloria Fay. Fair entertainment.

Plymouth.—"The Old Soak," by Don Marquis. The hit of the season so far. Another "Lightnin'." Beresford in the title rôle is particularly engaging.

Princess.—"Papa Joe." Mr. Malatesta in an amusing character study of Italian life.

Republic.—"Abie's Irish Rose." An amusing study in temperaments and the reconciliation of the irreconcilable—that is, the Irish and the Jews join hands.

Ritz.—"The Enchanted Cottage." A charming dream-type of drama by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero. It is an adventure into the realm of phantasy that succeeds in enchanting every one who sees it.

Shubert.—"Peer Gynt." Joseph Schildkraut is not yet mature enough to play this, he makes Peer a spoiled boy.

Thirty-ninth Street.—Louise Huff in Rachel Crothers's new play, "Mary The Third." Miss Crothers reverses the old theme whose slogan is, "For the Children's Sake."

Times Square.—"The Fool." Unreal, impossible and moral too evident, but extra matinees have to be given to take care of the crowds—so there must be something.

Vanderbilt.—"Elsie." Another musical comedy, with the advantage of having its musical score written by Sissle and Blake and Carlo and Sanders.

ON TOUR

"Anna Christie." Eugene O'Neill at his best. Worth seeing.

"A Bill of Divorcement." A serious and well-acted drama.

"Bombo." Good music and new jokes.

"Bulldog Drummond." A mystery play everyone will like.

"Dulcy." Demonstrating that beauty triumphs over brains.

"Good Morning, Dearie." Excellent musical entertainment.

"Lawful Larceny." A crook melodrama. Fair.

"Make It Snappy." Eddie Cantor is the whole show.

"Nice People." A comedy of manners.

"Partners Again." A Potash and Perlmutter comedy.

"Red Pepper." A typical McIntyre and Heath entertainment.

"Sally." One of the best musical shows ever written.

"Shore Leave." Frances Starr weeps less than usual.

"Six Cylinder Love." A domestic comedy with a moral.

"The Circle." An excellent comedy with an all-star cast.

"The Gold Diggers." A snappy, colorful comedy.

"The Hairy Ape." The tragedy of a stoker. Excellent.

"The Merry Widow." A musical comedy revival that is making good.

OPPORTUNITY MARKET

AGENTS WANTED

Sell Guaranteed Hosiery. Lowest prices. Sample Outfit FREE, with patented Demonstrator Sample Case, 50 percent more sales guaranteed. Joseph Bros., 54-F Burnside Ave., New York.

HELP WANTED—MALE

Railway Mail Clerks and other Government positions open. Write for Free List. United Civil Service Training Inst., 215-F Dinan Building, Detroit, Mich.

BECOME A LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT! Big salaries paid, very fascinating work. We tell you how. Write at once! Landscapers, 427 Union League Building, Los Angeles, California.

MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS

$35.00 PROFIT NIGHTLY. Small capital starts you. Outfits sold on installments. No experience needed. Our machines are used and endorsed by Government Institutions. Catalog free. Atlas Moving Picture Co., 426 Morton Bldg., Chicago.

NEWS CORRESPONDENCE

EARN $25 WEEKLY, spare time, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 560, St. Louis, Mo.

OLD MONEY WANTED

$2 TO $500 EACH paid for old Coins. Keep all old or odd money. It may be very valuable. Send 10c for Ill's Coin Value Book, 4x6. Get posted. We pay cash. Clarke Coin Co., Ave. 11, Le Roy, N. Y.

PATENTS

PATENTS. Write for Free Illustrated Guide Book. Send model or sketch for free opinion of its patentable nature. Highest references. Prompt Attention. Reasonable Terms. Victor J. Evans & Co., 621 Ninth, Washington, D. C.

PERSONAL

ARE YOU BASHFUL, SELF-CONSCIOUS, easily embarrassed? These troubles overcome. Send dime for particulars. L. Veritas, 1400 Broadway, New York.

PHOTOGRAPHS

Real Mexican Beauties. Send dollar bill for sample assortment. Aztec Art Studios, Apartado 870, Dept. G, Tampico, Mexico.

PHOTOPLAYS

Photoplays wanted for California producers; also Magazine Stories, etc., for publication. To beginners, Plot Chart and Details Free. Harvard Company, 220, San Francisco.

$$$ For Photoplay Ideas. Plots accepted any form; revised, criticized, copyrighted, marketed. Advice free. Universal Scenario Corporation, 263 Western Mutual Life Bldg., Los Angeles.

SHORT STORIES

EARN $25 WEEKLY, spare time, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 560 St. Louis, Mo.

Stories and Photoplay Ideas Wanted by 48 companies; big pay. Details free to beginners. Producers' League, 441, St. Louis, Mo.

Stories, Poems, Plays, Etc., are wanted for publication. Good ideas bring big money. Submit MSS. or write Literary Bureau, 134 Hannibal, Mo.

FREE TO WRITERS—A wonderful little book of money-making hints, suggestions, ideas; the A B C of successful story and movie play writing. Absolutely Free. Just address Authors' Press, Dept. 14, Auburn, N. Y.

VAUDEVILLE

GET ON THE STAGE. I tell you how! Personality, confidence, skill developed. Experience unnecessary. Send 6c postage for instructive illustrated Stage Book and particulars. O. LaDelle, Box 557, Los Angeles, Cal.

Water-Wave Your Own Hair

A New Scientific Discovery

Weymer Magnetic Wavers

Are scientifically treated combs which possess property of attracting and repelling the hair so as to produce beautiful waves in a few minutes. WAVE YOUR HAIR while you are dressing. NO HEAT NECESSARY. Wave remains in even in damp weather or when perspiring. Sanitary and pliable. Can be worn all night with comfort if desired. Women are surprised and pleased with remarkable results obtained.

Weymer Magnetic Wavers

Also have a highly beneficial effect on the hair. Specially designed, easy to use; last always if properly cared for—first cost the only cost. Set of 20 combs (10 pair) for complete head with full directions by mail $3.00. Or 12 combs (6 pair) by mail $2.00. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write today.

WEYMER WAYER COMPANY

Dept. 10, 551 East 47th Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Superfluous HAIR all GONE

Forever removed by the Mahler Method which kills the hair root without pain or injuries to the skin in the privacy of your own home

Send today 3 stamps for Free Booklet

J. J. MAHLER CO., 76-B Mahler Park, Providence, R. I.

DEAFNESS IS MISERY

I know because I was Deaf and had Head Noises for over 30 years. My invisible Antiseptic Ear Drums restored my hearing and stopped Head Noises, and will do it for you. They are Tiny Megaphones. Cannot be seen when worn. Effective when Deafness is caused by Catarrh or by Perforated, Partially or Wholly Destroyed Natural Drums. Easy to put in, easy to take out. Are "Unseen Comforts." Inexpensive. Write for Booklet and my sworn statement of how I recovered my hearing.

A. O. LEONARD

Suite 53, 70 5th Avenue • • New York City

SEND $200 DOWN 10 MONTHS TO PAY 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL

ACTUALLY WORTH $75.00

WRITE FOR BIG CATALOG No. 917

It brings a large jewelry store right into your home

STERLING DIAMOND & WATCH CO.

Established 1879 $1,000,000 Stock
63 Park Row - Dept. 917 - New York

"The Monster." A horrifying mystery melodrama.

"The Passing Show of 1921." Smart and satisfying.

"The Truth about Blydys." A comedy that will please the intelligentsia.

"To Love." An excellent triangle play. Grace George, Norman Trevor and Robert Warwick are the complete cast.

PHOTOPLAY HOUSES

Loew's N. Y. and Loew's American Roof. Photoplays; first runs. Daily program.

Loew's Metropolitan, Brooklyn.—Feature photoplays and vaudeville.

Capitol.—Photoplay features plus a de luxe program. Superb theater.

Rivoli.—De luce photoplays with full symphony orchestra. Weekly program.

Rialto.—Photoplays supreme. Program changes every week.

Strand.—Select first-run photoplays. Program changes every week.

Cameo.—The Little Theater of the Movies. First and second-run photoplays. Good music.

THE VIOLET SPEAKS

By DORIS KENYON

Sister, it is time to wake;
On the hillside rumbles break
Their long ice-bound sleep, to find,
At the kiss of sun and wind,
Once again the laughter lost
Mid December's blight and frost.

Cease thy dreaming, sister dear;
April's tear-washed skies are near,
And already, all day long,
Blue-birds lift a venturesome song.
Waken, it is time to go
Where the crocuses, thru the snow,
Pushes its brave head of gold
Upward thru the sleet and cold.
Warmer airs shall breathe again,
Mists of green with fragrant rain
Drift along the slumbering hills,
Where the morn its incense spills.

Waken, sister, wake and see
How the young year's prophecy
Of fresh fields and leafy dells,
Tendriled vines and attared bells,
Even now begins to bear
Sweet fulfilment everywhere.

THE CONCERT

By BORGHILD LUNBERG LEE

I will not heed this music
Low and vibrant,
Poignantly sweet—
I shall whisper
A platitude
To my companion—
I shall not listen.
Who is he,
This player with souls,
That he should have the power
To make my heart cry
As if in pain?
I shall laugh aloud—
Strike a discordant note,
In all this sweetness—
I will not bare my soul
For everyone to see.

REDUCING MADE EASY

Flesh Off Where You Want It Off
No Drugs—No Exercise—No Diet—No Electricity
For Men and Women

A new invention The Good Health Vacuum Cup—makes it possible to reduce your flesh just where you want to take it off without diet or exercise. Reduction begins to take place inside of 5 days. You can try this wonderful Reducing Cup in the privacy of your own home FREE. Reduces busts, shoulders, hips, ankles, stomach, etc. In fact, any part of the body where it is applied. The action of the Vacuum Reducing Cup is based on a sound scientific principle—when applied to any fleshy part of the body it breaks up the fatty tissues by stimulating the blood circulation, which causes the fat to be dissolved. The action of the cup is gentle and pleasing. Just use it a few minutes each day. Let us prove our claims. You do not risk a cent.

Five Days Free
Send No Money

Mail the coupon today—and the Vacuum Reducing Cup with our Reducing Chart will be sent in plain container. Pay the postman $2.97 plus a few cents postage on arrival. Use the cup five days—then if you are not entirely satisfied return the cup and your money will be immediately refunded.

THE GOOD HEALTH SOCIETY, Dept. MC,
130 East 25th St., New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen: Please send me, for five days' trial, The Good Health Vacuum Reducing Cup in a plain container. I pay at retail I will pay the postman only $2.97 plus a few cents postage. If at the end of five days I am not satisfied with results I am at liberty to return, the Cup and my money will be immediately refunded.

Name.....
Address.....
City and State.....

DIAMONDS-WATCHES
CASH or CREDIT

Genuine Diamonds GUARANTEED

Our Diamonds are distinctive in fiery brilliancy, blue white, perfect cut. Sent prepaid for your Free Examination, on CHARGE ACCOUNT.

SEND FOR FREE CATALOG

Everything fully explained. Over 2,000 illustrations of Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry, Silverware, etc., at Reduced Prices. The Diamond Ring illustrated is only one of a multitude shown in our large Catalog, from which you can make selections. Exquisite diamonds, from $25 up. LIBERTY BONOS ACCEPTED

LOFTIS BROS. & CO., National Jewelers
Dept. A-616 108 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

Send for Trial Tube

for Trial Tube

Make those pimples or blemishes go away. How many times have you looked into the mirror and wished that your skin were without blemishes? What would you give for a cool, clear, velvety skin?

D. D. D. Emollient Cream

Based on the same formula as the famous D. D. D. Prescription. The action of D. D. D. Emollient Cream is calm and gentle; still it soothes the irritated skin instantly. Rub D. D. D. Cream over your pimples or blemishes. It will remove your skin affliction and allay the irritated tissues.

Write Today for generous trial tube of D. D. D. Emollient Cream and get quick relief from your skin troubles. Send only 10c to cover package and postage.

D. D. D. Co.
Dpt. A151, 3845 Ravenswood Ave., Chicago, Ill.

If You Wish to Be Well Informed

You Will Read

SHADOWLAND

It contains articles on the stage, music, art and books; reproductions in colors of pictures by foremost artists; humorous cartoons and delightful verse, in every issue. A few of the things appearing in SHADOWLAND for June are:

Meister Liszt, the Man

Reminiscences of the great pianist and composer, Franz Liszt, by one of his pupils.

Our Standard Bearers

Thyra Samter Winslow, the author of Picture Frames, discusses the change in standard from our great-grandmother's day to the present time.

On the Watermelon-seed Circuit

An amusing account of the motion-picture invasion into China and the enthusiasm with which it is received.

The American Short Story

The peculiarities of certain well-known purveyors of short fiction are gently satirized by R. le Clerc Phillips, English writer and critic.

June SHADOWLAND June

Cameo

for unsightly hair

IT'S time to prepare for the beach! Cameo safely, pleasantly and effectively removes the superfluous hair from your under-arms and body.

Send for large trial sample of this "Wonder Beautifier" 50c.

CAMEO LABORATORIES, Dept. A-1
Suite 701, 56 West 45th St., N. Y. C.

Informal SNAPSHOTS of MOVIE STARS

Just the sort of pictures you might have taken yourself had you been wandering around the studios with a Kodak. They will fit in with your own snapshots and cost less than you would pay to have your own films developed and printed. Send only 25 cents for ANY set of the following (or 50 cents for all).

WANDA HAWLEY	CHARLIE CHAPLIN	RODOLPH VALENTINO
JACKIE COOGAN	MAE MURRAY	MARCEL BENE
ANITA STEWART	WALLACE REID	ANNIE AYERS
HARROLD LLOYD	BILL HART	LINDA HUGHES
CHARLIE RAY	CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG	LOU MAX

BIGGS-LANFIER CO., 401 South 8th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

REDUCE SCIENTIFICALLY

AT MY SANITARIUM OR IN YOUR HOME

Without starvation, drugs or exercises lose one to four pounds with each treatment, feel and look years younger

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

ANNA G. SCHMIDT
REJUVENATION

202 Madison Avenue New York City
Send this 'ad' and your name and address at once!

Advertising is the Sunlight of Business

To all that is healthy and vital in business, it means increased strength and growth; but advertising is a fierce heat which withers and consumes that which is unsound.

A business which is not a good business should not be advertised. A business which would not benefit from widespread appreciation of its ideals had better acquire a new set of ideals.

A PERFECT NOSE FOR YOU

SPECIAL SIZES SEND NO MONEY

BEFORE AFTER

FOR CHILDREN

ANITA-The Genuine-NOSE ADJUSTER

PATENTED

If your nose is ill-shaped, you can make it perfect with ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER. In a few weeks, in the privacy of your own room and without interfering with your daily occupation, you can remedy your nasal irregularity. No need for costly, painful operations. ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER shapes while you sleep—quickly, painlessly, permanently and inexpensively. There are inferior imitations, but the ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER is the ORIGINAL nose adjuster highly recommended by physicians for fractured or misshapen noses. Self adjustable. No screws. No metal parts. GENTLE, FIRM and PERFECTLY COMFORTABLE. Awarded gold medal at International Inventor's Exposition, New York City, February, 1923. Write today for FREE book, "Happy Days Ahead," and our blank to fill out for sizes. Return blank to us and your nose adjuster can be paid for when it reaches you. The ANITA Company, Dept. 829 ANITA Bldg., Newark, N. J.

Whose Fault Is This-- Star, Director, or Both?

HI, ho! What do you mean Mr. Star, using a pick and shovel, as an oil scout? In view of the fact that oil is found at depths of from three to five thousand feet, a derrick is used to drill, and it sometimes takes a year before pay sand is hit. This picture was shown in Tulsa, Oklahoma, and surrounding towns. The laugh is on you.

Æsop, the wise old owl of Greece, once said, "Know thyself." Had he lived in this movie age, he might have changed it to, "Know thy subject, before portraying it."

Who ever saw a fireman coming in from a long trip, without a speck of smudge on his face, and lily-white hands nicely manicured? If Maurice Barrymore were alive today, would he or any of the old school, do these things? Even among our best of this decade, Guy Bates Post, or Tyrone Power, the smallest detail would be correct, because they are not of the mushroom variety. I saw, with my own face and eyes, a typewriter which has not been used in large offices since about 1900, (a blind machine) used in a late picture. What office girl or boy, would not notice this error?

I repeat, what d'you mean? If you are getting five thousand dollars a week, six square meals a day, eight days a week, why not take a vacation, and find out how things are done in real life—not reel life? Barnum once said the public loves to be fooled. Yes, perhaps, but don't get caught at it. For the blue-eyed boy, at a million a year, is putting a screen nail in his coffin, every time these mistakes are made.

Listen to this, O ye Australian Crawlers! A swimmer was swimming the breast stroke, and he caught a man swimming the Australian crawl. This simply ain't done.

In a court-room scene, the defendant is locked in a cage, on the other side of room from the attorney, who was obliged to cross, every time he conversed with his client, and a murder trial at that. If the writer does not understand his subject, the long envelope is returned with a "not suited to our magazine" inclosed slip, a most depressing sight; but when a celebrity makes a picture of a penitentiary scene, without ever having been even in a real honest to goodness jail, the dear public pays out their hard-earned shekels, to be humbugged. Is this fair?

I ask you, is it?

GENE.

The Remedy For Censorship (Continued from page 11)

were General Charles H. Cole, Judge Edward B. O'Brien, the Honorable William H. Carter and Mrs. Alfred T. Leatherbee. Business men, bankers, professional men and women, labor leaders, ex-service men, club women, teachers and clergymen all united to help. These united to make it clear to the voters, men and women both, that:

(1) "Censorship means that one man can determine what everyone in Massachusetts can see. What man is big enough and wise enough to have this power? Are we so weak and pictures so bad that our right of selection shall be taken from us?"

(2) "Censorship means fewer pictures, advanced prices and uninteresting amusement."

(3) "Present laws fully protect the situation and prevent the showing of anything that is obscene, indecent, immoral or harmful."

(4) "Back of it all is the age-old desire of a self-selected few to run a community and compel all people to do their will. It is not the common good that the reformer is concerned about. It is his selfish desire to compel everyone to adopt his peculiar standards and ideals. The censor who believes that adventure, dancing, cards and the showing of modern life is wrong, will classify them as immoral and forbid their showing on the screen. If the censor be narrow and bigoted we will be allowed to see nothing, and if he be broad and careless we may see things which present laws make impossible."

(5) "If we deliver up our right of selection we will soon be ruled entirely by censors and deprived of that liberty which has made our country possible. There may occasionally be pictures which are open to just criticism and which could easily be stopped by anyone interested enough to bring complaint to the local authorities. There is no reason or argument for overturning the right of individual selection by the establishment of censorship."

What was the result of this enlightened appeal to the public intelligence? It was amazing. According to the Boston Transcript, a very conservative but a very great newspaper:

"In Massachusetts, for the first time in the United States, a proposal to establish a State Censorship of Motion Pictures came to popular vote and was rejected by a threefold majority. Such a defeat of one more effort to regulate the pleasures of a contented many according to the idea of an insistent few speaks for itself."

The remedy for censorship is now entirely clear. Organize to fight. Form a club against censorship in your own home town. Go to your local theater owner and ask his help, particularly if you need a meeting place. Boost good pictures. Stay away from the poor ones. Co-operate with your state organization. If you haven't one, create one as they did in Indiana. There a voluntary state organization, in return for the co-operation of theater owners, recommends good pictures.

(Ninety-five)

You Can Easily Learn to Play Any Music on the HAWAIIAN GUITAR

Just As Hawaiians Do—Native Instructors Teach You QUICKLY!

In Half an Hour You Will Be Playing "ALOHA". Soon You Will Be Winning Praise Everywhere Playing "Stumbling", "Three O'Clock in the Morning", "Hot Lips" and ALL Popular Music as Well as the Beautiful Hawaiian Melodies

Here's Proof of our Remarkable Course

Buchanan, Va. First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc. It has been two months since I have finished your course on the Hawaiian Guitar and I can play anything I wish. The course was all that could be desired and I am perfectly pleased with my playing ability since finishing your course.

Respectfully yours,
Louisa R. Hammond

Koester School,
314 So. Franklin St.,
Chicago, Ill.

First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc. I shall certainly be very glad to recommend your course whenever the chance is mine to do so. Mr. W. R. Johnson has not phoned me yet, and if he does not phone in a day or so, will write him. Am sending a letter to Miss Helen Slavik today which I think may help to secure her enrollment, and I shall be glad at any time to write a personal letter to anyone whom you may suggest.
Your former student,
W. L. Walker

Here's the chance you've been waiting for—the opportunity to play popular music quickly on the most entrancing instrument of the age—the Hawaiian Guitar. No previous musical knowledge necessary.

ONLY FOUR MOTIONS TO LEARN

and these you acquire in a few minutes. No troublesome scales or runs, you begin to play harmonious chords immediately! We don't care if you never saw a note of music in your life, we guarantee to teach you to play just as the Hawaiians do!

We Furnish Everything—A Beautiful Hawaiian Guitar, Picks, etc., and 52 Pieces of Music FREE!

You have always wanted to play some instrument, so we have made it unusually easy for you by furnishing everything—a beautiful Hawaiian Guitar, complete Conservatory Course of instruction and 52 pieces of especially selected music

No Other Course Teaches as Quickly and Easily

This is the only Conservatory Course where you get the personal instruction of Native Hawaiian Experts—Frank Ferrer, Walter Kolo-moku, Lawrence Kalaluki and Carl Neville, famous the world over and the most noted makers of phonograph records, supervise your playing.

Mail Coupon for Details of FREE Offer Don't wait another minute—clip, fill in and mail the coupon NOW and get full details of our remarkable offer to teach you how to play the Hawaiian Guitar just as the Hawaiians do.

Special Arrangements for Lessons if You Have Your Own Instrument

Special Courses under famous Teachers, Tenor-Banjo, Violin, Banjo-Ukelele and Ukelele. FINE Toned Instruments FREE!

FREE
This $15
Hawaiian
Guitar

You will be delighted with the fine tone of this splendid Hawaiian Guitar

First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc.,
Desk 49, 233 Broadway (Woolworth Bldg.) New York
Send me at once details about your 62 easy lessons and FREE Hawaiian Guitar offer!

Name.....
Address.....
Town..... State.....
Print name and address clearly.

LOSE A POUND A DAY

YOU CAN

Science has discovered that fat can be eliminated without diet, drugs or exercising. A New Way—an easy, pleasant way that is Safe and Sure. From 8 ounces to a pound a day melt away as if by magic.

Dissolve Flo-ra-Zo-Na in warm water. Get in and relax—that is the secret.

To reduce arms, neck, bust or any part of the body make a local application of Flo-ra-zo-na.

GUARANTEED to contain no alum, opium, salts, or any harmful ingredients. Your money refunded if you are not satisfied.

1 Box Contains 14 Treatments
At drugists, or send $3, plus 25c for postage and packing (Canada $4), and free booklet to
FLO-RA-ZO-NA CORP., Dept. C5
100 Fifth Ave., New York

Cultivate Your Musical Bump

Conn instruments are easiest to play and highest quality, say the world's greatest artists. Write now for Free Book and details of FREE TRIAL; EASY PAYMENTS on any band instrument.

C. G. CONN LTD.
654 Conn Bldg.
Elkhart, Ind.

CONN
WORLD'S LARGEST MANUFACTURERS OF HIGH GRADE BAND AND ORCHESTRA INSTRUMENTS

CUT ME OUT

I'm only a coupon, BUT if you will treat me right, I'll show you how, by becoming our representative for your locality, you can turn your spare time into money. Just sign below and mail—I'll do the rest.

Name.....
St. and No.....
City..... State.....

MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE
175 Duffield Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Art Corner Your Pictures—Album

where you can keep them safe and enjoy them always.

Engel
5 Styles "Art Corners" Colors
are on sale at Photo Supply and Album counters everywhere. They are the only Quick, Easy, Artistic, No Paste, No Fold way to mount Kodak Prints. A dime brings 100 and samples to try. Write
ENGEL MFG. CO.
Dept. 267, 471 N. Clark St., Chicago

ONLY GENUINE $2 DOWN DIAMOND Wrist Watch

30 Days FREE TRIAL

14KARAT SOLID WHITE GOLD 15 JEWELLED ADJUSTED REGULATED

This beautiful wrist watch is 14 Kt. solid gold, set with 4 genuine blue white brilliant diamonds, at a price that we believe to be the lowest ever offered in the U. S. Send only $2.00 down as a guarantee of good faith and we will send this bargain to you. The 14 Kt. case is HAND ENGRAVED and will stand U. S. Government assay. Silk grosgrain ribbon of the finest quality, with 14 Kt. clasp attached. The movement is 15 jeweled lever, adjusted and regulated and is guaranteed to give you complete satisfaction.

Genuine Blue White Diamonds Sparkling, brilliant, full cut, genuine diamonds make this the greatest bargain ever advertised. If you can duplicate it for less than $65.00 we will refund every cent you paid. Buy on our 30 days free trial plan—you can't lose.

Pay Only $4.00 Per Month for ten months. Total price only $42.00. Send your order and we'll send the wrist watch. We have only a limited number, so don't put it off. Write for our big catalog of bargains in diamonds, watches, jewelry, on easy payments.

STERLING DIAMOND & WATCH CO.
Wholesale Jewelers Established 1879
63 Park Row, Dept. 919, NEW YORK

BEAU BRUMMELL Liquid Nail Polish

FOR a soft, gleaming polish that lasts for several days without peeling use Beau Brummell Liquid Nail Polish. It protects the nails and keeps the cuticle smooth and soft.

And Beau Brummell is quick. It gives the nails a delicate tint and a wonderful polish in just twenty seconds. Price 50c at drug, department stores or by mail.

Send a dime today for a generous sample large enough for several delightful polishes. And for another dime you will receive a sample of Isabel Cassidy's Depilatory Powder.

ROELLY CHEMICAL CO.
78 Grand St. New York

Harmlessly Ends Armpit Perspiration

NONSPI insures immaculate underarm hygiene—keeps underarms free from moisture and slightest taint of perspiration odor. Used for years by innumerable women everywhere—now considered essential to good grooming.

Easily applied. Endorsed by physicians and nurses. Try it—you will never be without it.

SEND 4C FOR TESTING SAMPLE
50c (several months' supply) at all leading toilet and drug counters, or by mail (postpaid)

The Nonspi Co., 2642 Walnut St.
Kansas City, Mo.

NONSPI

AN ANTISEPTIC LIQUID

BE A CARTOONIST

ARTISTS EARN BIG MONEY

We can teach you drawing in your home during spare time. Successful artists earn from $40 to $250 a week. Thousands of publishers and advertisers need the work of good artists. The MODERN METHOD is an easy way to learn to draw original pictures. Write today for full particulars showing opportunities for you. State your age.

MODERN INSTITUTE OF ART
Studio 310A 7 East 42nd Street, N. Y. C.

SMALL SIZE 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL

PLATINUM STYLE

14-kt. Solid White Gold Wrist-Watch; latest Oval-Shape, beautifully engraved. Silk Ribbon band. Guaranteed Ruby and Sapphire Jeweled Movement and Perfect Time-keeper. In Velvet Gift Box. SPECIAL ADVERTISING OFFER. Send only $2 down, watch comes to you postpaid, you have 30 days' time to decide and convince. If you keep watch, pay balance in monthly payments at your own terms, full price only $18. Satisfaction Guaranteed, or your deposit promptly refunded upon return of watch. Our stock is limited, order yours at once.

GUARANTY WATCH CO., 154 Nassau St., Dept. O., New York

Iris In

(Continued from page 48)

tence may sound a bit profound at first, but not to anyone who has seen "The Glimpses of the Moon." Woof!

* * *

The so-called tribute to Sarah Bernhardt ended with the highly appropriate "sic transit gloria mundi." "Do you know what that means?" asked the movie-audience mother of her movie-audience child; "No," answered the little one, "what does it mean?" "I dunno," said the parent, mildly indignant, "it's French. It probably means 'orrewar' or 'good-bye' or something."

We'd like to lay down a modest wager on her third choice.

* * *

There is something particularly laudable in the basic sentiment of "Adam's Rib." By reason of his Old World glamor, romance and gallantry (undisputed) a handsome, exiled, still youthful monarch wins the favor of the wife of a hard, two-fisted, steely-eyed, cigar-smoking, equally young he-business man. And while Love is carefully toeing the window-sill for a good take-off what doth the busy business man? Gad sir, without once removing the cigar from his mouth, he buys the king's toy kingdom back for him and sends him packing. Magnificent, isn't it? A true monument to the Successful Americans of Today. Youthful Wheat Wizard Retains Wife's Affections For Regal Ransom.

And let me tell you these, Mister Man. If Mahomet and Joshua and old King Canute had had a little red-blooded, modern American pep and go, you wouldn't have seen them take back talk from any Law in the Universe. No sir! That mountain and sun and ocean would have cut out their nonsense and snapped into it!

* * *

Well, as Jackie Coogan said to Charles Dickens as they were filming "Oliver Twist," "God help us, one and all!"

MARY

By EDGAR DANIEL KRAMER

When Mary was a little lass,
She wandered off to school,
And with her went her little lamb—
Which was against the rule.

Now Mary is a lady grown,
And all the lads are daff,
The while they gaze in ecstasy
At Mary's dainty calf.

NO PAPERS TO SIGN

No References
No Red Tape
No Waiting
Just Send Your Name
We'll Send
The Pearls

INDESTRUCTIBLE PEARLS

Genuine French pearls, imported from Paris, are now offered to you at importer's discount price. Former price was $30.00. They are 24 inches long, strung on silk, evenly graduated, fitted with solid gold spring safety clasp.

PAY ONLY $1.00 DOWN

Send $1.00 deposit to show good faith, or pay the post-man $1.00 on delivery. We will send the pearls the same day your order reaches us. If satisfied, pay only $1.00 monthly for ten months.

DIAMOND CLASP FREE

Each purchaser of one of these pearl necklaces will receive a 14Kt. solid white gold clasp, set with a blue-white diamond as a free premium.

FREE GIFT CASE. The pearls come in a handsome gift case for presentation purposes.

10 DAYS FREE TRIAL

If you return the pearls, we will return your deposit. They are natural pearl color, guaranteed never to break, crack, peel, or discolor and are not harmed by water or cosmetics. Send your name now for this pearl necklace. We'll ship at once.

STERLING DIAMOND & WATCH CO.,
Importers of Diamonds and Pearls. Est. 1879
63 PARK ROW, DEPT. 918 NEW YORK

YOUR EYES CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Maybelline

Miracle of the toilette, as famous beauties call it—accentuates the eyebrows and lashes. Gives them a lustrous, luxuriant beauty. Remember that beauty lies within the eyes, that they can transform your whole face to an appealing loveliness—therefore do not neglect your eyes. "MAYBELLINE" darkens and beautifies eyebrows and lashes instantly, is harmless and greaseless. Will not spread or smear. Used by girls and women everywhere. Each dainty box contains mirror and brush. Two shades: Brown for blondes. Black for brunettes. 75c AT YOUR DEALER'S or direct from us. Accept only genuine "MAYBELLINE." You will be delighted with results. Tear out this ad now as a reminder.

MAYBELLINE CO., 4750-56 Sheridan Road, Chicago, Ill.

Are You Reading

"Beauty Magazine"

July Issue on the News-stands
June 6th

BLUE WHITE Luxite Diamond

If you can tell it from a Diamond Send it Back!

1 CARAT RINGS $2.98. Not one diamond in a thousand has the blue, dazzling brilliancy of "Luxite Diamonds." They're PERFECT; few diamonds are! Stand acid and all other tests. Only experts can tell you haven't paid $150.00.

Hand engraved solitaire Ring 14K gold S., guaranteed!

$2.98 C.O.D.

DON'T SEND A PENNY! Send only name, address and paper strip which fits end to end around finger. When ring comes deposit only $2.98 with postman. We pay postage. Money back if not delighted.

Beautiful full-size BAR-PIN, set with Luxite Diamonds, platinum finish, free with ring.

GARFIELD IMPORTING CO., 3935 WASHINGTON BLVD., Dept. 109A CHICAGO

The Magic Carpet

YOU could sit on the fabled carpet of Bagdad and view the world. In the whisk of an eyelash it would carry you any place you wanted to go. All you had to do was wish.

Advertising is a sort of magic carpet. Read it and in the twinkling of an eye you can review the merchandise of the world, pictured and displayed for your benefit.

The advertisements introduce you to the latest styles—the newest comforts for the home—the best of the world's inventions. They tell you how to buy, where to buy and when to buy. They keep you posted on things necessary to feed and clothe you and your family and make you comfortable and happy.

Read the advertisements as a matter of education. Read them to keep abreast of progress.

Read the advertisements regularly.

Only the finely textured English Clay is good enough for madame's face

I think most motion picture actresses agree on one point at least; that claying has come to stay and that the best clay by all odds is that creamy English Clay, Terra-derma-lax

AGNES AYRES

Claying is a regular part of my toilette routine. But I use nothing but the genuine English Clay—none of the ordinary massage muds for me. Terra-derma-lax is superior to them all

CORINNE GRIFFITH

There are clays and clays. I have tried them all, but have found none to compare with the imported English Clay, Terra-derma-lax

MARIE PREVOST

Clay? Of course I do. What woman doesn't who wishes to look her loveliest at all times? But experience has taught me to use nothing but the pure English Clay, Terra-derma-lax I believe it is called. I have found it vastly superior to all others

ENID BENNETT

By MARTHA KYERSON

245 Oxford Street, London, W. I., England

Every woman who prizes a beautiful complexion should clay at least once each week, but she should be very, very particular in her choice of clays; she should use nothing but the silky-textured Terra-derma-lax, imported from England.

This English Clay has skin-vitalizing power, a magnetic quality which is totally lacking in the domestic massage muds now flooding the market. And it is absolutely harmless to the most delicate skin.

When applied to the face with the fingertips, this English Clay dries quickly in a firm, tingling mask. Forty minutes later it is whisked away with a moist towel and the miracle of skin-beauty is complete.

What happens is really this: the gentle magnetic action of Terra-derma-lax cleanses the skin perfectly, cleanses it in a way that no amount of scrubbing with soap and water or cold cream can cleanse it, drawing out from each tiny pore every dirt-speck, blackhead, perspiration-clot, and impurity that causes faulty complexions.

Get the English Clay habit; actresses, society women, everyone who values youth and beauty has acquired it. Clay with Terra-derma-lax at least once each week, twice is not too often, and you can have a gloriously young complexion, the envy of all your friends.

For the daily cold cream bath—use Terra-derma-Creme, the Beauty Twin to Terra-derma-lax—the English Cold Cream with an English Clay base. In its velvety softness, this cold cream is unequaled by any other product on the market. It has the quality of imparting to the skin its own exquisite texture.

For sale by all druggists and department stores. Terra-derma-lax, $1. Terra-derma-Creme in porcelain jug, $1

Terra-derma-lax

The English Beauty Clay

(Ninety-eight)

You need not be embarrassed!

When you go to the beach this summer, are you going to be afraid to raise your arm? Are you going to shrink from the scrutinizing glance of your friends?

Are you going to permit unsightly hair on your face, arms, underarms and limbs to spoil the freedom which awaits you at the beach?

ZIP

IT'S OFF
because
IT'S OUT

The recognition of ZIP by Physicians, Specialists, Beauty Editors and Professionals has demanded that I also give to the modern woman other preparations to enhance her beauty, and with that in mind I have formulated the articles listed here.

Madame Berthé Superior Massage and Cleansing Cream—Guaranteed not to grow hair. Jar..... 60¢
Large size jar (½ pound)..... $2.00
Madame Berthé Antiseptic Talc—Delightfully fragrant; absorbs moisture. Can, 25¢
Beautiful glass jar..... 75¢
Balm-o-Lom—A FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH FOR YOUR SKIN. The new lemon lotion. Softens and whitens the skin. Makes face powder adhere twice as long. Bottle..... 75¢
Ab-Scent—The ideal liquid deodorant. Remedies excessive perspiration. Destroys odors harmlessly. Colorless (contains no staining artificial colors). Bottle..... 50¢
Lash-Life Beautifies the eyes. Tube..... 50¢
Antiseptic and Astringent—Very effective. Bottle, 50¢

Now is the time to eliminate every unwanted hair before the heat of summer has a chance to strengthen it. An application of ZIP today will do more than all the continued use of ordinary depilatories thruout the summer, for it does not merely take off surface hair—it gently lifts out the roots with the hairs and thus destroys the growth!

It has been proven that merely burning off surface hair with ordinary depilatories is the same as shaving and it is bound to strengthen the growth. With ZIP, however, you attack the cause under the skin and actually check the growth and destroy it.

Guaranteed! It is significant that no other manufacturer of a superfluous hair remedy offers FREE DEMONSTRATION treatments to prove the merits of the preparation. By all means, take advantage of my Free Demonstration treatment offer at my Salon.

Write for FREE Book "Beauty's Greatest Secret" which explains the three types of superfluous hair and in which leading stars tell how to be beautiful.

Madame Berthé Specialist.

562 Fifth Ave.
(Ent. on 46th St.)
New York

Ask At Your Toilet Goods Counter

© 1923

MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY

MADAME BERTHE,

Dept. 632,
562 Fifth Ave., New York City.

Please send me FREE Book "Beauty's Greatest Secret" explaining the three types of superfluous hair and in which leading stars tell how to be beautiful and use a FREE sample of Massage and Cleansing Cream guaranteed not to grow hair.

Name.....

Address.....

City and State.....

Stillman's Freckle Cream

Get some now!

Enter the freckle contest this summer! Prizes to 103 girls who have the greatest number of freckles to lose.

Start any time. Have your picture taken "with your freckles on" before beginning treatments. After the freckles are all gone, take another picture. Send both in. Contest closes October 15. To the girl who started with the greatest number of freckles will be given $25 and her choice of $5 worth of Stillman toilet articles.

The second prize is $15 and a $5 assortment; third prize is $10 and the same. In order the next 100 girls will be given their choice of $5 worth of Stillman toilet articles. In case of any tie, duplicate awards will be given to each tying participant.

Your picture will not be printed. No winner's name will be published without her permission. This contest is not for advertising—but to interest girls in seeing how gently Stillman's Freckle Cream causes freckles to fade away, giving them a clear, white skin. Get it at any druggist. Two sizes, 50c and $1.

Write today for "Beauty Parlor Secrets" and pick out the toilet articles you would like. This booklet will give you valuable hints on make-up. With it we will send instructions on how to take a "freckle photograph" with your Kodak.

Beauty Parlor SECRETS

The Stillman Company
3 ROSEMARY LANE
AURORA, ILLINOIS

Mail this today

The Stillman Co., 3 Rosemary Lane, Aurora, Ill.
Please send me "Beauty Parlor Secrets" and instructions on how to have a freckle photo taken.

Name.....

Address.....

SEPTEMBER

25¢

CLASSIC

A BREWSTER PUBLICATION

F. Dahl

The Nestlé Home Outfit for Permanent Waving by the New Lanoil Process

Paper Tubes, Borax, Pastes and Lengthy Heating All Eliminated

The girl "After" — hair beautifully and permanently waved. Ready for rain or surf.

From a photograph submitted to us showing the pleasant time these two girls are having while permanently waving each other's hair in their home.

THESE warm summer days your hair curling problem is a pressing one unless you visit a professional Nestlé Lanoil Waver, or apply the Nestlé Home Outfit. Imagine the comfort and relief of having natural, soft, bright curls and waves wherever you go, rain or sunshine. Imagine waking up in the morning, curls and waves still flowing. Imagine throwing water on them to see them become even curlier than before.

If you are struggling with straight hair, let Nestlé's help you. With a world-wide reputation as permanent wavers, their two New York establishments give over 300 waves a day. If you cannot come to Nestlé's, you can get their Home Outfit for making your straight hair naturally curly. The dainty apparatus illustrated on this page gives the straightest hair of child or adult a permanent curl and wave that will withstand shampooing, fog, perspiration and sea water just like naturally curly hair.

Do not take this marvelous invention on our word. We give you free supplies, and thirty days to test it on your own hair, and we take all responsibility for your success.

Send a money order, check or bank draft for $15 today. Or pay postman when Outfit arrives. Then should you decide within 30 days' test that your curls and waves are not as lovely, natural and permanent as you expect, return the Outfit, and your entire $15 will be refunded immediately without deduction for postage, free trial supplies or the use of the Outfit.

Over 60,000 Home Outfits have been sent to over 60,000 homes since last August with this generous guarantee. Wherever they go, they are making women, girls and children with straight hair happy with natural, permanent and soft waves, curls and ringlets. End your straight hair troubles today, by sending immediately for this wonderful little invention. Remember — the Nestlé Lanoil Wave Home Outfit will last a lifetime, and can be used on as many heads as you desire.

Write for our free interesting booklet on Nestlé Waving by the Lanoil Process. It will give you further particulars.

NESTLÉ LANOIL CO., LTD., Dept.
ESTABLISHED 1905
12 and 14 East 49th St., New York City
Just Off Fifth Avenue

Fill in, tear off, and mail this coupon today

NESTLÉ LANOIL CO., LTD.
Dept. M. 12 and 14 East 49th St.
New York City, N. Y.

I would like you to send me the Nestlé LANOIL Home Outfit for Permanent Waving. It is distinctly understood that if, after using the Outfit and the free trial materials, I am not satisfied, I may return the Home Outfit any time within 30 days, and receive back every cent of its cost of $15.

I enclose $15 in check, money order, or bank draft as a deposit.

I prefer to deposit the $15 with my postman when the Outfit arrives.

OR, check here..... if only free booklet of further particulars is desired.

Name.....

Street.....

City..... State.....

Best Style Book Ever Issued-FREE!

Endorsed by the World's Best Dressed Woman-Charming

IRENE CASTLE!

DAINTY, fashionable Irene Castle, stage favorite of millions and acclaimed "the best dressed woman in the world," is perfectly enchanted with PHILIPSBORN'S Style and Shopping Guide for Fall and Winter. She says:

"It is the most wonderful book of fashions I have ever seen. Every woman who loves good clothes and wants the most for her money should have a copy."

Your name on the coupon or a postal brings this beautiful Style Book free.

New Fall Apparel
For All the Family!
322 Pages-
Richly Illustrated in Colors and Rotogravure!

When you choose your new Fall and Winter clothes from the PHILIPSBORN Style Book, IRENE CASTLE—the foremost fashion authority—virtually stands at your elbow with approval and advice. Think what it means to you to know that all fashions have the endorsement of the supreme authority on styles!

Big Cash Savings for Every Household!

Every price is a bargain price! No other mail order house gives you so much for the money in quality merchandise! PHILIPSBORN'S customers save millions of dollars every year and enjoy the satisfaction of wearing the most up-to-date and stylish clothes obtainable anywhere.

Careful, Quick Service!

PHILIPSBORN'S fill orders with greater speed, care and accuracy than any other mail order house. Their new, unique shopping service is the talk of America.

Money-Back Guarantee
Our Pledge of Satisfaction!

Lowest prices and the squarest deal in America—that is PHILIPSBORN'S policy and it is lived up to in every sense. We want your good will more than we want your money. 100% satisfaction or no sale—the most liberal guarantee in America.

Send Coupon or a Postal for Free Catalog!

PHILIPSBORN'S
Founded 1890
Department - 311 - Chicago, Illinois

© IRAL HILL
N. Y. C.

PHILIPSBORN'S, Dept. 311, Chicago
Please send FREE copy of PHILIPSBORN'S Style and Shopping Guide for Fall and Winter.

Name.....

Town..... State.....

Local Address.....

PLEASE WRITE PLAINLY

"Why Mrs. Blakely —How Do You Do!"

He had met her only once before. Some one had presented him at a reception both had attended. He had conversed with her a little, danced with her once. And now, two weeks later, he sees her approaching with a young lady who he surmises is her daughter.

"Why, Mrs. Blakely, how do you do!" he exclaims, rushing forward impulsively. But Mrs. Blakely, accustomed to the highest degree of courtesy at all times, returns his greeting coldly.

And nodding briefly, she passes on—leaving the young man angry with her, but angrier himself for blundering at the very moment he wanted most to create a favorable impression.

DO you know what to say to a woman when meeting her for the first time after an introduction? Do you know what to say to a woman when leaving her after an introduction? Would you say "Good-bye, I am very glad to have met you?" Or, if she said that to you, how would you answer?

It is just such little unexpected situations like these that take us off our guard and expose us to sudden embarrassments. None of us like to do the wrong thing, the incorrect thing. It condemns us as ill-bred. It makes us ill at ease when we should be well poised. It makes us self-conscious and uncomfortable when we should be calm, self-possessed, confident of ourselves.

The knowledge of what to do and say on all occasions is the greatest personal asset any man or woman can have. It protects against the humiliation of conspicuous blunders. It acts as an armor against the rudeness of others. It gives an ease of manner, a certain calm dignity and self-possession that people recognize and respect.

Do You Ever Feel That You Don't "Belong"?

Perhaps you have been to a party lately, or a dinner, or a reception of some kind. Were you entirely at ease, sure of yourself, confident that you would not do or say anything that others would recognize as ill-bred? Or, were you self-conscious, afraid of doing or saying the wrong thing, constantly on the alert—never wholly comfortable for a minute?

Many people feel "alone" in a crowd, out of place. They do not know how to make strangers like them—how to create a good first impression. When they are introduced they do not know how to start conversation flowing smoothly and naturally. At the dinner table they feel constrained, embarrassed. Somehow they always feel that they don't "belong."

correct manner, knowledge of social form. Nor is it particularly clever speech that wins the largest audiences.

If one knows the little secrets of entertaining conversation if one is able to say always the right thing at the right time, one cannot help being a pleasing and ever-welcome guest.

The Book of Etiquette, social secretary to thousands of men and women, makes it possible for every one to do, say, write and wear always that which is absolutely correct and in good form—gives to every one a new ease and poise of manner, a new self-confidence and assurance. It smooths away the little crudities—does amazing things in the matter of self-cultivation.

Little Blunders That Take Us Off Our Guard

There are so many problems of conduct constantly arising. How should asparagus be eaten? How should the finger-bowl be used, the napkin, the fork and knife? Whose name should be mentioned first when making an introduction?

How should invitations be worded? How should the home be decorated for a wedding? What clothes should be taken on a trip to the South?

In public, at the theatre, at the dance, on the train—wherever we go and with whomever we happen to be, we encounter problems that make it necessary for us to hold ourselves well in hand, to be prepared, to know exactly what to do and say.

Let the Book of Etiquette Be Your Social Guide

For your own happiness, for your own peace of mind and your own ease, it is important that you know definitely the accepted rules of conduct in all public places.

It is not expensive dress that counts most in social circles—but

Special Bargain!

The Famous Book of Etiquette

Nearly Half a Million Sold at $3.50

NOW $1.98 ONLY For a Very Limited Time

At this time of the year there is always a lull in the publishing business. To keep the presses running and the pressmen from being idle, Nelson Doubleday, Inc., makes the amazing offer to send you the complete authentic original BOOK OF ETIQUETTE at almost half the usual publisher's price!

You have always wanted to own the two remarkable books that give poise, ease, dignity, self-confidence. Almost 500,000 people have purchased them at the regular price of $3.50. If you act NOW you can receive the same two authoritative and fascinating volumes for only $1.98.

SEND NO MONEY

No money is necessary. Just clip and mail the coupon below to us at once. We will send you the complete two-volume set and when it arrives you have the privilege of giving the postman only $1.98 (plus few cents postage) for the regular $3.50 set!

Surely you are not going to let this offer slip by. Clip and mail the coupon NOW while you are thinking about it.

NELSON DOUBLEDAY, Inc.
Dept. 829 Garden City, N. Y.

Send No Money

Take advantage of the important special-edition, low-price offer made elsewhere on this page. Send today for your set of the famous Book of Etiquette. These two valuable volumes will protect you from embarrassments, give you new ease and poise of manner, tell you exactly what to do, say, write and wear on every occasion.

No money is necessary. Just clip and mail the coupon. The complete two-volume set of the Book of Etiquette will be sent to you at once. Give the postman only $1.98 (plus few cents postage) on arrival—instead of $3.50 which is the regular publishing price. If you are not delighted with these books you may return them at any time within 5 days and your money will be refunded at once, without question.

This coupon is worth money to you. It will bring you the famous Book of Etiquette at almost half the regular price. Use it—today! Nelson Doubleday, Inc., Dept. 829, Garden City, New York.

Nelson Doubleday, Inc., Dept. 829,
Garden City, New York

I am glad to know of the special low-price edition of the Book of Etiquette. You may send me these two volumes without any money in advance. When they arrive I will give the postman only $1.98 (plus a few cents postage) in full payment—instead of the regular price of $3.50. I am to have the privilege of returning the Book of Etiquette any time within 5 days if I am not delighted with it.

Name.....

Address.....

Check here if you want these books with the beautiful full leather binding, at $2.98, with same return privilege.

(All Orders from Outside the U. S. are Payable Cash with Order.)

CLASSIC

The Picture Book De Luxe of the Movie World

A BREWSTER PUBLICATION

Vol. XVIII

SEPTEMBER, 1923

No. 1

COVER PORTRAIT—NORMA TALMADGE

Painted by E. Dahl

	Page
Good and Bad Authorship.....	Clara Berninger 11
Our Portrait Gallery: Pauline Starke, Corinne Griffith, Sigrid Holmquist, Mary Beth Milford, Ramon Navarro, Bessie Love.....	12
The Sport of Kings—And Movie Stars.....	Charles I. Berry 18
Moonlight and Sweet Summer Madness, A picture.....	20
How the Motion Picture Has Influenced Young Peru.....	Helen Appleton Read 21
Alice Joyce, A new and exclusive portrait.....	23
Foreign Films, European studios at a glance.....	Maurice Rosett 24
Bombed Into the Movies, Little Philippe de Lacey was.....	Harry Carr 26
The Woman and the Mask, A portrait study of Priscilla Dean.....	27
Tribby, A short story made from the photoplay by.....	Dorothy Domick 28
Impressions, More of Louise Fazenda's subtle vignettes.....	33
"The Light Bright Lissom Mae," Mae Murray, of course.....	34
The Genius of Gesture, An interview.....	Faith Service 35
Hollywood Homes, Mrs. Wallace Reid.....	36
Another Mary, Is shadowed in "Rosita".....	38
The Girl Who Couldn't Stop Crying, Is Renée Adorée.....	Harry Carr 39
Beside the Sea, Come on in, the water's fine.....	40
The Celluloid Critic, Selects "The Spoilers" as the best photoplay of the month.....	Lawrence Reid 43
The Veil of Happiness, Clemenceau's picture.....	46
The Photographer Takes the Stage, The hardy perennials of the season.....	47
Flashes From the Eastern Stars, Of the stage, on the screen.....	Caught by the Editor 50
Classic Considers—The great and the near great.....	52
Greed, von Stroheim's first picture for Goldwyn novelized from "McTeague".....	Patricia Doyle 53
Iris In, Pertinent and impertinent screen comment.....	H. W. Hancmann 57
A Renaissance Romance, Monna Vanna is screened.....	58
The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats.....	Harry Carr 60
The Studio, Drawing of one of the big "Spots".....	63
Rankest Treason, Verse and pictures.....	Dorothy Roseencraus Brighton 64
Two Down and One to Go, A two-fisted picture.....	68
The Movie Encyclopedia.....	By The Answer Man 70

Subscription $2.50 per year, in advance, including postage, in the United States, Cuba, Mexico and Philippine Islands. In Canada $3.00; Foreign Countries $3.50 per year. Single copies 25 cents postage prepaid. United States Government stamps accepted. Subscribers must notify us at once of any change in address, giving both old and new address.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, INC., AT JAMAICA, N. Y.

Entered at the Post Office at Jamaica, N. Y., as second-class matter, under the act of March 3rd, 1879.

PRINTED IN U. S. A.

Eugene V. Brewster, President and Editor-in-Chief; Guy L. Harrington, Vice-President and Business Manager; L. G. Conlon, Treasurer; E. M. Heinemann, Secretary.

EXECUTIVE and EDITORIAL OFFICES, 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Copyright, 1923, by Brewster Publications, Inc., in the United States and Great Britain.

SUSAN ELIZABETH BRADY, Editor

ADELE WHITELY FLETCHER, Managing Editor

Harry Carr..... Western Representative
A. M. Hopfmuller..... Art Director
Duncan A. Dobie..... Director of Advertising

This magazine, published monthly, comes out on the 12th. Its elder sister, the MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE, comes out on the 1st of every month. SHADOWLAND appears on the 23rd of the month. BEAUTY is on the stands on the 8th.

Announcement for October

The Camera Man Confesses

Wouldn't you like to know the odd and interesting little things the camera man has discovered about all the different stars who have posed for him? Harry Carr has at last persuaded one to talk. . . .

The Powers Behind the Screen

Is the title of a series of articles by Stanton Leeds on the men who have made the movies what they are today. This absorbing and informative series will start in the October CLASSIC.

If He Had Passed It Up

He Would Still Be A Laborer At $2 A Day. No Money, Nothing Ahead But Hard Work, Longer Hours—and Regrets. But He Didn't Pass It Up.

He decided to learn Mechanical Drawing. He buckled down to work with the Columbia School of Drafting. When he had a quiet half hour to spend he spent it—as a wise man spends money—to get full returns.

MADE $275 EXTRA IN 3 DAYS. He recently received $275 for one drawing that only took him three days to draw. NOW HOW ABOUT YOU? Are you working up hill or down? Count the money in your pay envelope next pay day. You'll find the answer there.

MAKE $35 to $100 a WEEK. We will train you to be an expert Draftsman in your spare time at home by mail. There's lots of room for you if you act now.

PROMOTION IS QUICK. We'll qualify you for a high-salaried position in the drafting field and keep you in touch with openings for Draftsmen in the big machine shops, industrial plants and United States Government departments. Men who start as Draftsmen are often advanced to Chief Draftsmen, Chief Engineers, Production Managers and so on.

GET THE RIGHT TRAINING. Mr. Clafin, the founder and director, stands personally in back of the Columbia School of Drafting. You spend no time in long winded theories—useless and expensive to you. You start on actual drawing work the day you receive your first lesson.

YOU NEED NO PREVIOUS TRAINING. The course is easy to understand and easy to follow. Many students are qualified even before they complete the course.

SUCCESS CALLS MEN OF ACTION ONLY. If you are a man of action clip the coupon now and show that you are a man of action. Keep right on top of this opportunity to make real money. Don't go looking for a pair of scissors. Tear the coupon off and mail it right now. We have a special offer for those who reply promptly. Get started now.

What We Give You

PRACTICAL PROBLEMS. You are carefully coached in practical Drafting work.

WE HELP YOU GET A JOB. We help you get a position as a practical Draftsman as soon as you are qualified.

PERSONAL INSTRUCTION AND SUPERVISION THROUGHOUT THE COURSE. You receive the personal instruction and help of Roy C. Clafin, president of the Columbia School of Drafting and a practical Draftsman of many years' experience.

DRAFTSMAN'S EQUIPMENT. We furnish you with a full set of Drawing Equipment and Drafting

Instruments as shown in the picture below when you enroll. You keep both sets on completing the course.

CONSULTATION PRIVILEGES. You are free to write us at any time for advice and suggestions regarding your success.

DIPLOMA. The diploma we give you on completing the course attests to your proficiency as a Draftsman. It is an "entering wedge" to success.

FREE SUBSCRIPTION TO DRAFTSMAN'S PUBLICATION "THE COMPASS." You are given free a subscription to our helpful, inspiring publication "The Compass."

Given to Students

U. S. Civil Service Commission Needs DRAFTSMEN

The following are a few of the many positions open in Government Departments from time to time. The salaries are starting salaries, subject to increase. Practically all of them carry a bonus of $240 a year additional.

Architectural Designer, $4,000.

Chief Draftsman (Aeronautical) Naval Aircraft Factory—$15.04 per day.

Aeronautical Draftsman—Field Service of Navy Department—$5.20 per day to $12 per day.

FREE BOOK

Send in this coupon today. Immediately on receipt of it we will send you our book, "Drafting—Your Success" which tells you all about our new method of teaching Mechanical Drawing and gives full details of our special offer to those who reply promptly.

THE COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING

Roy C. Clafin, President
Dept. 2115, 14th & T Sts., N. W., Washington, D. C.

— FREE BOOK COUPON —
COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING,
Dept. 2115, 14th & T Sts., N. W.,
Washington, D. C.
Enter my name for a free subscription to "The Compass" and also send me without charge your illustrated book on Drafting, telling me how I can secure your complete Home Study Course and your help in securing a position as Draftsman.
Name.....
Address.....
City.....
State..... Age.....

Current Stage Plays

(Readers in distant towns will do well to preserve this list for reference when these spoken plays appear in their vicinity.)

Belmont.—"You and I." A Westchester society comedy with sparkling repartee cloaking an undercurrent of tragic middle-age—H. B. Warner as the husband, who has stifled genius for the sake of a family, and Lucile Watson as the wife, who tho deluged with love, feels the resentment of his disappointment.

Booth.—"The Seventh Heaven."

Handmade on a melodramatic pattern in a Montmartre tenement in Paris, of an admixture of love, regeneration, humor and unreality. An excellent performance with Helen Menken starring.

Carroll.—"Vanities of 1923," with Peggy Hopkins Joyce leading the delectable and innumerable vanities.

Casino.—"Wildflower," with lovely Edith Day flashing thru an exquisite musical score.

Century Roof.—Artists and models. Review later.

Cohan.—"Adrienne." One of the numerous musical comedies that are keeping the mercury from getting up-stage. The chorus is unusually good, the singing happy. Billy Van and Richard Carle, the latter of "The Spring Chicken" fame, take care of the laughs.

Cort.—"Merton of the Movies." In which Glenn Hunter self-visualized as a movie hero of the "great open spaces" plays havoc with our emotions as an arch comedian. The play carries the same poignant humor that was rampant in Harry Leon Wilson's story of the same name.

Daly's.—"The Newcomers." A revue by Will Morrissy and Joe Burroughs. Review later.

Elliott.—"Rain." A bitter tragedy by Somerset Maugham; a violent attack on the repressions of Puritanism. Jeanne Eagels is superb in the leading rôle.

Empire.—"Zander the Great." A melodrama with Alice Brady as a hick tenderfoot, a child as an uplift foil and bootlegging ranchmen of the storied-Western type to stir up things. Fine acting of an improbable story with a laugh in every line and moments of tense excitement.

Gaiety.—"Aren't We All?" Cyril Maude in a delightful light comedy that revolves around a philandering husband and an indiscreet wife. Mr. Maude in a Grumpyish character sets a rare pace of fun and his support keeps it up.

Garrick.—"The Devil's Disciple." A Shaw satire, which as usual shows up the under side of militarism and politics. It ends ungallantly on a triangle. An excellent show with Roland Young as General Burgoyne alone worth seeing.

Globe.—"George White's Scandals." A de luxe edition of gorgeously gowned beauties that make scandals appetizing, including parodies on "Chauve-Souris" and the "Moscow Art Theater."

Harris.—"Icebound." A drama delinquent the icebound quality of New England emotions; well acted. Awarded the Pulitzer Prize for the best play of American life for the season 1922-1923.

Hudson.—"So This Is London." George Cohan's English comedy. An exaggerated but an amusing study of the English and American temperament, in contrast.

Liberty.—"Little Nellie Kelly." One of George Cohan's best—a cyclone of dance and song.

Morosco.—"Not So Fast." Old style Southern gentleman stuff with a family estate in jeopardy. Rather a slow moving comedy.

Music Box.—"Music Box Revue." Irving Berlin's spectacular revue with no expense spared in producing beautiful effects. Bobby Clark is the fun-maker.

New Amsterdam.—"Ziegfeld Follies." Still so successful that a new show will not be put on, as annually, but only new features added. Eddie Cantor, the black-face comedian, will replace Will Rogers.

New Winter Garden.—"The Passing Show of 1923," with Jobyna Howland, Joan Hay, Walter Woolf and George Hassell surrounded by a chorus of one hundred elaborately accoutered.

Palace.—Keith vaudeville. Always a good bill, and drawing more and more talent from the headliners of the regulars.

Provincetown.—"Sun Up." A passionate tragedy of the North Carolina mountain folk centering around a fatal revenue raid for the father and the World War for the son. The Widow Cagle is superbly played by Lucile La Verne.

Republic.—"Abie's Irish Rose." An amusing study in temperaments of the Irish and Jew in which the irreconcilable is reconciled thru that emotion that knows no boundary lines.

Selwyn.—"Helen of Troy." A musical comedy, the book by Kaufman and Connolly and the lyrics by Kalmar and Ruby. It has a coherent plot and deals with the adventures of a girl in a collar factory in an up-state city.

Times Square.—"The Fool." A drama about a man who tries to follow the life of Christ in modern locale. While you are out of the glare of the white lights it gets under the skin.

ON TOUR

"Blossom Time." A delightful musical comedy based on the life of Franz Schubert.

"Bombo," extravaganza musical with black-face comedy.

"Caroline," a musical gem.

"Dew Drop Inn," in which tangoing and black-face jiggling vie for first place. Second company.

"Irene," with an all-star cast composed of the original principals of the company. A musical comedy.

"Lady in Ermine," a musical comedy.

(Continued on page 96)

The Most Daring Book Ever Written!

Elinor Glyn, famous author of "Three Weeks," has written an amazing book that should be read by every man and woman—married or single. "The Philosophy of Love" is not a novel—it is a penetrating searchlight fearlessly turned on the most intimate relations of men and women. Read below how you can get this thrilling book at our risk—without advancing a penny.

WILL you marry the man you love, or will you take the one you can get?

If a husband stops loving his wife, or becomes infatuated with another woman, who is to blame—the husband, the wife, or the "other woman?"

Will you win the girl you want, or will Fate select your Mate?

Should a bride tell her husband what happened at seventeen?

Will you be able to hold the love of the one you cherish—or will your marriage end in divorce?

Do you know how to make people like you?

IF you can answer the above questions—if you know all there is to know about winning a woman's heart or holding a man's affections—you don't need "The Philosophy of Love." But if you are in doubt—if you don't know just how to handle your husband, or satisfy your wife, or win the devotion of the one you care for—then you must get this wonderful book. You can't afford to take chances with your happiness.

ELINOR GLYN
"The Oracle of Love"

What Do YOU Know About Love?

DO you know how to win the one you love? Do you know why husbands, with devoted, virtuous wives, often become secret slaves to creatures of another "world"—and how to prevent it? Why do some men antagonize women, finding themselves beating against a stone wall in affairs of love?

When is it dangerous to disregard convention? Do you know how to curb a headstrong man, or are you the victim of men's whims? Do you know how to retain a man's affection always? How to attract men? Do you know the things that most irritate a man? Or disgust a woman? Can you tell when a man really loves you—or must you take his word for it? Do you know what you MUST NOT DO unless you want to be a "wall flower" or an "old maid"? Do you know the little things that make women like you? Why do "wonderful lovers" often become thoughtless husbands soon after marriage—and how can the wife prevent it? Do you know how to make marriage a perpetual honeymoon?

In "The Philosophy of Love," Elinor Glyn answers these precious questions—and countless others. She places a magnifying glass unflinchingly on the most intimate relations of men and women. No detail, no matter how delicate or avoided by others, is spared. She warns you gravely, she suggests wisely, she explains fully.

A book of this type, to be of great value, could not mince words. But while Madame Glyn calls a spade a spade—while she deals with strong emotions and passions in her frank, fearless manner—she nevertheless handles her subject so tenderly and sacredly that the book can safely be read by any grown-up man or woman. In fact, anyone over eighteen should be compelled to read "The Philosophy of Love"; for, while ignorance may sometimes be bliss, it is folly of the rankiest sort to be ignorant of the problems of love and marriage. As one mother wrote us: "I wish I had read this book when I was a young girl—it would have saved me a lot of misery and suffering."

SEND NO MONEY

YOU need not advance a single penny for "The Philosophy of Love." Simply fill out the coupon below—or write a letter—and the book will be sent to you on approval. When the postman delivers the book to your door—when it is actually in your hands—pay him only $1.98, plus a few pennies postage, and the book is yours. Go over it to your heart's content—read it from cover to cover—and if you are not more than pleased, simply send the book back in good condition within five days and your money will be refunded instantly.

Over 75,000,000 people have read Elinor Glyn's stories or have seen them in the movies. Her books sell like magic. "The Philosophy of Love" is the supreme culmination of her brilliant career. It is destined to sell in huge quantities. Everybody will talk about it everywhere. So it will be exceedingly difficult to keep the book in print. It is possible that the present edition may be exhausted, and you may be compelled to wait for your copy, unless you mail the coupon below AT ONCE. We do not say this to hurry you—it is the truth.

Get your pencil—fill out the coupon NOW. Mail it to The Authors' Press, Auburn, N. Y., before it is too late. Then be prepared for the greatest thrill of your life!

The Authors' Press Dept. 155, Auburn, N. Y.

Please send me on approval Elinor Glyn's masterpiece, "The Philosophy of Love." When the postman delivers the book to my door, I will pay him only $1.98, plus a few pennies postage. It is understood, however, that this is not to be considered a purchase. If the book does not in every way come up to expectations, I reserve the right to return it any time within five days after it is received, and you agree to refund my money.

De Luxe Leather Edition—We have prepared a Limited Edition, handsomely bound in Royal Blue Genuine Leather and lettered in Gold, with Gold Tops and blue Silk Markers. No expense spared—makes a gorgeous gift. If you prefer this leather edition—as most people do—simply check below, place a cross in the little square at the right, and pay the postman only $2.98 plus postage.

Name

Address

City and State

IMPORTANT If you reside outside the U. S. A. payment must be made in advance. Regular Edition $1.98. Leather Edition $2.98. Cash with coupon.

What Every Man and Woman Should Know

- how to win the man you love.
- how to win the girl you want.
- how to hold your husband's love.
- how to make people admire you.
- why men "step out" and leave their wives alone.
- why many marriages end in despair.
- how to hold a woman's affection.
- how to keep a husband home nights.
- why most women don't know how to make love.
- things that turn men against you.
- how to make marriage a perpetual honeymoon.
- the "danger year" of married life.
- how to ignite love—how to keep it flaming.
- how to rekindle it if burnt out.
- how to cope with the "hunting instinct" in men.
- how to attract people you like.
- why some men and women are always lovable, regardless of age.
- how to make love keep you young.
- must all men be either "dubs" or devils?
- how to increase your desirability in a man's eye.
- how to tell if someone really loves you.
- things that make a woman "cheap" or "common."
- how to make people do the things you want them to.

6th Annual

A Nation-wide Celebration of Great Artistic Advance in Screen Entertainment
Paramount Week Sept. 2—8

With Paramount Week the greatest motion picture season the world ever saw gets well under way.

After years of experimentation the art of the screen is coming to perfection.

The year just past has been one of extraordinary development. A single incident has been the advance showing by Paramount of the greatest photoplay ever made, "The Covered Wagon."

And now in Paramount Week you have the opportunity for a grand review of 1923's achievements and a pre-view of the great Paramount Pictures coming.

Celebrate Paramount Week at your own theatre as millions have during five previous annual Paramount Weeks.

A few of the great Paramount Pictures of the Past Season

RODOLPH VALENTINO in "Blood and Sand." A Fred Niblo Production.

JACK HOLT in "While Satan Sleeps." A Peter B. Kyne Special.

CECIL B. DeMILLE'S "Manslaughter," with Thomas Meighan, Leatrice Joy and Lois Wilson.

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD," with Theodore Roberts. A James Cruze Production.

A George Fitzmaurice Production, "TO HAVE AND TO HOLD," with Betty Compson and Bert Lytell.

A William deMille Production, "CLARENCE," with Wallace Reid, Agnes Ayres and May McAvoy.

THOMAS MEIGHAN in "Back Home and Broke."

GLORIA SWANSON in "The Impossible Mrs. Bellew." A Sam Wood Production.

A George Fitzmaurice Production, "KICK IN," with Betty Compson and Bert Lytell.

Adolph Zukor presents

An ALLAN DWAN production

"Lawful Larceny"

with Hope Hampton, Nita Naldi, Conrad Nagel, & Lew Cody

The lesson of "Lawful Larceny" is a lesson for every married couple.

Hope Hampton is the charming young wife who returns from Europe to find her husband, Conrad Nagel, snared by another.

To fly into a temper will avail nothing. To get him back by love-inspired guile and diplomacy! that is the way and that is the excitement of the photoplay.

By an unlawful larceny had he been taken from her by Nita Naldi, dangerous siren and modern Cleopatra—and by "lawful larceny" she attempts recovery.

Does she succeed?

Don't miss seeing this great production, made by the director of "Robin Hood," the last word in marvelous settings, gowns, consummate acting and thrilling plot.

Paramount

Paramount Week

[continued]

JACK HOLT in "Making a Man." A Peter B. Kyne Special.

CECIL B. DeMILLE'S Production, "Adam's Rib," with Milton Sills, Elliott Dexter, Theodore Kosloff, Anna Q. Nilsson and Pauline Garon.

AGNES AYRES in "Racing Hearts," with Theodore Roberts and Richard Dix.

An Allan Dwan Production, "THE GLIMPSSES OF THE MOON," with Bebe Daniels and Nita Naldi.

POLA NEGRI in A George Fitzmaurice Production, "BELLA DONNA." Supported by Conway Tearle, Conrad Nagel and Lois Wilson.

A William deMille Production, "GRUMPY," with May McAvoy, Theodore Roberts and Conrad Nagel.

GLORIA SWANSON in "Prodigal Daughters" A Sam Wood Production.

A George Melford Production, "YOU CAN'T FOOL YOUR WIFE," with Leatrice Joy, Nita Naldi, Lewis Stone and Pauline Garon.

THOMAS MEIGHAN in "The Ne'er-Do-Well."

A Herbert Brenon Production, "THE RUSTLE OF SILK," with Betty Compson and Conway Tearle.

BEBE DANIELS and Antonio Moreno in "THE EXCITERS."

AGNES AYRES in "The Heart Raider."

A William deMille Production, "ONLY 38," with Lois Wilson, May McAvoy, George Fawcett.

A Herbert Brenon Production, "THE WOMAN WITH FOUR FACES," with Betty Compson and Richard Dix.

"CHILDREN OF JAZZ," with Theodore Kosloff, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Cain and Eileen Percy.

JACK HOLT in "A Gentleman of Leisure."

DOROTHY DALTON in "The Law of the Lawless."

THOMAS MEIGHAN in "Homeward Bound."

A few of the great Paramount Pictures of the New Season

A James Cruze Production, "HOLLYWOOD," with 22 real stars and 56 screen celebrities.

POLA NEGRI in A George Fitzmaurice Production, "THE CHEAT," with Jack Holt, supported by Charles deRoche.

GLORIA SWANSON in A Sam Wood Production, "BLUE-BEARD'S EIGHTH WIFE."

"THE PURPLE HIGHWAY," with Madge Kennedy.

A William deMille Production, "SPRING MAGIC," with Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Charles deRoche, Mary Astor and Robert Agnew.

A James Cruze Production, "RUGGLES OF RED GAP," with Edward Horton, Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson, Fritzi Ridgway, Charles Ogle and Louise Dresser.

A Zane Grey Production, "TO THE LAST MAN," with Richard Dix and Lois Wilson.

A George Melford Production, "SALOMY JANE," with Jacqueline Logan, George Fawcett, Maurice Flynn.

GLORIA SWANSON in an Allan Dwan Production, "Zaza."

THOMAS MEIGHAN in George Ade's "All Must Marry."

Jesse L. Lasky
presents a Charles Maigne
production

"The Silent Partner"

with Leatrice Joy,
Owen Moore & Robert Edeson

From the story by Maximilian Foster. Screen play by Sada Cowan

What should the wife of a Wall Street gambler do who seeks to save him from ruin?

Paramount answers this question with "The Silent Partner," a new and terrifically powerful handling of the theme of love versus the fever for gain.

In the days of prosperity and golden winnings, the beautiful young wife, Leatrice Joy, determines to start "gold-digging" from her husband, Owen Moore, and build a reserve unknown to him.

But how to look as though she is spending the thousands he gives up, that is the question!

How to make a $20 gown or a $5 hat or a paste necklace look like ten times the value? She does this!

And see what happens when the crash comes!

TRADE MARK

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORP.
ADOLPH ZUKOR - PRESIDENT
NEW YORK CITY

Pictures

"A Skin You Love to Touch"
by Guy Hoff

You too, can have
"A skin you love to touch"

Are you dissatisfied—with your complexion? Do you long for a skin so fresh and radiant that no one can see it and not admire it?

Then begin now to make your skin what you want it to be. Each day your skin is changing; old skin dies and new takes its place.

By giving this new skin the care it needs, you can free your complexion from faults that have troubled you for months, and even for years.

You will find the right treatment—for your special type of skin in the booklet of famous skin treatments, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Thousands of girls and women, by following these famous skin treatments, have built up a fresh clear, beautiful complexion. You, too, can have the flawless skin you have always longed for, by giving it this special care.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter — see what an improvement even a week or ten days of the right treatment will make in your complexion.

A 25 cent cake lasts a month or six weeks. Woodbury's also comes in convenient 3-cake boxes.

Three Woodbury skin preparations—
guest size—for 10 cents

THE ANDREW JERGENS CO.,
909 Spring Grove Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

For the enclosed 10 cents — Please send me a miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations, containing

A trial size cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap
A sample tube of the new Woodbury's Facial Cream
A sample box of Woodbury's Facial Powder
Together with the treatment booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 909 Sherbrooke St., Perth, Ont.
English agents: H. C. Quelch & Co., 4 Ludgate Square, London, E. C. 4.

Name.....

Street.....

City.....State.....

Cut out this coupon and send it to us today

Decoration thru the courtesy of Agnes Ayres

Good and Bad Authorship

By CLARA BERANGER

EDITOR'S NOTE.—Clara Beranger is a prominent scenarist. She is responsible for "Grumpy," "Only 38," and others too numerous to mention. We offer these (to us) delightful amusements without comment.

AT the recent International Congress on Motion Picture Arts, I sat thru a lot of speeches and discussions by members of the Authors' League (of which I am one) and of various other professions; and one glaring fact struck me—the almost unanimous presupposition that all authors of books and plays are good, and all authors of screen plays and workers for the screen are bad.

There are plenty of bad pictures, and plenty of adapters of novels and plays for the screen who are bad, but there are also plenty of good ones. But equally true it is that many of the books that are published—most of them in fact—are bad. Of the plays that are produced each year, possibly five per cent. are good; and yet these authors—and it is usually the bad ones who cry the loudest—pick on pictures every chance they get and proclaim how rotten and commercial the whole industry is.

I have yet to hear anyone connected with pictures who does not frankly admit that most of them have not yet reached a standard that could be called art; but I have yet to hear an author, or a playwright, admit that the majority of books and plays are as bad as the majority of pictures. If you stop to think of the mass of junk published every year, as literature, and the number of bad plays produced every year, you will, in all fairness, have to draw the same line between good and bad authorship in these fields of literary endeavor as you do in the field of screen-writing.

Most of the writers who air their grievances and declare that the screen is a business—that the producers think only of making money—are only too willing to sell whatever they can to the picture producers for a flat sum of money and make no stipulation about working with the adapter and director in translating their work to the screen. I happen to know that almost every one of the picture companies welcomes the coöperation of the author in the development of the picture; and it is always possible for an author to get a clause in his contract giving him the privilege of sitting in on the scenario conferences and on the final cutting and editing of the picture. But what the author wants is money; he is not willing to give up his time. Dear, artistic creator—he would always rather take the money than give any further time to protecting those delicate brain children from the cruel hands of the picture doctors. It is so much easier to wait until the picture is finished and then set up a howl about how terrible pictures are—what ignorant, inartistic, commercial people work in pictures!

Talk is cheap—time is expensive, and so these authors, most of them as mediocre, or more so, than the screen workers, talk, talk, talk, and take unto themselves their

(Continued on page 78)

Photograph by Edwin Bower Hesser

Whose odd and elusive charm is being registered in Goldwyn's sumptuous picture play, "In the Palace of the King." Miss Starke was selected recently as one of the six most beautiful screen actresses

Pauline Starke

Photograph by Edwin Bower Hesser

Corinne Griffith

Has finished Elinor Glyn's "Six Days," and is back in the East—but no one knows yet what good things are in store for her. Her devoted press men hint at a wonderful surprise. . . .

Photograph by Richee

Sigrid Holmquist

A young Swedish star of considerable distinction in her own country, now proposes to add America to her list of conquests. She has been signed by Famous Players to play in "A Gentleman of Leisure," opposite Jack Holt

Photograph by Victor Georg

Mary Beth Milford

*Who left the Music Box Revue flat for the movies.
She will play opposite John O'Hara in F. B. O's
"Fighting Blood" series*

Photograph by Ira I. Hill

Is a combination of Richard Barthelmess and Rodolph Valentino in appearance. For himself there is a pronounced individuality. He is the romantic hero of the Sabatini novel, "Scaramouche," soon to be released

Ramon Navarro

Photo © by Paul Grenbeaux

Bessie Love

This gifted girl has lingered in obscurity too long. She was given a chance in a highly emotional rôle in "The Eternal Three" and made a tremendous impression. She has now one of the tragic rôles in Mrs. Wallace Reid's picture, "Human Wreckage"

The Sport of Kings—and Movie Stars

By

CHARLES F. BERRY

Seventy miles an hour on the water is the fastest speed in the world. It is faster than a hundred and fifty miles an hour in an automobile. It is faster than two hundred miles an hour in an airplane

WHEN they finish shooting the scene, and the Kleig lights go out, where do the movie stars go?

Perhaps they all go out and have a game of golf. Golf, tennis, automobile racing, airplaning all have had their turn; but movie stars must have new thrills, new experiences.

What sport in the wide world can fulfil these requirements but the old and romantic sport of kings—that of boating. Yes, the movie stars have taken to the water—not as ducks, but as yachtsmen. If you don't believe it, just take a run down to Wilmington some afternoon—it's only forty minutes from Hollywood—and watch the ducks, I mean the yachtsmen.

Who was it that said there were no thrills on the water? Seventy miles an hour on the water is the fastest speed in the world. It is faster than a hundred and fifty miles an hour in an automobile. It is faster than two hundred miles an hour in an airplane. Yes, it is even faster than seven cocktails and a bevy of dancing girls in a gilded café.

There are plenty

Tom Mix, Tony and Thomasina launching Miss Mixit, Tom's new high-powered motor cruiser

Top of the page is Cecil de Mille's yacht, Seaward, at anchor off the California Yacht Club. Left is Dustin Farnum at the wheel of his speedboat. Dustin also sails a little starboat of thrills, all right. It's a man-sized job when your speedboat leaves the water and starts to leap from wave to wave. You come roaring down the course with a noise like a battery of machine guns. You take a turn and your boat behaves like a submarine. Or supposing your mechanic fails to see a piece of driftwood the size of an old soldier's cane. It rips your boat open like a can opener thru a can of green peas. Or if it happens to be a submerged railroad tie, you hit with a crash like Halley's comet bumping Neptune. You blow up like a can of dynamite and then take a nose dive to the bottom of the sea. Sport? You bet!

Ask Cecil de Mille whether there are any thrills. De Mille built the Miss Cecilia to race against Gar Wood's world champion speedboat Miss America. De Mille was driving at a comfortable speed, say fifty miles an hour, when suddenly there was a flash, a rumble, and then a terrific blast. In the next instant De Mille found himself in the water with the flames rising in the air a hundred feet from his boat. A minute later the boat went to the bottom spreading the flaming gasoline out on the surface of the water.

Al Fear, De Mille's mechanic, was rendered unconscious by the blast and De Mille swam to his aid. The surface of the water was one mass of flames, cutting off all help. Finally Nat Walsh's boat cut thru the cordon of flames rescuing the drowning men. And yet they say there are no thrills in boating. What is a movie thriller to this?

If you've ever sat on the landing of the California Yacht Club at twilight and watched the little starboat fleet hovering into port like a flight of belated curlew, you'd understand another trait in these people from Hollywood. We've heard so much of divorce and the night life in Hollywood that—oh well just come down to Los Angeles harbor and find the movie stars drinking in God's beauty and playing the sport of kings.

Perhaps you'll find Dustin Farnum there. Dustin likes to sail the little starboats, so small that they remind one of the story of three men in a tub. But if you think you can't get a thrill out of starboating you're mistaken. Falling off horses and leaping across yawning canyons don't compare with it.

Even the Wild West had taken to the sea. Among others, Tony, Tom Mix's famous pal, prefers yachting to wild west stuff. Of course you've heard how Tony helped launch Tom Mix's boat the other day. It was a regular wild west launching party (who ever heard of a wild west launching party) with tall sombreros, forty-four guns, and lariats. Tom threw a rope around the new boat and Tony pulled it into the water. Now isn't

The beautiful schooner, Uncas, of John Bowers, which will compete this summer in the great international race from the Santa Barbara Yacht Club to Honolulu that a helluva—excuse me—a peculiar way to launch a boat?

Of course all the movie stars were there at the christening of the Miss Mirit. Miss Thomasina, or Miss Mixit as the family call the little lady of a single year, officiated. She pulled the string that broke the bottle that christened the boat that Tom built.

But getting back to boats—Miss Mirit is a boat to be proud of. She is a 69-foot cruiser powered with two 200 horsepower LM-6 Hall Scott motors. A large cockpit has been constructed aft which Tom will use for a gymnasium. Tom says there will be plenty of room for a riding arena too, for Tom insists that Tony must be included in all arrangements, yachting or otherwise.

There are thrills to be had in the big boats too. A short time ago Cecil de Mille left on a daring trip to Infernal Channel and Tiburon Island on his yacht Seaward. The Infernal Channel is one of the most dangerous water passages in the world, which makes landing on Tiburon Island a hazardous performance. The island has been reported by previous explorers to be

(Continued on page 82)

Moonlight and Sweet Summer Madness

This charming scene is from "The Falcon," an episode from the Decameron made into a picture by the Lund Productions. The film is in colors, a new and improved Prizma process, and is reported to be an artistic triumph. Henry Hull plays the gallant young Count Federigo and Irma Harrison plays the lady of his heart, Lady Giovanna

How the Motion Picture Has Influenced Young Peru

By

HELEN APPLETON READE

It is not the Radio or the Telephone, the Telegraph or the aeroplane, which is the greatest internationalizer, but the Moving Picture.

For all of us, whether we pass our intelligence test at the top or at the bottom, visual appeal must always be the strongest and the most easily understood. That a photograph will give an understanding of a place or person, which the most accurate description can never give, is, of course, a truism. And a photograph plus a well-chosen caption is a combination for getting information painlessly, and in capsule form, that is hard to beat. Hence, the popularity of the "Daily News" and like publications.

Therefore, when our financial missions, our educational and medical investigators, and teachers go to Latin-America to bring her up to North American standards on the invitation of some of the more up-to-date Presidents, let them realize that a few well-chosen moving pictures, typical of the best in North American life, will do more to inculcate North American ideals than any number of lectures and articles in the newspapers.

And by this I do not mean educational films. Any picture which gives an accurate account of North

Above (left), Hill women of the Andes who have become movie fans. Below, Peruvian Indians standing before a motion picture hut looking at the posters. They cannot read. Below (left), Hill women weighing llama wool which they buy and spin

American manners and environment, especially when it carries with it an amusing story, and attractive actors, has great influence.

In the City of Lima, there are more cinemas, as they call them, in proportion to the population, than in any city of the United States. There is no other form of amusement. Traveling theatrical and operatic troupes are rare. The people, especially the women, cannot gamble, or drink Pisco, the native home-brew, all the time, and the national sport of bull-fighting has but a short season. In consequence a city of moving picture fans has developed.

In one city block there will be as many as five moving picture houses. The coming attractions are advertised weeks ahead. "Gran Estreno" they call them, and banners are strung across the streets from balcony to balcony telling what they are to be. There are generally two performances a day, the Vermont, which starts at six-thirty in the afternoon and an evening performance commencing at nine o'clock. Peruvian meals are elastic, dinner comes any time between eight and nine o'clock, so the Vermont is the more popular performance.

Strangely enough, it is not romances of Spanish señoritas or toreadors that interest the Peruvian movie fan, but stories of North American life. Mary Pickford, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Ruth Roland, and Pearl White are among the favorites. They have as devoted admirers in a little Indian town in the interior of Peru, as they have on Broadway. It is safe to say that American films always draw the largest audiences, with the possible exception of the Cæsar films, which star Bertini, the beautiful Italian Movie actress.

The reason for this is, that foreign films have for the most part very little action. The eternal triangle, the plot used most often in French and Italian pictures, pales in interest beside the perils that Pearl White escapes or the miraculous deeds of Eddie Polo.

When one realizes the popularity of American films, it is hard to understand why so few of the good ones come to South America. In the five years that I lived in Lima, the only big American film that I saw was Farrar in "Joan the Woman." When Mary Pickford, William S. Hart, and other favorites come to town, it is always in their less important films and these are generally four or five years old.

Constance Talmadge is undoubtedly the most beloved of the Peruvians. Her dress, her figure, her mannerisms have become the ideal of the Peruvian flapper.

And here let me cite certain direct and definite changes that the American screen has brought about in Peruvian life and manners. Changes which cannot be attributed to any other source. Until the advent of the ubiquitous cinema, Peruvian girls dressed in a South American version of European styles of the nineties. They wore very short-vamp high-heeled shoes, had small waists, large hips and otherwise overripe curves. Their clothes were always too tight, and black was the predominating color. The ideal figure resembled that which may be seen in the chorus of an American burlesque show.

The uncorseted straight figure, the bobbed hair and flat heels of the American girl were not taken over, altho seen often enough in the American fashion magazines until their superior charm was proved in the person of a film favorite.

(Continued on page 83)

Above, "Cholitas" near Lima on their way to the movies. Left, a moving picture house in Lima, Peru, with Pearl White billed in "The House of Hate," and an announcement for the American Red Cross Relief

Photograph by Pach Brothers

ALICE JOYCE

They cannot stay away, these one-time stars of the silver screen, and now Alice Joyce has come back to us, as beautiful—no—more beautiful than ever. She is making "The Green Goddess" with George Arliss

Foreign

European Studios

MAURICE

FRANCE

DID you ever hear of a marriage being celebrated at midnight? I have assisted at one, but it took place on the screen in the new picture produced in France by Armand du Plessy and which is called "Mariage de Minuit" (The Midnight Marriage). This picture might be a super one, if the producer could make the most of such an interesting subject. Of course, the idea is not new, but it is presented with a certain amount of originality.

There are however certain scenes in this photoplay which will certainly not be passed by English or American censors. I mean some scenes showing the hero in his relations with the other sex and a villain of a type to be avoided in public spectacles.

Now this picture of which the cast includes many well-known French actors, can be said to be a Belgian one as the producer and the heroine (Miss Nelly Muriel) are Belgians. But there is a decision of the Society of Film Authors of France to the effect that a picture is to be considered of French nationality if among other reasons, "the producer is or speaks French."

ENGLAND

"Married Love," the book of Dr. Marie Stopes, which has been advertised so extensively in England, has been adapted to the screen and produced at the British Super Film Studio by G. B. Samuelson. This is certainly a fine picture, whose story is a study of the happiness and the troubles of married life.

The troubles are represented by the respectable number of ten children, the eldest of whom—our heroine—is afraid of marriage when she sees that it is so difficult for her poor parents to make both ends meet.

Except for some few scenes, this picture is quite an interesting one and is well acted by Sydney Fairbrother. Sam Liversay, Rex Davis, and Lillian Hall Davis.

A very interesting English film was shown recently which represents an original idea. It is not a feature film, just an educational one. It shows us what old London was and what it actually is by means of old prints introduced skillfully in the picture. This is called "The Romance of London" and has been edited by The Gaumont Company.

GERMANY

Since I started writing this series of articles, some changes have occurred in the cinema industry in Germany. In fact, in the studios there, they are

Above is a scene from the British film, "Married Love," with Sam Liversay (center) and Sydney Fairbrother (left). Left is a scene from an Austrian picture called "Bobby." Below is one of the magnificent sets from the Sascha Films of Austria titled "Sodom and Gomorrah"

Films

At a Glance

ROSETT

not now producing with so much intensity as they were before, and I understand that the importers will have more business in Germany, as they will introduce more foreign pictures in this territory.

This state of things is due to the rate of the mark which, by its depreciation, has augmented considerably the price of the picture productions. Of course, the German stars do not cease working, but the situation is not very brilliant Ossi Oswalda, for instance, quite a good film actress, is continuing her series of pictures and she has already completed many.

Ossi Oswalda is one of the best German actresses and is particularly good for rôles in which she has to be waggish, malicious and cunning. She is all that, at least she seems to be when we see her on the screen and she has also a very delightful smile.

AUSTRIA

I referred to this country very briefly in my last article when citing "Don Juan." I may now give you some more particulars about the film activities in Austria whose production is often amalgamated with the German one.

There are, amongst others, two big studios in Austria, viz: The Sascha Film and the Vita Filmindustri.

The first produced lately a spectacular film originally called "Sodom and Gomorrah" featuring the Austrian star, Lucie Doraine, who has a certain popularity in many European countries. At the moment of writing this article, I am informed that this picture is now shown in the States under another title.

Another picture made at the Sascha studios is called "Sons of the Revolution." The episodes of the French Revolution, most of which more likely occurred in the imagination of the writers, seem to attract more and more the producers of the different countries.

"Sons of the Revolution" is an adaptation of the book by Frédéric Soulié and can be said to be the story of a boy whose origin is unknown, as he was born during the troubled period of the French Revolution.

After many adventures, he will find out who his parents are and, of course, he has also the opportunity of finding a charming wife. There are some beautiful scenes in this rather improbable story and the acting is perfect.

The Vita Filmindustri has completed a photoplay called "Bobby."

The hero is a little boy and a clever actor too, who decides to become a detective one day

(Continued on page 84)

Above is a Franco-Belgian picture, "Marriage de Minuit" (Midnight Marriage), Nelly Muriel, a Belgian cinema actress, is the star. Right, "Sons of the Revolution," another Austrian film, with Oskar Beregi and Miss Sealsfoelo. Below is Ossi Oswalda, a German film star in "The Girl With the Mask"

Bombed Into the Movies

By HARRY CARR

Photographs by Paul Grenbeaux

Little Philippe de Lacey, called by many, the most beautiful child in the movies, has an interesting story. He is one of the many tragic results of the Great War. Read how he found his way to the silver sheet

IF one of these days, some French family should recognize a familiar baby face on the screen, there would be complications—not to say woe, in the house of De Lacey. There are queer stories around the studios of Hollywood and this is one of the queerest.

It is the story of Philippe de Lacey accounted by many, the most beautiful child that has ever been seen on the screen.

During the World War, an English woman named De Lacey who was living in New York went to the battle fields of France with the American Women's Overseas Hospital Contingent. One day she was called to a little hut near Nancy where a woman lay dying of pneumonia. On the bed with her was a baby about eighteen months old.

Miss de Lacey had the woman and the child removed to a base hospital where she died. Struggling for her last breath, she told as much as she could of the baby's history and begged Miss de Lacey to see that somewhere he find a home. She said that the child's mother was only seventeen years old and had been killed a few days before by a German bomb that was dropped from an aeroplane. The baby's father—her son—had been killed with his three brothers at the defense of Verdun.

Miss de Lacey brought the baby back to New York intending to find a home for him some where. She happened to meet an actress who knew Geraldine Farrar, and Farrar was at that time casting a picture. As soon as Farrar saw the little fellow—at that time two and a half—his fortune was made.

He is five now and has become one of the sure-of-an-engagement actors of Hollywood. Among the pictures in which he has appeared

(Continued on page 82)

The Woman and the Mask

Posed by Priscilla Dean for W. F. Seely, L. A.

Trilby

Written in short story form by Dorothy Donnell

Illustrations by John Ellis

Arthur Edmund Carewe in the sinister and immortal rôle of Svengali

UP the steep cobbles of the Passage des Abbesses hastened a young man wearing a wreath of sausages festooned about his neck and carrying in one hand a fantastic nosegay of scarlet peppers, glossy young onions and daffodils, and as he went he lifted up his soul in song imploring some lady of the name of Chloe to go a-maying.

The stout gendarme on the corner regarded him tolerantly. Name of a name, these artists were quite mad, but what would you? Madness is no crime and a man was not to blame if the good God had made him an Englishman. Which, indeed, shows the gendarme to be a man of broad mind and liberal views. But the young man now disappearing under the archway beyond was not aware of being pitied, for tho his feet, in undeniably shabby shoes, trod the rude pavement, his head, which was that of a young Greek god, was in the clouds. Pausing for breath, he glanced back thru the arch at Paris, lying below in the blue luminous mist, the Seine moving placidly under its white bridges between quays where lime trees blossomed and old men in rusty shovel hats browsed among the dingy treasures of the book-stalls. And his glance was that of an owner regarding his possessions.

For Paris belonged to Little Billie, Notre Dame was his own private treasure, and the big bosomed market women wore red shawls solely to please his eyes.

From somewhere close at hand came the strains of a violin bringing him about with a visible start of annoyance. "He's got the poor little flea at it again," Billie muttered, eying the attic window with its torn green paper shade gloomily, "it's a damn shame, the old slave driver! And I suppose as soon as he smells these sausages he'll be down, rubbing his oily hands, loving us like brothers! And the worst is he isn't a gentleman—you could insult a gentleman!"

In the darkness of the hall Little Billie fumbled for his latch key. It turned around and around uselessly in the broken lock but he went religiously thru the ceremony of a householder before opening the door with a well directed kick. And so surely did he know what would be the scene within that he saw it before the door was opened.

The studio which had once been the untidiest in the Latin Quarter was now so clean that Taffy wailed he was not allowed to get paint onto his palette any longer since the reign of Madame Petticoat. He was—Billie knew—daubing cheerfully away at his big splashy canvas now, stopping to pull the tail of the cat, to cheep at the canary, and to roar with big honest laughter over what Trilby was saying in her clear, joyous voice. The Laird, being Scotch and remembering that models cost money, would be working industriously, wiping his brushes on his curly beard which was always gay with ultramarine and scarlet lake, despite the agonized cries from the model throne each time this occurred. And Trilby—

In the darkness Little Billie smiled tenderly, visioning Trilby sitting majestically with the white stuff of her classic robe molding the sweet curves of her, one bare perfect foot resting on a footstool. His heart lifted under the shabby velveteen jacket; he thought it was because he was an artist looking on beauty, not guessing it was because he was a boy, looking on a girl.

Trilby, played by Andrée Lafayette, gladdens the sometime sorrowful heart of the Latin Quarter with the eternal gift of herself

"—and just think, I always hated artists when I was working in the blanchisserie because their shirts were so hard to wash!" Trilby was saying as he went in, "paint streaks and smooches, and some of them drew sketches on their cuffs, and I know that you, Taffy, were the one who used the tails of his shirt for turpentine rags!" She clapped her hands like a child at the bouquet which Little Billie presented courtierwise on his knee and with a glance at the clock was down from the model stand and, gingham apron over the classic robe, was making salad, chattering gaily all the while, "Ah, mon Dieu, but I am—how do you say?—hongeree! Taffy, you shall stir the dressing—not so hard, Great Stupid! Oil must be coaxed, like a woman, and the Laird shall cook the little pigs to a divine brownness. What a feast we shall have—Oh, tra-la-la!"

Trilby's lips were the deeply curved lips of Sappho, shaped to utter music by the Lesbian Sea on some night of stars—the simile is Little Billie's—but when she opened them to sing, strange sounds come forth, a bell-toned monotone that always sent them into gales of merriment. No matter what she elected to sing, a strain from opera, a chanson of the boulevards, it was all the same, tuneless, discordant. It was not that she had no voice, for she had a great deal, but that she was absolutely tone deaf.

In the midst of their laughter, while the sausages were sputtering fragrantly over the gas-jet and Little Billie was setting out the bottles of rough red wine and the long crusty loaves, the door began to slide open and a dirty hand with long black-rimmed fingers appeared, followed by a pointed oily beard of glittering blackness topped with a nose like a bird's beak. The possessor of these endearing attributes wore a frock coat so shiny that the Laird arranged his tie before it ostentatiously as in a mirror. His beard imperfectly concealed a deficiency of linen and his complexion was so dingy that it was lucky, as Taffy whispered to Little Billie, that most of his face was whiskers, but it was his eyes which caught the glance. They were strange eyes, sending uneasy sensations slipping down the spine. Seeing them fixed unwinkingly now on Trilby, Billie's hands clenched, throttling the loaf of bread he held.

"A thousand pardons!" writhed the Svengali's method of teaching the tone-deaf Trilby to sing, terrifies Gecko, her self-sacrificing and humble admirer

Taffy and the Laird and Little Billie, Trilby's devoted followers, watch with considerable anxiety the mending of Little Billie's sock. Trilby darns between poses newcomer, "I did not dream that I would find you at luncheon!" and he looked wistfully at the brown sausages with their succulent pink insides.

"It was no doubt the music attracted you, eh Svengali?" the Laird drawled, ironically waving a hand toward Trilby, "but coom in and sit ye down," he raised his voice to a roar, "and the little fiddler too that I can hear sniffing in the hall, only no mair hocus pocus, mind!"

Gecko, pupil and shadow of his extraordinary master, slid in, a rabbit youth with a tremulous Adam's apple which he was forever trying to swallow. At the Laird's last words his pale eyes sought Trilby anxiously, and under cover of the noise and merriment he presently crept to her side. "You do not eat," he whispered, "you are the color of your robe. Oh, why did you let him try his power on you last week? Do you not understand when once he has looked deep into your eyes and touched your forehead with his finger tips he is your master forevermore?" He twisted his bony hands together, "I ought to know! See he is looking at us now, he knows we are speaking of him. He knows everything! It is only when I play that I can escape him——"

As tho summoned invisibly, he rose and crept back to Svengali's side, but the music-master, rapturously greasy, continued to cram bits of sausage into his mouth and dip onions into the salt without noticing him. At last with a sigh of satiety he wiped his hands upon his beard, burnishing it to greater effulgence. "Hocus pocus you call it," he smiled, yellow toothed, "yet with hypnotism one might do much good——"

"What good can it do to make someone believe a pack of lies?" Taffy growled. "Of course, the Laird here could use it on customers so that they'd see his daubs as pictures, and Trilby could use it on an audience and go in for concert singing——" he broke off at a strange sound from Little Billie. Hands clenched into fists, the boy was staring from Svengali to Trilby whose face had grown rigid and masklike under the Italian's glittering regard.

"Damn you, take your eyes off her!" Little Billie choked and would have hurled himself on the musician but for Taffy's great paw. Svengali's masterfulness vanished. The doglike Gecko at his heels hurried out, frock coat tails abjectly flapping, while Little Billie writhed impotently in the big Briton's grasp, crying shrilly, "let

TRILBY

Fictionized by permission from the First National release of the screen adaptation of Du Maurier's famous novel. A Richard Watson Tully production, directed by James Young. The cast:

Trilby	Andrée Lafayette
Svengali.....	Arthur Edmund Carewe
The Laird.....	Wilfred Lucas
Zouzou	Maurice Cannon
Durien	Gordon Mullen
Mme. Vinard.....	Martha Franklin
Rev. Bagot.....	Gilbert Clayton
Impresario	Edward Kimball
Little Billie.....	Creighton Hale
Taffy	Philo McCullough
Gecko	Francis McDonald
Dodor	Max Constant
Miss Bagot.....	Gertrude Olmstead
Mrs. Bagot.....	Evelyn Sherman
Laundress	Rose Dione
Jeannot	Robert De Vilbiss

go! Didn't you see the way he was looking at her as tho— as tho she hadn't anything on!"

Trilby gave a deep sigh, like one waking from sleep. The color returned to her face and she flung herself laughing onto the model stand apparently unaware of what had occurred, but Little Billie's hands, touching the clay with which he was modeling a winged foot, shook and Taffy nudged the Laird frowning. Later they discussed it over glasses of absinthe at the Dead Rat.

"The boy's falling in love with her," Taffy's rumble was anxious, "what would his Lady mother and his Reverend uncle say if he brought a little Montmartre model to The Oaks? Cant you hear his ancestors turning in their respectable graves, man?"

"He must be daft," the Laird tugged his beard fretfully, "not that there's anything wrong with Trilby but cant he see she isn't the kind an English gentleman marries?"

"He sees she is beautiful," Taffy said gently, "he hangs her about with all the virtues and puts stars in her hair and says his prayers to her as we all of us—God pity us—do to some woman when we are young."

The Laird's eyes grew wistful with memories, "Aye—there was a spring in Dungerry and a milkmaid. But after I saw her eat one day I dinna loe her any mair. Perhaps the lad's eyes will be opened. But Trilby is a nice little thing. I dinna hold with Little Billie's wanting to marry her, but if he didna want to marry her I would spank him with my own hand!"

They did not guess that even then Little Billie's eyes were opened and he was looking out upon a different world in which the gargoyles of Notre Dame leaned over their parapets to grimace at his misery and the roseate mists over the boulevard were suddenly rain, and all the lovely laughing city was a hideous painted hag with mud drabbed skirts and the smirk of a skull.

For hours the boy tramped the streets. The shadow of those bitter hours was upon him when he pushed open the door of the studio and faced his friends. "I'm going," he said hoarsely, and began to jerk things blindly into his bag, shoes, shirts, paint brushes while they watched, open mouthed. Then his glance fell on the little white foot that was Trilby's and he struck it savagely, and afterwards gathered up the pieces with his eyes brimming with boy tears. "—this afternoon, at the life class," he stammered, "I saw her—she was posing before them all—naked—I wanted to kill every one of them—but I cant kill—all Paris and so I'm going—"

The Laird fled cravenly from the task of telling Trilby that Little Billie had run away and so it fell upon Taffy to explain in clumsy words and stumbling phrases the reason of his going.

"But I do not understand," Trilby cried bewilderedly, "all models pose in the altogether. Surely it is no sin to be looked at unless one is ugly, and I am very pretty with my clothes off, not only my foot but all over."

It was no use. The mind of a daughter of Montmartre could not comprehend the unreasonable viewpoint of an artist who admired beautiful things and yet would not have people look on beauty, but Trilby did most of her thinking with her heart and that told her what she must do to win Little Billie back. "So I return to the blanchisserie," she told them wistfully, standing before them, a Milo in black sateen blouse and broken shoes, "I wash the artist's shirts, I take off the skin from my fingers and I watch the feet of those who pass by our basement, for surely he will come back now."

The lime blossoms fell, the old men on the quays turned over another dingy page, and a good deal of water passed thru the taps in Trilby's laundry, and suddenly Little Billie was back from England. "I love her," he told Taffy and the Laird, as tho expecting their surprise at his amazing discovery, "I love her because she's what she is—if she was any different she wouldn't be Trilby. It's queer, as soon as people love someone they always set to work trying to change them over. That's what I told mother—"

The cruel and rapacious Svengali decides to make a fortune out of the poor little laundress. He bids her follow him

Taffy had a vision of the haughty Lady Eleanor with her high-roofed ancestral nose and basilisk eye. "You—told your mother you loved Trilby?" he asked, almost in awe.

"I told her I was going to marry her," Little Billie said a trifle grimly. After all, he was related to the high-roofed ancestral nose.

And now the gendarme, leaning against the white-washed wall of the Passage des Abbesses, saw the ingredients of other merry little feasts carried thru the dark old archway, and heard queer, untuneful singing, peals of laughter and gay voices from the studio, and sometimes Trilby and Little Billie passed him hand in hand on the way to sit in a top heaven seat at the opera with a look on their faces that even a gendarme could understand. Allons! What a thing to be young and in love. . . .

The gendarme did not like the English lady and the gentleman in the shovel hat who stopped to ask him the way to Little Billie's studio one evening—ma foi, but Madame looked as tho she were smelling something unpleasant with that nose of hers. And the fussy little man with her addressed him as "Jen Dam" and seemed to think that the strange noises he was making were French.

"It is the girl we must talk to," the lady said as they moved away, "William must not guess we are here—"

The clocks below boomed midnight, from the top of the Eiffel Tower a red eye winked and the busses roared by in the Boulevard below, bringing loads of tourists to the Bal Tabarin, hopeful of looking upon some evil. Then the gendarme say the couple returning, and with them came the girl of the gay laughter, but now she was not laughing and the bunch of roses was blighted with tears.

"I knew that we could make you see it was quite impossible," the lady with the nose was saying—what a horrible language, that English! A language to say harsh things in, to scold with, but never, never to make love in—"and you promise not to see him again?"

The light from a lantern swinging in the wind fell across the girl's face giving it—the gendarme thought—the look of one of the marble saints in the Sacré Cœur. A strange place for saints, Montmartre! "I promise," Trilby said, taking the words one by one from her heart, "I promise—never to see—him again—"

It is no doubt the human life they have looked down upon so long that is responsible for the expressions on the faces of the gargoyles of Notre Dame. From their high perch above the city, man must seem an amusing and pitiful and altogether futile sort of insect rushing madly about and imagining his insect sorrows and desires are important. Little Billie told himself this and many other scornful bitter things in the weeks that followed when he wandered about Paris searching for a lost dark head in a world full of women whom he hated because they were not Trilby. He sought her in the parks, in the cafés and theaters, he hunted for her among the laundries and the shops and all the studios of the Quarter. There were many women, slim hiped, luring eyed, women with little white hands and pretty lips like painted flowers, scarlet-haired hussies of the varieties, languid models, pert shop girls with impossible coiffures, demi-mondaines, apache girl, midnettes, but Trilby had vanished without a trace. She had always been secretive about her home life; someone said there had been a small brother whom she had cared for, someone else said he had died. . . .

"I'm getting stale," Taffy growled, carefully avoiding Little Billie's haggard look. "I've painted sidewalk cafés and flower vendors and children rolling hoops in the Tuileries Gardens until my brushes are all gummed up with sweetness. Let's go traveling and paint pictures with tobacco and gin and blood in 'em."

As a cure for love-sickness, Australia may be recommended. Of course there were scars left in Little Billie's heart, and sometimes when the velvety dark was disturbed by a woman's voice crooning unevenly across the veldt, or when the Southern Cross was a blue blaze on the horizon, the scars throbbed a little, and Billie would say,

(Continued on page 80)

The moment of Trilby's greatest triumph was the moment that preceded her collapse. Svengali had won—and lost

Photograph by Hoover, L. A.

Impressions

By

LOUISE FAZENDA

These two pictures and the "Impressions" below attest the extraordinary versatility of the gifted Miss Fazenda, who is better known as a comedienne

BARBARA LA MARR

The flame of a black candle.
Chinchilla.
Unknown ladies at tombs.
Orchids.

ENID BENNETT

Priscilla, playing with dolls.
Rainbows.
A tremulous child.
Titania.

FLORENCE VIDOR

Apple blossoms in the breeze.
Rose-point lace.
Breath of jasmine.
Reeds, and a quiet pool.

BABY PEGGY

A robin.
Kewpies.
Soap-bubbles.
Buttercups.

LON CHANEY

A shadow without a presence.
Dwarf pines.
A scream in the dark.
Fog.
The San Francisco water-front.

CLAIRE WINDSOR

Blue corn-flowers in a wheatfield.
Rhinestones.
A crystal vase.
A swan on a clear lake.

CULLEN LANDIS

Civil War daguerreotypes.
Agate.
A boy sobbing in an empty church.
Rosemary for remembrance.

MARY CARR

A lamp in a window.
Old bibles.
Paisley.
Frost on pink roses.

ANNA Q. NILSSON

A woman in sable with wolfhounds.
Sunlight on frozen green water.
A jewel-handled whip.
Boadicea, Queen of Britain.

WANDA HAWLEY

Peach melbas.
Sorority dances.
Light blue ruffled parasols.
Daisy chains at Vassar.

“The Light, Bright, Lissom Mae”

Mae Murray poses for Edwin Bower Hesser

The Genius of Gesture

An Observation

by

FAITH SERVICE

YOU dont quite know whether he is true or not . . . or whether you might not, perhaps, have made him up, invented him in a moment of mad imagery, read about him, caught him in a chord, immediately lost. . . .

A face pale and perfect . . . a Burgandy colored dressing-gown . . . black hair . . . significant hands . . . a Byronic collar . . . a strong resemblance to the pictures of the poet Byron . . . this is Joseph Schildkraut.

A room lined on all four walls, from floor to ceiling with books, chosen books, loved books and read, books that hold you, each by a voice of its own, this is his background.

He is a romantic recluse. He walks abroad as the Chevalier in "Orphans of the Storm," as Liliom on the stage and as Peer Gynt, but Joseph Schildkraut remains within the four book-lined walls, withdrawn.

He is a genius of gesture.

Ever since he was ten years old and read the Decameron and

Photographs by Nickolas Muray

Joseph Schildkraut has given us the Chevalier in "Orphans of the Storm" on the screen, and the deathless Liliom on the stage. He has now been signed for the Goldwyn picture, "The Master of Man," from Hall Caine's famous story studied the violin while he dreamed of being an actor, up to the present day when he is twenty-seven and reading Poe, living his secluded life, young Schildkraut is a genius of gesture.

As to his sincerity, that is a matter of opinion. One may gesture sincerely. . . .

Have you ever read books of a haunting strangeness? Seen plays wherein the human and the superhuman, the mystic and the matter-of-fact mingled and were lost? Caught and then lost again strains of music that repelled the Everyday with fantastic fingertips? Products of perversity neither beautiful nor bad?

And then have you ever thought, "But people are not like this. The world is not like this. Life is not like this. I have strayed into a nether place."

But Joseph Schildkraut is "like this." This is the mood he evokes for you. This is the atmosphere he gives to you.

If Baudelaire had flung back his head and shattered his malodorous verses with shouts of Homeric laughter. If Poe had played ball with a child and written a

(Continued on page 77)

Hollywood Homes

No. XI

Above is the exterior of Wallace Reid's home. The architect was Frank Meline. It was decorated by Gomes and Glendale of California. Here it was that Wallie played the genial host to his so many friends . . . open house for all good fellows. . . .

Left is Mrs. Wallace Reid with her son and the little girl she adopted just before her husband died. Here too, she "carries on" with a brave heart and fine courage, a gallant crusader against the evil thing that cost Wallace Reid his life

Right is a corner of the lawn with its familiar swimming pool

Below is the music-room with its mute testimony to a former gaiety

Exclusive views of the home of the late Wallace Reid

Above is the extremely interesting stairway with its classic severity and charming plastered walls

Left is the dining-room in smooth brown oak and tinted walls. Note the graceful lighting

Another Mary

Mary Pickford piles her golden glory on top of her head and essays the rôle of an alluring and passionately emotional woman

These are scenes from "Rosita," soon—but not soon enough—to be released. It is based on the picturesque adventures of "Don Cæsar de Bazan." The great German director, Lubitsch, is controlling the destinies of this picture. We hope you will like Mary in this new kind of rôle. After all, she is a woman, a gorgeous, glorious, golden woman

The Girl Who Couldn't Stop Crying

By

HARRY CARR

THIS really was a terrible dilemma, Renee Adoree couldn't stop crying. It was one of the most alarming little episodes I ever saw in a motion picture studio.

Renee had been parting from her old father.

It seems that unwillingly she had killed a man. Tho he was a villain with a leer, the Northwest Mounted Police were after her and she had to fly.

I saw her when she said good-bye to her father. She clung to him convulsively. The tears were streaming down her cheeks. She looked very little and very pitiful, and the tears were very, very real. With one last kiss and a sob, she broke away, and rushed—out of the camera area.

Reginald Barker, the director, followed to congratulate her. To his surprise, she was still crying.

"What's the matter?" he asked in dismay. His only answer was a fresh outburst of sobbing.

Mr. Barker looked around with belligerent inquiry. Then the situation dawned upon him. The little French girl had got her tears started and they wouldn't stop. He looked around hopelessly at Pat O'Malley who was costumed in scarlet, uniform of the Northwest Police. Pat rose gallantly to the rescue.

He picked Renee up bodily and sat her on the stump of a tree. Then, cavorting around like a Sennett comedian, he pretended to take a kodak picture of her tears.

She tried to smile but it was such a drippy, woebegone little smile—and it was washed away in another outburst.

Then the director tried again. "Come on, Renee. My God, you know it's just a play. Come on, shake yourself out of it." With that he took her by both arms and gave her two or three little shakes.

Her only answer was to lean on his shoulder and begin to cry again.

Barker looked around at the orchestra that every director keeps on the sets these days. "Quick: some jazz," he said.

The orchestra leader tried, "Carolina in the Morning" and "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Sheehan."

Renee slid down from the stump and made them a little tear-stained bow of acknowledgment: but the case was quite hopeless.

"Sank you," she said in a little damp, weak, woe-saturated voice. Then she picked up her make-up box

Photograph by Witzel, L. A.

Renee Adoree is not really new to the screen; but it was not until Reginald Barker happened to select her for an emotional part, in a big outdoor story that she really found herself. He thinks she will become one of the finest emotional actresses ever seen on the screen and walked slowly away to her dressing-room, leaving the director and the studio staff looking like convicted murderers. The last I saw of her, her shoulders were still shaking with the convulsions of weeping.

Renee is like the colored lady. When she mourns she mourns.

Reginald Barker who has found a lot of them thinks she is the great "find" of the year.

She is not really new to the screen. She has been dubbing around in small parts for years. It was not until this winter when Mr. Barker happened to select her for an emotional part in a big outdoor story that she really found herself. Mr. Barker thinks she is due to become one of the finest emotional actresses ever seen on the screen.

She is a little French girl, not fatally beautiful but piquant and charming. She has been on the stage all her life. As a child she was an acrobatic dancer in France and was educated in England by a tutor while still filling stage engagements in London.

(Continued on page 76)

Beside the Sea

*"Come on in—
The water's fine!"*

Photograph by Woodbury, L. A.

Above, Tommy Meighan and Leatrice Joy on location in Florida take a swim between shots. Below, Alice Lake struggles with a deep-sea monster

Top of the page, Hazel Keener (in Maurice Tourneur's "The Brass Bottle") doesn't care how hot it gets. Above, Elaine Hammerstein

Stars of the Silver Sheet
Shine
on the Silver Sand

Above, Viola Dana acquires a coat of tan. Below, George Walsh, that remarkable athlete, does his setting-up exercises on the beach

Above, Harold Lloyd and Ruth Roland in a friendly pose. Below, Kathleen Key and cape, from Goldwyn pictures

Above, three Mack Sennett Sand-Witches from "She Loves Me Not." How do you like these little beach-combers?

Left is May Allison who returns to the screen in "The Sign"

Right is Leatrice Joy who is breaking — no. — we mean making "The Ten Commandments." Below is Mary Thurman who is playing in the East in "Zaza"

Photograph by Rice

Summer Girls

Photograph by Melbourne Spurr

(Forty-two)

Anna Q. Nilsson as the picturesque Cherry Malotte and Milton Sills as Roy Glennister in "The Spoilers"

The Celluloid Critic

Laurence Reid Reviews the Latest Picture Plays

A SUCCESSFUL picture is like a successful play. If it has reached the high places thru some outstanding character or situation—and if it surges forward with a compact line of action, thru which its scenes are neatly dovetailed, it is certain to be favorably received and to establish itself in the memory as a picture with a personality. Such documents are sure to be revived.

It is fitting and proper that Goldwyn should give a new treatment to Rex Beach's best yarn, "The Spoilers." In the first place it had earned a new picturization thru its eloquent account of life in the raw—a background which may only be expressed well on the screen. But what made "The Spoilers" so memorable was its smashing fight in the climax between Tom Santschi and William Farnum.

It has been said that this gory combat could never be equalled, much less duplicated. The very thought of it has inspired its present sponsors in general, and Director Lambert Hillyer in particular, to create a scene which would ring down the corridors of Time—which would eclipse any hand-to-hand conflict ever staged before the searching lens of the camera.

Mr. Reid selects "The Spoilers" as the best photoplay of this month, and compares the great Milton Sills-Noah Beery fight with its former prototype, the Tom Santschi-William Farnum brawl

The Santschi-Farnum mêlée compared to the Sills-Beery (Milton and Noah) mêlée would be like trying to compare two fly-weights in action against Dempsey and Firpo in another ring. It's a tearing, smashing, slambang bloody battle which takes up easily twenty minutes—which thrusts two very earnest players in deadly combat with no quarter given or taken from either participant.

Of course the fight is the moment which we waited for. Every scene is a prelude to it. And how they did build up to it! Here we have the vigorous account of a Yukon miner, a power up Dawson way, determined to stand up on his own feet regardless of the efforts of a group of wily politicians to make capital of the ignorant community. The net is woven around him. The law is against him. Every loophole has been carefully embroidered so that there appears no possible chance for escape. And to complicate matters he is in love with a girl whose guardian is the crooked judge in collusion with the disciples of evil—claim jumpers, in Mr. Beach's language.

The suspense mounts when you see Sills grit his teeth to see the conflict thru to the finish. Scenes—oh, many of them—are given up to primitive, primeval battle. There are introductory scuffles to the main bout. And the background is as much like the Alaskan country as a good location man can make it. So let's mark it up as a smashing, ripping melodrama of the big outdoors—adapted from a story which was destined for the screen—a melodrama which rushes with headlong speed straight to its climax. And what a climax! Sills and Beery fairly leap at each other's throats. Tables, chairs, book-cases are overturned. The actors smash their way and each other's faces thru doors, windows and partitions—until you feel like crying "Stop it!" It's vivid and vital, this fight. The attending blowing up of the mines, the ride of the vigilantes, the crooked roulette game and the other details are merely incidental to the rip-tearing punch when Beery takes the count from Sills' good right fist—and left.

A good supporting cast lends competent assistance—particularly Sam de Grasse, Barbara Bedford and Robert Edson. Wallace MacDonald allows himself too much latitude in the matter of his wardrobe. It suggests the latest Kuppenheimer advertisement instead of the style of the late nineties.

We advise you to see this picture; you will respond to its vitality, picturesqueness and melodramatic display.

BOOTH Tarkington's prize-winning story, "Alice Adams," (Associated Exhibitors) has been approached with fine sympathetic appreciation by King Vidor, a director who is at his best in visualizing the simple humanities. It's a picture not dependent upon dramatic fireworks, but scores easily and surely because it expresses the simple things in an equally simple way.

Here is a cross-section of American family life—life that all of us know. The protagonist is a wistful, imaginative, pathetic, day-dreaming girl who paints vivid fancies—who thru her pride will keep up appearances despite the poverty in her home. Her mother is a complaining woman—one who continually nags her husband because he hasn't taken the family to the heights. Her father is meek and mild and naturally uncomplaining. But he is incapable of making both ends meet. There is a brother who is allowed to become a wastrel simply because his parents are more or less uninterested in him. And around this quartette moves a drama which touches tragic chords—which paints vividly and accurately—and at times, poignantly, discordant family life.

The film treatment is splendid. It carries the quaint humor tinctured with pathetic glimpses of the novel. It retains all the humanities which Tarkington incorporated. The big vital note in the book—when Alice entertains her admirer at dinner and he sees thru her sham, is deftly treated—with a suggestion of real subtlety.

These characters are made real by the director, Rowland V. Lee—and the players who fit them have seemingly stepped from the pages of the book. What a memorable portrayal Florence Vidor gives as the girl whose dreams are shattered! How she humanizes the figure who was forced to swallow her pride—and Claude Gilchrist as the father presents a portrait of cameo fineness.

The intelligentsia will thoroughly enjoy this picture—and if we are not mistaken, so will the bourgeoisie. It's a very human document, treated in a very human way. Oh, but that we might have more like it!

Oval (above) Jane Novak and John Bowers in "Divorce." Above Alfred Lunt and Mimi Palmeri in "The Ragged Edge"

Left, Florence Vidor and Monte Blue in "Main Street." Above, Douglas MacLean in "A Man of Action"

ANOTHER Tarkington tale—in an entirely different vein—the vein which many declare to be his best—is his "Penrod and Sam" (First National). No author can approach the gentleman from Indiana in the expression of irrepressible boyhood. All the whimsy and fancy of Youth is accurately drawn. Youth with its imitative faculties—Youth with its joyful pranks and heartaches is admirably painted.

As a picture, it soars with the same comic spirit as the book—the director seeing to it that none of the Tarkington sparks are missing. Consequently we discover the effervescent high jinks of the inseparable youngsters—who put on a circus and an "inshishun"—who are brought upon the "carpet" before their respective fathers and severely reprimanded—and who are real boys as played by Ben Alexander (Ben is growing up—you wouldn't recognize him as the enfant terrible of "Hearts of the World") as Penrod and Joe Butterworth as Sam. What kids do the wide world over is depicted here with a tragic-comic quality.

As a story it is sketchy, but that is to be expected. Yet no youngster, vital and real, ever did things but what were of an episodic character. Exceptionally sympathetic treatment has been accorded the book by the director, William Beaudine, who demonstrates the fact that he hasn't forgotten his own youth, nor forgotten that Tarkington cannot be improved upon. Humor and pathos are finely blended—which releases a picture of warm, human attributes.

It's a real slice of childhood, never exaggerated, but ringing true with sentiment, spirit, and charm. Among its scenes the spectator will find one—and possibly many—which will strike home. The brightest moment to us is when Father Schofield asks his daughter's cub admirer the hour—and the latter interprets the inquiry by beating a hasty retreat.

BRINGING "Main Street" to the screen was something of a task for Warner Brothers, since Sinclair Lewis' best-seller is based upon words instead of pictures. Taking a widely read book which has established its prejudices as well as its champions, it stands to reason that no matter how the sponsors treated the subject they were certain to find themselves in a jam. Here is a long-winded book which is often dull—which is unrelieved by any balancing note of humor, and yet the director has done a creditable job by it—even if it was impossible for him to save it from becoming tedious in its concluding reels.

The fault with Lewis (and of course the director must be held responsible) is his weakness for repetition. So we have scenes which are duplicated—particularly the party scenes. The story has been followed pretty faithfully, but visualizing it shows up Lewis' exaggeration. It is more of a psychological study than a drama of physical action. Naturally many of its situations seem overdrawn. But the sordid background—the drab commonplaces of Gopher Prairie, is retained. Still it fails in bringing forth Lewis' satirical shafts—and it often falls down in establishing the analysis of small-town smugness. It shouldn't have been screened because the author's pen pictures are incapable of being reproduced.

The types, however, are well chosen. Certainly Florence

Vidor catches the true psychology of the character of the city girl who would make over the community. The picture, like the novel, hits its most accurate note when it reveals these smug villagers as unwilling to adapt themselves to any ideas and ideals except their own. Monte Blue suggests the physician-husband with a adequate faithfulness. The most genuine villager is played by Harry Myers as the local druggist.

TRYING to follow the stage version too closely has placed "Three Wise Fools" (Goldwyn) just out of reach of the coveted bull's-eye. The fault of this picture is too much continuity—too much crowded incident—with every detail clearly outlined in advance so that it precludes any value of suspense. At times it becomes weary—especially whenever the three cronies are together. By their actions one would imagine them a trio of silly, old gossips who might be engaged in playing dominoes. So they adopt their erstwhile sweetheart's daughter who incidentally carries all the conflict—since she is compelled to keep a deep secret, that her father is an escaped criminal. Her meetings with him place the detectives watching the

(Continued on page 90)

Above, Cullen Landis in "The Fog." Below, The Three Wise Fools, Claude Gillingwater, William H. Crane and Alec B. Francis

Below, Florence Vidor and Claude Gillingwater in "Alice Adams"

Above, Mrs. Wallace Reid and Bessie Love in "Human Wreckage," a profoundly moving picture. Below, Penrod and Sam

Clemenceau
 "The Tiger" of France
 Turns
 Scenarist

Ex - premier Clemenceau is taking an active interest in the filming of his book. He directs and offers suggestions as his play is produced. Left, Tchang-Y covers his wife, Si-Tchun, with flowers. Below is the Emperor's Messenger. We hope that this interesting picture will be released over here

The Veil of Happiness

Photographs by Kadel and Herbert

In this picture play real Chinese men and women are seen. They were recruited from the Chinese students studying in Paris. The play is about a rich Chinese nobleman who has a beautiful wife and a good friend by the name of Ton-Fon Tchang. The husband is blind but is very happy with his wife and children. He suddenly recovers his sight and begins to learn that his wife's lover is Ton-Fon Tchang. Rather than see this unhappiness he puts his eyes out and becomes blind again. . . .

(Forty-six)

Classic's
Monthly
Department of the Theater

The Hardy
Perennials
of the Season

Photograph by White Studios

Below, Ruth
Page in her odd and interesting dance for "The Music Box Revue"

Below, Olive Vaughn, one of the beauties from George White's newest and loveliest "Scandals"

The Photographer Takes the Stage

Photograph by Victor George

Photograph by
White Studios

Above, Helen Shipman and Nat
Nazarro in "The Passing Show of 1923" going strong at the Winter Garden

Photographs (above and below) by White Studios

Photograph by Apeda

Above, Queenie Smith (formerly ballerina at the Metropolitan Opera House) with Joseph Lertora in the Russian ensemble from "Helen Of Troy, New York." Queenie runs away with the show. It is by those masters of satire, Messrs. Kauffman and Connelley, who prove their further ability by writing a musical comedy. Below, Katherine Bolton, Louis Mann, and George Sidney, in a scene from "Give and Take"

Photo by Apeda

Above, Marion Kerby, as she is, a charming young woman and an actress of distinction and skill

Above, Marion Kerby as Nana, the absinthe-crazed victim who beats her young sister in "7th Heaven"

Plays like "Merton of the Movies," "7th Heaven," "Rain," "The Fool," "Give and Take," "The Old Soak," "The Music Box Revue," and several others, ran all last winter, all this summer, and are starting in the fall apparently as popular as ever. "Kiki" ran six hundred nights, and we have an idea some of these will equal it. Below, Florence Nash and Glenn Hunter in "Merton of the Movies"

Photograph by White Studios

Photograph by White Studios

Above, a scene from "Rain," the Somerset Maugham melodrama of the missionary field, that is likely to run forever

Photograph by Albin

James Barton in "Dew Drop In," which would drop out without him. This is a comparatively new one

Right, Sara Sothern, who plays so pathetically the little lame girl in Channing Pollock's "The Fool," another play that fills its theater nightly

Photograph by Albin

Flashes From the

Of the Stage

Caught by

Photograph by Muray

OUT on a picturesque estate on Long Island at the head waters of Little Neck Bay where, ninety-five years ago, small craft used to put in for supplies from the general store, a little bit of Southern France has been translated for scenes in "Zaza," Allan Dwan's production of the famous French play. The old general store, which was built in 1828, has been transformed into the quaintest French home imaginable. It is Zaza's love nest. The grist mill, where the farmers used to come in the early days to get their grain ground and a demijohn of rum, has been made into a thatched building by the art department, and the old barn which stood next to the store has been fixed over to represent a typical French barn. All of these buildings stand on the edge of a beautiful lake. Director Dwan expects to spend a week on this location filming scenes that are expected to be among the loveliest shown in the picture. Gloria Swanson, H. B. Warner, Lucille La Verne, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Riley Hatch, and twenty-five extras are working there.

Madge Kennedy, a twinkling light of both stage and screen, will open in September in a new musical comedy called "Poppy." Dorothy Donnelly is responsible for the book.

Richard Barthelmess has completed "The Fighting Blade," and has started on another picture under John S. Robertson. It is a modern story, the title of which has not yet been given out, and it will be released before "The Fighting Blade," as they thought it wise not to have two costume pictures follow each other.

Upper left is Ben Lyon, one of the principals in the stage success, "Mary The Third." Goldwyn has signed him for pictures. Right is Ernest Truex in a scene from "Six Cylinder Love" that Fox is making as a picture. Lower left, is Lew Cody. If Mr. Cody is trying to live down the title, "Male Vampire," we would respectfully suggest that this isn't a particularly good way to do it

A. H. Woods, by arrangement with Sam Harris, will present Mary Ryan in "Red Light Annie," a new play by Sam Forrest and Norman Houston, at the Morosco Theater, on August 20th.

Hot weather means nothing in Genevieve Tobin's young life. Genevieve rushes blithely from her job at the William Fox Studios, where she is creating the leading feminine rôle in "No Mother to Guide Her," to the theater where she is featured in Broadway's big hit, "Polly Preferred." She created the rôle of Patricia O'Day in the stage version of "Little Old New York."

Thomas Meighan will travel from New York to California and back in the production of his next three Paramount pictures. As soon as he has com-

Eastern Stars

On the Screen

the Editor

pleted Peter B. Kyne's story, "Homeward Bound," which is now being made at New London, Conn., Mr. Meighan, accompanied by Mrs. Meighan, will go to the Lasky studio in Hollywood to film George Ade's original story tentatively titled "All Must Marry." Mr. Meighan will pick up George Ade in Chicago on the way West. Following the production of the Ade story, Mr. Meighan will return East to Kennebunkport, Me., the summer home of Booth Tarkington, where he will work with Mr. Tarkington and a director and scenario writer on an original story which the famous novelist and playwright has just written expressly for Mr. Meighan.

Ernest Truex, creating the leading rôle in Elmer Clifton's production of "Six Cylinder Love" at the Fox New York Studios that he played on Broadway and the road for two years, deserves to go down in history, for immortalizing the moustache! Truex, who admits to being five feet and a bit more in height, vows he grew a moustache so he could prove his age and take part in conversations

Photograph by Edward Thayer Monroe

Above is a miniature Gilda Grey. Right is a shot from "Homeward Bound," Tommy Meighan's picture. Upper right is Dorothy Gish with her husband, James Rennie. The soldier is Lawrence Cecil who plays the Sergeant in "The Devil's Disciple." He was a Captain in the English Army during the World War and has a brilliant war record. Theatricals are doubtless rather tame to him without being told "children should be seen and not . . ." oh, you know the rest.

Photograph by Russell Ball

The schedule of the Theatre Guild for the coming season was announced yesterday. The Garrick will open late in September with "Windows," by John Galsworthy, described by him as a "comedy for idealists and others." Martha-Bryan Allen, now in "The Devil's Disciple," is the only member of the cast yet chosen. Following "Windows" will come "The Failures," an adaptation from "Les Rates," a tragedy by H. R. Lenormand. Jacob Ben Ami will have the lead. Other productions will include Molnar's comedy "The Guardsman," Shaw's "Cæsar and Cleopatra"; "Masse" (Continued on page 88)

Classic Considerers—

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

For the very good reason that he has more courage and greater vision than anyone else in the moving picture industry. Because he is consistently and without self-consciousness trying to make "bigger and better pictures," and is succeeding. Because he has done much to dignify his profession. Because he manages to instruct, edify and entertain all in one picture. And last, because he won the sweetheart of the world for his wife

ZELDA SEARS

Because she wanted to be a playwright and that's what she is. She started her career as a reporter on the old Chicago Herald and came to New York in the chorus of an Erlanger musical comedy. She was secretary to the late Clyde Fitch and created all his comedy rôles on the stage for twelve years. Her first complete play was "Lady Billy" for Mitzi. She was co-author of Madge Kennedy's "Cornered," and sole author of the popular "The Clinging Vine," for Peggy Wood

Photograph by
Edward Thayer Monroe

WALTER DAMROSCH

Because he has done so much to popularize music in New York City, without ever once lowering the high standard of taste set by one of our finest symphony orchestras. Because he condenses operas, and plays selections from them, and makes them comprehensible to children every Saturday morning during the winter. Because he is the conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra, which you can hear for a quarter—if you'll sit up under the roof of Carnegie Hall

Greed

Written in Short Story Form by Patricia Doyle

TRINA took the slip of paper in her hand without a word. She was, beyond speech. Maria's senseless yelling had subsided. Marcus turned on his heel in disgust. McTeague breathed in an immense sigh, like a huge walrus coming up for air. Papa Sieppe stood dumfounded and Mamma Sieppe began to cry softly. Nobody said a word. The slip of paper was a check for five thousand dollars.

That was almost more money than Trina Sieppe could think of all at once, certainly more than McTeague could take in. Marcus Schouler was, however, painfully aware of the immensity of the sum. Trina had been engaged to him and in a fit of maudlin sympathy for his pal McTeague, he had freely transferred her to his awkward attentions. At first Trina had been afraid of his great bulk and recoiled timidly from his clumsy love-making, but there was in her now undeniable response to his aggressive masculinity, albeit she admitted it even to herself a little shamefacedly. She remembered the first time she had seen McTeague. It was in his office. She and Marcus and all the Sieppes had gone on a picnic and the party had gotten rough. Trina fell out of a swing and broke her tooth. But Marcus had comforted her by telling her his friend McTeague who was a dentist—of sorts, would fix it up for her.

So she had gone the next day to McTeague's office. Maria was there begging for junk, which lowly performance she regarded as an entirely legitimate business. "Crazy in the head!" McTeague had said in his gruff voice, illustrating the fact by tapping his huge head with a thick forefinger and pointing at Maria. Trina nodded assent, but Maria only stole a handful of gold fillings behind McTeague's back and went to Zerkow with them.

McTeague's stolidity had deserted him. He trembled before this slim girl with her ropes of fine black hair and her little tapering hands. He thought of a thousand things he could do to make her keep on coming to his office. The last time she came he had

GREED

Fictionized by permission from Goldwyn, from the screen version of Frank Norris' novel, "McTeague." Adaptation and direction by Eric von Stroheim. The cast:

McTeague	Gibson Gowland
Trina	Zasu Pitts
Marcus Schouler.....	Jean Hersholt
Selina	Joan Standing
Zerkow	Cesare Gravina
Maria Macapa.....	Dale Fuller
Old Grannis.....	Frank Hayes
Miss Baker.....	Fanny Midgeley
Mr. Sieppe.....	Chester Conklin
Mrs. Sieppe.....	Sylvia Ashton
The Twins.....	Oscar and Otto Gottel
August	Austin Jewel
The lottery man.....	Lon Poff
Heise, the harness maker.....	Hughie Mack
Traveling dentist.....	Erich von Ritzau
McTeague's Father.....	James Marcus

In a fit of maudlin sympathy for his pal, McTeague, Marcus had surrendered his girl to the dentist's awkward love-making. Below: Trina sends McTeague the mammoth gold tooth he had so long coveted for his office given her ether—to save her from pain. When she lay back in the chair unconscious, he kissed her moist soft mouth over and over again, hungry devouring kisses. She came to, shivering, but not with fear.

They were engaged after that and now they were to be married in a few days. McTeague's practice was well enough, but with five thousand dollars they had nothing much to worry about. Trina took the money to her Uncle, for whose toy shop she used to paint little wooden dolls, and he deposited it in a bank for her. She couldn't bear to spend it, but she did go out and buy a mammoth gold tooth that McTeague had long coveted for his office. He was touched and thanked her with many bearlike hugs and rude kisses. He never had been particularly articulate and now he was reduced to a gauche demonstrativeness that alternately thrilled and disgusted Trina.

After they were married, McTeague suggested that they take better lodgings.

"On your pay, we cant afford it," was Trina's brief rejoinder.

"But your five thousand dollars!" muttered McTeague considerably surprised.

"Stays where it is," snapped Trina. Then quickly seeing the offended look in her husband's dull eyes, "Love your Trina?"

"Yes," he answered and put his arms around her.

"Love her big?" murmured the girl running her slim fingers thru his bushy hair.

McTeague took her fingers playfully between his strong white teeth. "Oh, you hurt," she cried, but he only laughed.

In a much poorer room on a much poorer street Maria and Zerkow, the junk dealer, started their miserable life together. "And so my father buried his plate," Maria was saying, rolling her big vacant eyes. "Four dozen gold dishes, all sizes, six platters, all sizes, two great big soup tureens, eighteen—"

"But where, merciful God, where?" Zerkow interrupted wringing his dirty hands. "Where did your father hide all this gold?"

"I cant seem to remember," Maria said without expression. Her husband seemed about to choke her. "But I'll think hard, Zerkow," she added hastily. "Give me but a little time and Maria will find the place for you."

He had to be content with that altho it was only one of many times this identical conversation had taken place. Zerkow dreamed of that mysterious buried gold at night. He thought about it by day. It was for that he had married the half-wit Maria and lived on the price of the gold fillings she managed to steal from McTeague.

As for the McTeagues, they prospered well enough. Trina began to save money to add to the five thousand. It got to be a regular mania, with her. She put it in a little trunk she kept under the bed, the key of which she had always with her. As fast as she could, she changed it into gold. When her husband was at his office, she would get it out and play with it lingeringly, lovingly, gloatingly. At least half of everything he gave her she put away in the trunk. She bought cheaper meat, cheaper clothes. She went hungry herself and skimped her husband, so that the glittering pile might grow.

McTeague knew nothing of this. He was fairly well content. He was still under the spell of Trina's superior refinement. He loved her daintiness, her great ropes of hair, the rich vital odor of it, her little hands with their little pointed fingers, which he loved to bite in boorish gaiety, altho she always complained that he hurt her.

At the end of three years McTeague decided they would move into a little house, the rent of which was thirty-five dollars. Trina almost screamed. "Thirty-five dollars! We couldn't possibly afford it."

"But the five thousand," said McTeague again. "You pay half and I'll pay half.

You've been saving a lot of money anyway. We can use that. There must be at least——"

"No, no," cried Trina. "There isn't any. I haven't any money at all saved. Take a better house. You're crazy. We ought to take a cheaper place."

"You're getting to be a regular miser," retorted McTeague angrily. "You're worse than old Zerkow." And he went away and rented the house anyway.

Then one day he received an official-looking letter from somebody or other enjoining him from the further practice of dentistry, because he didn't have a diploma. McTeague was utterly stunned. "A diploma, a diploma! What is that, Trina? I've been practising dentistry for twelve years. Why should I have to have a diploma?"

Trina couldn't tell any more than he could, but her woman's intuition divined the cause of this catastrophe. It was Schouler's work of course, Marcus Schouler, who had never forgiven McTeague for winning, not Trina exactly, but the five thousand. If he could only have known——

Trina's heart went cold at the news. Would she have

The grind began. McTeague's idleness had become habitual. Trina shed her former daintiness and was now a sloven to give up some of her beloved money? No, never. Never. Never. Never. The clink to her ears, the glitter to her eyes, the cold smooth feel to her fingers, meant more to her now than love or peace or life itself. In fact, her money was all of those things to her. Only McTeague still mattered a little. She could understand old Zerkow now, whom she had always despised before. He too hoarded gold, but such a little beside her shining pile! She felt sorry for him now, old Zerkow who had been fooled by Maria's lack-wit tale of her father's plate, not a single piece of which ever existed save in her own muddled mind. Trina would never give up her money,

McTeague slowly abandoned his profession. For days at a time he sat gloomily in his own dental chair with nothing to do. "We'll be poor together," said Trina, and lead him to a dingy back hall room. "This is all we can afford."

"Afford, hell!" McTeague sneered. "You and your five thousand three hundred! You make me sick."

"My money wont be touched," shrilled Trina.

"Well I wont live in this dump," McTeague snarled, and bit her fingers.

"All right," brought out Trina triumphantly, tho she winced from the pain. "Then pay the rent for this apartment."

But of course he couldn't pay the rent. He had no money at all. Trina was supporting him, so they sold their furniture and moved in, and McTeague started to look for work. The grind began. Trina took to whittling dolls again for her Uncle's toy shop. She wore gloves to protect her hands but still, she had become a sloven. McTeague came home disheartened, night after night. He didn't know anything but dentistry and nobody would give him a job. Once he asked Trina for money to buy beer. She flew into a rage. When he did manage to get a job, she took all his pay away from him and he submitted like a docile bear. In spite of their poverty, Trina's pile in her trunk kept on growing. She got one hundred and fifty dollars from the sale of their furniture. She lied cleverly about it to McTeague and spent more sweet stolen hours, counting and polishing endlessly the hoarded coins.

Maria came over to complain of Zerkow. "He's never been the same since the child died," she mumbled, in her hoarse unnatural voice. "He whips me with a long black whip. God! How it do hurt! He says he'll kill me if I dont tell him where my father's plate is hid. I dont know where it is. Seems like as if——" The woman broke off shudderingly.

"Don't be scared, Maria," said Trina not unkindly. "He'll never kill you, because if he does, he'll never find out where the treasure is. See?"

"Brew me a drop of tea," whined Maria, but Trina said she had none, and Maria went home where the frantic Zerkow, his patience at an end, awaited her.

In the morning Zerkow's body was found floating in the river and Maria lay at home, her head half severed from her body. Trina wept with fear and horror. "Two people dead," she thought, "and all for a treasure that never existed——" And she buried her face in the golden heap in her trunk and was comforted.

They moved into Maria and Zerkow's rooms, horrible and filthy tho they were. The rent was almost nothing. McTeague's idleness became habitual. Trina drove him out of the house every day rain or shine to look for work. He took to haunting the saloons and muttering against her. "Miser," he said over and over to himself. "She's a mean, rotten miser." He sold his beloved gold tooth for five dollars. Finally he sold his canary birds that he had loved. Trina demanded the money he got for them but he only said, "Shut up, or I'll bite your fingers for you. I'm sick of your damn stingy ways."

"You dont love me," said Trina starting to cry.

"No, by G——," shouted the man and left her standing in Zerkow's mouldy doorway.

Trina locked herself in her room with the grief-assuaging gold. She played with it with her poor mutilated fingers stained with liquid guilt from the toys. They glittered like the gold. Unholy glitter.

At eight o'clock McTeague had not come back and Trina went out to hunt for him. She went back to their old apartment. She went to his old office. She walked down to the river front. She wanted him very much. She had almost made up her mind to give up some of her precious savings by the time she got home. Once in her room, she fainted dead away. The lock of her trunk had been broken and the gold was gone.

In the morning a doctor came. He shook his head over her infected fingers. "They must be amputated," he said seriously, "or you will die."

Trina moaned, "Oh, my gold pieces! I could forgive him for this—my sore fingers—but not for stealing my money. I must get it back—my beautiful money——"

So three fingers were cut off and Trina found work scrubbing floors in a kindergarten. She mended the lock on her trunk, and started another bag of gold. But it was so slow to grow. She thought longingly of the five thousand dollars until she couldn't stand the strain any longer. She went to her Uncle and had him cash her check in twenty-dollar gold pieces. She took the heavy canvas bag home and untying the cords let the glittering rain pour down into her treasure chest. She took each piece between her little teeth. She held them against her cheek. She spread them out on her narrow bed and lay down and slept as tho she lay in a lover's arms.

At midnight McTeague knocked on the window. She awoke with a start, every sense alert, hurriedly covering up the gold pieces.

"Let me in," he barked hoarsely.

"No."

"I've not eaten since day before yesterday."

"What have you done with my four hundred and fifty?"

"Spent it, blew it in on drink. Give me a dime—or something to eat."

"No."

"All right, you dirty skinflint, I'll make you dance for this."

(Continued on page 92)

The wedding of Trina Sieppe and McTeague, where they all gorged themselves for an hour and a half

MISS LIZZIE ARNA, a popular German actress, who possesses "the perfect filming face"—whatever that is—has recently arrived at these shores from Bremen. In private life she is Mrs. Betty Schwartz. "Why 'Lizzie Arna'?" "Because," we like to believe she would answer, "Betty Schwartz is such an ugly name."

+ + +

Subtle art criticism in the movies: "Do you want to make your mother look like that?" demands the college professor in "Only 38" to the selfish daughter. He points an accusing finger at a picture on his office wall. The subsequent close-up reveals the picture to be Whistler's portrait of his mother.

+ + +

FROM THE MOUTHS OF BABES

We Interview Farina

The small yet adequate dressing-room was cheerfully hung with black striped cretonne, further embellished with generous slices of pink and green watermelon.

"Misto Honeyvale," remarked the gracious occupant and owner thereof, "jess you drape yo' pussinality in disyah Maurice chair whilst I camel-flags de rivishments of tempus."

We were in the dressing-room of Clarissa Myrtle Iphigenia Hoskins, the two-year-old coffee Cleopatra, known to a clamoring multitude as "Farina." Miss Hoskins (we cannot bring ourselves to the free and easy familiarity of her screen name) was performing mysterious feminine rites to her countenance with a Tootsie Roll—gilding the lily, as it were. Ensued the following conversation:

Us: To what do you attribute your great success, Miss Hoskins?

FARINA (suddenly dropping the beauty aid and sniffing delicately with sensitive nostrils): Chickum!

Us: Have you anything to say to the millions that applaud you? Have you no ideals to disclose, no little phrase of help, or cheer?

FARINA (a bit more positively): Chickum!

Us: You are young, it is true. Yet already you have gone far. In the coming years there is no telling—

FARINA (abruptly): I am my own best pal, and, I may add, my severest critic. Chickum!

Us: In our humble opinion, and we are not alone, Miss Hoskins, you are a great artist. Tell us your dreams, your hopes, your ambitions. Unclose a bit of that mystery which makes you so delightful, so refreshing, so ingenuous and endearing to us all. Come on, kid, dont be a crab.

A vagrant zephyr stirred the door of the little apartment. It carried with it an unmistakable odor, delightful and disturbing.

"Man, man!" muttered Miss Hoskins, completely convinced, "fried chickum!" Sliding from her chair she waddled with quiet dignity out of the room.

+ + +

On dit that a certain producer is considering the filming of certain of the works of Jules Verne. The first, obviously, will be "Two Thousand Klieds Under the Sea."

+ + +

Did you know that— Charles de Roche's right name is Charles de Rochefort?

Gloria Swanson makes the loveliest mayonnaise dressing?

Marion Davies is helping Einstein with his new book?

Constance Talmadge is closely related to Norma Talmadge?

Bebe Daniel's right name is Bebe Daniels? Dorothy Dalton never eats two helpings of dessert?

As a mere boy, we used to play with Dick Barthelmess?

+ + +

What's more we almost bought an automobile for Alice Brady, once. She had to have one, and she had to have one right away. And did we know of a good, snappy make? Well, little boys and girls, of course we did, and to help out her director we called up the — company and told them the glad news. Then we sat back and rubbed our hands, feeling pretty darn well satisfied.

Within ten minutes, the car arrived. Miss Brady rushed out to see it. "Is this the car you told me was such a snappy affair?" she asked.

"That's the kind," we assured her smiling, "our prettiest."

"Heavens!" exclaimed Miss Brady, "it's terrible! Take it away."

+ + +

RECENT EVENTS THAT HAVE MADE US REACH FOR THE
SODIUM BICARBONATE

What they did to Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street." . . . Lewis receiving fifty thousand dollars for letting them do it. . . . Louise Fazenda as the comic servant in "Main Street." . . . Alice Howell as the comic servant in "Wandering Daughters." . . . "Wandering Daughters." . . . The trick German police dog in the Tartar setting of "The Law of the Lawless." . . .

Decorations by Courtesy of Jaqueline Logan

A Renaissance Romance

The Sixteenth Century Entertains The Twentieth

Photographs by Reiss, Berlin

"Monna Vanna" is undoubtedly one of Maurice Maeterlinck's greatest plays. It has now been interpreted in terms of the screen by a German film company and will soon be released in the United States by our own Fox. An interesting fact about "Monna Vanna" is that it was inspired by and written for Georgette Le Blanc, Maeterlinck's first wife. When she divorced him she refused to accept any settlement from him, taking only this play as justly hers

Paul Wegner, the distinguished actor who played "The Golem," is cast as Guido Colonna, who is called upon to sacrifice his young wife for the starving Pisans. The famous and beautiful Lee Parry plays Monna Vanna. A gorgeously picturesque era, this fifteenth century Italian romance reconstructs for your edification and delight. We earnestly commend this sort of thing to your consideration

The Hollywood

Transcribed by

Lois Wilson and her sister, Constance, who has broken into the movies. She is leading lady for Walter Hiers in "Fair Week"

It looks as tho the little girls were going to climb back onto the throne after all. Some one had an inspiration a while back to change the screen type. Especially as regards altitude. Tall girls like Nita Naldi and Aileen Pringle and Katharine McDonald were thought to be about to rage. But the three sensations of the Hollywood season have all been tabloid young ladies.

They are Mary Philbin, who knocked a home-run in "Merry Go Round"; Lucile Rickson who, Marshall Neilan thinks, is the sensation of a dozen seasons and one of the most wonderful prospects he has ever known; and Renee Adoree.

Miss Adoree is Tom Moore's wife. She is a little French girl who has been working as an extra girl for some time, but got a sudden chance while Reginald Barker was making a Canadian Mounted Police picture originally called "The Law Bringers" but named everything else at various times since then. As a little French Canadian girl who is being brought back to be punished for murder by the man who loved her, she gives one of the finest performances that Hollywood has seen this year and seems to be-token the start of another big screen career.

* * *

Above: "It's not the humidity," says Corinne Griffith, "it's the heat!" and does what she can about it. Left: Cecil de Mille directing Ramses II in "The Ten Commandments"

They gave a trial performance of her picture the other night in a little theater in the suburbs. Everyone was very anxious to see the young star. At last some one discovered in a loge a girl with her hat hunched down over her eyes and a pair of dark glasses. Whereupon the official nudge was passed. "Ah, the modest star concealing herself."

After the performance the agitated and adoring audience followed her in a body to the street. Whereat the young lady looked about in mild surprise; took off her goggles and disclosed herself as somebody's mild and inoffensive stenographer.

* * *

George Fitzmaurice, who is directing Pola Negri in "The Cheat," showing her how to prepare the milk bath which is part of an exacting rôle

There is a dark rumor that Herr Ernst Lubitsch may go back to the Mary Pickford studio as Mary's permanent director. His contract with the Hamilton Company having expired, he was installed at the Warner Studio where he was to direct "Debureau." Something seemed to have failed to "jell" however, and Mary is reputed to be negotiating with him to return.

* * *

Lubitsch is unwilling to direct Mary's next picture, "Dorothy Vernon," however. Mary makes no secret of the fact that she thinks he is the most wonderful director she ever saw. The only trouble, he is a little too peppy for the censor. Those who were present when Mary was planning to picture "Faust" under his direction, tell me thrilling stories of how Mary and her fond mamma sat absolutely frozen with horror while Lubitsch described with excitement his version of the story in which Marguerite had a baby and, as Lubitsch said, "Dees is how she does when she strenkles the child. No? Yes?"

Boulevardier Chats

HARRY CARR

* * *

The Lubitsch family are now fascinated with two discoveries. Lubitsch has discovered American jazz. He goes to all the coon song shows and simply roars and doubles up with laughter. Mrs. Lubitsch, who is a charmingly pretty German actress, is excited over Esquimo pie. Whenever she mentions going back to Germany for a visit, her husband inquires quizzically, "but how you could live now without that Esquimo pie, yes?"

* * *

Deep, dark and mysterious are the visits of William Randolph Hearst to the Goldwyn Studios, with which his Cosmopolitan Pictures have lately become amalgamated. With Miss Marion Davies, the star of his pictures, he stalks solemnly thru the place. In his wake the other day came a tall, distinguished looking gentleman who had a pad of paper and pencil. Here and there he would stop people whom he met and inquire, "May I inquire who you are and what you do?" And when told by the trembling one, he would reply vaguely, "Ah yes," and walk on. Now what d' y' s'pose that means?

* * *

Douglas Fairbanks has begun his big "Thief of Bagdad" picture in the most gorgeous and magnificent set ever seen in Hollywood. They say it will be a picture along lines never before seen on a screen.

Regarding the last minute retirement of Evelyn Brent from the leading part and the substitution of Julanne Johnston, the "low down" is not so sensational, after all. Nobody believed the official announcement that Miss Brent was leaving because Douglas did not make enough pictures per year. The real reason is said to be simply that Miss Brent had become somewhat too heavy for the extremely svelte lines of the heroine. Not so thrilling after all.

* * *

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has made his

(Sixty-one)

Mabel Normand (would you ever guess it?) in the rôle of "The Extra Girl," her next Mack Sennett production

Above: George Melford and one of the homing pigeons he makes use of in "Salomy Jane." Right: Zane Grey, celebrated novelist, comes to the movies. Paramount is filming "To the Last Man," a typical Zane Grey story

Viola Dana gives a party to her friends on her own front lawn in Hollywood. Note the size of the friends

Here is a funny old picture of Rex Ingram when he was in the movies. The others are Lillian Walker and Earle Williams

Tom Mix shows an early American lady how to be beautiful the masculine. His next picture will be "North of Hudson Bay." Below is Tremont Lincoln Gentze's first birthday party, to which were invited all the movie starlets in Hollywood triumphant advent into Hollywood to star for the Lasky Company. Knowing that Douglas, Sr., bitterly resented the fact of the boy's being taken out of school at thirteen to be made into an actor, everyone wondered what would happen at the train when he came in. Douglas, Sr., gracefully evaded the difficulty by sending his brother to mingle with the in-laws of his former wife. Doug, Jr., goes over to his father's studio to play tennis with Dad every day.

* * *

A terrifying rumor creeps out that Hope Hampton yearns to emote and be Juliet and all such stuff. At present, she is making "The Gold Diggers" at Warner Brothers Studio. One of the thrills of "The Gold Diggers" is to be Louise Fazenda as a society queen. Altho she is never seen ordinarily except with her hair slicked back and falling all over something, Louise is in fact a very pretty girl.

"How do you like being all dressed up?" some one asked as she came on the set with a low-necked gown.

"Well," considered Louise, "it's all right, but you have to be so awfully clean. But anyhow it makes me feel wicked and expensive."

* * *

Let it be strictly understood that turnips are not in favor in the high places of Hollywood for the next few weeks. Elinor Glyn has returned to supervise the direction of "Three Weeks" at Goldwyns. And Elinor has a peculiar horror of turnips. Whether in some previous existence, she . . . Well, anyhow, during her last visit she was the guest of honor at a Hollywood soiree. She took one look at the dinner and staggered out. To an anxious inquiry, she said in an outraged voice. "Turnips! Turnips! Fancy their having turnips for me!"

* * *

To really "belong" now, you must have received a message from the spirit land from Honore Balzac, the French novelist. His grandniece is in Hollywood, hovering around the production of her revered ancestor's story, "The Magic Skin," being made into a picture by the Achievement Films of Philadelphia. It appears that Mlle. Balzac, who is a thrilling young lady with onyx eyes, has a line, now and then, from the spirit world in the hand-writings of the late Balzac. Everyone crowds into her dressing-room when the spirit moves. From his spirit world, Balzac knows just when all the assistant directors will get a job with the megaphone; when all the little extra girls are to be starred and the other secrets.

* * *

The big motion picture exposition which has been in the planning for so
(Continued on page 72)

THE STUDIO

A sketch by R. O. Ward of one of the big spotlights in the Film Guild's Studio

Rankest Treason

Verse and Pictures

By

DOROTHY ROSENCRANS BRIGHTON

Suppose that when a thought confronts Adonis
There is no mantel there 'pon which to lean,
His little belted back half turned upon us
And solemn thoughts aracing thru his bean.
But just supposing this, is rankest
treason
To all traditions—you see what I mean,
'Twould cause a riot surely, and with reason,
No man thinks, sans a mantel, on the screen.

Suppose that when a fire breaks out,
young cutie
Has gotten her hair braided for the night.
She doesn't look like such an awful
beauty
And yet no ruffled boudoir cap's in sight.
But just supposing this, is rankest
treason
To all traditions—this you've surely learned—
Before she'd be seen capless (what a reason)
She'd sit right in her bed and be all burned!

Suppose that when the heroine is pretty
They show no fancy ball nor bathing scene.
Not one small glimpse as Eve—ah,
such a pity,
And no flashback as slave or ancient queen.
But just supposing this, is rankest
treason
To all traditions—none save critics care
The plot is weakened; all the old and seasoned
Know 'tis not how she acts, but how she's fair.

Suppose that when the husband grows quite weary
And plans to leave his wife—aye—do her dirt—
She bids him fond farewell in accents cheery,
Her eyes quite dry, her manner quite alert.
But just supposing this, is rankest
treason
To all traditions—for when husbands flirt
There's one thing every movie wife agrees on:
It's time to rise and wave a Rubens shirt.

*Treason to the movies is punishable by death for the first offense; for the second,
a movie a night for fourteen years. Give us the first!*

As wonderful for a quick brilliant polish as Cutex is for smooth cuticle

For years you have known Cutex. You have blessed it a thousand times when you have been in such a hurry and you have just had to get those neglected nails shapely and gleaming. You have adored the little manicure sets. You have marvelled at the magic of their cake and powder polishes.

Now, after years of fastidious experiment, Cutex has perfected a wonderful new Liquid Polish, as splendid for a brilliant, lasting polish as Cutex is for giving soft, even cuticle.

In every particular, this Cutex Liquid Polish is ideal. It spreads smooth and thin. It dries almost instantly into such a lovely gleaming smoothness. It never leaves ridges or brush marks and it would never think of cracking or peeling off.

You will be simply delighted with its dainty rose lustre that lasts for a whole week. No matter how incessantly you use your hands, your nails will keep their smooth unbroken brilliance. Even water does not dim the lustre

No bother of a separate polish remover

And finally here is just another new convenience. You need never have the bother of a separate remover to take off the old polish. Just a touch of the polish itself wiped off while it is still wet will leave the nail absolutely free of the old polish and ready for the new application.

Cutex Liquid Polish, just like all the other Cutex preparations, is 35c separately. Or ask for the sets in which it comes. Sets are from 60c to $3.00.

This brilliant new polish spreads smooth and thin and gives a lasting rosy lustre. Even a week's dishwashing leaves it gleaming and unbroken

No separate remover is needed. Just use a touch of the polish itself and wipe off each nail

Special Introductory Set that includes the new polish — only 12c

Send 12c in stamps or coin with the coupon below for a special Introductory Set that contains trial sizes of Cutex Cuticle Remover, Liquid and Powder Polish, Cuticle Cream (Cuticle Comfort), emery board and orange stick. Address Northam Warren, 114 West 17th St., New York, or if you live in Canada, Dept. N-9, 200 Mountain St., Montreal, Can.

MAIL THIS COUPON WITH 12c TODAY

NORTHAM WARREN, Dept. N-9
114 West 17th St., New York

I enclose 12c in stamps or coin for new Introductory Set that includes a trial size of the Cutex Liquid Polish.

Name _____

Street
(or P. O. Box) _____

City _____

State _____

CUTEX Liquid Polish

Their Crowning Glory

Claire Windsor rolls her own—or—er—that is, fixes her own.
But then, of course, it is bobbed and that makes life comparatively simple for Claire. We wonder what proportion of cinema stars have bobbed their hair? It seems to be about fifty-fifty

Above: Mabel Normand's famous curls are arranged for her.
It is said that this is the only time
Mabel will sit still for more than five minutes.
Left: Agnes
Ayres has her coiffure retouch-
ed, so to speak,
before she goes on the set. This colored woman,
whose name has escaped us, "does"
the hair of at least half the cinemese in Hollywood

EVERY YOUNG WIFE MUST MAKE THIS DECISION

*What will her face be in one—
in five—in ten years' time?*

NEW surroundings—new responsibilities—new adjustments to life. And with all these a new loveliness in her face. Yet in a few years it has gone! What has become of it?

Should she have trusted this loveliness to keep on renewing itself through the strain of her new responsibilities? Did she allow the soft brilliance of her clear skin to grow dull—its smoothness to be marred by little roughnesses? So many girls lose this young freshness in the first few years of marriage.

But today they know that this loveliness must be guarded, that it will be lost unless the right care be given.

Many a wife has learned that she can keep her skin supple and lovely by giving it regularly the two fundamental things it needs to keep it young—a perfect cleansing at night and a delicate freshening and protection for the day. And she has learned that the Pond's Method of two creams based on these two essentials of her skin, brings more wonderful results than any other.

Two Creams—each different—each marvelous in its effect on her skin

Two Creams she would not give up for any others in the world! First the exquisite cleansing of Pond's Cold Cream that leaves her skin so delightfully fresh, so luxuriously soft. Then the instant freshening she adores with Pond's Vanishing Cream and its careful protection that she has learned prevents coarsening. These two creams keep for her the smoothness of texture and that particular fresh transparency that she wants to be her charm ten years from now as it is today.

DECIDE TO USE THIS FAMOUS METHOD

Keep your skin charmingly young—for years

Do this tonight. With the finger tips apply Pond's Cold Cream freely. The very fine oil in it softens your skin and penetrates every pore. Let it stay on a minute—now wipe it off with a soft cloth. The black that comes off shows you how carefully this cream cleanses. Do this twice. Your skin looks fresh and is beautifully supple.

Then in the morning, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream lightly over your whole face. Now if you wish, rouge—powder. How smooth and velvety your face feels to your hand. The appearance of your skin and the compliments of your friends for as long as you use these Two Creams will prove to you how wonderful they keep your skin. Begin tonight to use Pond's Two Creams regularly—buy both creams in any drug or department store. The Pond's Extract Company.

Photo by Lejaren A. Hiller Studios

*Every skin needs these Two Creams—Pond's
Cold Cream for cleansing, Pond's Vanishing Cream to protect and to hold the powder*

GENEROUS TUBES—MAIL COUPON WITH 10c TODAY

The Pond's Extract Co., 132T Hudson St., New York

Ten cents (10c) is enclosed for your special introductory tubes of the two creams every normal skin needs—enough of each cream for two weeks' ordinary toilet uses.

Name.....

Street

City

Two Down, And One to Go

Milton Sills as Roy Glennister, and Noah Beery as McNamara, stage a pretty fight in "The Spoilers." This is an example of the terrific reality of the modern motion picture. No more doubles, no more fakes to mar the illusion of real people doing real things

Keeping your child's hair beautiful

What a mother can do to keep her child's hair healthy—fine, soft and silky—bright, fresh-looking and luxuriant

THE beauty of your child's hair depends upon you, upon the care you give it.

Shampooing it properly is the most important thing.

It is the shampooing which brings out all the real life and lustre, the natural wave and color, and makes the hair soft, fresh and luxuriant.

While children's hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, their fine, young hair and tender scalps cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why discriminating mothers, everywhere, now use Mulsified coconut oil shampoo. This clear, pure, and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and it does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

When oily, dry or dull

If your child's hair is too oily, or too dry; if it is dull and heavy, lifeless, stiff and gummy; if the strands cling together, and it feels harsh and disagreeable to the touch; or if dandruff is accumulating, it is all due to improper shampooing.

You will be delighted to see how easy it is to keep your child's hair looking beautiful, when you use Mulsified coconut oil shampoo.

The quick, easy way

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly.

Simply pour the Mulsified evenly over the hair and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out quickly and easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil—the chief causes of all hair troubles.

After a Mulsified shampoo you will find the hair will dry quickly and evenly and have the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it really is. It keeps the scalp soft and healthy, the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified at any drug store or toilet goods counter, anywhere in the world. A 4-ounce bottle should last for months.

Mulsified

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Cocoanut Oil Shampoo

Splendid for Children—Fine for Men

The Movie Encyclopaedia

by
THE ANSWER MAN

THE OL' LADY.—No, I remember your letter well. I wish you could have had a dictagraph in my office when I read your letter. You would have heard some nice things. So you dont think the falcon in "Robin Hood" should have had a bonnet on. Maybe you're right. I agree with you on the second, but you want to calm down to low speed on your third. Yes, Arline Pretty is. Thanks, and do come again.

GINGER.—Thanks for your valuable hints on how to economize. What we all want however is some hints on how to live without economizing. About Herbert Rawlinson—he was born in England and is not married now. Vincent Coleman is married. Baby Peggy's parents are alive and she is playing in Universal's "Editha's Burglar."

JOE C.—Welcome, since this is your first letter to me. Betty Compson is at present in Europe playing in pictures. Gloria Swanson is not married now. Thanks, and come again.

REGGIE.—Yes, Reggie is a cute name as you say, but what is the rest of it?

RAMON NOVARRO FAN.—You are a wonder. Most girls would rather admit that they are thirty than to admit that they snore. His real name is Ramon Sammanyagos. Address him at the Metro Studios, 1025 Lillian Way, Los Angeles, Cal.

GALEE.—I cant say that I agree with you. I prefer feasting to fasting. Ask Edward our office boy. He knows. Thanks for the information. Constance Talmadge is five feet five. Well I am glad you dont think I am a woman.

PAULINE B.—So you are in love! Whew! Love is like hash, you never can tell what you are likely to find in it. Yes, the Valentinos are touring at this writing. No, "Footlights" is one play, and "Footlights and Shadows" another. Yes, Richard Barthelmess is quite in love with his baby.

JOHN Z.—You mustn't mind that. A woman is built to worry about somebody's staying out late at night, and if it isn't a man, it's the hired girl, or the cat. Thanks, that was Jack Mower as the policeman in "Manslaughter." My error, please forgive. Cullen Landis and Helene Chadwick are married, but not to each other. Thomas Meighan at the Famous Players Studio, Astoria, L. I.

E. F. L.—Thanks—you say that you know Malcolm McGregor is married and has a daughter three or four years old.

DOLLY BUBBLES.—Thanks for the violet. It doesn't require nerve to write to me. Thomas Meighan in "The Ne'er Do Well" and "Homeward Bound." Marie Walcamp is not playing now. Yes, Leatrice Joy is 24. No but Juanita Hanson expects to go on the stage. Thomas Meighan was born in Pittsburgh. In January—the fifth. Yes indeed, to your P. S.

FRECKLES.—The trouble is, many people when they get married, quit being friends. Here goes—Jack Holt is married and has three children. Playing in "A Gentleman of Leisure" for Famous Players.

TEMPERAMENTAL SIXTEEN.—I suppose the reason that so many people tell me their troubles is because they haven't anybody else to tell them to. Misery loves company, but company does not love misery. No, Kenneth Harlan is not married yet. Flo Hart was his first wife. Gloria Swanson is twenty-six. Lewis Stone is married and Viola Dana was born in Brooklyn. So long.

MAVIS M.—You seem to have more respect for the opinions of our ancestors than I have. Since they came first, are they not the younger, and therefore the less experienced. Yes, you were right. Kenneth Harlan and Florence Vidor are playing in "The Virginian." You have the same favorites I have. Righto!

BETTY MARIE.—I am not so good as you think I am. I have many vices, but my principal vice is advice. Kenneth Harlan has been married once. That was Lloyd Hughes.

FANNY H.—Very few companies are buying original scripts these days. You want to write a stage play in order to make money in the movies. About two hundred words to a reel.

TINKER BOB.—I dont mind answering questions, but when I am asked such questions as What is the secret of life—that ignis fatuus of the scientists of all ages, and about the atomic theory in reference to ether, and about the adequacy or inadequacy of vaccine, about the physical basis of solar chemistry, about the immortality of the soul, about the theory of the cloud belts of Jupiter and Saturn being raised by the sun's heat, about the single authorship of the Iliad, and so on, I must reluctantly and humbly say, "I pass." You want more of Pat and Micky Moore. Just a little—more!

Y. Y. U. R.—Glad you liked the music. Even a hand-organ sounds good to a person in love. So you dont think I am as old as I say, my answers are too peppy. I sprinkle them with cayenne you know. Claire Windsor in "The Acquittal" with Norman Kerry and Richard Travers.

RUDDY'S FRIEND.—He's got plenty of them too. You know that there was a disagreement in his contract which forbids Valentino from playing in any other company but Famous Players for almost two years.

HILARY T.—Well, in the long run you will find that it is much cheaper to learn from other people's experiences than to let them learn from yours. Casson Ferguson is no relation to Elsie Ferguson. At this writing the Bushmans are traveling, but mail will reach them at the Hotel Majestic, New York City.

MARIE C.—So you have heard a lot about Henry VIII, but you want to know more. Did you know that he applied unsuccessfully to the Pope for a divorce from Catherine of Aragon, his wife; so he had himself declared head of the church; married Anne Boleyn after the convocations of York and Canterbury had declared his marriage with Catherine invalid. He had Anne Boleyn executed in 1536 and married Jane Seymour ten days after the execution; in 1538 he was excommunicated by the Pope. His third wife having died in 1537, he married Anne of Cleves in 1540; was divorced from her the same year and married Catherine Howard, who was executed on a charge of adultery in 1542, and married Catherine Parr in 1543 and she survived him. Not such a dull life. What! Well I am glad you received Ramon Novarro's picture. Now I suppose you are happy. Thanks.

PATRICIA P.—Joseph Striker was Jacques in "The Woman in Chains."

MARILYN C.—I dont see how they can keep up your spirits by preventing us from putting them down. Kenneth Harlan is twenty-eight. No, I am not married. Single blessedness for mine.

MARGARET R.—But they do say that when Hope Hampton arrived in California three of the four Warner Brothers were at the train to meet her and she was presented with a $3,000 automobile which came as a total surprise. Aren't some people lucky? Lloyd Hughes is married to Gloria Hope. More Hope.

FORGET-ME-NOT.—Why "Robin Hood" was the hero of a group of old English ballads; represented as an outlaw and a robber, but of a gallant and generous nature, whose familiar haunts are the forests of Sherwood and Barnsdale, where he fleets the time carelessly in the merry greenwood. There is no evidence that "Robin Hood" was ever

(Continued on page 73)

This department is for information of general interest only. Those who desire answers by mail, or a list of film manufacturers, with addresses, must enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address all inquiries: The Answer Man, CLASSIC, Brewster Buildings, Brooklyn, N. Y. Use separate sheets for matters intended for other departments of this magazine. Each inquiry must contain the correct name and address of the inquirer at the end of the letter, which will not be printed. At the top of the letter write the name you wish to appear, also the name of the magazine you wish your inquiry to appear in. Those desiring immediate replies or information requiring research, should enclose additional stamp or other small fee; otherwise all inquiries must wait their turn. Let us hear from you.

A Twin Complexion Treatment

IT is hard to think of the sun and the wind as injurious influences; yet to the delicate skin of the refined woman neither is an unmixed blessing.

Both sunburn and windburn are drying, roughening, and coarsening to the complexion; while the dust that accompanies wind tends to clog the pores.

Pompeian Day Cream is a harmless preparation of exquisite fineness made to protect the skin during the activities of the day from exposure to the elements.

Not Entirely Oilless

Unlike some "disappearing" creams, Pompeian Day Cream is not entirely oilless; on the contrary, it contains just sufficient oil to make it desirable for naturally dry as well as for normal or oily skins, and to offset the drying effects of sun and wind.

Restoration by Night, with Pompeian Night Cream

To all appearances Pompeian Day Cream vanishes upon application; it actually leaves an invisible film on the skin which serves as a protection against weather; furthermore, this soft, dull film eliminates and prevents shine and makes a powder foundation to which Pompeian Beauty Powder will adhere evenly and smoothly for a long time.

The sleeping hours may be made a period of benefit or of harm to the complexion, according to whether the skin is properly prepared for natural restoration or carelessly left to the heavy hand of time.

Protection by Day, with Pompeian Day Cream

If a woman retires with her pores filled with the dust and grime of the day, with her skin dried and roughened, wrinkled by mental concentration or worry, then the night hours will serve to perpetuate these faults.

How to Keep the Skin in Condition

But if she will follow the simple night treatment recommended she can clear the pores, soften and soothe the skin, relax the facial muscles, subdue the wrinkles, and nourish the underlying tissues.

First, a cleansing with Pompeian Night Cream, then a second application gently smoothed into the pores, and she is ready to let the great restorer, "balmy sleep," repair the ravages of the day.

The Twin Treatment

The twin complexion treatment of Pompeian Day Cream and Pompeian Night Cream provides the two essentials of day-time protection and night-time restoration. If faithfully used, these two preparations alone will enable any woman to greatly prolong her hold on a youthful complexion.

- POMPEIAN NIGHT CREAM (New style jar) 60c per jar
- POMPEIAN DAY CREAM..... 60c per jar
- POMPEIAN FRAGRANCE..... 25c a can

- POMPEIAN BEAUTY POWDER... 60c per box
- POMPEIAN BLOOM (the rouge)... 60c per box
- POMPEIAN LIP STICK..... 25c each

Mary Pickford Panel and Samples

Send the coupon with ten cents for beautiful new 1923 Pompeian Art Panel of Mary Pickford. With this panel we send samples of Pompeian Night Cream, Day Cream, Beauty Powder, and Bloom.

POMPEIAN LABORATORIES, 2128 PAYNE AVENUE, CLEVELAND, OHIO
Also Made in Canada

Pompeian Creams

© 1923, The Pompeian Co.

(Seventy-one)

Your Skin Needs Special Care in the Autumn

By MME. JEANNETTE

As a rule a woman is in her best health with the beginning of the autumn.

But how about her skin? Frequently she is aware that she has been negligent in her care of it during the lazy months of summer.

I have said it before, and I will continue to say, "Consistency is the virtue in caring for your skin." You are nourishing its tissues; and it is very like your body—you can't eat a surfeit of good food for a week and then forget to eat for the week that follows! Yet you do this when you use complexion creams only part of the time.

At Night—

Soap and water is the habitual way of most women in cleansing the skin; but Pompeian Night Cream is, in many cases, more thoroughly cleansing.

Pompeian Night Cream may be used as lavishly as the individual user desires; there is no such thing as using too much, but enough should be used to cover every part and feature of the face, as well as the neck and the arms, if they too would be kept in beautiful condition.

I do not advise too much rubbing and massaging—just enough to thoroughly distribute the cream. When you remove it with a soft cloth, all dirt and dinginess is also removed, leaving your skin soft and smooth and lovely to the touch.

In the Morning—

In the morning you will find that the night treatment has prepared your skin to gratefully accept an application of Pompeian Day Cream. This is a foundation cream for the day's powder and rouge, and it is a protection to the skin as well.

Then the Powder—

If the autumn finds the skin still somewhat darker than usual, you should use a darker tint of powder than you customarily do. Pompeian Beauty Powder in the Rachel tint may be used on naturally fair complexions until care has restored their own delicate pinks and white tones, when one may again use the White or Flesh shades.

Cover the face and neck well with the powder, and then dust it off lightly and evenly, moistening the eyebrows, eyelashes, and lips to remove any traces of powder from them.

Mme. Jeannette

Specialiste en Beauté

TEAR OFF, SIGN, AND SEND

POMPEIAN LABORATORIES
2128 Payne Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio
Gentlemen: I enclose 10c (a dime preferred) for 1923 Art Panel of Mary Pickford and the four samples named in offer.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____

Flesh shade powder sent unless you write another below

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 62)

SEM-PRAY JO-VE-NAY

Sempre Giovine

Meaning
"Always Young"

The Pink
Complexion Cake

60c

Oh, Youth! Tender as the blush of early dawn and fresh as the sparkling dew! What can I do to preserve thee! This longing finds echo in every human heart.

Youth is not merely a matter of years—for the old may look young and the young may look old. A fine, clear complexion gives youth to the appearance. Keep your complexion "always young" with Sem-Pray Jo-Ve-Nay.

A Smooth Satiny Skin

results from the use of this fragrant complexion cake, requiring three months in the making and composed of the very affinity oils of the skin itself.

It cleanses — nourishes — beautifies — rids the pores entirely of dust and black-heads, makes a splendid powder foundation and produces a smoothness as velvety as roses' petals.

Prove to yourself that such a wonder beauty cake really exists by sending your name and address for a 7 day trial size cake free. It will show you why those who use Sem-Pray Jo-Ve-Nay are "always young."

Sem-pray Jo-ve-nay Company
Dept. 12-76
Grand Rapids, Michigan

A Powder Foundation
— 50c

Exquisitely
Perfumed
— 50c

Natural Health Tins
— 50c

long, opened July 2 in Los Angeles. It is a grand affair in honor of the Centennial of the Monroe Doctrine. It isn't clear just what the Monroe Doctrine had to do with the motion picture industry. But anyhow the United States Government was sufficiently impressed to issue special souvenir half dollars.

* * *

Bill Hart, who has gone thru a long cruel experience with his domestic trials and tribulations, has decided to return to the business of making motion pictures. He is to begin at once at the Lasky studio.

* * *

A terrible rumor has it that Jane Cowl intends to film "Juliet" when she comes to the Coast with her dramatic company. All this will do will be to drive two young ladies to the brink of suicide. Both Norma Talmadge and Mary Pickford hanker and yearn to play Juliet on the screen sometime. Norma wants to wait until she can get Valentino as Romeo; Mary's difficulty is that she can't persuade Doug to play Romeo. She realizes that it would be taking a long box-office chance to film Shakespeare; a handicap which would be overcome if Douglas and she were to appear together.

* * *

One of the most interesting openings ever held in Hollywood took place at the Writers' Club the other night when "The Talisman," the first production of the Associated Authors, was shown. It is practically a sequel of "Robin Hood," taking up the adventures of Richard the Lion Hearted after Robin Hood turned back to England. The audience was thrilled when the King referred feelingly on the screen to the "Earl of Huntingdon whom I treated unjustly" and a piece of the real "Robin Hood" film flashed on, with Doug and all the rest of it.

* * *

Charlotte Merriam, one of the newest invaders of Hollywood, was an army girl; born in Fort Sheridan. Her father is Col. Henry Clay Merriam, commanding officer at Fort Preble. She shoots and rides and swims. On a recent location tour in Inyo county where she was making exteriors for "The Huntress," Colleen Moore and Snitz Edwards collaborated on a barbecue for forty Indians who worked in the piece.

* * *

Charlie Chaplin has settled the question which has been agitating the public mind. He is not going to retire. After he finishes the cutting of "Public Opinion," the dark and tragic play which he has been directing, he will take a vacation; then begin work on a five-reel comedy.

(Continued on page 74)

A kiss in the movies by Corinne Griffith and Frank Mayo. It is from "Six Days," but six days for this sort of thing isn't nearly long enough more than a mere creation of the popular imagination. Why, Conway Tearle is five feet eleven and Betty Blythe five feet seven. Adele Rowland had a small part in "Vanity Fair." Lionel Barrymore after "Eyes That Wont See" expects to return to the stage under Belasco.

The Movie Encyclopædia

(Continued from page 70)

IRISU.—You say you want interviews with Richard Dix, Conrad Nagel and Thomas Meighan. I'll speak to Susan Elizabeth Brady about that.

OLGA 17.—Good morning glory! I see you are here again. Welcome to our city. Always glad to see your name at the top of a sheet, for then I am sure to read some sensible questions and comments. I agree with you about "Glimpses of the Moon." So Ramon Novarro is your Crane Wilbur of old. Write me soon again.

ROSALIE.—The best benevolence is that which comes from hidden sources. I thank you. We published a list of the studio addresses recently. You want Norma Talmadge on the cover. How do you like this one?

RUTH K.—Yes, I live alone. Many of our great men, including myself, lived alone, or were addicted to seclusions, including Swift, Goethe, Shakespeare and Thoreau. Yes, Ruth Roland is thirty-one and has hazel eyes. Norma Talmadge twenty-eight and brown eyes. Bert Lytell is married to Evelyn Vaughn. Harrison Ford has brown eyes.

H. B.—Address William Farnum at Fox Studios, Los Angeles, Cal.

BLUE EYES.—Thanks for the new name you give me—multum in parvo. I hope that as time goes on it will be more in little, and finally much in more. Tom Mix is with Fox. His last picture was "Tempered Steel." Warner Baxter in "If I were Queen." Yes, "The Remittance Woman." Dont mention it.

DESEMONA.—Since you insist upon knowing, my beard turned grey before the hair on my head. Altho the former was about thirty years younger. I suppose it was because I worked my jaws more than my brains. No, I dont happen to know what Pearl White's mother's name is or was. Is it any wonder my head is bald? Bebe Daniels is with Famous Players.

DOUG. MCL.—Sobiet! Yes, Lionel Barrymore is now married to Irene Fenwick, the stage star, and Doris Rankin, his former wife, is now married again. Just a ease of no time lost. H. B. Walthall and Alice Lake in "The Unknown Purple."

SUNSHINE.—Well, I presume one would say Oxford ties. Norma Talmadge is doing "Dust of Desire." Ernest Truex and Florence Eldridge in "Six Cylinder Love" for Fox.

MARY LEE.—I cant say that I admire those new fashions. It has always been a mystery to me why women's legs dont get cold in winter. Creighton Hale is playing in "Broken Hearts of Broadway" and "Trilby."

BLYTHE I.—Well, I advise you not to marry for money unless you want to trade your liberty for a golden collar that will always be uncomfortable. You want to see Jack Gilbert, Tom Mix and Carol Dempster in the gallery. They will all appear in due time.

YVONNE.—The female of the species usually write longer letters. So you are going back to college. Good for you. Wish I could go too. There is so much to know. Even at eighty I dont know it all. You want to see more of Pauline Garon and Mae Murray. Cheer up. Better times coming.

(Continued on page 79)

(Seventy-three)

Enjoy thirst-

At a cool and cheerful place, he rules with a smile of welcome. He's quick with his hands and quick with his thought, and he knows how to serve just what you want - when you come in all thirsty and hot.

Drink

Coca-Cola

Delicious and Refreshing

5¢

The Coca-Cola Company
Atlanta, Ga

$15.00 an ounce

$8.00 a half
ounce

The Most Precious Perfume in the World

RIEGER'S FLOWER DROPS are unlike anything you have ever seen before. The very essence of the flowers themselves, made without alcohol. For years the favorite of women of taste in society and on the stage.

The regular price is $15.00 an ounce, but for 20c you can obtain a miniature bottle of this perfume, the most precious in the world. When the sample comes you will be delighted to find that you can use it without extravagance. It is so highly concentrated that the delicate odor from a single drop will last a week.

Sample 20¢

Send 20c (stamps or silver) with the coupon below and we will send you a sample vial of Rieger's Flower Drops, the most alluring and most costly perfume ever made.

Your choice of odors, Lily of the Valley, Rose, Violet, Romanza, Lilac or Crabapple. Twenty cents for the world's most precious perfume!

Other Offers

Director from Druggists
Bottle of Flower Drops with long glass stopper, containing 20 drops, a supply for 80 weeks.

Lilac, Crabapple, $1.50

Lily of the Valley, $2.00

Rose, Violet, $2.50

Romanza, $2.50

Above odors, 1 oz. $1.50

Mon Amour Perfume, sample offer, 1 oz. $1.50

Souvenir Box

Extra special box of five 25c bottles of five different perfumes, $1.00

If any perfume does not exactly suit your taste, do not hesitate to return and money will be refunded cheerfully.

TRADE MARK REGISTERED
Rieger's
PERFUME & TOILET WATER
Flower Drops

Send The Coupon Now!

Paul Rieger & Co., (Since 1872)
159 First Street, San Francisco

Enclosed find 20c for which please send me sample bottle of Rieger's Flower Drops in the odor which I have checked.

Lily of the Valley Rose Violet
 Romanza Lilac Crabapple

Name.....

Address.....

Souvenir Box—$1.00 enclosed.

.....$..... enclosed.

Remember, if not pleased your money will be returned.

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 72)

I have given up guessing about this romance stuff, but anyhow Charlie is building a new house at Beverly Hills and Pola is helping to pick out the furniture. You can make whatever you choose out of that.

* * *

I don't know what name will be on the screen as purported the author of Jack Pickford's new story of the Kentucky mountains; but I can tell you who really wrote it: Sister Mary. It seems that Jack could not find a story, so Mary, between whiles of her own production, "The Street Singer," just licked the end of her pencil and thought deeply and—well, there's the story.

* * *

Little Beth Milford, who is to play the leads in H. C. Witwer's "Fighting Blood" stories, stepped out of the Music Box Revue to play the part. She cherishes a note as a farewell souvenir. It seems that one night she received a note from Frances Starr, who was sitting in a box, asking her if she would not pose for a painting for Miss Starr's husband, Haskell Coffin. She did so and it led to a picture contract.

(Continued on page 85)

Photograph by John Ellis

At the top of the page is one of the many beautiful scenes from "The Girl of the Golden West"

"Big Tree," a full-blooded Apache Indian, appearing in Reginald Barker's "The Master Woman"

How the One Natural Color for Cheeks Was Found

Day and Night Tests That Told Why Rouge's Familiar Shade Was Wrong—and Eventually Duplicated Nature's Own Color

MOST WOMEN now know and use the new natural tint which is fast replacing the unscientific and unsatisfactory purplish-red rouges. But how many are aware of the peculiarly interesting story of its discovery?

We are apt to take the most marvelous discoveries of this age as a matter of fact—even one of such importance to the realm of beauty as a tint that is a perfect match for Nature's own artistry! Suddenly science gives the world of women a tint which tinges the cheeks in such a true tone as the very strongest sun's rays, or the weirdest effects of night lighting cannot separate from the underlying flesh tone, and we accept it without thought of how it came to be. Yet behind the simple, single tint which gives any and all complexions a divine and perfectly natural mantle of color is the story of man's indomitable perseverance—two years' ceaseless experiment—over two hundred failures, and eventual success.

The search for the perfect tint led a dignified scientist to a cellar's depths—and to the roof of a city's tall skyscraper. Tint after tint—tone upon tone—were tried in every conceivable light. In noon's glare, atop a high roof. In the streets below, where the sun's rays filtered through fog and smoke. And in the artificial lights of night—trying lights in which old-fashioned rouges all became the same ghastly, or unlovely purplish red.

"In Noon's Glare, Atop a High Roof"

On a patient assistant's cheeks shade after shade was tried. Some of the shades required ingredients from far countries—many were days in the blending. Then, suddenly it happened.

"Beneath Trying Artificial Light"

The Tint That Was Tried In Desperation

One morning the scientist used in his mortar one of the rarest ingredients in the laboratory. It was of peculiar orange hue.

Scarcely a color to try on the cheeks! But he idly applied it on his assistant's cheeks—and a startling change took place. The peculiar orange tint altered instantly to the true tone of the skin beneath! Still doubtful that he had found the one key tint for any complexion—under all conditions—in every light—they hurried to the roof and put the new tint to the severe test of direct sunlight. The same beautifully diffused, natural color! Down to a darkened room, where neither glaring incandescent lamps nor variously shaded rays of electric light revealed anything but a coloring that appeared Nature's own! The same day, preparations were started to supply the demand that such a discovery was certain to create. Now, this new Princess Pat Tint is an article of standard use.

It enhances the color of countless women who had steadfastly declined to use any of the old-fashioned rouges which are so obvious in even the kindest light.

Princess Pat Tint is Waterproof!

Where the new natural tint is made, further improvements have transpired; a less costly use of the chief ingredient has brought its price within reach of all; an entirely new process has rendered it absolutely waterproof! Even a morning in the surf will not streak it! Princess Pat Tint is not affected by perspiration, so it is worn without concern the day long, or evening through! Yet it vanishes instantly with a touch of cream, or use of soap.

On any complexion, remember there is need for only one shade. There is no uncertainty of matching; for the one tint is instantaneously transformed to blend with any type—blonde, medium or brunette; and this tint may be applied as lightly or as full and deep as you choose—with the same perfection of result.

FREE

Until the shops have been sufficiently stocked with Princess Pat Tint to meet all calls for it, we shall take pleasure in sending to individuals a week's supply—without charge. At no cost to you and without any obligation, your prompt use of coupon below will bring to you Princess Pat new, natural tint.

PRINCESS PAT, LTD.,
2701 So. Park Ave., Dept. 49, Chicago

ENTIRELY FREE, please forward me postpaid, a complimentary supply of the new Princess Pat Tint.

Name (Print).....
Street.....
City.....

Princess Pat

The New, Natural Tint : Always Ask for It by Name

PRINCESS PAT, LTD., CHICAGO, U. S. A.

Princess Pat Tint Ice Astringent Creams Almond Base Powder Princess Pat Perfume

(Seventy-five)

A new use for an old friend

Many users of Listerine have never discovered the unusual properties as a perspiration deodorant, peculiar to this well-known antiseptic.

Many times you don't have access to—or time for—a tub or shower. Yet so often your fastidious inclinations will not permit you to be comfortable in going out without considering these things. Right there Listerine steps in as a friend in need. You simply apply this dependable antiseptic with a towel or wash cloth. Note how delightful and exhilarating the effect really is.

It is an interesting thing that this scientific preparation that has been used for so many years as a surgical dressing should possess these remarkable properties as a deodorant.

Moreover it is absolutely safe. It will not irritate the most sensitive skin nor injure the most fragile fabric. You will be delighted with this new use.—
Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, U. S. A.

LISTERINE

—the safe
antiseptic

The Girl Who Couldn't Stop Crying

(Continued from page 39)

When the World War broke out, she was dancing with her brother and sister in Brussels. There was a rumor in the city that the British troops were coming to the rescue. So they all rushed out to cheer. Only they turned out to be Germans instead.

German sentries were on every street corner and she was to all intents and purposes a prisoner of war. It was no part of her intentions to stay cooped up in Brussels however. By dodging sentries, she reached a railroad station and hid in one of the freight cars. In that way she finally got to Ghent and from there the Belgian train men helped her to get to Calais.

She managed to get herself across the Channel and found an engagement in London in a big musical comedy in which she made a great hit with a specialty dance. She went back to Paris and was one of the big hits of the Folies Bergère.

After the war, she made her way, dancing all the while, to Australia, by way of Canada, arriving in Canada just in time to get into the Halifax disaster.

She was dancing in New York when Sam Goldwyn saw her and persuaded her into pictures. The leading man of her first picture was Tom Moore who persuaded her into matrimony.

Not very long ago, Moore went to London to do a picture and the little bride went along. They visited his old home in Ireland and then came back home to America. The day they landed in New York Moore had an offer to do a picture there.

But not for Renee—too cold. She came out to the Coast to get warm and it proved to be her great opportunity.

Until this Barker picture, her two biggest parts were in "The Strangers' Banquet" and Fox's "The Strongest."

DISILLUSION

By EDWARD H. PFEIFFER

I walk thru the darkness
With silence, my friend.
I am dreaming of lovers
And love without end.

A dark form is pressing
A woman's bright face.
A pang of sweet envy—
I slacken my pace.

I grope and draw nearer,
And peer thru the night . . .
'Tis only a shadow
Embracing a light!

(Seventy-six)

The Genius of Gesture

(Continued from page 35)

Nonsense Rhyme. Fantastic "ifs" such as these might etch a Joseph Schildkraut.

A young man, twenty-seven, young and beautiful and gifted. A young man sought by the world. You might assume that he would in turn seek the world again, dance in it, dine with it, make merry with it. But he doesn't. He has never accepted a social invitation. He never dances. He never dines out. When he is not on the stage he is in the dim and book-lined room, reading. Living, I suppose. Living his own life, perhaps, more authentically than most of us do. He knows about six people well. Of these six, three are his mother, his father and his wife.

The world, he says, is not interested in Joseph Schildkraut, the man. But only in The Chevalier and in Lilium and in Peer Gynt. The men he is on stage and screen. Very well, they shall have him as Lilium and Peer Gynt, but Joseph Schildkraut they shall not have.

He shrinks from "Fame," and asks what is it?

Acting seems futile . . . it may have been a mood. If one writes a book, or a poem, if one paints a picture, one survives. One goes on. One is preserved for posterity. But an actor! A shadow across a screen. When an actor is gone, when his little day is done, what remains of him? What has he left? Nothing. A name. A memory. Fragile gifts to the generations. He struts, the actor, a few slight hours upon the boards in other guises than his own, and then is gone.

Posterity is the only reality. The only worth-while thing.

"I should like to be a bank-clerk, with children . . . but of course, I shall have children. Children are what we fling ahead of us into the ages. Children are our immortality."

Another curiousness, that he should be so lightly touched with Egomania as to care so deeply about the Tomorrows that will not know him, save by name.

Out of the world he knows he has picked Beauty and Posterity as the final essentials. Beauty of living. Beauty of loving. We, the World, are afraid of these two, he says. Either we bruise them or we turn away from them. And Posterity. For posterity there should be survivals of art, children, symbols of immortality.

Perhaps, he suggested, he hasn't had to struggle enough. With him,

(Seventy-seven)

Why Women Smile

As they never did before

Teeth are prettier today—Millions combat film

Most pictures are now taken with a smile, showing pretty teeth.

Look about you. Note how many smiles now show glistening teeth. That was not always so.

Millions of people are now using a new teeth-cleaning method. Every day they are combating the dingy film on teeth. You will also do so when you make this test and see the quick results.

Film is unsightly

It is film that makes teeth dingy—that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. If not frequently removed, it may form cloudy coats. It is also the basis of tartar.

That film absorbs stains, so the teeth look discolored. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

Dental science has long been seeking ways to fight that film. Two ways have now been found. Together they act to curdle the film and then remove it.

Able authorities have proved their efficiency. Now leading dentists the world over are advising their daily use.

A new-type paste

A new-type tooth paste has been created, to comply with all modern requirements. The name is Pepsodent.

These two film combatants are embodied in it. Millions of people have adopted it, largely by dental advice. To the homes of fifty nations it is bringing a new dental era.

Pepsodent brings two other very important effects. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise cling and form acids. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

Thus every use of Pepsodent gives manifold power to Nature's great tooth-protecting forces in the mouth.

Results are quick

Results are quick and convincing. You can see and feel them.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Cut out the coupon now.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Pepsodent PAT. OFF.
REG. U.S.

The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific film combatant, which whitens, cleans and protects the teeth without the use of harmful grit. Now advised by leading dentists the world over.

10-Day Tube Free ¹¹⁹⁶

THE PEPSODENT COMPANY,
Dept. 200, 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Mail 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent to

.....
.....

Only one tube to a family.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$7.00 & $8.00 SHOES FOR MEN AND WOMEN
ALSO MANY STYLES AT $5.00 & $6.00

W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES ARE ACTUALLY DEMANDED YEAR AFTER YEAR BY MORE PEOPLE THAN ANY OTHER SHOES IN THE WORLD

ESTABLISHED 1876

They are made of the best and finest leathers, by skilled shoemakers, all working to make the best shoes for the price. The quality is unsurpassed. The smart styles are the leaders in the fashion centers of America. The wide range in kinds, styles and prices provides suitable shoes for every occasion, business, travel and motoring. Shoes of equal quality cannot be bought elsewhere at anywhere near our prices.

Why pay high prices for shoes? Try W. L. Douglas $8.00 shoes, the shoes that hold their shape. If you had your shoes made to order you couldn't get more perfect shoes; they are exceptionally good value. Frankly, is it not worth while in these days of high cost of living for you to save money on your footwear when the opportunity offers?

For thirty-seven years W. L. Douglas name and portrait have stood for a high standard of quality and dependable value. For economy and satisfactory service, wear shoes that bear this trade mark. Ask your dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. Look for W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the sole. Refuse substitutes.

IF NOT FOR SALE IN YOUR VICINITY, WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED CATALOG SHOWING HOW TO ORDER SHOES BY MAIL. POSTAGE FREE. 174 Spark Street, Brockton, Mass.

TO MERCHANTS: If no dealer in your town handles W. L. Douglas shoes, write today for exclusive rights to handle this quick-selling, quick turn-over line.

W. L. Douglas
 President
 W. L. Douglas Shoe Co.
 174 Spark Street, Brockton, Mass.

You can play a CONN

Easiest of all instruments to play, the Conn saxophone is also hailed best by famous stars.
 Play popular tunes in short time.
 Big money, lots of fun for you.
 Free Trial—Easy Payments.
 C. G. Conn Ltd., Elkhart, Ind.

954 Conn Building
CONN
 LARGEST MANUFACTURERS OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

CULTIVATE YOUR MUSICAL BUMP

FOR PHOTOPLAY IDEAS

Plots accepted any form; revised, criticized, copyrighted, marketed. Advice free. Universal Scenario Corporation, 940 Western Mutual Life Bldg., Los Angeles, California.

Publishers Scenario Bulletin-Digest
 SEND FOR FREE SAMPLE COPY

Superfluous HAIR all GONE

Forever removed by the Mahler Method which kills the hair root without pain or injuries to the skin in the privacy of your own home

Send today 3 stamps for Free Booklet

D. J. MAHLER CO., 79-B Mahler Park, Providence, R. I.

Shapeliness

of arms, legs, back, bust, abdomen, thighs, hips and ankles in men and women is accomplished in the privacy of your home or while traveling, by a few minutes' use each day of the internationally famous invention—

DR. LAWTON'S GUARANTEED FAT REDUCER AND ILLUSTRATED COURSE ON WEIGHT CONTROL

With it, you easily perform a gentle, pleasant, deep-rooted massage that breaks down the underlying, unwanted, unsightly, unnatural, excess fat from any portion of the body to which you apply the Fat Reducer. It reduces only where you wish to lose fat. The waste matter is then carried out of the system thru the organs of elimination. No drugs, no exercises, no electricity, no starvation diet. More than 50,000 men and women in the past few years have reduced to their entire satisfaction by the use of this famous Fat Reducer. It doesn't leave the skin flabby. In fact, it smooths the skin and firms the flesh. This Fat Reducer is approved by physicians as absolutely safe and efficient; they have used and recommended it to patients. The Reduction is permanent!

You can reduce your FAT whether 10 or 100 pounds overweight. If at the end of eleven days' trial you are not perfectly satisfied in every way, return the Fat Reducer complete and your money will be refunded without any quibbling. This is our positive guarantee!

Dr. Lawton's famous book, "WEIGHT REDUCTION," is included in the purchase price of the Fat Reducer. This authoritative book explains in detail how to apply the Fat Reducer, how to stay thin after the Fat Reducer has done its work.

Sent C. O. D. and you pay postman $3.75 plus five cents postage, or if you prefer to remit in advance, send $3.75 plus 20c postage, which covers all charges. Mailed in plain wrapper. Send for your Fat Reducer today. If you would prefer before you order, we will send you our FREE Booklet "HOW TO REDUCE." Dr. Lawton's printed Guarantee.

DR. THOMAS LAWTON
 Dept. 6
 New York City

120 West 70th Street

acting is in part due to heredity, for the elder Schildkraut is also an actor of enduring worth. And the elder Schildkraut didn't wish the young Joseph to be an actor. He wanted him to be a musician and for years he studied music, the violin. . . . Once the parental objection was overcome, the path was easy of ascent. To have played Richard the Second, Liliom and Ibsen's Peer Gynt at twenty-seven is to have slain most of the Goliaths. Perhaps, he said, if he had had to struggle harder, had to climb with greater difficulty, the rewards would have been sweeter and more precious.

So much for an observation. A romantic recluse. An artist more than touched with the eccentricity of genius. A young man with a beautiful face and a ringing laughter. With a sense, not so much of humor as of the grotesque. Living in his book-lined room, with the things that have been his since childhood. Considering Futility and Beauty and Posterity.

Good and Bad Authorship

(Continued from page 11)

prerogative of helping to make good pictures out of their literary masterpieces.

This business of making a book or play into a picture is frequently a difficult job, requiring much thought to translate words into visible action. After we writers for the screen have spent weeks and weeks trying to keep the spirit of the thing which we are adapting, it rather gets our goat to have authors cry out, without any distinction or discrimination, that all picture writers are butchers who get a savage joy out of mangling their works.

Let them give us better books and better plays and we will see what happens to the screen. Or, better still, let them give up some of their valuable time and learn screen technique, so that their self-admitted creative ability can express itself directly in terms of the screen. If they are as non-commercial as they admit, let them stop writing mediocre plays and books and try to learn how to write really good pictures. Perhaps they can then convert the picture industry into an art.

WHILE THE FOREST SLEEPS . . .

By GLADYS BRACE VILSOCK

While the forest sleeps . . .
 The lake is holding the moon in its heart,
 As I am holding you in mine.
 Over the water drowsed with love,
 A white swan drifts,
 Drifts over me,
 And sings its dying sweetness to the moon,
 And sings to you.

The Movie Encyclopædia

(Continued from page 73)

HOT KISSES.—Send along the pictures. Will be glad to see them.

ANNE D.—Well, the reason that I say harsh things sometimes, is because a word to the wise is not sufficient, and I have to take a club. Roy Stewart is playing in "The Love Brand." You refer to Edward Burns. Cant give you Norma Talmadge's home address but you can reach her at 5341 Melrose Avenue, Los Angeles, Cal.

MARION.—Most of the players write the stories themselves. A great many have secretaries. You're welcome.

LARIS.—Which proves the truth of the old Chinese proverb, "First impressions rule the mind." John Bowers is with Ince. John Barrymore at the Lambs Club, 144 W. 44th St., New York City. Niles Welch in "Rags to Riches." All right, send me violets when I die.

FLORENCE K.—Sincerity is all that is right and best. Cant tell you much about Harrison Ford. You think he is one of the most prominent men on the screen. Yes, he played in "Little Old New York."

C. G. B.—Yes, the salt wells in Onondaga County, New York, near Syracuse and Salina are a large and important industry. Michigan has the largest output next to New York, and many other States produce it to some extent. But the home supply is not equal to the demand, and there is a large annual importation into the U. S. No. June Elvide is not playing now. Bryant Washburn in "Rupert of Hentzan." Yes, indeed, I always did like Alice Joyce. Mary Miles Minter is not playing now. Clara Bow was last year's winner. Constance Talmadge twenty-three. Dont mention it.

BETTY HAND OF OAK LANE.—I should say not. The Terrys you mention are not related. Alice Terry is five feet two and Rex Ingram will probably continue to direct. There is more money in directing, you know.

A GIRL FROM CUBA.—You write a very interesting letter.

RUTH D.—The reason that I answer such questions is that one of my functions is to assist the inquiring, to animate the struggling, and to sympathize with all. Irene Castle is five feet seven and weighs 115 pounds. Auburn hair and grey eyes. Address her at Ithaca, N. Y.

J. BROWNIE.—No, Baby Marie Osborne is not playing now.

RUTH.—I'm sorry but I never send out pictures of myself. The only picture I have is the one up above. Write me again.

EDNA C.—I enjoyed your letter, but it was terribly long. Your terminal facilities are defective. Mary Pickford was born in Canada, and I am not giving out her age. What's the difference, she will always be our Little Mary, no matter how old she is. She is five feet, has hazel eyes and blonde hair. Playing in "The Street Singer." Colleen Moore in "April Showers."

MARIE K.—Please dont say to me "May your shadow never grow less." I am trying to reduce. Yes, indeed, Jackie Coogan is living with his parents, or maybe they are living with him. Yes, I think Valentino will come back to pictures.

LOYD M.—Sorry, but there is nothing I can do for you.

EILEEN.—I haven't heard what Sessue Hayakawa intends to do, but I am inclined to believe he favors the stage.

ANTI.—Yes, he disappeared, but I dont know whether he ran away with a woman, or from one. Rod LaRocque is not married. Pearl White has been married to Victor Sutherland and Wallace McCutcheon,

(Continued on page 86)

(Seventy-nine)

There is Beauty in Every Jar

You, too, can improve your complexion, just as thousands of women have done

BEGIN today the regular use of Ingram's Milkweed Cream —
there is beauty in every jar.

Ingram's Milkweed Cream, you will find, is more than a skin cleanser, more than a powder base, more than a protection against sun and wind. It is an actual beautifier of the complexion. No other cream is just like it.

Ingram's Milkweed Cream has an exclusive, an individual therapeutic property that serves to "tone-up"—revitalize—the sluggish tissues of the skin. It soothes away redness and roughness, banishes slight imperfections, heals and nourishes the skin cells. Used faithfully, it will help you to gain and retain the beauty of a clear, wholesome complexion—just as it has helped thousands of attractive women, for more than 35 years.

Go to your druggist today and purchase a jar of Ingram's Milkweed Cream in either the 50 cent or the $1.00 size—the dollar jar contains three times the quantity.

FREDERICK F. INGRAM CO.

Established 1885

83 TENTH STREET DETROIT, MICHIGAN

Canadian residents address F. F. Ingram Company Windsor, Ontario. British residents address Sangers, 42A Hampstead Rd., London, N. W. 1. Australia, residents address Law, Binns & Co., Commerce House, Melbourne. New Zealand residents address Hart, Pennington, Ltd., 33 Ghuznee St., Wellington. Cuban residents address Espino & Co., Zulueta 2612 Havana.

Ingram's Milkweed Cream

Send ten cents today for Ingram's Beauty Purse

Frederick F. Ingram Co., 83 Tenth Street, Detroit, Mich.

Gentlemen: Enclosed please find ten cents. Kindly send me Ingram's Beauty Purse containing an elderdown powder pad, samples of Ingram's Face Powder, Ingram's Rouge, Ingram's Milkweed Cream, and, for the gentleman of the house, a sample of Ingram's Therapeutic Shaving Cream.

Name.....

Street.....

City..... State.....

Trilby

(Continued from page 32)

Stacomb
Prevents
"Flying Hair" Even
After Washing

Wash your hair as often as you like now, and don't worry about its untidy appearance.

Both men and women know the value of STACOMB. After a shampoo you can comb your hair just as you like it and it will stay neatly combed all day.

Adds luster and leaves the hair soft.

Women find that STACOMB keeps the curl in, and is an excellent aid to permanent waving.

At all drug counters.

Tubes—35c
Jars —75c

Send coupon for Free Trial Tube.

STANDARD LABORATORIES, Inc.
750 Stanford Ave., Los Angeles, California. Dept. 1-B.

Please send me free trial tube.

Name _____
Address _____

BEAUTYPEEL "Makes Your Hidden Beauty Visible"

NEW DISCOVERY in Science and Facial Dermatology scientifically produces "THAT NATURAL COMPLEXION" by peeling off freckles, tan, pimples, acne, blackheads, liver-spots, wrinkles, pits, muddy, oily and withered skins; thereby restoring the face to healthy color and youthful beauty. NON-ACID (patented) harmless liquid. Effects astounding. Money-back guarantee. Proofs and Beauty Book "The Art of Face Peeling" sent Free. Write

BEAUTYPEEL COSMETIC CO.
Dept. C. El Paso, Texas

CLIMAX TROMBONE

OUTFIT $5.25 Down—then only $5 per month for six months!

Climax Trombone; perfect slide action; EASY BLOWING; handsomely engraved bell; polished brass; beautiful, sonorous tone; complete with side-opening, flange-lined Keratol case; professional mouthpiece, lyre, mute; self-instructor. Money-back Guarantee! ORDER NOW!

For sale by your Music Merchant.

LYON & HEALY, 71-87 Jackson Blvd., Chicago

TWO BEAUTIES

$6.75 $11.75

Watches you're proud to own

The prettiest watches that ever snugly hugged a fair feminine wrist. To look at them you'd think they were the highest priced watches, but by selling them in enormous quantities we can cut the prices.

Ladies' Watch of 14K White Gold filled; 25 years' guarantee; tonneau shape case—richly carved—6 jewel adjusted imported movement; charming hand made dial; sapphire crown and cross grain ribbon and clasp. One year complete guarantee. A Sensational Offer at $6.75.

Also available in the rectangular case with rectangular movement at $11.75.

SEND NO MONEY. We Prepay Postage. Pay postman. You take no risk—money back promptly if not satisfied in every way. And note this—these are good time keepers. Write to-day for yours.

Precious Wares Co.
ART JEWELRY
389 FIFTH AVE., DEPT. 519
NEW YORK CITY

breaking the silence, "Remember the way Trilby used to sing, all off the key? How long ago that seems—two years, isn't it?"

And—"I wonder whatever became of Svengali and his wee bit fiddler," the Laird would burr, "that mon was almost crazy enough to be a genius, and he could sniff a sausage cooking three blocks away!"

One day in a two-month-old newspaper they found the name Svengali, a Madame Svengali whose voice was the musical sensation of the hour. "So," the gushing reporter had written, "might the Angel Israfael have caroled. The purity of her tones is almost unearthly in its sweetness, melting strong men to tears."

"Wonder if our friend of the facial foliage could have married a great singer," Taffy chuckled. "When we get back next month we must go to hear her. I should like fine to see the Laird melted to tears!"

The Cirque de Bashibazooks was crowded when the three friends took their places in a box on the first night of their return to Paris. Little Billie's elbow nudged Taffy's ribs excitedly as a familiar figure parted the curtains at the back of the stage and took his place at the piano. The frock coat was new, the unkempt beard was trimmed, and the long hands that swept the keys were somewhat cleaner than of yore but there was no mistaking Svengali.

"Who do you suppose—" the Laird began, but Little Billie had leaned suddenly forward, staring down at the woman's figure advancing toward the footlights. She was gowned in a classic robe which fell about her majestic figure in statuette folds. The suggestion of a Greek marble was heightened by the whiteness of the face under the filleted bands of dark hair. She stopped in the full center of the stage, and Taffy felt a chill sensation at the roots of his hair. For one foot was advanced beneath the trailing robe, a bare white foot in a Greek sandal—the most beautiful foot in Paris—

"You see?" Little Billie breathed in his ear. His hands were crooked around the red velvet railing as tho to keep himself in his seat.

"But it couldn't be," Taffy gasped stupidly, "Trilby couldn't sing a note and listen to that!"

From the deeply curving lips that they remembered came a stranger voice, unearthly pure and clear, its fires the cold flames that are prisoned in ice floes in unsailed seas, soaring effortlessly to the very gates of Heaven, falling about their astounded ears in a bright rain.

What she sang they could not remember afterward, only the wonder of it, the strange awe, as tho they had listened to some celestial visitant. For a moment after she had disappeared behind the sweeping velvet curtains the audience sat silent still held by the spell, then Svengali was bowing greasily to a mighty surge of applause, but Trilby—or she who sang with Trilby's lips did not reappear.

Without a word the three rose and left the box. Their knock on the dressing-room door was answered by Svengali, whose face seemed to retreat watchfully into his beard at sight of them.

They stammered incoherently, looking beyond his barricading arm at Trilby, their Trilby sitting unmoving in a deep chair with closed eyes. For the sake of old times—if they might speak to—to Madame Svengali and tell her how much they admired her singing—

Thus Taffy and the Laird, but Little Billie spoke not at all, only stared as one at some supernatural manifestation. The musician's eyes were hostile, the eyes of the cornered rat, but his voice was greasy with loving kindness. "The gentlemen were mistaken, Madame was no one they knew. A resemblance, perhaps? But Madame was very tired, before she sang again she must rest—if they would excuse—"

Little Billie interrupted rudely, "D'you suppose I dont know Trilby? Dont point your finger at me, you fakir—" he made a step forward as if to push Svengali aside, "Trilby! Dont you remember Little Billie!"

"Yes, tell the gentleman yourself, my dear," the musician said softly. He almost purred, little bright eyes never moving from the pale face that turned toward him at his words, "tell the gentleman that he is mistaken in thinking he knows you!"

"You are mistaken—in thinking you know me," said the deeply curved lips obediently. There was not the slightest trace of recognition in the gaze she turned upon the three at the door, and Taffy began to back away, hot with apologies, but Little Billie advanced upon Svengali, jaw dangerous. "She's afraid of you or she wouldn't have said that! Let me in or I'll come in anyway—"

"Dog!" panted his ancient enemy, and without warning was upon him, squealing, kicking, biting, winding

(Continued on page 82)

When Your Ship Comes In

YOU will want it loaded down with all the treasures that your heart desires; things of rare beauty and richness; works of art to delight a connoisseur.

Are you ever tempted to satisfy your artistic longings without waiting for your ship to come in?

Why not gratify that desire now by letting SHADOWLAND bring you the things you want?

There will be lovely pictures in color; stories of art; articles on drama, literature and music; charming verse and short plays.

SHADOWLAND is full of beautiful things. Make them your own by securing a copy of the magazine and losing yourself in its maze of loveliness.

Advocate of Self-Expression

What Čizěk, famous painter and revolutionary pedagogue, is doing in his school is told by Dorothy Donnell Calhoun.

When Harris Met Gorky

An account by Herman George Scheffauer of the time when Frank Harris attempted to interview the great Maxim Gorky.

Play-Going Pests in Paris

George Middleton writes humorously of the difficulties encountered by Americans in Paris on their first trip to the theatre.

Why Do We Misbehave?

Is there more lawlessness than there used to be because there are more laws and easier ways to break them? John H. Anderson discusses this.

These, Too, Will Delight You

A reproduction in full color of a painting by Leon Gaspard and a discussion of his work by Edgar Cahill; two pages of humorous sketches by August Henkel; paragraphs gleaned from the writings of the French columnist, Sebastien Dudon; extracts from "The Diary of a Small Boy," by Ladia Steptoe; a one-act play, "Red Hair," by Helen Woljeska.

SHADOWLAND

For September

“Here’s Where We Got Our Start”

“Look, Nell—this coupon! Remember the night you urged me to send it in to Scranton? Then how happy we were when I came home with the news of my first promotion? We owe it all, Nell, my place as Manager, our home, our comforts—to this coupon.”

Thousands upon thousands of men now know the joy of happy, prosperous homes because they let the International Correspondence Schools prepare them in their spare time for bigger work. You will find them in city, town and country—in office, factory, shop, store, mine and mill, on farms and on railroads.

There are clerks who became Advertising Managers, Salesmen and Executives; carpenters who became Architects and Contractors; mechanics who became Engineers and Electrical Experts; men and boys who rose from nothing at all to splendid responsible positions.

The first step to success in the I. C. S. way is to choose your career from this list and mark and mail this coupon here and now.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS Box 6756-C, Scranton, Penna.

Without cost or obligation on my part, please tell me how I can qualify for the position or in the subject before which I have marked an X:

BUSINESS TRAINING COURSES

- | | |
|---|---|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Business Management | <input type="checkbox"/> Salesmanship |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Industrial Management | <input type="checkbox"/> Advertising |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Personnel Organization | <input type="checkbox"/> Better Letters |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traffic Management | <input type="checkbox"/> Foreign Trade |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Business Law | <input type="checkbox"/> Stenography and Typing |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Banking and Banking Law | <input type="checkbox"/> Business English |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Accountancy (Including C.P.A.) | <input type="checkbox"/> Civil Service |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Nicholson Cost Accounting | <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Mail Clerk |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Bookkeeping | <input type="checkbox"/> Common School Subjects |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Private Secretary | <input type="checkbox"/> High School Subjects |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Business Spanish | <input type="checkbox"/> Illustrating |
| <input type="checkbox"/> French | |

TECHNICAL AND INDUSTRIAL COURSES

- | | |
|---|--|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Electrical Engineering | <input type="checkbox"/> Architect |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Electric Lighting | <input type="checkbox"/> Blue Print Reading |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Engineer | <input type="checkbox"/> Contractor and Builder |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Draftsman | <input type="checkbox"/> Architectural Draftsman |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Machine Shop Practice | <input type="checkbox"/> Concrete Builder |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Railroad Positions | <input type="checkbox"/> Structural Engineer |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Gas Engine Operating | <input type="checkbox"/> Chemistry |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Civil Engineer | <input type="checkbox"/> Pharmacy |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Surveying and Mapping | <input type="checkbox"/> Automobile Work |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Metallurgy | <input type="checkbox"/> Airplane Engines |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mining | <input type="checkbox"/> Agriculture and Poultry |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Steam Engineering | <input type="checkbox"/> Mathematics |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Radio | |

Name.....
Street..... 3-27-23
Address.....
City.....State.....

Occupation.....
Persons residing in Canada should send this coupon to the International Correspondence Schools Canadian, Limited, Montreal, Canada.

BE A HOTEL EXECUTIVE

EARN $2500 TO $12000 A YEAR

Made Ass't Manager in Two Weeks. One student advanced from clerk to executive, with over 100% increase in salary. Another, no hotel experience, writes, "I am leaving to take the fine hotel position you secured for me."

You Can Easily Prepare Hotels everywhere want trained men and women for executive positions. They are asking for our graduates. YOU can quickly fit yourself for well-paid hotel position—a life of fascination and opportunity. Prepare in spare time; cost moderate. Send coupon today.

Standard Business Training Institute,
Carlton Court, Buffalo, N.Y.
Send me Free Booklet H-173
Name.....
Street.....
City.....

Trilby

(Continued from page 80)

the long hands into Little Billie's hair. Taffy and the Laird dragged their companion away, leaving the little Italian panting and dancing; as they glanced back they saw that the woman still lay in the long chair without motion, her eyes gazing away into nothingness.

“We must have made a mistake,” Taffy burred uneasily, knowing no mistake had been made, “couldn't have been she, Trilby couldn't sing—”

Little Billie stared down at the empty stage with suffering eyes as a strange pianist appeared. Madame Svengali—his Trilby, that was all that mattered. He alone of the vast audience hardly noticed what happened as the white-robed figure came down to the footlights and began to sing again, for he was back in the low room at the Passage des Abbesses and Trilby was smiling at him from the model throne—

It was laughter that aroused him from his dream, cruel, derisive. The audience was in an uproar, cat-calls and hisses sounded shamefully from the gallery and Taffy's fingers dug into the flesh of his shoulder while Taffy's voice sobbed in his ear, “God! She's forgotten how to sing! She's doing it the way she used to! It's awful and look across there in the box yonder. Svengali! What's the matter with him?”

Bombed Into the Movies

(Continued from page 26)

are “Without Benefit of Clergy,” “Doll's House,” “Rubaiyat,” “The Infidel,” “Science or God,” “Wheels of Fortune,” “Is Matrimony a Failure?” “Lest We Forget,” and most recently a Carter de Haven comedy called “Christmas.” He is now working with Jane Novak in a divorce drama.

Miss de Lacey admits that his name is not a Philippe. She says that his first name as a baby was Andreas; further than that she refuses to reveal. With engaging frankness she states her reason. She fears that some relative might hear of him and claim him. So far as she knows, he has no relatives left; but why take chances? Why indeed!

Little Philippe has so many mothers—yet no mother. In every play he has another pretend mother. For the purposes of identification, he calls them his “screen mammas” while Miss De Lacey he calls his “regular mamma.”

In the velvet chair opposite, the figure of the music-teacher lay sprawled in a strange posture, one hand clutching at his breast, but Little Billie did not glance at him. Hand on the rail he had vaulted down onto the stage in time to catch Trilby as she fell.

The story was in the papers the next morning under the scare head “Death of Svengali from Heart Failure in Opera Box Reveals Amazing Hypnotic Feat.” For two years, the story went on to say, the music-master had hypnotized his wife so that she was able to sing correctly, but the moment his power was withdrawn only deafening discords came from the throat that had enchanted the world. Dazed and bewildered by the shock of yesterday's fiasco, the report went on to say, Madame Svengali was seriously ill and doctors despaired of her life.

Little Billie refused to believe the doctors. He knelt for hours by the bed where Trilby lay and tried to call her back from the far places where her soul wandered with all the power of his love. Sometimes the heavy lids unclosed and she smiled vaguely at them, but it was only at the very last that she spoke. “I should so love to—have been happy and had—a home—and a little baby. But you mustn't spoil—his career—Little inhabited by cannibals, and the party set sail heavily armed with rifles, revolvers, and machine guns. They did not come into combat with the cannibals, but they nearly lost their lives in the terrific storms.

(Continued on page 95)

The Sport of Kings—and Movie Stars

(Continued from page 19)

Then there is the thrill of the big race. John Bowers has his schooner Uncas in the great international race that will be held this summer from the Santa Barbara Yacht Club to Honolulu.

And Allan Hale is building a speedboat which he expects will capture the motor races at Los Angeles.

Aye, verily, the sport of kings—and movie stars.

SQUARING THE TRIANGLE

By MARY CAROLYN DAVIES

Look with what wisdom you can bring,
At hers and yours, and my angle.
Squaring the circle's an easy thing,
But who can square the triangle?

How the Motion Picture Has Influenced Young Peru

(Continued from page 22)

As a result, the Peruvian woman has now not only changed her manner of dressing and is reforming her figure by a lesser indulgence in sweets, but she goes in for sport and sport clothes. "Esport" they call it down there.

The languorous-eyed, black-gowned Peruvian woman has emerged from behind the carved gratings of her balcony from which, ever since the days of the "conquistadores," she viewed the world and is now to be seen in suitable sport dress, or walking costume on the golf links or city streets.

With this change of dress has come a freedom of action, that was undreamed of a generation ago. In the films perfectly nice girls talk to men alone. That was an eye-opener for the Peruvian girl and her chaperon. It had been the custom of the country for a young girl never to be allowed to remain in a room alone with a man. Also "ladies" are shown in American films as working. Often they do their own housework, or earn their own living. This is something that no Peruvian lady could do. A Peruvian girl, no matter how poor she was, until very recently never dreamed it was possible that she could support herself, could go out and work. It simply wasn't done. These antiquated standards are rapidly changing.

Another very important effect of the moving picture in Peru, is bringing home to the male population the truths of fairness, honesty and playing the game.

No Peruvian school teaches athletics. There is no such thing as interschool games. Hygiene and physical fitness as we know them are unheard of. But when a Peruvian boy sees a Douglas Fairbanks film, in which physical fitness and fair play are the usual themes, it gives him something to think about. The idea dawns, that standing on the street corners or in front of cafés eyeing the señoritas as they pass, or whispering things in their ears, or taking dope, or imitating the pasos of the popular matador, is perhaps not the only ideal of a well-spent youth.

Sportsmanship is not a South American virtue, that is, as we know it from the Anglo-Saxon point of view. Honesty and good sportsmanship are qualities which the human animal is not necessarily endowed with, but they are qualities which

FREE Trial Bottle Shows You How

Gray Hair

is Restored — Keep Young

"O, she is a gray haired woman" how often have you heard this said of a woman young in years but made seemingly old by gray hair. Don't let them say it of you, when gray hair can be restored so safely, surely and easily. How? Send for my special patented, Free Trial Outfit and learn. It contains a free trial bottle of the wonderful hair color restorer I perfected to restore my own gray hair and you can test it on one strand of your hair. It explains how to make a convincing test on a single lock of hair which proves that the restored color will be perfectly even and natural in all lights.

Perfectly Colorless

My hair color restorer is clear and clean as water—free from greasy sediment or disagreeable odor. You apply it by combing through the hair—no outside aid or expert skill required. No one need know your secret.

The use of my restorer doesn't interfere with shampooing—there is nothing to wash off or rub off.

Something New

While the formula of my hair color restorer was perfected and proved perfect long ago, my laboratories have recently made another discovery. This consists of a wonderful preparatory powder which puts your hair in an ideal condition for restoration. This powder acts as an antiseptic and tonic, which greatly benefits both hair and scalp. It makes your hair soft, silky and fluffly. A free trial package is included with my special patented Free Trial Outfit.

A Real Free Offer

All you have to do to secure this trial outfit is to fill out and mail the coupon. Send no money—I even prepay postage. My offer is actually absolutely free. I make it to protect myself and prospective users of my restorer from the imitations which copy my package and bottle but which can't do the work. They purport to be "just as good" and many are deceived by them, but their use results in terrible disappointment.

When you go to your dealer for a full sized bottle of Mary T. Goldman's be sure you see my name on the package. If he hasn't it in stock, or offers a substitute, write direct to me and I will gladly supply your needs.

Mail Coupon Today

Fill it out carefully, using X to indicate natural color, of hair. If possible, enclose a lock in your letter. The special patented Free Trial Outfit will be sent by return mail. Don't delay—mail the coupon today.

Please print your name and address.

MARY T. GOLDMAN,

37-J Goldman Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Please send your patented Free Trial Outfit. X shows color of hair. Black... dark brown... medium brown... auburn (dark red)... light brown... light auburn (light red)... blonde...

Name
Street City

Mary T. Goldman's

Hair Color Restorer

Over 10,000,000 Bottles Sold

LEARN

Movie Acting!

A fascinating profession that pays big. Would you like to know if you are adapted to this work? Send 10c for our Twelve-Hour Talent Tester or Key to Movie Acting Aptitude, and find whether or not you are suited to take up Movie Acting. A novel, instructive and valuable work. Send dime or stamps today. A large, interesting, illustrated Booklet on Movie Acting included FREE! FILM INFORMATION BUREAU, Sta. N., Jackson, Mich.

SELL US YOUR SPARE TIME

You can earn $15 to $50 a week writing show cards in your own home.—No canvassing.—A pleasant profitable profession easily and quickly learnt by our new simple graphic block system. Artistic ability not necessary.—We teach you how, and supply you with work.—Distance no object. Full particulars and booklet free. WILSON METHODS LIMITED—DEPT. E 64 East Richmond, Toronto, Canada.

$100 Down

Just one dollar—the balance in easy monthly payments. Write today for FREE Book of Advance Watch Styles. Learn how, for only $1.00 down, you can get—direct from factory—a

21 Jewel ~ Extra Thin STUDEBAKER The INSURED Watch

Choice of 54 newest Art Beauty Cases; 8 handsome dial designs, 8 adjustments, including heat, cold, isochronism and 5 positions; Insured for a lifetime. Direct from the maker at lowest prices ever named on equal quality. Send for the Book!

Mail Coupon

Send today for copy of this book—FREE! See newest Advance Watch Styles. Get $1.00 down offer. Write!

STUDEBAKER WATCH CO.
Dept. 349 - South Bend, Indiana

Gold Chain FREE!

A limited offer! Free with every Studenaker Insured Watch a beautiful gold Chain. Write while offer lasts.

MAIL THIS COUPON FOR FREE BOOK!

STUDEBAKER WATCH CO.
Dept. 349, South Bend, Indiana

Please send me your Free Book of Advance Watch Styles and particulars of your $1.00 down offer.

Name.....
Address.....
City..... State.....

Woman's Charm

NATURALLY A
Beautiful
Bust

THE secret of woman's charm is that natural physical perfection which lends enchantment wherever she goes.

Bust Pads Will Not Do

No man loves a dummy. There is no appeal in false, physical make-up. Man cannot be deceived. You must be a REAL woman, and because you are, you want to be perfectly developed.

Physical Culture Developer

Science comes to your rescue with a wonderful new invention which will enlarge the bust of any woman. No creams, no medicines, no electrical contrivances, no hand massage, no fake free treatments to deceive you. A simple, effective, harmless home developer you use a few minutes night and morning until fully developed. That is all, simply use it, nature brings the rounded contour of perfect beauty which every woman secretly craves.

Are You Lonely?

Do you know that the women who are most sought after and admired are those possessing a beautiful form? You can acquire this secret charm and have a fascinating figure, too, if you will only write at once and let us tell you how thousands have developed one to five inches with this wonderful home developer. We will also send you photographic proof, showing results before and after, for we have received thousands of letters of praise from grateful women.

Only Real Developer

You can now be happy and sought after and admired and loved, if you will let us explain how you can obtain this remarkable developer and use it 30 days entirely at our risk—the only real method known for enlarging a woman's bust to its natural size and beauty. Write us today, do not send one penny—just your name and address plainly written, will bring all information in plain, sealed envelope by return mail.

THE OLIVE COMPANY

Dept. 210 Clarinda, Iowa

FREE BEAUTY BOOKLET

explains how the FAMOUS YOUTH-AMI SKIN PEEL PREPARATION removes all surface blemishes, Pimples, Blackheads, Scabies, Discolorations, etc. Wonderful results proven. GUARANTEED absolutely Painless and Harmless. Produces healthy new skin as Nature intended you to have. Send TO-DAY for full details and booklet, "THE MAGIC OF A NEW SKIN."

YOUTH-AMI CO., 1658 Broadway, Dept. 20, New York

DEAFNESS IS MISERY

I know because I was Deaf and had Head Noises for over 30 years. My invisible Antiseptic Ear Drums restored my hearing and stopped Head Noises, and will do it for you. They are Tiny Megaphones. Cannot be seen when worn. Effective when Deafness is caused by Catarrh or by Perforated, Partially or Wholly Destroyed Natural Drums. Easy to put in, easy to take out. Are "Unseen Comforts." Inexpensive. Write for Booklet and my sworn statement of how I recovered my hearing.

A. O. LEONARD

Suite 53, 70 5th Avenue • • New York City

You Can Easily Learn to Play Any Music on the

HAWAIIAN GUITAR

Just As Hawaiians Do—Native Instructors Teach You QUICKLY!

In Half an Hour You Will Be Playing "ALOHA". Soon You Will Be Winning Praise Everywhere Playing "Stumbling", "Three O'Clock in the Morning", "Hot Lips" and ALL Popular Music as Well as the Beautiful Hawaiian Melodies

Here's Proof of our Remarkable Course

Buchanan, Va. First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc. It has been two months since I have finished your course on the Hawaiian Guitar and I can play anything I wish. The course was all that could be desired and I am perfectly pleased with my playing ability since finishing your course. Respectfully yours, Louise R. Hammond

Koester School, 314 So. Franklin St., Chicago, Ill. First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc. I shall certainly be very glad to recommend your course whenever the chance is mine to do so. Mr. W. R. Johnson has not phoned me yet, and if he does not phone in a day or so, will write him. Am sending a letter to Miss Helen Slevik today which I think may help to secure her enrollment, and I shall be glad at any time to write a personal letter to anyone whom you may suggest. Your former student, W. L. Walker

Here's the chance you've been waiting for—the opportunity to play popular music quickly on the most entrancing instrument of the age—the Hawaiian Guitar. No previous musical knowledge necessary.

ONLY FOUR MOTIONS TO LEARN

and these you acquire in a few minutes. No troublesome scales or runs, you begin to play harmonious chords immediately! We don't care if you never saw a note of music in your life, we guarantee to teach you to play just as the Hawaiians do!

We Furnish Everything—a Beautiful Hawaiian Guitar, Picks, etc., and 52 Pieces of Music FREE!

You have always wanted to play some instrument, so we have made it unusually easy for you by furnishing everything—a beautiful Hawaiian Guitar, complete Conservatory Course of Instruction and 52 pieces of especially selected music.

No Other Course Teaches as Quickly and Easily

This is the only Conservatory Course where you get the personal instruction of Native Hawaiian Experts—Frank Ferera, Walter Kolomoku, Lawrence Kalaluki and Carl Seville, famous the world over and the most noted makers of phonograph records, supervise your playing.

Mail Coupon for Details of FREE Offer

Don't wait another minute—clip, fill in and mail the coupon NOW and get full details of our remarkable offer to teach you how to play the Hawaiian Guitar just as the Hawaiians do.

Special Arrangements for Lessons if You Have Your Own Instrument

Special Courses under famous Teachers, Tenor-Banjo, Violin, Banjo-Ukelele and Ukelele. Fine Toned Instruments FREE!

FREE
This $15
Hawaiian
Guitar

You will be delighted with the fine tone of this splendid Hawaiian Guitar

First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc., New York, Desk 49, 233 Broadway (Woolworth Bldg.)
Send me at once details about your 52 easy lessons and FREE Hawaiian Guitar offer!

Name.....
Address.....
Town..... State.....
Print name and address clearly.

education has made almost second nature.

Now to be educated always sounds like a tedious process, especially so in the tropics where one is less likely to be energetic and eager for uplift. But thru the sugar-coated medium of an exciting movie story these same ideals are taking effect.

The result is evidenced on all sides. And not only in Lima but in small Indian towns. In the little fishing village of Ancon where the cinema is shown in a mud hut with wooden benches for seats, I have seen the audience, which consists of Cholos (the Peruvian Indian), get up and cheer the bravery of "El Leon de Sierra" (The lion of the mountains) or the Samson-like feats of Elmo Lincoln or Ruth Roland's gallant escapes in "La Hija del Sol." The audiences in the smaller towns are for the most part illiterate, and an elected reader translates the captions. So realistic is the story to these primitive people that they will sometimes throw things at the villain and always shout and cheer when the heroine escapes.

Over the summit of the Andes far down the other side in the tropical Peruvian colony I saw a Mrs. Vernon Castle film. The audience consisted entirely of Indians. She was not popular, as primitive people want red-blooded action. This accounts for the popularity of the serial thriller, featuring such stars as Pearl White or Ruth Roland.

Charlie Chaplin's universality is manifest when a Hill man untouched by civilization, who has never been away from his village and who has probably never seen a derby hat and doesn't know that a small man in large-sized clothes is traditionally funny, can yet meet a European or North American on the common ground of laughter.

Foreign Films

(Continued from page 25)

when a girl of his age with whom he often used to play has mysteriously disappeared.

The young Holmes will find where his friend is. She has been kept in the clinic of a mysterious doctor, who believes in the theory of restoration to youth and who is prepared to begin the practice himself. The victim is the young girl, who, however, is finally saved by the courageous Bobby.

If the story is improbable, the acting is excellent, especially on the part of the young actor who promises to go very far in his profession.

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 74)

Harold Lloyd has broken up his long association with Hal Roach. They began producing together when they were extra boys at the Universal and saved up $300 to make a cheap comedy. Everything is amicable, but they have decided to dissolve their partnership of nine years' standing. Lloyd will work at the Hollywood Studios and his future comedies will be less given to stunts and will partake more of the character of "Grandma's Boy," which is his favorite child.

* * *

Natalie Talmadge Keaton is going back to the screen again. Buster, Jr., is now a year old and his fond mamma will play the leads in his Pa's next comedy.

* * *

Lenore Ulric has fallen in love with Hollywood and will return next season to film "Kiki." She is now making "Tiger Rose."

COMPARISONS

By ELLEN ROGERS

Love never blooms the same for everyone. But still it's strange that it should droop for you,
Who takes such care of things!
Besides, your plant had such a lucid, neat beginning:
A white-walled garden, with a bird's crisp singing,
And feathery cedars brushing sunlight thru.

While mine grew in a neighbor's backyard plot—
Bedraggled, drab enough to be my own.
With groping peccancy
I plucked it, soiled my skirts, and took to lying,
And listening blandly to my neighbor's sighing.
Indecent, isn't it, the way it's grown?

REBUKE

By AIDA RODMAN DE MILT

You speak to me of love—O do you know
What this would mean to her who bears your name,
Who bore your children and remains the same
True and devoted, ever keen to show
Your best to strangers, so where'er you go
Men deem you worthy of your whilom fame?
And I—if love of you were leaping flame
Within my breast no hint would I bestow.

For I respect my friend who is your wife;
The fact that she might never know is not
Inducement to betray her faith in us;
Speak not again of this, nor soil your life
So fair in all else with so foul a blot:
Forgive my having stirred this impetus!

(Eighty-five)

See How Easy It Is To Learn Drawing This New Way

Through a remarkable new method anyone can now quickly learn to draw—right at home in spare time. No special talent needed! Become an Artist this new easy way.

YOU have always longed for it—this fascinating ability to draw. Now it can easily be yours. Illustrating, Rapid Sketching, Decorative Designing, Advertising Art, Cartooning—you can easily learn all of this right in your own home. Hundreds of our students never had a drawing pencil in their hands before starting, yet are high-salaried artists today.

Big Money in Commercial Art

Trained artists earn $50, $75, $100 and even over $200 a week! Single drawings often bring over $100. And now, with just a few hours' pleasant study each week, you can quickly learn to make drawings that have a real commercial value.

Hundreds of trained artists are needed today all over the country. Magazines, Department Stores, Advertising Agencies, Publishers, Manufacturers—these are just a few of the fields which are in urgent need of artists. Get into this attractive, big money field now.

It's Fun Learning Art This New Way

It's all just like a pleasant game when you learn to draw with this new method. You study right at home, yet every bit of your work receives the individual attention and criticism of a real artist. It's almost as though you had a famous artist standing at your elbow while you work. With this training, you progress with amazing rapidity. Starting with straight lines and curves, you quickly learn action, perspective and all the more advanced secrets of drawing.

Almost before you realize it you are making drawings that sell.

Send for FREE BOOK

You may be considering the study of art merely for the joy you can get from it; or you may want to turn your ability into the big money which is to be found in Commercial Art. In any case—if you feel that you want to learn to draw, send for our new Free Book on Art, which tells all about the wonderful opportunities for happiness and profits in art and describes this startling new method which makes it so easy for you to learn to draw. Mail coupon for this Free Book and for our Special Free Offer.

Washington School of Art

Room 299,
1115-15th St., N.W.,
Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL OF ART, Room 299
1115-15th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Please send me your Free Book on art which tells about your new method. Also details of your special Free Offer. Please write plainly.

Name.....
Mrs., Miss or Mr.

Address.....

City..... State.....

Age if under 16 years.....

A PERFECT NOSE FOR YOU

SPECIAL SIZES BEFORE AFTER FOR CHILDREN

Lowest in Price
Highest in Merit
Winner of GOLD MEDAL

ANITA - The Genuine - NOSE ADJUSTER
PATENTED

Support nature and look your best. If your nose is ill-shaped, you can make it perfect with ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER. In a few weeks, in the privacy of your own room and without interfering with your daily occupation, you can remedy your nasal irregularity. No need for costly, painful operations. ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER shapes while you sleep—quickly, painlessly, permanently and inexpensively. THE ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER is the ORIGINAL NASAL SUPPORTER highly recommended by physicians for fractured or misshapen noses. Self adjustable. No screws. No metal parts. GENTLE, FIRM and PERFECTLY COMFORTABLE. Beware of imitations. Write today for FREE book, "Happy Days Ahead," and our blank to fill out for sizes. Return blank to us and your nose adjuster can be paid for when it reaches you.

—SEND NO MONEY— The ANITA Company, Dept. 929, ANITA Bldg., Newark, N. J.

Protect Your Eyes from Sun and Wind

In summer the EYES frequently become bloodshot from the irritating effects of wind and dust. Murine relieves this unattractive condition almost immediately, as well as eye-strain caused by the glare of the sun.

To look your best after a day in the open, use Murine. Its soothing, refreshing and beautifying properties make it invaluable to vacationists.

If used night and morning, Murine will impart a youthful glow and sparkle to the EYES. It's perfectly harmless—contains no belladonna or other harmful ingredients.

Our attractively illustrated book, "Beauty Lies Within the Eyes," tells how to properly care for your Eyes, Brows and Lashes, and thus enhance their beauty. Send for a copy of this helpful book. It's FREE.

Murine Eye Remedy Co.
Dept. 23, Chicago

MURINE

FOR YOUR EYES

GET THIS WONDERFUL RING. If You Can Tell It From a Genuine Diamond Send It Back

These amazing, beautiful CORODITE diamonds positively match genuine diamonds in every way—same blazing flash and dazzling play of living rainbow fire. They, alone, stand the diamond tests, including tartaric acid test of direct comparison. Life time experts need all their experience to see any difference. Prove this yourself.

Wear a Corodite Diamond 7 Days Free

Make this test. You risk nothing. Wear a genuine Corodite end a diamond side by side on the same finger for 7 days. If you or your friends can tell the difference, send it back; you won't be out a single penny. That's fair enough. If you keep the ring, the price printed here is all you pay. No installments. Remember, Corodites alone have the same cutting as genuine stones.

No. 1—Ladies' Solitaire 14K Gold S. Ring $2.84
No. 4—Ladies' Hand-Carved Basket Setting, plat. Enlab $3.96
No. 5—Ladies' Solitaire Bridal Blossom Engraved $3.54
No. 6—Gents' Massive Hand-Carved Green Gold Gypsy $4.39
No. 7—Gents' Heavy Belcher 14K Gold S. Ring $3.68

Carat size gems. Beautiful mountings of most modern design. Choice of gold or latest white platinum finish. Unqualified 20-year guarantee. Handsome art-leather case free with each ring.

SEND NO MONEY Keep your money right at home. Just send name, address and number of ring, wanted and size as shown by slip of paper, fitting end to end around finger joint. Your ring will come by return mail. When ring arrives deposit amount shown above with postman. If you decide not to keep ring after 7 days' wear, send it back and your money will be immediately returned. Send today.

E. RICHWINE CO.
19 W. Jackson Blvd., Dept. 571, Chicago, Ill.
Sole Importers Genuine Corodite Diamonds

The Movie Encyclopædia

(Continued from page 79)

but not at the same time. Jackie Coogan born Oct. 26, 1914.

HELEN.—Yes, send twenty-five cents in stamps for the October 1919 issue of the MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE containing the story "Male and Female."

HOPE.—Well, love is like hash; you can never tell what you are likely to find in it. Mildred Davis intends to do some more honeymooning by going abroad.

MISS DOROTHY.—Where was Magna Charta signed? At the bottom. And you really intend to go on the stage. There is lots of time, why not try to get a little more knowledge. When you come to New York, look me up. Pola Negri in "The Spanish Dancer" with Antonio Moreno, Gareth Hughes and Kathlyn Williams.

BERT LYTELL FAN.—You are right, that was Barbara La Marr and not Alice Terry in "Trifling Women."

MYRTLE L.—I understand Harrison Ford is again the husband of Beatrice Prentice. May they never separate. He is playing in "Little Old New York." Dorothy Mackill in "The Fighting Blade" with Richard Barthelmess. Yes, he is five feet seven.

HELEN J.—That's right, someone once said "Woo the widow whilst she is in weeds." Katherine McDonald is twenty-eight, and she is married to Arthur Johnson. Madge Bellamy is nineteen and not married. Playing in "Evangeline."

CLIFTON.—You just write in for the September 1918 and September 1919 CLASSICS.

VIVIAN VAN.—It is very probable that Job never had to answer questions. You want a picture of Gloria Swanson's baby in the CLASSIC. Yes, her name is Gloria Somborn. Betty Compson twenty-five, and John Gilbert in "St. Elmo." You're welcome indeed.

TWO HEAP BIG FANS.—Do not confound great workers with ordinary plodders. Bebe Daniels hasn't bobbed hair. Just pronounce it Bee Bee. All right, send along the custard pie. Wallace Reid played in "Joan the Woman" with Geraldine Farrar. Fiancé is masculine and fiancée is feminine.

ETHEL E. D.—Yes, Kenneth Harlan is twenty-eight and born in New York City. You want to see Charles Meredith in more pictures.

NEWBERRY MAID.—Hello there. Your letter was filled with beautiful sentiment. Monte Blue was born in Indianapolis and you can reach him at Warner Brothers, Bronson Avenue and Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, Cal. Write to me again.

FRANK MAYO FAN.—Pauline Garon is five feet and weighs one hundred and five pounds.

CHRISTIANE C.—You are entirely in error when you say that I snore. I have no small vices. Address Richard Barthelmess at Inspiration Pictures, 565 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Lewis Stone in "The River's End." Alice Calhoun, Cullen Landis and Percy Marmont in "The Alibi."

MISS LOIS N.—Why Marion Davies lives on Riverside Drive, but you can address her at the Cosmopolitan Studio, 2478 Second Avenue, New York City.

CHICK M.—Oh, but there are beautiful flowers that are scentless, and beautiful women that are unlovable. Nazimova is forty-four and Antonio Moreno has brown eyes and hair. Bebe Daniels has blue eyes.

HOUSTON BILL.—Shake Bill. Glad to see you. Madge Bellamy is only nineteen and Patsy Ruth Miller is also nineteen. Clara Horton is twenty. Tom Mix is Noted actresses all abhor dull hair—they can't afford to have it. They have no more choice in the color of their hair than you have. Their hair is more beautiful, because their profession—their very environment—soon teaches them how to make the best of what nature has given them.

Dull Hair

Practically every woman has reasonably good hair—satisfactory in quantity, texture and color. So-called dull hair is the result of improper care. Ordinary shampooing is not enough; just washing cannot sufficiently improve dull, drab hair. Only a shampoo that adds "that little something" dull hair lacks can really improve it.

Whether your hair is light, medium or dark, it is only necessary to supply this elusive little something to make it beautiful. This can be done. If your hair lacks lustre—if it is not quite as rich in tone as you would like to have it—you can easily give it that little something it lacks. No ordinary shampoo will do this, for ordinary shampoos do nothing but clean the hair. Golden Glint Shampoo is NOT an ordinary shampoo. It does more than merely clean. It adds that little something which distinguishes really pretty hair from that which is dull and ordinary.

Have a Golden Glint Shampoo today and give your hair this special treatment which is all it needs to make it as beautiful as you desire it. 25 cents a package at toilet counters or postpaid direct, J. W. Kobi Co., 115 Spring St., Seattle, Wash.

PIMPLY SKIN made WELL

When a few applications of this wonder working lotion has cleared faces of pimples, blackheads, acne eruptions on the face or body, enlarged pores, oily or shiny skin, you can realize why CLEAR-TONE has been tested and approved in over 100,000 Test Cases.

The simplicity of the treatment. The Story of How I Cured Myself are all explained in my free booklet. Write for your copy today and learn of the results gotten by thousands of men and women.

E. S. GIVENS
223 CHEMICAL BLDG. KANSAS CITY, MO.

Free to Writers!

THE SHORT-CUT TO SUCCESSFUL WRITING

A WONDERFUL BOOK—read about it! Tells how easily Stories and Plays are conceived, written, perfected, sold. How many who don't DREAM they can write, suddenly find it out. How the Scenario Kings and the Story Queens live and work. How bright men and women, without any special experience, learn to their own amazement that their simplest ideas may furnish brilliant plots for Plays and Stories. How one's own Imagination may provide an endless gold-mine of ideas that bring Happy Success and Handsome Cash Royalties. How new writers get their names into print. How to tell if you ARE a writer. How to develop your "story fancy," weave clever word-pictures and unique, thrilling, realistic plots. How your friends may be your worst judges. How to avoid discouragement and the pitfalls of Failure. How to Win! This surprising book is absolutely free. No charge. No obligation. Your copy is waiting for you. Write for it now. Just address

AUTHORS' PRESS, Dept. 133, AUBURN, NEW YORK

High School Course in 2 Years

You can complete this simplified High School Course at home inside two years. Meets all requirements for entrance to college and the leading professions. This and thirty-six other practical courses are described in our Free Bulletin. Send for it TODAY.

AMERICAN SCHOOL
Dept. HC, 62 Ureux Av. & 5th St., © A.S. 1923 CHICAGO

She Found A Better Way To Reduce Her Fat

She did not have to go to the trouble of diet, exercise or unpleasant greases and salves. She found a better way, which aids the digestive organs to turn food into muscle, bone and sinew instead of fat.

She used Marmola Prescription Tablets, which are made from the famous Marmola prescription. They aid the digestive system to obtain the full nutriment of food. They will allow you to eat many kinds of food without the necessity of dieting or exercising.

Thousands have found that the Marmola Prescription Tablets give complete relief from obesity. And when the accumulation of fat is checked, reduction to normal, healthy weight soon follows.

All good drug stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar a box. Ask your druggist for them, or order direct and they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid.

MARMOLA COMPANY

239 Garfield Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

playing in "Soft Boiled." Yes, Mary Pickford is Douglas Fairbanks' second wife.

Doris G.—Yes, I know you are a woman, when you think, you must speak. May Alton is back to earth, and she is married to Robert Ellis. No, my beard doesn't give me much trouble, the only time it does is when I eat corn on the cob or watermelon.

LITTLE GIRL.—Agnes Ayres is with Famous Players, 1520 Vine Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

EVA.—Yes, I should have answered you, but you don't seem to realize all the questions I receive. Why don't you write to Miss Brady, she will be glad to hear from you. Paul Willis is not playing now. Hasn't been for some time. All right, I'll try to straighten you out on the Moore brothers. Tom was married to Alice Joyce, but is now married to Renée Adorée. Owen was married to Mary Pickford, but is married to Kathryn Perry now. Joe was married to Grace Cunard and Matt is not married. Oh yes, there really is nothing finer in music than the opera "Samson and Delilah." You want to know what Tamar Lane is? Well, in my estimation he is a very good looking young chap. Send me your picture in that dress. So long, little Eva.

JEANNE.—Thanks a lot. Leatrice Joy was born in New Orleans.

GREY EYES.—Darkness has its uses; we can see farther in the night, for are not the stars more distant, than the sun? And you don't care for Pola Negri. Claire Windsor in "The Eternal Three." Gloria Swanson in "Zaza." Rod LaRocque and Eddie Burns in "Jazzmania."

Mrs. J. B.—Always glad to hear from the mamas. Don't send the twenty-five cents to me, you would never see it again. Send it direct to the players for their pictures.

KAYE H.—Have passed yours along to the editor.

WILMA Y.—To a woman, the romances she makes are more amusing than those she reads. Yes, Mahlon Hamilton was interviewed in the April 1921 issue of the MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE. Agnes Ayres in "The Love Chase." Oh, I don't mind answering questions. I turn them out by the yard now.

MADCAP.—I can see you are all for Gaston Glass. Jack Holt and Sigrid Holmquist in "A Gentleman of Leisure." Marguerite Courtot in "The Steadfast Heart."

SPARK PLUG.—Your letter was mighty interesting and I wish I could print it.

TILLIE THE TOILER.—Thanks for yours.

SAZZY SUSIE.—Yes, and Friendship is a plant that one must often water. Yes, May McAvoy intends to go on the stage this fall. Bert Lytell is playing in "The Lone Wolf" series, for Cosmopolitan. Lillian Gish is two years older than Dorothy. Marion Davies with Cosmopolitan, Jackie Coogan will be nine; Wallace Reid was thirty-one. Gloria Swanson is five feet three. No, they are not the same. Whew! You sure do answer questions, dont you.

MADLINE MARY.—My real name you're after, is it? Hump! Yes, I like your stationery. It is very smart. Chic! Yes, you were born the same day that Richard Barthelmess was. Eugene O'Brien was born in Denver thirty-nine years ago. Milton Sills is married to Gladys Wynn and Barbara La Marr married to Jack Dougherty.

MISS QUESTION MARK; MILDRED T.; G. RICHARDS; I. M. WAITING; FRANCES G.; HELEN S.; K. H. M.; HELEN M.; MYRTHEL D.; MOVIE MAD; MAP; FRANK P.; and SAUCY SUE.—Your questions have all been answered.

Dramatic scene from Rex Ingram's "Trafficking Women" (Metro Pictures Corporation).

Write For the Movies

Producers are looking for plots. You can turn your ideas into strong, dramatic screen stories, just the kind producers want.

You need no literary ability. It is simple when you have a knowledge of photoplay construction. The successful photoplay writers today are men and women who have only recently started to write.

If you want to write stories—if in your day dreams you make up tales about yourself—you are creating. And remember, it does not take fine writing, but just the instinct to create and a knowledge of photoplay construction. If you are ambitious, if you are really anxious to write film stories, certainly you want to find out just what advantages and opportunities this profession offers you.

Write Photoplays While You Learn

You build a model photoplay while learning. Under the personal direction of a member of our faculty, you construct, step by step, the sort of plot that is in demand. Expert constructive criticism—special assignment plan—Plot Research Laboratory—all train you to write salable photoplays.

You learn at home in spare time.

Free Book!

The Van Vliet Plan of Writing for the Movies fully explained. 32-page book, fully illustrated—free to all men and women interested in writing for the movies. Just send name and address. Write for this FREE Book today.

2537 So. State St., Dept. 12-76 Chicago

Reduce Your Flesh

in spots—

Arms, Legs, Bust
Double Chin, etc.

IN fact, the entire body, or any part, can be reduced without dieting by dissolving the fat through perspiration produced by wearing my garments.

Anklets, for reducing and shaping the ankles. Send ankle measurement.
Per pair $7.00
Extra high . 9.00

Brassiere—to reduce bust and diaphragm . . . $7.00
Neck and Chin Reducer . 3.50
Double Chin Reducer . 2.50

Send for Illustrated Booklet

Dr. JEANNE M. C. WALTER
FAMOUS MEDICATED REDUCING
RUBBER GARMENTS

389 Fifth Avenue, New York City

BECOME A PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER

EARNING $35 TO $125 A WEEK

Three to six months' course. Motion Picture, Commercial, Portraiture. Practical Instruction. Modern Equipment. Ask for Catalog No. 18.

N. Y. INSTITUTE OF PHOTOGRAPHY
NEW YORK CHICAGO BROOKLYN
141 W. 36th St. 630 So. Wabash Ave. 505 State St.

Art Corner Your Pictures—Album

where you can keep them safe and enjoy them always.

Engel's Art Corners Colors

are on sale at Photo Supply and Album counters everywhere. They are the only Golek, Easy, Artistic, No Paste, No Fold way to mount Kodak Prints. A dime brings 100 and samples to try. Write ENGEL MFG. CO. Dept. 26W 4711 N. Clark St., Chicago

An Easy Way to Remove Dandruff

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

The best way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it. To do this, just apply a little Liquid Arvon at night before retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp, and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications should completely remove every sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get Liquid Arvon at any drug store. A four-ounce bottle is usually all that is needed.

The R. L. Watkins Co., Cleveland, Ohio

Nothing Is More Beautiful Than the Natural Wave of Lustrous Hair

You have often heard the remark at some society function: "What a beautiful woman that is!" And nine times out of ten she isn't beautiful, her attraction being almost wholly due to natural hair health, texture and brilliancy.

Even if Nature fails you in an inheritance of wonderful hair, what you have can be almost miraculously freshened, brightened and improved in appearance by the use of Canthrox.

Canthrox Shampoo

develops the life, luster and natural wave. It makes hair clean, bright and luxuriant. It removes every particle of dirt, dust and dandruff, cleanses and improves the scalp and leaves the hair a mass of fluffy softness that will render even ordinary hair attractive. After its use the hair dries quickly and evenly and is never streaky; use it in hard or soft water—then rinse and note the magical difference.

At All Drug Stores

It will surprise you to find that such an efficient hair wash can be used at a cost of about three cents a shampoo. Since it entered the shampoo field alone many years ago, it has steadily gained new friends who buy no other because Canthrox is so easy to use, soothing and cooling and never leaves the hair sticky or matted.

Free Trial Offer

If your druggist isn't close or you wish to try Canthrox, send us a two-cent stamp to pay postage and we will forward you one postage shampoo free to any address.

H. S. PETERSON & CO.
214 W. Kinzie St. Dept. 276 Chicago, Ill.

EARN MONEY AT HOME

YOU can make $15 to $60 weekly in your spare time writing show cards. No canvassing or soliciting. We instruct you by our new simple Directograph system, pay you cash each week and guarantee you steady work. Write for full particulars and free booklet.

WEST-ANGUS SHOW CARD SERVICE
74 Colborne Building Toronto, Can.

LABLACHE FACE POWDER

Lablache! A powder that protects and beautifies the complexion, softly clinging. Chosen by fastidious women through three generations for its purity, daintiness and delicate, subtle fragrance. It's safe.

Refuse Substitutes
They may be dangerous. Flesh, White, Pink or Cream. 50 cents a box of drug-gists or by mail. Send 10 cents for sample box.

BEN. LEVY CO.
French Perfumers, Dept. C
125 Kingston St., Boston, Mass.

Flashes From the Eastern Stars

(Continued from page 51)

Mensch," by Ernst Teller; an American play not yet selected, and "Lear," with Rudolph Schildkraut.

Commodore J. Stuart Blackton is making preparations for the first of the Blackton Productions which will be released by Vitagraph. It is understood upon good authority that Commodore Blackton will produce at the Brooklyn studios of Vitagraph where he made the Blackton Productions which became famous for their exceptional artistic as well as box office values.

Charles Dillingham has returned from London, Paris, Vienna and Budapest with a bundle of new plays and novelties for his theaters—the best that the market afforded in England and on the Continent.

"Before buying any foreign play, I obtained the famous 'Italian Marionette Players,'" said Mr. Dillingham. "These marionettes are a form of art which allows of great scope and assures the interpretation of the author's intentions, only they are not so wooden as many of the unionized American actors. They are the one great novelty of the London season," he insisted. "This is a troupe of more than five hundred marionettes, with a repertoire of some twenty-five operas, innumerable burlesques, ballets and vaudeville acts. The musical settings are by Rossini, Cæsar Cui, Donizetti, Mazzenet and Ottarine Respighi. The Teatro del Piccoli is an expressive of the soul of Italian art as is the Russian ballet of the soul of eastern Europe."

Sam Wood is seeking a beautiful girl, professional or amateur, to play the leading rôle in a new picture which he has already started at the Paramount Long Island Studio. It's getting to be a serious matter with him, for he has been searching for weeks without being able to find the type he wants. He felt he couldn't delay production any longer and has begun work without her. The rôle is that of Diana Kayne, in a screen version of Arthur Train's story, "His Children's Children." Two additions were made last week to the cast. They are Mary Eaton of the Follies and Hale Hamilton, star of both stage and screen. Mary Eaton will be starred in the fall by Flo Ziegfeld.

Cauliflowered ears have been vying with dimpled cheeks in the Casting Department of the Cosmopolitan

Wholesome

Pure good gum
—good for the digestion, teeth and nerves —
for good health
use Beeman's—

"a sensible habit"

Deliciously flavored

BEEMAN'S Pepsin Gum

American Chicle Co.

21 Jewel Burlington

$1 Down Adjusted to the Second—Temperature — Isochronism — Positions — 21 Ruby and Sapphire Jewels—Cased in a 25 year Gold Strata Case. Only $1 down will bring you this masterpiece. Write today for free book to Burlington Watch Company 19th St. & Marshall Blvd., Dept. 12-76, Chicago, Ill.

WE TEACH COMMERCIAL ART

Meyer Both Company, the largest Commercial Art Organization in the World, offers you an unusual opportunity for practical training. If you like to draw develop your talent. Study this practical course—taught by the nationally known Meyer Both Company, with twenty-two years success—who each year produces and sells to advertisers over 15,000 commercial drawings. Our teachers give you the double advantage of being instructors of proven ability, as well as artists in this widely known organization. Meyer Both instruction is the difference between successful fact and experimental theory. Commercial Art is a highly paid, intensely interesting profession, equally open to men and women. Home study instruction.

Get Facts Before You Enroll in any School.

Ask the Advertising Manager of the leading newspapers in your city, anywhere in the United States, Canada, England or Australia about the Meyer Both Company—let them tell you about us. Write for our illustrated book "YOUR OPPORTUNITY"—for one-half the cost of mailing—four cents in stamps.

MEYER BOTH COMPANY

Department of Art Instruction
Michigan Ave. at 20th St., Dept. 55, CHICAGO, ILL.

NOTE—To Art and Engraving Firms: Secure practical artists among our graduates. Write us.

You Are Welcome Everywhere

Everyone should possess the ability to play some musical instrument. It will greatly increase your popularity and personal satisfaction. You are welcome everywhere with a sweet-toned

BUESCHER

Saxophone

It is the one instrument anyone can learn to play—easiest of all musical instruments to master. With the aid of the first 3 lessons, which are sent without charge, the scale can be mastered in an hour; in a few weeks you can be playing popular music.

A Wonderful Entertainer
The Saxophone is the most popular instrument for home entertainment, church, lodge or school. You may readily add to your income if you desire, as Saxophone players are always in demand for dance orchestras.

FREE Trial—EASY Payments
You may try any Buescher Saxophone, Cornet, Trumpet or Trombone or other Band or Orchestral Instrument six days in your own home without obligation. If perfectly satisfied, pay for it on easy payments. Send for free Saxophone Book or complete catalog, mentioning instrument in which you are interested. (89)
BUESCHER BAND INSTRUMENT CO.
Makers of Everything in Band and Orchestra Instruments
2089 Buescher Block Elkhart, Indiana

LOSE A POUND A DAY!

Science has discovered that fat can be eliminated without diet, drugs or exercising.
A NEW WAY—an easy, pleasant way that is Safe and Sure. From 8 ounces to a pound a day melted away as if by magic.
Dissolve Flo-Ra-Zo-Na in warm water. Get in and RELAX that is the secret. To reduce arms, neck, bust or any part of the body make a local application of FLO-RA-ZO-NA.
GUARANTEED TO CONTAIN no alum, epsom salts, or any harmful ingredients. YOUR MONEY REFUNDED if you are not satisfied.
1 BOX CONTAINS 14 TREATMENTS at druggists, or send $3, plus 25c for postage and packing (Canada $4), and free booklet to FLO-RA-ZO-NA CORP.,
100 Fifth Ave., Dept. F5 New York
NO DIET—NO DRUGS—NO EXERCISE

$2.63 $3.25

SEND NO MONEY

If You Can Tell it from a GENUINE DIAMOND Send it back
To prove our blue-white MEXICAN DIAMOND cannot be told from a GENUINE DIAMOND and has same DAZZLING RAINBOW FIRE, we will send a selected 1 carat gem in ladies Solitaire Ring. (Cat. price $5.25) for Half Price to introduce, $2.63, or in Gentle Heavy Tooth Belcher Ring (Cat. Price $5.50) for $3.25. Our finest 14 Gold Filled mountings, GUARANTEED 20 YEARS, SEND NO MONEY. Just mail postcard or the ad, State Size. We will mail at once. When ring arrives deposit $2.63 for Ladies ring or $3.25 for Gents with postman. If not pleased return in 2 days for money back less handling charges. Write for Free catalog. Agents Wanted.
MEXICAN DIAMOND IMPORTING CO., Dept. CA2 Las Cruces, N. Mex. (Exclusive controllers Mexican Diamonds)

25 YEARS THE STANDARD TRAINING SCHOOL FOR THEATRE ARTS
ALVIENE SCHOOL OF DRAMATIC ARTS
FOUR SCHOOLS IN ONE, PRACTICAL STAGE TRAINING THE SCHOOL'S STUDENTS STOCK AND THEATRE AFFORD PUBLIC STAGE APPEARANCES
Write for catalog mentioning study desired to Secretary
ALVIENE SCHOOLS, Suite 17
43 West 72nd Street
Bet. 8'way & Central Park West, New York

(Eighty-nine)

Corporation during the last few days and a new screen idol may soon be recruited from the pugilistic ranks. Cosmopolitan is filming H. C. Witwer's popular fight story, "Cain and Mabel," featuring Anita Stewart. The script calls for a boxer as one of the principals, and Casting Director Clarence Elmer is devoting his entire time to interviewing ring gladiators. Among those who have already admitted that they are ready to take the count in the picture are: Jack Britton, ex-welterweight champion; George Ward, welterweight contender; Johnny Basham, lightweight champion of England; Clay Turner, the Indian fighter, Danny Frush and Gene Delmont.

Two masked bandits broke into a United States mail train on the Raritan River Railway two miles beyond South Amboy, N. J., last Sunday. One of the desperadoes escaped and the other is thought to have lost his life in the South River when he leaped from the speeding train with a mail pouch. A mail clerk dived into the river and rescued the mail. The attempted robbery was staged under the supervision of the United States Post Office Department. Colonel Paul Henderson, Assistant Postmaster General, and Major James A. Buchanan, chief of the Bureau of Information, provided the means by which to stage the mail robbery. They were co-operating with Whitman Bennett, producer of "Loyal Lives," a thrilling romance of the unsung heroes who protect the United States mail—the postman and the railway mail clerk. It will be released by Vitaphone and is the first of six pictures Mr. Bennett will make for them.

Glenn Hunter is at work on "Grit," his last picture for the Film Guild. Clara Bow, one of our Fame and Fortune Contest winners, will play opposite him. She has signed a contract with the Film Guild.

"Success," a play by A. A. Milne, will be seen next season with Norman Trevor in the leading rôle.

Herbert Brenon has arrived in New York to make preparation for his next Paramount picture, "The Spanish Dancer," with Pola Negri as the star. It will be based on the famous play "Don Cæsar de Bazan." Mr. Brenon has been visiting art galleries and museums in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, and interviewing several authorities on the Spanish customs and dress of the period in which the story is laid.

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN as he is to-day

Some day a little bug is going to get you—

Germs are here, there and everywhere. They are in the air, in your food and the very water you drink. In fact, scientists say your body is full of them. They are only waiting for your vitality to weaken and then they are going to get you.
But what does a strong, healthy man care about all this? Once these terrible germs find your lungs breathing deep with oxygen and your heart pumping rich, red blood, they are going to run for their lives. A disease germ has as much chance in a healthy body as a fly has in a spider's web.

Food Was Meant to Eat

I don't ask you to give up all the good things in life. I make you fit to enjoy them. Everything was made with some purpose. Food was meant to eat and a healthy man has no regrets for satisfying his keen appetite. A man who takes the proper exercise craves food and must have it. Water was meant to bathe with—both inside and out. By drinking plenty of water you remove the waste matter within, just as washing your skin removes the waste matter without.

I MAKE MUSCLE

I am not a doctor—I don't claim to cure disease. That is a physician's job. But follow my advice and the doctor will starve to death waiting for you to take sick. I build strength and endurance. I make muscle. Follow my instructions and you will increase your arm one full inch in thirty days—yes, and put two inches on your chest in the same length of time. But that is only a starter. Meanwhile, I work on those inner muscles surrounding your heart and other vital organs which affect your entire physical being. You will soon feel the thrill of life pulsing through your veins. You will have pep in your old backbone. There will be a flash to your eye and a spring to your step. You will radiate vitality and have the strong robust body to put it over. I don't promise these things—I guarantee them. Come on and make me prove it. That is what I like, because I know I can do it.

Send for My New 64-Page Book "MUSCULAR DEVELOPMENT"

It contains forty-three full-page photographs of myself and some of the many prize-winning pupils I have trained. Some of these came to me as pitiful weaklings, imploring me to help them. Look them over now and you will marvel at their present physiques. This book will prove an impetus and a real inspiration to you. It will thrill you through and through. All I ask is ten cents to cover the cost of wrapping and mailing and it is yours to keep. This will not obligate you at all, but for the sake of your future health and happiness, do not put it off. Send today—right now, before you turn this page.

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN

Dept. 1809, 305 Broadway, New York City

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN, Dept. 1809, 305 Broadway, New York City

Dear Sir:—I enclose herewith 10 cents for which you are to send me, without any obligation on my part whatever, a copy of your latest book, "Muscular Development." (Please write or print plainly.)

Name.....
Street.....
City..... State.....

house as a group of incompetents. They notice her departure, but never think of following her.

Meanwhile there is a melodramatic flair when an escaped convict is determined to exact vengeance against the judge for sending him up the river—and the girl aids him to escape. The introductory scenes are by far the best—particularly the one featuring the prison delivery. But the picture becomes tiresome and dull and falters toward its conclusion. A discrepancy creeps out when the immaculate hero journeys down to Cherry Street attired in evening clothes and a top hat. As if he were slumming!

The acting of the three cronies is entrusted to Claude Gillingwater, William H. Crane and Alec Francis. All give mellow performances with the first mentioned surpassing the others. Eleanor Boardman's heroine is easy upon the eyes but her interpretation merely skims the surface. Careful editing would improve the picture, which despite its shortcomings contains a few appealing moments.

ANY picture carrying as its theme the evils of dope is not expected to prove very enjoyable entertainment. But because it presents a terrific indictment of the drug habit and is offered as a sincere attempt to diminish the scope of this terrible evil, "Human Wreckage" (Film Booking Offices) will earn encomiums, regardless of the fact that many will consider it made for commercial purposes. It tells a story recognizably real, touching the high places as well as the low places in the social scale, thus revealing that no one is immune from the deadly influence of narcotics.

The continuity doesn't always behave. There are times when lesser characters are neglected entirely to give emphasis to the major plot—which concerns a powerful attorney becoming addicted to morphine and causing his wife untold anguish, until she is unable to cope with the vice and is about to become an addict herself, when her husband, realizing the terrible consequences, shakes off the grip of the drug.

Mrs. Wallace Reid has doubtless employed her own personal experiences with the craving for narcotics—and the story which involves her is much more genuine than the by-plots concerning characters from a lower station in the social scheme. Yet these

(Continued on page 94)

Doesn't hurt the skin a particle

Embarrassing Hair All Gone In A Few Minutes

AMAZINGLY simple, easy, quick, pleasant and sure—this new way to get rid of embarrassing hair, either under the arms or elsewhere, yet absolutely safe and harmless—sure death to unsightly hair, but doesn't hurt the skin a particle.

First you apply a bit of powder, then a bit of lotion—in a few minutes all trace of hair will be gone. Has never failed.

A new discovery—entirely different from other methods. Kilrute is a combination treatment—a powder that instantly dissolves and removes the external part of the hair—plus a lotion that goes below the surface and gradually devitalizes the hair glands (endocrine glands) thus preventing new growth. It does this by stopping the secretions which supply nourishment to the hair—literally starves the hair root to death. Wherever this lotion is applied, its action on these glands bring about precisely the same condition (starvation of the hair root that is the cause of so much baldness among men).

A single application of the Kilrute Powder is generally all that is needed to remove all outward or external traces of hair. Then a few applications of the Kilrute Lotion will gradually devitalize the glands which feed the hair, thus discouraging future growth.

To Prove It To You

The makers of Kilrute guarantee absolute satisfaction. To prove results, a complete combination treatment with full directions will be sent on approval. Send no money—simply fill out and mail the coupon. The price of the complete treatment is $5.00, which you pay the postman on delivery. If for any reason you are not completely satisfied your $5 will be refunded.

Owing to postal regulations, post office money order must accompany all foreign orders.

KILRUTE COMPANY
Dept. 1009 247 West 72nd St.
New York City

Note!

News of the wonderful work of Kilrute has caused such an overwhelming demand that we are obliged to discontinue sending out free trial samples, but we shall be happy to give FREE DEMONSTRATION of full treatment with charge at above address.

Send No Money

KILRUTE COMPANY,
Dept. 1009, 247 West 72nd St., New York City.

Gentlemen:

Please send me on approval a complete Kilrute Combination Treatment for superfluous hair (Kilrute Powder and Kilrute Lotion) which you guarantee to remove external hair immediately and to discourage any future growth. I will pay the postman $5 plus postage on delivery. If I am not perfectly satisfied with the results, you guarantee to refund my $5. (If you prefer, send $5 with this coupon, subject to above money-back guarantee.)

Name.....
Address.....

DIAMONDS
$195 PER CARAT
From 1.8 Carat to 2 Carats
Former Price, $325.
You Save 40 per cent

30 DAYS FREE WEAR

If you can duplicate these diamonds for less than $25.00 per Carat, we will RETURN YOUR MONEY.

Genuine, sparkling blue white diamonds set in 18 Karat solid white gold rings.
CATALOG FREE

It gives valuable information about diamond weights and grades which you should know before buying, and offers a jewelry store full of bargains to select from. Money back guarantee bond with each diamond.

B. GUTTER & SONS ESTD. 1879
172 NASSAU ST., Dept. 1074, New York

ART PHOTOS STUDIES BEAUTY OF NATURE
Post-card Size and Larger Size—Great Collection. Splendid Samples for $1.00—$3.00—$5.00. Write
EDITIONS D'ART at NEUILLY-PLAISANCE (S & O), France

UNLUCKY? Then wear this Mystic Serpent. Replicas of Ancient Hindu charms against evil spirits, sickness, spells, and misdeeds, games. Heavy, weird and startling. Genuine 14-Karat gold shell, 3 year guarantee. Men and Women. Secret "formula for luck" FREE. Send measure (string tied around finger). ALI G. BABA, Box 55, 116 Str. Sta. G. New York. Pay $2.27 and postage to postman on delivery.

SLEEVELESS GOWNS AND SHEER FABRICS

and present craze for dancing has made it necessary to remove superfluous hair in order to have freedom of movement, unhampered grace and modest elegance.

MODENE
will instantly dissolve and remove Hair on the Face, Neck, on or under the Arms without the slightest injury to the most delicate skin. For thirty years MODENE has stood the test and received the endorsement of thousands of people of refinement. MODENE for sale by all Druggists or by mail, postpaid, $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.
MODENE MFG. CO., CINCINNATI, O.

BATHASWEET
Enjoy the luxury of perfumed water of silky softness
The utter luxury of the bath when Bathasweet has been sprinkled in it cannot be described. It must be felt. The caressing softness of the water, its dainty stimulating fragrance are a delight you, too, will love. And it is just as good for your skin as it is delightful. You must try it. Your drug or department store sells Bathasweet, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Or we will send you a miniature can for only 10c.
THE C. S. WELCH CO., Dept. AB4, New York City

$ 100
Down
Brings This

Gas or Electric
The Lamp—

Comes equipped for choice of gas or electricity. Has 2-light Benjamin socket for electricity only, with 8-foot silk cord ready for use; or comes with 6-foot rubber hose, burner, mantle and chimney for gas.

Mahogany Finish

Standard is 60 in. high, 3 in. in diameter. Highly polished French mahogany finish.

The Shade—

Made in Fifth Avenue design, 24 in. in diameter, of delft blue silk, shirred top, alternating plain and fancy art silk panels. Twelve panels in all, tinsel braid border, with four inch Chenille fringe. American beauty shirred lining. The harmonious color scheme gives effect of red light shining through a blue haze—a rich warm light. Shipping weight, 27 pounds.

Marshall Silky Fringe Pull-Cords

Also pair of Marshall silky fringe cords with 3½ in. silky fringed tassels, giving an added luxurious effect.

For gas use, order by No. G6332NA.

For electricity, order by No. G6333NA.

Send only $1 with the coupon, $2 monthly. Total Bargain Price for lamp and shade, $19.85.

Free Bargain Catalog

Shows thousands of bargains in home furnishings: furniture, jewelry, rugs, curtains, phonographs, stoves, dishes, aluminum ware, etc. All sold on easy terms. Catalog sent free, with or without order. See the coupon.

Floor Lamp
 With
5th Ave. Silk Shade

Here is something you have always wanted—a beautiful floor lamp with handsome and elegant Fifth Avenue silk shade—to add an extra tone of elegance and luxury to your home. On this generous offer you can see just how this floor lamp and silk shade will look in your home, without risking anything. Send only $1.00 with the coupon below, and we will send it complete to your home on approval, equipped for use with either gas or electricity. We take all the risk!

30 Days Trial

When the lamp outfit comes, use it freely for 30 days. See how beautifully the colorings of the handsome silk shade blend and harmonize with everything in the home. How useful it is, too—so handy for reading, can be moved around with ease to furnish a beautiful light and rich warmth and coziness to any room in the house. If after 30 days trial you decide not to keep the lamp, just return it at our expense and we will refund your $1.00 deposit, plus any freight or express you paid. You cannot lose a single penny.

$2.00 a Month

If you discover that this lamp is a tremendous bargain at the price you have paid the total bargain price of $19.85. Yes, only $19.85 for this luxurious lamp and silk shade complete. Compare this value with anything you could buy locally at anywhere near the same price—even for spot cash! Straus & Schram gives you this bargain price and almost a year to pay. We trust honest people anywhere in U. S. No discount for cash; nothing extra for credit. No C. O. D.

Price Slashed!

Decide now to see this beautiful floor lamp and silk shade in your home on approval on this price smashing offer. Think how the nickels and dimes slip away for useless things; save them for something worth while that will give satisfaction for years. Send coupon with only $1.00 now! Satisfaction guaranteed.

STRAUS & SCHRAM, Dept. 1516 Chicago, Ill.

MAIL THIS COUPON NOW! STRAUS & SCHRAM Dept. 1516 CHICAGO

Enclosed find $1.00. Ship special advertised Floor Lamp and Silk Shade as checked below. I am to have 30 days free trial. If I keep the lamp, I will send $2.00 a month. If not satisfied, I am to return the lamp and shade within 30 days and you are to refund my $1.00 plus any transportation charges I paid.

- Gas Floor Lamp No. G 6332NA, $19.85.
- Electric Floor Lamp No. G 6333NA, $19.85

Name.....

Street, R. F. D. or Box No.....

Shipping Point.....

Post Office..... State.....

If you want ONLY our free catalog of home furnishings, mark X here

Freckles fade while you sleep

No other beauty treatment is as easy and effortless as removing freckles with Stillman's Freckle Cream.

Simply apply it before retiring. While you sleep the freckles gently fade away, bringing back a clear white complexion. Safe and sure—in use since 1890. Look for the purple and gold box. On sale at all druggists in 50c and $1 sizes.

Write for "Beauty Parlor Secrets"

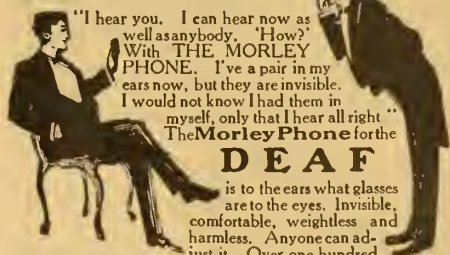

Just out! "Beauty Parlor Secrets," a booklet giving the details of expensive complexion and hair treatments, enabling you to enjoy them at home at low cost. Illustrates the fine points of make-up. Sent free. The Stillman Company, 3 Rosemary Lane, Aurora, Ill.

Stillman's Freckle Cream

Write for "Beauty Parlor Secrets" Free

"DON'T SHOUT"

"I hear you. I can hear now as well as anybody. 'How?' With THE MORLEY PHONE. I've a pair in my ears now, but they are invisible. I would not know I had them in myself, only that I hear all right."

DEAF

is to the ears what glasses are to the eyes. Invisible, comfortable, weightless and harmless. Anyone can adjust it. Over one hundred thousand sold. Write for booklet and testimonials. THE MORLEY CO., Dept. 792, 26 S. 15th Street, Phila.

Malvina CREAM Booklet FREE

For the Complexion —for Freckles —for the Skin

Originated by Prof. I. Hubert Popular Since 1874

Sold by leading dealers everywhere. If your dealer can't supply you, send money-order direct.

Write today for free booklet, "How She Won a Husband," including testimonials and beauty hints.

Prof. I. Hubert Dept. 793 Toledo, Ohio

Prices: Soap 30c Cream 50c Lotion 50c All $1.40 Postpaid Send Money-order

Greed

(Continued from page 56)

Trina began to cry, remembering her cold-blooded selfishness and what he had done to her at the same time. She piled the gold back into its bag and locked the trunk. The key she wore in a tiny chamois bag around her neck.

At the kindergarten the next day the children were decorating for their Christmas celebration. It was four o'clock and the early winter dusk had set in. Everything was ready but the floor. The children went home and left Trina to do the scrubbing. As she sloshed around in the dirty water, she thought of her gold at home, her bright, clean, shining, gold. She wrung the mop dry for the last time and was terrified to see McTeague enter the room. He had been drinking.

"Wha-what do you want?" she gasped.

"Your five thousand."

"I haven't got it. Uncle Oelberman still has it."

"You lie. I've been to him."

"I'll give you half—"

"No. Every damn cent of it."

Trina did not reply. She slipped past him and managed to lock him in the room. He broke the lock without any difficulty and followed her to the cloak room. He took her by the throat and pressed his broad flat thumb into its soft throbbing whiteness. She made a funny little gurgling sound and started to struggle. Presently he staggered out of the dark cloak room and shut the door gently after him.

At home he took Trina's little key and unlocked the trunk. He cursed the heavy load. He cursed the avarice that had demanded gold instead of bills, but he stuffed the canvas bag in the top of his trousers and went away. In the morning he was back at the Big Dipper Mine where he had worked as a boy.

In the morning the children coming to school in little chattering groups walked happily toward the cloak room. A black cat was sniffing at the door, curling its tail. They opened the door, and ran back screaming. They could see a little white hand with only two fingers on it, outstretched in its last mute and futile supplication.

One night McTeague awakened with a fear he could not define. "I dont see nothing," he muttered, "I cant hear nothing, but I feel something. . . ." He lay down again but he could not sleep. The McTeagues of the world can always sleep and the fact that he couldn't, filled him with a grim foreboding.

The Spell of Moonlit Eyes

Murmuring trees and distant music, a moonlit road that for you and for him is an enchanted highway of romance. Do your eyes hold him spellbound? They will if shadowed by lashes that have been darkened with WINX. Applied with the glass rod attached to the stopper, WINX makes the lashes appear longer and heavier. Dries instantly and lasts—harmless and waterproof.

Winx (black or brown) 75c. To nourish lashes and promote growth, use colorless cream Lashlux at night. Cream Lashlux (black, brown or colorless) 50c. At drug, department stores or by mail.

The new waterproof SWIMSET, beautifully boxed, contains 75c packages of WINX and of PERT, the waterproof rouge. At drug, department stores or by mail, $1.50.

Samples of WINX and PERT are a dime each. Send for them today and enclose coins.

ROSS COMPANY

78 Grand Street New York

WINX Waterproof

Standard Spanish ARMY

Used by French During World War

Buy direct from sole U. S. importers and SAVE 1/3 on this

GENUINE ASTRA AUTOMATIC

Your chance to have the finest European pistol—the equal of any similar American gun—at about 1/3 the price. Order direct at these special prices.

- $7.75 25 calibre—7 shot—C. O. Q. Automatic.
- 8.95 25 calibre—7 shot—Astra Automatic.
- 9.95 25 calibre Astra with triple safety.
- 10.95 32 calibre—10 shot Astra, extra magazine.
- 16.95 32-20 and 38 cal. swing-out cyl. revolvers.

We guarantee every gun against defective workmanship; brand new; of Drop Forged Steel Through-out. Before buying any weapon INSIST on this guarantee. SEND NO MONEY unless you wish. State model desired—pay postman on delivery plus postage. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Write for new firearms catalogue.

CALIFORNIA TRADING CO.

Dept. 99, Terminal Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

7 Diamond Solitaire Cluster

$2 DOWN

Seven perfectly cut and matched best white diamonds expertly set in hexagon shaped platinum mounting. Looks like a large single solitaire. Beautifully engraved green gold shank. Only $57.50.

10 Months to Pay
$2 brings this ring to you. If satisfied, keep it and you need pay only $5.75 a month. If not satisfied, return it and you owe us nothing, not one penny.

FREE Our handsome Diamond & Gift Book sent on request. Hundreds of sensational bargains illustrated. It costs you nothing, write for copy 499-P

"THE HOUSE OF QUALITY" CAPITAL $1,000,000.

LW-SWEET INC.
1650-1660 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

Note the remarkable improvement in the same eyes below

The Miracle of

Maybelline

Makes Every Face More Beautiful

A touch of MAYBELLINE works beauty wonders. Scant eyebrows and lashes are made to appear naturally dark, long and luxuriant. All the hidden loveliness of your eyes—their brilliance, depth and expression—is instantly revealed. The difference is remarkable. Girls and women everywhere, even the most beautiful actresses of the stage and screen, now realize that MAYBELLINE is the most important aid to beauty and the most regularly used. MAYBELLINE is unlike other preparations. It is absolutely harmless, not spread and smear on the face or irritate the lashes. Each dainty box contains mirror and brush.

Two Shades: Brown for Blondes, Black for Brunettes.

75c at Your Dealer's
Or direct from us, postpaid. Accept only genuine MAYBELLINE and your satisfaction is assured. Tear this out NOW as a reminder.

MAYBELLINE CO., 4750-56 Sheridan Road, Chicago

WRITE FOR THE MOVIES

TURN YOUR TALENT INTO MONEY
Stories Wanted by Producers

A valuable money making field. Try it! Mail us an idea, in any form, at once for free examination and criticism. We give our honest services to amateurs who would convert their thoughts into dollars. No experience necessary. Free booklet sent on request.

Continental Photoplay Studio
154 Nassau St., New York
Suite 112-14, Dept. C.

PIANO JAZZ

By Note or Ear. With or without music. Short Course. Adult beginners taught by mail. No teacher required. Self-Instruction Course for Advanced Pianists. Learn 87 styles of Bass, 180 Syncopated Effects, Blue Harmony, Oriental, Chime, Morle and Cafe Jazz, Trick Endings, Clover Breaks, Space Fillers, Sax Slurs, Triple Bass, Wicked Harmony, Blue Obligato, and 247 other Subjects, including Ear Playing. 110 pages of REAL JAZZ, 25,000 words. A Postal brings our FREE Special Offer. Waterman Piano School, 250 Superba Theatre Bldg. Los Angeles Calif.

ONLY $3.00 Down Brings You a Genuine UNDERWOOD

Latest model. Genuine Shipman-Ward Rebuilt. All worn type replaced with new ones. In appearance, style, class of work and length of service it will give, it compares exactly with a brand new machine. Listed far below factory prices. Guaranteed full five years. Unexcelled easy payment proposition.

FREE Book Tells How!

Send the coupon below for free copy of our big typewriter book giving inside facts about our famous rebuilding process. Full illustrations. Every step explained. Get your copy today. Shows you how we can save you real money. Write now. There is no obligation.

Shipman-Ward Mfg. Co.
2036 Shipman Bldg., Chicago
Please send me a copy of your big typewriter book as illustrated and described above.

Name.....
Street and No.....
City..... State.....

He packed up his meager things and the bag of gold and left without more ado.

Two days later the sheriff and his deputies inquired at the mine for McTeague.

McTeague got off the freighter at a little town far down the line. There he fell in with a man named Cribbens. They formed a partnership and went prospecting in Death Valley for gold. Miraculously they found it and staked their claim. Their mine they called "The Last Chance." A new life began for McTeague.

A notice was posted in the desert for the arrest of McTeague wanted for murder, offering one thousand dollars reward. Marcus Schouler, as malign as fate, one day read the poster. He offered himself to the sheriff as a means of identifying McTeague. He further adorned his tale by saying that the five thousand McTeague carried was stolen from him. The sheriff and his posse, including Marcus, set out over the desert.

At midnight McTeague woke again suddenly. He fired his Winchester in the air. "Aw, show yourself, will you?" he cried inexplicably. Cribbens sat up in surprise. McTeague was wiping the sweat from his white face, ery by starlight. "What in hell's the matter with you?" Cribbens wanted to know. At dawn McTeague was gone and the posse arrived. But they refused to go into the desert—only Marcus, who dreamed of the gold, followed.

On the desert McTeague's mule dragged his feet wearily thru the hot sand. Foolishly McTeague had emptied his canteen at one draught. More foolishly still he had tied his bag of gold to the mule's back and the mule had eaten some loco weed. McTeague lay down beside the beast and went to sleep. He was awakened by the sinister "Hands up." of Marcus. Indifferently, McTeague complied.

"Water," said Marcus weakly.
"Gone," replied McTeague.
"The money," whispered Marcus, his tongue hanging out like a dog panting.

"On the mule," McTeague answered, as tho it didn't matter to him what became of it.
Marcus jumped toward the mule, which ran skittishly away. Both men started after it and Marcus drew his gun and shot it. As the animal fell, the gold pieces slid out of the bag in amazing brightness. McTeague lunged toward Marcus and in a trice Marcus had clamped the handcuffs to him.

Now they begin to argue about the possession of the gold. They forget there is no water, and that they

(Continued on page 96)

Weakness Bars YOU From Happy, Successful Marriage

It is disgraceful to marry before you are physically fit and a real red blooded man in the fullest sense of the word. Nothing could be more cowardly, unmanly and shameful — Lionel Strongfort.

When Marriage Means Misery

There are a great many things that a man can do to make his life a success. But the most important of these is to be a man. A man who is physically fit and a real red blooded man in the fullest sense of the word. Nothing could be more cowardly, unmanly and shameful — Lionel Strongfort.

STRONGFORT The Perfect Man squarely in the face and do not dare to marry until you are physically and mentally fit

Make Yourself a 100% Man

Brace Up. You can come back. You can be a real man again. You can win back your pep and vitality, your ambition and spirit, your health and strength. No matter what your condition is or what caused it, no matter how many methods you have tried in vain, no matter how often you have been disappointed, you will find my Scientific Principles entirely different and successful. Tell me your story as you would to a brother—everything will be held strictly confidential. Come to me in full faith and let me teach you Nature's way, back to Health and Manhood.

STRONGFORTISM

The Modern Science of Health Promotion
Strongfortism, the Beacon Light of Hope, Happiness and Success creates in its followers, a new outlook on life, a new aspiration for higher things, a desire to live, to have a happy home with loving wife and healthy children. Strongfortism develops latent ability and genius. It enables one to attract others—to earn admiration, and love and to be a successful, happy, respected husband and father. It is truly the Beacon Light of Hope to all who have wasted their vital powers and violated Nature's inflexible laws.

Since you accept Strongfortism you enter a new life. The results are immediate and positively thrilling. You feel the rich blood racing through your body—you feel new strength and power developing in every organ and function, you acquire poise and a pleasing personality. Your success with Strongfortism is positively guaranteed.

Send For My Free Book

Every married man and woman—everybody who intends to marry should read my famous book, "Promotion and Conservation of Health, Strength and Mental Energy." It will tell you scientific facts about Nature's creative forces that will mean success in marriage—a satisfied, contented wife and a happy family life. It's the most instructive and helpful book you can ever read. I want you to have a copy now. Asking for it does not obligate you in any way. Just mark the subjects on the consultation coupon on which you want special confidential information and mail to me with 10 cents (one dime) to help pay postage, etc. Send for my free book Right Now. TODAY.

LIONEL STRONGFORT

Physical and Health Specialist
Founded 1895 Newark, N. J.

FREE CONSULTATION COUPON

Mr. Lionel Strongfort, Dept. 522, Newark, N. J.—Please send me your book "Promotion and Conservation of Health, Strength and Mental Energy" for postage on which I enclose a 10-cent piece one dime. I have marked X before the subject in which I am interested.

- | | | |
|-------------|--------------|-------------------|
| Calds | Shart Wind | Diabetes |
| Catarrh | Flat Feel | Prostate Troubles |
| Asthma | Stomach | Female Disorders |
| Hay Fever | Disorders | Increased Height |
| Obesity | Constipation | Youthful Errors |
| Headache | Biliousness | Falling Hair |
| Thinness | Blackheads | Weak Eyes |
| Rupture | Hard Liver | Gastritis |
| Lumbago | Indigestion | Heart Weakness |
| Neuritis | Nervousness | Poor Circulation |
| Neuralgia | Poor Memory | Skin Disorders |
| Flat Chest | Rheumatism | Despondency |
| Deformity | Maahood | Raund Shoulders |
| (These ill) | Restored | Luag Troubles |
| Successful | Vital Losses | Stoop Shoulders |
| Marriage | Impotency | Muscular |
| Pimples | Neurasthenia | Developmental | | Insomnia | | Great Strength |

Name.....
Age..... Occupation.....
Street.....
City..... State.....

PREFERRED PICTURES

A Scene from
"The Broken Wing"

A New factor in Motion Pictures

Preferred Pictures, in one short year, has become an outstanding factor in the production and presentation of successful motion pictures.

PREFERRED PICTURES was organized and developed by men, young in years, but veterans in experience, whose recognized ability was such as to attract directors, writers and stars of the first magnitude.

Directing Preferred Pictures are

GASNIER TOM FORMAN
and VICTOR L. SCHERTZINGER

These men have risen to the top because they know how to put entertainment on the screen.

Contributing their talents are stars who have brought pleasure to millions. Preferred stars are used to translate each story in its finest form; every Preferred Picture is perfectly cast.

The casts of Preferred Pictures include such names as

Kenneth Harlan	Ruth Clifford	Josef Swickard
Gaston Glass	Joseph Dowling	Myrtle Stedman
Ethel Shannon	Florence Vidor	Edith Yorke
Barbara La Marr	Raymond Hatton	David Butler
Colleen Moore	Stuart Holmes	Rosemary Theby
Lon Chaney	Walter Long	Edith Roberts
Madge Bellamy	Truly Shattuck	Harrison Ford
Miriam Cooper	Estelle Taylor	Miss du Pont
Claire Windsor	Lloyd Hughes	Frankie Lee
House Peters	Zasu Pitts	Russell Simpson
Marquerite de la Motte	Tom Santschi

In developing its program for the coming year, Preferred Pictures has searched literature, the stage and all other sources available to maintain its high standards and to present photoplays of unquestioned merit.

PREFERRED PICTURES are shown in your city.
Call up your Favorite Theatre and ask "WHEN?"

Distributed by

PREFERRED PICTURES CORP.

AL LICHTMAN, President
1650 Broadway, New York

The Celluloid Critic

(Continued from page 90)

people in their efforts to peddle the stuff and the consequences of their acts show that they are not far overdrawn. There are five or six deaths—some of which are violent—which make the majority of scenes harrowing indeed. But one is not looking at sweetness and light in an expose of the drug evil. Many will profit by the picture and naturally will watch their steps. The peddlers and addicts will on the other hand not be attracted to it, for its evils are too sharply emphasized.

A word for James Kirkwood. As the attorney he gives a highly effective study of human suffering when he becomes an addict. And George Hackathorne as a character in the clutches of "coke" brings a sharp touch of realism to the rôle. Mrs. Wallace Reid is sincere and earnest in her portrayal of the wife. Having dedicated her life to save others from this terrible affliction, she succeeds in bringing value to the picture.

BAYARD VEILLER'S crook melodrama, "The Woman with Four Faces," (Paramount) carries a teaser title which will attract curiosity. The curious, however, once they are in their seats, will see a likely story which has been competently executed by Herbert Brenon, the director, even, tho the author (he should have known better) has allowed an array of inconsistent episodes to mar his work.

Imagine a quartette of crooks putting the papers in a safe instead of destroying them; imagine a district attorney using a personable girl, gifted at disguise and masquerade (hence the title), to gather the evidence; imagine this same prosecutor employing an airplane to lift a convict from a prison yard so that he might crack the safe in which the papers are hidden. The improbabilities may furnish novelty, but they also give it a pictury character. Directed with speed and acted with an assortment of expressions by Betty Compson, who is at her best in crook rôles.

ANOTHER Paramount, "The Law of the Lawless," is an old friend in a new disguise. The girl who sells herself on the auction block to wipe out her father's debts has been treated upon the screen for years. Here it serves in bringing out a gypsy background, the locale being somewhere along the lower Danube. But all the picturesque costuming in the world cannot make Dorothy Dalton other than a comic

PREFERRED PICTURES

Produced by

B. P. SCHULBERG

Coming

"The Broken Wing"
by Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard.

"Mothers-in-Law"
by Frank Dazey and Agnes Christine Johnston.

"The Virginian"
by Owen Wister.

"April Showers"
by Hope Loring and Louis D. Lighton.

"Maytime"
by Kida Johnson Young.

"The Boomerang"
by Winchell Smith and Victor Mapes.

"White Man"
by George Agnew Chamberlain.

"Poisoned Paradise"
by Robert W. Service.

"When a Woman Reaches Forty"
by Royal A. Baker.

"The Mansion of Aching Hearts"
by Harry Von Tilzer and Arthur J. Lamb.

"The Breath of Scandal"
by Edwin Balmer

"The First Year" (of married life)
by Frank Craven.

"The Triflers"
by Frederick Orin Bartlett.

"Faint Perfume"
by Zona Gale.

"My Lady's Lips"

Now Showing

"Daughters of the Rich"

"The Girl Who Came Back"

"Are You a Failure?"

"Poor Men's Wives"

*"The Hero"

"Thorns and Orange Blossoms"

*"Shadows"

"Rich Men's Wives"

* Placed by Robert E. Sherwood, critic of LIFE, on his list of the fifteen best pictures of the year.

The crystal pure
deodorant

Sparkling and clear,
this liquid deodorant
is a delight to use.
It is colorless and odorless. It will not stain or injure the most delicate fabrics. It cannot harm the most sensitive skins; apply it at any time.

It comes in a dainty bottle. We call it

Dew

—for just as the early morning dew imparts a delicate purity and freshness to the flowers in your garden, so this Dew will give to you the charm of daintiness, the charm of freedom from even the faintest trace of an undesirable odor.

Each drop performs its duty and then vanishes, leaving the skin cool and refreshed and at the same time assuring you of freedom from perspiration odors for many hours.

GEO. C. V. FESLER COMPANY
Chemists and Perfumers
304 TOWER BUILDING, ST. LOUIS, U. S. A.
Rue de la Paix, Paris.

The best druggists and department stores have a supply of DEW. Ask for it by name. If you can't get it, you
may purchase it
direct, in 50c or
$1.00 bottles.

Ukulele Free!

Genuine Koa Wood
finish Hawaiian Ukulele. Sweet ringing tone. Given free with Short-Cut Ukulele Instruction Course.

Clip
this Ad
Learn to Play
In One Hour!
our amazing new copyright course. No months of practice—just one hour.

Send No Money

for course and FREE Ukulele outfit. On arrival deposit with postman only $2.98 plus a few pennies postage. We guarantee complete satisfaction or money refunded. Send now.
FERRY & CO. 75 W. Van Buren, Dept. 1512 Chicago, Ill

Moles

HOW TO BANISH THEM

A simple, safe home treatment—16 years
success in my practice. Moles (also BFC growths) dry up. Write for free booklet giving full particulars.

WM. DAVIS, M. D.

122-1 Grove Avenue

Woodbridge, N. J.

NOW YOU CAN LIFT OUT
HAIRS and ROOTS TOO with "NOHAIR"

All superfluous hair with the ROOT BULBS is removed immediately and effectively.

IT IS A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

Harmless to most delicate skin. No acids, no pain. Anybody, anywhere, can use it.

MONEY REFUNDED GUARANTEE

ONLY $2.00 POSTPAID

WITH TWO SPECIAL BOOKLETS FREE

Leclaire Laboratories, 1465 C B'dway, N. Y.

(Ninety-five)

opera figure. And Charles de Roche making his debut is colorless. Any one of a dozen Americans gilded in the saddle and possessing as equally good a physique could outshine the Frenchman. Even his fight with Kosloff when he would save the girl he bought from a tempestuous Tartar lacks the vigor which Sills or five and seven others could impart to it.

The body of the picture is taken up with the heroine displaying spirit against the indifference and cave-man tactics of the gypsy. It's very old, very obvious and very mediocre.

CAPITALIZING upon a man's gift for expressing untold suffering is Lon Chaney's reward these days. Ever since he was cataloged as the actor of a thousand faces, the result of his work in "The Miracle Man," which picture, together with "The Penalty," showed him as unusually talented in portraying a helpless cripple, his rôles have been marked out for him.

"The Shock" (Universal) provides him another opportunity to show his skill at characterization in the part of a crippled crook who finds redemption thru the lovelight in a girl's eyes. Of course he is brought back to health by means of the shock caused by the Frisco earthquake. Ad interim he is saving the girl from a rotter and her father from jail. Fairly effective and Chaney's poignant humanities are given full latitude.

Trilby

(Continued from page 82)

Billie's career, Trilby! You must—run away and never see him any more."

"Trilby!" Little Billie groaned.
"Oh, my dear, don't run away—"

A little later she whispered Svengali's name. "He was—kind to me. We were really married too—" with a piteous flash of pride, "so you can put—Madame on the head stone—"

"Trilby," begged Little Billie.
"think of the old studio and the good times we had, think of the boulevards in springtime with the flower carts, and the cafés and theaters at night.
We'll sit in the gallery at the Opera and hear the trumpets in 'Aida,' and we'll buy sausages and daffodils and little gold slippers for your feet—your beautiful feet, Trilby—"

Trilby laughed a ghost of her old gay laughter, "and I'll—sing—"

And then the only sound in the room was Little Billie's sobbing and the rattle of the busses outside, taking the tourists to Montmartre in search of its famous sin.

Science Discovers the Secret of Caruso's Wonderful Voice

The Hyo-Glossus
Singing Muscle

Why is it that the humble peasant boy of Italy became the greatest singer of all time? This diagram of his throat will show you. Caruso's marvelous voice was due to a superb development of his Hyo-Glossus muscle. Your Hyo-Glossus muscle can be developed, too! A good voice can be made better—a weak voice become strong—a lost voice restored—stammering and stuttering cured.
Science will help you.

Your voice can be improved 100%

A few very fortunate persons—like the late
Caruso—are born with the ability to sing well. But even Caruso had to develop his Hyo-Glossus muscle before his voice was perfect. You can develop a beautiful singing or speaking voice if your Hyo-Glossus muscle is strengthened by correct training. Professor Feuchtinger, A. M.—famous in the music centers of Europe for his success in training famous Opera Singers—discovered the secret of the Hyo-Glossus muscle. He devoted years of his life to scientific research and finally perfected a system of voice training that will develop your Hyo-Glossus muscle by simple, silent exercises right in your own home. The Perfect Voice Institute guarantees that Professor Feuchtinger's method will improve your voice 100%. You are to be your own judge—if your voice is not improved 100% in your own opinion, we will refund your money.

Grand Opera Stars His Students

Hundreds of famous singers have studied with Professor Feuchtinger. Over 10,000 happy pupils have received the benefits of his wonderful training. You do not know the possibilities of your voice. If you want to sing—but lack the proper training because you have not the time nor means to study—here is your chance. You can now train your voice at a very small cost in the privacy of your own home.

If you want to improve your speaking voice—if you stammer or stutter—Professor Feuchtinger will help you.

Prof. Feuchtinger's Book FREE

You will do yourself a great and lasting good by studying this book "Enter Your World." It may be the first step in your career. Do not delay.
Mail the coupon today.

Perfect Voice Institute

1922 Sunnyside Ave., Studio 12-76 Chicago

Please send me FREE Professor Feuchtinger's book,
"Enter Your World." I have put X opposite the subject that interests me most. I assume no obligations whatever.

Singing . . . Speaking . . . Stammering . . . Weak Voice

Name

Address

Age

Pert
The Waterproof Rouge
Orange-colored, lasts all day

SMART and fresh-colored as the package it comes in is PERT, the waterproof rouge. It does not remain orange-colored, but changes to a natural pink the instant that it touches the skin. Because it is a cream rouge, it lasts all day or evening—until you remove it yourself with cold cream or soap and water.

75c a jar. At drug or department stores or by mail.

The new waterproof SWIMSET, beautifully boxed, contains 75c packages of WINX and of PERT, the waterproof rouge. At drug, department stores or by mail, $1.50.

Samples of WINX and PERT are a dime each. Send for them today and enclose coins.

ROSS COMPANY
78 Grand St.
New York

Sell Me Your Spare Time for Cash!

Will you take $15 to $35 a week for one hour, two hours, or three hours a week? Read my offer.

I must have at once a limited number of refined, cultured women in every community who will sell me their spare time for cash. An amazing new scientific discovery has been made which assures radiant beauty to every woman—in five days. I want to pay you for just telling other women where they can get this wonderful discovery. Many are making from $15 to $35 a week. BEAUTY OUTFIT FREE. Write me immediately and I'll explain my whole wonderful offer to you. I will finance you. No obligation. You can start earning money at once if you write me now. MARIE FRANZAN, Dept. 149, 2707 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill.

$48 10 MONTHS TO PAY

ONLY $2.00 DOWN

PAY $4.60 EACH MONTH

30 DAYS TRIAL

7 DIAMONDS SET IN SOLID PLATINUM

Pay only $2.00 deposit to show your good faith, and select the ring you like best. We will deliver it without any delay or red tape. DEALINGS CONFIDENTIAL. IF YOU RETURN IT WITHIN 30 DAYS WE WILL RETURN YOUR MONEY. If you keep it, pay only $4.60 per month for 10 months. Total price only $48.00 for either ring.

FORMER CASH PRICE WAS $75.00

The beautiful, blue-white, perfectly cut, sparkling genuine diamond is set in a popular 18 karat solid white gold ring and equals any $75.00 ring. The cluster ring has seven perfectly cut, brilliant, blue-white genuine diamonds, set in solid platinum. The cluster is 1 1/2 carat size, and looks like a $600.00 solitaire diamond. Order now and save 50%.

WRITE FOR BIG CATALOG No. 1089
It brings a large jewelry store right into your home.

STERLING DIAMOND & WATCH CO.
Established 1879 $1,000,000 Stock
63 Park Row—Dept. 1089—New York

Greed

(Continued from page 93)

are both dead men. A choking, bitter, galling rage flares up in McTeague and he beats Marcus over the head with the butt of his gun. Marcus falls, dragging McTeague down with him. McTeague tries vainly to rise. . . . He cannot. . . . He is handcuffed to Marcus. . . . Now he sits staring at the poured-out gold pieces touched into flame by a cruel hot sun. . . . A little bird lights daintily on the head of the dead mule. . . . It cocks its little head toward the heap of gold. . . . McTeague nods gravely . . . once or twice. . . .

Current Stage Plays

(Continued from page 6)

"Lightnin'." A comedy that crosses your heart—the one that Frank Bacon made famous.

"Sally, Irene and Mary." One of the best musical shows that have ever blessed the comedy stage.

"So This Is London." George Cohan poking fun at American and British temperaments. Not original cast.

"The Dancing Girl," a song, dance and laugh fête.

"The First Year," a comedy about "breakers ahead" on the honeymoon.

"The Passing Show," as usual a gorgeous revue.

"Whispering Wires," a mystery play that raises the hair.

PHOTOPLAY HOUSES

Loew's N. Y. and Loew's American Roof.—Photoplays; first runs. Daily program.

Loew's Metropolitan, Brooklyn.—Feature photoplays and vaudeville.

Capitol.—Photoplay features plus a deluxe program. Superb theater.

Rivoli.—De luxe photoplays with full symphony orchestra. Weekly program.

Rialto.—Photoplays supreme. Program changes every week.

Strand.—Select first-run photoplays. Program changes every week.

Cameo.—The Little Theater of the Movies. First and second-run photoplays. Good music.

LIFE

By DOROTHY QUICK

Life, once I loved you, when I was young,
Nodded assent when your praises were sung,

Trustingly yielded myself to your sway,
Followed your precepts day after day.

Now, I no longer am under your spell,
As I grow older I know you too well,
Know you will cheat me whenever you can,

Break me or make me, just as you plan.

Life, I shall laugh at you when I am old,
Perhaps you will wonder what makes me so bold—

And I shall answer you with my last breath,

Mine is the triumph, tho' victory means death.

Let Arthur Murray (The Vanderbilts' Instructor) Teach You to Dance

Why Miss Half the Fun in Life?

EVERYONE admires and wants to dance with the person who knows the latest steps. There is no need of being a wallflower! By my remarkable new easy method a person can learn the newest dances at home. Much less expensive than from a personal teacher. So simple even a child can learn quickly. 90,000 have learned dancing by mail.

5 Dancing Lessons FREE

To prove I can quickly make you an accomplished dancer, I will send you FREE, in plain cover, a lesson in Fox Trot, Secret of Leading. How to Gain Confidence. How to Follow and How to Avoid Embarrassing Mistakes. To help pay the cost of handling, mailing, etc., send 25c. Learn in private, surprise your friends. Act now. Be a good dancer soon!

ARTHUR MURRAY
Studio 829 290 Broadway, N. Y.

Develops Busts Like Magic!

During the past 15 years thousands have added to their captivating glory of womanhood by using

ROWDINA

for bust, neck or arm development
Great Discovery of Parisian beauty expert. Harmless, easy, certain results guaranteed or money back. Marvelous testimonials of efficiency. Confidential proof and literature (sealed) on request. Write now. Mile, Sophie Koppel, Suite 903, 503 Fifth Ave., New York

WRITE FOR THE MOVIES

Ideas for moving picture plays wanted by producers. Big prices paid for accepted material. Submit ideas in any form at once for our immediate examination. Or write for FREE PHOTOPLAY BOOKLET and details of our service to Authors.

BRISTOL PHOTOPLAY STUDIOS
Suite 601F Bristol Building, New York

MAKE MONEY AT HOME

YOU CAN earn $1 to $2 an hour writing show cards at home in your spare time. Quickly and easily learned by our new simple "Instructograph" method. No canvassing or soliciting. We show you how, guarantee you steady work at home, no matter where you live, and pay you cash each week. Full particulars and booklet free. Write to-day.

AMERICAN SHOW CARD SYSTEM LIMITED
Authorized and Fully Paid Capital, One Million Dollars
207 Adams Bldg. Toronto, Canada.

OPPORTUNITY MARKET

AGENTS WANTED

AGENTS—40¢ an hour to advertise and distribute samples to consumer. Write quick for territory and particulars. American Products Co., 1084 American Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Sell Madison "Better-Made" Shirts direct from our factory to wearer. No capital or experience required. Easily sold. Big profits. Write for free samples. Madison Mills, 503 Broadway, N. Y.

FILMS DEVELOPED

Special Trial Offer. Any size Kodak film developed for 3¢, prints 5¢ each. Overnight service. Get a FREE ATTO. Ask for details. Ronoko Photo Finishing Co., 207 Bell Ave., Ronoko, Va.

MAIL ORDER METHODS

$50 A WEEK EVENINGS HOME. I made it with small mail order business started with $3. Booklet for stamp tells how. Sample and plan 25 cents. 1 dozen articles free. I trust you for $3. Almupe Scott, Cohoes, N. Y.

MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS

$35.00 PROFIT NIGHTLY. Small capital starts you. Outfits sold on installments. No experience needed. Our machines are used and endorsed by Government Institutions. Catalog free. Atlas Moving Picture Co., 426 Morton Bldg., Chicago.

NEWS CORRESPONDENCE

EARN $25 WEEKLY, spare time, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 560, St. Louis, Mo.

PATENTS

PATENTS. Write for Free Illustrated Guide Book. Send model or sketch for free opinion of its patentable nature. Highest references. Prompt Attention. Reasonable Terms. Victor J. Evans & Co., 621 Ninth, Washington, D. C.

PERSONAL

ARE YOU BASHFUL, SELF-CONSCIOUS, easily embarrassed? These troubles overcome. Send dime for particulars. L. Veritas, 1400 Broadway, New York.

PHOTOGRAPHS

Real Mexican Beauties. Send dollar bill for sample assortment. Aztec Art Studios, 8/L, Salvador 141, Mexico City, Mexico.

PHOTOPLAYS

ATTENTION, STORY AND PHOTOPLAY WRITERS—The service you've been looking for. Register your Scenarios and Stories with us. We give each story a reference number and keep it on file in Los Angeles where pictures are made. Send your story today for registration with us, enclose $1.00 stamps or check covering our registration fee. THE REGISTRY COMPANY, 1105 Lane Mortgage Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.
State your minimum sale price. We charge ten (10) per cent if we sell your story.

Successful Photoplays Bring Big Money. Send for our free book, "Successful Photoplays," which gives instructions on photoplay writing and marketing. Successful Photoplays, Box 43 Des Moines, Ia.

$$$ For Photoplay Ideas. Plots accepted any form; revised, criticized, copyrighted, marketed. Advice free. Universal Scenario Corporation, 263 Western Mutual Life Bldg., Los Angeles.

SHORT STORIES

EARN $25 WEEKLY, spare time, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 560 St. Louis, Mo.

Stories and Photoplay Ideas Wanted by 48 companies; big pay. Details free to beginners. Producers' League, 441, St. Louis, Mo.

Stories, Poems, Plays, Etc., are wanted for publication. Good ideas bring big money. Submit MSS. or write Literary Bureau, 134 Hannibal, Mo.

FREE TO WRITERS—A wonderful little book of money-making hints, suggestions, ideas; the A B C of successful story and movie play writing. Absolutely Free. Just address Authors' Press, Dept. 14, Auburn, N. Y.

STAMPING NAMES

Stamp Names On Key Checks. Make $19 per 100. Some make $10 daily. Either sex. Work can be done at home, spare time. Send 25¢ for sample and instructions. M. Keytag Co., Cohoes, N. Y.

VAUDEVILLE

GET ON THE STAGE. I tell you how! Personality, confidence, skill developed. Experience unnecessary. Send 6¢ postage for instructive illustrated Stage Book and particulars. O. LaDelle, Box 557, Los Angeles, Cal.

$100⁰⁰ a week for Drawing

COMMERCIAL art is a necessity to modern business and advertising. If you like to draw, you are indeed fortunate—for well trained artists are always at a premium. They readily earn $75, $100, $150 a week, and even more. Many Federal Students command $50 a week or more after a short period of practical work.

Learn Quickly at Home in Your Spare Time

Develop your talent—learn the methods and secrets that make your drawings worth real money. Thousands of business firms pay millions of dollars annually for good advertising drawings and designs. No previous training or experience is needed to learn by the Federal Course, which clearly explains each step, and gives you individual personal criticisms on all your lessons.

Leading designers, artists, illustrating companies and hundreds of successful Federal Students have enthusiastically endorsed Federal Training. Among Federal Authors, whose help you get exclusively in the Federal Course, are many of the best known artists and designers in America, who have produced and sold hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of commercial art.

Send Today for "YOUR FUTURE"

It is beautifully illustrated in colors, and tells every detail you need to know about the Federal Course. It shows work of Federal Students, many of whom earn more than the course costs while studying. The Federal Course is aimed at practical results and gets them. If you are in earnest about your future, send 6 cents in stamps today for this book, kindly stating your age and occupation.

COUPON!

Federal School of Commercial Designing
1013 Federal Schools Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

Please send me "Your Future" for which I enclose 6 cents in stamps.

Name.....

Age.....

Occupation.....

(Write your address plainly in the margin!)

We Guarantee to Stop Falling Hair And Grow New Hair Or Money Refunded

The day of experiment in hair treatment has passed. Science has discovered new principles—a method absolutely and unqualifiedly guaranteed in writing, to stop falling hair, and to grow new hair in 90 days or money refunded.

This offers you a test which it is folly not to make. For it will cost you nothing if it fails.

What it is

It is called the Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage. It penetrates active germ combating elements directly down to the hair roots, and combats the infected scalp oil (Sebum) to which modern science traces 90% of all hair troubles.

Results are amazing, often almost incredible. And in every instance you must be satisfied, or money refunded.

If your hair lacks lustre and life, if it is thin and falling, by all means try this new way. Your trouble is probably a simple infection, usually quite easy to overcome. Actual tests prove the Van Ess method effective in 91 cases in every 100.

Obtain today a full 90-day treatment of Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage at any department or drug store. With it will come a guarantee in writing as your protection if it fails. Results will prove a revelation. If your dealer cannot supply you, use coupon below. $1.50 for single bottle. $4.50 for three with guarantee.

VAN ESS LABORATORIES

17 East Kinzie St.
Chicago, Ill.

Do Not Enclose Money

Mail this coupon and pay postman on delivery.

VAN ESS LABORATORIES,
17 East Kinzie Street, Chicago, Ill.
Please send... bottles of Van Ess to me. I will pay postman $.... on delivery.

Name.....

Address.....

City.....State.....

This Lovely Slender Figure is YOURS

This Beautiful Woman is YOU

Renee Torquin
(A Silhouette Study)
Mlle. Torquin, beautiful New York model, thanks Neutroids for her slender figure.

It is natural to be beautiful. Every woman is by nature beautiful. Only when artificial influences interfere does the human body, Nature's most beautiful product, lose its grace, slenderness, or symmetry. The delicious foods of our modern civilization are so tempting that one eats too much. Machinery does so much of our work that we exercise too little. The result of this of course, is disfiguring fat—yet underneath every stout or fleshy figure lies the lovely slender figure that is yours—the beautiful woman that is you.

LET THIS FAMOUS SPECIALIST'S PRESCRIPTION REDUCE YOU IN THIS EASY NATURAL WAY

Dr. R. Lincoln Graham, famous stomach specialist of New York, after a lifetime of research at home and abroad has solved the problem of counter-acting the fattening effect of modern methods of living. After countless experiments he finally has perfected his prescription known as Neutroids, which neutralizes sugars and starches taken into the stomach and prevents them from forming into fat. His marvelous prescription, Neutroids, has been prescribed for more than two years to the thousands of stout women who have called at his sanitarium for obesity-treatment with complete success. Most important of all, there is not the slightest element of danger in taking Neutroids treatment for superfluous flesh. Neutroids contain no thyroid extract or other dangerous or habit forming drugs—yet they are guaranteed by Dr. Graham to effect satisfactory reduction.

NO CHARGE for Professional Consulting Service

Any patient who is taking the Neutroids treatment may feel free to call at the Sanitarium, 123 E. 89th St., New York, for special advice, or you may feel free to write fully concerning your case. Dr. Graham or a staff physician will give you professional advice without charge.

SEND NO MONEY—SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

No bother to make out a check or money order; merely fill in and send this convenient coupon now. If you haven't your pencil handy tear out the coupon and send it later. When the little packet of Neutroids arrives, deposit purchase price with postman. This money will be immediately refunded if you write us that you are not entirely satisfied with results.

DR. R. LINCOLN GRAHAM, care of The Graham Sanitarium, Inc., 123 East 89th Street, Dept. 426 New York City:—Send me 2 weeks' treatment of Neutroids which entitles me to free professional mail consulting service and free booklet on Obesity. I will pay postman $2 (plus 15c postage) on arrival of the Neutroids in plain package. I understand my money will be refunded if I do not get a satisfactory reduction from this 2 weeks' treatment.

Name..... Age..... Sex.....
Address..... Weight.....

This Beautiful DIAMOND RING

2 DOWN

Costs you nothing to see this beautiful 7 Diamond Cluster Ring. Looks like $700 Solitaire. Only if convinced it is the Greatest Bargain in America, pay the small sum of $2.00 as first payment. Then only $1.00 a week until our Special Bargain Price of $56.75 is paid. Transactions strictly confidential. Gilt Edge Guarantee with every Lyon Diamond. Sensational Diamond and Jewelry Bargains from $10.00 to $1000.00. See them—call Fifth Floor, Dept. 1S16

10 months to pay—A few cents a day.

J.M. LYON & CO. INC.
2-4 Maiden Lane, New York

Special Summer Offer

Beauty

2 years for $4.50

Send order to 175 Duffield Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

MAKE MONEY AT HOME

15 to 50 Dollars a week for your Spare Time—No Canvassing—Experience Unnecessary. Free Outfit. Write today for Booklet and Terms.

UNITED SHOW CARD STUDIO, 215 Dinan Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

DON'T STAY FAT!

BATHE YOUR WAY TO SLENDERNESS

14 Treatments $3.00

BELCOR BATH TREATMENTS

NO DIETING
NO EXERCISING
NO HARMFUL DRUGS

Wonderfully Simple To Use
Simply Wonderful in Results

A scientific medical compound containing absolutely harmless ingredients that will reduce your weight. Merely dissolve one BELCOR carton in your daily bath and see yourself grow slimmer, healthier, more beautiful. Send no money; just mail your order and pay the postman $3.00 plus postage upon delivery. Descriptive Booklet Free

DR. L. OSBORNE CO. Established 1912 220 Fifth Avenue New York

Elinor Glyn and "Three Weeks"

To Adele Whitely Fletcher and Gladys Hall Miss Glyn confides how she wrote her most sensational novel. The work she expects to do in the motion picture field promises to be as interesting as her fiction.

The Jack Pickfords at Home

A glimpse of the home life of Jack and Marilyn is given by Harry Carr who visited them in their attractive Spanish cottage near Hollywood where they are having a second honeymoon.

Also—

Besides these two features there will be a number of other interesting things for you. This is a number that you will regret missing. Be sure to see the

OCTOBER MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE

On the stands September First

*Three-piece costume of Chinchilla
Satin with "top" of printed
Chim-ring*

IT'S only natural to want that which represents the last word in fashion. It's easy to distinguish it in Silks — insist on seeing the name MALLINSON on the selvage. It is there for your guidance and protection, and is the mark of

"The World's Most Beautiful Silks"

MALLINSON'S
Silks de Luxe

H. R. MALLINSON & COMPANY, Inc.
Fifth Avenue at 31st Street
New York

The silks most popular for Fall and Winter are:—

- | | | |
|---|------------------|------------------------------|
| PUSSY WILLOW FAMILY—Taffeta · Crepe · Satin · Canton Crepe · Satin Crepe with the latest addition of Pussy Willow Moire | CHENCHILLA SATIN | CHENILLE ROSHANARA CREPE |
| BUTTERFLY VOILE | SUZANNA CREPE | INDESTRUCTIBLE CHIFFON VOILE |
| MOLLY O'CREPE | KLO-KA | VELORA BROCADE |
| | | CHIM-RING |
- (All Mallinson Trade Mark Names)*

*Palm and Olive Oils
—nothing else—give nature's green color
to Palmolive Soap*

Beauty That Lures

Often you meet a woman with vivid beauty that exerts an irresistible charm. It doesn't depend upon regularity of features, or the color of eyes and hair. A smooth, fresh, flawless skin—a complexion glowing with the radiance of health and free from imperfections—this is the secret of alluring attraction.

Cleopatra had it, and her name will always be the symbol of all-conquering beauty. She perfected this beauty, and kept it in this perfection in a simple, natural way which history has handed down for modern women.

How She Did It

By thorough, gentle, daily cleansing which kept the texture of her skin firm, fine-grained and smooth. Dirt, oil and perspiration were never allowed to collect, to enlarge and irritate the tiny skin pores. The lavish use of cosmetics practiced by all ancient women did her no harm, because every day she carefully washed them away.

Her secret—palm and olive oils, valued as both cleansers and cosmetics in the days of ancient Egypt. The crude combination which served the great queen so well was the inspiration for our modern Palmolive.

Bedtime Is Best

Your daily cleansing is best done at night, so your complexion may be revived and refreshed during sleep. The remains of rouge and powder, the accumulations of dirt and natural skin oil, the traces of cold cream should always be removed.

So, just before retiring, wash your face in the smooth, mild Palmolive lather. Massage it gently into the skin. Rinse thoroughly and dry with a soft towel.

In the morning refresh yourself with a dash of cold water and then let your mirror tell the story. Charming freshness and natural roses will smile back at you.

Once Costly Luxuries

When Cleopatra kept her loveliness fresh and radiant by using Palm and Olive oils, they were expensive. Today these rare and costly oils are offered in a perfected blend at modest cost. Palmolive factories work day and night. Palm and olive oils are imported from overseas in vast quantities.

The result is soap for which users would willingly pay 25c, but which costs only 10c, the price of ordinary soap. The firm, fragrant, green cake, the natural color of the oils, is for sale the world over.

CLASSIC

A BREWSTER PUBLICATION

Alice T...

Nature's Green

Palmolive takes its color from the palm and olive oil blend which is responsible for its mildness. It is as much nature's own color as the green of grass and leaves.

Remember this when you are enjoying its wonderful cleansing qualities and marveling at its mildness. Palmolive is a modern, scientific blend of the most perfect soap ingredients that the world has been able to discover in 3,000 years.

*Palm and olive oils
—nothing else—give nature's green color
to Palmolive Soap.*

Reflecting Beauty Secrets of the Past

Women of ancient Egypt knew that cleanliness was the first aid to beauty. But they knew, too, that cleansing methods must be mild, gentle.

Famous Egyptian beauties solved the problem by using palm and olive oils. The same rare, natural oils are blended in Palmolive Soap today.

How it acts

This gentle, thorough cleanser never leaves skin dry and rough.

The smooth, creamy lather actually soothes as it cleanses. Yet it removes every trace of dirt, perspiration, and surplus oil accumulated in the tiny pore openings.

Your skin is kept free of imperfections which result from pore-clogging. It remains fresh, soft, radiantly clear.

How to use it

Never sleep without cleansing the skin.

Wash with this mildest soap at bed-time—massaging the creamy lather well in. Then rinse very thoroughly. Dry the skin well, and—if necessary—apply cold cream.

Mornings—just an invigorating rinse in cold water to bring the fine, natural color to your cheeks.

Supreme quality—low price

This scientific combination is within the reach of all— at the price of ordinary soap. Palmolive Soap is produced in such enormous quantities that the price is brought extremely low. Thus 25c quality costs but 10c.

Everyone can afford this thorough, gentle cleanser— for every toilet purpose, hands, face, and the whole body.

Supply yourself today with a cake of Palmolive Soap. Once you experience the effects of its profuse, creamy, smooth lather no other soap will satisfy.

*Volume
and efficiency produce 25-cent quality fo.*

10c

Protect Yourself Against These Sudden Embarrassments!

A chance meeting on the street, an unexpected invitation, a cup of coffee suddenly overturned, an introduction to some person of note—these are the occasions that demand complete self-possession, that demand calmness and ease. Those who become flustered and embarrassed under circumstances like these, instantly betray the fact that they are not accustomed to good society. But those who retain a calm dignity, who know exactly what to do and say, impress others with their fine breeding—and protect themselves from humiliation

DO YOU know the comfort of being always at ease—of being always sure of yourself, calm, dignified, self-possessed?

It is the most wonderful feeling in the world. You don't have to worry about making blunders. You don't have to wonder what people are thinking of you. You don't have to wish that you hadn't done a certain thing, or said a certain thing.

The next time you are at a dinner or a party, notice the people around you. See if you can't pick out at once the people who are well-bred, who are confident of themselves, who do and say the right thing and know it. You will always find that these people are the best "mixers," that people like to be with them, that they are popular, well-liked.

And then notice the people who are not sure of themselves. Notice that they stammer and hesitate when strangers speak to them; that they are hesitant and uncomfortable at the table, that they seem embarrassed and ill at ease. These people actually make you feel ill at ease. They are never popular; they always seem to be out of place; they rarely have a good time.

Some of the Blunders People Make

At a certain theatre, recently, a man made himself conspicuous, through a blunder that could easily have been avoided. He entered a lower box with two women—probably his mother and sister. Without thinking, he seated himself on the chair that one of the women should have occupied.

The whole secret of being always at ease is to be able to do and say what is absolutely correct without stopping to think about it. One should be able to do the right thing as easily as one says "good morning."

Would you have known what seat to take in the box? Do you know who precedes when entering a theatre—the man or the woman? Do you know who precedes when leaving the theatre, when entering and leaving a street car, an automobile?

People are often confronted by sudden embarrassments at the dinner table. Often corn on the cob is refused because one does not know how it should be eaten. Some people do not know that bread must under no circumstances be bitten into. Others make the mistake of taking asparagus up in their fingers. Still others use the finger-bowl incorrectly.

How would you eat corn on the cob in public? Would you dip both hands into the finger-bowl at once, or just one at a time? What would you say to your hostess when leaving? What would you say to the young man, or woman, you had met for the first time?

A New Knowledge That Will Give You Life-Long Satisfaction

What many people consider a "talent" for doing and saying what is correct, is really a very important social knowledge that you can acquire easily.

Would you like to know how to create conversation, how to overcome self-consciousness and timidity, how to make introductions that result in friendships, how to be an ideal host or hostess, an ideal guest?

Would you like to know all the customs of weddings, of funerals, of social calls, of formal dinners, of dances?

The famous Book of Etiquette will give you a new knowledge that you will find extremely useful. It will tell you everything you want to know. It will dispel all doubts, banish all uncertainty. It will give you ease, poise, confidence. It will make you a better "mixer," a more pleasing conversationalist. It will protect you from all the little sudden embarrassments that confront the person who does not know, who is not sure.

Free Examination Offer

Have you ever wondered why rice is thrown after the bride? why a teacup is given to the engaged girl, why black is the color of mourning?

Have you ever wondered what to serve at a tea, how to give a "shower," how to decorate the home for a wedding, a party?

Perhaps there is some particular problem that is puzzling you. Perhaps there are several. If so, why not let us send you the two volumes of the Book of Etiquette to-day—without a cent in advance? When they arrive, pay the postman only $1.98. Instead of the regular price of $3.50. Read them and let them solve your little personal problems. Study them carefully for 5 full days and then if you do not feel that they are a splendid investment, return them and we will refund your money.

But act NOW if you want to take advantage of this special limited bargain offer. For the regular price of the Book of Etiquette is $3.50 and we cannot maintain a reduction like this for anything but a limited period. So clip and mail the bargain coupon to-day, and the original, authentic, complete Book of Etiquette will be sent to you by return mail, Nelson Doubleday, Inc., Dept. 8210, Garden City, New York.

Nelson Doubleday, Inc., Dept. 8210, Garden City, N. Y.

Without a cent in advance, you may send me the complete Book of Etiquette in two volumes at the special limited bargain price. When the books arrive I will pay the postman $1.98 (plus a few cents postage) with the understanding that I can return them in 5 days if I am not satisfied and you will refund my money.

Name..... (Please write plainly)

Address.....

Check this square if you want these books with the beautiful full-leather binding at $2.98 with same return privilege. (Orders from outside the U. S. are payable $2.35 cash with order.)

Special Bargain!

The Famous Book of Etiquette

Nearly Half a Million Sold at $3.50

NOW $1.98 ONLY For a Very Limited Time

For a short time only we are making this amazing offer to send you the complete, authentic, original BOOK OF ETIQUETTE at almost half the usual publisher's price!

You have always wanted to own the two remarkable books that give poise, ease, dignity, self-confidence. Almost 500,000 people have purchased them at the regular price of $3.50. If you act NOW you can receive the same two authoritative and fascinating volumes for only $1.98.

SEND NO MONEY

No money is necessary. Just clip and mail the coupon to us at once. We will send you the complete, two-volume set and when it arrives you have the privilege of giving the postman only $1.98 (plus few cents postage) for the regular $3.50 set!

Surely you are not going to let this offer slip by. Clip and mail the coupon NOW while you are thinking about it.

THE MAGIC NAME IN ENTERTAINMENT THE WORLD OVER

YOU whose lives are spent in one locality may have a dim idea of the thousands of other communities keenly enjoying Paramount Pictures at the same moment.

You who travel all over the United States have seen for yourselves that Paramount is always mysteriously there ahead of you!

But world-travelers can add still another chapter to the story!

They know that

Paramount's fame is blazoned through every continent. It is no surprise to them to see the familiar trademark on theatres in London, Paris, Algiers, Japan, or Australia.

In some far eastern communities the name Paramount (perhaps the only English term they know), is a magic word because it means to them just what it means to you—

“to-night's the night for a great show!”

Paramount Pictures

If it's a Paramount Picture it's the best show in town!

CLASSIC

The Picture Book De Luxe of the Movie World

A BREWSTER PUBLICATION

Vol. XVIII

OCTOBER, 1923

No. 2

COVER PORTRAIT—ALICE TERRY

Painted by E. Dahl

	PAGE
The Second Crusade, An Apology and an Explanation.....	11
Our Portrait Gallery: Douglas Fairbanks, Peggy Shaw, Zasu Pitts, James Kirkwood, Norman Kerry, Dorothy Dalton.....	12
The Camera Man's Angle, Mr. Bauseh Lens talks to.....	Harry Carr 18
Famous Heroines No. 1. Claire Windsor as Du Barry.....	21
Foreign Films, European studios at a glance.....	Maurice Rosett 22
Divine Discontent, An interview.....	Faith Service 24
Scaramouche, A character study of Ramon Navarro.....	26
Ashes of Vengeance, Fiction.....	Patricia Doyle 27
The Drama of the Decalogue, Pictures from De Mille's "The Ten Commandments".....	32
Elinor Glyn on the Technique of the Screen.....	Avery Strakosch 34
After Rembrandt, A poetic portrait of Richard Barthelmess.....	35
The Promise Fulfilled, The winners of our contests who have left obscurity behind.....	36
"Fifteen Men on a Dead Man's Chest!".....	38
The Powers Behind the Screen, The first of a series of five articles.....	Stanton Leeds 39
Hollywood Homes, Harold Lloyd and Mildred Davis.....	40
An Old Story, Vera Gordon's.....	Faith Service 42
Jean Arthur, Sauce piquante!	43
The Photographer Takes the Stage, Our theatrical department.....	44
Iris In, Pertinent and impertinent screen comment.....	H. W. Hanemann 46
The Celluloid Critic, Selects "Hollywood" as the best photoplay of the month.....	Laurence Reid 47
The Rime of the Ancient Ham, With apologies to Coleridge.....	A. H. Giebler 50
Blow Your Own Horn, Fictionized.....	Dorothy Donnell 52
Flashes From the Eastern Stars, Of the stage, on the screen.....	Caught by the Editor 56
On the Seven Hills of Rome, Beautiful and authentic "White Sister" backgrounds.....	58
Classic Considers—The great and the near great.....	60
A Camera Study, George Walsh becomes an aesthete.....	61
The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats.....	Harry Carr 62
The Movie Encyclopedia.....	By The Answer Man 70

Subscription $2.50 per year, in advance, including postage, in the United States, Cuba, Mexico and Philippine Islands. In Canada $3.00; Foreign Countries $3.50 per year. Single copies 25 cents postage prepaid. United States Government stamps accepted. Subscribers must notify us at once of any change in address, giving both old and new address.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, INC., AT JAMAICA, N. Y.

Entered at the Post Office at Jamaica, N. Y., as second-class matter, under the act of March 3rd, 1879.

PRINTED IN U. S. A.

Eugene V. Brewster, President and Editor-in-Chief; Guy L. Harrington, Vice-President and Business Manager; L. G. Conlon, Treasurer; E. M. Heinemann, Secretary.

EXECUTIVE and EDITORIAL OFFICES, 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Copyright, 1923, by Brewster Publications, Inc., in the United States and Great Britain.

SUSAN ELIZABETH BRADY, Editor

ADELE WHITELEY FLETCHER, Managing Editor

Harry Carr..... Western Representative
A. M. Hopfmuller..... Art Director
Duncan A. Dobie..... Director of Advertising

This magazine, published monthly, comes out on the 12th. Its elder sister, the MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE, comes out on the 1st of every month. SHADOWLAND appears on the 23rd of the month. BEAUTY is on the stands on the 8th.

Announcement for November

"Only in the little cave behind the camera do you come back to the Occident . . . for there you will find Raoul Walsh, the director . . . and Mrs. Woods, the technical director, who has studied Bagdad until she knows more about it than Mohammed did.

"And there they sit . . . making the world's greatest fairy story."

. . . Harry Carr

Do not overlook the story of Douglas Fairbanks' next picture in the November CLASSIC. It is screen history!

If He Had Passed It Up

He Would Still Be A Laborer At $2 A Day. No Money, Nothing Ahead But Hard Work, Longer Hours—and Regrets. But He Didn't Pass It Up.

He decided to learn Mechanical Drawing. He buckled down to work with the Columbia School of Drafting. When he had a quiet half hour to spend he spent it—as a wise man spends money—to get full returns.

MADE $275 EXTRA IN 3 DAYS. He recently received $275 for one drawing that only took him ten days to draw. NOW HOW ABOUT YOU? Are you working up hill or down? Count the money in your pay envelope next pay day. You'll find the answer there.

MAKE $35 to $100 a WEEK. We will train you to be an expert Draftsman in your spare time at home by mail. There's lots of room for you if you act now.

PROMOTION IS QUICK. We'll qualify you for a high-salaried position in the drafting field and keep you in touch with openings for Draftsmen in the big machine shops, industrial plants and United States Government departments. Men who start as Draftsmen are often advanced to Chief Draftsmen, Chief Engineers, Production Managers and so on.

GET THE RIGHT TRAINING. Mr. Claffin, the founder and director, stands personally in back of the Columbia School of Drafting. You spend no time in long winded theories—useless and expensive to you. You start on actual drawing work the day you receive your first lesson.

YOU NEED NO PREVIOUS TRAINING. The course is easy to understand and easy to follow. Many students are qualified even before they complete the course.

SUCCESS CALLS MEN OF ACTION ONLY. If you are a man of action clip the coupon now and show that you are a man of action. Keep right on top of this opportunity to make real money. Don't go looking for a pair of scissors. Tear the coupon off and mail it right now. We have a special offer for those who reply promptly. Get started now.

What We Give You

PRACTICAL PROBLEMS. You are carefully coached in practical Drafting work.

WE HELP YOU GET A JOB. We help you get a position as a practical Draftsman as soon as you are qualified.

PERSONAL INSTRUCTION AND SUPERVISION THROUGHOUT THE COURSE. You receive the personal instruction and help of Roy C. Claffin, president of the Columbia School of Drafting and a practical Draftsman of many years' experience.

DRAFTSMAN'S EQUIPMENT. We furnish you with a full set of Drawing Equipment and Drafting

Instruments as shown in the picture below when you enroll. You keep both sets on completing the course.

CONSULTATION PRIVILEGES. You are free to write us at any time for advice and suggestions regarding your success.

DIPLOMA. The diploma we give you on completing the course attests to your proficiency as a Draftsman. It is an "entering wedge" to success.

FREE SUBSCRIPTION TO DRAFTSMAN'S PUBLICATION "THE COMPASS." You are given free a subscription to our helpful, inspiring publication "The Compass."

Given to Students

U. S. Civil Service Commission Needs DRAFTSMEN

The following are a few of the many positions open in Government Departments from time to time. The salaries are starting salaries, subject to increase. Practically all of them carry a bonus of $240 a year additional.

Architectural Designer, $4,000.

Chief Draftsman (Aeronautical) Naval Aircraft Factory—$15.04 per day.

Aeronautical Draftsman—Field Service of Navy Department—$5.20 per day to $12 per day.

FREE BOOK

Send in this coupon today. Immediately on receipt of it we will send you our book, "Drafting—Your Success," which tells you all about our new method of teaching Mechanical Drawing and gives full details of our special offer to those who reply promptly.

THE COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING

Roy C. Claffin, President

Dept. 2147. 14th & T Sts., N. W. Washington, D. C.

FREE BOOK COUPON
COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING,
Dept. 2147, 14th and T Sts., N. W.,
Washington, O. C.

Enter my name for a free subscription to "The Compass" and also send me without charge your illustrated book on Drafting, telling me how I can secure your complete Home Study Course and your help in securing a position as Draftsman.

Name.....
Address.....
City.....
State..... Age.....

Current Stage Plays

(Readers in distant towns will do well to preserve this list for reference when these spoken plays appear in their vicinity.)

Ambassador.—"The Newcomers," a revue depending upon the performers rather than on setting and costumes. Will Morrisey does the Balieff stunt effectively at times. The show falls short of the general standard of Broadway revues.

Apollo.—"Poppy," a musical comedy which marks Madge Kennedy's first appearance in a musical show.

Astor.—"Dew Drop Inn." A return engagement of the lively musical comedy, with John Barton again the black-face comedian, who shakes a wicked foot and is nobly supported by Mooney, his dawg, and a superb tangoing couple.

Booth.—"The Seventh Heaven." Hand-made on a melodramatic pattern in a Montmartre tenement in Paris, of an admixture of love, regeneration, humor and unreality. An excellent performance with Helen Menken starring.

Broadhurst.—"The Good Old Days," a prohibition divertissement by Aaron Hoffman, with George Bickel and Charles Winninger the contrary-minded gentlemen.

Carroll.—"Vanities of 1923," with Peggy Hopkins Joyce leading the delectable and innumerable vanities.

Casino.—"Wildflower," with lovely Edith Day flashing thru an exquisite musical score.

Cohan.—"Adrienne," a musical comedy with an unusually good chorus. Billy Van and Richard Carle, the latter of "The Spring Chicken" fame, take care of the laughs. Lou Lockett and Margaret Ross introduce a new dance, Adagio.

Cort.—"Merton of the Movies." In which Glenn Hunter self-visualized as a movie hero of the "great open spaces" plays havoc with our emotions as an arch comedian.

Elliott.—"Rain." A bitter tragedy by Somerset Maugham; a violent attack on the repressions of Puritanism. Jeanne Eagels is superb in the leading rôle.

Eltinge.—"The Woman on the Jury," by Bernard K. Burns.

Empire.—"Casanova" a play from the Spanish, adapted by Sidney Howard, and featuring Katherine Cornell and Lowell Sherman.

Forty-eight.—"Zeno," a melodramatic mystery play, by Joseph R. Rinn, with Effie Shannon the star.

Forty-ninth.—"Thumbs Down," a mystery play, centering around a District Attorney, a bootlegger, a matrimonial mêlée, and a butchery. A poor successor to "The Bat."

Frazee.—"Tweedles," a comedy written by a team of humorists—Booth Tarkington and Leon Wilson. Gregory Kelly and Ruth Gordon head the cast.

Gaiety.—"Aren't We All?" Cyril Maude in a delightful light comedy that revolves around a philandering husband and an indiscreet wife. Mr. Maude in a Grumpyish character sets a rare pace of fun and his support keeps it up.

Garrick.—"The Devil's Disciple." A Shaw satire, which as usual shows up the under side of militarism and politics. It ends ingallantly on a triangle. An excellent show with Roland Young as General Burgoyne alone worth seeing.

Globe.—"George White's Scandals." A de luxe edition of gorgeously gowned beauties that make scandals appetizing, including parodies on Chanve-Souris and the Moscow Art Theater.

Greenwich Village.—"Brook," by Thomas P. Robinson.

Hudson.—"The Crooked Square," by Samuel Shipman, with Edna Hibbard and Ben Lyon taking the leads.

Klaw.—"The Breaking Point," dramatized from Mary Roberts Rinehart's popular novel, is the vehicle of Lucile Sear's stage début. McKay Morris has the chief male part, Gail Kane is also in the cast.

Liberty.—"Magnolia," another Booth Tarkington comedy with its locale a Mississippi plantation and a Natchez gambling house, in the early forties. Leo Carillo takes the part of a young Southerner reared in the North, and Martha Byran Allen, the youthful favorite, that of a charming Southern girl.

Loujacre.—"Little Jessie James," a musical comedy with Nan Halperin as Little Jessie. The Paul Whiteman band dubbed the James Boys takes care of the orchestration.

Lycum.—"Little Miss Bluebeard," an Avery Hopwood comedy adapted from the French, with Irene Bordoni supported by Austin Farnum and Stanley Logan.

Morosco.—"Red Light Annie," a melodrama of the underworld dealing with the drug question. Mary Ryan in the leading rôle.

Music Box.—"Music Box Revue," Irving Berlin's 1923 extravagant display of beauty and humor.

National.—"The Black Flag," a fantastic piratical comedy with Pedro de Cordoba and Carroll McComas in the leading rôles.

New Amsterdam.—"Ziegfeld Follies," glorifying the American girl and featuring Patricia Salmon, the tent-show girl of the Golden West.

Playhouse.—"A Mad Honeymoon," Barry Conners' farcical melodrama in which a fat housemaid, a minister, and a constable, educated by correspondence, deluge the elected pair—Boots Wooster and Kenneth MacKenna—with delightful nonsense.

Palace.—Keith vaudeville. Always a good bill, and drawing more and more talent from the headliners of the regulars.

Plymouth.—"The Next Corner," a comedy by Kate Jordan, the cast headed by Florence Eldridge, Louise Closser Hale, and Basil Rathbone.

(Continued on page 98)

Photograph by Lucia-Smith, Chicago

Miss Marilyn Miller, star of Ziegfeld's musical comedy, "Sally"

"I Can Teach You to Dance Like This"

Sergei Marinoff

"And you can study under my personal direction right in your own home."

FEW PEOPLE living outside of New York, Chicago, or the great European capitals have the opportunity to study dancing with any of the really great masters. And the private, personal instructions of even average teachers range upward from $10 an hour.

But now, the famous Sergei Marinoff has worked out a system of home instruction. You can learn classic dancing in all its forms—interpretive, Russian, ballet, aesthetic, Greek—at a mere fraction of the cost of lessons in the studio.

A Fascinating Way to Learn
It is so easy and so delightful. Just put the record on the phonograph, slip into the dainty little dancing costume (furnished free with the Course) and you are ready to start. Now comes the voice of Marinoff himself instructing you, telling you what to do, while the spirited rhythm of the music inspires grace and confidence in you. And guided by the charts, the photographs of Marinoff and his students and the easy text, you master the technique of the dance.

Your progress is rapid and soon you develop confidence so that you are eager to dance before an audience.

FREE

Dancing Costume, Phonograph Records, Complete Studio Outfit

A dainty costume designed so as to permit free use of the limbs, ballet slippers, everything you need to help you with your lessons comes FREE with the course. Simple charts and beautiful photographs illustrate every lesson while phonograph records and simply worded text teach the essential points of technique. You can learn to dance, as you have always longed to dance, and your lessons will be pleasant and easy.

Charm and Grace

The natural beauty of the body is developed, an exquisite grace and flexibility cultivated by correct training in classic dancing. For better health—for greater beauty—for poise—for slenderness—dance! Dancing is the pleasantest form of exercise.

As a means of developing grace in children, dancing is unsurpassed. And with my method, mother and daughter can grow graceful together.

And Fortune—and Glory

The popularity of classic dancing grows greater every day. It has won its place in American life.

For the theatre — vaudeville — the movies—civic and college pageants—for private social affairs—everywhere the dancer is in demand. Startling salaries are paid. And those who can dance for charitable entertainments or for the pleasure of their friends quickly become social favorites. In addition, one is so much more desirable as a partner in ball room dances when she has developed a sense of rhythm, and cultivated suppleness through classic dancing.

Write to Sergei Marinoff

Everyone interested in dancing should write to Sergei Marinoff at once and get complete information concerning his splendid system of home instruction in Classic Dancing. This information is free. Send the coupon today.

M. SERGEI MARINOFF

School of Classic Dancing

Studio 12-77 1924 Sunnyside Avenue, Chicago

M. Sergei Marinoff,
School of Classic Dancing,
Studio 12-77 1924 Sunnyside Ave., Chicago
Please send me FREE portfolio of art plates and full information about your home study course in Classic Dancing. I understand that this is absolutely FREE.

Name

Address

Age

The Most Daring Book Ever Written!

Elinor Glyn, famous author of "Three Weeks," has written an amazing book that should be read by every man and woman—married or single. "The Philosophy of Love" is not a novel—it is a penetrating searchlight fearlessly turned on the most intimate relations of men and women. Read below how you can get this thrilling book at our risk—without advancing a penny.

WILL you marry the man you love, or will you take the one you can get?

If a husband stops loving his wife, or becomes infatuated with another woman, who is to blame—the husband, the wife, or the "other woman?"

Will you win the girl you want, or will Fate select your Mate?

Should a bride tell her husband what happened at seventeen?

Will you be able to hold the love of the one you cherish—or will your marriage end in divorce?

Do you know how to make people like you?

IF you can answer the above questions—if you know all there is to know about winning a woman's heart or holding a man's affections—you don't need "The Philosophy of Love." But if you are in doubt—if you don't know just how to handle your husband, or satisfy your wife, or win the devotion of the one you care for—then you must get this wonderful book. You can't afford to take chances with your happiness.

ELINOR GLYN
"The Oracle of Love"

What Do YOU Know About Love?

DO you know how to win the one you love? Do you know why husbands, with devoted, virtuous wives, often become secret slaves to creatures of another "world"—and how to prevent it? Why do some men antagonize women, finding themselves beating against a stone wall in affairs of love? When is it dangerous to disregard convention? Do you know how to curb a headstrong man, or are you the victim of men's whims? Do you know how to retain a man's affection always? How to attract men? Do you know the things that most irritate a man? Or disgust a woman? Can you tell when a man really loves you—or must you take his word for it? Do you know what you MUST NOT DO unless you want to be a "wall flower" or an "old maid"? Do you know the little things that make women like you? Why do "wonderful lovers" often become thoughtless husbands soon after marriage—and how can the wife prevent it? Do you know how to make marriage a perpetual honeymoon?

In "The Philosophy of Love," Elinor Glyn answers these precious questions—and countless others. She places a magnifying glass unflinchingly on the most intimate relations of men and women. No detail, no matter how delicate or avoided by others, is spared. She warns you gravely, she suggests wisely, she explains fully.

A book of this type, to be of great value, could not mince words. But while Madame Glyn calls a spade a spade—while she deals with strong emotions and passions in her frank, fearless manner—she nevertheless handles her subject so tenderly and sacredly that the book can safely be read by any grown-up man or woman. In fact, anyone over eighteen should be compelled to read "The Philosophy of Love"; for, while ignorance may sometimes be bliss, it is folly of the rankest sort to be ignorant of the problems of love and marriage. As one mother wrote us: "I wish I had read this book when I was a young girl—it would have saved me a lot of misery and suffering."

SEND NO MONEY

YOU need not advance a single penny for "The Philosophy of Love." Simply fill out the coupon below—or write a letter—and the book will be sent to you on approval. When the postman delivers the book to your door—when it is actually in your hands—pay him only $1.98, plus a few pennies postage, and the book is yours. Go over it to your heart's content—read it from cover to cover—and if you are not more than pleased, simply send the book back in good condition within five days and your money will be refunded instantly.

Over 75,000,000 people have read Elinor Glyn's stories or have seen them in the movies. Her books sell like magic. "The Philosophy of Love" is the supreme culmination of her brilliant career. It is destined to sell in huge quantities. Everybody will talk about it everywhere. So it will be exceedingly difficult to keep the book in print. It is possible that the present edition may be exhausted, and you may be compelled to wait for your copy, unless you mail the coupon below AT ONCE. We do not say this to hurry you—it is the truth.

Get your pencil—fill out the coupon NOW. Mail it to The Authors' Press, Auburn, N. Y., before it is too late. Then be prepared for the greatest thrill of your life!

What Every Man and Woman Should Know

- how to win the man you love.
- how to win the girl you want.
- how to hold your husband's love.
- how to make people admire you.
- why men "step out" and leave their wives alone.
- why many marriages end in despair.
- how to hold a woman's affection.
- how to keep a husband home nights.
- why most women don't know how to make love.
- things that turn men against you.
- how to make marriage a perpetual honeymoon.
- the "danger year" of married life.
- how to ignite love—how to keep it flaming.
- how to rekindle it if burnt out.
- how to cope with the "hunting instinct" in men.
- how to attract people you like.
- why some men and women are always lovable, regardless of age.
- how to make love keep you young.
- must all men be either "dubs" or devils?
- how to increase your desirability in a man's eye.
- how to tell if someone really loves you.
- things that make a woman "cheap" or "common."
- how to make people do the things you want them to.

The Authors' Press Dept. 182, Auburn, N. Y.
Please send me on approval Elinor Glyn's masterpiece, "The Philosophy of Love." When the postman delivers the book to my door, I will pay him only $1.98, plus a few pennies postage. It is understood, however, that this is not to be considered a purchase. If the book does not in every way come up to expectations, I reserve the right to return it any time within five days after it is received, and you agree to refund my money.

De Luxe Leather Edition—We have prepared a Limited Edition, handsomely bound in Royal Blue Genuine Leather and lettered in Gold, with Gold Tops and blue Silk Markers. No expense spared—makes a gorgeous gift. If you prefer this leather edition—as most people do—simply sign below, place a cross in the little square at the right, and pay the postman only $2.98 plus postage.

Name

Address

City and State

IMPORTANT—If you reside outside the U. S. A., payment must be made in advance. Regular Edition $2.10. Leather Edition, $3.10. Cash with coupon.

Make Your Honeymoon Dreams Come True!

LIONEL STRONGFORT
Dr. Sargent, of Harvard, declared that "Strongfort is unquestionably the finest specimen of physical development ever seen."

happy, contented, successful married life. I want you to read this wonder book. It's absolutely free. Just mark the subjects on the free consultation coupon on which you want special confidential information and send with 10 cents (one dime) to help pay postage, etc. I'll mail you a copy at once and with it information that will insure the happiness and well-being of yourself, your wife and your children. Send for my free book Right Now. TODAY.

LIONEL STRONGFORT

Physical and Health Specialist

Department 723 Founded 1895 Newark, New Jersey

Special Notice:—Lionel Strongfort, the World's Famous Athlete and Physical and Health Specialist has achieved wonderful results with the Principles of Strongfortism. Thousands of pupils throughout the world have testified to the benefits gained under his guidance. He enjoys an excellent reputation in his profession and can be depended upon to do exactly as he promises.

"Shattered ideals, broken promises, and the discovery of weaknesses, bad habits and tendencies hidden during courtship days are the cause of misery in marriage, weak, sickly children and divorce. These destroying elements are undermining the family unit and eating away the basic fabric of our civilization."—Lionel Strongfort.

Be True to Your Marriage Vows!

Courtship days lay the foundation of your future happiness or woe in married life. You have shown the very best side of your character to that sweet girl who has in full faith given her body and soul into your keeping. She looks up to you as the Prince Charming of her maiden dreams—the answer to her prayers for a big, strong, virile husband—a real red-blooded man capable of fathering healthy little ones.

Don't Betray the Girl You Love

Her eyes are clouded by Romance and her love for you. She cannot know the things about your past that YOU know. Her judgment is prejudiced and she cannot see thru the Eyes of Love your many faults and weaknesses that are so apparent to everyone else. You fear to tell her that you are a victim of Youthful Errors, bad habits and excesses—that you are a pitiable apology for a real man. Yet you dare not deceive her and wreck her happiness.

Rout Out the Crop of Youthful Errors

You have sown a big crop of "wild oats." You know quite well that the girl you love will reap most of the harvest if you continue in your present weakened contaminated and devitalized condition. YOU KNOW THAT—and you know that her faith in you as a man would not survive the truth. You are facing the crisis of your life. Your decision now will influence your whole future and hers. It looks dark and hopeless to you, but there is a way out. I can help you. I have devoted my entire life to the study of Nature's unfailing corrective forces. I have helped to save thousands of men in your condition. I want to save you!

You Can Be a Man Again

Brace Up. Be true to the best that is in you for the sake of the girl you love. You can come back. You can banish the weakness and deficiencies that threaten to ruin your married life and blast the happiness of that pure girl. You can get rid of Catarrh, Constipation, Indigestion, Asthma, Hay Fever, Nervousness, Biliousness, Impotency, Lost Manhood, Vital Losses, and the numerous other results of Youthful Errors and Excesses (see consultation coupon). You can aid Nature in restoring your Vital Powers and Manhood and fit yourself for the joys of Marriage and Parenthood with

STRONGFORTISM

The Modern Science of Health Promotion

Strongfortism is founded on the everlasting scientific fact that Nature is the only true healing and corrective force. Those who live strictly in accordance with Nature's Laws, will enjoy unlimited health, strength and vitality. Strongfortism, Nature's First Assistant, contains the very essence and most scientific application of Nature's unfailing forces and is 100% successful when all other methods fail. Your success with Strongfortism is guaranteed, irrespective of your age, occupation or surroundings.

Send for My FREE Book It's a Revelation

"Promotion and Conservation of Health, Strength and Mental Energy" will give you in clear understandable language, the scientific facts about Nature's upbuilding and revitalizing forces. It will teach you how to overcome the results of wrong living and point out your way to a happy, contented, successful married life. I want you to read this wonder book. It's absolutely free. Just mark the subjects on the free consultation coupon on which you want special confidential information and send with 10 cents (one dime) to help pay postage, etc. I'll mail you a copy at once and with it information that will insure the happiness and well-being of yourself, your wife and your children. Send for my free book Right Now. TODAY.

FREE CONSULTATION COUPON

ABSOLUTELY CONFIDENTIAL

Mr. Lionel Strongfort, Dept. 723, Newark, N. J.—Please send me your book "PROMOTION AND CONSERVATION OF HEALTH, STRENGTH AND MENTAL ENERGY," for postage on which I enclose a 10c piece (one dime). Send me special information on subjects marked (X) below, as well as those I may write on extra line, without obligation.

- | | | |
|--|---|---|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Colds | <input type="checkbox"/> Fear | <input type="checkbox"/> Skin Disorders |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Catarrh | <input type="checkbox"/> Neurasthenia | <input type="checkbox"/> Prostate Troubles |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Hay Fever | <input type="checkbox"/> Short Wind | <input type="checkbox"/> Youthful Errors |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Asthma | <input type="checkbox"/> Flat Feet | <input type="checkbox"/> Vital Losses |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Obesity | <input type="checkbox"/> Constipation | <input type="checkbox"/> Impotency |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Headache | <input type="checkbox"/> Biliousness | <input type="checkbox"/> Vitality Restored |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Thinness | <input type="checkbox"/> Torpid Liver | <input type="checkbox"/> Falling Hair |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Rupture | <input type="checkbox"/> Indigestion | <input type="checkbox"/> Oeformity (Describe) |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Lumbago | <input type="checkbox"/> Poor Memory | <input type="checkbox"/> Stomach Disorders |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Neuritis | <input type="checkbox"/> Rheumatism | <input type="checkbox"/> Successful Marriage |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Neuralgia | <input type="checkbox"/> Nervousness | <input type="checkbox"/> Pimples |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Flat Chest | <input type="checkbox"/> Gastritis | <input type="checkbox"/> Blackheads |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Insomnia | <input type="checkbox"/> Prolapsus | <input type="checkbox"/> Round Shoulders |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Bad Breath | <input type="checkbox"/> Heart Weakness | <input type="checkbox"/> Lung Troubles |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Bad Blood | <input type="checkbox"/> Poor Circulation | <input type="checkbox"/> Weak Back |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Weak Eyes | <input type="checkbox"/> Increased Height | <input type="checkbox"/> Drug Addiction |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Anemia | <input type="checkbox"/> Easy Childbirth | <input type="checkbox"/> Healthy Children |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Oeblility | <input type="checkbox"/> Oespondency | <input type="checkbox"/> Weaknesses (Specify) |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Successful Marriage | <input type="checkbox"/> Female Disorders | <input type="checkbox"/> Muscular Development |
| | <input type="checkbox"/> Disorders | <input type="checkbox"/> Great Strength |

Mention other ailments here.....
No matter what ails you write me fully about it and I shall prove to you that I can help you

Name.....
Age..... Occupation.....
Street.....
City..... State.....

Is It Worth The Price?

Success is the result of intelligent labor. It is not acquired overnight. It comes thru well-directed efforts. The same law applies to attaining beauty. All women do not inherit this coveted gift but they can cultivate the integral parts that go to make up the whole—health, correct grooming, grace, charm, and a knowledge of how to dress. If one does not possess these things, time and labor will bring them. The means will justify the end. BEAUTY is the best means to employ.

WHAT YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO MISS

How to Breathe and Build the Body

The Importance of Vitamins

Personality and Perfumes

Early Fall Fashions and Style Service

The Memoirs of Mme. Vavara

A new serial with a wide appeal. If you are a young girl standing at the threshold of life, the frank confessions of a woman who has lived deeply will be as guide posts on your journey thru life. If you are a mature woman you will appreciate more fully the wisdom and truth embedded in the account of Mme. Vavara's life as written by herself to her youthful ward in a French convent. This clever woman, famous for her beauty and brains, does not hesitate to conceal anything in her own life which she believes will tend to instruct this young girl. This story by Stanton Leeds is one to enjoy and to remember.

November

Beauty

Beauty Secrets for Every Woman

The Second Crusade

An Explanation and an Apology

A CERTAIN person whose opinion we respect has said that an editorial should be more impersonal than our last one was—the one about the movies as a field of incredible contrast. But we cannot be impersonal about Mrs. Wallace Reid and her heart-breaking picture, "Human Wreckage."

We confess to being among those doubting ones who questioned the motive and criticized the taste of this unprecedented film. We went to the opening night in New York frankly, out of curiosity, legitimate perhaps, but with no idea of praise or even of respect.

And we, like many others remained to pray.

No one could impugn the motives of Mrs. Reid if they had seen her standing up in a box, after the picture, while flowers in gracious tribute were laid at her feet; standing there white faced and weary-eyed, the tears rolling down her cheeks, very near to collapse, a tragic, pitiful, inarticulate figure.

Here is a gallant crusader who was not deterred by an adverse public opinion; who bared her grief that others might see and be warned; who has sacrificed herself to the common good; who has consecrated her life, more than nobly, intelligently, to the elimination of a ghastly traffic.

"Human Wreckage," is a profoundly moving picture handled with dignity and restraint. There is nothing cheap or sensational about it. Quite the contrary. A tremendous and unmistakable sincerity animates everyone who had anything to do with it. It is a grim, terrific tragic indictment of stupidity and criminal indifference toward these "living dead," whose pitiable army is vaster than you or I ever dreamed of.

Altho our motive be likewise misinterpreted, we say in all sincerity, that every man and woman in the United States should go to see this picture: not as a Christian duty, but for the sake of being intelligently informed on a subject that has been heretofore shrouded in darkness. We realize, of course, that the only effectual appeal is to the emotions first. . . . Well . . . go to see the picture. . . . That is all we ask.

Photograph by C. Smith Gardiner

The second generation of the movies is at hand. We hope for this boy who has adopted at the age of thirteen the profession of his father, that he may have the vision and courage of that well-loved star

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR.

Photograph © by George Maillard Kessler

PEGGY SHAW

Another Follies girl who has made good on the screen. Well, why shouldn't they? She made her debut with Fox a year ago and will be starred soon in "The Arizona Express," to be made in the West

Photograph by Edwin Bower Hesser

Who has the opportunity of a lifetime in "Greed," as the ill-fated Trina Sieppe

ZAZU PITTS

Photograph by White Studios

JAMES KIRKWOOD

Whose performance in "Human Wreckage" is to be commended for its power and restraint

Photograph by Freulich

This man is almost too handsome. We would suggest that some director "shoot" him. It would certainly improve his picture. You may see him in "Merry Go Round"

NORMAN KERRY

DOROTHY DALTON

Is vacationing in Europe after the manner of movie stars. She will spend a great deal of time in England with her father, and possibly make a picture over there

The Camera

Mr. Bausch Lens

HARRY

I DON'T know about a man and his valet; but I know that no woman is a heroine to her cameraman. I know; I am one of them. From first to last I have photographed about every star in the business.

The hardest woman I ever tried to photograph is Ina Clare. She has a difficult mouth which requires very careful treatment and she will not co-operate with you in this treatment.

She can be very charming when she chooses; but she is very sure of her position in the theater world and she isn't too much excited over the movies anyhow. The consequence is she will not give you the right amount of help necessary to solve the problem of photographing her difficult mouth.

On the other hand, there is Mary Pickford. Mary is not the cinch to photograph that some people seem to suppose. Oddly enough, only one side of her face is ever photographed in profile.

This was the most exasperating lesson that Ernst Lubitsch, the German director, had to learn when he began to direct in the Pickford studio.

In Europe they have an entirely different standard of art. The public in Europe does not seem to insist that every heroine be fatally beautiful. They recognize the fact that plain women might also have a life story. In America, the movie public is frankly indifferent to the fate of homely women — on the screen at least.

The first lesson that the astonished Lubitsch had to learn was that Mary Pickford had to do all her emotional storms with her right side to the camera.

Mary helps the cameraman however so skilfully and adroitly that it is a cinch to take her pictures. You have to take care not to make her face look too long—and you leave the rest to Mary. In the projecting-rooms she studies her own face as an Indian trailer studies foot-prints. She is a past mistress of make-up and she knows how to control her acting to co-operate in the fullest way imaginable with the cameraman.

Marguerite Clark in her younger days, had a round baby face, but she was not so easy to photograph for all that. She had a way of wrinkling her brows that absolutely wrecked your best close-ups unless you arranged the lighting with great skill. The job of photographing Marguerite Clark was also complicated by her sister. This older sister is Miss Clark's business manager and general guide, philosopher and friend. She makes a great deal of trouble on the sets by interfering with the arrangements of the cameramen.

Another girl who frowns away many good close-ups is Blanche Sweet. Like a lot of girls with real characters behind their beauty, Blanche has somewhat irregular features. She has a great width at the cheek bones and a face that tapers so rapidly that it gives her the appearance of having hollow cheeks — which she really hasn't. This effect

Photograph by
Arnold Genthe

Did you know that Blanche Sweet (left) frowns away many a good close-up? And that Billie Dove (above) is particularly hard to photograph? And that John Barrymore (above) looks beautiful from any angle? And that Nazimova (right) directs her own lighting and so forth?

Photograph (left) by
Evans, L. A.

Photograph by
Hobver Art Studio

Man's Angle

Confesses To

CARR

has to be overcome with lighting. Another difficulty you have to look out for with Blanche Sweet are her eyebrows. When she frowns, it gives the odd effect of eyebrows that grow straight across and meet. I do not wish to give the impression that she is not a beautiful girl; because she is. The difficulty is that she has certain features which cast photographic shadows.

To my mind, the most beautiful girl on the screen is the hardest to photograph. This is Mae Murray. With that little rose-bud, bee-kissed mouth, her aura of golden hair which stands about her head like a golden haze; and her lithe beautiful body, she is a perfect picture. But these effects are not easily achieved. The cameraman has fairly to burn her up with lights.

She spreads a white coat of liquid make-up that is like kalsomine over her whole face before she goes on the set. Her bare legs and body are practically painted white.

On the sets, they put a strong back light behind her which makes that beautiful hazy effect. They hit her full in the face with strong sunlight arcs. I don't see how she ever stands it without going blind. No girl on the screen ever used anything like the light and the make-up. She is very particular about her photography, but she knows her job and knows how to help the cameraman.

The direct opposite is Lillian Gish. She uses almost no make-up at all. Beyond a little powder, Lillian is photographed just "as is." Where most girls spread on make-up, Lillian gets the same results by skillful lighting. She is lucky in having the same photographers for many years. Billy Bitzer has reduced photographing Lillian Gish to an exact science. He knows every curve and angle to shoot from and to shoot at.

Carol Dempster is a photographic problem just in the exact ratio that you can get her to do her hair up on her head. Her eyes are lovely. When she raises her hair up on her head, her eyes become the center of the picture.

When she used to insist upon wearing it in long corkscrew curls, it framed her face and made it look thin. Like most young girls, however, she thought it made her look too old to wear it on top of her head.

The most extraordinary instance of a woman refusing to help the cameraman was Doris Keene. She is too great an artist to be young and the evidence of her maturity is beginning to show at the corners of her mouth. In "Romance" she absolutely insisted upon using the same costume she had worn during the long and triumphant runs in London. One feature of this costume was a pair of jingly crystal earrings. The result was that your eye was caught by the glitter of one earring and traveled instinctively to the other earring, straight across the line of her mouth.

One stage star nearly drove the cameramen to drink; that was Laurette Taylor.

She is a high-tempered, headstrong woman of brilliant mind and obstinate

Photograph by
W. F. Seely

Photograph © by
Strauss Peyton

You wouldn't believe that Tommy Meighan (left) was a difficult camera subject; or that Constance Talmadge (above) was even more so; or that Bert Lytell (above) was in the same class, as well as that appealing Carol Dempster (right). Now would you?

will. When she made "Peg O' My Heart," she presented a fearful problem. She is a woman of mature years, as everyone knows, with a grown son. To make her look a girl of fourteen was considerable of an undertaking.

When the picture was first started, she was very wilful and insisted on having her own way in every particular. She nearly drove the cameramen to suicide.

Finally they resolved to discipline her. They took the pictures exactly as she directed them to be taken. Then they took her into the projecting-room and showed her how they looked. That cured her. From then on, she was a lamb in their hands and turned out a marvelously beautiful picture in which most of the close-ups, by the way, were made by placing her at quite a distance from the camera and using a telescopic lens.

Even some of the great beauties of the screen are hard to photograph. One of the most difficult I ever saw was Billie Dove, who was a wonderfully beautiful girl. She had a bad shadow on her face. If you threw the light on her face to kill this shadow, you made her face look flat and broad.

The same is true in a lesser degree with Constance Talmadge. Constance is one of the most beautiful girls on the screen and one of the hardest to photograph.

Norma Talmadge is a very curious problem for the cameraman. In any one position, Norma is not difficult to "shoot": but when she turns her head, it spoils the show—in other words, any one aspect of Norma is a comparatively easy task, but changing versions of Norma's face are difficult.

Alice Joyce is much more beautiful than she screens; Mrs. Wallace Reid, much more slender; Priscilla Dean not nearly so tall; Andrée Lafayette taller, Marion Davies, fairer, face and hair, and so on. It is just as true to say that the camera changes us all (a little) as to say the camera does not lie. I can see both sides of that argument.

Nazimova would be a homely woman but for the art and brains she uses in getting herself photographed. Every close-up of this great Slavic actress is practically a painting in which she herself, dictates the lights and shades and composition.

Mary Astor, a new comer to the screen, has about the most perfect set of screen features I have ever shot. Actually, this young girl is rather insignificant-looking but she photographs like a million dollars. There is only one bad angle and that is a three-quarter view with her head drooped. These youngsters are no trouble at all. They do just what the director tells them to. Give them a few more years, tho, and they'll be directing the directors. It is those who are midway in their experience that make the trouble for us, and cause endless retakes.

What applies to the women also applies to the men of the screen.

The easiest best-star to photograph is John Barrymore. He has a profile like a cut cameo. His manner is charming; every attitude is grace personified; his face is one of the most expressive and mobile it has ever been my privilege to shoot. It is true that he is a bit temperamental and one can never be wholly sure that he will be there, but if he is, there is no trouble.

Valentino would be easy to photograph were it not for his ears. He has very small and misshapen ears which the cameraman has to be careful to hide.

Tommy Meighan is rather hard to photograph, and so is Bert Lytell.

Dick Barthelme, altho willing and anxious and handsome, presents considerable difficulties. His face is somewhat broad and has to be watched carefully. Ramon Navarro is another handsome youngster, but he is easy.

Character actors always present a stiff problem. Sometimes their make-up is so grotesque that the mere elongation or exaggeration of a single feature will burlesque a most serious effort. For all its problems my job is interesting, a regular handbook of human psychology. I wouldn't give it up for the world.

Life's Little Ironies in Verse

EXPERIENCE

By CONSTANCE BLESSING SMITH

OH, once I loved deeply,
(Some women do this;
They fling all their freedom
Away in a kiss.)

Yet, wisdom or folly,
That course lived its day,
At present I'm using
A much safer way.

For now I love lightly,
I love with a laugh,
The thrill's quite as pleasing,
The trouble—one half.

FATALITY

By HELENE MULINS

HE had lived so long
In despair's shadowed cell
That when success came
Its sudden brilliancy
Blinded him.

It was his destiny
To live in darkness.

WHY?

By LEE SHIPPEY

WE rail at life,
And yet we sigh
To see a white hearse
Passing by.

ANACHRONISM

By ALBERT BRUSH

YOU lean indolently
Against the ship's rail,
There are six wild geese in the sky
And three white-breasted birds
On the water.

What right have you
In a Japanese print?

UNRECOGNIZED

By FRIEDRICH VON FALKENBURG

DO not weep, little stars,
Because the meteor
Passed you by without a
Word of friendly greeting.

One I have known for years,
Today rushed swiftly by
Without a smile or nod . . .
And yet, I do not weep.

ROOTS

By DOROTHEA DALLETT

I HAVE chased a butterfly,
I have dreamed a dream,
I have floated miles and miles
Down a summer stream.

I have always thought to find
Deep reality,
Something always led me on
But eluded me.
Will I ever find that thing
Rooted like a tree?

Passing loves I've often felt
Deep within my heart,
Stab they did but passed away—
Of me were no part.

Now my own has come to me,
Happiness I've found;
I am rooted like a tree
In the solid ground;
No more errant, restless thoughts,
No more roaming 'round.

DOULEUR

By A. R. WAGNER

WHEN a girl
With youth and prettiness,
Glances at a man
Demurely under shadowed lids,
With carmined lips apart
In half a smile,
And elicits no response—
It is worse
Than the tragedy
Of the first grey hair.

MARIE-JEANNE DU BARRI

Famous Heroines No. 1. Posed by Claire Windsor

Here is Madame Du Barri's own description of herself taken from her memoirs: "My lovely face, my locks which waved most enchantingly over my eyes, which were melting, sparkling and liquid as crystal, my mouth, small and red as a cherry, my delicately formed nose, my excessively fair skin, my elegant and sylphlike figure, in fact, the perfect beauty of my person made my mother conceive the greatest hopes of success." Everyone knows of the tragic "success" of the little milliner's girl with Louis XV, that eventually led her an ignominious dance to the guillotine

Divine Discontent

By FAITH SERVICE

Photographs by Russell Ball

There is an air of nobility about Alma Rubens, with her sculptural early Italian face, the fine pallor of her skin, the remoteness of her eyes. . . .

IN a recent article in a fan magazine Alma Rubens is referred to as "a Duchess" and other elegant things. We get the point, exactly. There is an air of nobility about Alma. Perhaps it lies in her seeming abstraction; a sense of noble detachment from the more harassing and mundane things of life; a sort of plastic serenity; a garment of glamour covering undertones of purple and passion. Or it may lie in the set of her head, poised and proud; in the remoteness of her eyes, when she is gazing into space; in the fine pallor of her skin, the firm modeling of her lips.

But Alma is red blooded as well as blue blooded. She is human as well as haughty.

Alma is frank, too, frank and direct. She doesn't "set the stage." She talks like one young person to another, without an ever present sense of "I wonder how this will look in print."

Some gelatin goddesses might, for instance, think it more judicious not to say that they'd leave the screen if they could do something else better. Not Alma. Between you and me, we hope that she doesn't leave the screen even if she does develop into an Edith Wharton or an Anzia Yzierska or something. For we can't imagine Alma doing anything, even writing, better than she does screening. It would be a pity to hide her sculptural, early-Italian face behind a noiseless typewriter. Her art is noiseless, as it is, why not leave well enough alone?

Besides, it will probably seem incredible to most fans to know that to be a star, a cinema celebrity, is not enough. To be fêted and adored, publicized and pictured, and bowed down to—what more could the heart of a maid demand?

But the heart of Alma Rubens desires more.

Over the Honey Dew melon at the Ritz, our talk went something like this:

ALMA: I wish to goodness I could be a writer. I wish it so much that I've begun to try my hand at it, and if I succeed . . .
(gesture of eliminating several studios.)

MYSELF: Well, if you do, what then?

(Continued on page 76)

Renée

This is Alma as we shall see her in "Under the Red Robe." But she is not satisfied with motion picture starrng. She wants to write. . . . She says: "I admire most those people who are able to sacrifice everything . . . for the sake of the thing they most want to do and can do best"

Foreign

European Studios

MAURICE

agree to meet each other later, at a fixed date, to relate what has happened during their separation. The girl arrives in her luxurious dress, happy at her success, and the boy sends a mutual friend with a letter. He cannot come, he is very ill, and about to die. But as films now require happy endings, George Pearson, who wrote this story, was obliged to modify the epilog. And we then know that all this is the story of the book our young author is writing.

FRANCE

It is not the first time that two producers have directed together a picture in France. This happened before the war at the Pathé studios. And now, two good directors, L. Mercanton (who made "Phroso" and many other films, one of which, with the late famous stage actress Mme. Réjane) and René Hervil, have presented their new photoplay "Sarati the Terrible." This is a story of adventure which takes place in Africa and which has proved very lucky to French producers.

Two brothers who are rivals and who will find at the end a nice looking girl who will happily metamorphose

"THE English studios are just like the American ones," Betty Compson said to me when I saw her for the first time at the studios of the Famous Players-Lasky in London, "I mean this one," she added, thus confirming what Mae Marsh had said previously.

Before us the studio No. 1 presented the aspect of the Paris Moulin Rouge, with its orchestra, its crowds of dancers, while the electric wings of the mills were turning slowly. Some of the dancers were considering the American star with considerable curiosity. On his pedestal, near the camera, Graham Cutts, the director, smiled at us from time to time. "He is a very clever producer," said Betty, "I am glad to work with him, and I like the story so much besides."

"Woman to Woman" is the title of the play which ran so successfully in England, and which will be the name of the British film in which Betty Compson plays lead. She will be seen as a dancer of the Moulin Rouge, where an Englishman (Clive Brook) will notice her and fall in love with her. And both will be happy . . . at the end of the picture.

"Love, Life and Laughter," otherwise called "The Story of Tip-Toes," the new film directed by George Pearson, has obtained a legitimate success. It tells us of the adventures of an ambitious girl (Betty Balfour) who succeeds in her ambition to become a music-hall star, and of a boy (Harry Jonas) who remains as he is, a poor author. Both

At the top of the page is Maria Corda as Delilah, in the Austrian film, "Samson and Delilah." Left is little Miss Myrtle Peter who is appearing with Betty Compson in the British made picture, "Woman to Woman." Below is Pasteur (center) played by Charles Mosnier in the French photoplay of that name

Films

At a Glance

ROSETT

the eternal triangle into a quadrangle, and Sarati, the villain, are the principal characters of this new photoplay which has many good qualities and is among the best pictures lately made in France.

On the occasion of the celebration of the centenary of the great scientist Pasteur, Jean Benoit Levy made a picture which follows faithfully the principal episodes of the life of the famous benefactor of humanity. In spite of its actuality, this is a very interesting picture possessing the advantage of being educational and also attractive as a story when it shows to us how Pasteur made, after long hesitations, his first experience on the body of the little Meister. The rôle of Pasteur is perfectly revived by Charles Mosnier.

ITALY

I had the opportunity of meeting Carmine Gallone, one of the best of the Italian producers. Speaking to him of the present situation in Italy, I referred to what I wrote in CLASSIC about my visits to that country.

"You are right," he replied, "many mistakes have been made in my country. A few producers among my friends as well as myself have seen the danger, and we have decided to take steps to alter things. We have formed a Consortium which will be for Italy what 'The Allied Artists' is for the States. It includes A. Genina, G. Righelli, A. Palermi and myself. But no doubt we shall be joined by others, by Guazzoni (the producer who made 'Messalina'), for instance. We shall not forget to pay frequent visits to other countries in order to see what is being made there and to follow the progress of others."

Above is Albert Bassermann as Christopher Columbus, the title rôle of a German film

Carmine Gallone has just completed a
(Continued on page 86)

At the top of the page is a scene from "Jola," a Russian picture in the typically Russian manner. Above is Soava Gallone, an Italian star, as the daughter from the Italian film, "The Poor Mother." Left is a scene from another desert picture, "Sarati the Terrible," a French photoplay with two directors

Photograph by Aubert

Scaramouche

"He was born with the gift of laughter and a sense that the world was mad."—RAFAEL SABATINI

Ramon Navarro, in a striking study by W. F. Seely in the title rôle of Rex Ingram's "Scaramouche"

Ashes of Vengeance

By PATRICIA DOYLE

I AM Anne de Breux. I am a little girl and a cripple. I have many long hours with nothing to do, so I have decided to write down the story of my sister, my beautiful sister, Yoeland. It is an exciting tale, full of thrills and romance, and while it was happening, nobody paid much attention to me, but I kept my eyes open and listened and thought, and my darling Rupert and his—that is, Yoeland told me of the things I could not see.

Yoeland's story really began when my brother, the Comte de la Roche, brought home to our castle, M. Rupert de Vrleacs as his bond servant. The De Vrleacs, altho they are Huguenots, are as noble and of as ancient a lineage as our own. It is another story how the last scion of this illustrious family came to be a bond servant of ours, and perhaps I would better tell that first.

The De Vrleacs and the De Breux were bitter enemies, had been for several generations. Altho I cannot understand how anyone could hate either Rupert or Charles, the feud between our families was started by the unhappy and unfortunate marriage of Yvonne de Marbleu and Raoul de Vrleac, and has been ended only by the marriage of—— But I must not tell the end of my story first.

It was after the cruel massacre of St. Bartholomew's day, when Rupert was the affianced of Margot de Vainceoire, another Protestant. My brother Charles, who is irresistible to women, who wears lace at his wrists, tho they are hard as steel with gallant sword play, had started a flirtation with the Vainceoire, a froward piece, to be sure. He did it merely to annoy and harass his enemy Rupert, but the girl, it seems, took it seriously, and when young Rupert found her in the arms of Charles, he immediately challenged him to a duel.

Now these are hot-blooded times and altho I am young and carefully guarded the reports of these stirring conflicts reach even my secluded life. The Comte de la Roche is one of the finest swordsmen in France, but Rupert bested him and instead of taking his life as is customary, presented his liberty to him with insulting courtesy. I do not understand these amenities exactly, but I know it humiliated my brother to accept anything from his enemy. It was intolerable to one of his proud spirit to owe his life to one he hated, and Charles dreamed and thought of nothing but revenge.

He got it much sooner than he expected it, too. It was during the terrible days of August, 1572, and the fact that Margot de Vainceoire was in Paris and a Huguenot, and that Charles was also there and a Catholic, that he was able to guarantee her safe escape from the city. He saw to it that she was not one of the thousands of martyred Protestants whose blood will forever cry for vengeance on the house of the De Medici. The price he exacted of Rupert for the safety of his fiancée was five years of serfdom in our household. He was revenged indeed.

The ignominy was now De Vrleac's; but Rupert has borne himself so nobly and comported himself with such exceeding honor that out of the ashes of vengeance has come at last love, triumphant and glorious.

When Rupert first came to Castle de la Roche in my brother's train, he was treated exactly like any other of our servants. His mien was haughty and unbending, not at all that of a servant, but he was never insubordinate in the performance of his duties, tho it must often have chafed and galled his proud spirit. Charles seemed to take particular delight in humiliating him and as for Yoeland, well, she treated him worse than the scullions that helped in the great kitchen. That is, she ignored him altogether, or if she wanted any disagreeable duty done she would say, "Here, fellow, take this refuse out to the swineherd, and make haste to return. I want my hound plucked and brushed before even."

Such unwelcome tasks were usually left to the lowest menials in our retinue, and the fact that Rupert performed them always with a grave and deferential courtesy often gave my sister to blush. Yoeland was a ravishing woman, with hair like a falcon's wing and skin like the red and white

The fascinating Comte de la Roche with his men in the inn where he and Rupert de Vrieac fought the duel that resulted in intensifying the family feud ten thousand times over roses that clambered over the castle wall. When she blushed she was more than beautiful. Rupert's mouth was stern but his eyes laughed, laughed at Yoeland when she ordered him about and that made her self-conscious and uncomfortable, and she ordered him about the more, and played harder than ever, the great lady. Sometimes I was wont to think Rupert did it on purpose, tho of that, I cannot be sure. Even so, he must have been dolorous indeed to be separated from the lady of his heart and to be serving in so shameful a capacity in his enemy's household.

I loved him from the first. He was so handsome and so tall and to me, tender as the mother I had long since lost. He used to carry me all over the castle gardens in his strong arms, Yoeland walking arrogantly before. Sometimes Yoeland would forget to be cool and severe. "Ah, Rupert," she once said, in that husky sweet voice of hers, that was the toast of all her admirers. "'Tis a pity to see you thus. I shall speak to my brother."

"Nay, Lady," Rupert replied, drawing himself up proudly. "I pray you say no word in that direction. A De Vrieac pays his debts, as much as I do now. I could have understood that because she talked of him all the time, even tho that talk was all abuse, was that he interested her more than she would have found possible to admit.

"You think this oaf, handsome little Anne?" she would ask.

"Yes, truly," I would answer. "And he is no oaf!"

"Well, I like him not. I find him most ill favored, dour and gloomy as a donjon keep. I like him not."

Affairs progressed in this wise for some time and then something happened. Something always happens, give it but time. My uncle, the Vicomte de Briège, came one day to pay us a visit. He brought most unwelcome tidings. Denise, his fair daughter and my sweet cousin, he had betrothed to the Duc de Tours, a most wicked and profligate man but of great estates and riches. This was grievous news to Yoeland, for she loved her cousin dearly, and when she heard my Aves that night, she wept a little and I could say naught to comfort her.

"'Tis sad, sweet sister, to marry where you do not love," she said, kneeling beside my cot, "and I know Denise cares only for that

ASHES OF VENGEANCE

Fictionized by permission from the Joseph M. Schenck production. Directed by Frank Lloyd and starring Norma Talmadge. The cast:

Yoeland de Breux.....	Norma Talmadge
Rupert de Vrieac.....	Conway Tearle
Duc de Tours.....	Wallace Beery
Catherine de Medici.....	Josephine Crowell
Margot de Vaincoire.....	Betty Francisco
Comte de la Roche.....	Courtney Foote
Charles IX.....	André de Béranger
Duc de Guise.....	Boyd Irwin
André.....	William Clifford
Anne.....	Jeanne Carpenter
Vicomte de Briège.....	Howard Truesdale
Denise.....	Mary McAllister
Philibert de Bois.....	Kenneth Gibson
Father Paul.....	Forrest Robinson
Lupi.....	Frank Leigh

impoverished young nobleman, Philibert de Bois. I wish I might help her. Most certainly I shall return with our Uncle and give her what solace I may. Fare you well, bantling, and the good God keep my little Anne free from pain while I am gone. I shall take De Vrieac as lacquey."

"Ah, sister," I entreated, "subject him not to this further humiliation."

"He is our enemy, the enemy of our house," she repeated in a resolute voice, as tho reminding herself of that fact.

And so, when my uncle returned to the Château Briège accompanied by his niece, Yoeland, Rupert was one of her entourage. I hated to see him go. Altho everyone is kind to me here, from Nannette, my tirewoman, up to Yoeland, I am often lonely. Rupert was now my dear friend, my true knight, and when we had to part I gave him a talisman, as ladies always do when their knights ride a-venturing, to have and to hold while he should be away. It was a lock of hair, the smooth, fine flaxen hair clipped from the wax doll Charles had brought me from Brittany. I wanted to give him a lock of my own, but I wasn't allowed to cut it and I knew it wouldn't really matter to Rupert.

They found a gay party at the Château when they arrived. There was a temporary truce between the Catholics and the Huguenots, and a great many of both sides were there, including Margeot de Vainceoire, the woman for whose safety Rupert had pledged five years of ignominious servitude. This beautiful sacrifice of honor had been made in vain, as it subsequently proved; for she accepted the suit, that very night, of a nephew of the Duc de Tours, and sent back Rupert's ring and the news of her engagement by André, his trusted henchman whom he had left with Margeot for her protection. She must have been a poor thing indeed to jilt so fine a man as Rupert and that he should have grieved over so faithless a creature, causes me discomfort to this day. It was perhaps a greater blow to his pride than to his heart; and to think he had to keep his oath of service, tho naught could come of it; to have to endure the humiliation of a servant's lot and no reward at the end of it.

Ah, well, these things are ordered for the best I am sure. Altho I have not lived very long, I have had long times in which to think, and I discovered that this blow had softened Yoeland's heart toward him and piqued her interest as well. So much did he occupy her thoughts that when the Duc de Tours finally arrived to pay his respects, and promptly switched his attentions from Denise to the more striking Yoeland, she made no effort to conceal her dislike of the man. Nor was she impressed by the imposing following he had brought with him. More and more she thought of Rupert, but proud maid that she was, would not let him see it, only spared him any further humiliation at her hands.

At a great feast later in the week the Duc, who often drank too much wine, became intoxicated by the excellence and quantity of my uncle's hospitality—by the abuse of it rather—and so far forgot his high station as to kiss a little kitchen wench. The girl's lover tried right valiantly to protect her and the wicked Duc ran him thru without any more ado than one would stick a wild boar at a hunt. This foul murder, for such it was, so enraged the mercenaries that they determined upon revenge. And who can say that these lowly folk had not a truer idea of justice than the high-born lords who held them in fee? Suffice it to say, they planned an attack on all the members of the household, including my precious Yoeland.

But the ever vigilant and valiant Rupert learned of their plans and caused my sister to take refuge in the turret room, with sixteen of his men who had come with André to see their lord once more, to defend her. Thru a mis-

Catherine de Medici persuading her son, the weakling Charles IX, to sign the order for the bloody massacre of St. Bartholomew's day

Yoeland de Breux takes leave of her brother as she is about to pay a visit to her uncle. Rupert is now her lacquey taken the understandable sense of hospitality Yoeland insisted that the Duc be allowed to join them. This proved a very serious mistake, for the men outside then became more determined than ever to get the Duc. Inflamed by good red Burgundy and exhorted by the half-wit serving-maid, they stormed the turret-room. Right valiantly Rupert's men fought to save the lives of their little garrison. They were outnumbered two to one and their besiegers held the point of vantage besides. I am thankful I did not know about this until it was over. I could scarce have lived thru that night. One by one Rupert's men were killed or wounded. The stone steps ran with their loyal blood. The devoted André was mortally wounded and died in his master's arms. So perilous had their position become that my brave, my peerless Yoeland seized a sword, forgot her maidenhood and fought courageously beside her defender. Then Rupert's doublet was ripped open by a ferocious sword thrust which pierced his side, and he collapsed.

That would have been the end of both my loved ones, had not young Philibert de Bois and his men come unexpectedly to their rescue and put the offenders to rout. Father Paul, who was the chaplain of the Château, had let himself down from the east wing on a rope made of bedding and tapestries and swum the moat and never halted till he reached De Bois. 'Twas a fine brave thing to do, for a priestly man unused to the hardships and vigors of fighting.

Both Yoeland and Rupert told me the tale of the encounter, each laying all credit and praise at the other's feet, tho I doubt not that it was equally divided between them. Rupert is utterly fearless and Yoeland, for a woman, the bravest I have seen. It was when Rupert lay sore wounded that Yoeland, of the high hand, realized that she loved him. Forgot was all her pride, her former hatred. She let him read the tender message in her eyes and his own, tho they were dark with pain, answered her in kind. She nursed him with all care, finding happiness in the doing of it, until one day she sat mending his torn doublet and came across a lock of fine gold hair pinned carefully in the innermost pocket.

De la Roche offers the Huguenot De Vrieac the badge of Catholicism as a guarantee of safety for his affianced, Margot de Vaincoire

Alas! She thought it was Margot's hair and that Rupert still loved her. Whereupon she became all cool and distant again and left the nursing to the servants. Rupert could not, of course, understand this change and it wounded him deeply so that he was longer getting well than need be. My sister cherished her grief and disappointment in secret and put on a bold and indifferent front for outsiders. If I could but have been there to explain!

To take her mind out of its sorrowful channel, Yoeland schemed and put into operation plans for the wedding of Denise and Philibert, which was successfully consummated. But my sister's troubles were not yet over; the most unbearable and trying was yet before her. On her way back from the wedding, she was captured by the Duc's men, right on the highway, and carried by them, bound and gagged, back to the turret-room. There Rupert lay likewise bound and helpless.

"What is the meaning of this indignity?" Yoeland demanded as soon as she was released.

"Peace, my beauty," the Duc replied, "and I will tell you. I never cared a fig for that little mouse, Denise. 'Tis you I love. You are the woman I want for my wife, and—" he hesitated, "I mean to have you."

Rupert nearly burst his bonds, weakened by loss of blood, when he was.

"Never," Yoeland replied, holding her head high. "I despise you."

"A h - h a," laughed the Duc. "No matter! You love this ruffled fowl, I have discovered," waving a disdainful hand toward Rupert.

A deep crimson gradually suffused the countenance of Yoeland.

"Ah, you confess it by your blush," declared the Duc. Yoeland made no reply, only held her head higher than ever.

"Well then, marry me and he shall go free—unhurt. Refuse and he shall go free—but blind. See!" The Duc opened a door, behind which was Lupi, a professional torturer, heating, over a little brazier of charcoal, the long irons with which he expected to burn out Rupert's eyes.

Yoeland almost swooned with horror. "You shall not!" she cried out. "And it be the only way to save him, I will marry even you, scorpion!"

"Nay, dear lady," interrupted Rupert, "mind him not. I beseech you not to do this thing. I had rather be ten thousand times blind than see you wed to him."

"She shall be wed to me, my friend," sneered the Duc, "but do not distress yourself, you shall not see it. Lupi, do your work."

The evil creature entered the room with the red-hot irons held out before him. Yoeland, for all her high heart, closed her eyes and moaned in horror. Even Rupert drew in a mighty breath and the Duc turned away.

Suddenly, there was a sound of voices and many mailed fists beating on the door. It gave way before the onslaught and Rupert's own men entered the room. Lupi they slew without a qualm and awaited their lord's orders about the Duc. Rupert had the room cleared of all but himself and the Duc and there despite his wounds gave him a chance for his life in honorable duel. He was spared the necessity of killing the wicked man, however, by the sudden entrance of the poor half-wit serving-maid whom the Duc had wronged, who stabbed him fearfully in the back. That was the end of a coward and an unscrupulous wretch. It is sometimes given to these humble agents to be the instruments of a divine justice.

Yoeland then returned to Castle de la Roche, weary and sad. I was so glad to see her and Rupert that I cried tears like a baby. Whereupon Rupert took me up in his arms to comfort me,

... and so the feud was ended, for neither Charles nor Rupert dared displeasure My Lady Yoeland as they both loved her too well. . . .

and pulling out that yellow lock of doll's hair, held it up for me to see. "Here," he said, "is your talisman. See how faithfully I have kept it for my little lady."

Yoeland gave one look at the thing, blushed a rosy red, and fled. Rupert sighed after her, and I sighed too, for I did not even know that they loved each other.

(Continued on page 76)

Photograph by Donald Biddle Keyes

The Drama of the Decalogue

Photograph by Edward S. Curtis

Above is Moses with the Children of Israel before
the Red Sea,
on their way to the Promised Land

Left is Theodore Roberts as Moses, the great patriarch and lawgiver, with James
Neill as Aaron

Cecil DeMille
 Makes a Picture of
 The Ten Commandments

Cecil De Mille held a contest recently which offered a thousand dollars for the best original idea for a motion picture. The winner was a suggestion that he film the Ten Commandments. The pictures on these two pages are from the prolog which serves to introduce a modern society drama. To the right is a group of musicians in the Pharaoh's palace

Photographs by Edward S. Curtis

These are the Children of Israel in bondage to Rameses II building the gates of the city which he forced them to erect to his glory

Elinor Glyn on the Technique of the Scenario

By AVERY STRAKOSCH

"NO writer can logically object to having his story hashed about by a scenario department, until he has thoroly learned the movie angle of his business, and has sent in his picture play in the right form."

This is the decisive statement made by Elinor Glyn, who after years of fame as an authoress, and as an intelligent and charming woman, remains apparently unspoiled. Talking with her in her drawing-room at the Hotel Ambassador in New York, where she remained for a few days recently, before going on to Hollywood to direct the picturization of her novel "Three Weeks," I was enchanted to discover a famous personality who admits the necessity of publicity, and who even asks to be granted one boon from it—that she shall be quoted correctly.

Slender of figure in a pastel negligée of silk, copper-red plaits of hair about her ears, gracing her with the medieval quality of Maeterlinck's Monna Vanna, narrow, fascinating eyes of sea green—this is the Elinor Glyn of today. It is truly difficult to fancy three grandchildren awaiting her return to England!

"You know," she continued, choosing her words carefully, the delightful music of a pure English voice slightly accentuated, "the modern author should make it a business to master the technique of scenario writing if he wants to have firm ground to stand upon, in requesting to see his works pictured coherently, as well as artistically. Authors in general have not come to the stark realization that they must practically do away with the colorful beauty of words—a real sacrifice, I grant you.

"One of the best ways that I know for gaining the experience of this new technique, is to place a chair or

Photograph by Hoover Art Studios

Elinor Glyn, the celebrated English authoress, says: "The only perfect pictures I have ever seen in America are: 'The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse,' 'The Kid,' and Douglas Fairbanks in 'The Mark of Zorro'" lounge in front of a blank wall or curtain, and seated there undisturbed, imagine one's story passing by: the figures, the mise en scène, all, across that blank space. You must see in thought your entire story, without the words that you have so carefully used to build up your plot. Put it all before yourself in action. Watch it go by, asking all the time, how is this? Does it lag, or does it gallop? Remember, there is nothing to explain all this to you, the unfolding of your story, but the action.

"The art of writing for the movies is as different from other writing, as is the art of the violinist from that of the pianist. No one would think of asking the master violinist to play the piano with the same degree of skill that he would have in playing his chosen instrument. Would you expect the pianist to take up his fellow musician's fiddle and do himself justice? No. But, if either one spent an equal amount of time in developing the technique for each other's instruments, you might then be justified in asking for satisfying, artistic results.

"And so it is, when writing for the movies. But—!" Here Mrs. Glyn stopped for a moment, an expression of challenge crossing her face. "When a writer has become a master of this technique, he has every right to complain about the absurd mill thru which his original idea is drawn and mangled, changed and distorted, to such an extent that upon production he blinks his eyes in amazement, thinking perhaps some mistake has been made, that it is not really his picture after all!

"Every story has to go thru about seven departments
(Continued on page 78)

After Rembrandt

Albin has gone back to the immortal manner of Rembrandt for the inspiration for this portrait of Richard Barthelmess in the title rôle of "The Fighting Blade"

Photograph by Melbourne Spurr

ALLENE RAY

This young girl's beauty is the rare ash-blond type. Since the Brewster Publications discovered her she has made good in pictures. She is at present with Fox, in "Times Have Changed"

Photograph by Apeda

The Promise Fulfilled

These Newest Stars in the Cinema Sky Have Left
Obscurity Behind

Photograph © by Albin

MARY ASTOR

This exquisitely lovely girl has climbed steadily up the movie ladder in the last two years. She, too, is one of our contest winners, and the last and best news about her is that Famous Players have signed her for three years. Her first picture for them will be "Spring Magic"

FLORINE FINDLAY DE HART

By an imposing list of beauty judges this dainty little sixteen-year-old was acclaimed The American Beauty in our last contest. She is an interpretative dancer and is dancing both at the Rivoli and Rialto motion picture houses

CLARA BOW
(below)

Is the little ingénue flapper who ran away with that great whaling picture, "Down To The Sea In Ships." She has just signed a long-term contract with Preferred Pictures and is out on the Coast to make "Maytime," and "The Boomerang." Brewster Publications gave Clara her start

Photograph © by Lumiere

VIRGINIA BROWNE FAIRE
(below)

Perhaps you remember her in "Omar The Tent Maker," or in "Without Benefit of Clergy"? She has gone back to Universal City to support William Desmond in "The Skyline of Spruce." We found her, too

CORLISS PALMER

This charming daughter of the South has given up, temporarily, her screen career for the less exacting field of editorial and beauty research work, of which, she accomplishes a great measure

Photograph by Ira S. Hill

Photograph by Edwin Bower Hesser

As the proof of the pudding is in the eating, so the proof of success is in the arriving. These beautiful and ambitious girls were every one winners of the contests of the Brewster Publications. We gave them their chance, and they have all made good. We are proud and glad to sponsor their artistic development

*"Fifteen men on a dead man's chest,
Yo-ho-ho, and a bottle o' rum"*

"Captain Applejack" was a great stage success with a long New York run. Now, those of us who missed these pirates on the stage will see them on the screen. The play was colorful and full of thrills and should lend itself beautifully to the silent medium. Fred Niblo is directing the picture for Metro. The girl in these scenes is Enid Bennett

It is almost too bad that the days of buccaneering are no more. There never could be a modern thrill equal to a Henry Morgan or a Captain Kidd episode. Thanks are again due to the movies for reviving (and safely) the picturesque picaroon and his exciting adventures

The Powers Behind the Screen

Who's Who in the Motion Picture Business

By STANTON LEEDS

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of five articles on the history of the business end of the motion picture, and a discussion and description of the truly great personalities who have put the movies on the map

POPULAR interest in the vital structure and framework supporting that incredible bonanza, the motion picture business in America, has multiplied and increased to the proportions of a gigantic national question mark, since the movie magnates two years ago parted the bulrushes and discovered in the bread basket of politics, a Moses to lead them from Egypt. This year a razor-edge has been given that same thirst for information by the government's attempt to discover if there were in the picture industry a combination in restraint of trade.

Reading the Federal Trade Commission's investigations, as published in the daily newspapers, people began to ask: Who are these persons so prominently mentioned? Who are Zukor, Laemmle, Cochrane, Hodkinson, Williams, Rowland, Fox, Powers, Sheehan, Selznick, Goldwyn and so on, and just exactly what do they stand for?

Incredible as it may seem to those close to the tense drama of the pictures' business and politics, they do ask these very questions, just as a year before they demanded to know why on earth Will H. Hays should resign as Postmaster General, even to head the chamber of commerce of motion pictures, even for $150,000 a year.

"Search me!" said the man on the street.

Even those who should be better informed, who see further than the gifts of a bankroll, who look far down the widening avenue of the future where statesmen are bound to adventure, even these shook their heads over Hays, muttering, "How are the mighty fallen!"

For years there has hung over the picture business, now the country's fourth largest, bootlegging excepted, an obscuring fog, thickest of all in its sanctums.

Few have been told what's what, who's who, behind the screen. Most of us, too, are all too inclined to forget that the golden-haired girls, the laughter-coaxing comedians, the stories that entrance us at the cinema, are no more than the advertisements of a gold mine, the heralds of an army, an army with commanders and even a field marshal who foresaw, in part, the mass impact of pictures upon the hearts and minds of a world of people.

Foreseeing it, he attempted its control. The attempt brought disputes and battles. Came the peacemaker, then, but to explain why and how he came, to suggest something of the vision before him, something of that vast and majestic view of an unconquered empire of emotions—to do this convincingly, we must go back a way.

It need not be too long a way. The history of the motion picture starts in the eighties with experiments that led to patents, but it was not till early in this century that the Motion Picture Patents Company and its subsidiary, the General Film Company (comprising Edison, Biograph, Vitagraph, Essanay, Kalem, Melies, Selig and others), began marketing these patents at a profit by selling to theater owners, called exhibitors in the trade, the right to use them along with the manufactured film.

Because it controlled these patents, the General Film Company was the only source of supply. The little arcade owners found themselves soon in a state of feudal dependence. This is shown by court records. Exhibitors, those who dared, protested, and among these last was Adolph Zukor, at that time, ten years ago, the owner of several nickelodeons in the vicinity of New York's 14th Street.

To the great ones in the General Film Company the name meant next to nothing, so, when he called, they kept him waiting. One hour. Two hours. Three! While he waits, observe him.

(Continued on page 81)

Photograph by Apeda

Adolph Zukor, perhaps the most important figure of the cinema today, is compared to that tremendously powerful and diplomatic statesman, Disraeli. He is president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation Company the name meant next to nothing, so, when he called, they kept him waiting. One hour. Two hours. Three! While he waits, observe him.

These are the first pictures to be taken of the beautiful Italian villa that Harold Lloyd has built at an approximate cost of two-hundred thousand dollars

The home, of which the picture on the left is the exterior, is located in the most exclusive section of Los Angeles, the Wilshire district

A corner of the reception hall with its two fine old chairs, its grandfather clock, and its many spindled railing. The woodwork is oak

One of the guest rooms which is done in orchid and a delicate green. The rugs are soft grey velour. A room of comfort, convenience, and charm

Here is the lucky Mr. Lloyd and the fortunate little Miss Davis on their own front lawn

The Lloyd romance seems to us a particularly happy one. They certainly seem satisfied

Hollywood Homes

No. XII

Exclusive views of the beautiful new home Harold Lloyd built for his bride, Mildred Davis

Above is the breakfast-room in coolest green and ivory. It looks out on a little covered portico that faces the tennis court. On the tiled floor of the portico is a famous urn, one of the rare pieces of Capo di Monte in this country. It has been in the Lloyd family since the sixteenth century. Below is the south side of the reception-hall, with a priceless old hand-wrought chest and "The Storm," by Colone, a German artist

Above is one end of the large and luxurious living-room. Its color scheme is rose and grey and Alice blue. Here the Lloyds have collected many art treasures; the pictures are some of them famous originals; the desk is a beautiful piece, hand carved; the table, an antique, and so on. Here too, they are "at home" to their friends. It had to be a big room to hold them all

An Old Story

Told to FAITH SERVICE

Vera Gordon is what she has always been and must always be—herself. She has in incalculable measure the sympathetic, world-enduring, passionate and patient artist-soul. To the left is a character study and below her latest portrait. We shall see her soon again in "Potash and Perlmutter"

Photograph by Bloom, Chicago

I HAVE spent most of my liberally literary career, well, liberal anyway, writing about movie stars, ingénues, vampires, grande dames, ad lib. And I would be hard put to it to remember one who was not possessed of pulchritude of one sort or another, many who were bearing the banners of an abortive youth and almost none who did not bear in some wise a first or second cousinship to the well-known bisque doll, or "Cynthia," or something.

Few, if any, are frankly what they are. Few have struggled long and discouraging years, bringing up a family, doing their own work, constantly going without this or that, constantly frightened by the twin Ogres, Bread and Rent, and still preserving within themselves, intact, the triumphantly unextinguished torch of Art. There are so many ways out of this, when one is young and pretty, so many short-cuts, so many detours.

But Vera Gordon has justified my faith in many things—even stars. Here is one "artist," and she is that, who has traveled and come thru. Oh, it's an old story, I know. All opinions to the contrary, I believe that mute, inglorious Miltons have lived and loved and died . . . still mute and still inglorious. But it ceases to be an old story after one has come thru. Then is the test called acid. Failure is easy to bear for great and humble souls. But Success! Success is another matter. Many a great and humble soul, stoically simple and erect under the most bludgeoning blows of obscurity, has faced about and showed a front of brass, when Success has come.

But Vera Gordon is what she has always been and must always be, Vera Gordon. Herself. She is stout. And she doesn't let it annoy her. She dresses plainly and without any attempt at re-making herself. If you saw her coming out of the door of her apartment, you would rate her as merely another Jewish woman going to market to buy matza for the "fem'ly." That is, if you didn't look
(Continued on page 79)

Photograph by Mishkin

Photograph by Nickolas Muray

JEAN ARTHUR

This young charmer was selected by a prominent group of New York artists in an unpublicised campaign by William Fox for new leading lady material. She is to be featured with John Gilbert in "Cameo Kirby." This, we think, is a remarkable tribute to her ability

The Photographer Takes the Stage

All Photographs by White Studios

Above is Claiborne Foster, the girl of "Two Fellows and a Girl," the newest Cohan success, which runs true to form. That is, it has been persistently rapped by the critics, yet fills its house nightly. Below is a scene from the same play with Claiborne Foster, Ruth Shipley, John Halliday and Allan Dinehart

Above is Lucile La Verne as the Widow Cagle in "Sun-Up," a really remarkable drama put on by the Provincetown Players. So great has been its success that it moves up to Broadway this fall. Classic recommends it

Photograph by

White Studios

Above is Ben Ali Haggin's beautiful living curtain for the new Ziegfeld Follies. He calls it simply, "Lunette"

Left, Elizabeth Brown and her dancing partner, G. G. Sedano, who will contribute one of the most artistic and unusual dances this fall to the vaudeville stage

Photograph by Muray

Photograph by White Studios

Photograph by White Studios

Classic's Monthly Department of the Theater

Left is Martha Bryan Allen in "The Devil's Disciple" and right, by way of contrast, is Elsie May in "The Passing Show of 1923"

MUSIC cue for the love scenes between Flavia and Rassendyl in "Rupert of Hentzau": "I Flavia Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond.

"Anyhow," said our peerless pal and critic at the above mentioned movie, "Elaine Hammerstein's interpretation of the Queen is consistent, if nothing else."

"Yes," we answered—and you'll die laughing—"the Flavia lasts."

At the climax of the most passionate tête-à-tête between the queen and Rassendyl, a subtitle remarked: "What is life without the one you love?"

"You said it," intensely muttered one-of-those-for-whom-the-movies-are-made. No doubt these grown-up eleven-year-olds have run right down thru history. "Give me liberty or give me—" thundered Patrick Henry in 1775.

"Th'ow 'at gemmun a fish, suh!" remarked one of the members of the revolutionary convention.

By the way, dont deny yourself—if you are that sort of person—the pleasure of seeing the first part of "Lawful Larceny."

It's Naldi . . . but it's nice!

In the New York Tribune, Harriette Underhill speaks of Baby Peggy as being four years old. On the same day, Quinn Martin, in the New York World, discloses her age as six.

And yet both of them, we'd bet, would hop on some poor director if he made the slight error of having an armored tank in the Battle of Hastings.

They agree, however, that Baby Peggy is the most talented child actress on the screen. The polite question is raised whether Baby Peggy, with her remarkable intelligence, is eligible to the child motion picture actress class. We know of others, in their early twenties and thirties. . . .

Speaking of Things That Have To Be, such as the method in which a movie ingénue enters her father's Wall Street office, why are the organists in the movie theaters permitted a constant ego-debauch of what, we suppose, they imagine is improvisation? With the innumerable modern improvements a four-manual organ carries, all these doctors of music seem to be able to produce is detached grunts and squeals, disassociated snatches and fragments in laceratingly sudden crescendos and the Big Bertha-like rumblings of the sixty-four-foot diapasons.

Such performance on the noblest of instruments permeated our troubled spirit at "Trilby," and Heaven knows "Trilby" was irritating enough. And now we have two standards to judge a bad movie by. A—one that puts us to sleep and B—one that makes us conscious of the organ. If something is not done to these organists, we are going to join the Kuklux Klan and have every miscreant chained to a steam calliope with riveting, blasting and subway express attachments, and place them in vaulted cells with a triple echo.

As a matter of fact, there probably is heavy rivalry between the musical directors in the Ritzy movie houses and the organists. "You go your way," says the organist to the conductor, "and I'll go mine."

Whereupon the full orchestra and the complete organ give a joint rendition of Tschaikowsky's "1812" Overture.

Fantasia in "The Brass Bottle": Arabian soldiers in Japanese medieval armor rowing out to sea in an Alaskan Indian war-canoe.

Which evidently means that to Maurice Tourneur a spade is not only a spade but a combination pogo-stick, beach umbrella and mashie-niblick, as you please.

And in "The Purple Highway," Madge Kennedy points to a print tacked upon her attic wall. She has wistfully labeled the picture her "Dream Ship." But the picture is Maxfield Parrish's reasonably familiar one of an evil crew of Moorish pirates sailing with the wind, hell-bent for trouble.

Of course you cant see that in the movie, so we take it our carping is out of order.

Or perhaps it's a welsh rarebit dream ship.

Pola Negri, on dit, has forsaken Charlie Chaplin to roll those roly-boly eyes of hers at Bill Tilden, the tennis chap. Here is a chance for some bright little girl or boy to rise and remark that tennis is a love game that keeps the players in the courts most of the time.

(Continued on page 96)

The Celluloid Critic

Laurence Reid Reviews the Latest Photoplays

WITH the fall promising an unusually heavy crop of good pictures—so good in fact that the producers must needs lease several Broadway legitimate theaters to give them extended runs, along comes Paramount and steals a march on the field. They have beaten the gun—to use an expression of cinder-path circles—with “Hollywood” which comes as the real saving grace of a summer burdened with disappointing attractions. Merely a handful have scored and these will not reach the open country until the leaves have turned a golden russet.

This “Hollywood” is at once the most interesting and novel excursion into Picture Land that has ever raced across a screen. True, Rupert Hughes used a similar idea in “Souls for Sale,” but where he faltered was in treating his subject without drawing upon his imagination. He followed conventional lines in conceiving a story which presented a girl reaching stardom in the movies only after she had encountered the customary pitfalls. The manner in which she was thrust into pictures carried a familiar theatrical touch, and the introduction of various celebrities of the silversheet bordered upon circus publicity.

In other words they composed a separate unit—a body of stars who had nothing in common with the development of the story. Furthermore the author exposed the tricks of the profession—thus destroying the illusion. His was an excursion into a fictional Hollywood. And one could not accept it as real.

Tom Geraghty and Frank Condon, on the other hand, have painted a genuine Hollywood—the studio center serving as a background for the telling of a semi-whimsical, semi-wistful story of a screen-struck girl who, because of the adulation of her small-town villagers, thought herself destined for the heights of stardom. How deftly drawn is this character may be appreciated in the modest assumption of greatness. She thinks she is beautiful and talented—yet there is nothing of a superiority complex about her. Where the authors introduce a real novel touch is in having her fail where her plain relatives have no trouble at all in posing before the camera.

You can imagine the humorous possibilities of such a plot—you can imagine the

Mr. Reid selects “Hollywood,” directed by the man who was responsible for “The Covered Wagon,” James Cruze, as the best photoplay of the month. He says, “‘Hollywood’ is the most interesting and novel excursion into Picture Land that has ever raced across a screen” unlimited opportunities to emphasize all the color, background and detail of studio life. It is at once humorous and tragic, wistful and quaint.

James Cruze, whose good-luck star is following him persistently (he jumped right into "Hollywood" after "The Covered Wagon"), has brought out all its spirit, vitality, charm and humor. He has deftly balanced each element so that it progresses evenly without once adding a single false scene. It is another triumph for him—but the major honors go to the authors for conceiving a genuinely novel play. One may appreciate that it is a well-constructed story in the manner which the girl's struggle for recognition is visualized from the day that she looks on enraptured at a movie in a typical picture theater back home—to the day when she realizes that she has failed. Each effort she makes to get into the circle of Fortune's Darlings is drawn with all its emphasis. There is a reason for everything and everything is in place.

The girl goes to Hollywood because her quaint grandfather must have a healthy climate. One indication of rhyme and reason. The old man is a type and is quickly chosen, tho he didn't seek the job. While we are mentioning these characters, let us state that they appear the more genuine because Cruze selected them from stock—thus they appear to be everyday folks. Hope Drown plays the girl with wistful charm and a depth of understanding, while Luke Cosgrave is another Frank Bacon as the quaint grandpa. He undergoes a complete metamorphosis in Hollywood and really provides a most colorful and amusing characterization.

So the girl makes the rounds of the studios and naturally encounters one star after another. You will see there is even a reason for their introduction without exploiting their fame to catch the shekels at the box-office. Directors, casting directors, and studio managers give her the cold shoulder. And the details which show her adventures on the lots are accurate and interesting. A large assortment of close-ups are given of Meighan, Doug, Mary, the De Milles, Will Rogers, Bill Hart, George Fawcett, Hope Hampton, Ben Turpin—and approximately thirty others—including Fatty Arbuckle, whose moment is brief as the casting window is closed in his face.

The biggest mirthful moment is the result of a dream visualized by the girl's rural lover as he tosses in a Pullman on his way to Hollywood. He fancies her being pursued by sheiks 'n' everything. And in every episode as long as the dream continues, there is Laurence Wheat in his B. V. D.'s shaving himself. He may be on a busy corner of Los Angeles or a member of a wild orgy in some Arabian palace. But is always shaving. A picturesque, erotic dream which touches the high spots of spectacular appeal, adventure and humor.

Eventually all the girl's relatives get into the movies. Even the rural swain has no difficulty in signing a contract. The conclusion shows them happily married in one of the colossal mansions which are presided over by successful stars. Twin babies are their reward. Even they are selected for small bits. And the bird is not forgotten. He supplies atmosphere. Thus they all get into the movies except the girl. And her failure rings true.

A picture which serves as rich and colorful entertainment—packed with humor and pathos—a picture which also serves in stopping screen-struck girls from making the pilgrimage to Hollywood, thinking that the fortunes of the Make-Believe world are theirs for the asking. Such fine story interest, such excellent details—such stars in one picture make it as conspicuous in its field as the Leviathan is upon the ocean. The real Hollywood at last.

UNIVERSAL'S "Merry-Go-Round" possesses sentiment and charm and there is at times a definite poignancy about it which brings a wistful appeal. We wonder what Stroheim would have made of it had he been allowed to follow it thru to a conclusion. His successor, Rupert Julian, has brought out some sparkling bits—and at the same time he allows himself to be swallowed up in conventional grooves.

The tale—really a screen version of "Old Heidelberg"—presents a sentimental heartache of a pathetic organ-grinder who transforms a playboy into a gentleman who respects a young girl's innocence. The scene is Vienna's Coney Island—Der Prater, and as she grinds out the tunes to the stern commands of the relentless concessionaire, well played by George Seigmann, there comes into her life a gay lieutenant bedecked in a brilliant Austrian uniform. There is some counter-conflict when he is married to a lady of royalty, but his charter is born upon the battle-field. And he returns home after the convenient death of his wife to lift the girl from drudgery.

Above: Lew Cody and Marjorie Daw in "Rupert of Hentzau." Below: Jackie Coogan in "Circus Days." Left: Madge Kennedy in "The Purple Highway." Right: Shirley Mason in "The Eleventh Hour"

The important factors of this picture's entertainment are the backgrounds, atmosphere and the compelling performance by Mary Philbin, who approaches Lillian Gish in her poignant moments.

WE find "Circus Days" (First National) an ideal story for Jackie Coogan's expression, since it places him against a background of tan-bark and big tops. No tale of circus life has ever failed to hold the spectator's attention—since its chief quality—heart interest—is exposed in every little detail. Where this story falters is in its planting of Jackie as the much-abused child in a brutal uncle's home. It is easy to see that he will eventually run away when the circus comes to town. The brightest moments are when he doubles for a tiny bareback rider—performing some clownish stunts modeled after an act in the present Ringling show. The pathos is exaggerated, thus destroying the illusion of reality. And Jackie's emotional gifts are suppressed to a great extent. A frail story, bolstered up with some circus incident—which will interest after a fashion.

IF we must have pictures of mythical kingdoms, let us at least have them after the manner of Anthony Hope's adventurous yarns, "The Prisoner of Zenda," and "Rupert of Hentzau." The latter, produced under the auspices of Selznick, is a sequel to the other—and presents the wily Rupert and his gift at intrigue in a conventional sort of way. There is nothing about the opus to stimulate the imagination—the story being so ancient and obvious. But at least it is done ever so much better than the volume of mythical kingdom stuff which reaches the screen.

Rex Ingram was missed in the production of the Selznick number. While it has been directed so that its court flavor is dominant, it lacks the vitality of "The Prisoner of Zenda." Furthermore, it does not boast such a good cast. "Zenda" made Navarro. As Rupert he suggested the wily, unscrupulous nobleman much as Hope painted him. Lew Cody is good in the rôle, but fails to color it with the fascinating deviltries. Lewis Stone, also in "Zenda," is much better suited for the part of the king than Bert Lytell who never realizes a real kingly bearing and dignity. Elaine Hammerstein gives a colorless performance of the queen, acting—as she has always acted—without any inspiration or enthusiasm.

IT looks encouraging to see Fox turning toward the artistic heights. Not that its "Soft Boiled" is destined for a place in the sun, but that it indicates this company has packed up its wild, melodramatic troubles in its old kit bag and has ceased making pictures for the Toms, Dicks and Harrys of a moron world. The above-mentioned piece takes Tom Mix out of his chaps and places him in store clothes to lead a dizzy pace in a farce-comedy. The idea is brittle, revolving as it does around an eccentric uncle's will, a clause of which compels the heir (Mix) to curb his temper for thirty days or lose his inheritance. Simply a variation of the "Brewster's Millions" formula. There is ample room for the star to attempt some comic high jinks—at which he is fairly successful. But the picture repeats itself too often—and there is too much of Tom Wilson in blackface. The conclusion brings the long-awaited release of temper when Mix foils the bad man with rights and lefts à la Dempsey. The number stops several times to introduce some unimportant hokum, but with all its faults, it is Tom Mix's best in a long time.

(Continued on page 97)

Above: Anton Waverka in "Merry-Go-Round." Below: Mae Murray and Monte Blue in "The French Doll." Right: Andrée Lafayette in "Trilby"

Above: Barbara La Marr and Ernest Torrence in Maurice Tourneur's fantasy, "The Brass Bottle." Below: Tom Mix in "Soft Boiled"

Photograph by Ed. E. Morrison

The Rime of the Ancient Ham

By A. H. GIEBLER

After the manner of Samuel Taylor Coleridge, with the hope that the imitation, however crude, will give an affirmative answer to

Thomas Gray's highly rhetorical question: "Can flattery soothe the dull cold ear of death?" and thus keep Sam from turning in his grave

A Movie Fan, about to ooze himself into a Picture Dump, is estopped by an aged barn-stormer

It is an ancient Thespian,
And he stoppeth a Bozo,
Who, coin in hand, would fain attend
A moving-picture show.

The Ham press-agenteth himself somewhat

No rambunctious termagant, as some
I moved to laughter, tears;
Nor passion tore to shredded rags
To split the groundlings' ears.

The Fan thinketh he's being pan-handled

The Fan, impatient, craned his neck.
He took a look inside,
Saw Usherettes in pantalettes,
"Say! Have a heart!" he cried.

And runneth on in the same strain

I reflected Nature's every mood
With utmost care and quiddity;
Erred not in sad or jocund speech
To e'er o'erstep her modesty.

And adviseth the Ham to take the local constabulary into his confidence

"There was a time, a gladsome time——"
"Aw! Can the chatter, Pop!
They're showing 'Fruits of Sin' tonight.
Go tell it to a Cop!"

This statement is open to question. (All actors talk that way, however)

I played Broadway in every town,
'Twas always S. R. O.
I stood 'em up and packed 'em in,
At each and every show.

The Fan waxeth sore and is about to tap the old guy on the conk

He holds him with a skinny hand,
"There was a time," quoth he.
"Lay off! Lay off!" The Fan was wroth.
Eftsoon his mitt dropt he.

The Fan heareth the jazz and his goat slippeth its tether

I never worked a one-night stand,
Tank circuits left alone——"
The Movie Fan here beat his breast,
For he heard the saxophone.

But the Ham putteth the hypnotic eye on him and he is constrained to listen

He holds him with a glittering eye.
The Fan, he lit a pill,
And listens like a husband meek.
The Old Bird hath his will.

The Ham comforteth him

"Why listeneth thou? That sound but tells
Of a comedy on the screen.
My woeful tale's more sad by far,
Than comic thou'st ever seen.

The Ham admitteth he hath seen better days

"I am a veteran of the stage,
To this sad state become.
To ribald ones with vulgar minds
I'm nothing but a Bum!

See paragraph above but two

The ghost walked regular every week,
My salary, Broadway top.
Thus Fortune smiled on me for years,
And then she took a flop!

And starts a monolog about them days that was but ain't no more

But years the mimic boards
I trod.
Homage was mine, and oft
Crowned heads have melted to applause
At Nature's mirror held aloft.

The Ham complaineth bitterly about the picture pestilence

And remarketh on the easy prices of the early oleons

The cursed pictures hit the land,
And every vacant store,
With lurid pictures was bedecked,
And signs above the door.

With canny phrase and puny price,
They lured the yokels in.
Any Jack could take his Jane,
For one dime, however thin.

By gollyes, it didn't look as if the leaping flutypes were going to get anywhere at first, did it?

At first I smiled. Some called them Art!
Ye Gods on high! I laughed!
The actor's art is in his speech.
Could words be photographed?

Dopeth out a gang to cop out some of the easy pickings

That night did fond hope fill my breast,
This reptile I would woo,
And pluck the jewel from its head.
I dreamed of savory stew.

He neglected to run the cards

But as time flew the dumb things grew
To a gargantuan size.
But still I laughed and did not see
The writing in the skies.

Trieth to crash the studio gates, but gets the gate himself

I haunted then the movie lots.
Ah, what a blow to pride!
To cool my heels in anterooms,
But seldom get inside!

They used to show 'em in tents, too. Remember?

There came a time, however, when
About, about on every hand,
A raucous ballyhoo disturbed
Street, Avenue and Strand.

Discovereth that he is no Shelk

When once or twice they looked me o'er,
Alas, my hair was thin;
I did not sport a bulldog jaw,
No cleft was in my chin!

The Movies always did spend a lotta jack on juice

One walked abroad, and everywhere,
There flamed and gleamed at night,
The symbols of the Cinemas,
In red and green and white.

And that a tall hold on technique getteth him nowhere

It mattered not that I did know
My book of drama thru.
They wanted Youth, but callow Youth,
And naught but Youth would do!

'S a fact, the Movies hit the legitimate an awful wallop long about that time

The mushroom grew and grew and grew
Till temples of my art,
Went dark and silent as the tomb,
Where I did strut my part.

He rumeth on about his hard luck

There passed a weary time. My throat
Knew only water as a drink.
My purse was empty of all sound
Where once fat coins did clink.

Old 20% was getting his!

I sought my Agent's house in vain,
He spoke in accents sad:
'There's nothing doing in our line,
The world's gone movie mad.'

CASTING DEPT.

His stomach thinketh his throat is cut

From lack of food I grew so gaunt,
My palsied hands did twitch.
If stomach or if spine complained,
I could not tell the which.

The Ham helpeth the four-a-day people put the pictures on the pan

Were others too, who felt the screw,
Vaudeville, once despised,
Its votaries became my brothers.
And as we fraternized,
We sent a pæan of hate aloft.
We damned the movies' eyes!

He taketh an awful slam at the early lens like

The while jommillers, buffoons, clowns,
Golden guerdons earned.
(Continued on page 88)

Concludeth that Bill said a wise mouthful

Bethought me then of Shakespeare's line,
Wherein the Great Bard said,
'The toad, tho venomous, despised,
Hath a jewel in his head.'

Blow Your Own Horn

By

DOROTHY
DONNELL

But it was almost impossible to see Jack . . . so wholly was he surrounded by fair faces, marcelled heads, and an aroma compounded of the most expensive scents of Araby

THE decks of the steamer, warping majestically up the harbor, were packed with olive-drab heroes who had just finished their job of making the world safe for democracy. Sirens and whistles blew piercing blasts of welcome from either shore; the bronze goddess of Liberty bestowed a metallic smile of approval upon them as they sailed past her; and all over the broad land the mayors of a hundred cities worked feverishly upon Addresses of Welcome.

Somewhat apart from his fellows stood a young man with a square chin and a spunky grin that tried to deny the wistfulness in his very blue-blue eyes. Seven million people in Manhattan—and not one of them would be glad to see him back! He wished humorously that he had elected to return by way of Boston where there would have been only two million and a half people who wouldn't have been glad to see him! The sole relative Jack Dunbar had in the world was a small brother whom he had parked on a farm in the Middle West when a gentleman by the name of Wilhelm had started something he couldn't finish several years before. There was not even a mayor to shed oratorical tears over him, for he was a rolling stone, and in his pockets at this moment jingled not a particle of moss.

"If I'm going to keep up the habit of eating I've got into," Jack reflected, "I've got to get a job, and I have a sneaking notion that the guys that heroically gave their voices for their country yelling 'hooray!' when we marched away are going to get writer's cramp when it comes to putting us on their pay-rolls now!"

The mountain ranges of sky-scrapers gave way to docks and huge electric signs advertising the virtues of pills, tires and breakfast foods, the tugs grunted and panted as they nosed their charge into dock and one thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine relatives and friends surged forward crying: "George!" "Peter!" and "Bill!" The two thousandth passenger delayed until the others were all disembarked, then sauntered down the gang-plank, hands jammed into pockets, lips puckered into a gallant whistle which changed to a yelp of surprise as a small figure catapulted itself from the crowd upon him.

"Buddy! Why say—and I thought you were in Ohio growing up into presidential timber!"

"I was but I ain't," Buddy replied succinctly, gazing at his soldier brother with worshipful eyes, "I stowed on a freight when you wrote you was comin'. Gee! I was scared I was going to miss meeting you—the brakeman called a cop to jüg me when the freight got in this mornin'!"

"How come you're down here then?" Jack demanded, trying to sound gruff and elder brotherly, and failing shamelessly.

"Oh," said Buddy cheerily, "I jollied the cop into bringing me down on his motor-cycle!"

They were afraid of emotion, and veered man-wise from its dangerous vicinity. Buddy proving to have seven dollars in his pocket they discussed their joint future over a sumptuous banquet of pancakes and doughnuts in a near-by quick lunch. Buddy stated emphatically that he was not going back to the farm. "Mrs. Smedley made bully pies," he admitted, "but she was always after me to wash, and besides when a feller is born an orphan like me he'd better stick to his brother, see?"

When Jack glimpsed the bill for the pancakes he decided that the city was no place for them, an opinion that a day's search for a job confirmed. At the close of the afternoon he exchanged his soldier uniform for a suit of hand-me-downs at the Misfit Clothing Store of one Abraham Levy. "I guess we hit for the tall grass, kid. I cant do much of anything but I cant do it better in the country than in the city. Let's go!"

The following afternoon found them trudging along a road in upper Westchester where fate gave them the cue to turn the corner immediately after Mr. Small, multimillionaire, with a prejudice against chauffeurs whirled the crank of his imported car for the fifteenth fruitless time, accompanying the operation with lurid language which even to one accustomed to the conversation of drill sergeants was a revelation.

"I sent my daughter out of earshot," Mr. Small explained as Jack and Buddy paused entranced to harken, "this is the fifth time this afternoon she has had to take a walk in the fields while I got this contraption of the devil started. When I get home I shall buy a push cart and do my traveling in that hereafter—"

"Let me look at it," Jack suggested. "I'm a bit of a tinkerer. I can make most anything go, even an army mule."

With a kind of awe the millionaire watched while he tightened a bolt here, adjusted a plug

BLOW YOUR HORN

Fictionized by permission from the F. B. O. release of the screen adaptation by Rex Taylor of the Owen Davis story. Directed by James Wesley Horne. The cast:

Jack Dunbar.....	Warner Baxter
Nicholas Small.....	Ralph Lewis
Ann Small.....	Ann Perdue
Augustus Jolyon.....	Eugenie Acker
Dinsmore Bevan.....	William H. Turner
Gillen Jolyon.....	Ernest C. Warde
"Buddy" Dunbar.....	John Fox, Jr.
Julia Yates.....	Mary Jane Sanderson
Mrs. Jolyon.....	Eugenie Forde
Mrs. Gilroy Yates.....	Dell Boone
Percy Yates.....	Billy Osborne
Timothy Cole.....	Stanhope Wheatcroft

there, and touched the starter. A satisfying roar from the engine was the result and Mr. Small's eyes brightened. "All I could make her do was hicough like a damned topper," he fretted, "young man, you've saved my life. My doctor tells me I mustn't get angry. You're a wonder, you're—"

"It wasn't anything," said Jack modestly, shaking his head at the proffered bill, "anybody could have told you what to do."

Mr. Small returned the bill to his pocket reluctantly. "Then, if you wont let me repay you with money, young man," he said, "here is a million dollars' worth of advice. Never tell people someone else is as good as you are, never be modest. Brag! Bluff! Blow your own horn, young man!"

Jack laughed. "It's no use trying to make people think you're something you're not," he declared, "you cant get away with it."

Mr. Small had been watching him closely, now as a man overcome by his own humor he burst into immoderate laughter from which words trickled: "—be a good joke—that old snob Jolyon! And Mrs. Yates would hurl Julia at your head—and Dinsmore Bevan, ha, ha, ha!" Gradually he became more coherent: "Say, I like to prove my theories and I can afford to do as I like. I'll give you one hundred dollars to impersonate a millionaire at a house-party I'm on my way to now."

Here is a part of the amazing house-party: the rich Mr. Small and his daughter Ann, the finicky financier, Bevan, the ambitious (unduly) widow, Mrs. Yates Rapidly he unfolded his scheme which included a mythical Rolls-Royce supposedly wrecked, forcing Jack and Buddy to don borrowed clothes, with a Texas oil well in the background—to explain, Jack judged cynically, any solecisms of speech or ignorance of the proper fork for the fish course.

He had already opened his mouth to disclaim any interest in the preposterous plan, but no words came. Lips still ajar, he was gazing beyond the baldish head of the whimsical millionaire at a vision in cool summer colors who had just appeared strolling thru the grove. "Is it safe to come now, Papa?" asked the Vision, smiling cherry-lipped, "a few little damns wont matter."

Jack bowed, gracefully from the hips as he had seen the Frenchmen bow, and turned to Mr. Small whose pursy figure seemed surrounded with a glow of reflected radiance. "I agree to your proposition—on one condition," he said suavely, "and that is that the scheme be confidential for one week, no matter what occurs."

"You have my word for it!" the millionaire chuckled.

"Then," Jack deftly slipped a card into the other's hand, "wont you begin by introducing me to your daughter? And explain how my car was wrecked so that my brother and I are forced to make such a poor appearance."

The chuckle exploded. Mr. Small's expression as he complied with Jack's request was dubious like that of a man who doesn't quite see the point of a joke. And when, a little later, he stood by and watched the members of the Jolyon's house-party vie with one another to make the handsome young Texas oil magnate welcome, his dubiousness was that of a man who has walked confidently off an unsuspected step in the dark.

"Isn't Mr. Dunbar a dear?" gushed Mrs. Yates, a stout widow with a cattish tongue, kittenish ways, and a daughter of more than marriageable age, as she glanced across the table at dinner, "wasn't it fortunate Mr. Bevan is the same size and could lend him clothes and my little Percy's things just fit that sweet child Buddy! What a romantic chance that brought him to us here—it is almost enough to make one believe in Fate isn't it, Mr. Small?"

Across the silver centerpiece her neighbor watched the debonair figure of his creation dividing his smiles between unattractive Julia Yates and his own daughter, Ann, while on the other side of Ann, quite isolated by an inattentive, charming bare shoulder, Augustus Jolyon, the son of the host, partook dreamily and in solitude of his alligator pear salad. Augustus had neither parlor graces nor shekels, but he did possess ancestors. His blood was blue, which no doubt accounted for the bleak pallor of his complexion, and his features were all inherited from a long line of forebears which was probably the reason for their being so curiously assorted. It was a matter of understanding between Ann's father and Augustus' parents that their children should marry, and Ann had been apparently resigned if not enthusiastic when they started out for the house-party.

Mr. Small had always rather fancied himself as a practical joker, but now he began to wonder whether he had not been an extremely impractical one. If only he had not given that idiotic promise of one week's silence! He would see that young upstart after dinner and put him in his place.

But it was almost impossible to see Jack after dinner when the party had returned to the drawing-room, so wholly was he surrounded by fair faces, marcelled heads and an aroma compounded of the most expensive scents of Araby. Fuming inwardly, Mr. Small watched Mrs. Yates coo over him, watched the slightly shop-worn Julia ply him with flattery, watched his own daughter, Ann, actually blush in a Mid-Victorian manner at something the shameless young scoundrel whispered to her—Ann who read Shaw and Wells and was wont to discuss sex inhibitions and birth control with her young men friends!

Mr. Small cast a glance about for Augustus who, as prospective hus-

Bevan shook his head: "Not practical, my boy! Sorry but I am not interested in portable Niagaras. Why dont you try our friend from Texas?"

Percy and Buddy doing their share toward making the house-party even more interesting band, should by right be a prey to the green-eyed monster, but that pallid youth had cornered Dinsmore Bevan and was explaining his invention of a device for the wireless transmission of power to the skeptical financier. ". . . millions in it!" he was saying, "think of it, the power of a Niagara in your own home by pressing a button!"

Bevan shook his head. "Not practical, my boy!" his tone patted Augustus indulgently on the head, "sorry, but I'm not interested in portable Niagaras. Why dont you try our friend from Texas?" His gesture told Augustus to be a good boy and run away and play, but the young inventor took his derisive suggestion seriously. A gleam of hope came into the pale, near-sighted eyes he had inherited from some maternal uncle, he set his great-grandfather's rather weak chin determinedly and a moment later had Jack in another corner, listening to his tale.

Mr. Small sought his host. "Jolyon," said he, "have you spoken to your boy about the matter we discussed the other day? What did he say?"

Mr. Jolyon shrugged his shoulders. "To be quite frank," he admitted, "Augustus did not take to the idea just at first. His remark was, as I remember, something to the effect that he didn't want any wife because she would be sure to get hair pins into his transmitter, and powder onto his batteries, but I remindred him that marriage was a family custom of ours, and he finally yielded."

"As a wooer," said Mr. Small dryly, "Augustus is not exactly ardent. However I cannot say that Ann is precisely sentimental herself, altho she has agreed to my wishes. I think under the circumstances," his glance wandered toward Jack, "we would be wise to announce the engagement at once."

Ann Small smiled a trifle grimly into Augustus' downcast face as they took their places side by side. "It hurts me as badly as it does you, Gus!" she said, "still, dont you think it would be the sporty thing to register pleasure instead of looking as if the body was still in the next room?"

Jack Dunbar was in the act of signing his name when the announcement of the engagement was made. The result was a large, heart-broken blot but he pressed Augustus' hand warmly in congratulation. "May I be the first," he said, "to wish my partner happiness."

"Partner," cried Small and Jolyon in chorus, while Ann brightened visibly.

"Why, yes," Jack explained, "Augustus has told me of his invention and I think with my knowledge of wireless we can make a big thing of it. He has offered me a half-interest, and Mr. Bevan here has just purchased my interest for fifty thousand dollars," and

(Continued on page 93)

Flashes From the Eastern Stars

Love," he journeyed down Long Island and shot one of the biggest mob scenes ever filmed. The "extras" were a flock of sixty thousand ducks!

Lew Cody will be seen in a play on Broadway soon, to be called "The Panama Kid." At present he is on the Goldwyn lot making "Law Against Law."

RODOLPH VALENTINO has signed a long-term contract with Ritz Carlton Pictures. After his return from Europe where he and his wife are vacationing and at the close of his Famous Players contract (February, 1924) he will start to work. He is thrice welcome back. The screen needs this picturesque personality. He wants Sabatini's "The Sea Hawk" for his first picture, but Richard Rowland of First National has already bought the screen rights. . . .

Lynn Fontanne, known for her work in the rôle of Dulcy, is now at work in the New York studios of Distinctive Pictures Corporation in a film entitled "Second Youth." She plays opposite her husband, Alfred Lunt. She opened on the stage in "In Love With Love."

Having completed "The Fighting Blade," Richard Barthelmess will do as his next picture the celebrated novel "Wild Apples." After six months' research work, Inspiration Pictures have decided that Mr. Barthelmess will bring to the screen Nathan Hale, portraying the character of the American patriot

The Metro Picture Corporation announces that after several months of negotiation it has succeeded in signing Laurette Taylor to star in picturizations of two of her stage vehicles, "Happiness," and "One Night in Rome," both written by J. Hartley Manners. Miss Taylor passed all photographic tests in "Peg O' My Heart."

Photograph by P. Aders, Paris

Top of the page: Anna Q. Nilsson sacrifices her beautiful hair for the sake of "Ponjola," while Donald Crisp looks on. Above: Otto Krueger and Gustave von Seiffertitz, noted character actor in "Under the Red Robe." Left: Raquel Meller, a Spanish beauty imported by the Selwyns to head a Continental type of Revue. Below: The newest Follies deserter, Mary Eaton, learning about the movies from Sam Wood who will direct her in "His Children's Children"

Photograph from Paramount Pictures

Lionel Barrymore and Irene Fenwick will appear on Broadway this fall, it is understood, in a new play under the management of David Belasco. Broadway rumors have it that the piece is being put into shape by Achmed Abdullah.

Elmer Clifton likes to do things on a large scale. During the filming of "Six Cylinder who died in the cause of liberty. This was decided upon as a result of many requests to see this favorite star in the rôle of the revolutionary hero.

The Editor Offers the Latest News of Stage and Screen

Glenn Hunter has started work on his first picture for Paramount, "West of the Water Tower," an adaptation of the anonymous novel which is now having a sensational sale.

Jane Harvey, for many years the outstanding player of mother rôles in moving pictures, today mothers guests at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York City, where she has been working as a floor clerk since her retirement from the screen three years ago. Until her retirement Mrs. Harvey was a familiar figure in pictures, having played mother parts to such moving-picture stars as Chaplin, Owen Moore, Shirley Mason, Petrova, Nance O'Neill and Pearl White.

Photograph by Abbe

The first of J. Stuart Blackton Productions to be released by Vitagraph is "On the Banks of the Wabash," a story inspired by the famous song classic written by Paul Dresser.

Editing of "The Midnight Alarm," David Smith's magnificent fire thriller, is being finished at the Vitagraph studios in Brooklyn. This picture has a special cast headed by Percy Marmont, Alice Calhoun and Cullen Landis.

(Continued on page 89)

(Fifty-seven)

Photograph by White Studios

Above: Regina Wallace who is to play opposite McKay Morris in Mary Roberts Rinehart's "The Breaking Point" early this fall. Left: Lillian Gish and Henry King and the oldest actress in Italy on location before Marion Crawford's villa overlooking the Bay of Naples. Below: A study in contrasts—the first and smallest steamboat, Clermont, and the last and greatest, Leviathan. The replica of the Clermont was used in "Little Old New York"

Photograph by International News Reel

On The Seven Hills of Rome

Authentic Backgrounds for "The White Sister"

Above is the Villa Albani, Rome, which was built in the fourteenth century by Cardinal Albani (later elected Pope). It is now owned by Prince Torlonia, who generously permitted its use for "The White Sister," the Marion Crawford story which Inspiration Pictures made in Italy with Lillian Gish. It is considered one of the greatest beauty spots in Europe. Right is a convent near Porto San Giovanni, Rome, where many of the exciting incidents of "The White Sister" were shot

A palazzo near Rome, above " . . . the turgid Tiber's crimson flow. . . . "

Vespers

*"The Saints will aid if men will call:
For the blue sky bends over all."—COLERIDGE.*

The pictures on these two pages are the beautiful and authentic backgrounds for "The White Sister." The entire picture was shot in Italy; in Rome and Naples for the most part, which means that this film will be heavy laden with the "fatal beauty of Italy." "See Naples—and die" is the immortal phrase of that dream city. We cannot afford to miss this picture. The scene above is Lillian Gish on the balcony of the Villa d'Este, Tivoli

All Photographs by Abbe

Classic Considerers—

ROBERT J. FLAHERTY
F. R. G. S.

Because he is the only person who ever made a successful movie without hero, heroine, villain, or plot. With "Nanook of the North" he put the Esquimo on Broadway and familiarized the entire country with his life and habits. Adventurer, scholar, explorer, he had no idea of expressing himself thru the camera until he was marooned for a year and a half on arctic ice. Because Famous Players have financed an expedition to the South Seas so that he may do for the tropic South what he has done for the frigid North

Photograph © by Lumière

Photograph by Pach Brothers

Photograph by Kendall Evans

GILDA GREY

Because she is absolutely unique in her field—the champion shimmier of the world. Because she has a tremendous following both in "The Follies" and at "The Rendezvous" where she dances—that is—shakes a wicked anatomy to the gustatory delight of audience and patron. Because she has defied anyone to produce a more perfect pair of legs than her own—and to date, nobody has

HARRISON FISHER
(above)

Because there is not a young girl the length or breadth of the United States who is not familiar with his drawings, and doesn't want to look like them. Because he is one of our most prominent and successful illustrators. Because he is handsome, clever, successful, not too young, a bachelor, an artist and a rare good fellow besides

A Camera Study

George Walsh has forsaken athletics for æsthetics. In his new picture for Goldwyn, "The Magic Skin," he is cast as a dreamer and a poet starving in his garret. It is said that George actually starved himself for weeks before this picture so that he might acquire that yearning, æsthetic look. We find this poetic glamour becoming and we marvel anew at the versatility of these movie stars. The little girl on the stairs gazing so admiringly upward, is Bessie Love, another many faceted star

The Hollywood

Transcribed by

Above, Mary and Doug and Theda—Pickford, Fairbanks and Bara. Right is Claire Windsor in a new rôle, getting ready for Hallowe'en. Below is Netta Westcott (center), an English beauty, over here to adorn our films. Olga Printzlau and Eve Unsell of Preferred Pictures are on either side

BEFORE I ever write again about a happy Hollywood bride, I am going to make her bring her husband by the hand and file him for reference.

All of which anguished cry arises from the case of Renee Adoree. It appears that while we were all dripping fond and happy tears over her domestic bliss, she was burning midnight oil in the manufacture of a burning suit for divorce. And the suit for divorce was filed the other day. In it she accused her hubby, Tom Moore, of cruelty. She said he accused her of having a "past"; of calling her mean names. So there's another young illusion gone.

The lovely Renee can doubtless find some consolation in the fact that she has made the greatest sensation of any girl in Hollywood this year. She is regarded as the greatest "find" of many seasons as an emotional actress.

* * *

All of which brings us to the case of Mabel

Normand. I attended a luncheon one day last week at the Writers' Club, at which the topic was brought up of screen genius. The writers and directors who were there all agreed that the greatest single genius that has ever been produced by the screen is Mabel Normand and that some day she is likely to tear loose and produce something that will be immortal in screen history.

* * *

For the first time in her life, Mabel has really been in earnest over a picture. Until this one, she has been the despair and agony of her directors' lives. They would get all set to "shoot" and perhaps the star would appear; and perhaps the star would not. Also the star was just as likely as not to go to lunch on an important day and not appear for four days.

But, while the "Extra Girl" was in the making at the Sennett Studio, a new Mabel made her appearance—a grave, reliable and punctual Mabel. The explanation probably is that Mabel is very hard pressed financially and realizes she has to get busy and saw wood. Some of her investments have gone wrong.

Photograph by Clarence S. Bull

Below is Buster Keaton with his staff of "gag men." Buster must be hard to please, or something. They dont seem to be doing so well with the tragic comedian

Boulevardier Chats

HARRY CARR

Mack Sennett, on the other hand, is said to have made another fortune in real estate piled on top of the fortunes he already had. I understand that Sennett's realty holdings inside the city limits of Los Angeles exceed one hundred and thirty acres, mostly city lots and tracts being held for subdivision.

* * *

As a realty king, Sennett has but one rival in the motion picture colony; this is Ruth Roland who is said to have made two millions in Hollywood real estate during the last five years. And Miss Roland says with the most charming candor, she still has the first nickel she ever made.

* * *

Conrad Nagel is another realty millionaire. Conrad has a very valuable ranch near Duarte in the foothills. On it he raises melons. Every week he says he goes out with the firm determination to give orders to the realty men to cut it up in subdivision lots; but the melons look so nice and green and pleasant that he can't bear to do it.

* * *

By the time this appears in print, Mary Pickford's keepsakes will be distributed among the loving families of Hollywood. Mary presented Rev. Neal Dodd, the "chaplain of Hollywood," with a whole trunk filled with stuff to be auctioned off for the benefit of his church. Among other treasures was the little velvet suit she wore in "Lord Fauntleroy"; her lace handkerchief which she used in "The Street Singer," etc. There were slippers and scarfs and all manner of wearing apparel.

* * *

Speaking of Mary, they say her studio speaks in hushed whispers of the awful indignity that has occurred. This young girl, Lucile Rickson, who is announced by Marshall Neilan as the rising genius of the age, is to be in Jack Pickford's next picture and she is to take the part that Mary herself had in a previous version of the story. Instead of being properly impressed, Miss Rickson accepted the situation with such sang-froid that she began to call Mary "old dear"

Photograph by K. O. Rahmn

Above, Jack Pickford and his wife, Marilyn Miller, on their own back fence. Below is a scene from Warner Brothers' "Little Johnnie Jones," with Johnnie Hines in the center. Bottom of the page, Eleanor Boardman and her director, Tod Browning, snapped during the making of "The Day of Faith"

Above: Reading from left to right and upside down, it is Malcolm McGregor, keeping fit for film fights

This is the age of Youth, certainly. Here is little Bruce Guerin stopping the traffic in "The Gold Diggers," and right is Miss Callista Riddles, a featured player in "Mothers-In-Law." Below is Wallace Beery proving a disputed point to Kathleen Clifford. They are Richard the Lion-Hearted and Queen Berengaria, tho we always thought that was an ocean liner and requested her to hand her a make-up box. Miss Pickford is a very democratic young lady; but "old dear"—well. The fact is that Miss Rickson has attained the venerable age of fourteen and that explains everything.

* * *

And as to Mary. . . . One day last week, one of the Los Angeles newspapers published a symposium of opinions from well-known citizens, mostly bank presidents and such, about what policy the city should pursue in its industrial future, etc. Among those quoted was Mary Pickford. Mary offered a plan of such sane, sagacious reasoning, such breadth of vision and withal of such practical and feasible value, that it is probable it will be preserved in permanent form.

* * *

There was a baseball game on the Fairbanks-Pickford lot the other day in which Eddie Sutherland, the assistant to Charlie Chaplin, broke his wrist. To save questioning, Eddie had a card printed which he had the head waiter hand around to the guests at the café where everybody eats luncheon. The card said: "Believe it or not, I hurt my wrist playing baseball. It is not a permanent injury. It will be well in six weeks. Thank you."

* * *

Whether from policy or because the Hollywood sunshine has softened her heart, the lovely Pola Negri has changed her methods. Gone is the old hauteur. She loves everybody now. She says "My Tony," as she calls Señor Moreno, is the finest actor she has seen in America and that Herbert Brenon is the best director she has ever worked with. But she says, hereafter, she is going to do her acting in her own way and not let anybody bamboozle her into the idea that Americans demand restraint in acting. Not to be outdone by Mary Pickford's version of the same story, Pola's picture, "The Spanish Dancer," will have some of the most gorgeous sets ever seen in motion pictures.

* * *

That other brilliant Polish lady, Nazimova, is decorating Hollywood with her presence again. Nazimova looks charmingly young and beautiful and mysterious. Whenever you met anybody in Hollywood, they used to say "Howd' do"; but now they say "Hello-o-o-o-o." When Nazimova does, it sounds very spiffy and cultured but when the others try it, it sounds very much like a yodeler practising his art.

* * *

Norma Talmadge has been held up with her new picture, "The Dust of Desire," by an untoward circumstance. Her director, Miss Frances Marion, has whooping-cough.

* * *

All of which brings us to another point. Pictures
(Continued on page 72)

Spreads smoother dries quicker

-the new liquid polish

A polish that will not form lumps and gummy ridges on the nails. That spreads smoothly and evenly all over the nail. It is tinted just the shade that fashionable women are using this season.

Every requirement for a liquid polish was considered when Cutex was working out this formula. The new Cutex Liquid Polish dries almost instantly. Before you have finished the second nail the first is so dry and firm, touching will not mar it. It will not peel off, nor crack. Its brilliant even lustre lasts a whole week.

And finally, it needs no separate polish remover. When you are ready for a fresh manicure you just put on a fresh coat of Liquid Polish, one nail at a time, wiping it off instantly before it dries. This leaves your nails smooth and clean, ready for the fresh manicure.

You can get Cutex Liquid Polish for 35c or in the $1.00 and $3.00 sets. Sets with other polishes are 60c and $1.50.

Charming Introductory Set

including the new Liquid Polish—now only 12c

Fill out this coupon and mail it with 12c in coin or stamps for the Introductory Set containing trial sizes of Cutex Cuticle Remover, Powder Polish, Liquid Polish, Cuticle Cream (Comfort), emery board and orange stick. Address Northam Warren, 114 West 17th St., New York, or if you live in Canada, Dept. N 10, 200 Mountain St., Montreal, Canada.

MAIL THIS COUPON WITH 12c TODAY

NORTHAM WARREN, Dept. N 10
114 West 17th St., New York

I enclose 12c in stamps or coin for new Introductory Set including a trial bottle of the new Cutex Liquid Polish.

Name _____

Street _____

(or P. O. Box)

City _____ State _____

CUTEX Liquid Polish

The Happy Hour

Posed by Johnnie Walker and Mildred June in "The Worm"

MB.—This charming tho innocuous portrait was substituted at the last minute for a page of burning kisses from "Alimony," because, forsooth, it caused both a managerial and an art department blush!

How do they accomplish it?

The women who give their skin the hardest wear manage to keep their faces young long after other women have grown old and unattractive.

THE actress gives her complexion harder wear and demands more of it in return than any other woman. She must keep her skin fine and clear though she covers it with cosmetics. It must be fresh in spite of late, weary hours.

How does she accomplish this? By careful study of her skin she has discovered the two indispensable things it needs to keep it in the fresh, beautifully supple condition she demands.

First the perfect kind of cleansing at night that leaves the face soft and clear—every bit of dirt, every trace of cosmetic, every shadow of weariness taken away. Then the exquisite morning freshening that keeps the skin flower-like through the day and guards it completely from every coarsening thing.

These are the two fundamentals of skin loveliness. For these two things many well-known actresses depend on the two entirely different creams that Pond's developed especially for this method of keeping a woman's skin young and fresh—Pond's Cold Cream and Pond's Vanishing Cream. And many other women write enthusiastically about the smoothness these creams give their skin.

See what this famous method will do for you

Do this every night. With the finger tips or a piece of moistened cotton, apply Pond's Cold Cream freely. The very fine oil in it penetrates every pore of your skin. Then wipe it off with a soft cloth. Dirt and excess oil, the rouge and powder you have used during the day are taken off your skin and out of the pores. Do this twice. Your skin looks fresh and is beautifully supple.

And every morning, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream evenly. If you wish, rouge—powder. How smooth and velvety your face feels to your hand! Nothing can roughen it. And it will stay that way all day.

To see how Pond's two creams actually improve your skin, use this method regularly. Buy both creams today in jars or tubes. The Pond's Extract Company.

Every skin needs these Two Creams—The Cold Cream for cleansing, The Vanishing Cream to protect and to hold the powder

Photo by Edwin Hower Hesser

Mae Murray, one of the most alluring of screen stars, says, "I have found that Pond's Two Creams give the complexion a lovely freshness and smoothness."

Charming Peggy Wood says, "Pond's Cold Cream cleanses easily and leaves my skin feeling fresh. Then the Vanishing Cream is a lovely smooth base for powder."

Photo by Edward Thayer Monroe

The common troubles that make a woman's skin look older—Pond's two creams banish them

Accumulation of oil and dirt in the pores. For this condition cleanse every night with Pond's Cold Cream, which is so light it penetrates the glands and takes out excess oil and dirt together. Then every morning put on Pond's Vanishing Cream to keep your face fresh through the day.

Premature wrinkles, scaling, dry shine—are especially the troubles of a dry skin. To avoid them, keep your skin soft day and night. Cleanse with plenty of Pond's Cold Cream nightly and keep some on over night. Feel your skin relax. Then by day Pond's Vanishing Cream prevents your skin from drying out again.

Coarsening Sun and Windburn. The daily repetition of weather damage ages your skin. For everyday exposure, use faithfully the nightly Pond's Cold Cream cleansing and in the day the delicate yet sure protection that Pond's Vanishing Cream gives.

GENEROUS TUBES—MAIL COUPON WITH 10c TODAY

The Pond's Extract Co. 132-U Hudson St., New York

Ten cents (10c) is enclosed for your special introductory tubes of the two creams every normal skin needs—enough of each cream for two weeks' ordinary toilet uses.

Name

Street

City State

No. II

Ups and Downs in the Life of a Star

Douglas MacLean and Marjorie Daw in all too realistic scenes from "Going Up." You know what happens to what goes up . . . but if you dont, just study the picture on the right. . . .

No. I

No. III

Beauty at Your Finger Tips

TODAY, as the possibilities of intelligent care of the skin are becoming more generally realized, it is literally true that thousands upon thousands of women are growing younger in looks, and likewise in spirits.

The secret of restoring and retaining a youthful complexion lies chiefly in the faithful and well-directed use of the proper sorts of face creams. The constant employment of creams by actresses in removing make-up is largely responsible for the clearness and smoothness of their skins.

First, the beautiful skin must be clean, with a cleanliness more thorough than is attainable by mere soap-and-water washing. The pores must be cleansed to the same depth that they absorb. This is one of the functions of Pompeian Night Cream. It penetrates sufficiently to reach the embedded dust. Its consistency causes it to mingle with the natural oil of the pores, and so to bring out all foreign matter easily and without irritation to the tissues.

The beautiful skin must be soft, with plastic muscles and good blood-circulation beneath. A dry, tight skin cannot have the coveted peachblow appearance; set muscles make furrows; poor circulation causes paleness and sallowness.

Pompeian Night Cream provides the necessary skin-softening medium to skins that lack the normal degree of oil saturation. Gentle massaging with it flexes the facial muscles, stimulates the blood circulation, and tones up all the facial tissues.

Upon retiring, first use Pompeian Night Cream as a cleanser; apply with the fingers and then wipe off with a soft cloth, freeing the pores of all the day's accumulated dust and dirt. Afterward apply the cream to nourish the skin, leaving it on over night.

The faithful following of this simple treatment works wonders in the skin—removing roughness, redness, and blackheads, and warding off wrinkles, flabbiness, and sallowness. It is the most approved treatment for restoring and retaining a youthful complexion.

POMPEIAN NIGHT CREAM (New style jar) 60c per jar
 POMPEIAN DAY CREAM (vanishing) 60c per jar
 POMPEIAN BEAUTY POWDER 60c per box
 POMPEIAN BLOOM (the rouge) 60c per box

New 1924 Pompeian Art Panel and Samples

Send coupon with ten cents for beautiful new 1924 Pompeian Art Panel, "Honeymooning in the Alps." With this panel we send samples of Pompeian Night Cream, Day Cream, Beauty Powder, and Bloom.

POMPEIAN LABORATORIES, 2128 PAYNE AVENUE, CLEVELAND, OHIO
 Also Made in Canada

POMPEIAN
 Night Cream
 Cleansing and Skin-Nourishing

© 1923, The Pompeian Co.

(Sixty-nine)

Forecasting Your Autumn Complexion

By MME JEANNETTE

A little foresight now will lay the foundation for the health and beauty of your skin during the trying days of the Fall.

It is during these months that every woman should form the habit of careful daily attention to her skin—her face, neck, shoulders, arms, and hands.

Don't Let Your Skin Get Dry

After the many hours of out-of-door life that always come with summer, every woman's skin tendstoward an unhealthy dryness. Pompeian Night Cream is the exact cream to use at this time. It has every property necessary to counteract dryness. It is a direct agent for sanitary cleansing, and it smooths and softens the dry tissue of the skin till the pores again have a chance to "breathe."

I would advise a generous application of Pompeian Night Cream as unflinchingly as you go to bed at night.

Rub the cream well over the surface, but do not attempt to rub hard; it is better and easier gently to pat the cream into the skin. Strike the surface covered with cream by using the flat of the fingers—quick little blows, and continue till at least some of the cream has disappeared.

Use soft cloths to wipe away the remaining traces of the cream, and whatever may remain will soften the skin during your hours of sleep.

Morning Loveliness

The first thing in the morning the skin may be "asleep," and there is nothing more helpful to arouse circulation than a wholesome splashing of cold water.

Pat the face dry with your towel, or your bare hands if you prefer.

When you apply Pompeian Day Cream, take care to spread it on all parts of the skin, and to blend it smoothly till it disappears.

Powder and Rouge

The Pompeian Beauty Powder should cover the neck and face with even thickness so you will not have a face of one tone and a neck of another.

Pompeian Bloom (the rouge) comes in a convenient little compact that rubs off easily for use and stays on well for the user. The new Orange tint is surprisingly natural, especially when used with the Naturelle or Rachel tints of Beauty Powder.

Pompeian Lip Stick

This final touch is essential with the rose-petal cheeks—and its color is natural and healthy-looking.

Mme Jeannette

Spécialiste en Beauté

TEAR OFF, SIGN, AND SEND

POMPEIAN LABORATORIES,
 2128 Payne Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio

Gentlemen: I enclose 10c (a dime preferred) for 1924 Pompeian Art Panel, "Honeymooning in the Alps," and the four samples named in offer.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____

What shade face powder wanted? _____

The Movie Encyclopaedia

by
THE ANSWER MAN

ELSIE BABY.—Great things often result from little words of encouragement. Here's my hand, shake! Yes, Ramon Navarro. Address the players you mention at Famous Players-Lasky, 1520 Vine Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

VERA W.—Yes, those were real tears; tears the silent language of grief. Address Rod LaRocque at Famous Players, address above.

I. C. H. LITTLE ROCK.—Thanks for all the kind things you say about this department. You say love is a bird that sings in the heart of a woman. Yes, and some men are birds too. Address Dagmar Godowsky, care of Frank Mayo, Goldwyn, Culver City, Cal. Write me again.

MAJORIE, CAL.—Well, you cant expect perfection all the time. Yes, and there will always remain something to be said of woman, so long as there is one on the earth. Barbara La Marr is to have the lead in "Damned." Yes, Joseph Schildkraut is to play opposite Norma Talmadge in "Dust of Desire."

EDITH P.—Come again Edith.

SINCLAIRE III.—Sounds like the name of a boat or something. I love these letters starting in "Several years ago I saw" and then to go on describing the picture. I'm sorry, my child, but I cannot tell you the name of the picture you describe. I'm more sorry than you are. Mrs. Wallace Reid is twenty-eight. Better luck next time.

BROWN EYES.—You cant quarrel with me, my lady, it takes two indiscreet individuals to make a quarrel and I shall not be one of them. Yes, Malcolm McGregor is married, and his last picture was "The Social Code" with Viola Dana. Rodolph Valentino expects to play in Ritz-Carlton Pictures, which he will start when his contract ends with Famous Players. No I dont mind answering questions. I wouldn't be able to draw my salary if I didn't answer questions.

Box 2576.—You neglected your John Hancock. I should say Dorothy Dalton is still living, but not married. Playing in "Leah Kreschna." Well, if you have a good library in your town you have a university. Why Edith Roberts and Taylor Holmes will play with George Arliss in "The Adopted Father."

MARIE S.—No your letter didn't give me a headache, thanks for the aspirin, however. That's what I call foresight. Thanks for your generosity, but I would rather you wouldn't send the cow. It would be a bit inconvenient in my hallroom. I'm quite able to get buttermilk at the dairy. I dont think Valentino has a brother, and I dont see how I can help you get into pictures. Come in again some time.

TEX.—Dont forget that it is awfully easy to be critical, but awfully hard to be correct. Madge Bellamy was born in Waco, Texas. Katherine MacDonald is twenty-eight and Madge Evans sixteen.

CAROL F. DETROIT.—There are very few successful gamblers in the world; and they are failures in everything else. Most companies are buying stage plays for motion-picture production. I wouldn't know who to tell you to write to. If other's purses be more fat, why should we groan and grieve at that. I'm happy with my $10.50 per.

MISS PROXIDE.—You cannot expect everlasting happiness in this world. Happiness, like the blue of the sky, cannot always last, for as the earth needs rain, to yield its fruits, so man needs tears to estimate life at its true value. William Farnum is married to Oliva White. So you would like to meet Richard Dix. Address Gloria Swanson at Famous Players. Marguerite Courtot is in New York. Her last picture was "The Steadfast Heart." Well, she has recently married Raymond McKee.

RUTHIE.—Of course I sleep on a bed, did you think I slept on the piano? The Ancients slept on skins. Beds were afterwards of loose rushes, heather or straw. The Romans are said to have been the first to use feathers. An air cushion is said to have been used by Heliogabalus, 218-222 A. D., and air beds were used in the sixteenth century. Feather beds were used in England in the reign of Henry VIII. The bedsteads of the Egyptians and later Greeks, like modern couches, became common among the Roman upper classes. Enough of that. No, Richard Dix is not married. Tom Mix is married to Victoria Forde. Yes, she used to play in Western pictures years ago. Thanks for your good wishes.

MARTIN.—It is like playing ping-pong with a medicine-ball to answer questions like yours in this department. This is no place for essays. To answer your questions the way I want to, would take two or three pages. Yes, Glora Swanson is playing in "Zaza" and you can reach her at Famous Players. Antonio Moreno has played in "My American Wife." "The Exciters" and next in "The Spanish Dancer."

Box 2576.—What again? I'm afraid you will have to try that job yourself. Madge Kennedy has started her second picture, "Beyond the Salt Frontier" for Kenma. Neysa McMein wrote the story, and Anita Loos and John Emerson put it in scenario form. That's it, courage counts.

MISS DOROTHY.—Well, if you love life, dont squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of. Ivor Novello is twenty-four; Kenneth Harlan twenty-eight and Conrad Nagel twenty-seven. Vivian Martin is on the stage and Justine Johnson is in Europe. Constance Binney has just signed a contract with C. C. Burr and she will play in "Clipped Wings." Katherine MacDonald's last was "The Scarlet Lily."

A NAVARRO FAN.—I wish I could help you, but the greatest pleasure of life is love. You will have to take your own choice, the question was—which is the better at kissing, Rodolph Valentino or Ramon Navarro. Your drawing was good, but it bears not the slightest resemblance.

WANDA R.—No, I dont care whether you write on your mother's paper or not. Norma Talmadge's "Ashes of Vengeance" is to be shown at the Carnavetto Museum in the Paris, as well as at the Apollo Theater in New York, for an indefinite run. Yes, Mary Pickford's last is "Rosita."

LEONA W.—Insurance is an effort to discount death and destiny. Build up your own insurance surplus by right living, simple eating and plenty of sleep and exercise. You'll find too, that your enjoyment of things takes less force with good health and spirits back of you. May Murray has blue eyes, and blonde hair. Yes, she used to dance in New York. Yes, Alice Terry wears a blonde wig in pictures.

BETTY C. SWAMPSCOTT.—No, I have no record of the present whereabouts of Betty Carpenter. William Collier, Jr. was the hero in "Cardigan."

ALEEN.—Well if you fight, fight for honor, glory or money, whichever you are most in need of. May Murray is married to Robert Leonard, her director. No, Eugene O'Brien has never been married.

LENORE.—How about this for speed? You refer to Robert Frazer in your first and Eddie Burns as Buddy. Frances Ring is Mrs. Thomas Meighan.

SARIE.—Yes, I believe there will always be wars. Tearing down the work of ages and building up anew cannot be accomplished without tremendous shock. Robespierre, Danton, and Marat tore down and Napoleon built up. The shock that split Europe wide open and shook

(Continued on page 73)

This department is for information of general interest only. Those who desire answers by mail, or a list of film manufacturers, with addresses, must enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address all inquiries: The Answer Man, CLASSIC, Brewster Buildings, Brooklyn, N. Y. Use separate sheets for matters intended for other departments of this magazine. Each inquiry must contain the correct name and address of the inquirer at the end of the letter, which will not be printed. At the top of the letter write the name you wish to appear, also the name of the magazine you wish your inquiry to appear in. Those desiring immediate replies or information requiring research, should enclose additional stamp or other small fee; otherwise all inquiries must wait their turn. Let us hear from you.

Booth's CHOCOLATES

Booth's True Blue Chocolates, favorites everywhere. Just what the name implies—"true blue" clear through. 20 oz. (1 1/4 lbs.) $2.00

Made for Candy Lovers

If you want to see the sparkle in her eyes, take home tonight a package of Booth's Chocolates

NOT just candy, this—but sweets made to order for those who know and revel in the best—"made for candy lovers."

Think of rich cream delivered daily from our own nearby dairy farms; creamery butter of the finest grade; thick delicious chocolate coatings which have been rolled and rolled until they are smooth as velvet; fruits grown in the garden spots of the world and only picked when ripe; expensive nuts carefully selected—and all this deliciousness and wholesomeness coupled with twenty-eight years of candy-making experience gives you Booth's Chocolates. Is there any wonder then that they are growing more popular each day?

Tonight on your way to the "show" drop in at the candy store near your favorite moving-picture theatre and purchase a package of Booth's Chocolates—you'll enjoy the "pictures" much more.

In addition to Booth's True Blue Chocolates pictured above, other favorites are—Booth's Butter Chocolates, 1 lb., $1.50; Booth's Esther Chocolates, 1 lb., $1.25; Booth's Candy Lovers, 1 lb., $1.00.

If not conveniently obtainable in your locality, send your money order to us for any package desired.

BOOTH'S CHOCOLATES
Elmira, New York

New Easy Way to Become an Artist

THOUSANDS are now learning to draw who never dreamed they could. Wonderful new method makes it easy for anyone to learn illustrating, Commercial Designing and Cartooning at home in spare time. Earn big money as an artist. Good artists are in tremendous demand by Magazines, Advertisers, Newspapers, Department Stores, etc. Salaries from $50 to over $300 a week are gladly paid them! And now you can easily become an artist. Now you can easily enter this fascinating big paying field.

No Talent Needed

The simplicity of this method is astonishing. You will be amazed at your rapid progress. From simple straight lines and curves, you soon learn to make drawings that sell. It's just like a game—learning to draw at home this way. All your work receives through the mail the individual criticism of one of America's most successful artists. It's fun learning—and almost before you realize it, you are able to make real professional drawings.

Coupon Brings FREE BOOK

A new handsomely illustrated book has just been printed, which gives all the most up-to-date information on the thousands of wonderful opportunities in Commercial Art and shows how this startling new method enables you to enter this field. It tells about our students—their successes—what they say—actual reproductions of their work—how they made big money even while studying. This attractive book will be sent without cost or obligation. Send for it. Mail coupon now.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL OF ART
Rm. 2910, 1115-15th St., N. W. Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL OF ART.
Room 2910, 1115-15th St., N.W.
Washington, D. C.

Please send me without cost or obligation your new book on art, "New Easy Way to Become an Artist" and details of your special Free Offer. Please Write Plainly.

Name.....
(Mrs. Miss or Mr.)

Address.....

City..... State.....

$2 Brings This Genuine DIAMOND

Easy for you to own this beautiful ring or give it as a present. Simply send $2—we will send the ring.

10 DAYS' FREE TRIAL
Wear it 10 days and if you don't agree it is an amazing bargain, return it and we will refund your money. If satisfied, pay $1.50 a week until $62.50 is paid.

FREE Write for catalog. Diamonds, Jewelry—$10 to $10000 on long credit.
Est. 1890. Address Dept. A-25

BAER BROS. Co.
6 MAIDEN LANE - NEW YORK

Viora Daniels of Christie Comedies

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 64)

last year gave you the impression they had been named by some one who worked in a match factory. They were Eternal Flames and Embers of Remorse, and Fires of Passion, and Coals of Agony and Ashes of Vengeance. Now they have returned to dust. There is Norma's "Dust of Desire," and Frank Borsage has one called "Dust on the Doorstep," and there's "Children of the Dust." And I suppose Buster Keaton will be getting out one like "The Duster."

* * *

Bennie Zeidman is on a still hunt for another boy genius to appear in a

Peck's Bad Boy series that he is about to make for Sol Lesser. He wants to find another Jackie Coogan. "I suppose," he said to one anxious mother "that this remarkable child of yours is more talented than Jackie Coogan." The woman nodded. And when Bennie added, "Every woman that comes in here tells me her child is more remarkable than Jackie Coogan." "Yes," the woman said eagerly. "But my dear man; you don't understand. My child is not like the others: he really is more remarkable than Jackie Coogan." But the fact still remains that every producer Peck's Bad Boy series that he is about

Lucien Littlefield with a strange circular hirsute adornment, which causes him considerable distress

He goes out only after dark now. He had to grow 'em that way for his part as the Jester in "The Palace of the King" the world was the greater because that was accomplished in two or three decades which would ordinarily require centuries. Progress is always preceded by calamity. That which appears to be calamity is often a blessing in disguise. Here, here, when I get started, I never know when to stop. Niles Welch in "Reckless Youth." Dell Boone is his wife.

The Movie Encyclopædia

(Continued from page 70)

AGATHA B.—So you think I look like that. Irene Castle is five feet eight inches, and she is free from Robert Tremain (maybe). Yes, Elsie Ferguson is also free from her husband, Thomas Clark. I'm also free—from women.

LITTLE WESTERNER.—Anna Q. Nilsson has been married twice so far as I know. Now she is Mrs. John Gunnerson. Mary Pickford was Mrs. Owen Moore. Jane Novak has a daughter Virginia, aged six, but I don't think she ever was a dancer.

MOLLIE AND MOVIE.—All the way from Australia. James Kirkwood has just married Lila Lee. She is twenty-one and he is forty. I wish them luck. Yes indeed Bebe Daniels is full of pep in real life. Bryant Washburn and his wife are playing in "Mine to Keep." A proper and fitting title for man and wife. And let it ever be thus. Stop in again some time, girls.

THE NIGHTINGALE'S EYEBROWS.—Now, I ask you! I know of no cure for grey hair. There are various remedies that will restore color so long as you keep using the preparation, but nothing will turn it permanently. When you get up in the morning and discover that grey hair No. 20 has made its appearance, don't get the glooms, but smile sweetly and say "Ah, wisdom and good sense are coming. For, every hair that fades or fades away, figure that you are the gainer by about one ounce of brains." Do you want to hear any more? Pauline Garon is twenty. Betty Compton is to make four pictures abroad. The Gish girls are with Inspiration. Gloria Swanson's daughter Gloria is two years old. Right at this address.

SHIRLEY K.—So you want more of Pauline Garon. I'll see what can be done with the editor-lady.

YANKEE GIRL.—Yes, I must admit that my beard is growing day by day. Harrison Ford in "Little Old New York." You write a very interesting letter. Stop in again.

BETTY AND BESSIE.—The two bees. Glad you like music. Even a hand-organ sounds good to a person in love. There's one stop in front of our building about three times a week. Yes, Viola Dana, Shirley Mason and Edna Flugrath are sisters. Leatrice Joy about twenty-five. Marguerite de la Motte was Constance in "The Three Musketeers." Yes, Marion Davies bobbed her hair. Priscilla Dean is Mrs. Wheeler Oakman. Miriam Cooper is twenty-seven. Mae Murray also twenty-seven. Marion Davies twenty-six. Johnny Hines and Mollie Malone with Warner Brothers.

RETHA F.—But the nervous fluid in man is consumed by the brain, in woman by the heart; it is there that they are most sensitive. So you are fond of Jobyna Ralston. So am I.

HELENE C. MC.—But the heart of a woman never grows old; when it has ceased to love it has ceased to live. Address Baby Peggy at Century Comedies, Jackie Coogan at Metro and Alice Brady, Famous Players. Mary Philbin is twenty. John Gilbert twenty-eight.

(Continued on page 85)

Copyright 1923
A. S. Hinds Co

In manicuring, it softens the cuticle, prevents soreness and adds to lustre of nails.

Hinds Cream cleanses the pores, heals sore, eruptive conditions, and refreshes sallow, withered complexions.

Protecting The Beautiful Complexion

A perfect base for face powder. Apply a little cream. When nearly dry dust on the powder.

Alkaline dust in Western states dries and irritates the skin. Use Hinds Cream.

To keep the hands smooth and attractive all day. To relieve catchy fingers apply while at work.

Hinds Honey and Almond Cream is a soothing, refining cream that by daily use prevents any tendency to roughness or irritation. An invigorating cream that tones and freshens and protects the complexion from injury by dusty winds or chilly atmosphere. A cream that softens the skin to a velvety texture. This cream is so simple to apply, so sure in its improving results that it readily becomes the favored complexion cream of all who try it. Its economy is due to the small amount required—only enough to moisten the skin. Let the use of Hinds Honey and Almond Cream become a part of your daily program.

Hinds Cre-mis Face Powder, surpassing in quality and refinement; distinctive in fragrance and effect. White, flesh, pink, brunette. Boxes 60c, 15c. Samples 2c.

All dealers sell Hinds Honey and Almond Cream, 50c, $1.00. We will mail a sample for 2c, trial bottle 6c, travel r size 10c. Try-out Box of 5 samples, assorted, 10c. Booklet Free. A. S. Hinds Co., Dept. 22, Portland, Maine.

Use after shaving to make the skin comfortable and relieve irritation from soap or close shave

Trade Mark Registered
WURLITZER
 200 YEARS OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENT MAKING

Professional and Amateurs
 Praise Wurlitzer Instruments

"I am proud to be the owner of one of your new cornets. The tone, tune and valve action are positively superior to any I have experienced in all my years of cornet playing."

Harry L. Jacobs
 (Soloist with Sousa's Band, Brooke's Marine Band, Chicago Grand Opera)

"If I could not get another like it, my Wurlitzer saxophone could not be bought from me for $200.00."

J. Russel David,
 Rockford, Ind

"Without your credit system it would have been impossible for me to own this beautiful instrument."

Arthur L. Samp,
 Madison, Wis.

Any Musical Instrument

On Trial

WURLITZER will send you any instrument for a week's trial in your own home. No obligation to buy—no expense for the trial—you do not risk a penny Wurlitzer instruments are known the world over for artistic quality and excellence of workmanship. Used by the greatest musicians, bands and orchestras. The house of Wurlitzer has made the finest musical instruments for over 200 years.

Easy Payments

Payments are conveniently arranged in small monthly sums—a few cents a day will pay. All instruments to you at lowest factory prices. Special combination offers on complete musical outfits—velvet lined case, all accessories, self-instructor, etc—everything you need at practically the cost of the instrument alone.

Send for New Catalog!

The greatest musical catalog ever published! Over 3,000 articles—every known instrument described and illustrated—many of them shown in full colors.

Wurlitzer has stores in over thirty cities, but no matter where you live, Wurlitzer is no farther than your nearest mail box. Send the coupon today!

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., Dept. 1517
 117 E. 4th St., Cincinnati — 329 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago
 120 W. 42nd St., New York — 250 Stockton St., San Francisco

Send me your new catalog with illustrations in color and full descriptions of every known musical instrument, also details of the Wurlitzer Free Trial Easy Payment Plan. No charge, no obligation.

Name.....

Address.....

.....
 (State musical instrument in which you are interested.)

Copyright 1928
 The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.

George Hackathorne and Claire McDowell, who has been his screen mother in four successive pictures

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 72)

in the world is searching the world for another Jackie Coogan—and not finding one.

* * *

The most promising lad now in pictures is little Ben Alexander who made his first appearance as a tiny tot in Griffith's "Hearts of the World" but who is now half grown—enough so to make a hit in "Penrod and Sam." He has been signed for a long-term contract by Maurice Tourneur.

* * *

Bill Hart's return to the screen is being received with great acclaim. The other night he appeared with a number of stars at the Motion Picture Exposition. He received the greatest ovation of them all, altho the aggregation included such celebrities as Mary Pickford and Pola Negri.

* * *

"Lilies of the Field," the New York stage play which ran for seven months at the Klaw Theater, is to be filmed by First National.

* * *

Donald Crisp has gathered together a collection of extras for the soldier scenes of "Ponjola" which looks like an officers' club. Nearly every one in it is a former British officer and many are titled. Just by way of contrast he has one full-blooded Zulu.

* * *

For years Carmel Myers and Bessie Love have been pals. They went to school together and have been the closest friends ever since. During all these years they looked forward to playing in a pic-

(Continued on page 87)

How the One Natural Color for Cheeks Was Found

Day and Night Tests That Told Why Rouge's Familiar Shade Was Wrong—and Eventually Duplicated Nature's Own Color

MOST WOMEN now know and use the new natural tint which is fast replacing the unscientific and unsatisfactory purplish-red rouges. But how many are aware of the peculiarly interesting story of its discovery?

We are apt to take the most marvelous discoveries of this age as a matter of fact—even one of such importance to the realm of beauty as a tint that is a perfect match for Nature's own artistry! Suddenly science gives the world of women a tint which tinges the cheeks in such a true tone as the very strongest sun's rays, or the weirdest effects of night lighting cannot separate from the underlying flesh tone, and we accept it without thought of how it came to be. Yet behind the simple, single tint which gives any and all complexions a divine and perfectly natural mantle of color is the story of man's indomitable perseverance—two years' ceaseless experiment—over two hundred failures, and eventual success.

The search for the perfect tint led a dignified scientist to a cellar's depths—and to the roof of a city's tall skyscraper. Tint after tint—tone upon tone—were tried in every conceivable light. In noon's glare, atop a high roof. In the streets below, where the sun's rays filtered through fog and smoke. And in the artificial lights of night—trying lights in which old-fashioned rouges all became the same ghastly, or unlovely purplish red.

"In Noon's Glare, Atop a High Roof"

On a patient assistant's cheeks shade after shade was tried. Some of the shades required ingredients from far countries—many were days in the blending. Then, suddenly it happened.

"Beneath Trying Artificial Light"

The Tint That Was Tried In Desperation

One morning the scientist used in his mortar one of the rarest ingredients in the laboratory. It was of peculiar orange hue. Scarcely a color to try on the cheeks! But he idly applied it on his assistant's cheeks—and a startling change took place. The peculiar orange tint altered instantly to the true tone of the skin beneath! Still doubtful that he had found the one key tint for any complexion—under all conditions—in every light—they hurried to the roof and put the new tint to the severe test of direct sunlight. The same beautifully diffused, natural color! Down to a darkened room, where neither glaring incandescent lamps nor variously shaded rays of electric light revealed anything but a coloring that appeared Nature's own! The same day, preparations were started to supply the demand that such a discovery was certain to create. Now, this new Princess Pat Tint is an article of standard use.

It enhances the color of countless women who had steadfastly declined to use any of the old-fashioned rouges which are so obvious in even the kindest light.

Princess Pat Tint is Waterproof!

Where the new natural tint is made, further improvements have transpired; a less costly use of the chief ingredient has brought its price within reach of all; an entirely new process has rendered it absolutely waterproof! Even a morning in the surf will not streak it! Princess Pat Tint is not affected by perspiration, so it is worn without concern the day long, or evening through! Yet it vanishes instantly with a touch of cream, or use of soap.

On any complexion, remember there is need for only one shade. There is no uncertainty of matching; for the one tint is instantaneously transformed to blend with any type—blonde, medium or brunette; and this tint may be applied as lightly or as full and deep as you choose—with the same perfection of result.

FREE

Until the shops have been sufficiently stocked with Princess Pat Tint to meet all calls for it, we shall take pleasure in sending to individuals a week's supply—without charge. At no cost to you and without any obligation, your prompt use of coupon below will bring to you Princess Pat new, natural tint.

PRINCESS PAT, LTD.,
2701 So. Park Ave., Dept. 410, Chicago

ENTIRELY FREE, please forward me postpaid, a complimentary supply of the new Princess Pat Tint.

Name (Print).....

Street.....

City.....

Princess Pat

The New, Natural Tint : Always Ask for It by Name

PRINCESS PAT, LTD., CHICAGO, U. S. A.

Princess Pat Tint Ice Astringent Creams Almond Base Powder Princess Pat Perfume

These groups of stockholders illustrate the rapid growth in ownership of the Bell System.

A Community of Owners Nation-wide

"Who owns the company?" "What is behind it?" These questions are asked in appraising the soundness of a business and in determining its aims.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company is owned by more than 270,000 people living in every state in the Union. Could the stockholders of the Bell System be gathered to one place, they would equal the population of a city about the size of Providence or Denver.

They constitute a representative cross-section of American citizenship. Among them, of course, are bankers and men of large affairs; for the idea of ownership in the Bell System appeals to sound business judgment and a trained sense of values.

In this community of owners are the average man and woman, the storekeeper, the clerk, the salesman, the professional man, the farmer and the housewife—users of the telephone who with their savings have purchased a share in its ownership. The average individual holding is but twenty-six shares.

No institution is more popularly owned than the Bell System, none has its shares distributed more widely. In the truest sense it is owned by those it serves.

"BELL SYSTEM"

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY
AND ASSOCIATED COMPANIES

One Policy, One System, Universal Service, and all directed toward Better Service

High School Course in 2 Years

You can complete this simplified High School Course at home inside two years. Meets all requirements for entrance to college and the leading professions. This and thirty-six other practical courses are described in our Free Bulletin. Send for it TODAY.

AMERICAN SCHOOL

Dept. H7, 62 Urexel Av. & 58th St., C. A. S. 1923 CHICAGO

BE A CARTOONIST

ARTISTS EARN BIG MONEY

We can teach you drawing in your home during spare time. Successful artists earn from $40 to $250 a week. Thousands of publishers and advertisers need the work of good artists. The MODERN METHOD is an easy way to learn to draw original pictures. Send 3 stamps today for full particulars showing opportunities for you. State your age.

THE MODERN INSTITUTE OF ART
7 East 42nd Street Studio 50 New York City

BATHASWEET

That "scentless" fragrance—how to achieve it

That almost imperceptible fragrance which adds so much to personal charm is just one of the joys of bathing in water that has been perfumed and softened with Bathasweet. It cleanses more quickly and completely than the ordinary bath. It does not cover up body odors, but it actually cleanses them away. So refreshing! Just try it! Get Bathasweet at Drug and Department Stores 25c, 50c, $1.

Miniature can 10c by mail.
THE C. S. WELCH CO., Dept. A.B., NEW YORK CITY

Ashes of Vengeance

(Continued from page 31)

Then my noble sister went straight way to our brother Charles and bespoke Rupert's freedom. So eloquently did she plead his cause that Charles was moved to absolve him from his oath of service and said so, right magnanimously.

Rupert was surprised and gratified, yet hurt. He was sure now that Yoeland did not care for him, since they were allowing him to go away. Incredible to say, he did not now want his freedom. I was heart-broken and wept grievously for hours. Yoeland, the haughty, cried too and when I saw her tears I marveled at them.

I am sure I do not know how it would have ended if she had not broken down when Rupert came to bid her farewell. Slowly the realization dawned on him and such amazed delight blazed in his eyes that had I been looking into them instead of Yoeland, I should have been blinded.

"Yoeland," he murmured, "Yoeland, my beautiful," and took her in his arms and kissed her on the lips.

I turned my head away. It was too great ecstasy for me to see.

They are to be married within a fortnight and so that ends the feud. For neither Charles nor Rupert dare fall under the displeasure of My Lady Yoeland. That would be too grave a risk, as both of them love her too well.

And now the story is ended—or rather just begun. The two lights of night and day shine soft across the castle walls, making long shadows on the grass, and I am very tired, but oh, so happy.

Divine Discontent

(Continued from page 22)

ALMA: I'd leave the screen and take to the pen.

MYSELF (incredulously): You can't mean that you would rather scribble than star? Personally, I can't imagine what has brought you to such a pass.

ALMA: But what does it all amount to, after all? What does it get you? Where does it get you? A little money, easily spent. A little fame, easily forgotten. A little temporary glory. An illusion. While your youth lasts, or your good looks . . . then . . . poof!

MYSELF: But there are those who survive indefinitely. After all, life itself is indefinite. Nothing goes on forever. The true artist . . .

(Continued on page 84)

Reduces 53 Lbs. in Nine Weeks!

Society Leader Takes Off Every Pound of Excess Weight—From 191 Lbs. to 138 Lbs.

Mrs. Bayliss Tells the Way She Did It

WALLACE

NEVER dreamed you could do it Mr. Wallace," wrote this well known young matron of Philadelphia's social elect. Her letter is dated in February, and refers to reducing records purchased late in November. A reduction of more than fifty pounds in three months! But read her own story:

"Here I am, back to 138 lbs. after my avoirduois had hovered around the impossible two-hundred mark! Your perfectly wonderful music movements—nothing else—did it. You have reduced my weight from 191 to 138, and lightened my heart as no one can know who has not had activities and enjoyments curtailed for years—and suddenly restored.

"Thanks to Wallace I am dancing, golfing and 'going' as of yore. Best of all, I am back in the saddle. Because I once laughed at the idea of 'getting thin to music' I offer in humble apology this letter, my photograph and permission to publish them should you desire.

Very sincerely yours,
JESSICA PENROSE BAYLISS."

How It Was Done

Most women of bulky figure would make almost any sacrifice to attain the symmetry Mrs. Bayliss' photo reveals. But you need not sacrifice your health, comfort, or even convenience. The process is enjoyable. You use Wallace's records but ten minutes a day! Yet the reduction is felt within five days of starting; the second week will bring a noticeable improvement; the third or fourth week will find you lighter by many pounds.

The beauty of Wallace's method is its absolutely natural reduction, and redistribution of weight. Unlike the drastic dieting and drugging methods, there is no loss of flesh where you cannot afford to lose it.

Observe the photograph; do you see any suggestion of gauntness in face or neck—or flabbiness of arms? The Wallace reducing records play away only excess flesh.

There Is No Need of Starving or Otherwise Punishing Yourself

Scores of society women have reduced by this now famous course in reducing. Many of them would never have done so had it required the strenuous and tedious effort and self-denial once thought to be the only means of defeating superfluous flesh. "It is downright fun" is what most folks say, from the first day they take up this exhilarating form of reducing.

It is easy to get thin to music—and extremely easy to prove that you can. The first reducing record awaits only your word that you want it. Try it only five days—and note the result in even this short time.

Almost a Pound a Day

In the case here recorded, the reduction averaged almost a pound a day.

Much depends on the individual constitution; for reducing in this natural manner takes place only as fast as the system is prepared for the change. Some lose seven or eight pounds in the first five-days test period; others but two or three. But you can and will reduce to normalcy if you want to; whether you are only five pounds too heavy, or fifty.

Consult the table of weights printed above; see just how much you are over the weight that is best for your health and appearance. Then make up your mind that you will weigh what you should; you can, very easily—and very quickly, if you send for the first reducing record and make the start.

Free Proof—Send No Money

Just try Wallace's way for one week. That's all he asks. Don't send any money; don't promise to pay anything now or later. The trial is free. If you don't see surprising results in even these few days—simply mail back the record and you will not owe Wallace a penny. Let the scales decide. Here is the coupon that brings everything; can anyone suffering from overweight decline such an invitation?

Height in Inches	What You Should Weigh For Your Height and Age
	Age 20 to 29 yrs	Age 30 to 39 yrs	Age 40 to 49 yrs	Age 50 and Over
60	111	116	122	125	Lbs.
61	113	118	124	127
62	115	120	127	130
63	118	123	130	133
64	122	127	133	136
65	125	131	137	140
66	129	135	141	145
67	133	139	145	150
68	137	143	149	155
69	141	147	153	159
70	145	145	156	163

MRS. JESSICA PENROSE BAYLISS of Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania. Lost over fifty pounds with Wallace reducing records. Photos by Drury.

WALLACE, 630 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago

Please send me FREE and POSTPAID for 5 days' free trial the original Wallace Reducing Record for my first reducing lesson. If I am not perfectly satisfied with the results, I will return your record and will neither owe you one cent nor be obligated in any way. (219)

Name.....

Address.....

The Greatest Message ever written into Motion Picture History

David Belasco's
Artistic influence
in
Motion Pictures

DAVID BELASCO—the man who for a generation has captivated patrons of the Spoken Drama—has yielded to the insistent appeal that his dramatic genius should be perpetuated in Motion Pictures for the entertainment and inspiration of all people for all time.

And BELASCO has chosen to express his matchless art exclusively through

“Warner Bros. Classics of The Screen”

Now you will see pictures so beyond-the-ordinary that you will forget the canvas before you and feel the heart-grip of the master producer.

DAVID BELASCO'S association with WARNER BROS. is the long-sought triumph of the Silent Drama—the final proof of Warner leadership.

Watch for the first three Belasco productions—“Tiger Rose”—“The Gold Diggers”—“Daddies”.

We have a limited number of autographed photographs of DAVID BELASCO which we will send without cost on request of readers of this publication

1600 Broadway

WARNER BROS.
Classics of the Screen

New York City

Elinor Glyn on the Technique of the Scenario

(Continued from page 34)

before it is accepted. First, it is read, then passed on to the considering office, where it is criticized before reaching the scenario department. There the actual changes are made, and it is sent to the continuity writer; after this, it is placed in the director's hands. His point of view is often biased by the subject, which may be about a nation or a class whose manners and customs he knows nothing about! The director changes things pretty much as he wishes, as does the advisory committee. Then of course there is the star of the production, who must have his or her little alterations. When all this is done, the censorship committee awaits what is left of a once original story. And there you are! Or rather, there your once beautiful story isn't!

“The actual meaning of your idea? Alas, it no longer exists! Supposing your story is of a man who stumbled out of a window. Have it by accident or otherwise, as you will. You, as the author, had a definite reason for this to happen. And, having your reason, had doubtless, a logical result, as it affected the man who tumbled, and also as it modified the lives of those with whom he was connected. You worked out the psychology, the consequences of everything in your story; these, and other parts were the very life of it. Life?”

“When the average motion picture scenario department finishes with your creation, it has been robbed of all which could make it convincing. All the well-planned logic and true psychology is gone, deleted. Your man and his tragic tumble have become perhaps even the comic adventure of a person who now evidently bears no plausible relation to anything in your story.

“And you? You have been made a fool of, because the picture play that cannot but insult the intelligence of the public, is brought out under your name! I believe, from what I have observed, that the American public is quite the most understanding in the world. It is therefore no small prejudice that you have aroused against you, as the author. You are guilty of offering ‘bunk,’ something that all the checks in the world would not have enticed from your pen, in the beginning.

“As I have been away from America for nearly a year I have not seen the most recent pictures. But I have been studying motion pictures in England, Germany, Sweden, and France. And truly, from the technical end of things, the American producers have no rivals! In the technical side of picture making they are perfection.

"Most of the scenarios of the Swedish and German productions are vague; yet they are stories of quality. They give forth something tangible to the educated mind. This is where the American producer falls down.

"Imagine the gross insult of a picture that depicts American social life, a society drama wherein the people act as no man or woman in any country, in this particular stratum of life would act. That's what we have to look at all the time. And the public will never be given dramas of real life as long as ignorant people are permitted to have power to produce and direct pictures. We must have people in authority in the scenario departments who know from the inside the phases of life which they are trying to interpret. We must have people who keep to the things they know!

"The success of my novels has been based upon the fact that I never write about things that I do not know. Recently someone asked me why I did not write about a certain part of England and the natives there. 'Why?' I asked, somewhat amazed. 'Because I only know about them thru hearsay. I don't know the reality of their existence, and could not write until I do.'

"The scenario departments receive many terrible scenarios that have to be changed. Naturally, it is hard for them to realize when they get a good one, which it would be wise for them to leave untouched. The diligence of the author in mastering movie technique will mean everything in the final O. K. which he alone should be allowed to place on the continuity of his picture. His knowledge of technique will influence producers to gather about them intelligent people who are not groping in the dark, but who, in knowing what they are attempting to do, will not be satisfied until they do it correctly."

An Old Story

(Continued from page 42)

very closely. For if you did look very closely and very discerningly, you would find in her eyes that thing which made her what she was and gave us what she gave us in "Humoresque"; the thing Fannie Hurst saw when she wanted her to play the mother-part; the thing Frank Borzage recognized when he cast her for the part—the first of a long line of directors who have perceived her.

The sympathetic, world-enduring,

(Seventy-nine)

Prettier Teeth

If you fight the film

While you leave teeth coated with a dingy film, their luster cannot show. Look about you. Note how many teeth now glisten. And mark what they add to good looks.

The reason lies largely in a new method of teeth cleaning. Millions now use it daily. Accept this ten-day test we offer, and learn what it does for you.

Why teeth lose beauty

A viscous film clings to the teeth, enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush alone does not end it. No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats it.

So much film remains. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. Those cloudy coats hide the teeth's luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. That's why so few escaped tooth troubles.

Germes breed by millions in film. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. And that became alarmingly common.

Better methods now

Dental science studied long to correct this situation. It found two film combatants. One of them acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods by many careful tests. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. In that were embodied these two film combatants for daily application.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. Leading dentists the world over now advise it. Careful people of some 50 nations are employing it today.

Multiplies two agents

Pepsodent does two other things which research proved essential. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Thus every use gives manifold power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents.

This test amazes

This 10-day test of Pepsodent amazes and delights. The results are quick and conspicuous.

Send the coupon for it. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects.

In one week you will realize what this new method means. You will see results which old ways never bring. Cut out the coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Pepsodent PAT. OFF.
REG. U.S.

The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific film combatant, which whitens, cleans and protects the teeth without the use of harmful grit. Now advised by leading dentists the world over.

10-Day Tube Free ¹¹⁹⁷

THE PEPSODENT COMPANY,
Dept. 303, 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Mail 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent to

.....
.....
Only one tube to a family.

PREFERRED PICTURES

"When you call me that, Smile!"

Bringing Great Books and Plays to Life

IN the back of your mind linger the memories of mighty deeds and throbbing loves—the things that make up great books and great plays. Upon such stories are Preferred Pictures built.

The men who founded Preferred Pictures believe that no photoplay can give the maximum of entertainment; no star, no cast, can put forth the best that is in them, unless the story is right.

You received the first Preferred Pictures and proclaimed them a success.

Now comes "THE VIRGINIAN," a Tom Forman Production, made from the immortal novel and play.

Under the spell of color, action and setting such as only the moving picture makes possible—you can live it yourself with Trampas, with Molly, Steve and "The Virginian," the greatest western character ever given to literature.

Kenneth Harlan heads the Preferred Cast, which includes such noted actors as Florence Vidor, Russell Simpson, Pat O'Malley and Raymond Hatton.

Preferred Pictures are shown in your city. Call up your favorite theatre and ask "When?"

Distributed by

PREFERRED PICTURES CORP.

AL LICHTMAN, President

PREFERRED PICTURES

Produced by
B. P. SCHULBERG

Coming

"The Virginian"

from the play and novel by Owen Wister and Kirke La Shelle

"April Showers"

by Hope Loring and Louis D. Lighton.

"Maytime"

from the play by
Rida Johnson Young.

"The Boomerang"

from the play by
Winchell Smith and Victor Mapes

"White Man"

from the novel by
George Agnew Chamberlain.

"Poisoned Paradise"

from the novel by
Robert W. Service.

"When a Woman Reaches Forty"

by Royal A. Baker.

"The Mansion of Aching Hearts"

by Harry Von Tilzer and Arthur
J. Lamb.

"The Breath of Scandal"

from the novel by
Edwin Balmer.

"The First Year"

from the play by
Frank Craven.

"The Triflers"

from the novel by
Frederick Orin Bartlett.

"Faint Perfume"

from the novel by
Zona Gale.

"My Lady's Lips"

by Olga Printzlau.

NOW SHOWING

"The Broken Wing"

"Mothers-in-Law"

"Daughters of the Rich"

"The Girl Who Came Back"

"Are You a Failure?"

"Poor Men's Wives"

"The Hero"

"Thorns and Orange Blossoms"

"Shadows"

"Rich Men's Wives"

passionate and patient artist-soul.

But in the movies one does not look for the passionate and patient artist-soul in a stout Jewish lady of forty summers.

It is preposterous. Out of no slim Adonis came the full notes of Caruso . . . but in the movies . . . p's's't! Anyone knows that in the movies art, Art, mesdames and sires, is accompanied by slim, desirous bodies, pickfordian curls and nit-naldian thighs, come-hither eyes, and sixteen fruitful summers. And where, in Vera Gordon, were the vanished sixteen summers? Where, even, were the come-hither eyes? Ah, no, ah, no, to the directors, ever searching, ever seeking for the Great in Art, Vera Gordon was what she might still be to any casual passerby, a stoutish Jewish lady asking for a part in pictures, pictures, if you please! And so Mrs. Gordon had all she could do to get by the keeper of the gate, let alone into the rarefied atmosphere of the Casting Director's official sanctum.

And thus, bearing her gift within her, guarding it, preserving it with the frankincense and myrrh of domesticity and child-bearing and anxiety, Vera Gordon watched the long, lean years go by.

In Russia, when she was thirteen, she had played a great mother-rôle, in the Hebrew tongue. Played it so realistically, with such force and veracity, that the governor of the town or province, or whatever you call 'em, issued an order that she should be allowed to play in the theaters when she chose, an exceptional honor to befall a woman in Russia. Later, she married and came to Canada, and then followed the record of the years between the then and now.

They haven't embittered Vera Gordon. If she has a slight contempt for "the men higher up," who mostly don't belong up, it is lost and absorbed by her passionate pity and love for the great mass of the people, the poor people, whose every day is struggle and whose every night a new and sad defeat.

"I know their needs so well, so very well," spoke Vera Gordon softly and with inescapable understanding.

This is being what a novelist called his novel, "The Mother of All Living." This is the spirit that has shone forth and given Vera Gordon at long last her "place in the sun."

The Powers Behind the Screen

(Continued from page 39)

A small man, with slender, expressive hands—that is the first impression. You are conscious next of the thin, colorless lips, drawn taut as if some eternal problem kept them forever so, but soon you are aware, most of all, of the broad forehead, the calm and steady eyes. Seeing these, you know you are facing no ordinary immigrant washed in by the endless stream from Europe. This man's ancestors were princes of Jerusalem, bankers, poets, visionaries. Grim necessity, the clutching fingers of European conditions—these later may have dragged his family's members down till they came to this country as piecemeal tailors, but before this, in the dim, far days of time, his personality, his imagination must have been nurtured tenderly and under favoring conditions.

Within speaking distance of him only once, this writer came to that conversation last year prejudiced against him. Such, frequently, is the effect achieved by press agents hired to boom a man! But facts speak louder than press agents, and the facts concerning Adolph Zukor came first to a stirring, dramatic climax in the anteroom of the General Film Company over a decade ago.

Like Disraeli who foresaw the British Empire cemented by a Suez Canal clinching India, years after the House of Commons had laughed him down—like Disraeli, Zukor waited patiently. Three hours passed. He was shown in, but he plead in vain.

The little he had picked up as a furrier he had sunk in these nickel-odeons of his, but imposed conditions were cutting his profit. He had vision. He needed money. But what he saw, they could not see, what he asked they did not grant. They only laughed, and suddenly he was on his feet, his finger leveled at them, a curious bitter smile parting those drawn lips of his.

"Some day," he said, like Disraeli, "some day you will hear me. Some day you will listen."

It is convenient to tell the history of the motion picture industry in the terms of Adolph Zukor, but an inquiry into all the circumstances that have entered into that history from the day of that interview till now—such an inquiry makes telling the story in just those terms inevitable.

While he has not created circumstances, Zukor has set the pace. While he has not sown the seed, frequently at harvest he has found himself boss of the threshing machine. While conditions beyond his control

Posed by Doris Kenyon in "Sure Fire Flint," a Mastodon Films, Inc., motion picture. Miss Kenyon is one of many charming women of the screen who use and endorse Ingram's Milkweed Cream for promoting beauty of complexion

Face to face with your mirror can you rejoice in your complexion?

CAN you be proud of your fair, wholesome skin? Can you conscientiously say "my complexion is fresh and clear"?

You can if you adopt the regular use of Ingram's Milkweed Cream—you can take genuine pride in the glory of a fair and radiant complexion, just as thousands of attractive women have for more than 30 years.

Ingram's Milkweed Cream, you will find, is more than a cleanser, more than a powder base, more than a protection for the skin. It has an exclusive therapeutic property that serves to "tone-up"—revitalize—the sluggish tissues of the skin. It soothes away redness and roughness, banishes slight imperfections, heals and nourishes the skin cells. No other cream is just like it.

Go to your druggist today and purchase a jar of Ingram's Milkweed Cream in either the 50-cent or $1.00 size. (The dollar jar contains three times the quantity.) Use it faithfully, according to directions in the Health Hint booklet enclosed in the carton—gain and retain a complexion of which you can honestly be proud.

Ingram's Rouge—"Just to show the proper glow" use a touch of Ingram's Rouge on the cheeks. A safe preparation for delicately emphasizing the natural color. Offered in thin artistic metal vanity-box, with large mirror and pad—does not bulge the purse. Five perfect shades, subtly perfumed—Light, Rose, Medium, Dark or the newest popular tint, American Blush—50 cents.

FREDERICK F. INGRAM CO.

Established 1885

83 TENTH STREET DETROIT, MICH.

Canadian residents address F. F. Ingram Company, Windsor, Ontario. British residents address Sangers, 42A Hampstead Rd., London, N. W. 1. Australian residents address Law, Bluns & Co., Commerce House, Melbourne. New Zealand residents address Hart, Pennington, Ltd., 23 Ghuznee St., Wellington. Cuban residents address Espino & Co., Zulueta 7642, Havana.

There is Beauty in Every Jar

Ingram's Milkweed Cream

Send ten cents today for Ingram's New Beauty Purse

Frederick F. Ingram Co., 83 Tenth Street, Detroit, Mich.

Gentlemen: Enclosed please find ten cents. Kindly send me Ingram's New Beauty Purse, containing a liberal sample of Ingram's Milkweed Cream, two purse puffs, one generously filled with Ingram's Face Powder, the other with Ingram's Rouge, and, for the gentleman of the house, a sample of Ingram's Therapeutic Shaving Cream.

Name.....

Street.....

City.....State.....

Genuine

ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER" when you buy. Insist!

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over 23 years and proved safe by millions for

- | | |
|-----------|------------|
| Colds | Headache |
| Toothache | Rheumatism |
| Neuritis | Lumbago |
| Neuralgia | Pain, Pain |

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions. Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

A New Perfume

As a lover of rare perfumes, you will be charmed by the indescribable fragrance of Rieger's new creation—

Honolulu Bouquet

Perfume $1.00 per oz. Toilet water, 4 oz. $1.00. Talcum, 25c. At druggists or department stores. Send 25c (silver or stamps) for generous trial bottle. Made by the originator of—

Rieger's Flower Drops

Flower Drops is the most exquisite perfume ever produced. Made without alcohol. Bottle with long glass stopper, containing enough for 6 months, Lilac or Crabapple $1.50; Lily of the Valley, Rose or Violet $2.00. At druggists or by mail. Send 20c stamps for miniature bottle. Send $1.00 for Souvenir Box of five 25c bottles—5 different odors.

Paul Rieger & Co. (Since 1872) 172 First St., San Francisco

Send 25¢ for TRIAL BOTTLE

Standard Spanish ARMY

Used by French During World War

Buy direct from sole U. S. importers and SAVE ½ on this

GENUINE ASTRA AUTOMATIC

Your chance to have the finest European pistol—the equal of any similar American gun—at about ½ the price. Order direct at these special prices.

- $7.75 25 calibre—7 shot—C. O. Q. Automatic.
- 8.95 25 calibre—7 shot—Astra Automatic.
- 9.95 25 calibre Astra with triple safety.
- 10.95 32 calibre—10 shot Astra, extra magazine.
- 16.95 32-20 and 38 cal. swing-out cyl. revolvers.

We guarantee every gun against defective workmanship; brand new; of Drop Forged Steel Through-out. Before buying any weapon INSIST on this guarantee. SEND NO MONEY unless you wish. State model desired—pay postman on delivery plus postage. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Write for new firearms catalogue.

CALIFORNIA TRADING CO.

Dept. 910, Terminal Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

7 Diamond Solitaire Cluster $2.00 Down

Buy Today 10 Months to Pay

SPECIAL PRICE $57.50

14K

Seven perfectly cut, blue white Diamonds are so closely set in Platinum, and so exquisite is the workmanship that the solitaire resemblance is actually startling. Looks like a large single Diamond. Don't send us a penny—we'll send the Ring without one penny in advance. If satisfied, pay $2.00, then send the balance in ten months, $5.50 a month. If not satisfied, return.

FREE

De Luxe Diamond Book showing over 2,000 Bargains in Diamonds, Watches and Jewelry—ten months to pay on everything. Write to Dept. 493-R.

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY CAPITAL $1,000,000.

LW-SWEET INC. 1650-1660 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

have constantly developed about him, he has been quick to maneuver himself into positions of advantage, and his last, his ablest move, brought him that saving grace which—for simplicity's sake—is known as Will H. Hays.

This was a Machiavellian stroke, but its true inwardness seems to be understood only in Wall Street financial circles where they have followed the growth of the picture business to its present apex, where they remember best the exact manner in which the foundations of this pyramid were laid down in 1913, '14 and '15.

Thereabouts the General Film Company's hold on the basic patents was loosened. Distributing and producing companies sprang up: Mutual, Universal, Film Exchanges of America, Triangle, Metro, and finally Paramount. Able men took charge of them: Carl Laemmle, P. A. Powers, R. H. Cochrane, H. E. Aitken, R. A. Rowland, and finally the combination that included under the Paramount banner such men as Zukor, W. W. Hodkinson, Jesse L. Lasky, J. D. Williams, Arthur Friend, B. P. Schulberg, and Al Lichtman. But what, you will ask, was this all about.

Some flooded pipe-line must have poured rich, streaming gold into so great a body of activity.

It did. The stream grew to a river when shows were provided worth a quarter, half a dollar, a dollar, even two dollars. Nickels and dimes were all that was asked before. Shows had been short then. Half an hour of time, two thousand feet of film. It was argued that the public would not stand for anything longer, that eyes couldn't stand the strain.

One-reelers and two-reelers had been supplied by the General Film Company at the rate of sixty reels a week. Universal broke in with a thirty-two-reel program, Mutual with twenty-eight, Film Exchanges with an inconsiderable eight to twelve. All these were short subjects, but before the war change was in sight.

George Kleine, the Republican politician from Chicago, was to import from Italy a picture called "Julius Cæsar" and pack those anxious to see it into a Broadway theater.

"Quo Vadis," "Cabiria," others followed, but, even before this, exhibitors clamoring for something to keep the crowds coming had seized on such few five-reel features as were offered and promptly raised their prices for "feature days."

Soon it was evident that the public waited for "feature days," and willingly paid a quarter for the better show.

The five-cent days were over. . .

PLAY PIANO BY EAR

Be a Jazz Music Master

Anyone Who Can Remember a Tune Can Easily and Quickly Learn to Play Popular Jazz or American Rhythm By Ear at a Very Small Cost. The New Niagara Method Makes Piano Playing Wonderfully Simple.

No matter how little you know about music—even though you “have never touched a piano”—if you can just remember a tune, you can quickly learn to play by ear. I have perfected an entirely new and simple system. It shows you so many little tricks that it just comes natural to pick out on the piano any piece you can hum. Beginners and even those who could not learn by the old fashioned method, grasp the Niagara idea readily, and follow through the entire course of twenty lessons quickly. Self-instruction—no teacher required. You learn many new styles of bass, syncopation, blues, fill-ins, breaks and trick endings. It's all so easy—so interesting that you'll be amazed.

A Simple Secret to Success

No need to devote years in study to learn piano nowadays. Special talent unnecessary. Every lesson is so easy, so fascinating that you just “can't keep your hands off the piano.” Give it part of your spare time for 90 days and you will be playing and entertaining almost before you realize it. No tiresome scales, no arpeggios to learn—no do-re-mi—no difficult lessons or meaningless exercises. You learn a bass accompaniment that applies to the songs you play. Once learned, you have the secret for all time—your difficulties are over and

Be Popular in Every Crowd

One who can sit down at any time without notes or music, reel off the latest jazz and popular song-hits that entertain folks, is always the center of attraction, the life of the party, sought after and invited everywhere. Make yourself the center of attraction—master the piano by spending an hour a day studying the fascinating Niagara Method.

As easily as thousands of others have learned, so you, too, can learn and profit—not only through the pleasure it provides, but also by playing at dances, motion picture houses and other entertainments.

You Become Master of the Piano

Even talented musicians are amazed at the rapid progress of Niagara School students and can't understand why this method was not thought of years ago. Naturally, the Niagara Method is fully protected by copyrights and cannot be offered by any other school. A special service department gives each pupil individual attention.

Decide to Begin Now!

Just spend a part of your spare time with a few easy, fascinating lessons and see how quickly you “catch on” and learn to play. You will be amazed, whether you are a beginner or an advanced student.

Write for interesting, illustrated booklet, “The Niagara Secret”—it describes this wonderful new method of playing piano by ear. This booklet sent FREE.

Ronald G. Wright, Director, NIAGARA SCHOOL OF MUSIC, Niagara Falls, N. Y.

This Book FREE

CLIP THIS COUPON NOW

Niagara School of Music, Dept. 582, Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Without obligation mail me your booklet, “The Niagara Secret.”

Name.....
St. and No. or R. F. D.
Town..... State.....
Age..... Ever take piano lessons?..... How many?.....

Do You Want A Better Job?

THE only difference between success and failure is a matter of training. The big men in business today did not reach their present success through luck or chance.

They got into the work for which they were best fitted—and then trained themselves to know more about their jobs than anyone else. When opportunity came—as it always comes—these men were ready to grasp it and turn it into fame and dollars.

You have just as good a chance to succeed as these men had—perhaps better! Good positions are always waiting for trained men—positions that you can get if you train yourself to deserve them.

You can secure this training easily and quickly at home through spare-time study with the International Correspondence Schools, just as so many other men have done. The I. C. S. way is the practical way—the fascinating way—the profitable way.

All that we ask is this:—Fill out the coupon printed below and mail it to Scranton. This doesn't obligate you in the least—but it will bring you the full story of what the I. C. S. can do for you. Today is the day to send in that coupon. "Tomorrow never comes."

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS Box 6757-C, Scranton, Penna.

Without cost or obligation on my part, please tell me how I can qualify for the position or in the subject before which I have marked an X:

BUSINESS TRAINING COURSES

- | | |
|---|---|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Business Management | <input type="checkbox"/> Salesmanship |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Industrial Management | <input type="checkbox"/> Advertising |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Personnel Organization | <input type="checkbox"/> Better Letters |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traffic Management | <input type="checkbox"/> Foreign Trade |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Business Law | <input type="checkbox"/> Stenography and Typing |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Banking and Banking Law | <input type="checkbox"/> Business English |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Accountancy (including C.P.A.) | <input type="checkbox"/> Civil Service |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Nicholson Cost Accounting | <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Mail Clerk |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Bookkeeping | <input type="checkbox"/> Common School Subjects |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Private Secretary | <input type="checkbox"/> High School Subjects |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Business Spanish | <input type="checkbox"/> Illustrating |
| <input type="checkbox"/> French | |

TECHNICAL AND INDUSTRIAL COURSES

- | | |
|---|--|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Electrical Engineering | <input type="checkbox"/> Architect |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Electric Lighting | <input type="checkbox"/> Blue Print Reading |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Engineer | <input type="checkbox"/> Contractor and Builder |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Draftsman | <input type="checkbox"/> Architectural Draftsman |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Machine Shop Practice | <input type="checkbox"/> Concrete Builder |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Railroad Positions | <input type="checkbox"/> Structural Engineer |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Gas Engine Operating | <input type="checkbox"/> Chemistry |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Civil Engineer | <input type="checkbox"/> Pharmacy |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Surveying and Mapping | <input type="checkbox"/> Automobile Work |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Metallurgy | <input type="checkbox"/> Airplane Engines |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mining | <input type="checkbox"/> Agriculture and Poultry |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Steam Engineering | <input type="checkbox"/> Mathematics |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Radio | |

Name.....
Street..... 3-27-23
Address.....
City.....State.....

Occupation.....
Persons residing in Canada should send this coupon to the International Correspondence Schools Canadian, Limited, Montreal, Canada.

$2 DOWN BRINGS YOU THIS 14-KT. WHITE GOLD WRIST WATCH

SMALL SIZE 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL

PLATINUM STYLE

14 Kt. Solid White Gold Wrist Watch
Latest Oval Shape, beautifully engraved. Silk Ribbon Band. Guaranteed Ruby and Sapphire Jeweled Movement Perfect Time-keeper. Send only $2.00 down, watch comes to you all charges paid. You have 30 days' time to convince yourself of its accurate timekeeping. If not entirely satisfied, return watch and your deposit will be promptly refunded. If satisfied, send us $2. a month for 8 months, full price only $18. Retail jewelers charge $30 cash for same watches. Take advantage of our 30 day trial plan. Order yours now.

GUARANTY WATCH CO. 154 Nassau Street Dept. O-10 New York

Divine Discontent (Continued from page 76)

ALMA: But where are there any true artists . . . on the screen? Who is to say whether they are true or not? Where is the celluloid Bernhardt?

MYSELF: Non-existent.

ALMA: Exactly. Oh, there are touches of genius, I know. I could name several. . . . But even so. On the other hand, if one can write one can defy time, all the time there is. Youth can pass and beauty can fade and still the gift can remain, one's own, independently.

MYSELF: What type of writing are you doing?

ALMA: Fiction. Short stories. Friends of mine, critics, shall I say, tell me that my ideas are good, but my treatment can be improved upon. That's enough encouragement to begin with. I'm going to keep on trying. The fact is, that I admire most those people, men or women, who are able to sacrifice everything, fame, comfort, glory, for the sake of the thing they want most to do and can do the best. I could bow down and worship a man or a woman who can live in a garret on twenty-five cents a day in order to do the thing they believe in. That's what dissatisfies me with myself. I have constantly the feeling that what I am doing is impermanent, unimportant and soon forgotten.

MYSELF: You are probably alone in that opinion. Perhaps the continued appreciation of "Enemies of Women" will help you to see that.

ALMA: If I could do something greater than a mere picture. "Driven," for instance. Did you see that? There was something tremendous and epochal. That was more than a mere picture. And yet the man who made that has turned to the making of "Six Days." Just another movie. The pity of that sort of thing is what hurts me; is what gives me this poignant dissatisfaction with myself.

* * *

The conversation went from there to other things. Lighter, lesser things, and it wasn't until after I had left Alma that I thought of what I should have said to her . . . which was, that this very dissatisfaction and restiveness of hers is the tormenting fire of genius, the lack of which she was lamenting. Hers are the growing pains of Art. And when one is suffering from growing pains one is passing from the adolescence of artistry into the maturity that endures.

Ave, Alma.

She Found A Better Way To Reduce Her Fat

She did not have to go to the trouble of diet, exercise or unpleasant greases and salves. She found a better way, which aids the digestive organs to turn food into muscle, bone and sinew instead of fat.

She used Marmola Prescription Tablets, which are made from the famous Marmola prescription. They aid the digestive system to obtain the full nutriment of food. They will allow you to eat many kinds of food without the necessity of dieting or exercising.

Thousands have found that the Marmola Prescription Tablets give complete relief from obesity. And when the accumulation of fat is checked, reduction to normal, healthy weight soon follows.

All good drug stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar a box. Ask your druggist for them, or order direct and they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid.

MARMOLA COMPANY

239 Garfield Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE Home Study Courses

Cooking, Sewing, Diet, Catering, Nursing, etc. [19th year.] For homemakers, teachers, demonstrators, tea room, luncheon, inst. mgrs., etc. Send for 80-page illus. hand-book, "The Profession of Home-Making", it's FREE.

American School of Home Economics, 852 E. 58th St., Chicago

Will You Take Cash For Your Spare Time?

What is your spare time worth? Will you take $15 to $35 a week for one hour, two hours or three hours a day? Read my offer:

I must have at once a limited number of refined, cultured women in every community who will take cash for their spare time. An amazing new scientific discovery has been made, which assures radiant beauty to every woman—in five days. Flaky, dry skins become smooth, soft and transparent; oily, pimply skins are transformed into velvety fine texture complexions; normal skins suffering from the use of improper cosmetics are immediately restored to natural, rose petal softness and beauty. A big profit is ready and waiting for just telling other women where they can get this wonderful new discovery. Just your spare time will pay you well.

$40 The First Week

Mrs. J. M. Kelley of Iowa, who only wanted pin money, earned $40 the first week. Mrs. E. J. Hink made $50.40 in one week. Others are making from $15 to $35 a week.

Beauty Outfit FREE

If you want to turn your spare time into money, write me immediately and I'll explain the whole wonderful plan to you and tell you how you can secure my Beauty Outfit FREE. No obligation. I will finance you. You can start earning money at once if you write to me now.

MARIE FRANZAN,

Dept. 1410, 2707 Cottage Grove Av., Chicago, Ill.

You Can Learn In Ten Minutes

by my method what would ordinarily take three hours any other way. And to prove it I will send you absolutely free the first two lessons of my course. This is positively the surest and safest way to

LEARN PIANO OR ORGAN

Absolutely no previous training necessary to become an accomplished musician by my scientific method. All lessons are so clearly written a school child can master them. Yet the course is so thorough it qualifies you for professional work, either as an instructor of music or as a professional organist or pianist. Your progress will be so rapid you will be able to

PLAY MUSIC FROM NOTES IN SIX LESSONS

Write immediately for full particulars and sample lessons

PROF. JOHN A. O'SHEA, Musical Director
Room 4 Boston Academy of Music
120 Sutherland Road Boston, Mass.

MAKE THOSE ANKLES SLIM

Beautiful... Appealing... Enticing

The process is simple, painless, and almost instantaneous. No expensive massage creams, no medical or electric treatments, no strips of rubber to bind and cause discomfort.

Before-After

using the DELRAY ANKLE REDUCER

Works While You Sleep

Slip them on when you go to bed. In the morning your ankles are smaller. Reduces and prevents swollen and "puffed" ankles. Permits low shoes all year round. Slip on and off as a glove. Used by society women and actresses everywhere, and endorsed by the medical profession. Can be worn during the day with heavy silk stockings without detection.

SEND NO MONEY

Simply send us size of ankle and fullest part of calf, and we will send you in plain wrapper a pair of DELRAY ANKLE REDUCERS designed to shape your ankles to fairy slimmness. On arrival pay postman $3.25 (we pay all postage), and start reducing at once and painlessly. You will notice results immediately. Retain and support your shapely ankles when dancing, by wearing them. ACT NOW before the price is raised.

DELRAY MFG. CO.
Dept. 13, New York City
925 Broadway.

BLUE WHITE Luxite Diamond
If you can tell it from a Diamond Send it Back!

1 CARAT RINGS $2.98. Not one diamond in a thousand has the blue, dazzling brilliancy of "Luxite Diamonds." They're PERFECT, few diamonds are! Stand acid and all other tests. Only experts can tell you haven't paid $150.00.

Hand engraved solitaire ring 14K gold 5., guaranteed!

$2.98 C.O.D.

DON'T SEND A PENNY! Send only name, address and paper strip which fits end to end around finger. When ring comes deposit only $2.98 with postman. We pay postage! Money back if not delighted.

Beautiful full-size BAR PIN, set with Luxite Diamonds, platinum finish, free with ring.

GARFIELD IMPORTING CO., 3839 W. ROOSEVELT RD
Dept. 309-A, CHICAGO

The Movie Encyclopaedia

(Continued from page 73)

M. M. 21.—So you want to see more of Cyril Ring, who played in "Back Home and Broke." All right. Cyril, send along some photos.

BARON VON F.—Salute, my king! I will quote your letter—"Aha! My erudite friend! Permit me to quote you—"Things are never masterpieces when they first appear; they become masterpieces afterwards." Would it not be more correct to say that they are recognized as masterpieces . . . afterwards? However—permit me, also to observe that I enjoy your question box—not for the questions and answers—but for your delightful philosophic injections. I do hope that they are received with due consideration." I thank you with all my heart for your very kind words. Write me again—do.

DOROTHY L.—You know what Robert Louis Stevenson says—"To marry is to domesticate the recording angel." Glenn Hunter in "The Scarecrow" and "West of the Water Tower." Mary Miles Minter is not playing now. Francis Bushman is thirty-eight, and Justine Johnston is in England.

GLORIA, NEW ORLEANS.—The truest mark of being born with great qualities is being born without envy. Gloria Swanson is twenty-six, five feet three and weighs 112. My error, Conway Tearle is forty-three instead of twenty-three. Norma Talmadge married to Joseph Schenck. Thomas Meighan in "Homeward Bound" and Conrad Nagel is twenty-seven.

ALICE G. BELMAR.—Well, eat-well is drink-well's brother. Wallace Reid and Gloria Swanson in "The Affairs of Anatol." Viola Dana and Malcolm McGregor in "The Noise in Newboro," and "The Social Code." Write to Warner Brothers for Marie Prevost's picture. Claire Windsor is not married now and she has a son Billie. Address Marguerite de la Motte, Mayer Studios, 3800 Mission Road, Los Angeles, Cal. You're very welcome.

ETHEL W.—What beautiful stationery. Barbara La Marr at Universal, Universal City, Cal. Ramon Navarro is twenty-four, not married, born in Mexico—a dancer and playing in "Scaramouche." Save!

THELMA O.; CAROLYN R.; MARGARET I.; GLENNA P.; DE ROCHE CRAZE; BETTY AND JACK; PEGGY; GERENE; FRANNIE P.; SWEET SIXTEEN; SIS HOPKINS; MAY H.; AND REX D.; Sorry to have to put you in the alsorans, but your questions have all been answered up above. Come again.

ANSELL W.—Quien sabe? Some say Nita Naldi is Italian descent. Norma Talmadge is Mrs. Joseph Schenck and she has lovely brown eyes. So long for tonight.

PAT.—That sure was a clever letter of yours. Norma Talmadge has been married about six years now. No children.

JEAN ACKER ADMIRER.—I am glad you do not think this department is dry. It would be if I allowed cobwebs to collect in my brain works. Why Jean Acker is twenty-five, five feet three, weighs one hundred and fifteen pounds, has blue eyes and brown hair. She hasn't been playing in pictures recently. You might try Loew's Circuit, 1540 Broadway, New York City. Thanks a lot.

ZELDA F.—Yes, Gloria Swanson is her right name. Cant tell you why she wears a sad look all the time. Didn't know she did. She has auburn hair. Yes, and some drink healths till they drink away their own health.

16 Latest Fox Trots and Waltzes

FOX TROTS

1. Carol a Mammy
2. Swingin' Down the Lane
3. Yeah We Have No Bananas
4. Bambalina
5. Wild Flower
6. Harcoy Google
7. Caroling in the Mornin'
8. Who's Sorry Now
9. Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean
10. I Love Me
11. Parade of the Wooden Soldiers
12. Sun Kist Rose
13. You Know You Belong to Somebody Else

WALTZES

14. Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses
15. Red Moon
16. Mellow Moon

$2.98 For all

Eight Full-Size Double Face 10 Inch Records

Here is the greatest phonograph-record bargain ever offered! All brand-new records, right straight from factory to you! The very latest Broadway hits—the most popular dance music of today. All New York is dancing to these wonderful, catchy, swingy Fox Trots and Waltzes. Eight full size ten-inch brand-new records which play on BOTH SIDES, giving you SIXTEEN complete selections, PLAYED BEAUTIFULLY by the most wonderful DANCE ORCHESTRAS you ever heard! A wonderful collection of latest hits—ALL FOR ONLY $2.98. Never before such a bargain in up-to-the-minute records!

Send No Money Try these records for 10 days in your own home. Note the beauty of recording, the catchiness of the tunes and the wonderful volume and clearness of tone. Send no money now—just give postman $2.98 plus delivery charges on arrival. If not delighted with your bargain return records and we will refund money and pay the postage BOTH WAYS. This low price made possible by manufacturing in enormous quantities and selling direct to users. Do not wait! Mail coupon or postal to

Nat. Music Lovers, Inc., Dept. 214-A, 354 4th Ave., N.Y.

Nat. Music Lovers, Inc., Dept. 214-A, 354 Fourth Ave., N. Y.

Please send me for 10 days' trial, your collection of 16 Fox Trots and Waltzes on eight double-face ten-inch records, guaranteed equal to any records made. I will pay the postman only $2.98 plus few cents delivery charges on arrival. This is not to be considered a purchase, however. If the records do not come up to my expectations, I reserve the right to return them at any time within 10 days and you will refund my money.

You may also send me Prof. Morgan D. Stern's Record Course in Dancing, for which I will pay an additional 98 cents upon delivery.

Name.....
Address.....
City..... State.....

Saxophone Book FREE

Every music lover should send for a copy of this interesting book on the history and development of the Saxophone.

It tells which Saxophone takes violin, cello and bass parts, and many other things you would like to know. Also illustrates first lesson. Send coupon your free copy.

Saxophone Players in Big Demand

For Bands and Orchestras, for church, lodge and school musical affairs, for social and home entertainment, the Saxophone is the most popular instrument and one of the most beautiful. A good Saxophone player is always popular socially and enjoys many opportunities to earn money. Saxophone players are always in demand for dance orchestras. Every town should have a Saxophone quartette or orchestra.

BUESCHER Saxophone

Easiest of all wind instruments to play and one of the most beautiful. With the aid of the first three lessons, which are sent free (upon request) with each new Saxophone, the scale can be mastered in an hour; in a few weeks you can be playing popular music. Practice is a pleasure because you learn so quickly. You can take your place in a band within 90 days, if you so desire.

Free Trial—Easy Payments

You may have six days' free trial of any Buescher Grand Saxophone, Cornet, Trumpet, Trombone or other instrument. Easy terms of payment can be arranged. Mention the instrument interested in and a complete catalogue will be mailed to you free. (95)

Buescher Band Instrument Co.

Everything in Band and Orchestra Instruments

2095 Buescher Block Elkhart, Indiana

Buescher Band Instrument Co.
2095 Buescher Block, Elkhart, Ind.

Gentlemen:
I am interested in the instrument checked below:
Saxophone..... Cornet..... Trombone..... Trumpet.....
(Mention any other instrument interested in.)

Name.....
Street Address.....
Town..... State.....

Your Ideal Watch At Last

The Sensationally Popular New Styles.

Handsome watches you've seen. Designs like those used on highest priced watches. Low prices possible through enormous cash sales. First is Ladies' Watch of 14K White Gold filled (now all the rage); 25 years guarantee on tonneau shape case; richly carved; 6 jewel imported movement; hand-made dial, sapphire crown, gros grain ribbon; neat clasp. One year guarantee. Sensational Offer at $6.75. Available in rectangular case with rectangular movement at $11.75. Don't wait—only a limited number. SEND NO MONEY. We Prepay Postage. You pay postman. No risk—money back promptly if not satisfied. These are good timekeepers. Write to-day for yours.

Precious Wares Co.

ART JEWELRY

389 FIFTH AVE., DEPT. 5210
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Foreign Films

(Continued from page 25)

film called "The Poor Mother" (La Madre Folle) in which his wife, Soava Gallone, one of the finest actresses in Italy, plays a double rôle. In this picture she confirms her reputation as a wonderful comedian as "the poor mother," and a beautiful actress as the daughter.

RUSSIA

Russian film fans are always very busy. After the success reported by the film "Polikuchka," two other photoplays have been completed.

One of them is called "Jola" and deals, according to an old Russian legend, with the story of a woman somnambulist.

The other is "The Defeat of Satan" and is another legend of the time before Jesus Christ.

Both are very characteristic, as they are full of real Russian atmosphere (many scenes were shot in the Russian mountains or near the river Volga) and depict, of course, Russian customs and habits.

GERMANY

It is a pity that the cinema was not yet discovered when Christopher Columbus discovered America, if it had been, many cameramen would have certainly accompanied him in his long journey. But producers of different countries now wish to immortalize on the screen the name of the famous discoverer, and different pictures have been made which depict his life.

A few years ago—that is, near the end of the war—France sent Georges Wague to discover America in a picture entitled "The Adventure of Christopher Columbus." Altho this was very well acted, the photography and the continuity were not very satisfactory. And now Germany has just sent one of her actors, Albert Bassermann, to discover in his turn, the New World.

A very characteristic German picture is "Chaos." It is an astronomical and comic picture, quite original and attractive. It represents the type in which the Germans seem to excel.

AUSTRIA

I had the opportunity of seeing lately "Samson and Delilah," the new picture produced at the studios of the Vita-Film in Vienna. Of course it tells us the Biblical story, but another story is in it of the strongest man and the girl who won him. This picture is one of the best Austria has so far produced and the acting of Maria Corda, the Austrian star, is perfect.

New Way to Have Beautiful Lashes

One touch with a new kind of liquid and even the scantiest lashes are made to appear long, heavy, beautiful. If used on the brows it makes them well-arched and lustrous. Yet so remarkable is this new liquid discovery that it is in itself invisible. There is no "made-up" besided effect. It is as though the eyes were framed in new fascination—instantly given a new natural beauty.

The new discovery—already used by thousands—is called Lashbrow Liquid. It absolutely will not run, rub off or smear. Easily applied with a dainty brush that accompanies each bottle.

Unlike other eyelash preparations, Lashbrow Liquid does not harden the lashes, cause them to become brittle and break off. It contains a pure natural oil which gives to the lashes a delicate silky texture.

FREE TRIAL

For introductory purposes, we will send you free a generous supply of Lashbrow Liquid. And we will include a trial size of another Lashbrow product, Lashbrow Pomade, which quickly stimulates the growth of the brows and lashes. Clip this announcement and send it at once to Lashbrow Laboratories, Dept. 2310, 37 West 20th Street, New York City. Enclose 10c. to cover cost of packing and shipping.

LASHBROW

LIQUID

Remember the Name

PIMPLY SKIN made WELL

When a few applications of this wonder working lotion has cleared faces of pimples, blackheads, acne eruptions on the face or body, enlarged pores, oily or shiny skin, you can realize why CLEAR-TONE has been tested and approved in over 100,000 Test Cases. The simplicity of the treatment. The Story of How I Cured Myself are all explained in my free booklet. Write for your copy today and learn of the results gotten by thousands of men and women.

E. S. GIVENS
223 CHEMICAL BLDG. KANSAS CITY, MO.

FREE BEAUTY BOOKLET

explains how the FAMOUS YOUTH-AMI SKIN PEELE PREPARATION removes all surface blemishes, Pimples, Blackheads, Eczema, Discolorations, etc. Wonderful results proven. GUARANTEED absolutely Painless and Harmless. Produces healthy new skin as Nature intended you to have. Send TO-DAY for full details and booklet, "THE MAGIC OF A NEW SKIN."

YOUTH-AMI CO., 1658 Broadway, Dept. 36, New York

SLEEVELESS GOWNS AND SHEER FABRICS

and present craze for dancing has made it necessary to remove superfluous hair in order to have freedom of movement, unhampered grace and modest elegance.

MODENE

will instantly dissolve and remove Hair on the Face, Neck, on or under the Arms without the slightest injury to the most delicate skin. For thirty years MODENE has stood the test and received the endorsement of thousands of people of refinement. MODENE for sale by all Druggists or by mail, postpaid, $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. MODENE MFG. CO., CINCINNATI, O.

WRITE FOR THE MOVIES

TURN YOUR TALENT INTO MONEY
Stories Wanted by Producers

A valuable money making field. Try it! Mail us an idea, in any form, at once for free examination and criticism. We give our honest services to amateurs who would convert their thoughts into dollars. No experience necessary. Free booklet sent on request.

Continental Photoplay Studio
154 Nassau St., New York
Suite 1112-14, Dept. G.

Delightful

The charm of good old winter-green—a flavor you're sure to like—its use is in every way

"a sensible habit"

Good for digestion

BEEMAN'S Pepsin Gum

American Chicle Co.

BECOME A PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER

EARNING $35 TO $125 A WEEK

Three to six months' course. Motion Picture, Commercial, Portraiture, Practical Instruction, Modern Equipment. Ask for Catalog No. 18.

N. Y. INSTITUTE OF PHOTOGRAPHY
NEW YORK CHICAGO BROOKLYN
141 W. 36th St. 630 So. Wabash Ave. 505 State St.

WRITE FOR THE MOVIES

Ideas for moving picture plays wanted by producers. Big prices paid for accepted material. Submit ideas in any form at once for our immediate examination. Or write for FREE PHOTOPLAY BOOKLET and details of our service to Authors.

BRISTOL PHOTOPLAY STUDIOS
Suite 601F Bristol Building, New York

EARN $250 PER UP TO $250 MO.

EXPENSES PAID

MEN WANTED!

BE A RAILWAY TRAFFIC INSPECTOR

Positions Open—Must Be Filled
Fascinating work with chance to travel. Meet big rail way executives; advance rapidly; field uncrowded. Any average man can quickly qualify.

Your Protection
You take no risk. Read Guarantee Notice. Hundreds of successful graduates. You can succeed; we prepare you in 3 mos. spare time at home.

GUARANTEE
Our guarantee states that tuition will be refunded to you if, upon graduation, positions not obtained, paying at least $110 per mo. and expenses.

Don't delay; send coupon today for Booklet No. D-59 giving full particulars.
Standard Business Training Institute
Buffalo, N. Y.

Standard Business Train. Ins. Buffalo, N. Y.
Send me, entirely free, Booklet No. D-59 giving full particulars about course in Railway Traffic Inspection.
Name.....
Street.....
City.....

(Eighty-seven)

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 74)

ture together. At last it came not long ago in "The Magic Skin," being produced by the Achievement Films at Goldwyns. And when it came, Carmel found that her part required her to push Bessie over a cliff to her doom and such. Discouraging for sisterly love. Huh?

* * *

Erich von Stroheim is going to take his company to Death Valley for the final scenes of "Greed." At the height of the August heat which they will be in the midst of, Death Valley is a grand little summer resort. The last prospector who got out this summer reported the thermometer as standing at 172.

* * *

The most interesting project I know of in films is the announced intention of King Vidor to make a picture from Gulliver's Travels. He says he has had it in mind for years but never before has had the opportunity. Just at present, Mr. Vidor is filming "Wild Oranges."

* * *

Lloyd Hughes is one leading man who comes straight out with the truth. As a relief from the imagined aristocratic origins of most of them, Lloyd announces to the world that his father was a locomotive engineer in Arizona and before becoming a screen actor he was a butcher boy.

* * *

Lois Weber has thrown up her hands in disgust. She says, what with censors who murder the stories and producers who insist upon casting the pictures and directing the directors, she is thru. She is going to take a vacation until they come to their senses.

* * *

It's all off again with Pola and Charlie. Pola says she will never be Mrs. Chaplin, so that's the end of that. This shocking truth was borne in upon the public of Hollywood last week when both Charlie and Pola attended a big hotel opening. But Charlie was with Leonore Ulric while Pola was with "Big Bill" Tilden and Manuel Alonzo, the tennis players. "I realized five weeks ago that it was an impossibility," said Pola. "Charlie is lacking in all matrimonial requirements, he is too temperamental. I'm glad it's over now. I can think of my work again."

Leonore Ulric laughed when she was asked if she had matrimonial designs upon Charlie. "Not for me," she said briefly.

Earle E. Liederman as he is to-day

Pills Never Made Muscles

Wishing Never Brought Strength

NO one can paste muscles onto your arms and shoulders. If you wish a strong, healthy body, you must work for it. And if you don't have one, you are doomed to a life of misery. Modern science has taught us that we must keep our bodies physically fit or our mental powers will soon exhaust themselves. That is why the successful business man resorts to golf and other active pastimes.

Examine Yourself

Do you have the strong robust body which keeps you fit at all times to tackle the daily tasks confronting you—always looking for bigger things to do? Do you jump out of bed in the morning full of pep; with a keen appetite and a longing to enter the day's activities? Do you finish your daily tasks still thrilling with pep and vitality? Or do you arise only half awake and go through a languid day?

PEP UP!

Don't let it get you, fellows. Come on out of that shell and make a real he man of yourself. Build out those skinny arms and that flat chest. Let me put some real pep in your old backbone and put an armor plate of muscle on you that will make you actually thrill with ambition. I can do it. I guarantee to do it. I will put one full inch on your arm in just 30 days and from then on, just watch 'em grow. This is no lillo boast. It's the real works. A genuine guarantee. Come on now. Get on the job and make me prove it.

Send for My New Book "MUSCULAR DEVELOPMENT" It Is Free

This will show you some of my remarkable achievements. Sixty-four pages with dozens and dozens of full page photographs of myself and a number of my pupils. Read what they say about my system. Don't take my word for it. This book will be an impetus, an inspiration to every red-blooded man. All I ask is the price of wrapping and postage—10 cents. Remember this does not obligate you in any way, so don't delay one minute. This may be the turning point in your life. Tear off the coupon and mail at once—now, while it is on your mind.

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN
Dept. 1810, 305 Broadway, New York City

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN
Dept. 1810, 305 Broadway, New York City

Dear Sir:—I enclose herewith 10 cents, for which you are to send me, without any obligation on my part whatever, a copy of your latest book, "Muscular Development." (Please write or print plainly.)

Name.....
Street.....
City..... State.....

To Retain those Eyes of Youth

One's age first begins to show about the EYES. But women are often unmindful of this, and through neglect or improper care allow their EYES to become discolored, dull and heavy looking.

Murine will do much to preserve and enhance the natural beauty of the EYES. It quickly soothes away discoloration and imparts a youthful sparkle to even the most neglected EYES.

Murine is delightfully refreshing after reading, sewing, motoring and all outdoor activities. It's good for the EYES—contains no belladonna or other harmful ingredients.

Our attractively illustrated book, "Beauty Lies Within the Eyes," tells how to properly care for your Eyes, Brows and Lashes, and thus enhance their beauty. Send for a copy of this helpful book. It's FREE.

The Murine Company
Dept. 23, Chicago

MURINE

FOR YOUR EYES

Widely Used Since 1889

Reduce Your Flesh

in spots—
Arms, Legs, Bust
Double Chin, etc.

In fact, the entire body, or any part, can be reduced without dieting by dissolving the fat through perspiration produced by wearing my garments.

Anklets, for reducing and shaping the ankles. Send ankle measurement.
Per pair $7.00
Extrahigh . 9.00

Brassiere—to reduce bust and diaphragm . . . $7.00
Neck and Chin Reducer 3.50
Double Chin Reducer . 2.50

Send for Illustrated Booklet

Dr. JEANNE M. C. WALTER
FAMOUS MEDICATED REDUCING RUBBER GARMENTS
389 Fifth Avenue, New York City
Office entrance near 36th St., Suite 606

25 YEARS THE STANDARD TRAINING SCHOOL FOR THEATRE ARTS

ALVIENE SCHOOL OF DRAMATIC ARTS

FOUR SCHOOLS IN ONE. PRACTICAL STAGE TRAINING. THE SCHOOL'S STUDENTS STOCK THEATRE AFFORD PUBLIC STAGE APPEARANCES

Write for catalogue mentioning study desired to Secretary
ALVIENE SCHOOLS, Suite 17
43 West 72nd Street
Bet. B'way & Central Park West, New York

DRAMA ORATORY PHOTO PLAY MUSICAL COMEDY DANCE ARTS

The Rime of the Ancient Ham

(Continued from page 51)

Committing crimes in pantomime
While Art with scorn was spurned.

And rubbeth it in

And zanies, nit-wits, dumbbells, mimes,
Who ne'er had played a part,
Were crowned with laurel wreath and gold
By this Caliban of Art.

He meeteth up with a Movie Queen

As happened it, I once bespoke
A sceptered Movie Queen.
She earned a fabulous sum each week,
This Miss of seventeen.

And entreteeth her to wise him up about how she puts it over

'Oh, child,' I said,
'please spell for me
Your secret of success.
What is the chicanery that holds
The public in duress?'

The dame giveth him an earful of apple sauce

'Well, sir,' she said, 'it's this a-way,
So far as I can tell.
When my first picture hit the screen,
The Public simply fell!

Daisy Dumbell was starred in a piece but it was never released. The censors objected to the word "pajamas"

Of course, you see, I'm kinda cute,
In weepy, heart-sick dramas.
You'd ought to see my latest hit,
It's called, "The Cat's Pajamas."

The Ham concludeth that Art has been vamped by a Flapper

Alas! I saw things clearly then.
Old Art, the doting fool,
Had been beguiled by simpering youth,
And was youth's easy tool.

Ain't it the truth?

Was like a vain and foolish man,
Who, when the years betide,
Puts off his old and faithful spouse,
And takes a younger bride."

Pert

The Waterproof Rouge

Lasts all day

BLITHE and debonair is she who uses PERT, for she has all the admiration that her own glad youth demands.

PERT is a cream rouge easy to apply and delightfully natural in effect. Orange-colored in the jar, it turns to a becoming pink as soon as it touches the skin. PERT is perspiration proof. That is why it lasts all day or evening; only cold cream or soap and water will remove it.

75c a jar. At drug or department stores or by mail.

Send a dime today for a sample of PERT Rouge, enough to keep your cheeks rosy for days. For another dime you will receive a sample of WINX, the liquid for darkening the lashes

ROSS COMPANY
78 Grand St.
New York

Women! MAKE MONEY

Wearing this Hosiery!

WEAR—at OUR expense—silk hosiery which looks, fits and wears so much better and holds its shape and appearance of "newness" so much longer than any other hosiery that your friends will want to know where you got it. We pay you for telling them. Here's the most delightful way you ever heard of to make $15 weekly and get your own hosiery free. Write for amazing plan today. No obligation. Address Mrs. Mary MacDonald, care of Wearplus Co. 150 Wearplus Ave., Bay City, Mich.

Beautiful silk hosiery FREE if you act quick.

DIAMONDS

1/2 CARAT $99.00

YOU SAVE 40%

We are direct importers of perfectly cut, sparkling, brilliant, blue-white, genuine diamonds, which we now offer at only $197.00 per carat from 1-8 carats to 2 carats. The former price was $325.00 per carat. YOU SAVE 40 PERCENT.

30 DAYS FREE TRIAL

You can send cash with order, or we will send to your bank or express office for inspection before paying. If you can duplicate these diamonds for less than $325.00 per carat, we will return your money. Guarantee Certificate Given.

WRITE FOR CATALOG

You should know the exact weight and quality of any diamond you buy. Our catalog tells you, and it brings a large jewelry store into your home. You save 40 per cent when you buy from us. $1,000,000.00 back up our guarantee.

B. GUTTER & SONS ESTD. 1879
172 Nassau St., Dept. 1075, New York

MAKE MONEY AT HOME

15 to 50 Dollars a week for your Spare Time—No Canvassing—Experience Unnecessary. Write today for illustrated Booklet and Free Working Outfit.

UNITED SHOW CARD STUDIOS, 215 Dinan Bldg., Detroit, Michigan

IT'S OFF because IT'S OUT

—hundreds of hairs in an instant. That's why ZIP is so successful and so popular with Beauty Shops, Specialists, Actresses and women of good judgment!

ZIP does more than merely remove surface hair. It actually attacks the cause under the skin, and thus quickly, gently and painlessly lifts out the hairs with the roots. The process seems almost miraculous, but my eighteen years of success in giving treatments with ZIP, and the colossal increase in sales, proves that it is the scientifically correct way to destroy the growth. Whatever preparation you use, demand that you see the roots after taking treatment and then be sure that you are attacking the cause.

ZIP is easily applied at home, pleasantly fragrant, effective and absolutely harmless. It leaves the skin soft and smooth, pores contracted, and like magic your skin becomes adorable.

Guaranteed on money back basis.

FREE DEMONSTRATION at my Salon.

Write for FREE BOOK "Beauty's Greatest Secret," FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.

Dept. 654
562 Fifth Avenue
(Ent. on 46th St.)
New York

Why Good Dancers Are Popular

EVERYONE admires and wants to dance with the person who knows the latest steps. There is no need of being a wall-flower! By my remarkable new easy method, anyone can learn the newest dances at home in a few hours. Much less expensive than from a personal teacher. No music or partner needed. So simple even a child can learn quickly. 90,000 have learned dancing by mail. Your own success is guaranteed.

FIVE DANCING LESSONS FREE

To prove I can quickly and easily make you an accomplished dancer I will send you FREE, in plain cover, a lesson in Fox Trot, Secret of Leading, How to Gain Confidence, How to Follow and How to Avoid Embarrassing Mistakes. To help pay the cost of handling, mailing, etc., send 25c. Learn in private—surprise your friends. Act now and be a good dancer soon!

ARTHUR MURRAY
Studio 839, 290 Broadway, New York

Become a Dancing Teacher Earn $5,000 to $10,000 a year. Write for booklet 39 to Arthur Murray at above address

SELL YOUR SPARE TIME

You can earn $15 to $50 a week writing show cards in your own home.—No canvassing.—A pleasant profitable profession easily and quickly learned by our new simple graphic block system. Artistic ability not necessary.—We teach you how, and supply you with work.—Distance no object. Full particulars and booklet free.

WILSON METHODS LIMITED—DEPT. E
64 East Richmond, Toronto, Canada.

The Fan comes out of his trance and says a few sweet words for the little dancer

The Movie Fan spoke up at this.
"I've saw that little fluff,
In lots o' movie plays.
And say!
She sure can strut her stuff!

And wants to know why the Ham pcketh on him with his tale of woe.

But hissen. Bo! You've lit the rocks,
As a one-eyed guy could see.
But why your mournful song and dance Unload on Little Me?"

The Ham explains that he's gotta tell his troubles to somebody, or bust

"Ah, Sir! At times my soul is torn
With dire and woe-ful agony.
And till my doleful tale is told,
It will not set me free.

And how he unloads on anybody that's got a loose ear

I go from cinema door to door,
With my strange power of speech,
And when I can a listener find,
My tale to him I teach."

The Fan beats it and gets in the show in time to see the Boat races and the Skl jumpers

"All right, Old Coot,
I've heard your spiel.
It's a sad tale, too,
at that.
But I gotta see the show inside.
Here's where I leave you flat."

Flashes from the Eastern Stars

(Continued from page 57)

Vivienne Segal, prima donna of "Adrienne," and Robert Ames, who is appearing in "We've Got to Have Money," were married recently in Maryland.

Mae Marsh has signed a contract to star in the Warner Brothers' picturization of David Belasco's play, "Daddies." She has left for the Coast.

Ralph Graves is to play opposite Marion Davies in her new Cosmopolitan picture, "Yolanda," which has started at the Forty-fourth Street studio. He will have the romantic rôle of Prince Maximilian. Lynn Harding, who is to play Charles the Rash of Burgundy, has arrived from London to begin work. "Yo-

Gray Hair Unnecessary

As I Have Proved

I proved it many years ago by restoring the original color to my own prematurely gray hair with the same Restorer I now offer you. This time-tested preparation never fails, as hundreds of thousands of gray haired people since have learned.

There is not space in this advertisement to tell my story. Send for Free Trial bottle and learn all.

Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer is a clear, colorless liquid, clean as water. No greasy sediment to make your hair sticky and stringy, nothing to wash or rub off. Application easy, restored color perfect, in any light. Faded or discolored hair just as surely and safely restored as hair naturally gray.

FREE Trial Bottle Tells the Story

Experience my teacher

I invented my scientific hair color restorer to bring back the original color to my own hair which was prematurely gray. Since, millions have used it and so will millions more. It is the most popular and biggest selling preparation of its kind in the world.

Now I have something new to offer and almost as important, in the shape of a new preparatory powder which puts your hair in perfect condition for restoration. This powder is a recent discovery of my laboratories and its action is that of tonic and antiseptic. A package now comes with each full sized bottle and a trial sized package is included in my special patented free trial outfit. I urge you to send for this patented outfit today and prove how easily, surely and beneficially you can restore your own gray hair to its natural color.

Mail coupon today

Send today for the special patented Free Trial outfit which contains a trial bottle of my Restorer, and full instructions for making the convincing test on a single lock of hair. Indicate color of hair with X. Print name and address plainly. If possible, enclose a lock of your hair in your letter.

Mary T. Goldman's
Hair Color Restorer
Over 10,000,000 Bottles Sold

FREE TRIAL COUPON Please print your name and address

MARY T. GOLDMAN,
37 L. Goldman Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Please send your patented Free Trial Outfit. X shows color of hair. Black.... dark brown.... medium brown.... auburn (dark red).... light brown.... light auburn (light red).... blonde....

Name.....

Street..... City.....

SENT FOR $1

An astounding watch offer—highest quality, 21 Jewel, extra thin model.

STUDEBAKER The Insured Watch

The balance in easy monthly payments. The famous Studenaker—direct from the maker; insured for a lifetime. 2 Dial Styles; 8 adjustments—Choice 54 new Art Beauty Cases at lowest direct prices. Write for BOOK of advance Watch Styles. Sent Free!

Gold Chain FREE

For a limited time we are giving away FREE a Gold Chain with every Studenaker Insured Watch. Buy now and take advantage of it. Send for book of advance Watch Styles FREE!

WRITE!
Send to-day for details of $1 down and Free Chain Offer. Get a copy of Studenaker Book of Advance Watch Styles FREE!

STUDEBAKER WATCH CO., Dept. 3410 South Bend, Ind.

"There's Music in your Eyes, dear"

WHAT cared he what record she played? For him the music in her eyes—eyes now questioning, now dreaming, now mocking—was the joy of heaven on earth.

Are your eyes as lovely as they could be? You can greatly improve their beauty by caring for the lashes. Darken the lashes with WINX to make them appear longer and heavier. Apply it with the glass rod attached to the stopper—an immense improvement over the old unsanitary brush method of application. WINX dries instantly and lasts. Even perspiration or weeping at the theatre will not affect it. Absolutely harmless.

WINX (black or brown), 75 cents. To nourish the lashes and promote growth use colorless cream Lashlux at night. Cream Lashlux (black, brown or colorless), 50 cents. At drug or department stores or by mail.

Mail a dime today for a sample of WINX, large enough to keep your eyes beautiful for a week. For another dime you will receive a sample of PERT, the waterproof rouge, that stays on until you remove it

ROSS COMPANY
78 Grand Street New York

WINX

Waterproof

Superfluous HAIR all GONE

Forever removed by the Mahler Method which kills the hair root without pain or injuries to the skin in the privacy of your own home

Send today 3 stamps for Free Booklet

D. J. MAHLER CO., 70-B Mahler Park, Providence, R. I.

PIANO JAZZ

By Note or Ear. With or without music. Short Course. Adult beginners taught by mail. No teacher required. Self-Instruction Course for Advanced Pianists. Learn 67 styles of Bass, 180 Syncopated Effects, Blue Harmony, Oriental, Chime, Movie and Cafe Jazz, Trick Endings, Clever Breaks, Space Fillers, Sax Slurs, Triple Bass, Wicked Harmony, Blue Obligato, and 247 other Subjects, including Ear Playing. 110 pages of REAL Jazz, 25,000 words. A Postal brings our FREE Special Offer. Waterman Piano School, 250 Superba Theatre Bldg. Los Angeles, Calif.

You Can Easily Learn to Play Any Music on the

HAWAIIAN GUITAR

Just As Hawaiians Do—Native Instructors Teach You QUICKLY!

In Half an Hour You Will Be Playing "ALOHA". Soon You Will Be Winning Praise Everywhere Playing "Stumbling", "Three O'Clock in the Morning", "Hot Lips" and ALL Popular Music as Well as the Beautiful Hawaiian Melodies

Here's Proof of our Remarkable Course

Buchanan, Va.
First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc.
It has been two months since I have finished your course on the Hawaiian Guitar and I can play anything I wish. The course was all that could be desired and I am perfectly pleased with my playing ability since finishing your course.
Respectfully yours,
Louise R. Hammond

Koester School,
314 So. Franklin St.,
Chicago, Ill.
First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc.
I shall certainly be very glad to recommend your course whenever the chance is mine to do so. Mr. W. R. Johnson has not phoned me yet, and if he does not phone in a day or so, will write him. Am sending a letter to Miss Helen Slavik today which I think may help to secure her enrollment, and I shall be glad at any time to write a personal letter to anyone whom you may suggest.
Your former student,
W. L. Walker

Here's the chance you've been waiting for—the opportunity to play popular music quickly on the most entrancing instrument of the age—the Hawaiian Guitar. No previous musical knowledge necessary.

ONLY FOUR MOTIONS TO LEARN and these you acquire in a few minutes. No troublesome scales or runs, you begin to play harmonious chords immediately! We don't care if you never saw a note of music in your life, we guarantee to teach you to play just as the Hawaiians do!
We Furnish Everything—a Beautiful Hawaiian Guitar, Picks, etc., and 52 Pieces of Music FREE!

You have always wanted to play some instrument, so we have made it unusually easy for you by furnishing everything—a beautiful Hawaiian Guitar, complete Conservatory Course of instruction and 52 pieces of especially selected music.

No Other Course Teaches as Quickly and Easily

This is the only Conservatory Course where you get the personal instruction of Native Hawaiian Experts—Frank Ferers, Walter Kolo-moku, Lawrence Kalaluki and Carl Seville, famous the world over and the most noted makers of phonograph records, supervise your playing.

Mail Coupon for Details of FREE Offer
Don't wait another minute—clip, fill in and mail the coupon NOW and get full details of our remarkable offer to teach you how to play the Hawaiian Guitar just as the Hawaiians do.

Special Arrangements for Lessons if You Have Your Own Instrument
Special Courses under famous Teachers, Tenor-Banjo, Violin, Banjo-Ukelele and Ukelele. Fine Toned Instruments FREE!

FREE
This $15
Hawaiian
Guitar

You will be delighted with the fine tone of this splendid Hawaiian Guitar

First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc.,
Desk 49, 233 Broadway (Woolworth Bldg.) New York
Send me at once details about your 52 easy lessons and FREE Hawaiian Guitar offer!

Name.....
Address.....
Town..... State.....
Print name and address clearly.

landa" is an elaborate costume picture of the fifteenth century when Louis XI reigned over France and Edward IV over England. Robert G. Vignola is directing.

Seena Owen, who returned recently from Banff in the Canadian Rockies, has signed to star in Whitman Bennett's screen adaptation of "The Leavenworth Case," by Anna Katherine Green. Mr. Lionel Barrymore co-starred with her in "Unseeing Eyes," and among other functions they performed, while on location, was acting as judges in a baby show in which the contestants were swarthy little Indians.

Lloyd Hamilton, the motion-picture comedian, has left Los Angeles for New York where he will immediately begin production at the D. W. Griffith Studios in Mamaroneck, on his first five-reel comedy. The story in which he will appear is called "Black and White" and is the same production in which Al Jolson was rehearsing when he fled without notice to Europe.

Griffith is contemplating a film epic of the American Revolution. He has a scenario prepared and one star selected, Carol Dempster. It has been proposed that the Daughters of the American Revolution sponsor it.

George Pembroke, well-known juvenile lead on stage and screen, has signed up with George Beban for his current production to be made here in the East. Mr. Pembroke will be remembered for his work in support of William Faversham in "The Prince and the Pauper."

David Belasco has completed the installation of a new lighting equipment at the Belasco Theater. The outcome of scientific research and the result of years of experimental work, it will revolutionize stage lighting. He believes the most interesting, important and potential department of play production—aside from acting—is lighting. Heretofore, color lighting on the stage has been accomplished by the use of gelatin mediums. This process was and is unsatisfactory. Mr. Belasco's innovation will make it as extinct as the dodo.

Greenwich Village, New York's so-called Bohemia, with all its hokum, sophistication, and free thought, has been transferred this week to the Paramount studio in Long Island where Sam Wood is producing "His Children's Children." The scene shows a café in the village, a composite of the Pirates' Den, The Black

(Continued on page 92)

Special Announcement of Interest to Every Reader of

CLASSIC

CLASSIC is to have an addition. Effective with the November number, SHADOWLAND, the Brewster Publication expressing the arts, will be combined with CLASSIC, the Picture Book de Luxe. The new title will be CLASSIC AND SHADOWLAND.

October will be the last number of SHADOWLAND to be issued as an individual magazine, and will be on sale at all news-stands on the 23rd of September, at 50c per copy. Whether you have bought this magazine before or not, you should get the October SHADOWLAND. John H. Anderson, Sheldon Cheney, William McFee, Mary Fanton Roberts, Allan Ross Macdougall, Lydia Steptoe, Perceval Gibbon, Ernest A Grunsfeld, Jr., and a host of others have contributed to make this, the last to be issued under the exclusive title of SHADOWLAND, the most beautiful and interesting number ever put out. By all means tell your news-dealer to save a copy for you.

Subscribers for both the CLASSIC and SHADOWLAND will have their time on Classic extended to make up for copies still due on SHADOWLAND. SHADOWLAND subscribers whose names do not also appear on our CLASSIC mailing list will receive the new CLASSIC to fill out their unexpired time on SHADOWLAND.

Please remember the date for the new CLASSIC and if you are not a subscriber, tell your newsdealer to be sure and save the November CLASSIC AND SHADOWLAND for you, out October 12th—price 25c per copy.

BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, Inc.

175 Duffield Street

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Freckles fade while you sleep

No other beauty treatment is as easy and effortless as removing freckles with Stillman's Freckle Cream.

Simply apply it before retiring. While you sleep the freckles gently fade away, bringing back a clear white complexion. Safe and sure—in use since 1890. Look for the purple and gold box. On sale at all druggists in 50c and $1 sizes.

Write for "Beauty Parlor Secrets"

Just out! "Beauty Parlor Secrets," a booklet giving the details of expensive complexion and hair treatments, enabling you to enjoy them at home at low cost. Illustrates the fine points of make-up. Sent free. The Stillman Company, 3 Rosemary Lane, Aurora, Ill.

Stillman's Freckle Cream

Write for "Beauty Parlor Secrets" Free

LEARN

Movie Acting!

A fascinating profession that pays big. Would you like to know if you are adapted to this work? Send 10c for our Twelve-Hour Talent Tester or Key to Movie Acting Aptitude, and find whether or not you are suited to take up Movie Acting. A novel, instructive and valuable work. Send dime or stamps today. A large, interesting, illustrated Booklet on Movie Acting included FREE! FILM INFORMATION BUREAU, Sta. N., Jackson, Mich.

SEND US Most wonderful offer ever made! Send a dollar TO-DAY! No bother! No delay! Beautiful cluster 7 fiery brilliant blue-white diamonds, platinum set comes at once for 30 DAYS' FREE TRIAL. See for yourself that it looks exactly like a big solitaire. Try to buy it anywhere at our price. If satisfied, pay only $4.57 monthly—price $46.75. Otherwise return and we'll refund your dollar. Rush your dollar TO-DAY! FREE CATALOG—of other wonderful values, Diamonds, watches, etc. Best values—Your OWN TERMS (within reason). PAY-AS-YOU-PLEASE! Address Dept. 59-0

For this GENUINE DIAMOND CLUSTER

O.F. Bale & Co. EST. 1888
21-23 Maiden Lane New York

Flashes from the Eastern Stars

(Continued from page 90)

Cat and other familiar resorts in New York's artistic center. Tiny Tim, the candy man, who sells the soul candy, which "stirs the emotions and charms the heart," is one of the interesting figures of the Village who is shown in the scene. He peddles his candy to the extras on the set just as he does nightly in the cafés downtown.

News has just come from abroad that Pedro de Cordoba, well-known artist, is to be starred in "I Will Repay," the Henry Kolker production being made in Great Britain now. Prior to this Mr. de Cordoba played the lead in "The Fires of Fate," a picture made in Egypt. At present he may be seen with Madge Kennedy in "The Purple Highway."

A punster has had the nerve to submit this: "Ever since an ambitious publicity man put a whale on top of Pike's Peak to advertise Elmer Clifton's 'Down to the Sea in Ships' we have been expecting to hear that someone has hitched 'The Covered Wagon' to a star."

Daniel Carson Goodman is cutting and editing his third production for Equity, titled "The Daring Years." The cast includes Mildred Harris, Charles Emmet Mack, Mary Carr, Tyrone Powers and Clara Bow.

"New York is the logical place to make pictures," says Richard Rowland, general manager of First National, who confidently expects to be producing the major portion of First National's releases in the East. "The scenery in California," he goes on, "has been overworked and production on the Coast is so far away from the home office that it is impossible to watch proceedings. Until business can be regulated so that the heads of the company are at the scene of activity, we are going to continue to hear these complaints registered against the ridiculous cost of production. The man who furnishes the bank-roll and who is personally interested in the production of the picture should be able to consult with his director by word of mouth. Telegrams, telephone and letters have proved eminently unsatisfactory in many cases. There is no prettier country for outdoor scenes in the spring, summer and fall, than New York and vicinity. The Hudson River, the Adirondacks, Long Island and the Catskills furnish scenery that cannot be duplicated anywhere else in the world."

Note the remarkable improvement in the same eyes below

The Miracle of

Maybelline

Makes Every Face More Beautiful

A touch of MAYBELLINE works beauty wonders. Scant eyebrows and lashes are made to appear naturally dark, long and luxuriant. All the hidden loveliness of your eyes—their brilliance, depth and expression—is instantly revealed. The difference is remarkable. Girls and women everywhere, even the most beautiful actresses of the stage and screen, now realize that MAYBELLINE is the most important aid to beauty and use it regularly. MAYBELLINE is unlike other preparations, it is absolutely barbaless, greaseless and delightful to use. Does not spread and smear on the face or stiffen the lashes. Each dainty box contains mirror and brush.

Two Shades: Brown for Blondes, Black for Brunettes.

75c at Your Dealer's

Or direct from me, postpaid. Accept only genuine MAYBELLINE and your satisfaction is assured. Tear this out NOW as a reminder.

MAYBELLINE CO., 4750-56 Sheridan Road, Chicago

$3.00 On Genuine Diamonds per Month Send No Money

Only a few cents a day places this brilliant, fiery Blue White Genuine Perfect Cut Diamond on your finger. Sent promptly for free examination. One Whole Year to Pay. Regular $75 Value. Special $48.50.

Money Back Guarantee

Amazing Bargains—Prices smashed on Million dollar stock of Diamonds, Watches and Jewelry. We save you 1/3 and treat you for any article you want to buy. Satisfaction Guaranteed.

Write for FREE Catalog

Beautifully illustrated on sensational bargains, explains credit plan which makes it easy to secure any article you desire. Get this free book TODAY! NOW!

KLEIN & CO. 122 W. Madison Street, Dept. 3010, Chicago, Ill.
Nearly One-Quarter Century in Same Location

The very Popular "Adelle" Perfect Cut Diamond Latest Design beautifully hand engraved. 18 K. solid gold ring. Special $48.50

PERSONAL APPEARANCE

Is now more than ever the key-note of success. Bow-legged and Knock-kneed men and women, both young and old, will be glad to hear that I have now ready for market my new appliance, which will successfully straighten, within a short time, bow-leggedness and knock-kneed legs, safely, quickly and permanently, without pain, operation or discomfort. Will not interfere with your daily work, being worn at night. My new "Imm-Straitner," Model B, U. S. Patent, is easy to adjust; its result will save you soon from further humiliation, and improve your personal appearance 100 per cent.

Write today for my free copyrighted physiological and anatomical book which tells you how to correct bow and knock-kneed legs without any obligation on your part. Enclose a dime for postage.

M. TRILETTY, SPECIALIST
622-L, Ackerman Building, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

Blow Your Own Horn

(Continued from page 55)

he smiled brightly on Mr. Small, who was fizzing like a bottle of soda water. "One week from tonight—one week," he repeated significantly, holding the millionaire's eye, "we will show you all the first demonstration of wireless power ever made!"

The sputtering Small met the triumphant smirk of Dunsmore Bevan, and remembered a long list of old scores to be evened up. What a story it would make at the club—the Wise Boy of Wall Street gypped by a tramp. It was too good to spoil, and anyway he had given his promise that this audacious rascal should have a week in which to blow his own horn. He burst into a roar of laughter, prodding a knowing elbow into Jack's ribs, "A week, eh? Not much time, my boy!"

Jack's blue gaze sought Ann gravely, "Oh, I dont know," he said, "after all, the world was made in seven days, you know. Perhaps it can be made over in a week, who knows?"

And Ann, the modern, saw fit to blush again, as tho his remark could by any possibility have had anything to do with her!

To quote Buddy, the week that followed was "the snake's hips." He was not quite clear just how the miracle had been wrought but Life had taught him to ask no questions, and so he took what was offered—two helpings, and made no comments until he and his brother were safely in bed in the luxurious room that looked to his awed gaze like one of those movie palaces the swell skirt that marries the he-man hero lives in.

"Say, I saw you and Ann in the garden this afternoon," he confided at such a time, "now dont get sore, only do you think it's straight to kiss another guy's girl?"

"Ann isn't another guy's girl." Jack's voice came from the darkness a trifle tremulously, "she's my girl, Buddy! She and Augustus dont want to get married, and this afternoon she promised to marry me, only we are going to keep it a secret till the evening we test out the invention."

Buddy extended a small, hard hand in congratulation. "That's the ant's Adam's apple!" he avowed. "Say, I bet that Yates dame with the demountable complexion is going to be sore! She has you picked to do a Mendelssohn with that Julia of hers. Say—dont squeeze too hard. I bumped my finger today—yeah, on Percy's eye! He said your wireless was no good, and I said he was a

DRAW YOUR WAY to Fame and Fortune

THE modern successful Commercial Artist dresses well, lives in a fine home, drives his own car and enjoys the luxuries of life. He is well paid for his drawings and is independent. Modern business firms spend millions of dollars annually for drawings and advertising illustrations. Present-day advertising literally could not exist without commercial art—it is a necessity.

Your Opportunity If you can draw, you have a talent which only a few possess. Then why compete with the crowd in ordinary occupations? Train your drawing ability for practical work, and take the surest road to success.

The Federal School Will Train You

by the most modern methods. This fascinating and easily understood home study course contains exclusive lessons and drawings prepared by many nationally known artists, Charles E. Chambers, Franklin Booth, Neysa McMein, Edw. V. Brewer, Charles Livingston Bull and many others among them. An individual criticism given on every lesson of the course.

We don't claim any trick methods. Any artist of standing will tell you there are none. We do, however, teach you correct principles and direct your training along lines that bring proficiency most quickly. The Federal School management is the same as that of the Bureau of Engraving, a large Commercial Art establishment which has for a quarter of a century successfully served modern advertisers. That's why the Federal School has become America's Foremost School of Commercial Art. Hundreds of our students and graduates are making good. Why don't you get into the game? Through the Federal Course you can prepare yourself in a fraction of the time it would otherwise take.

Send today for "Your Future"

This handsome book explains all about Commercial Art as a profession and how to secure a training in that line. It shows examples of our students' work—after all the only real proof of the worth of any school's method. Send 6 cents in stamps for "Your Future" now—while you have it in mind. Just write your name and address plainly in the coupon below, giving your age and occupation.

Federal School of Commercial Designing

1014 Federal Schools Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

Please send me "Your Future" for which I enclose 6 cents in stamps.

Name.....

Age..... Occupation.....

(Write your address plainly in the margin)

America's Foremost School of Commercial Art

Woman's Charm

NATURALLY A Beautiful
Bust

THE secret of woman's charm is that natural physical perfection which lends enchantment wherever she goes.

Bust Pads Will Not Do

No man loves a dummy. There is no appeal in false, physical make-up. Man cannot be deceived. You must be a REAL woman, and because you are, you want to be perfectly developed.

Physical Culture Developer

Science comes to your rescue with a wonderful new invention which will enlarge the bust of any woman. No creams, no medicines, no electrical contrivances, no hand massage, no fake free treatments to deceive you. A simple, effective, harmless home developer you use a few minutes night and morning until fully developed. That is all, simply use it, nature brings the rounded contour of perfect beauty which every woman secretly craves.

Are You Lonely?

Do you know that the women who are most sought after and admired are those possessing a beautiful form? You can acquire this secret charm and have a fascinating

figure, too, if you will only write at once and let us tell you how thousands have developed one to five inches with this wonderful home developer. We will also send you photographic proof, showing results before and after, for we have received thousands of letters of praise from grateful women.

Only Real Developer

You can now be happy and sought after and admired and loved, if you will let us explain how you can obtain this remarkable developer and use it 30 days entirely at our risk—the only real method known for enlarging a woman's bust to its natural size and beauty. Write us today, do not send one penny—just your name and address plainly written, will bring all information in plain, sealed envelope by return mail.

THE OLIVE COMPANY
Dept. 210 Clarinda, Iowa

The Real Norma Talmadge

So much has been written about the work of this famous screen star that when Harry Carr lifts the curtain and reveals the happy home life of Norma Talmadge as Mrs. Joseph Schenck, wife of the producer, it comes as a pleasant surprise to her admiring public.

The Editor Gossips

Intimate, personal glimpses into the lives of motion-picture stars that differ from most of the news you hear about them are given by the editor whose opportunity for meeting screen celebrities "off duty" affords material for interesting reading.

The Cartoonist Contributes

A double-page spread of pen pictures by Kliz that show many of the screen favorites from a humorous angle.

November Motion Picture Magazine

On the stands October first liar! It's going to work all right, isn't it?"

"Sure it is!" Jack said cheerfully. Horn-blowing was getting a habit with him nowadays, but in his heart he was not so sure, and as he sat a few nights later at the transmitter which had been placed in the Jolyon drawing-room waiting for the first faint ticking which would prove success, his confident smile covered a sick fear. If the thing should fail, he must in common honesty give Bevan back his check, and start out again on the road that led away from Love and Happiness—and Ann.

He started from his thoughts at the sound of her name, spoken acridly on Mrs. Yates' tongue, "Ann is at the cabin with Augustus tonight, is she, Mr. Small? I thought that she would probably prefer to await the result—at this end."

There was no mistaking the insinuation of the emphasis, especially as it was accompanied by a spiteful glance toward the man who had not chosen to become her son-in-law. Small whirled with a snarl upon Jack. "What? D'you mean to say that you've dared—"

Jack interrupted sternly. Hand on the transmitter, every nerve tense with listening for the first tick, he faced the millionaire's purple rage steadily, "I have dared to love your daughter, yes! But I would never have spoken of it to her if Augustus had not confessed that they did not care for each other."

"But—that's carrying the joke too far! A common soldier—a tramp —" Small turned to the others, sputtering out the story of the imposture, waving a pudgy diamonded forefinger at Jack who stood very straight as tho at attention under their curious, hostile eyes, "and now this—this impostor dares to tell me he hopes to marry my daughter—ha! ha! That would be a joke—a fellow without a penny—"

"How about the check I gave you?" Bevan's voice was ugly. For reply Jack silently took the slip of paper from his pocket, tore it across and handed it to him. At almost the same moment the instrument beside him began to tick! Jack laughed exultantly, facing them, head high. "A common soldier!" he said with a great breath, "that's the finest compliment you could pay me! And as for the rest—yes, I am penniless—except for a half share in Augustus' invention!"

Dinsmore Bevan smiled a sickly smile. "I was hasty," he began propitiatingly, "suppose I write you another check—"

The jangle of the telephone inter-
(Continued on page 96)

Manufacturers, Distributors
and Studios of Motion Pictures
Outside New York City

- American Film Co., 6227 Broadway, Chicago, Ill.
- Bear State Film Co., Hollywood, Calif.
- Bennett, Chester, Prod., 3800 Mission Rd., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Carson Studios, Inc., 1845 Alessandro St., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Century Comedies, 6100 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.
- Charles Chaplin Studios, 1420 La Brea Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Christie Film Corp., 6101 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.
- Commonwealth Pictures Corp., 220 So. State St., Chicago, Ill.
- Coogan, Jackie, Prod., 5341 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Dwan, Allan, Prod., 6642 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.
- Famous Players-Lasky Studios, 1520 Vine St., Hollywood, Calif.
- Ford, Francis, Prod., 6642 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.
- Fox Studios, 1401 Western Ave., Hollywood, Calif.
- Goldwyn Studios, Culver City, Calif.
- Hart, William S., Studios, 5544 1/2 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.
- Ince Studios, Culver City, Calif.
- Leah Baird Prod., Culver City, Calif.
- Lloyd, Harold, Prod., Hal Roach Studios, Culver City, Calif.
- MacDonald, Katherine, Prod., 945 Girard St., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Mayer, Louis B., Studios, 3800 Mission Rd., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Metro Studios, 1025 Lillian Way, Los Angeles, Calif.
- Morosco, Oliver, Prod., 756 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Calif.
- Pacific Studios, San Mateo, Calif.
- Pathé Frères, 1 Congress St., Jersey City, N. J.
- Ray, Charles, Studios, 1425 Fleming St., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Roach, Hal E., Studios, Culver City, Calif.
- Robertson-Cole Studios, 780 Gower St., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Roland, Ruth, Prod., Culver City, Calif.
- Sennett, Mack, Studios, 1712 Glendale Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Stahl, John M., Prod., 3800 Mission Rd., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Stewart, Anita, Prod., 3800 Mission Rd., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Talmadge Prod., 5341 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Tourneur, Maurice, Prod., Ince Studios, Culver City, Calif.
- United Studios, Inc., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Universal Studios, Universal City, Calif.
- Vidor, King, Studio, 7200 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.
- Vitagraph Studios, 1708 Talmadge St., Hollywood, Calif.
- Warner Bros., Bronson Ave. and Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.
- Weber, Lois, Prod., 6411 Hollywood Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.
- Wharton, Inc., Ithaca, New York.

OPPORTUNITY MARKET

AGENTS WANTED

AGENTS—200% Profit, Wonderful Little Article. Something new, sells like wildfire, carry right in pocket. Write at once for free sample, Albert Mills, Manager, 9793 American Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Sell Madison "Better-Made" Shirts direct from our factory to wearer. No capital or experience required. Easily sold. Big profits. Write for free samples, Madison Mills, 503 Broadway, N. Y.

HELP WANTED—MALE

DETECTIVES EARN BIG MONEY. Excellent opportunity. Travel. Experience unnecessary. Particulars free. Write, George C. Wagner, former Gov't. Detective, 1968 Broadway, New York.

MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS

$35.00 PROFIT NIGHTLY. Small capital starts you. Outlets sold on installments. No experience needed. Our machines are used and endorsed by Government Institutions. Catalog free. Atlas Moving Picture Co., 426 Morton Bldg., Chicago.

NEWS CORRESPONDENCE

EARN $25 WEEKLY, spare time, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 560, St. Louis, Mo.

PATENTS

PATENTS. Write for Free Illustrated Guide Book. Send model or sketch for free opinion of its patentable nature. Highest references. Prompt attention. Reasonable Terms. Victor J. Evans & Co., 621 Ninth, Washington, D. C.

PERSONAL

ARE YOU BASHFUL, SELF-CONSCIOUS, easily embarrassed? These troubles overcome. Send dime for particulars. L. Veritas, 1400 Broadway, New York.

PHOTOPLAYS

BIG MONEY IN WRITING photoplays, short stories, poems, songs, etc. Send today for free copy America's greatest magazine for writers. Filled with practical help in writing and selling. Writer's Digest, 622 Butler Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Successful Photoplays Bring Big Money. Send for our free book, "Successful Photoplays," which gives instructions on photoplay writing and marketing. Successful Photoplays, Box 43 Des Moines, Ia.

$88 For Photoplay Ideas. Plots accepted any form; revised, criticized, copyrighted, marketed. Advice free. Universal Scenario Corporation, 293 Security Bldg., Santa Monica and Western Ave., Hollywood, Cal.

SHORT STORIES

EARN $25 WEEKLY, spare time, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 560 St. Louis, Mo.

Stories and Photoplay Ideas Wanted by 48 companies; big pay. Details free to beginners. Producers' League, 441, St. Louis, Mo.

Stories, Poems, Plays, Etc., are wanted for publication. Good ideas bring big money. Submit MSS. or write Literary Bureau, 134 Hannibal, Mo.

FREE TO WRITERS—A wonderful little book of money-making hints, suggestions, ideas; the A B C of successful story and movie play writing. Absolutely Free. Just address Authors' Press, Dept. 14, Auburn, N. Y.

VAUDEVILLE

GET ON THE STAGE. I tell you how! Personality, confidence, skill developed. Experience unnecessary. Send 6c postage for instructive illustrated Stage Book and particulars. O. LaDelle, Box 557, Los Angeles, Cal.

AGENTS WANTED

to collect renewals and solicit new subscriptions for Motion Picture, Classic, Shadowland and Beauty Magazines. Spare time or full time work. Write for particulars.

BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, Inc.
175 Duffield St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FOR PHOTOPLAY IDEAS

Plots accepted any form; revised, criticized, copyrighted, marketed. Advice free. Universal Scenario Corporation, 292 Security Bldg., Santa Monica and Western Avenue, Hollywood, California.

Publishers Scenario Bulletin-Digest
SEND FOR FREE SAMPLE COPY

WANTED

Young Ladies and Men (all ages) to learn motion picture acting. No experience necessary. We instruct you at your home. Write for particulars.

THE HOLLYWOOD PREPARATORY,
Dept. 10, 334 West 58th Street, New York

Art Corner Your Pictures—Album

where you can keep them safe and enjoy them always.

Engel
5 Styles Art Corners Colors
are on sale at Photo Supply and Album counters everywhere. They are the only Quick, Easy, Artistic, No Paste, No Fold way to mount Kodak Prints. A dime brings 100 and samples to try. Write ENGEL MFG. CO.
100 Buys
100 Dept. 26X 4711 N. Clark St., Chicago

Are You Reaching for the Truth?

I will tell you FREE

Under which Zodiac Sign were you born? What are your opportunities in life, your future prospects, happiness in marriage, friends, enemies, success in all undertakings and many other vital questions as indicated by ASTROLOGY, the most ancient and interesting science of history?

Were you born under a lucky star? I will tell you, free, the most interesting astrological interpretation of the Zodiac Sign you were born under.

Simply send me the exact date of your birth in your own handwriting. To cover cost of this notice and postage, inclose ten cents in any form and your exact name and address. Your astrological interpretation will be written in plain language and sent to you securely sealed and postpaid. A great surprise awaits you!

Do not fail to send birthdate and to inclose 10 cents. Print correct name and address to avoid delay in mailing.

Write now—TODAY—to the
ASTA STUDIO, 309 Fifth Ave., Dept. 133, New York

Stacomb

—For Unruly Hair

STACOMB keeps any kind of hair in place—just as it's combed. Dry and brittle, soft and fluffy, stiff and wiry hair—all kinds controlled by STACOMB.

Leaves hair soft and lustrous.
Excellent after a shampoo, or a swim.
Insist on STACOMB—the original—in black and yellow package. At all drug counters.

Tubes—35c
Jars—75c

Send coupon for Free Trial Tube.

STANDARD LABORATORIES, Inc.
760 Stanford Ave., Los Angeles, California. Dept. 2-B.

Please send me free trial tube.

Name _____
Address _____

Moles

HOW TO BANISH THEM

A simple, safe home treatment—16 years success in my practice. Moles (also BIG growths) dry up. Write for free booklet giving full particulars.

WM. DAVIS, M.D.

122-J Grove Avenue Woodbridge, N. J.

This Beautiful DIAMOND RING

$2 DOWN

A $2.00 bill will bring to you this Diamond Cluster Ring Bargain without "red-tape" or delay. Looks like $750.00 Solitaire. If not convinced it is the Greatest bargain in America send it back. Your $2.00 will be refunded. Only if pleased, pay $5.48 a month until our Special Bargain price of $56.75 is paid.

10 months to pay—A few cents a day.

Million Dollar Bargain Book

Send for it today. It pictures thousands of amazing bargains. Write Dept. 1517

FREE

J.M. LYON & CO. INC.

2-4 Maiden Lane, New York

Blow Your Own Horn

(Continued from page 94)

rupted. Jack picked up the receiver and his face went white as he listened. "You say the cabin is electrified and you can't get out? Augustus is unconscious? For God's sake keep away from anything metal, and I'll be there—" he turned upon them, "one of the high tension wires must have fallen against the ridge-pole flashing! They'll be roasted alive—"

Mr. Small had sunk down into a chair. He seemed to have shrunk all in a moment until his clothes hung loosely on him. "I thought—I cut the arterial lead—" he muttered. "I wanted the experiment to fail so I could buy Bevan's share—" he began to whimper, "save her, young man, and I'll give you ten thousand dollars—twenty—"

But Jack was gone. A small pajamaed figure met him in the hall, and for one instant he paused, gripping Buddy's shoulder with fingers that left a mark for days. "Do you know any prayers, kid?" Jack asked him tensely, "if you do, get down on your knees and say them till I get back—with her!"

Obediently Buddy slid down and prayed the only prayer he knew. "Now I lay me down to sleep"—he was still repeating it in a voice hoarse from fatigue, an hour later when they all returned, with Jack in the midst of a worshipping throng. From the clamor of many voices, disjointed facts floated thru Buddy's sleep-dazed brain, Jack had climbed the steel tower of the power line and jumped down on the broken wire swinging it free from the cabin. . . .

The figures of his brother and Ann seemed to recede in his head, and then grow to enormous size—he had never seen such a large kiss even in the final close-up of a movie! "—it's the red-blooded—he-men that gets—'em every time," Buddy muttered sagely from the depths of a long and varied cinema experience as the waves of sleep rolled finally over him, "just the same—that guy, Shakespeare, was right—you gotter—blow—your own—horn—"

Iris In

(Continued from page 46)

Furthermore, we can't see that Pola has changed for the better. So far as Tilden and Chaplin are concerned, it's always love fifteen to forty with both of them.

Tilden may be the champion, but by popular acclaim, Chaplin is virtually foot-faultless.

Play a CONN

for Pleasure and Profit

Isham Jones and his famous orchestra are among the great popular stars who use and endorse Conn instruments.

Conn instruments are easiest to play because of the exclusive way they are made and many improvements, refinements, and features developed in the great Conn laboratories. You can play a tune in a few hours on the Conn saxophone—take your place in orchestra or band in a short time. Conn cost no more.

Free Trial; Easy Payments. Write now for Free Book and details, mentioning instrument which interests you.

C. G. Conn Ltd., Elkhart, Ind.
105 1/2 Conn Bldg.

WORLD'S LARGEST MANUFACTURERS OF HIGH GRADE PIANO AND ORCHESTRA INSTRUMENTS

CULTIVATE YOUR MUSICAL BUMP

Reduce Your Bust during the Day

No longer need you have a large bust. You can easily make your figure slim, beautiful and attractive. Put on an Annette Bust Reducer when you get up in the morning. Before retiring you will be amazed at the remarkable change. You can actually measure the difference. No pain—no rubbing or massage. Used by society women and actresses everywhere.

Send No Money Just send me the measurement of your Bust and I will send you in plain wrapper one of these remarkable bust reducers. Pay the postman only $2.50 plus a few cents postage. Or send $3.50 and I will send the reducer prepaid. Money back if you are not satisfied. Write Now! ANNETTE, Dept. CA-4, Evanston, Ill.

Beauty Culture Course

Easy to Earn $40 to $75 a Week at Home

Secrets of beauty parlors revealed. Thirty easy lessons can make you expert in all branches, massage, packs, dyeing, marcel, skin work, manicure, waves, bleach etc. in eight weeks. Study in spare time. Earn while you learn. Authorized diploma. Money back guarantee. 50,000 opportunities. Get FREE book.

ORIENTAL SYSTEM OF BEAUTY CULTURE
Dept. A-4 1000 Diversey Blvd. Chicago

SENSATIONAL OFFER

WHITE GOLD WRIST WATCH

$685 Value

SEND NO MONEY

A rare opportunity to buy a high grade watch 50% below market price. 14K White Gold filled; 25 years guarantee; tonneau shape case; richly carved; 6-jewel adjusted movement; charming hand-made dial, supple crown and black gros grain ribbon and clasp. A wonderful buy at $6.85. Send No Money. We Prepay Postage. Pay Postman. Money back promptly if not satisfied. Don't DELAY. Write today.

SUPERIOR JEWELRY CO.
415 Mallery Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Dept. 102

GET THIS WONDERFUL RING. If You Can Tell It From a Genuine Diamond Send It Back

These amazing, beautiful CORODITE diamonds positively match genuine diamonds in every way—same blazing flash and dazzling play of living rainbow fire. They alone stand the diamond tests including terrific acid test of direct comparison. Lifetime experts need all their resources to see the difference. Prove this yourself. Wear a Corodite Diamond 7 Days Free

Make this test. You risk nothing. Wear a genuine Corodite and a diamond side by side on the same finger for 7 days. If you or your friends can tell the difference, send it back; you won't be out a single penny. That's fair enough. If you keep the ring, the price printed here is all you pay. No installments. Remember, Corodite rings have the same cutting as genuine stones.

No. 1—Ladies' Solitaire 14K Gold S. Ring . . . $2.84
 No. 2—Ladies' Hand-Carved Basket Setting, plat. finish $3.98
 No. 3—Ladies' Solitaire Bridal Blossom Engraved . . . $3.54
 No. 7—Gents' Heavy Belcher 14K Gold S. Ring . . . $3.68
 No. 8—Gents' Massive Hand-Carved Octagon Gypsy . . . $4.28

Carat also same. Beautiful mountings of most modern design. Choice of gold or latest white platinum finish. Unqualified 20-year guarantee. Handsome art-leather case free with each ring. SEND NO MONEY Keep your money right at home. Just send name, address and number of ring wanted and also as shown by slip of paper, fitting end to end around finger joint. Your ring will come by return mail. When ring arrives deposit amount shown above with postman. If you decide not to keep ring after 7 days' wear, send it back and your money will be immediately returned. Send today.

E. RICHWINE CO.
 19 W. Jackson Blvd., Dept. 592, Chicago, Ill.
 Sole Importers Genuine Corodite Diamonds

BELCOR BATH TREATMENTS

NO DIETING
 NO EXERCISING
 NO HARMFUL DRUGS

Wonderfully Simple To Use
 Simply Wonderful in Results

A scientific medical compound containing absolutely harmless ingredients that will reduce your weight.

Merely dissolve one BELCOR carton in your daily bath and see yourself grow slimmer, healthier, more beautiful.

Send no money; just mail your order and pay the postman $3.00 plus postage upon delivery.

Descriptive Booklet Free

DR. L. OSBORNE CO. 220 Fifth Avenue
 Established 1912 New York

ONLY $2 DOWN

GENUINE DIAMOND Wrist Watch

30 Days FREE TRIAL

15 JEWELLED ADJUSTED REGULATED

Send only $2.00 deposit to show your good faith and we will send this beautiful tonneau shape wrist watch to you without any red tape or delay. The hand engraved case is 14 Kt. solid white gold, guaranteed for a lifetime. It is fitted with silk grosgrain ribbon bracelet with 14 Kt. solid gold clasp. The movement is 15 jeweled lever, adjusted and regulated and is guaranteed.

GENUINE BLUE WHITE DIAMONDS

Four sparkling, brilliant, full cut diamonds are set in the 14 Kt. gold case, adding greatly to its beauty and value. They make most appreciated presents. We supply attractive gift cases.

PAY ONLY $4.00 PER MONTH for 10 months. Total price only $42.00. If you can duplicate it for less than $65.00, we guarantee to return every cent you paid.

WRITE FOR CATALOG NO. 1182 It brings a large jewelry store right into your home.

STERLING DIAMOND & WATCH CO.
 Established 1879 $1,000,000 Stock
 63 Park Row—Dept. 1182—New York

The Celluloid Critic
 (Continued from page 49)

SYMPATHETIC treatment has made the screen version of Du Maurier's classic of the Quartier Latin, "Trilby" (First National), something which belongs in an exclusive gallery of appealing canvases. All the refreshing sentiment and the vital pathos are admirably caught by the director who makes of "Trilby" a work comparable to the best of the stage productions of the play. In its favor is a dramatic story possessing fine screen possibilities—a story which lends itself to every form of expression which has been realized upon the silversheet. Its vivid characters stalk across the screen giving substance and life to the tragic story of Trilby's romance with Little Billie—and the unhappy fate which snuffs out her life as she is determined to rid herself of the malign influence of the dread Svengali.

Trilby is enacted by Andrée Lafayette who was brought over from France to create the rôle. She gives a performance marked with poignant charm—and singing with divine romance. The Svengali of Arthur Carewe is a capital study—a study sinister and uncanny—quite as Du Maurier sketched it. And the other immortal characters are excellently limned by competent players—who seemingly caught the spark of the playwright.

The picture offers no variation from the original. It is executed with fine understanding and feeling. The types, atmosphere and background are thoroughly convincing. We enjoyed the unhappy ending the best—since it is faithful with the play. There is a happy finish for those who do not enjoy stark tragedy in their screen fare. Even this conclusion does not mar the vital fabric of the story. "Trilby"—anyway you look at it, richly deserves a place in the sun.

HAD Maurice Tournour treated "The Brass Bottle" (First National) in the spirit with which it was written, he would have carried the spectator along on a fanciful journey. Instead, he has failed utterly to realize its delicate whimsy. The author of the tale was evidently influenced by the tales of the Arabian Nights—particularly, "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," and fashioned an imaginative story saturated with whimsical humor. An illogical piece if taken seriously, but because it was tempered with delicate satire, it made most enjoyable reading. But Tournour has not caught the spirit of

(Continued on page 99)

Priscilla Dean Pearls

Introductory Advertising Price. Only $4.97

Take advantage of this opportunity. Because of this introductory advertising offer, this really beautiful strand of Genuine French Pearls such as you have always admired and wanted to wear and cherish as your very own, may now be yours at a price you can easily afford to pay.

Priscilla Dean, famous motion picture star of the Universal Film Corp., has, because of the rare beauty of these pearls, given her name to them. Twenty four inches in length, perfectly matched and graduated, with an iridescent rose tint, these pearls are the prettiest you have ever laid eyes on. Clasp is 14 karat solid white gold, studded with a Genuine Chip Diamond. Priscilla Dean Pearls are indestructible and guaranteed for 25 years against breaking, cracking, peeling or losing the beautiful lustre and sheen which they have when they come to you. Each strand sent in rich satin lined plush box. Worn by leaders of society and film stars, Priscilla Dean Pearls are sure to prove a charming accessory to every woman who likes beautiful things.

Priscilla Dean Pearls cannot today be bought in stores. A year from now they will be sold in stores but at a price of $20. In the meantime you can get this beautiful strand direct from the originators at our introductory price of only $4.97. The clasp alone would now cost this much in a retail store.

To show that we are confident that you will consider them an amazing bargain and superior to any pearl costing $20, we make this offer: If after 10 days you are in any way dissatisfied, we will refund your money. You take no risk. Simply write your name and address on coupon below and send it to us. Do not send any money—pay postman $4.97 plus few cents for postage when pearls arrive. Order now while this offer lasts. Get a strand for yourself or for present or future gift purposes.

Simply Mail This Coupon

Fulton Mercantile Co., Dept. A-42
 359 Third Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Send me 24 inch strand of Genuine French Priscilla Dean Pearls with 14k. white gold diamond clasp and plush box. I will pay postman $4.97 plus few cents postage on arrival. If not satisfied, you are to refund my money within 10 days.

Name

Street

Town..... State

If you prefer, send $5 with this coupon and pearls will be sent to you postage paid.

DO YOU SEE YOURSELF AS OTHERS SEE YOU?

A NEW SCIENTIFIC, PAINLESS METHOD OF CORRECTING ILL-SHAPED NOSES AT HOME

TIME ADVANCES—as does science succeed in perfecting each invention. My 15 years of experience in manufacturing and selling Nose Shapers have proven to me that I can now offer to the unfortunate possessors of ill-shaped noses the most meritorious Nose Adjuster of the age. My latest improved Model No. 25 (U. S. and many foreign patents) has so many superior qualities that it surpasses all my previous shapers and other Nose Adjusters by a large margin.

In the first place, my newest appliance is better fitting; the adjustments are such that it will fit every nose without exception—my apparatus is constructed of light weight metal, and is afforded very accurate regulation by means of six hexagonal screws, which are regulated with a key and the screws are then locked in the desired position. These screws will bring about the exact pressure for correcting the various nasal deformities—such as: Long—pointed nose—pug—hook or shrew nose —and turned up nose—and will give marked success in modulating the distended or wide nostrils. There are no straps to be pulled in order to exert pressure on the nasal organ.

Model No. 25 is upholstered inside with a very fine chamois (covering a layer of thin metal) which protects the nose from direct contact with the apparatus; this lining of metal causes an even, moderate pressure on the parts being corrected, thus avoiding a harsh, violent pressure in any one place.

Model No. 25 is guaranteed, and corrects now all ill-shaped noses without operation, quickly, safely, comfortably and permanently. It is to be worn at night and, therefore, will not interfere with your daily work.

If you wish to have a perfect looking nose, write today for my free booklet which tells you how to correct ill-shaped noses without cost if not satisfactory.

M. TRILETY, Face Specialist 1935 Ackerman Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y.

Here's a Good Way to Earn Your Xmas Money

How much money would you like to have for Christmas presents? Would $5-$10 or $25 help you any? No matter what the amount may be, there's a way for you to get it pleasantly and quickly, through a plan that has been successfully worked by hundreds for many years past and history will repeat itself again this year.

The most interesting and pleasant and sure way to earn money in spare time is by acting as local subscription representative for the well known and popular Brewster Publications—The Motion Picture Magazine, Classic and Beauty.

Our new booklet, "The Open Road to An Independent Income" tells you all about this work. It gives examples of men and women who have made good and reproduces their pictures—it contains three pages of selling points about the Brewster Publications—it gives sample sales talks and the common objections with ways of overcoming them—and a host of other things of interest to any man or woman who wants to make money.

Address

Subscription Dept., BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, Inc.
175 Duffield St. Brooklyn, N. Y.

Shapeliness

is easily acquired by reducing disfiguring fat in any part of the body of MEN OR WOMEN, by few minutes' daily use of the famous invention

DR. LAWTON'S GUARANTEED FAT REDUCER AND ILLUSTRATED COURSE ON WEIGHT CONTROL

It performs a gentle deep-rooted massage, wherever applied, which disintegrates ugly fat and only where you wish to lose. This waste matter is then carried out of the body through the organs of elimination.

The Reduction Is Permanent

You can reduce from 1 to 100 pounds. No medicines or starvation diet. No exercises or electricity. Easiest way in the world to rid your body of that useless, joke-inviting fat. Internationally known for many years. Used by thousands and thousands of men and women. Approved and recommended by physicians. Dr. Lawton's Guaranteed Fat Reducer is made of light, soft, pliable rubber.

Smooths The Skin; Firms The Flesh

Dr. Lawton's authoritative book, "WEIGHT REDUCTION," is sent with the Fat Reducer. This explains how to use it, also how to stay thin after the Reducer has done its work.

SPECIAL PRICE Reducing results must show in eleven days or you may return the Reducer complete and receive back your full purchase price. This is Dr. Lawton's positive guarantee! Sent C. O. D. in plain sealed wrapper, or if you prefer remit $3.75 plus 20c. for shipping costs. Order yours now. Free literature sent on request.

$3.75

SENT C. O. D.

DR. THOMAS LAWTON
120 West 70th Street Dept. 6 New York City

Current Stage Plays

(Continued from page 6)

Provincetown.—"Sun Up." A passionate tragedy of the North Carolina mountain folk. The Widow Cagle is superbly played by Lucile La Verne.

Republic.—"Abie's Irish Rose." An amusing study in temperaments of the Irish and Jew in which the irreconcilable is reconciled thru emotion.

Ritz.—"In Love With Love," the story of a flirt caught in her own love net. Lynn Fontanne holds you in suspense with a reality that makes your heart beat.

Selwyn.—"Helen of Troy." A musical comedy, the book by Kaufman and Connolly and the lyrics by Kalmar and Ruby. It has a coherent plot and deals with adventures in a collar factory.

Shubert.—"Artists and Models," a revue; the professional version of the Illustrators' Show. It includes sketches by James Montgomery Flagg, Henry Wagstaff Cribble and Clarence Buddington Kelland. Adele Klaer, who acts, paints, and writes poetry, has the lead.

Vanderbilt.—"Two Fellows and a Girl," typical Cohan comedy-drama, panned by all the critics and flocked to by the public.

Winter Garden.—"The Passing Show" with Jobyna Howland, Joan Hay, Walter Woolf and George Hassell surrounded by a chorus of one hundred beauties.

ON TOUR

"Blossom Time." A musical comedy based on the life of Franz Schubert.

"Bombo," black-face extravaganza.

"Cameo Girl," and "Listen to Me," musical comedies of one-night stands.

"Caroline," a musical gem.

"Dew Drop Inn." Second company.

"Irene," with an all-star cast composed of the original principals of the company. A musical comedy.

"Irene Castle's Fashion Show," including dancing and musical numbers.

"Kempy," an English comedy.

"Lady in Ermine," a musical comedy concerning a romantic legend about an ancient castle.

"Lightnin'." A comedy that crosses your heart—the one that Frank Bacon made famous.

"Loyalities," a Galsworthy play with an English cast—the story of semetic conflict.

"Partners Again," a Potash and Perlmutter comedy.

"Sally, Irene and Mary." One of the best musical shows that have ever blessed the comedy stage.

"So This Is London." George Cohan poking fun at American and British temperaments. Not original cast.

"The Crash," a melodrama by Lincoln J. Carter and Ralph Kittering, produced exclusively for the road.

"The Dancing Girl." Song and dance.

"The First Year," a comedy about "breakers ahead" on the honeymoon.

"The Fool," a drama, about a minister who tries to follow the life of Christ in modern locale.

"The Heart of Paddy Wack," with the old favorite Chauncey Olcott.

"The Old Soak," a play on the order of "Lightnin'," with Raymond Hitchcock, the lovable inebriate.

"The Passing Show," as usual a gorgeous revue.

"You and I," a society comedy, wherein a career is sacrificed to matrimony and re-found in the next generation.

"Wang," with the arch comedian, De Wolf Hopper, a charming revival.

"Whispering Wires," a mystery play that makes the flesh creep.

"Wildflower," which has a delightful musical score. Second company.

The Celluloid Critic

(Continued from page 97)

Anstey's original. He resorts to heavy touches of slapstick which rob it of a fanciful flavor, tho he does succeed in making it mirthful occasionally.

"The Brass Bottle" features the struggles of a young architect who comes into possession of an ancient antique from which emerges a grateful genie after an imprisonment of six thousand years. Every wish of the architect is gratified as a result. But the illusions—the black magic of the story are unfortunately missing. What is revealed is an array of hackneyed gags with Ernest Torrence as the genie, Tully Marshall as a musty, old professor, and Harry Myers as the architect executing the high jinks. The fanciful note is very faint. As a result the picture is often stupid. And it could have been such an effective fantasy.

AS long as Mae Murray continues to maintain her penchant for worshipping at the shrine of Terpsichore—just so long will she fail to develop any hidden talent which may reveal her as an actress of parts. This star because of an indulgent director—who happens to be her husband—is allowed to pout and pirouette to her heart's content. The result is Mae has lost all sense of poise.

"The French Doll" which created a mild flurry upon the stage is hardly substantial enough to carry one along with unbounded interest. Its theme is hackneyed, treating as it does upon the pursuit of riches by a grasping French papa and his irrepressible daughter—who have come to America to chase an eligible young man from New York to Miami. There is no vital spark discernible. It follows an even course straight to an orthodox movie climax—in which the young eligible is captured after the girl becomes wounded in a shooting affair. The picture is neatly staged and photographed. But the star needs repression.

WE cannot mention any director in James Young's class who can be so dependably erratic. He balances such a fine achievement as "Trilby," with an impossible piece of claptrap such as "Wandering Daughters" (First National). The fault here is not entirely Mr. Young's. In the first place, the story which is bared to the mercies of the screen is an inconsequential, stupid affair concerning the morals of young girls—an idea which has long outlived its usefulness in film circles,

(Ninety-nine)

Doesn't hurt the skin a particle

Womanly Beauty Marred By Superfluous Hair

WOMAN'S crowning glory is her hair, but she must exercise care not to have it show in embarrassing places. Most efforts to rid milady of superfluous hair result in stronger growth, because only the surface hair has been removed, leaving the follicle to produce a more luxuriant growth just where it isn't wanted.

A Safe Treatment

It has been absolutely demonstrated that no strictly external application can exterminate the hair follicle (which is another name for the hair root) without injury to the tender skin where the objectionable hair growth exists. When the hair follicle is alive and healthy, no amount of purely external application can prevent increasing and coarser hair growth. All hair is dependent for life upon the secretions of the endocrine glands. A deficiency of this gland secretion causes baldness. Kilrute Hair Destroyer has proven perfectly efficacious in cases of superfluous hair growth not only by removing the hair but by its power to penetrate and dry up these gland secretions. The natural and inevitable result is starvation and death to the follicle which produces and nourishes the hair.

Kilrute consists of a powder and liquid, both applied directly to the skin with the hands. It can be applied to the tenderest skin and may safely be left on over night. In fact it has the added features of a skin softener and beautifier.

(As effective for men as for women)

You Owe It to Yourself and to Society

There is no longer any need to suffer the annoyance and humiliation caused by superfluous hair growth. No extravagant claims are made for Kilrute. Kilrute will remove hair safely and effectively. Discouraging women of refinement are discarding former methods for this one successful treatment for the elimination of unsightly hair growth. You owe it to yourself to preserve your womanly charm and daintiness.

Kilrute will be sent C. O. D. or on receipt of $5 plus a few cents for postage.

KILRUTE COMPANY

Dept. 1010 247 West 72nd St. New York City

Send No Money

KILRUTE COMPANY, Dept. 1010, 247 West 72nd St., New York City. Gentlemen: Please send me on approval a complete Kilrute Combination Treatment for superfluous hair (Kilrute Powder and Kilrute Lotion) which you guarantee to remove external hair immediately and to discourage any future growth. I will pay the postman $5 plus postage on delivery. If I am not perfectly satisfied with the results, you guarantee to refund my $5. (If you prefer, send $5 with this coupon, subject to above money-back guarantee.)

Name.....
Address.....

ART PHOTOS

STUDIES BEAUTY OF NATURE

Post card size and larger size. Great collection — splendid samples and catalogue for $1.00, $3.00, $5.00, $10.00. Write Editions d'Art at Neuilly-Plaisance (S & O), France

BEAUTYPEEL

"UNMASKS YOUR 'HIDDEN' BEAUTY"

Creates Beautiful Complexion by peeling off VACATION TAN, Freckles, blemishes, pimples, blackheads, liver-spots, wrinkles, acne, muddy oily skins. NON-ACID (patented) lotion. Painless, harmless. Effects astounding. Guaranteed. Proofs and Beauty Book: "Art of Face Peeling." FREE. Write Dept. C.

BEAUTYPEEL CO. El Paso, Texas

A Shapely Foot is a Joy Forever

BEAUTIFY YOUR FEET

The Perfection Toe Spring REMOVES THE ACTUAL CAUSE OF THE BUNION or enlarged joint. Worn at night, with auxiliary appliance for day use.

Straighten Your Toes
Banish that Bunion

Full particulars in plain envelope
C. R. ACFIELD, Foot Specialties
Dept. 311 1328 Broadway New York

A PERFECT NOSE FOR YOU

SPECIAL SIZES
Winner of GOLD MEDAL
Highest in Merit
Lowest in Price

FOR CHILDREN
SEND NO MONEY

ANITA-The Genuine-NOSE ADJUSTER

PATENTED

Support nature and look your best. If your nose is ill-shaped, you can make it perfect with ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER. In a few weeks, in the privacy of your own room and without interfering with your daily occupation, you can remedy your nasal irregularity. No need for costly, painful operations. ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER shapes while you sleep—quickly, painlessly, permanently and inexpensively. THE ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER is the ORIGINAL NASAL SUPPORTER highly recommended by physicians for flattened or misshapen noses. Self adjustable. No screws. No metal parts. GENTLE, FIRM and PERFECTLY COMFORTABLE. Beware of imitations! Write today (just your name and address) for FREE book, "Happy Days Ahead," and our blank to fill out for sizes. Return blank to us and your nose adjuster can be paid for when it reaches you.

The ANITA Company, Dept. 1029, ANITA Bldg., Newark, N. J.

"I heartily endorse your plan as an easy way to make money."
Mrs. M. D., Colo.

WE OFFER SPARE TIME OR FULL TIME WORK TO MARRIED WOMEN

So many married women have written us for advice about making money, that we have been encouraged to work out a suitable plan ourselves to meet their demands.

Much to our delight, practically everyone who has tried the plan, has succeeded in earning quite a bit of money.

Even those with tremendous household duties, and children to take care of, have found ways to turn our plan to their financial advantage.

It makes no difference how you may be situated, if you can use more money than you now have coming in, you should let us tell you how to turn your spare hours into dollars. Representatives are wanted at once, in every locality, to take subscriptions for Motion Picture Magazine, Classic, Shadowland and Beauty. Our booklet entitled "The Open Road to an Independent Income" will tell you how to enter this fascinating business and the amount of money you can make. If you are interested in having more money, send in the coupon for the booklet and further particulars.

----- CUT HERE -----
Subscription Department
BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, Inc.
175 Duffield St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

I am interested in your money-making plan. Please send full information at once.

Name.....
St. and No.....
City..... State.....

but which the producers imagine is still good meat for the masses. It is a lot of bunk—this story, which presents its characters in an ever-continuous walking marathon from one set to another. The moral establishes that it is the wandering boy who produces the wandering girl. It is told against a colorless society background. A poor story, poorly directed.

THE serial form of melodrama—wherein much excitement and thrills are compressed into a harum-scarum tale of feature length is exposed again in Fox's "The Eleventh Hour." The idea goes back—very far back—to the days of the ten, twent', and thirt' gallery god stuff—when Lincoln J. Carter and Hal Reid turned them out overnight. This happens to be one of Carter's which has been revised and made up to date to fit the modern age of inventions.

Once upon a time, Louis Sherwin, the adaptor, scoffed at such intensified hokum, when criticizing the drama. Possibly he was laughing up his sleeve while he doctored up Carter's pet plot. It keeps moving—that's something in its favor. And it concerns a government agent in conflict with a group of conspirators determined to embarrass our fair country. The agent fights them singly and collectively and before he rescues the girl—you will see plenty of melodramatic fireworks which include daring rescues, escapes, hot steel, hot furnaces, hot love and pursuits thru land, sky and water.

A WEIRD attempt to make capital of the jazz craze and the attendant moral when the young irresponsibles absorb some common sense in Paramount's "Children of Jazz." It is mad, bad hokum—without rhyme or reason—a tale which thrusts its characters in wild orgies—which takes them thru the air in planes and thru the water in schooners—which puts them down in a secluded island presided over by a quaint figure of yesteryear. The idea employed is that of cave-man tactics in taming the young irresponsibles. Jerome Storm, the director, is out of his element here. The rural touch comes to the surface ever so often. It is poorly arranged and episodic and badly overplayed by Theodore Kosloff. Wildly improbable, but which holds the attention because one will want to see how crazy it becomes.

THERE seems to be no way of judging what stage plays will become entertaining on the screen. Here is "Lawful Larceny"—which in

Free to Writers!

A WONDERFUL BOOK—read about it! Tells how easily stories and plays are conceived, written, perfected, sold. How many who don't DREAM they can write, suddenly find it out. How the Scenario Kings and the Story Queens live and work. How bright men and women, without any special experience, learn to their own amazement that their simplest ideas may furnish brilliant plots for plays and stories. How one's own imagination may provide an endless gold-mine of ideas that bring happy success and handsome cash royalties. How new writers get their names into print. How to tell if you ARE a writer. How to develop your "story fancy," weave clever word-pictures and unique, thrilling, realistic plots. How your friends may be your worst judges. How to avoid discouragement and the pitfalls of failure. How to Win! This surprising book is absolutely free. No charge. No obligation. Your copy is waiting for you. Write for it now. Just address AUTHORS' PRESS, Dept. 198, AUBURN, NEW YORK

FREE BOOK LEARN PIANO!

This Interesting Free Book shows how you can become a skilled player of piano or organ at quarter usual cost. It shows why one lesson with an expert is worth a dozen other lessons. Dr. Quinn's famous Written Method includes all of the many important modern improvements in teaching music. Brings right to your home the great advantages of conservatory study. For the beginner or experienced player. Endorsed by great artists. Successful graduates everywhere. Scientific yet easy to understand. Fully illustrated. All music free. Diploma granted. Write today for free book.

Quinn Conservatory, Studio M1-70, Columbia Road, Boston 25, Mass.

20 YR. CASE FULL JEWEL 595

6 JEWEL 25 YR. CASE 755

Save 1/2 SEND NO MONEY

Buy direct from the manufacturers and save one-half. Your choice of either high-grade watch. Octagon or round case, 14 Kt. gold-filled 20 yr. case with 20 yr. gold-filled link bracelet, full jewel. Gold dial. Stem wind and set. Adjusted and regulated. $12 value, our price ONLY $5.95 prepaid. Tonneau shape, 14 Kt. White gold-filled 25 yr. case. Silk grosgrain ribbon, gold-filled clasp. Beautiful white dial. Sapphire crown. 6 jewels or regulated adjusted. Fully guaranteed, $18 value. Our special price ONLY $7.55, prepaid. Order today. Send no money. Pay on arrival. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

SUPREME JEWELRY MFG. CO.,
Dept. 10351 434 Broadway, New York

DEAFNESS IS MISERY

I know because I was Deaf and had Head Noises for over 30 years. My invisible Antiseptic Ear Drums restored my hearing and stopped Head Noises, and will do it for you. They are Tiny Megaphones. Cannot be seen when worn. Effective when Deafness is caused by Catarrh or by Perforated, Partially or Wholly Destroyed Natural Drums. Easy to put in, easy to take out. A "Listen Comforts." Inexpensive. Write for Booklet and my sworn statement of how I recovered my hearing.

A. O. LEONARD
Suite 53, 20 5th Avenue • • New York City

SPECIAL SUMMER OFFER!

CLASSIC

2 years for $4.50

Send orders to 175 Duffield Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

STEEL Elite Diamond

IF YOU CAN TELL IT FROM A DIAMOND
SEND IT BACK!

1 Carat Elite Diamonds. Matchless for their dazzling rainbow brilliancy. Elite engraved rings surpass all others. Guaranteed Sterling. Front owner offered $85.00 6 minutes after buying one.

$389.00

With each ring order we give free beautiful combination Set SOLD Roman finish Gold set with small Elite Diamonds.

Send No Money Just send name, address and finger size. When ring arrives pay postman $3.50 and postage. Satisfaction Guaranteed. Write today. Cash with Canadian orders.

ELITE JEWELRY HOUSE Dept. 205, 306 S. Wabash Ave. CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

FREE BRACELET WATCH

YOU CAN HAVE EITHER ONE of these beautiful 7 jewel, 10 yr. guaranteed, latest design Bracelet Watches, in a rich velvet case.

ABSOLUTELY FREE RUSH your name and address and we will send you our wonderful FREE Bracelet Watch Plan. Don't delay write at once.

Home Supply Company
131 Duane St., N.Y. Dept 32

YOUR CHOICE

GOLD FILLED

PLATINUM FINISH

(One hundred)

48 ONLY $2 DOWN 48
10 MONTHS TO PAY

Decide which of these rings you like best and send $2.00 to show your good faith. We will send either the sparkling, blue white, perfectly cut, genuine diamond solitaire, set in a popular 18 kt. solid white gold ring, or the seven diamond cluster ring, 1 1/2 carat size, set in solid platinum, looking like a $600.00 solitaire. Give finger size. Were $75. Now $48.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

If you are not convinced, after 30 days' trial, that it is worth $75.00, as we claim, just send it back and we will return your money. You save 33% of the regular price if you keep ring and pay $4.60 monthly.

WRITE FOR CATALOG NO. 1183

It brings a big jewelry store right into your home.

STERLING DIAMOND & WATCH CO
 Established 1879 $1,000,000 Stock
 63 Park Row—Dept. 1183—New York

FREE FIRST LESSON RECORD

Learn to Play

Violin-Mandolin, and Bonjo Mandolin without embarrassment by the World's Most Successful Method. Personal instructions on Records taught by the famous Prof. F. M. Schneider. Six year combined course teaches all three instruments. Simple as A. B. C. Play for money in 2 months. 30,000 have learned to play beautifully.

$25 Instrument FREE With Course
 Your choice of any one instrument given absolutely free to one pupil in each locality. Only small charge for lessons—a few cents a week. Success assured.

Write Today for Free Record

Send no money. Just ask for first lesson Record on one week's approval. We want to prove to you as we have to thousands of others the wonderful advantages of learning music the more simple and easy way by our personal instruction lessons given on Records. Write at once! TODAY!

SCHNEIDER SCHOOL OF MUSIC
 Dept. D-10, 238 Vermont St., Blue Island, Ill. (A suburb of Chicago)

"DON'T SHOUT"

thousand sold. Write for booklet and testimonials.
THE MORLEY CO., Dept. 792, 26 S. 15th Street, Phila.

DO YOU WANT SMALLER FEET?

DO You Want Thinner Ankles?
DO You Have Foot Pains?
HAVE Your Arches Fallen?
DO Your Feet and Leg Muscles Tire?
 You can actually make your feet smaller, relieve your foot troubles and walk, run, or play without any pain whatever through a marvelous discovery of a learned Chinese scientist which works like magic.

Send no money but send 2c in postage for illustrated booklet "CINDERELLA", which fully explains entire secret, without obligation. Satisfaction as supply is limited.

CHING WONG COMPANY
 151 Fifth Avenue, Room 1313
 New York City

the spoken version wasn't so bad, nor was it so good—but upon the screen, it is colorless, dull and stupid. It has been doctored too, probably thru fear of the censors. But we did glean that it concerns our old friend, the playful husband—who deceives his wife—who pays, pays, and pays—until she goes to the rescue and matches her wits against the wily adventuress.

The sponsors have not injected a single dramatic episode. In fact, the punch is entirely missing. There are several interludes which have nothing in common with the story—and these feature a display of cabaret life—with Gilda Gray and several Follies girls shaking their torsos—to the delight of the extras and the spectators. The story is commonplace and the acting is uninspired.

IN speaking of stupid stories, the prize must be given "The Love Piker" (Cosmopolitan-Goldwyn) for turning out a picture which literally stands still in its tracks. Whatever merit the original tale carried has been lost in transference to the screen. There is no humor, no sentiment, no pathos, no drama, no suspense and positively no movement. A tame, boring account of a snobbish girl who falls in love with the young engineer in her father's company. There is no reason to continue further—you know the following episodes. Let us explain, however, that the conflict rests upon such a delicate premise as the girl's refusing to marry the youth because his father is an uncouth pipe smoker. Oh yes, he develops some manners in the end—and the wedding takes place per schedule.

MADGE KENNEDY must be given more suitable stories than "The Purple Highway" (Paramount) if she wants to bask in the spotlight of her erstwhile popularity. The piece places a heavy strain upon this able pantomimist—who does manage to appear genuinely human in a sticky, sentimental adventure of a girl placed on the heights by a couple of artistic failures. They write a musical comedy for her and she neglects them in responding to the advances of a wealthy stage-door Johnnie. The customary movie ending is tacked on to leave us smiling when we say good-bye. There is little resemblance in this piece with the original—once known as "Dear Me." Monte Blue conveys the impression that he has lost his last friend in the rôle of the neglected playwright.

HOW I LOST 50 POUNDS in 2 Months

French Woman Reveals Secret for Which Millionaires Have Paid Thousands
See Her Free Offer Below

So as to enable every fat man or woman to benefit by the amazing French discovery with which Europeans are now getting rid of flabby hips and double chins, I will explain, for a limited time only, to every one who mails coupon below, FREE OF CHARGE, how I took off 50 Pounds in 2 Months.

No matter how much or how little you want to reduce, or how many things you have tried in the past, you can NOW do just as I did and get a slim, beautiful figure without DIETS, EXERCISES, DRUGS, ABSURD CREAMS or APPLIANCES. I will tell you just what to do to reduce and give you the secret for which millionaires have paid thousands.

MADAME ELAINE, Room 821P, Gotham Natl. Bldg., N. Y. City.
 Kindly explain to me confidentially and absolutely FREE OF CHARGE what you did to reduce.

Name.....

Address.....

If you care to, enclose 5 cents in stamps to help cover the expense.

LABLACHE FACE POWDER

Protect your complexion! Use only a safe powder. Lablache is safe—used and praised for over 60 years. Softly clinging — invisible. It is delightfully delicate and dainty.

Refuse Substitutes
 They may be dangerous. Flesh, White, Pink or Cream. 50 cents a box of drug-gists or by mail. Send 10 cents for a sample box.

BEN. LEVY CO.
 French Perfumers, Dept. C
 125 Kingston St., Boston, Mass.

EARN MONEY AT HOME

YOU can make $15 to $60 weekly in your spare time writing show cards. No canvassing or soliciting. We instruct you by our new simple Directograph system, pay you cash each week and guarantee you steady work. Write for full particulars and free booklet.
WEST-ANGUS SHOW CARD SERVICE
 74 Colborne Building Toronto, Can.

(One hundred and one)

Science Discovers the Secret of Caruso's Marvelous Voice

WHY is it that the humble peasant boy of Italy became the greatest singer of all time? This diagram of his throat will show you. Caruso's marvelous voice was due to a superb development of his Hyo-Glossus muscle. Your Hyo-Glossus muscle can be developed too! A good voice can be made better — a weak voice become strong — a lost voice restored — stammering and stuttering cured. Science will help you.

We Guarantee —
Your Voice Can Be Improved 100%

EVERY normal human being has a Hyo-Glossus muscle in his or her throat. A few very fortunate persons — like the late Caruso — are born with the ability to sing well. But even they must develop their natural gifts. Caruso had to work many years developing that muscle before his voice was perfect. Whether your voice is strong or weak, pleasant or unpleasant, melodious or harsh, depends upon the development of your Hyo-Glossus muscle. You can have a beautiful singing or speaking voice if that muscle is developed by correct training.

Prof. Feuchtinger's Great Discovery

Professor Feuchtinger, A. M. — descendant of a long line of musicians — famous in the music circles of Europe for his success in training famous Opera Singers — discovered the secret of the Hyo-Glossus muscle. Dissatisfied with the methods used by the maestros of the Continent who went on year after year blindly following obsolete methods, Eugene Feuchtinger devoted years of his life to scientific research. His reward was the discovery of the Hyo-Glossus, the "Singing Muscle" — and a system of voice training that will develop this muscle by simple, silent exercises.

Perfect Voice Institute, Studio 12-77
 1922 Sunnyside Avenue, Chicago, Illinois

Please send me FREE Professor's Feuchtinger's book, "Enter Your World." I have put X opposite the subject that interests me most. I assume no obligation whatever.

Singing Speaking Stammering Weak Voice

Name.....

Address.....

City and State..... Age.....

Opera Stars Among His Students

Since the Professor brought his discovery to America hundreds of famous singers have studied with him. Orators, choir singers, club women, preachers, salesmen and teachers — over 10,000 happy pupils have received the benefits of this wonderful training.

There is nothing complicated about the Professor's methods. They are ideally adapted for correspondence instruction. Give him a few minutes each day. The exercises are silent. You can practice them in the privacy of your own home. The results are sure.

The Perfect Voice Institute guarantees that Professor Feuchtinger's method will improve your voice 100%. You are to be the sole judge — take this training — if your voice is not improved 100% in your own opinion, we will refund your money.

A Beautiful Voice for YOU

You cannot even guess the possibilities of your own voice.

If you want to sing — if you have always felt that you could sing but lack the proper training because you had not the time nor the means to study — here is your chance. You can now learn to sing at a very small cost and in the privacy of your own home.

If you want to improve your speaking voice — if you stammer or stutter — Professor Feuchtinger will help.

Valuable Book FREE to You

Send us the coupon below and we'll send you FREE this valuable work on the Perfect Voice. Prof. Feuchtinger is glad to give you this book. You assume no obligations but you will do yourself a great and lasting good by studying it. It may be the first step in your career. Do not delay.

Mail the coupon today.

Perfect Voice Institute
 1922 Sunnyside Ave. Studio 12-77. Chicago, Ill.

(One hundred and two)

How the Russian Princesses made themselves beautiful

At last the world-famed beauty secrets of the Russian Noblewomen have been revealed. It has been found that the marvelous beauty and exquisite complexions of the Russian Princesses is the result of bathing their faces and bodies with a light clay, found only in the Holy Mountain of Kazbek.

You, too, can make yourself beautiful

Partake of the joy and power that only beauty can give. For through fortunate circumstances KAZBEK Complexion Clay has come to the women of America. KAZBEK Complexion Clay gives you a complexion as smooth and clear as the cheek of a baby. Simply apply a thin coating of KAZBEK Clay and immediately you feel it reviving and giving new beauty to your skin.

And the Russian Princesses knew also the charm of other secret toiletries. Fortunately, these priceless formulas have been obtained, and now these lovely KAZBEK Preparations may be yours: Mysterious, entrancing Perfumes; wonderful Toilette Soaps; Bath Powder that is incomparably rapturous; and Vanishing Cream and Cold Cream of delightful, exotic quality.

KAZBEK

BEAUTY PREPARATIONS

PERFUME
 2 oz. $2.00
 1 oz. $1.00
 1/2 oz. $0.50

TOILETTE SOAP
 Box of 3 $1.00
 1 cake $0.35

COMPLEXION CLAY
 Jar $2.00

COMPLEXION CLAY
 Tube $1.00

BATH POWDER
 $3.00

VANISHING CREAM
 $1.75

COLD CREAM
 $1.00

KAZBEK COMPANY, Inc.
 103 Greene Street
 New York City, N. J.

Get the world-famed KAZBEK Beauty Preparations, which ever time beauties are made. It will improve at your side. Use the cream and try preparations you wish will be sent post-paid.

KAZBEK COMPANY, Inc.
 103 Greene Street, New York City, N. J.

Name _____
 Address _____

Complexion Clay, Jar	$2.00	Bath Powder, Jar	$3.00
Complexion Clay, Tube	$1.00	Vanishing Cream, Jar	$1.75
Perfume, 2 oz. bottle	$2.00	Cold Cream, Jar	$1.00
Perfume, 1 oz. bottle	$1.00	Vanishing Cream, 5 oz.	$1.75
Perfume, 1/2 oz. bottle	$0.50

Thousands of girls have built up a fresh, clear skin— by using these special treatments

Perhaps you feel that your skin is the kind that can never be really beautiful.

You are wrong! Give your skin the special care it needs, and you can make it what you will!

Each day your skin is changing; old skin dies and new takes its place.

By caring for this new skin in the right way, you can overcome defects that have troubled you for months, or even for years.

A special treatment for each type of skin

The right treatment for each different type of skin is given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around every cake of

Woodbury's Facial Soap. (Two of these treatments are reprinted below.)

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap today, and begin, now, to use the right treatment for your skin. Within a week or ten days you can bring about a marked improvement in your complexion.

The same qualities that give Woodbury's its beneficial effect in overcoming common skin troubles make it ideal for regular toilet use. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks.

Three Woodbury skin preparations— guest size—for 10 cents

For 10 cents we will send you a miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations, containing samples of Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Cream, and Facial Powder, together with the treatment booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

Send for this set today. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 910 Spring Grove Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio. If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 910 Sherbrooke St., Perth, Ont. English Agents: H. C. Quelch & Co., 4 Ludgate Square, London, E. C. 4.

*With the right care you, too, can have
"A Skin You Love to Touch"*

Perhaps your skin belongs to one of these types—Are you giving it the right treatment?

1. For an oily skin—

EVERY night before retiring, cleanse your skin by washing in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and lukewarm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp. Now, with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

2. For a sensitive skin—

EACH night before retiring, dip a soft washcloth in warm water and hold it to your face. Now make a warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and dip your cloth up and down in it until the cloth is "fluffy" with the soft white lather. Rub this lathered cloth gently over your skin until the pores are thoroughly cleansed. Rinse first with warm water, then with clear, cool water, and dry carefully.

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap today — begin your treatment tonight! Within a week or ten days your skin will show marked improvement.

1—If your skin is too oily, use treatment No. 1 given at the right.

2—If your skin is sensitive and easily irritated, use treatment No. 2 given at the right

WOODBURY'S FACIAL SOAP

Copyright, 1923, by The Andrew Jergens Co.

DECEMBER

25¢

CLASSIC

COMBINED WITH SHADOWLAND

A BREWSTER PUBLICATION

F. C. D.

DAINTY-FORM

Reducing Cream

This Wonderful Reducing Cream Will Give You That Lovely Slender Figure

Thousands of stout persons have testified to the wonderful results obtained from DAINTY-FORM Reducing Cream, and in view of this, we feel perfectly safe in urging every stout person, man or woman to try

DAINTY-FORM Reducing Cream

Results Guaranteed or No Pay

Whether you have 10 or 100 pounds of superfluous flesh, DAINTY-FORM will positively eliminate it, at any part of the face and body, quickly, safely, and permanently. It is endorsed by physicians and its use requires no dieting no drugs or tiresome exercise.

DAINTY-FORM is the only reducing cream today that has such delightful odor, no artificial coloring, nothing injurious and everything beneficial.

IT DOES ITS WORK THOROUGHLY—pleasantly and with absolutely no inconvenience to you—it matters not how long you have been inconvenienced by too much fat nor where it appears on your body—it matters not how many ways and means you have tried to reduce your weight, DAINTY-FORM will be a revelation to you; It can be applied to your—ARMS—LEGS—NECK—ANKLE—BUST—HIPS—ABDOMEN—or any part of the body you wish to reduce—if you suffer from the unsightliness of a double chin it will promptly reduce that also. Obesity specialists are using nothing but DAINTY-FORM on their patients without one single instance of failure or even complaint.

GILDA GRAY, OF THE ZIEGFELD FOLLIES, SAYS: "I am very glad to give you this unsolicited testimonial. DAINTY-FORM certainly is wonderfully effective for a perfect figure and graceful slenderness. I sincerely recommend it to every woman."

HELEN SHIPMAN—Star of "Caroline," SAYS: "All women should know about the wonderful qualities of DAINTY-FORM. It is entirely effective for keeping the figure slender. The thing which impresses me most is that one may accomplish so much in the way of becoming strikingly attractive at such little expense and such little effort."

So sure are we that you will have the same wonderful results as so many thousands of others, that we are willing to send you one $2.00 jar or $3.50 double size jar whichever you prefer, with our absolute guarantee that every penny of your money will be refunded if you are not thoroughly satisfied with results.

Simply fill in and mail the coupon or write a letter with your money order, cash or check—and we will send DAINTY-FORM to you at once. In a plain container, so that no one need know you are trying it if you do not wish them to. When it arrives, measure yourself. Then use DAINTY-FORM just a few minutes a day for a few days. See how easy it is to lose as much as three inches of superfluous flesh a day—many others have done it. Note how much better you feel and look.

In justice to yourself, investigate. See for yourself, how your superfluous flesh can be carried away so quickly, you can almost see it go. Take advantage of this unusual offer and mail the coupon NOW, while this is before you. Remember we guarantee results or no pay.

How Much Overweight Are YOU?

Age	Ideal Weights for Women
	4'10"	5'	5'2"	5'4"	5'6"	5'8"
20	110	115	120	127	135	143
30	112	117	122	131	139	148
40	110	114	120	129	137	146
50	106	110	116	123	131	140

To the Trade—Druggists and department stores everywhere are daily stocking DAINTY-FORM. Write us for further information. Dainty-form Company, Inc., 15 W. 34th St., Dept. 71A, New York.

COUPON
DAINTY-FORM COMPANY, Inc.,
15 West 34th St., Dept. 81A,
New York City.

Please send me one special jar of DAINTY-FORM for which I enclose $2.00 for special jar— $3.50 for double size jar. (State which you prefer.) It is agreed that you guarantee results and that the full amount of my money will be returned if I am not thoroughly satisfied with results.

Name.....
Address.....
City.....
State.....

$500⁰⁰ IN ONE MONTH DRAWING

other institution in the country has such an array of artists as are on the Federal Staff.

The Federal Authors

The Federal Authors include such nationally known artists as Sid Smith, Neysa McMein, Fontaine Fox, Charles Livingston Bull, Clare Briggs, Norman Rockwell, Fay King, Frank King, Charles Russell, Herbert Johnson, Walter Wilverding, Charles Bartholomew and over fifty others. Exclusive original lessons and drawings especially prepared by these famous artists are included in the Federal Home Study Course. They teach you everything you need to know about illustrating so that when you finish the course you will not find anything new to you. You will be prepared for any problem or emergency which may arise.

The Federal Course is a Proven Result Getter

Federal School Graduates are employed by publishers and commercial organizations all over the country. The usual salary for the beginner is from $35.00 to $50.00 a week and, with increasing experience, promotion is rapid. No previous experience is necessary in order to take this course. Every step is plain and you will be lead gradually from simple sketches to complex illustrations having a high market value. At all times contact with you is direct and personal and every effort is made to develop your own individual style. What this style is can only be determined after thorough training in the fundamentals of draftmanship.

Study at Home in your Spare Time

In studying with the Federal School you can take as long as you like to finish each piece of work. The fact that you are busy during the daytime makes no difference. The course may be completed in your own home at night or during any spare time you have. Earn while you work if you wish. Many students find a market for their drawings long before they finish the course. Some earn the price of the course several times over before they finish. Moreover, when you graduate your connection with the school is not terminated. We take a personal interest in the success of our graduates and our business connections enable us to offer many fine opportunities. In our files are hundreds of letters from students telling what the Federal School has done for them.

Send for FREE BOOK

Our free illustrated book, "A Road To Bigger Things" contains some of these. It also shows the work they have done and gives all the details of the course.

If you like to draw, do not give it up for something you do not like so well. You owe it to yourself to develop the ability you possess. Fill in the attached coupon, mail it today and start up the "Road To Bigger Things."

Federal School of Illustrating

FEDERAL SCHOOL OF ILLUSTRATING
1227 Federal School Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

Name.....Age.....

Address.....

.....

CAREFUL conscientious training by members of our faculty made this possible. Today, trained illustrators who draw pictures for magazines, newspapers, etc., both men and women earn $200.00 to $500.00 a month and more. The present splendid opportunities in this field have never been excelled. Thousands of publishers buy millions of dollars worth of illustrations, like the one shown here, every year. Illustrating is the highest type of art. If you like to draw, let your talent make your fortune. Develop it. It takes practice, but so does anything worth while. Learning to illustrate is fascinating to anyone who likes to draw.

The Federal School, one of the oldest and largest art schools in America, has trained hundreds of successful illustrators. It was originally founded by the Bureau of Engraving to supply artists for its own needs. Since then Federal School graduates have become so distinguished for their high quality work that they are in great demand by publishers and art organizations. The reason for this was plainly because of the thorough training given by the school, instruction which was not duplicated by any other institution in the country.

Why the Federal "Master Course" Excels

A strictly up to date and practical art course must give thorough and comprehensive training in many different subjects such as illustrating, serious and comic cartooning, lettering, poster designing, window card illustrating, etc. No one artist is competent to give instruction in all these branches. For this reason the Federal School has established its "Master Course" which every subject is covered by a specialist, an artist who has made a success in that one particular field. No other school can offer a course of instruction which is nearly comparable. No

SIDNEY SMITH

HERB JOHNSON

CLARE BRIGGS

NORM ROCKWELL

FONTAINE FOX

BART

NEYSA MCMEIN

FAY KING

CHARLES L BULL

FRANK KING

CHAS M RUSSELL

W J W LWERDING

All the Drama of Life

moving before your eyes!
—when you're ready.

Be ready today. Today's the day. It will never return!

Shut down the lid on trouble right now!

Go where the hours
are brimming with excitement, and life is such stuff as dreams are made
of!

Go where the lights say Paramount, for there's the best show in town!

FAMOUS PLAYERS LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR, President

If it's a Paramount Picture it's the best show in town!

Paramount Pictures

CLASSIC

COMBINED WITH SHADOWLAND

A BREWSTER PUBLICATION

Vol. XVIII

DECEMBER, 1923

No. 4

COVER PORTRAIT—BABY PEGGY

Painted by E. Dahl from a photograph by Horwitz

	PAGE
A Portfolio of Players, Stage and Screen: Hope Hampton, Pedro de Cordoba, Ann Pennington, Nita Naldi, Conrad Nagel, May McAvoy, Madge Kennedy.....	11
Questions and Answers, Asked and answered by.....	Harry Carr 18
The Powers Behind the Screen, The third instalment.....	Stanton Leeds 20
Cameo Kirby, Gentleman Gambler, A portrait study.....	21
When I Come Back, A promise.....	Rodolph Valentino 22
Contrasts.....	24
Famous Heroines No. III, Leatrice Joy as Hester Prynne.....	25
Foreign Films, European studios at a glance.....	Cineman 26
Scaramouche, Rex Ingram's picture in short-story form.....	Gordon Malherbe Hillman 28
The Gold Girl of the Follies.....	33
Hollywood Homes, Cecil B. De Mille's.....	34
Glenn Hunter—On and Off.....	Homer Croy 36
The Inescapable Russians, A picture page.....	38
Fathers and Daughters.....	39
A Lover of Life, An interview with Eulalie Jensen.....	Maudie Cheatham 40
Rabindranath Tagore, A portrait.....	42
The Photographer Takes the Stage, Classic's monthly theatrical department.....	43
The Celluloid Critic, Selects "Rosita" as the best picture of a second great month.....	Laurence Reid 47
Iris In, Pertinent and impertinent screen comment.....	H. W. Hanemann 50
A Daughter of Tragedy, Ida Rubenstein.....	51
Flashes From the Eastern Stars, Of the stage, on the screen.....	Caught by the Editor 52
The Slave of Desire, Fiction.....	Grace Lamb 55
Abandon, Gilda Gray's latest portrait.....	60
Classic Considers—The great and the near great.....	61
Getting Married and Unmarried!.....	Levy Cody 62
Why Do People Get Divorces?.....	Helene Chadwick 63
A Snare and a Delusion, A woman's negligée.....	64
A Happy Young Man, Alfred Lunt is the one.....	Faith Service 65
The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats.....	Harry Carr 66
The Movie Encyclopedia.....	By the Answer Man 70
New Books In Brief Review.....	79

Subscription $2.50 per year, in advance, including postage, in the United States, Cuba, Mexico and Philippine Islands. In Canada $3.00; Foreign Countries $3.50 per year. Single copies 25 cents postage prepaid. United States Government stamps accepted. Subscribers must notify us at once of any change in address, giving both old and new address.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, INC., AT JAMAICA, N. Y.

Entered at the Post Office at Jamaica, N. Y., as second-class matter, under the act of March 3rd, 1879. Printed in U. S. A.

Eugene V. Brewster, President and Editor-in-Chief; Guy L. Harrington, Vice-President and Business Manager; L. G. Conlon, Treasurer; E. M. Heinemann, Secretary.

EXECUTIVE and EDITORIAL OFFICES, 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Copyright, 1923, by Brewster Publications, Inc., in the United States and Great Britain.

SUSAN ELIZABETH BRADY, Editor

Adele Whitely Fletcher..... Managing Editor
 Harry Carr..... Western Representative
 A. M. Hopfmuller..... Art Director
 Duncan A. Dobie..... Director of Advertising

CLASSIC comes out on the 12th of every month, MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE on the 1st, BEAUTY on the 8th.

Announcement for January

Kenneth Macgowan, the youngest and most brilliant of theatrical authorities, is going to write an article every month for Classic on "The Play of the Month" * * * Laurence Reid, the best of the movie critics, will head his monthly department with "The Movie of the Month" * * * Should be interesting. * * * A stage star has interviewed a screen star, and each one insisted upon talking about the other. * * * Anyway, Doris Kenyon tried to make Richard Barthelmess talk about himself. * * * Leonore Ulric tells what she thinks of California. You'd be surprised! * * * The loveliest assortment of pictures we have ever offered. * * * Why dont you buy Classic. * * * It is the most beautiful screen magazine on the stands. * * * And dont forget, the January number is a Christmas Number. * * *

Current Stage Plays

(Readers in distant towns will do well to preserve this list for reference when these spoken plays appear in their vicinity.)

Ambassador.—"The Courtesan." A lively and entertaining musical comedy. Alys Delysia and Donald Brian head the cast.

Apollo.—"Poppy." A musical comedy concerning a strolling swindler and his daughter; W. G. Fields and Madge Kennedy in the leading rôles.

Belasco.—"Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary." Mrs. Fiske, supported by several English players, in a St. John Ervine comedy.

Belmont.—"Tarnish." A finely acted play about a once idle rich family, now fallen to a state where the salary of the daughter keeps the wolf from the door. Ann Harding does some excellent acting as the daughter.

Bijou.—"The Whole Town's Talking." A farce by John Emerson and Anita Loos, well-known motion-picture scenarists, written around a movie director who ignores the Eighteenth Amendment.

Booth.—"The Seventh Heaven." Hand-made on melodramatic pattern in a Montmartre tenement in Paris, of an admixture of love, regeneration, humor and unrcality. An excellent performance with Helen Menken starring.

Broadhurst.—"The Dancers." Richard Bennett in a play by Gerald Du Maurier. Review later.

Carroll.—"Vanities of 1923," with Peggy Hopkins Joyce leading the delectable and innumerable vanities.

Casino.—"Wildflower," in which lovely Edith Day flashes thru an exquisite musical score.

Century.—Sir John Martin-Harvey's English company in repertoire.

Century Roof.—"The Nine O'Clock Revue." Arthur Hammerstein's London importation with an English cast. It is a simple but colorful revue.

Cohan.—"Adrienne." A musical comedy with an unusually good chorus. Billy Van and Richard Carle, the latter of "The Spring Chicken" fame, take care of the laughs. Lou Lockett and Margaret Ross introduce a new dance, Adagio.

Comedy.—"Children of the Moon." A modern story of a moon-mad daughter, a lover and a possessive mother. Florence Johns does fine work as the daughter.

Cort.—"The Swan." Eve Le Gallienne in another play from the Hungarian of Franz Molnar.

Daly's.—"Ginger." A lively musical comedy with Tom Swift and Nellie Breen.

Elliott.—"Rain." A bitter tragedy by Somerset Maugham; a violent attack on the repressions of Puritanism. Jeanne Eagels is superb in the leading rôle.

Eltinge.—"Red Light Annie," a melodrama of the underworld dealing with the drug question. Mary Ryan in the leading rôle.

Empire.—"Casanova," a glamorous eighteenth-century romance adapted from the Spanish by Sidney Howard, featuring Katherine Cornell and Lowell Sherman.

Forty-eighth.—"Zeno." This melodramatic mystery play, by Joseph R. Rinn, deals with the newest brand of crooks, electricity and radio.

Forty-ninth.—"For All of Us." A play by William Hodge. The cast includes the author, Florence Mason and Marion Abbott. Review later.

Frazee.—"Tweedles." A comedy by that team of humorists, Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, built on a skeleton of family pride. Gregory Kelly and Ruth Gordon, the young pair conspired against, do good work while reducing all the overly proud to mere "Tweedles."

Frolic.—Grand Guignol Players of the Grand Guignol Theater, Paris, in repertoire of drama and comedy given in French.

Fulton.—"Nifties of 1923." An interesting revue which includes a color ballet with changing lights proving very effective on the costuming of the chorus. The cast includes Sam Bernard, William Collier, Van and Schenck, Ray Dooley and Lina Basquette.

Gaiety.—"Aren't We All?" Cyril Maude in a delightful light comedy that revolves around a philandering husband and an indiscreet wife. Mr. Maude in a Grumpyish character sets a rare pace of fun and his support keeps it up.

Garrick.—"Windows." This John Galsworthy play centers about a household plunged into a turmoil over a young girl just out of prison, where she was sent for smothering her illegitimate child, who has been employed as housemaid.

Globe.—"George White's Scandals." A de luxe edition of gorgeously gowned beauties that make scandals appetizing, including parodies on the "Chauve-Souris" and the Moscow Art Theater.

Greenwich Village.—"The Shame Woman," by Lulu Vollmer, author of "Sun Up," a current success.

Harris.—"The Nervous Wreck." An excellent farce by Owen Davis. Otto Kruger plays the part of the nervous wreck, a young clerk sent West to cure himself of the diseases he imagines he has. He wishes to be left alone to die peacefully, but June Walker, as the entrancing heroine, tries to run away with him and thus starts an endless amount of trouble for him.

Hudson.—"The Crooked Square," by Samuel Shipman with Edna Hibbard and Ben Lyon taking the leads.

Jolson's.—E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe with a capable and supporting company in repertoire of Shakespeare's plays.

Klaw.—"Nobody's Business." Francine Larrimore and Frank Conroy in a good-humored comedy.

Knickerbocker.—"The Lullaby." An Edward Knoblock drama starring Florence Reed. This is the story of a sinning woman's life.

Lenox Hill.—"Sun Up." A passionate tragedy of the North Carolina mountain folk. The Widow Cagle is superbly played by Lucile La Verne.

Liberty.—"The Magic Ring." Mitzi, after a two-years' absence, returns as a street urchin in a fantastic musical comedy which revolves about a magic ring. Harold Levy is responsible for some very catchy musical numbers of the play.

Little.—"Chicken Feed." A comedy dealing with small-town life, setting forward what happens about the fifteenth year of married life. Roberta Arnold is featured.

Longacre.—"Little Jessie James," a musical comedy with Nan Halperin as Little Jessie. The Paul Whiteman band dubbed the James Boys takes care of the orchestration.

Lyceum.—"Little Miss Bluebeard." Irene Bordoni in a comedy that cleverly misses being risqué. The plot hangs on the belief of the heroine that she is married to two men. Miss Bordoni sings several fascinating ballads.

Henry Miller.—"The Changelings." A comedy by Lee Wilson Dodd. The cast includes: Henry Miller, the producer, Blanche Bates, Ruth Chatterton, Laura Hope Crews.

Morosco.—"Scaramouche." Vivienne Osborne and Sidney Blackmer in a play dramatized from Rafael Sabatini's book of the same name.

Music Box.—"Music Box Revue." A new edition of Irving Berlin's extravagant display of beauty and humor.

New Amsterdam.—"Ziegfeld Follies." The 1923 edition of the Follies.

Palace.—Keith vaudeville. Always a good bill, and drawing more and more talent from the headliners of the regulars.

Playhouse.—"The Player Queen." A play by William Butler Yates; and "The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet," by George Bernard Shaw, with Pamela Gaythorne, Classic Lists the Plays That You Should See

☞

Tarnish
Tweedles
The Nervous Wreck
In Love with Love
Children of the Moon
Casanova

"Convenient to Everywhere"

Rittenhouse Hotel

22d and Chestnut Streets
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

A hotel of the highest type catering only to the best patronage

Rooms with hot and cold running water	$2 UP
Rooms with bath	$3 UP

Club Breakfast, 50c up
Special Luncheon, 10c
Evening Dinner, $1.25

As well as service in a bar,
Music During Luncheon,
Dinner and Supper.

$20.00 WHITE GOLD

FILLED WRIST WATCH
20-YEAR CASE
6 JEWEL ADJUSTED MOVEMENT

6⁹⁵

SPECIALLY priced to add new custom ers. Latest style ladies' watch with sapphire crown, silk grosgrain ribbon and white gold filled clasp. Comes in neat gift box.

SEND NO MONEY. Pay postman on delivery, plus few cents postage. Money back promptly if not satisfied.

FREE Send for free folder containing wonderful Christmas gifts in pearls, men's watches, etc., values that defy competition.

MORGAN COMPANY, Dept. D, 929 Broadway, New York

Made for the Movies. Beauty's Oasis Where the Movies are made

Full size Facial Mud Special Mail offer

$2.00 JAR FOR $1.00

OASIS MFG. CO. - 401 50 HILL ST. LOS ANGELES CALIF.

Beauty Culture Course

Easy to Earn $40 to $75 a Week at Home

Secrets of beauty parlors revealed. Thirty easy lessons can make you expert in all branches, massage, packs, dyeing, manicure, skin work, manure, waves, bleach etc. in eight weeks. Study in spare time. Earn while you learn. Authorized diploma. Money back guarantee. 50,000 Opportunities. Get FREE book.

ORIENTAL SYSTEM OF BEAUTY CULTURE
Dept. C-4 1000 Diversey Blvd. Chicago

DON'T WEAR A TRUSS

BE COMFORTABLE—

Wear the Brooks Appliance, the modern scientific invention which gives rupture sufferers immediate relief. It has no obnoxious springs or pads. Automatic Air Cushions bind and draw together the broken parts. No salves or plasters. Durable. Cheap. Sent on trial to prove its worth. Beware of imitations. Look for trademark bearing portrait and signature of C. E. Brooks which appears on every Appliance. None other genuine. Full information and booklet sent free in plain, sealed envelope.

MR. C. E. BROOKS

BROOKS APPLIANCE CO., 220 State St., Marshall, Mich.

Joanna Roos, Sophie Treadwell and others.
Plymouth.—"Launzi." Pauline Lord in a play from the Hungarian of Franz Molnar, adapted by Edna St. Vincent Millay. Review later.

Princess.—"The White Desert." An interesting play by Maxwell Anderson with George Abbott and Frank Shannon.

Republic.—"Abie's Irish Rose." An amusing study in temperaments of the Irish and Jew in which the irreconcilable is reconciled thru emotion.

Ritz.—"In Love With Love," is the story of a flirt caught in her own love net. Lynn Fontaine holds you in suspense with a reality that makes your heart beat.

Sekeyn.—"Battling Buttler." A peppy musical comedy about a husband who impersonates a prize-fighter having the same name as his, which enables him to steal away from his wife on many supposed training trips.

Shubert.—"Artists and Models," a revue; the professional version of the Illustrators' Show. It includes sketches by James Montgomery Flagg, Henry Wagstaff Cribble and Clarence Buddington Kelland. Adele Klacr, who acts, paints, and writes poetry has the lead.

Thirty-ninth.—"A Lesson In Love." Emily Stevens and William Faversham in an interesting and emotional comedy-drama.

Times Square.—"Helen of Troy." A musical comedy, the book by Kaufman and Connolly and the lyrics by Kalmar and Ruby. It has a coherent plot and deals with adventures in a collar factory.

Vanderbilt.—"Two Fellows and a Girl," typical Cohan comedy-drama, panned by all the critics and flocked to by the public.

Winter Garden.—"Greenwich Village Follies." A beautiful spectacle seasoned with goodly humor.

ON TOUR

"Abie's Irish Rose." An amusing study in temperaments.

"Artists and Models." Second company. "Blossom Time." A musical comedy based on the life of Franz Schubert.

"Bombo," black-face extravaganza. "Cameo Girl," and "Listen to Me," musical comedies of one-night stands.

"Caroline," a musical gem. "Dew Drop Inn." Wherein a black-faced comedian leads the musical show.

"Good Morning Dearie." Entertaining musical comedy.

"Icebound." A dramatic study of New England life. Awarded the Pulitzer prize for 1922-1923.

"Irene." A musical worth-while comedy with the original cast.

"Irene Castle's Fashion Show," including dancing and musical numbers.

"Jack and Jill." John Anderson's celebrated musical revue.

"Kempy," an English comedy.

"Kiki." Lenore Ulric as a bewitching gamine.

"Lady in Ermine." A musical comedy concerning a romantic legend.

"Lightnin'." The comedy that Frank Bacon made famous.

"Little Nellie Kelly." A typical George Cohan comedy.

"Loyalties," a Galsworthy play with an English cast—the story of Semitic conflict.

"Partners Again," a Potash and Perlmutter comedy.

"Sally, Irene and Mary." One of the best musical shows extant.

"Secrets." Margaret Lawrence and the original cast, in an English comedy-drama.

"So This Is London." George Cohan poking fun at American and British temperaments. Not original cast.

Theatre Guild Repertory Company

Give Him His Finest Christmas

Give your boy the thrill of a lifetime and win his everlasting gratitude by presenting him with a Conn instrument!

For a Conn not only enables him to develop his musical talent; it gives him wholesome fun and companionship with fellows of his kind, develops a real spirit of team-work; in a word, builds character. Besides this pleasure and popularity, many boys earn their college expenses and more with their musical ability.

His Conn instrument inspires a boy to do his best, because he knows it's exactly the same as those used by the foremost artists in the world. And the easy playing qualities of the Conn, the beautiful tone, perfect scale and reliable action make practice a pleasure, speeding his progress. With all their exclusive features Conn instruments cost no more. Send now for FREE BOOK and details of Free Trial, Easy Payment plan on any Conn instrument — cornet, saxophone, trombone, clarinet, flute, any wind instrument. Conn is the only maker of every instrument used in the band. Mention instrument.

Conn Dealers and Agents Everywhere
C. G. CONN, Ltd., 1254 Conn Bldg.
Elkhart, Ind.

CONN

WORLD'S LARGEST MANUFACTURERS OF HIGH GRADE BAND AND ORCHESTRA INSTRUMENTS

CULTIVATE YOUR MUSICAL BUMP

She Found A Pleasant Way To Reduce Her Fat

She did not have to go to the trouble of diet, exercise or unpleasant greases and salves. She found a better way, which aids the digestive organs to turn food into muscle, bone and sinew instead of fat.

She used Marmola Prescription Tablets, which are made from the famous Marmola prescription. They aid the digestive system to obtain the full nutriment of food. They will allow you to eat many kinds of food without the necessity of dieting or exercising.

Thousands have found that the Marmola Prescription Tablets give complete relief from obesity. And when the accumulation of fat is checked, reduction to normal, healthy weight soon follows.

All good drug stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar a box. Ask your druggist for them, or order direct and they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid.

MARMOLA COMPANY

239 Garfield Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

-Send No Money!

No. 1
8 JEWEL
20 YR. CASE

No. 2
8 JEWEL
20 YR. CASE

ELGIN SPARTAN 14K GOLD FILLED CASES

$6.49

Sensational Watch Offer. Most beautiful Ladies' Wrist Watches ever offered at sensational cut prices. 14 K. White Gold filled Elgin Spartan 20 yr. case, 8 jewel. Stem wind and set—adjusted and regulated. Sapphire crown. Silk grosgrain ribbon bracelet and clasp. ($15 value.) Your choice No. 1 Octagon or No. 2 Maxine Shape Only $6.49.

Beautiful Gift—Just send NAME and address stating style wanted. Pay postman advertised price $6.49. We Pay Postage. Satisfaction Guaranteed.

ELITE JEWELRY HOUSE 306 S. Wabash Ave. Dept. G-12 CHICAGO, ILL.

AGENTS WANTED

to collect renewals and solicit new subscriptions for Motion Picture, Classic and Beauty Magazines. Spare time or full time work. Write for particulars.

BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, Inc.
175 Duffield St. Brooklyn, N. Y.

SELL YOUR SPARE TIME

You can earn $15 to $50 a week writing show cards in your own home.—No canvassing.—A pleasant profitable profession easily and quickly learnt by our new simple graphic block system. Artistic ability not necessary.—We teach you how, and supply you with work—Distance no object. Full particulars and booklet free.

WILSON METHODS LIMITED—DEPT. 5-M
64 East Richmond, Toronto, Canada

headed by the versatile and delightful Basil Sydney in: Andreyev's "He Who Gets Slapped," Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" and Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple." All former New York successes.

"The Bat." The Hopwood-Rinchart mystery play of record run.

"The Clinging Vine." Delightful musical play of flappers and a flapper grandmother.

"The Crash," a melodrama by Lincoln J. Carter and Ralph Kittering, produced exclusively for the road.

"The Dancing Girl." Song and dance.

"The First Year," a comedy about "breakers ahead" on the honeymoon.

"The Fool," a drama about a minister who tries to follow the life of Christ in modern locale.

"The Gingham Girl." Good comedy and better music.

"The Heart of Paddy Wack," with the old favorite Chauncey Olcott.

"The Music Box Revue." Extravagant in girls, costume and song.

"The Old Soak," a play on the order of "Lightnin'." With Harry Beresford, the lovable inebriate.

"The Passing Show," as usual a gorgeous revue.

"The Perfect Fool." Edwin Wynn making it perfect.

"Thumbs Down." A somewhat wild but amusing mystery play.

"Up the Ladder," a drama concerning the newly married and their extravagance.

"Wang," with the arch comedian, De Wolf Hopper, a charming revival.

"Whispering Wires," a mystery play that makes the flesh creep.

"Wildflower," which has a delightful musical score. Second company.

"You and I," a society comedy, wherein a career is sacrificed to matrimony.

QUESTION

By WRIGHT FIELD

You have said that you love me . . .
I have not tasted food today,
And the water that I drank
Has been wine. . . Last night,
Heaven spilled itself across my bed
In the glory of moonlight,
And kissed down my eyelids
Into a trance of delight
More exquisite than dreams . . . all day
I trembled with the ecstasy
That swam about me . . . if it is thus
To know that you love me,
How shall I bear it
When . . . you kiss me?

THE EGO

(To any man—or woman)

By WRIGHT FIELD

What are you, anyway,
That your small pin-pricks of opinions,
Hopes, fears, desires, and prejudices,
(Especially the latter!)
Should be thrust upon a World
That has annoyances of its own,
And a hard enough time, as it is,
To get along with you,
Without your small stings?

Should a worm,
Sucking its life from an apple,
Rear its humble form indignantly,
And hurl advice or venom at the apple-tree
That tolerates, shelters, and feeds it?
The World
Is your apple-tree;
Be glad it tolerates you,
And keep your worm-like views
In your own worm-hole!

Charles McNeil,

WITH ISHAM JONES, USES THE NEW GIBSON MASTERTONE

Instantly recognizing the superior qualities of the New Mastertone—marvelous tone, absolute dependability, and "easy playing"—Mr. McNeil, a real banjo artist, has adopted it for all his dance and recording work.

All the tang of real banjo tone with a new musical quality and great carrying power due to the exclusive Gibson Rim and Ball Bearing Tone Tube Construction, the biggest improvement ever made in banjos. Gibson Tone Projector takes the place of resonator attachments. Scientifically correct scale makes easier playing and eliminates string breakage.

Send coupon for Free Book and details of Easy Payment plan on any Gibson instrument, including Tenor Banjo, Mandolin Banjo, Guitar Banjo, Cello Banjo, Mandolin, Mandola, Mandocello, Guitar, Harp-Guitar, and Mando Bass. Send coupon NOW for Free Book and complete information, mentioning instrument.

GIBSON MANDOLIN-GUITAR CO.

1207 Parsons Street, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Please send me complete information about

(Instrument)

Name _____

Street or R. R. _____

P. O. _____

If interested in becoming a teacher-agent check ()

OWN A GENUINE NAZAMITE DIAMOND

Nazamite Diamonds have the same fiery sparkle and brilliancy that make diamonds so rare. They are cut exactly like real diamonds and each one is perfect. Send to-day for this beautiful 14K Green Gold S. Orange Blossom engraved ring mounted with a Half K. Nazamite and be convinced. Send no money. When ring comes deposit $1.50 with postman. Not a penny more. If not more than pleased return in 5 days and money refunded. Send for yours at once.

NAZAMITE JEWELERS, Dept. D.
5519 Kenwood Avenue Chicago, Illinois

Try This on Your Hair 15 Days

Then let your mirror prove results Write Today for FREE Trial Offer. Your hair need not thin out, nor need you be bald, for a way has been found to destroy the microbe that destroys the hair. This new and different method will prevent thinning out of the hair, dandruff, lifeless hair, baldness, gray hair, by strengthening and prolonging life of the hair for men and women. Send now before it is too late for the 15-days' free trial offer.

AYMES CO., 3932 N. Robey St., M. 405 Chicago

20 SHOT 32 CAL. $8.75

AUTOMATIC SALE

SEND today! Sure while they last for this brand new improved 20 shot, 32 cal. automatic of the finest blue steel, 10 shots with extra magazine, making 20 quick, sure shots in all. Double safety. Special at $8.75. Also finest 25 cal. 7 shot blue steel automatic including genuine leather HOLSTER FREE for only $6.75. Both guns shoot any standard automatic cartridge. Money Back If Not Satisfied.

CONSUMERS CO., Dept. 20-DN, New York
1265 Broadway

PAY POSTMAN ON DELIVERY PLUS POSTAGE

Have You a Money Problem to Solve?

This Book is Free

NO MATTER WHAT YOU MAY NEED MONEY FOR, THERE IS A WAY FOR YOU TO GET IT THROUGH OUR PLAN

We are not looking for people who are dissatisfied with life, to come and make money with us. We are interested however, in anyone who is dissatisfied with the money which he or she now has and who has the ambition to work hard for big pay.

You might be a busy mother and home keeper a salaried man with no great prospects for the future—a stenographer or clerk—or a schoolgirl or boy—whatever your position, if you want more money and will devote your spare time to the work which we can give you, then you are the person we are looking for.

WHAT OTHERS HAVE DONE YOU CAN DO

The magazine business has proved its fascination to hundreds before you. Pictures of two of our many co-workers are given just to show what excellent company you will be in if you decide to join us. We have full-time workers earning as high as $5,000 a year. Our spare-time workers average $1.00 an hour and up.

In our little booklet, "The Open Road To An Independent Income," we give you many examples of what others are doing in the magazine business; we tell you what our own proposition to you will be; and we tell you, fully, how to carry on this work. If you are just curious, please do not write. But if you are sincerely interested in having more money and are willing to work for it either full time or spare time, then by all means send for a free copy of our booklet.

Subscription Dept.
EREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, Inc.
175 Duffield St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

I am interested in having more money. Please tell me how I can get it thru your plan.

Name.....
St. and No.....
City.....
State.....

FAT the enemy that is shortening your life—banished

By Neutroids

—Dr. Graham's Famous Prescription

Superfluous fat over-burdens the heart and affects the lungs, kidneys, stomach and all other organs. Stout men and women are the easiest victims of pneumonia. Trivial maladies, such as ptomaine poisoning or bronchial infections, bring sudden and unexpected death to stout people where such a thing is unheard of when slender people are similarly affected. Realizing that obesity is a serious factor in shortening human life, Dr. R. Lincoln Graham, famous stomach specialist of New York, has devoted his life to finding a

FREE

Personal Mail Consulting Service by Dr. Graham's Staff

Any person taking Neutroids may feel free to call at the Sanitarium or write to Dr. Graham confidentially. Your letter will receive the personal attention of either Dr. Graham himself or a staff physician.

NO DANGER GUARANTEED HARMLESS

method for reproducing obesity naturally without injury to the health of the patient in any way. Finally, after countless experiments in the laboratories of Europe and America, he developed and perfected his prescription known as NEUTROIDS.

No Creams—No Baths—No Diet—No Exercise

The fat in your body is caused by a simple chemical process. Yeast cells in the stomach combine with the starch and sugar of your food, causing fatty tissues instead of healthy lean muscle.

Neutroids counter-act the action of these yeast cells and immediately overcome the formation of fat at its very source. Neutroids then aid nature in dissolving fatty tissue accumulated over a long period. Dr. Graham has prescribed Neutroids for thousands of people suffering from overweight who have visited his sanitarium. He personally guarantees that his prescription will give satisfactory results and that it contains no thyroid extract or habit forming drugs and can be taken with safety by all.

SEND COUPON ONLY—NO MONEY

Merely fill in and send this convenient coupon now. When the little packet of Neutroids arrives deposit purchase price with Postman. This will be refunded if you are not satisfied.

WHAT USERS OF NEUTROIDS HAVE TO SAY

Had tried everything
"I have tried everything on the face of the earth to reduce and nothing has done me any good but Dr. Graham's Neutroids."—Constance E. Harris, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Lost 5 pounds in one week
"In the first week's treatment of Neutroids I lost five pounds, lost my craving for food, feel lighter and more active."—Mrs. Madeline Gunther, New York City.

Lost 16 pounds in 2 weeks
"I lost sixteen pounds on the first two weeks' treatment and feel fine. I want to lose twenty-four pounds more."—L. G. Miller, Thermopolis, Wyo.

DR. R. LINCOLN GRAHAM, care of The Graham Sanitarium, Inc., 123 East 89th St., Dept. 713, New York City.—Send me two weeks' treatment of Neutroids which entitles me to free professional mail consulting service and free booklet on Obesity. I will pay postman $2 (plus 15c postage) on arrival in plain package. Money to be refunded if not satisfied.

Name..... Age..... Sex.....
Address..... Weight.....

Develops Busts Like Magic!
During the past 15 years thousands have added to their captivating glory of womanhood by using
GROWDINA
for bust, neck or arm development
Great Discovery of Parisian beauty expert. Harmless, easy, certain results guaranteed or money back. Marvelous testimonials of efficiency. Confidential proof and literature (sealed) on request. Write to: Miss Sophie Koppe, Suite 503, 503 Fifth Ave., New York

FREE FIRST LESSON RECORD

Learn to Play

Viola, Mandolin and Banjo—Mandolin quickly. No embarrassment. You learn to play or pay nothing. Play for money in two months.
Beautiful Instrument FREE
No charge for instrument to one pupil in each locality. Few cents a week pays for lessons. Write for First Record—Sent without cost on 1 week's approval with complete details of Personal Instruction Record Course.

SCHNEIDER SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Dept. D-12, 238 Vermont Street, Blue Island Ill. (A suburb of Chicago)

14K Solid Gold WATCH
$12⁹⁵
Usual retail value, $30. Direct from New York's largest watch importer you save 60%
Tonneau shape, 14Kt. 18.15 gold case, U.S. stamped. Case gorgeously engraved, highly jeweled adjusted movement. Sapphire crown, richly engraved dial, silk grosgrain ribbon, 14 Kt. white gold clasp. Order now, quantity limited at price. Postage prepaid. Send No Money. Pay postman. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.
CROWN JEWELRY MFG. CO. Dept. 9812 33 E. 10 St. New York

ONLY $2 DOWN
GENUINE DIAMOND Wrist Watch
FREE TRIAL
14KARAT SOLID WHITE GOLD
15 JEWELLED ADJUSTED REGULATED
Send only $2.00 deposit to show your good faith and we will send this beautiful tonneau shape wrist watch to you without any red tape or delay. The hand engraved case is 14 Kt. solid white gold, guaranteed for a lifetime. It is fitted with silk grosgrain ribbon bracelet with 14 Kt. solid gold clasp. The movement is 15 jeweled lever, adjusted and regulated and is guaranteed.
GENUINE BLUE WHITE DIAMONDS
Four sparkling, brilliant, full cut diamonds are set in the 14 Kt. gold case, adding greatly to its beauty and value. They make most appreciated presents. We supply attractive gift cases.
PAY ONLY $4.00 PER MONTH for 10 months. Total price only $42.00. If you can duplicate it for less than $85.00, we guarantee to return every cent you paid.
WRITE FOR CATALOG NO. 1281
It brings a large jewelry store right into your home.
STERLING DIAMOND & WATCH CO.
Established 1879 51,000,000 Stock
63 Park Row—Dept. 1281—New York

A girl's skin can be a constant humiliation to her—or it can be one of the loveliest things about her, so fresh and sweet that no one can see it and not admire it.

If you want to be attractive to other people—begin with your skin! Overcome its defects—learn to care for it in the way that will keep it flawlessly clear and smooth, with a fresh, natural color. The satisfaction you will feel in having a beautiful complexion will more than repay you for the few minutes of regular care that you spend on it every day.

Your skin can be as lovely as any woman's —if you give it the right care

DON'T be a fatalist about your skin!

Don't say to yourself that you have a naturally poor complexion, just as some women have a naturally good complexion.

A poor complexion is never natural to anyone.

If there is something about your skin that keeps it from being attractive—if it is pale and sallow, or excessively oily, or disfigured with blackheads—with blemishes—then you can be sure that you are not giving your skin the right kind of care.

Begin now to overcome this condition! You can make your skin what you will, for each day it is changing; old skin dies and new takes its place. Give this new skin the special treatment it should have, and see how smooth and lovely you can keep it—how quickly the defects in it will disappear.

Use the following treatment to free your skin from blemishes—

Just before retiring, wash your face with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse very carefully, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

Special treatments for all the commoner skin troubles are given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch" which is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap and begin to-night the right treatment for your skin! Within a week or ten days you will see a marked improvement.

A 25 cent cake of Woodbury's lasts a month or six weeks for regular use, including any of the special treatments. The same qualities that give Woodbury's its beneficial effect in overcoming common skin troubles make it ideal for regular toilet use. You can also get Woodbury's in convenient 3-cake boxes.

Three Woodbury skin preparations
—guest size—for 10 cents

Send 10 cents today for a miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations, containing:

A trial size cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap
A sample tube of Woodbury's Facial Cream
A sample box of Woodbury's Facial Powder
Together with the treatment booklet. "A Skin You Love to Touch."

Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 912 Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 912 Sherbrooke St., Perth, Ontario. English Agents: H. C. Quelch & Co., 4 Ludgate Square, London, E. C. 4.

A PORTFOLIO of PLAYERS

STAGE AND SCREEN

Photograph by Ira D. Hill

Hope Hampton has been conscientiously and persistently working toward better things, and for her part in "The Gold Diggers," the critics had only praise

Photograph by Maurice Goldberg

This sterling actor, like so many others, divides his time between stage and screen. He is now playing in the New York stage success, "The Jolly Roger," and has just completed an English film

PEDRO DE CORDOBA

Photograph by Richard Southall Grant

ANN PENNINGTON

Whenever a show in New York is in danger of flopping, the powers just call in little Miss Pennington and the day is saved. Pinch hitting seems to be her "métier." Piquant is an overworked word, but it belongs to Ann

Photograph by Donald Biddle Keyes

We cant resist quoting Classic's own "Iris In" about this fascinating woman. Speaking of "Lawful Larceny," Hane-mann said, "It's Naldi, but it's nice!"

NITA NALDI

CONRAD NAGLE

Whose work is steadily improving under the Goldwyn banner. He has just completed "The Rendezvous" and will play Paul in Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks"

Photograph by Strauss Peyton

This starlet has had hard luck, but it has turned now, and she is playing Beatrice Chew opposite Glenn Hunter in "West of the Water Tower"

MAY MCAVOY

Photograph by White Studios

MADGE KENNEDY

This irresistible comédienne is twinkling on the stage in "Poppy" and is at the same time on tour in her photoplay, "The Purple Highway"

Paramount
POLA NEGRI
The genius of the screen

Edwin Bower Hesser
MABEL NORMAND
The most temperamental

Clarence S. Bull
BLANCHE SWEET
The most extraordinary personality

MADGE BELLAMY
The prettiest

Questions and Answers

WHEN they know you are from Hollywood, you are due for a cross-examination; and when I am cross-examined, this is what I tell them:

THE QUESTION: Who is the finest artist in the movies?

THE ANSWER: Taking all things into consideration, the finest artist among the men is Charlie Chaplin; Lillian Gish among the women.

And if it comes to a decision between the two, we will have to agree upon what we mean by an artist. Charlie is a conveyor of ideas. Lillian Gish is a delineator of characters. Charlie is never anybody but himself and never tries to be.

Charlie expresses himself and his quaint original angle on life. Lillian expresses other people and their angles on life. Strictly speaking, I suppose you might say that Chaplin is not an actor at all. That is to say, he never merges his own character into the representation of some character out of life. Charlie is essentially a painter. Only he uses himself and a camera instead of an easel and a brush.

No artist in all the history of art has given to the world more exquisite pictures than the perfect little thumbnail sketches that Chaplin paints. He is a poet, only he uses his own feet and a pair of big shoes instead of iambic tetrameter. Charlie's little pictures of wistful poverty are among the great satires of the world's literature. Lillian Gish, on the other hand, is a great actress in the sense of casting off her own personality and putting on another like a coat.

It is an incorrect use of terms to call Lillian a genius. Mabel Normand is a genius—perhaps the most remarkable that ever came to the screen. Pola Negri is another.

Lillian is not a genius. She is a master workman. With Mabel Normand, acting bubbles out of her soul like water from a spring. I don't believe she gives it much thought. Also if she gave it much thought, she would hurt her work. She is at her best when she "just does it." The same is true of Pola Negri. One of the reasons why "Bella Donna" failed artistically was because Pola began figuring out what to do instead of plunging right in as she has done when she had a director she knew and trusted. With Lillian Gish, on the other hand, it is all conscious effort. She is always shooting at a mark. She studies the character she is to portray as a surgeon studies a disease. She even figures out in her own mind what such a girl would eat; what she would do on her holidays; what kind of friends she would have. She may never use these points on the screen; but it helps her to get "clear under." I think her work in "Broken Blossoms" was the highest point to which screen acting has ever been lifted.

LILLIAN GISH
The finest artiste

Abbe

Kenneth Alexander
CORINNE GRIFFITH
The second most temperamental newspaper editors the world of journalism has known. With absolute seriousness I nominate Mary for this woman cabinet member they say is due to happen before long. She has vision and a level sanity that is almost appalling. I have never known any big public man with such an ability to reduce a situation to its native elements. Louise Fazenda is another type of mind. She is almost as shrewd and keen in a business way as Mary but she

Edwin Bower Hesser
THEDA BARA
The most charming socially

Witzel, L. A.
FLORENCE VIDOR
The most beautiful

Witzel, L. A.
RUTH ROLAND
The best business woman

Hoover Studio
LOUISE FAZENDA
The most original

Harry Carr Settles These Cinema Queries Once And For All

sometimes allows herself to be blinded by fits of self-pity and a variety of self-consciousness that manifests itself as "acting." You are not sure when you are down to the real genuine Louise Fazenda, or when she is just "acting." Without any comparison, however, she has the most original, daring and flashing intelligence of any girl in the movies. Mary always makes me think of a bank with shiny desks; Louise is more like a circus. Mary may emerge some day as a great financier; I shouldn't be surprised to see Louise become an author of real note and genius.

THE QUESTION: Who is the most charming socially?

THE ANSWER: The most finished social charm I ever met in the movies came from a Russian princess who was working as an extra. She had escaped from Siberia in a box car with thirty drunken Russian Cossacks who were trying to assault her most of the time and who were held at bay by her wit and charm of manner. I can't remember her name and don't know what became of her. She just blew in and blew out again. Of established actresses, the most charming woman I ever met is Theda Bara. I imagine it is somewhat studied and planned for on Theda's part; nevertheless she has charm and poise and a light flashing wit and at the same time depth and a rare tact and a delightful instinct for the color of words and the natural boundaries of a social conversation.

THE QUESTION: Who is the most extraordinary personality?

THE ANSWER: Is it Mabel Normand or Blanche Sweet? Certainly one of the two. Mabel is the only person I ever knew who seemed to take a delight in putting her worst foot forward. Mabel is one of the most thoroly and widely read women I have ever known but she religiously conceals the fact. If Mabel buys the Atlantic Monthly, she carries it home wrapped up in the Police Gazette. Mabel has a good angel that she always keeps locked up where nobody can find her. She has a bad angel whose name is Wild Impulse. The good little sweet, tender-hearted child who is the real Mabel sits at one side saying, "Dont, oh dont" to the reckless little Mabel who rushes wildly, intemperately on, refusing to listen. Blanche Sweet is another girl who keeps the best of herself where nobody can see—who covers up a tender, sympathetic heart and tries her best to be something other than the sweet lovable girl that she is. Underneath the Blanche Sweet that the world knows is a strange tragic note that is hard to explain and understand.

THE QUESTION: Who is the richest woman in the movies?

THE ANSWER: In her own right, Mary Pickford. She has a large fortune in securities that are like greenbacks in the bank. It is esti-

© Strauss-Peyton
MARY PICKFORD
The richest and the most intelligent mated that Mary is about twice a millionaire. Ruth Roland is also a very rich woman as a result of her real-estate investments. The ultimate extent of her fortune will depend somewhat upon the future of Los Angeles. With her immense oil fields; with a wealth of cheap electric power in her mountains, with her great fruit and cotton interests and her proximity to the Orient, it looks as tho Ruth had in the future of Los Angeles a pretty safe bet.

If we consider her husband's fortune as hers, which it is, in fact, under the California law, then Norma

(Continued on page 82)

CHARLIE CHAPLIN
The finest artist

© Strauss-Peyton

The Powers Behind the Screen

Who's Who in the Motion-Picture Business

By STANTON LEEDS

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the third of the series of five articles on the business end of the motion picture and a discussion and a description of the truly great personalities who have put the movies on the map

"THE exhibitor." Producers are wont to complain, "is the original cry-baby."

However that may be, the chorus against Adolph Zukor, after he set out on his ambitious project of supplying regularly each year two feature pictures a week, rose to a scream. It was maintained that high prices would scare off the public.

The idea was general, but it grew to be the particular white-headed pet of W. W. Hodkinson, the Cassandra of the picture business. Much given to prophecy, his warnings have rarely been heeded, but that they deserved better of his hearers is shown by his own success and his record as an independent distributor of a program of unusually well-selected pictures. "Down to the Sea in Ships" was his. So was "Journey's End."

Tall, reserved but courteous, with a precise manner of speech that bears witness to his gift for balancing all the forces that assert their weight in any particular problem, he was the first president of Paramount, and on the subject of the company's attitude toward exhibitors, he and Zukor had words.

It has been said authoritatively of Adolph Zukor that he will express, in private, without reserve all the stored-up antagonism he may feel toward some rival, and the next minute receive this same rival in his office, welcoming him with all possible sympathy and attention, but this quality, that is also Lloyd George's, did not signalize his difference with Hodkinson. Their interchange of compliments is one of the classics of Broadway.

Its upshot was a meeting of the board of directors. Hodkinson found himself suddenly out in the cold, and, from time to time, others have followed him from the realm ruled by Zukor—notably B. P. Schulberg, who, on his own, discovered Katherine MacDonald, the American Beauty, to a waiting world; Hiram Abrams, now managing for Pickford, Fairbanks, Griffith, Chaplin and others, their own distributing concern; Al Lichtman, at thirty a salesman with an amazing reputation for results; Whit-

Photograph by Pach, N. Y.

W. W. Hodkinson, the Cassandra of the picture business. Much given to prophecy, his warnings have rarely been heeded; but that they deserved better of their hearers is shown by his own success as an independent distributor. "Down to the Sea in Ships" was his offering man Bennett, a Harvard summa cum laude man and now producer of his own pictures, and John D. Williams.

These men are Zukor men, and they have the Zukor idea just as surely as S. R. Kent, Famous Players' present sales-manager, has, but that John D. Williams ever was with Adolph Zukor seems to have been forgotten.

An Australian, he was disregarded until he loomed up, apparently from nowhere. Associated with him was H. O. Schwalbe, erstwhile secretary of the Stanley Company which owns a great chain of theaters in censor-ridden Pennsylvania—in fact, that great state, if not its performing censors, is said to eat out of this company's hand.

At any rate, with this immense market back of them, Williams and Schwalbe proceeded to organize the co-operative company which they called the First National.

"Paramount has the stars," they said. "That's Zukor's talking point. Till we get 'em away, we cant sell the country."

Now exhibitors, of course, had the neat notion that if they were to make pictures themselves they wouldn't have to buy them from Paramount. If they didn't have to pay so much to Paramount, they would make more themselves. Williams and Schwalbe found that these very ideas were rich, red meat for them.

In return for pictures to come, exhibitors banked money in the First National war chest and this money was used to assist such producers as D. W. Griffith, Thomas H. Ince, Marshall Neilan and so on, to make their own pictures. The pictures, of course, were First National's to distribute, and on these pictures exhibitors having a First National franchise had a primary claim.

The money was also used to hire stars to appear in pictures. From Zukor, Williams and his crowd coaxed Mary Pickford and a merry war was on.

Thru the loss of Mary Pickford, Zukor found all his valuable contracts threatened. He countered by buying, or building, theaters. In short, he became again what he

(Continued on page 84)

Cameo Kirby, Gentleman Gambler

John Gilbert in the picturesque title-rôle of the new Fox film, "Cameo Kirby," by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson. Photograph by Edwin Bower Hesser

Photograph by Russell Ball

Photograph by Victor George

When I Come Back

A Promise

By

RODOLPH VALENTINO

Photograph by
Donald Biddle Keyes

THE only Valentino sits easily at one end of a neutral-tinted davenport in his New York apartment. The room is in disorder, stripped of its draperies and the little odds and ends that make of four walls a home. Trunks and boxes of all shapes and sizes are about. Expensive luggage of every description fairly litters the place. He is leaving with his wife, Natacha Rambova, for a belated honeymoon in Europe. The interviewer is confused, frankly, rattled. One has heard so much of this man and dreamed so much more, that when one finally is in The Presence, words simply desert, or worse still, mutiny, and intelligent questions become chaotic stammerings. Yes, one is a little excited. Not so Valentino. He is smoking cigarets in an inordinately long and of bright Chinese red. His voice is soft, a little throaty, musical as all Italian voices are. There is only a trace of accent, utterly charming. His vocabulary is remarkable. He speaks:

Above is a study of Valentino and his remarkable wife, Natacha Rambova, taken in their own apartment before they sailed for Europe. The little round pictures look like "before and after" his coming back to the cinema

I have not been happy away from pictures. I want to start to work again and I believe that that may be soon. You know I have signed a contract with the Ritz-Carlton Pictures and Mr. J. D. Williams, who is doubtless known to you. The arrangement becomes effective with the expiration of my Famous Players-Lasky contract. In February I shall start making pictures again.

preposterously slender ivory holder. If the couch is neutral-tinted, he is not. He wears a shining gun-metal grey-satin lounge suit with collars and cuffs and frogs

I think I have the most wonderful contract it has ever been a star's privilege to sign. I had many other offers too. Do not think that vanity; I am merely stating a fact. But the contract that Mr. Williams offered me is exactly the thing I have been looking for ever since "The Four Horsemen." I am to select my own stories, my own cast, and the director I think best qualified to handle the particular story I wish to make. I am at liberty to choose any member, or the entire staff necessary to the making of pictures these days. The entire responsibility will be mine. If the pictures fail, it will be my fault.

But I do not think they will fail. I have not lost my head entirely, and do not mean to try to shoulder everything, as so many motion-picture stars have been doing lately, and with such disastrous results. Oh, no. I shall pick my own director, but once he is mine, I shall be his—if you understand me? I shall place whatever talents I have in his hands and I shall try to the best of my ability to be guided by superior mentality wherever I find it. So, I do not think we will fail.

I dare not fail. I do not like poverty and I have had my share of adversity and disillusionment. Perhaps it has been good for me—I am sure it has—but I do not want any more of it. . . .

Valentino sighs a little, smiles a little, and lights another cigaret. His eyes are far away. He is hardly conscious of a listener. It is as tho he merely speaks his thoughts aloud, far-away thoughts, but not so long ago that they should be softened by the merciful hand of retrospect. So little a while ago . . . and he was starving poor. . . .

I have been so poor, so what you call broke, that I hardly got enough to eat. I remember that, and it keeps me forever humble. I think back on those days and I think that now I must be careful. I must not get the swell head, because that ruins development; I must not think people cannot get along without what I have to give them, because there was a time when they did; and if I do not keep faith with my—my—friends who like me,

(Twenty-three)

A character study of Valentino by Russell Ball. Ruddy will start making pictures again for us in February—unless he has more bad luck with his previous contract. We hope not, dont you?

they will deny me and I shall be poor and obscure again. Yes, I have been poor, so poor that I used to haunt the free-lunch counters. And I always used to go at five o'clock too—spent the day tightening my belt and waiting until five o'clock. And the reason I waited till five o'clock was that all the working-men filled the saloons then and bought their glass of beer—you were supposed to buy a glass of beer, but I never had the price—and in the crowd no one noticed that I had eaten tho I bought nothing. I

(Continued on page 86)

Foreign Films

FRANCE

Above is Sadi Lecointe, the French Ace, in a Phocea Film, "The Speed King." Right is a scene from the German film "Struensee," which deals with the love affairs of a great statesman and a Danish queen

WHEN a man begins to be too attentive to his past, it means that he has given up hope of a future. If national and individual psychology conform to the same rule, then one is inclined to conclude that the future of the film abroad is, to say the least, obscure. Nearly ninety per cent. of the productions now being made in Europe are either of a historical or legendary origin. It is hardly flattering to the creative talent of contemporary writers abroad that in every important producing country there should be such a marked and almost exclusive tendency to exploit the past and ignore the present. However, it would be unjust to lay the blame for this situation to artistic poverty, for the policy of exploring the past and ignoring the present has largely an economic significance. It is cheaper to go to a public library than to submit to the demands of high-priced authors, and as the Budget has become the Bible of industries as well as governments abroad, the rôle of the bookkeeper has assumed a greater importance than that of the author.

Photographs (above, right and below) © Gaumont

Above is Mary Johnson in a Swedish photoplay called "The Old Manor." Right is a scene from "The Mysterious Emblem," a Gaumont production which is laid in the closing years of Napoleon

The current productions in France are an excellent illustration of this principle, yet the revealing thing about them is that the principle of economy can be carried out without any undue sacrifice of art or impressiveness. In fact, in many instances the artistic value of the picture is actually enhanced. This is particularly true of the ambitious eight-part drama, "The Boy King," being made by the Société Ciné-Roman, which not only dispenses with the author but evades the exactions of the property-man. The story deals with one of the most dramatic episodes of the Pre-Revolutionary era, in which Louis XVI, Marie Antoinette, the pathetic Dauphin, and Lafayette figure largely. The background of the action is the Palace at Versailles, a majestic mass of architecture which lends immense dignity to the picture and which for the first time has been conceded by the government to filming.

The impressive Gaumont production, "The Mysterious Emblem," likewise has recourse to history, dealing with the closing years of Napoleon and the intrigues of his loyal followers to bring him back to power: evidently an inexhaustible source of drama and dealt with in this instance very convincingly. Aubert, who has just brought Sessue Hayakawa to Paris to star in a modern film, also bows to the historical trend in "Buridan, the Hero of the Tour de Nesle," which goes back even farther to Louis X, in which intrigue runs deep and passion runs high and the plot thickens to the point of being oppressive when Buridan turns down Queen Marguerite of Bourgogne in favor of her humble but charming rival, Myrtille. From these pictures it can be seen that the film fans of France will in the coming season submit to an intensive course in history such as will beggar their school-day memories.

Cineman Glances Over the European Studios

GERMANY

The origin of this whole movement back to the past can, of course, be traced to Germany, where the essential motive was less economy than an effort to escape the stigma of the present or very recent past by seeking shelter in the neutrality of history. With a world still hostile to all the earmarks of Kultur and to any illusions, however oblique, to the nefarious influence which critical eyes can still discern in contemporary Germany, the producers of that country were compelled to seek subjects which would disarm any lurking prejudices. The first result was a type of film like "Caligary," fantastic, bold, experimental, and without any mark of nationality. But presently this vogue wore out, and the German producers began to make their raids on the past, prying into the history and legends of all countries, and selecting subjects which belong to all times and all peoples. And the result has been of inestimable value to the film world, in that it revealed a hitherto unexplored realm, rich in possibilities, and now being thoroly exploited by all European countries.

Germany has now added two more films to its historical collection: "Struensee," which dramatizes a page from Danish history; and "Peter the Great," which centers around one of the great Czars of Russia. The former is a picturesque and stirring record of the career of Struensee, who rose from obscurity to a position of power in Denmark, became a statesman of talent and authority, but whose weakness (so it was considered) was a most undignified love for the common people. Struensee had the King and the whole Court against him in his plebeian taste, but he had Queen Caroline-Mathilde with him, which was ample compensation. But even in palaces the way of love never runs smooth, and as Struensee's heart was doubly compromised in that he had consecrated it both to a woman and to an ideal, he paid the ultimate penalty, the loyal and devoted Queen sharing his fate at the guillotine.

(Cont'd on page 83)

Photograph © Gaumont

Above is a tender moment from "Over the Wall." Left is Raquel Meller, a famous singer and dancer, in the first film she ever made in Spain, "The White Gitanes." She is in the United States

Photograph (left) Kadel and Herbert

Above is Alma Taylor, England's Mary Pickford. Every country boasts at least a dozen! Left is a scene from "The Boy King," an ambitious historical film story made in France

THE old coach rumbled thru the rough streets of Gavrilac. Its squeaking was prodigious, its rumbling immense; but if these things disturbed the fat lady with seven chins who sat in the corner, they had never an effect on André-Louis Moreau.

He was a dark, lantern-jawed young man, whose conceit it was that the world was mad and that he, André-Louis, was made to laugh at the lot of common mortals. But now he was not sardonic, not even satiric. His hand held a little square of crumpled handkerchief, and his thoughts were among the stars in the land where the dead dreams go. The memory was that of a young girl, fair and fragile, a spitfire if she wished, but with all a spitfire's sweetness. This was Aline de Kercadiou, orphaned niece of Quintin de Kercadiou, a grand seigneur in those piping days of peaceful France, when Louis XVI played at locksmith in the palace at Versailles.

From this place and palace, where she had been under the patronage of a powerful lady, Madame de Plougastel, she had come home once more to the sleepy little Breton town, and the crumbling château. A letter on André's lap told this, and more. "You will find her much changed," it read. Aline changed . . . how changed . . . would she still be the Aline who had loved André-Louis long years ago?

"Look! Look!" whispered Philippe de Vilmorin, André's companion, divinity student and earnest revolu-

Scaramouche

Written In Short Story Form

By

GORDON MALHERBE HILLMAN

tionist in those dark days when a republican was a marked man.

Down the steep street came a solemn procession. Four men were carrying a quiet inert burden, whose dark head swayed stiffly as they walked. Ahead of them stalked the gigantic figure of the gamekeeper of the preserves of that mightiest of all mighty nobles, the Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr. As they stepped from the coach, a peasant told them: "It is Mabey. He was poaching on the preserves of M. le Marquis. They shot him dead."

Into the squalid hut of Mabey, Philippe followed the body and its bearers, and as the poacher's wife moaned and a naked child huddled crying in a corner, he knelt to pray for the soul of a poor peasant, become an outlaw thru that grim specter of starvation that stalked the land.

There was a rustle outside, the stopping of a mighty traveling carriage, and there entered, stooping at the narrow door, that rakishly handsome roué, that bewigged and beruffled scourge of the countryside, that minor tyrant, the Marquis de la Tour. With him, snuff-box and cane in hand, minced his friend, the little jackal who trailed the tiger, the Chevalier de Chabrilane. They sniffed, they smiled, they exchanged snuff-boxes, for all the world as tho they were in the gilded salons of Versailles instead of a filthy hut, looking upon foul murder.

Philippe the rebel, Philippe the hot-head, sprang up, his rage red in him, an accusing finger at the Marquis.

"You mock, Monsieur. You laugh. Will you laugh, I wonder, when God presents his reckoning to you for the blood and plunder with which your hands are full?"

Chabrilane sprang forward, but the Marquis delicately tapped his snuff-box. "Monsieur," he said coldly and slowly, "your revolutionary sentiments betray the indiscretion of which madame your mother must have been guilty."

Philippe was a priest and a man of peace. For a moment he failed to comprehend; then he struck the Marquis square in the face. Too late André saw the trap which had been baited for his friend. The outcome of such an act was a duel. The Marquis was the finest sword in France; Philippe but a clumsy boy.

"But, Monsieur," he cried, "see, he wears no sword. He is a student for the priesthood."

"But mine is at Monsieur's service," said Chabrilane, smiling like a great cat.

And so it was. The Marquis was lithe as a serpent;

"You have killed him!" cried André. The Marquis ran a lace handkerchief along his blade. "Of course. He had a too dangerous gift of eloquence." Below: She swirled out, swung to the heavy curtain behind her, and met André on the stairs

Philippe stood square on to his adversary. A moment sufficed, the Marquis slid his foot far forward, and his sword ran red.

"You have killed him!" cried André.

The Marquis ran a lace handkerchief along his blade.

"Of course. He had a too dangerous gift of eloquence."

Supporting the body of his friend, André called after him. "Come back, you cowardly murderer, and make yourself quite safe by killing me too!"

The Marquis sprang forward, his sword held like a whip. But Chabrilane held him back, and La Tour d'Azyr turned away, never dreaming that in the shrill-voiced boy he had left behind was to be one of those searing sparks that soon set all France ablaze.

For André's first thought was of vengeance. He would have justice. So for justice he went to his godfather, Quintin de Kercadiou, the country squire, whom the villagers suspected, not without due reason, was father to this child of unknown parents, André-Louis Moreau. He had paid for his education, had sent him to the law school of Louis le Grand in Paris; certainly there was room for suspicion of the crusty old bachelor.

Kercadiou had been a friend to Philippe, surely he would help avenge his death. And so André ploughed up the long hill, past the

"Oh," cried the girl in dismay, "now you've gone and spoiled it all." Too late André realized that he had disturbed a rehearsal of a band of strolling players working windmills, and into the bare and rather savage hall of his godfather. As he waited, he could see thru a long window, the shimmer of silks, the ruddier glow of velvets, the shake of a ruffled sleeve. What gallant, he wondered, could be wooing Aline. Suddenly the pair rose and wandered into the glare of sunlight. One was Aline, the other . . . the Marquis de la Tour!

He fairly sprang at his godfather with the story, and Kercadiou held up his hands in horror . . . horror not at the death of Philippe, but at the presumption of accusing the Marquis of murder. For remember, this was in a far-off France when nobles were wont to shoot peasants off slate roofs for want of better amusement.

Furthermore, Monsieur le Marquis was pressing a certain suit with Mademoiselle Aline. It would endanger her marriage into a mighty house if trouble were made. In short, there was nothing to be done, and André had better keep his hands out of it.

André stormed, he swore he would seek justice at Rennes, where was the King's Lieutenant, he swept out into the hall, and there tore Aline's lace handkerchief to shreds. It had been next his heart for many a year, and now as it lay at his feet, Aline herself swept thru the open door. With a cry of joy she ran toward him, would have taken him in her arms, but he drew away in disdain, and plunged out of the door and down the hill. At the inn he hired a horse and set out at a gallop for Rennes, just as the wondering Aline was picking her handkerchief from the stone floor.

Rennes was roaring with revolt. It was a market town, but no mean metropolis in its way, and its citizens were all a-smart with the indignities the Nobility had heaped upon poor France. The King's proclamation, it was rumored, had been made null by the Nobles; the people's rights had been swept away. So students and town-folk swirled about a great statue like a surf-torn sea, and on the statue stood a lean young man, calling on his countrymen to arm.

But this was not business to André. He swept thru to the Palais de Justice, and at last was accorded audience by the King's Lieutenant, who was tasting some rare old Tokay by way of a weighty day's work. He was blustering and blowsy, his face was a mess of marks and sears, his nose was a stalk concluding in a bulb, but he was, withal, a man of soft sentiments, and as André spoke with passion of the past day's doings at Gavrillac, he wept. Tears coursed down his countenance. He felt bitterly for his fellow men, he was near total inundation in salt water, when he remembered to ask, "Who is this villain?"

SCARAMOUCHE

Fictionized by permission from Metro. Rex Ingram's production of the adaptation by Willis Goldbeck of the Rafael Sabatini novel. The cast:

- André-Louis Moreau.....Ramon Novarro
- Aline de Kercadiou.....Alice Terry
- Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr.....Lewis Stone
- Climène Binet.....Edith Allen
- M. de Kercadiou.....Lloyd Ingraham
- Philippe de Vilmorin.....Otto Matiesen
- Mme. de Plougastel.....Julia Swayne Gordon
- Binet.....James Marcus
- Madame.....Lydia Yeamans Titus
- Chevalier de Chabrilane.....William Humphrey
- M. Benoit.....J. Edwin Brown
- Mme. Benoit.....Carrie Clarke Warde
- Le Chapelier.....Bowditch Turner
- George Jacques Danton.....George Seigman
- Polichinelle.....John George
- Rhomont.....Joe Murphy
- Innkeeper.....Snitz Edwards

André-Louis told him in a ringing roar. The Lieutenant of the King ceased crying. He turned a rare and ruddy purple instead. His eyes would have flashed save that they were too fat and flaccid.

"You dare," he squeaked, "you dare accuse the Marquis! You dare suggest I should hang him! Out! Get out!"

But as he rose, the angry André could not forbear a final shot. "I always heard, Monsieur, that Justice was blind but beautiful. Today I have found that she is in truth blind, but as for beauty . . . will Monsieur but look to the left?"

Monsieur looked. There stood a mirror, and he beheld the bulbous nose, the rolls of fat, the mighty paunch, and behind it all, the leer of André-Louis Moreau.

"Arrest that man!" he howled. But it was too late. André was gone, leaving nothing behind but the wrecked nervous system of the King's Lieutenant.

A diversion in the crowd drew his attention. On the outskirts a soldier leveled his musket, and as the smoke blew on the light breeze, the student on the statue toppled, clutched at empty air, and fell to the stones, dead.

A hundred set on the soldier. He was beaten, battered, nearly killed. André leaped to the statue. At last it was his, the opportunity to carry on the work of his first and finest friend, Philippe de Vilmorin. His voice ran out across that roaring market place.

"Citizens of Rennes, the motherland is in danger!"

Swift silence fell. The rest of that speech is garbled, unknown, forgotten. But long after its words were lost, its spirit went the width of that long land of France, roared thru rough countryside and coppice, roared thru the sun-baked streets of old Marseilles, roared a song in the ears of Rouget de Lisle, roared down King, and camp and courtiers. And all on account of a country lawyer from Gavrillac!

A shot did not stop him. The crowd raved, rose, rioted. Stones flung sharp against the Palais. The King's Lieutenant sought himself a screen, and sent for the dragoons. They came galloping, a half a hundred of them, swirling dust and swinging sabres. The square turned shambles, the mob turned tail. And as André was about to mount his horse, a thin, ascetic-looking man pressed a pistol in his hand.

"My name is Chapelier," he said simply. "I like your courage!"

Life was duller at the Château. But it was full none the less, for this night the mighty Marquis came to press his suit, and that astute chaperon, Monsieur de Kercadiou, slept noisily, with a fine blowing out of his lips, as his niece played on a polished harpsichord for the finer pleasure of Monsieur the Marquis.

He had just asked her for "Papillons," the newest piece from Paris, when she chanced to glance thru the great door. There fumbling at a window fastening was André, a pistol in his hand. Her wit worked fast, in a moment she had made her excuses. "Papillons," was in her room . . . she would go for it . . . and she swirled out, swung to the heavy curtain behind her, and met André on the stairs. He would have pushed her away, but she clung to him, and in a moment, they were in each other's arms.

Then came the dragoons, drumming up the long drive. In a second, she swung him thru a door, slammed it, stood with her back to it as the horsemen broke into the hall. The sergeant was desolated but he must search the house. And he did while Monsieur the Marquis and Made-moiselle looked on. Last of all they swung open the little door, and lo, beyond it was an open window. Too late had the law gotten the measure of Monsieur Moreau.

It was early in the morning when that gentleman awoke atop a haystack, with rough voices battering in his ears. He peered over carefully and beheld a young girl, and what appeared to be her lover, trembling in fear, as a mountain of a man clambered over a hedge, and started for them with a cudgel like a club. The lovers covered together, the angry father advanced, and André-Louis calmly slid down the haystack and landed on that gentleman's neck.

"Oh," cried the girl in dismay, "now you've gone and spoiled it all!"

Too late André realized that he had disturbed a rehearsal of a band of traveling actors. Their carts were about, their breakfast was smoking hot. And the gentle-

From within came the tinkle and clang of crossed rapiers, the thud of feet, a mutter of voices, then dead silence. The iron door opened and out of it staggered the Marquis man upon whose neck André had alighted was hot too, with rage. But as he raised his voice in denunciation he also raised his eyes, and beheld, trooping into the meadow, a company of dragoons. That they were about all to be arrested for trespass was his thought, but André's wits were working overtime. He ran forward and stood at the sergeant's stirrup. Well out of earshot of the strolling players, he confessed that the large gentleman was his father, that he was a member of the company, and that (here a broad piece of silver changed hands) possibly the sergeant might care to drink someone's health so early in the morning. The silver piece proved satisfactory, but the sergeant had a last word as he rode away.

"There is a reward out," he called, "for a villainous vagabond named Moreau. Look sharp for him!"

André turned back triumphant, and once again his wits worked hastily as the big man said, "You have the thanks of Challefeu Binet. How can we repay you?"

Like a flash André answered, "Make me a member of your company!" Binet rolled his eyes and met those of Climène, his daughter on stage and off. She winked. And so André-Louis became Scaramouche, the jester.

It would be tiresome to tell of his exploits in the provinces, of how he practically wrote Binet's plays and ran the company, of how with their new Scaramouche, their success became greater and greater, and finally led them to the gates of Paris, and the famous Théâtre Freydaud itself.

And there, who should be visiting her patron, Madame de Plougastel, but Aline? So it was not remarkable in the least that when the curtain went down on the last scene, leaving Scaramouche and Climène on the stage, André saw Aline in a stage box with the Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr, and Aline gasped as he unmasked. For once the Marquis saw nothing; he was all eyes for the fair Climène.

But she, for her part, had eyes alone for André, and that night, terribly piqued by the appearance of Aline with the Marquis, he asked her to marry him. She consented gladly, and her father glumly agreed, and then got drunk on a bottle of his son-in-law's Burgundy.

The next day saw many things. Aline came to André in the inn where he lodged, and in a burst of rage, he demanded how she could marry such a man as the Marquis.

She said mockingly, "He will make me a great lady."

And for once André dropped his cynical, sardonic mask, and said, "God made you that, Aline!"

Not so easily was peace to be made. Argument waxed fierce and strong, and at last, upon Aline's speaking slightly of Climène, André told her of their engagement. With an exclamation of disgust, she swept out. But worse yet was to happen. That night Climène could not be found; she had driven away, it seemed, with the Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr. Midnight came, and morning, and still André waited for her to return. With dawn she appeared, shamefaced, but with a glittering jewel on her hand.

André's tone was more sardonic than ever: "Would it be impertinent, mademoiselle, to ask what price you paid for that stone?"

Angrily she replied, raging like a little gutter rat, angrily her father seconded her, and that was the end of Scaramouche as a suitor. But fortune favored him. Aline, driving in one coach, had seen the Marquis and Climène in another, and when La Tour ventured to call, she promptly showed him the door. Whereupon he sought Madame de Plougastel and whispered of an old scandal to be unearthed unless she smoothed matters out.

That night Scaramouche appeared for the last time on any stage. Sitting curtained in one box was Aline; in another the Marquis. And upon this night, André stepped forward to reap his revenge. At his first speech he tore off his mask, and burst into a revolutionary oration. All the old fire of Rennes still held good, the pit applauded, the nobles hissed. Chairs began to fly, the great chandelier snapped off. André shouted, "There he skulks behind the curtains. Show yourself, Monsieur de la Tour d'Azyr!"

Now the Marquis was no coward. His naked sword swept the rabble before him, and when a burly ruffian burst in Aline's box, he was there to save her. And so the last thing Scaramouche saw as he fled the theater was Aline in the Marquis arms. It made him more bitter than ever.

Madame Plougastel gasped to the Marquis, "He . . . he is your son!"

Paris seethed and smoldered. Sporadic flowers of revolt flowered and fell: Jean-Paul Marat was writing revolutionary tracts in an attic; Robespierre was boring his hearers to tears; burly Danton was roaring and raging at the aristocrats in the National Assembly. And the aristocrats of the Assembly were indulging in a merry little sport that went something like this. A deputy of the lower classes would make a furious speech; forthwith an aristocrat would challenge him to a duel, and as

(Continued on page 80)

THE "GOLD GIRL" OF "THE FOLLIES"
Catherine Stoneburn poses for Richard Southall Grant

Right is the left wing entrance from the driveway. Below is Mr. De Mille's private study with a pronounced Gothic influence

Below is one of the several dressing-rooms with its desk and handsome day-bed and Windsor chair all done in antique mahogany

This is perhaps the stateliest and most beautiful home in Hollywood. It is fitting that the labors of Cecil B. De Mille should find surcease here. The home is characterized throughout by a rich simplicity and an almost monastic severity

The mantle above is Italian in design. The walls are a light brown, the woodwork a deeper tone, and the upholstered furniture a dull red, making a rare and autumnal harmony of this room

Left is the drawing-room done in a soft French blue and dull grey. The walls are paneled in gold. The woodwork is cream and the furniture mahogany, the rugs Oriental

Left is the long grey hall that connects the right and the left wings. Right is Mr. DeMille's desk in his Gothic study, over which he and his right-hand man, Jeanie Macpherson, decide on the famous De Mille productions

Hollywood Homes

No. XIV

Exclusive Views of the Palatial Home of Cecil B. DeMille

All photographs by Donald Biddle Keyes

This is a rear view and part of the grounds

This is our idea of a noble backyard!

Homer Croy writing his opinion of the boy who is to star in his story; and "when Homer smote 'is bloomin' lyre . . ." it sang Glenn Hunter's praise

Glenn Hunter—On and Off

By HOMER CROY

(Author of "West of the Water Tower")

THE other day I was in Long Island City, in the Paramount picture plant, and saw Glenn Hunter, all covered with grease paint and enthusiasm, playing the leading part in the filming of my novel, "West of the Water Tower." I watched him awhile and the only difference between us was that he had more grease paint.

The first time I saw Glenn Hunter was a few years ago, back stage, at one of the New York theaters. The play was "Clarence." I went to see him in his little cramped dressing-room which he had to share with another. The room was just about big enough to fill a fountain pen in. Glenn, on this particular occasion, was in his B.V.D.'s and was going thru the process of dressing for his part. He had a happy and rapt expression on his face. At last, a job. It had not always been thus with him. No, indeed! A few years before he had come to New York from a small town to set the city on fire. But the city was asbestos. The fire department knew nothing about the danger that hovered over the city. The firemen smoked and played checkers just the same. There was no conflagration. In fact, things got so bad for Glenn that he had to patronize the park benches. Here for several nights he lay down to sleep with the calm heavens above and a somewhat disturbed policeman beginning to prowl nearer and nearer.

As he talked he rubbed on the grease paint, climbed into his trousers, made himself ready. He was happy—he had a job—the world was a rosy place.

Time passed. When next I saw him, he was in his dressing-room at "Merton of the Movies," the highly successful play in New York in which he is the star. What a change had come over him. Money in his pocket. Why, he had money in the bank. I know, because while I was there three persons came in to collect. Glenn was seated in front of his mirror smearing on grease paint when the doorman popped in his head—a tailor had come for money. Glenn got out his check-book. Glenn started in again on the grease paint; again the doorman popped in his head—another check. Glenn now began to work on his eyebrows. Another knock . . . another check. He was being disturbed oftener than he had been by the policeman in the park.

Other people came to see him. Mr. Murray, his secretary, met them at the door. I could hear soft diplomatic words being spoken . . . then footsteps sounded down the cement court. A dozen people in all came to have a word with him. The time before, when I had seen him in his dressing-room, the only person who knew that he was there was the call-boy. Glenn talked to his secretary. They spoke of a car, of a chauffeur. When would Mr. Hunter order his car?—a few short years ago all he could have ordered was the motorman to stop.

And also in his room on this occasion was his "dresser." He was an able-bodied man and all he had to do was to hold Glenn's pants while Glenn climbed into them. What

(Continued on page 76)

Below is Rollin Sturgeon, who will direct this interesting story. Right is a romantic moment with Glenn Hunter as Guy Plummer and May McAvoy as Beatrice Chew

Below is Glenn Hunter, about the most successful young man of his generation. In this picture he is courageously competing with "picture stealers" like Ernest Torrence and George Fawcett

THE DIRECTOR

THE HERO AND THE HEROINE

Below is part of the staff that is necessary to the making of a picture. They are: W. J. Scully, assistant director; Harry Harris, cameraman, Bill Johnson, props; W. C. Smith, assistant cameraman; Anna McKnight, script clerk. Rollin Sturgeon is in the center, May McAvoy in the foreground and Glenn Hunter left

THE STAR

THE STAFF

Photograph by Moffatt, Chicago

THE INESCAPABLE RUSSIANS

Mlle. Elisins is one of the solo dancers of the really remarkable Pavley-Oukrainsky Ballet Russe, which augments and ornaments the San Carlo Opera Company

Fathers are, from all apparent indications, an extinct species like the Dodo. No one ever speaks of them or ever hears of them. Only mothers have their day. One reads volumes about "movie mammas" but never a line about papas. We have dragged a few of them into view, more or less famous

Left: In lieu of walking the floor o' nights, this is what Pat O'Malley does for his infant daughter, Patricia. We call your attention to the utterly absorbed admiration registered on young Miss O'Malley's countenance. Below: Tom Mix and little Thomasina, the rose of the rancho

Fathers and Daughters

Photograph by Melbourne Spurr

Above: Another mutual admiration society, Gloria Swanson and Joseph T. Swanson, Inc. Gloria's father is a Captain in the United States Army. Wonder if he tries to discipline her?

Left: This little girl is named Dorothy Sills and her father is named Milton. But it should be "Mike and Ike . . . they look alike!"

A Lover of Life

By

MAUDE CHEATHAM

Eulalie Jensen comes from a colorful line. There are fascinating strains of French, Spanish and Italian in her blood, and romance and adventure ran riot among her ancestors. They have left their trace on her

Photograph (left) by Freulich
Photograph (below) by William A. Fraker

EULALIE JENSEN suggests all the infinite resources of woman! As I watched her, vivid, spirited, with a smile on her lips and a hint of tragedy in her eyes, she typified her sex—there seemed nothing she could not comprehend.

Miss Jensen intrigued my interest more than anyone I have met for many moons, yet I do not believe you could ever feel that you really knew her; there would always be depths she would not reveal.

Not that this would be intentional. She loves friends and insists that they bring the greatest beauty and fragrance to life, that they mean more to her than anything else; and she still has faith in this frail thing, friendship!

Perhaps it is just this ability to retain her illusions that sets her a little apart—

I mentioned the subject of many rôles. She laughed, "That is where I have made a mistake," she said. "There is no place for a feminine Lon Chaney—and if I had it all to do over again I would always be Eulalie Jensen at her best, wear pretty clothes and win fame. As it is, I have lost my identity in a number of character rôles. I have no personality the fans can recall. Sometimes I am blonde, sometimes brunette, sometimes young and the heroine, sometimes the mother, or the vamp—you see how it is—and she spread her hands in mock despair. "Of course, there's the thrill I get out of these different people I play. I would hate to give that up even for a big salary and an electric sign.

"One of the first films I made after coming back to pictures from a long absence was 'The Passion Flower,' with Norma Talmadge. I played Raimunda, the mother, and that sent me mothering thru several films."

Miss Jensen has just completed two highly colorful rôles: that of Madame Gaudin, in George D. Baker's "The Magic Skin," a sweet and gentle street singer, mother of Bessie Love; and Marie, a Gypsy dancer in Wallace Worsley's "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," where she is companion of the heroine, Patsy Ruth Miller.

"I haven't danced for a long, long time," Miss Jensen said, "and I enjoyed it. I felt the old intoxication. We were six months making 'The Hunchback,' and it was a delightful experience and a very wonderful company. Three fourths of the scenes were made at night and during the coldest weather, yet we always found a joke rather than a kick and I believe we formed friendships that will endure."

Miss Jensen is a real motion-picture pioneer. She was playing in stage productions of Henry Dixon when her curiosity led her to defy the rule set down by producers that no stage player could remain in the cast after acting in pictures, and went to the Cameraphone Company. They were experimenting with a method of synchronizing voice and movement, and she acted and sang thru "The Lakes of Killarney," disguised as Helen Johnson.

"They paid us ten dollars a minute, imagine it!" laughed Eulalie, "and days I worked I would make several hundred dollars. I would give anything for one of those early stills, they must have been marvelous."

Several high lights marked Miss Jensen's first efforts toward a dramatic career. She was an orphan at sixteen, a high-strung, spirited girl, full of confidence

Photograph by Freulich

Eulalie Jensen as Marie, a Gypsy dancer in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."
Her last rôle is Madame Gaudin in "Slaves of Desire" and imbued with the ambition to become a great star.

Her first opportunity came when Sarah Bernhardt's company, en route to her native city, St. Louis, advertised for extras. She recalls, humorously, how she stood in line waiting for hours and nearly died of joy when she was among the seven selected. For a week they were drilled in the simple matter of walking across the stage.

On the opening night at the Olympic Theater, Eulalie, fearfully made-up and trembling in anticipation of her coming triumph, saw the great actress chatting in the wings with friends and crept close to behold her idol. Receiving her cue, Bernhardt turned suddenly to find this

(Continued on page 77)

Photograph by Rabinovitch

RABINDRANATH TAGORE

A sympathetic and beautiful portrait study of the great oracle of India. Poet, novelist, teacher, prophet and pacifist, this mystic Hindoo has solved the cosmic scheme of things to the satisfaction of millions of followers

Photograph by Apeda

The Photographer Takes the Stage

Photograph by
Pach Brothers

Photograph by
Maurice Goldberg

Across the top of the page is the opening number of the third annual "Music Box Revue." Left is Irene Bordoni in the title-rôle of "Little Miss Bluebeard," in which she sings her own type of songs as only she can sing them. Right is Adele Klaer in "Artists And Models," the revue staged by our prominent illustrators. Quite the most daring show in New York

Classic's
 Monthly Department
 of the Theater

Photograph
 by Apeda

Above is Emily Stevens in "A Lesson In Love," in which she co-stars with William Faversham. Right is a scene from one of oddest and most interesting plays of the season, "Children of the Moon." The people are Paul Gordon, Florence Johns, who scores, and Grant Stewart

Photograph by Muray

Photograph by
 White Studios

Left is a scene from another interesting psychological drama, "Chains." Left to right: Maude Turner Gordon, William Morris, Paul Kelley, Helen Gahagan and Gilbert Emory

Scenes From the Late Fall Openings

Above are Lowell Sherman and Katherine Cornell in the much-heralded "Casanova." Lowell Sherman has the title part, but Katherine Cornell steals the play from him. This performance boasts a Fokine ballet in which Desha dances. Her picture was in last month's Classic

All photographs by White Studios

Right is the Tunis scene from "Lullaby," Florence Reed's newest play. The action takes place over a period of seventy-five unsavory years in the life of a femme de joie. Above, in pleasant contrast, is a scene from "Tweedles," with Ruth Gordon and Gregory Kelley. Gregory is the Tweedle

Photograph by Tornello, N. Y.

Photograph by Stage Photo Co., London

Above is Daphne Pollard (wonder if she is any relation to Snub?), who introduces English comics in the new "Greenwich Village Follies," our only "highbrow" revue. Her "Quota Song" is uproariously funny

Above is a scene from that popular key-note, "We've Got To Have Money!" The little wanters in the picture are (left to right) Louise Segal, Milton Nobles, Jr., Marie Louise Walker, Jerome Cowan and Robert Ames. Below is a bit from "The Nifties of 1923," an unpretentious revue "glorifying the American sense of humor." Sam Bernard is telling Ray Dooley not to listen to Willie Collier. He's a —!

Photograph by White Studios

The Celluloid Critic

Laurence Reid Reviews the Latest Picture Plays

THE parade of big pictures across the New York screen goes on apace. It begins to look like a celluloid landslide and the season has hardly begun. Marion Davies and George Arliss have had their innings with "Little Old New York" and "The Green Goddess" respectively, and now comes Mary Pickford in "Rosita," Lillian Gish in "The White Sister," and Lon Chaney in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." And as we record these achievements "Scaramouche" and "A Woman of Paris" have gained admittance to the select circle.

In looking over "Rosita" (United Artists) we claim it is entitled to first honors because of its skilful treatment, its color and background, its dash and adventure, and the fact that it is seasoned with all the necessary elements for success.

This adaptation of "Don Césaire de Bazan" thrusts Mary Pickford into a romance of old Seville—a radical departure for her. Her transition from shy girlhood to womanhood is accomplished deftly with a surety of touch and poise. Lubitsch, the German chargé d'affaires, has made the pattern so technically perfect that Mary, gifted actress that she is, never carries the entire burden of the story. She becomes a composite part of the dramatic scheme instead of carrying the tale by herself. Which of course gives the picture balance and color. It is peopled with so many figures and detail that one has time to catch the star in a new light. And she shines radiantly in scenes of exquisite charm and also in scenes which call for a flash of sophisticated comedy and emotional display. A different Mary, surely.

If you think that Lubitsch has explored new channels you will be disappointed. He doesn't depart from the regulation American methods, but he does incorporate a German thoroughness to the execution of his scenes which gives them more breadth of outline. He doesn't get out of sympathy with the author's design. A stickler for detail and color, he handles crowds in a way that eliminates the usual orthodox arrangement. He makes "Rosita" a dashing tale of a little capricious dancer who sways the carnival crowds with her banjo and a few songs against her king. If Lubitsch is successful with Mary Pickford he is equally successful with all his players. He seemingly understands their capabilities. He has made Holbrook Blinn act the picturesque monarch after the manner of Emil Jannings—with a suggestion of blunt humor.

A slender plot this picture carries, but its slenderness and simplicity furnish its appeal—an appeal which would be lost if it were woven with threads of intricate drama. We put it down as an artistic and colorful production.

*The Best Play
of
The Month
Is "ROSITA"
With
Mary Pickford*

The same story has been picturized for Pola Negri and is called "The Spanish Dancer." We are curious to see how the Polish actress' version compares with Mary Pickford's. Pola must come thru this time or suffer oblivion.

"THE Hunchback of Notre Dame" (Universal) is unforgettable—made so by Lon Chaney's fearsome, frightful portrayal of the title-rôle. He has carried out this design without the least semblance of restraint—and his ape-like belling of the famed cathedral will be cataloged as the most hideous sketch ever shown on screen and stage.

Universal sets forth in the program: "We find it necessary to eliminate a great deal of gore." Yet here is Chaney in his uncanny study to counteract that statement. It seems to be a picture of all the tortures which can be inflicted upon a human being. It out-Hugos Hugo in this respect. These gruesome details could have been softened a bit and the vigor of the story would have remained just the same.

Technically it is finely executed. Its views of the cathedral are impressive and carry the suggestion of solidity and massiveness. Also the streets of Paris of yesteryear are well designed, tho they should have been "dirtied" up a bit to bring more realism. A good deal of the story has been buried beneath solid masonry—so much so that the romantic part is lightly considered.

To us the most picturesque personage is Clopin, the king of the beggars, played in a commanding manner by Ernest Torrence. This actor is in the best scene which shows him leading the half-starved mob against the cathedral.

If you dont mind a grotesque figure too sharply defined you will like the picture. It has Hugo's atmosphere and settings and the handling of the crowds is highly interesting.

THERE is a lyric quality to Lillian Gish's acting in "The White Sister" (Inspiration) which has never been recognized before. In that respect Henry King who directed this tragic story of broken romance has brought forth a talent which Griffith neglected in order to create an emotional outburst, of pent-up floods of passions and fear. As the frail, tender misguided child of fate, Miss Gish makes poignant appeal. It is heart-rending to see this tormented soul taking her separation from her lover with such courage and when learning of his death, turning her back on the world and finding peace and sanctuary in the Church.

There is a splendid clash of emotions when the girl takes the veil—an unforgettable scene—and daring in its execution. Then when the lover returns to find his sweetheart a nun the story releases a deeper poignant note. Here is Lillian Gish of wistful charm and poise, suffering the anguish which comes from conflict in her heart.

There are some irrelevant touches and the climax is too orthodox to ring genuine. We have the play of elements from all sides—nature releasing its unbounded fury, and the human puppets are swept aside like so many toy figures. The finish is regulation movie stuff. But the picture earns respect because of its spiritual quality—its poignant touches—its sweep of passion.

It strikes deep with its conflict of distressed souls and one emerges from the theater with a feeling of exhaustion—the tensivity of scene when the girl takes the veil and when her soldier-lover returns to claim her, holding one in a tight embrace. A newcomer is Ronald Colman

"Potash and Perlmutter"

"The White Sister"

Mary Astor in "Spring Magic"

Gloria Swanson in "Zaza"

Bert Lytell and Blanche Sweet in "The Meanest Man in the World"

who plays the broken-hearted lover and he gives a performance of quiet force and dignity. He never seems to be acting, which makes his expression all the more natural and genuine.

NO sooner is James Cruze finished with one success, than he fares forth with another. "The Covered Wagon" was followed by "Hollywood," and this rollicking romantic comedy gives way to "Ruggles of Red Gap" (Paramount). Judging from his skill in fashioning pictures which call for humor we would say that comedy is his forte. He treats this new screen version (it has been done before) with a deftness of touch, pointing his incident and enriching his characterization by giving each important figure a well-planted reason for being present. He makes the crude Cousin Egbert, the meek Ruggles, Effie and the Honorable George—jolly figures all—stand out like cameos. But he was fortunate in having players who could color these characters so well.

You'll remember that Cousin Egbert, the cow-puncher of Red Gap, embarrassed his wife with his bad manners after they had become society leaders. So she lugs him over to Paris to polish him up and employs a nobleman's valet to teach him deportment.

The antics of these figures so admirably limned by Ernest Torrence, as Egbert, and Edward Horton, as Ruggles, makes this picture a comedy gem. Torrence's facial expressions—his manner of making little details important—stamps him as a superior actor. Horton is an ideal valet—a meek, humble servant to the life. A spirited picture thoroly enjoyable.

HAROLD LLOYD'S latest essay, "Why Worry?" (Pathé), carries the bespectacled comedian back to the style of comedy which introduced him as a star. It is a rollicking farce, filled with absurdly funny bits of business—"gags" you might call them. A radical departure, we might add, from "Dr. Jack" and "Grandma's Boy." But he has the faculty of making anything he touches genuinely novel.

This is the tale—an old one, incidentally, of a hypochondriac who journeys to a South American republic to win back his health, but Lloyd dresses it with new ideas and brightens it with the most uproariously funny incident that has been flashed in a year. He steps right into a wild revolution, not knowing what it's all about. He sees these foreigners bowing right and left—as if to welcome him. So he bows in return with great ceremony when a native is shot thru the stomach and doubles over in jack-knife fashion. Just a return of the compliment.

Such clever touches as this mark the entire picture. Highly mirthful, too is the scene when the comedian and his faithful army of two—one, a huge giant, the other, the girl—defend themselves on the battlement against the approaching bandits. An extraordinary comedy this—one exceptionally original in its "gags" and incident. There's no stopping this Lloyd person. He turns them out good every time. Our advice for the patrons is a paraphrase on the fire warning—"Walk, do not Run to the Nearest Entrance. Do not Try and Beat your Neighbor to his Seat."

Above: Ernest Torrence in "Ruggles of Red Gap." Left: Corinne Griffith in "Six Days." Right: Harold Lloyd in "Why Worry?" Below: Patsy Ruth Miller in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"

CARRYING on its abundant humor and satire that marked the stage play, "Potash and Perlmutter" (First National), comes close to being the brightest sober comedy-drama of the season. Superlatives have been paid this picture during production and we might add that it merits them. It is a richly humorous story of a cross-section of life, showing as it does a zestful spirit of Jewish initiative in conducting a cloak and suit business. The sparkle of the original is retained—the same sparkle which Montague Glass incorporated into his yarn and in the play which he wrote in collaboration with Charles Klein.

There is an enjoyable vein of friendly antagonism which releases a quota of laughs—and at the same time, it is dovetailed with tender strokes of pathos. The unfortunate Potash has enough business acumen to spot a live, "go-getter" when he sees one. So he takes the aggressive Perlmutter as a partner. Once they are associated we follow their "ups and downs" with unabated interest.

Intimate details are sharply defined—and lend sufficient color to the story. There is much satire and here

(Continued on page 93)

IRIS

LAMENT (AFTER THE GREEK)

WEEP, all ye Muses and true lovers of Art. They have put a wig on Farina.

They have put Farina in a wig. They have gilded the lily and brought a ton of egg to Newcastle. They have carried cows to Moscow.

Farina, who was perfection, who was the Darling of the Gods, has been mutilated. Weep for the disgrace, all ye Muses.

No more shall I gaze upon the classic simplicity of the countenance of Farina. My eyes are blinded with tears of rage; my body shaken with sobs of disappointment. Yes, they have no discernment.

O mighty Roach, O bluff Prince Hal, take off Farina's wig and let us rejoice again! Hear my prayer. Heed my lamentation . . . Poor Fish!

✦ ✦ ✦

The schrecklichkeit that prompted the above has eaten into our soul and led us to compose a fantasy, or whimsy, or fable, as it were. It is just crawling with symbolism and is called "What Makes the Movies So Terrible."

Cinema is the questionable illegitimate offspring of Proteus, the God of things as They are not. Her mother was Mazuma, wayward daughter of Mammon. When Proteus saw little Cinema for the first time, being a crabby sort of an old goof, he cursed her. "May you always strive for perfection," said Proteus, "and never attain it. If by any mischance perfection shall be within reach, may you be so blinded by your futile efforts that you will never know how close you have come to it, but will spoil everything with your next attempt."

And so far as we can make out, the curse is still holding.

✦ ✦ ✦

Gloria Swanson endowed Zaza with a volcanic temperament, but for Slavish outlay of emotion, Pola Negri leads all the rest.

✦ ✦ ✦

If, however, "The Spanish Dancer" turns out to be at Hollywood as "Bella Donna" and "The Cheat," it would look as if there were going to be a total extinction of the Pola system.

✦ ✦ ✦

by We are just childish enough to wonder if movie stars could enjoy a formal dinner if the host did not provide paper caps or toy balloons to bat about. Personally, we wouldn't take the chance.

W. H. HANEMANN

✦ ✦ ✦

The general histrionic ability of the profession has put a new interpretation on the old saw, "Be good and you will be lonesome."

✦ ✦ ✦

Nevertheless, and in the face of all tradition, we are going to come right out and lead a cheer for Edward Horton. "Ruggles of Red Gap" is conceded to be a general disappointment, yet it does show that Mr. Horton has all the promise of a unique gift. He is a quiet actor. His is not the Reubens sandwich style of technique, wherein you are offered far more than can be digested—ham on top of Swiss cheese surmounted by sliced tomatoes, cole-slaw and Russian dressing. "For this relief, much thanks." Jetta Goudal is another person who takes her talent much the same way. And we certainly hope they will both win the renown they deserve for their daring unconventionality.

✦ ✦ ✦

Every so often the movie magnates explain that as yet they have hardly scratched the surface of the Great Art. Hardly scratched the surface, our eye! They have gouged, gored, mined, stabbed, punched, riddled, reamed, ripped and all but staved it in.

✦ ✦ ✦

"I doubt," says Carl Laemmle in a foreword in the program of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "if Victor Hugo ever heard of Hollywood." If he had, Mr. Laemmle, it's a certified Grade A cinch that he would never have given you the picture rights to his novel.

(Continued on page 92)

Photograph by Albe

A Daughter of Tragedy

Ida Rubenstein, the great Russian tragedienne, as she appears in D'Annunzio's "Phædre." The costume is by Bakst. She will be in the United States this winter with the 1924 Folies Bergère, the well-known French revue. We trust that we may be privileged to see it unexpurgated. . . .

Flashes From Of the Stage

Caught by

decided as yet whether she will accept the part. Her latest vehicle "Chu Chin Chow" has opened at Albert Hall, London.

Elmer Clifton, director of "Down to the Sea in Ships," and other pictures plans to leave New York City for Virginia in the very near future. He will film several exteriors for his new picture "The Warrens of Virginia" at ALTHO it does not properly belong here, we cannot forbear comment on Charlie Chaplin's picture, "A Woman of Paris." The sophisticated, and it must be admitted condescending New York critics, took off their hats as one man to this picture. The most distinguished New Yorkers have written voluntary and gracious tributes to Charlie. We say without any hesitation it is the best picture we ever saw—the most interesting and original and mentally stimulating thing ever put on the screen.

The direction is superb. There is not a wasted gesture. Simplicity is the key-note, humanness, the harmony. It will doubtless start a revolution in picture-making, and it should. Charlie has been fêted and wined and dined like a prince. He sat in a box all by himself on the opening night, but the lobby was packed with flowers the most conspicuous of which, bore a card that said simply: "Mary and Doug."

At the top of the page is Remo Bufano with two of the leading players from his own marionette theater. Left is Grace Divine, a young mezzo-soprano with the San Carlo Opera Company, which has improved in properties, production and personnel. Below is a Fifth Avenue bus at Fifty-second Street and Fifth Avenue being shot by Sam Wood for "His Children's Children"

Photograph by Campbell Studios

Definite arrangements have been completed for the tour of the Theatre Guild Repertory Company, carrying out their long-cherished plans to make it possible to present to playgoers outside of New York noteworthy productions that heretofore have been confined to this city. Basil Sydney will head the repertory company. Three of the plays produced by the Guild will be presented on tour. These are: "He Who Gets Slapped," by Leonid Andreyev; Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," and "The Devil's Disciple," the George Bernard Shaw play now at the Garrick Theater, which has been running all summer and in which Mr. Sydney, as Richard Dudgeon, plays the principal rôle. The tour will embrace Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago and other leading cities.

Immediately upon her return to the United States last week from an extensive European production trip, Betty Blythe was sought out by an American producer for a starring rôle in a big film spectacle. Miss Blythe has not quite

The Eastern Stars

On the Screen

the Editor

the actual locations referred to in the play. Martha Mansfield and Harlan Knight are the principals.

It is now certain that Richard Bennett will star under the Shubert management this season in Gerald Du Maurier's London success, "The Dancers."

Dr. Daniel Carson Goodman starts work next week on his

At the top of the page is another pleasant anachronism from "Yoland," Marion Davies' newest picture. Dont miss the ZR-1 above the set. Right is Yvonne Hughes, another Brewster Contest winner who is making good. She may be seen with Gloria Swanson in "Zaza." Below is Vera Gordon and her family: mother, daughter Nadya and son William in their New York apartment

Photograph by Edward Thayer Monroe

Photograph by Ball

(Fifty-three)

new screen production "Week-end Husbands." He is now busily engaged casting the picture which will be made in the East. Dr. Goodman's most recent picture has been released under the title of "The Daring Years."

Florenz Ziegfeld announces the engagement of Mlle. Paulette Duval of Parisian music-hall fame, for the forthcoming "Follies," Mlle. Duval arrived under an assumed name and has passed the intervening time in New York unknown to all the wiseacres. She speaks, sings and dances in French. Our own Fannie Brice will share the honors with her.

After Lillian Gish completes her work on "Romola," her next picture for Inspiration Picture, Inc., she will begin making "Joan of Arc." The play will be pictured in France. "The White Sister" is still playing to crowded houses in New York.

"The Gift," by Julia Chandler and Alethea Luce, will have Doris Kenyon in its leading rôle. Anna Lambert Stewart is producer.

"America" is the title selected for D. W. Griffith's Revolutionary film, which he is making at the suggestion of the Daughters of the American Revolution. This is the first instance where a film has been requested directly by a public organization. The title was selected after a poll of six universities, six grade schools, six clubs, and six sporting places where slang is most prevalent, including a prize-fighter's camp, a race-track, a pool-room, a dance-hall and a boy's playground. More than ninety per cent. of
(Continued on page 100)

Photograph © by E. O. Hoppé, London

A STUDY IN SYMMETRY

Anna Pavlova and her new dancing partner, Laurent Novikoff, in their Egyptian number, with which they will inaugurate their American tour

(Fifty-four)

The Slave of Desire

"The Magic Skin" Rewritten in Short-Story Form by Grace Lamb

"AND so," said the poet Raphael concluding his story with the smile that had won him almost as much fame as his famous verse, "and so, with my last wish, I won not only my life but my love as well. Happiness everlasting."

The little gathering in the sumptuous studio of the fêted poet Raphael looked at each other in a blurred perplexity. Palpably, they did not understand the story with which their charming host had been regaling them, faintly, bemusedly smiling the while he told of events as richly embroidered as an Arabian Night's tale, as fabulous as legends of Ali Baba.

Some of them present were old friends of Raphael's. They had seen him in his struggle for existence, they had watched him go wretchedly from hopelessness to hopelessness. They had caught glimpses of the intricacies of his fortunes after he had found the Magic Skin.

In these enlightened days magic skins were not to be believed in, and these men, artists, poets, painters, dilettantes and darlings of society, were skeptics, every one of them. Still, they could not but believe that magic skin, or mere prey of variant fortune the young Raphael had come thru some amazing haps and mishaps. They had, perforce, to take his word for the explanation thereof. But now they were perplexed.

"If I follow you rightly," said one of the listening friends, "your friend the antiquarian told you when he gave you the magic skin that with each wish you might wish your life would dwindle by so much."

The antiquarian, in great excitement, tells the young poet, Raphael Valentin, that he is entitled to the magic skin

"Exactement," smiled Raphael.

"And," pursued the inquiring one, "the wish you wished to save Pauline from the murderous machinations of Fedora was the last remaining wish left to you. With that last wish your life was at an end."

"Of a certainty," again smiled the wilfully enigmatic Raphael.

"But . . ." said the friend, and he looked at the other friends in the circle about the cheerfully open grate, and spread his fingers apart in a gesture of giving the situation and the problem up once and for all.

Raphael was quoting, "He who loses his life shall gain it," he was saying; "that was my last wish. With the making of that wish I was to pass into the Great Beyond. And yet you see me here tonight, in splendid health, in excellent spirits, in the full possession of my negligible but happily recognized talent and in the proudest possession of all, that of Pauline, my beloved wife."

"You speak in paradoxes," said one of the school of Futuristic painting.

"Ah," said Raphael, "I have tried your several patiences long enough. You have dined at my table, sipped of my wine, looked upon the incomparable loveliness of my Pauline. Now you shall hear my story. The story of the magic skin, as it really happened, coherently, and not as you have had it by word of mouth from this friend or that foe.

"You remember when my father, the Marquis died. Yes. Eh bien, and you remember how I was left penniless but with a pot

THE SLAVE OF DESIRE

Fictionized by permission from the Goldwyn production of the adaptation by Charles Whittaker of the novel by Honoré de Balzac, "La Peau de Chagrin." Directed by George D. Baker. The cast:

Raphael Valentin.....	George Walsh
Pauline Gaudin.....	Bessie Love
Countess Fedora.....	Carmel Myers
Rastignac.....	Wally Van
Antiquarian.....	Edward Connolly
Mrs. Gaudin.....	Eulalie Jensen
Mr. Gaudin.....	Herbert Prior
Champrose.....	William Orlamond
Tallifer.....	Nicholas de Ruiz
The General.....	William von Hardenburg
Emile.....	Harmon McGregor
The Duke.....	George Periolat
Finot.....	Harry Lorraine
Major Dome.....	Calvert Carter of gold at the rainbow end of my heated imagination.

"You recall how I took an attic near Montmartre as many a better poet has done before me, and how I literally drank the midnight oil composing sonnets to a Lesbia that never lived.

"But did you know that I knew Pauline in those days? Vraiment. Pauline was the daughter of Madame and Monsieur Gaudin in whose attic I finally took up my abode when the life of the Quarter, unexact as it was, became too much for even my ambitious strivings.

"Madame Gaudin alone did not storm in upon me when the week's rent was due . . . and was not forthcoming, as it was, hélas, so many times not.

And Pauline! If you had not seen her here tonight, still the ministering angel, still mild and magnificent, beautiful and beneficent, then I should be called upon to explain her to you in dithyramb and madrigal, in canzonet and monody, in strophe and antistrophe. Therefore, I may leave Pauline to speak for herself. For none can do it better.

"Ah, back in those days, how kind she was to me!

She brought me food, secretly and sweetly, so that none, not even I might see her and be ashamed. She kept my poor, bare room spotless and with her own hands and even placed flowers here and there that it might not be so bare a shrine of poverty. Words cannot tell you the thousand and one ways in which Pauline sought to make my thorny path a flowery one. And I, I never saw it! I seem to recall that I did not even see her, altho, now in the late light of my great love, I cannot believe that the eyes I am pleased to call a poet's, that the heart I am charmed to believe is sensitive and lyric-strung, could have been so blind.

"You see, I was enamored of Fedora.

"To go into that would be to go into the cheap and claptrap folly of many another misguided young man, no better than he might be.

"I had lived long within my secret soul. I had, I had really fasted on Parnassus. I had thrown off the warm, hot touch of hands and the absorption of lips.

"Thus it was when I met Rastignac and the gay, dear soulless idler took me to the Salon of the Countess Fedora, in the benevolent hope that she might advance my prestige as a poet, I cared nothing for the advancement and everything for the hope of an amour.

"Fedora! Gay and gaudy, fated and frivolous! But she was a glittering snare and a delirious delusion to me. The scent of her hair, the shimmer of her arms, the scornful red trap of her mouth, these things remained with me by day and made painful my slumbers at night.

"She cared nothing for me other than to exploit me. Which she did, in her fitful fashion. She herself read my poems aloud at one of her soirées and it might have done me some little good had I not been more enthralled with the texture of her mouth than I was with the technique of my own verses.

"I made the mistake of so expressing myself. A mistake because the most influential man there that night in my direction was also enamored of Fedora, and was not disposed to look kindly upon a young man likewise affected.

"Fedora played with me. As such women have played with such young men since the mad world first went mad.

"She made appointments with me only to break them if it pleased her caprices. She took her hot red roses I starved to buy for her only to watch me bleed upon the thorns. Ah, it was a cruel time!

"And as I grew poorer and poorer, more and more bereft of hope, less and less desirous of prolonging a life made up only of hungers, of one sort or another, Pauline grew more silently solicitous, Fedora more openly derisive.

"The day came when I walked toward the Seine, with that look in my eyes and that stride to my tired feet, that have so many times before wooed the Seine in the same manner.

"I was about to throw myself over when a poor wretch of the streets deterred me.

"Her hand, all emaciated and blunted, held fast to my sleeve.

"The ruined beauty of her face, ruined so long ago, God knows, besought me.

"No woman is worth dying for,' she said, and I paused, arrested that she should have guessed my guilty, secret motive. I looked at her again. She was a woman, too. Doubtless, from the broken contours of her face,

The poor penniless poet gives up in despair, and his creditors take everything that he has the tired weight of her faded hair, doubtless she, too, had been once as beautiful and brilliant as Fedora. God, that a man should have given up his life for that . . . !

"I shrugged her hand away, not unkindly, but significantly, and she knew that I had understood her message to me, and I knew that she knew. She smiled. It was a pitiful enough smile. And she drifted off into the flotsam of the streets, a Magdalene who had paused for a moment to dash some precious ointment at my feet. . . .

"Well, and then I happened to go into the anti-quarian's.

"I had one thing left. One thing of value that had not gone to buy the hot red roses for Fedora. It was a scarab belonging to my father.

"I was desultory enough, when I went into the odd-appearing shop. I had scant hope of more return than enough to buy a supper, a dash of absinthe, perhaps . . . Judge, then, of my surprise when the old man turned several shades of green and yellow, began muttering in the most mystic and agitated terms and finally begged my leave for him to take it into his Master.'

"Shortly thereafter the Master himself emerged, slowly, and with effort, from an inner chamber. He made obscure signs to me, which I took to mean to follow him, and not caring much whether I was being lured into a den of thieves and cutthroats or merely in the private asylum of some addled brain, I walked after the old man.

"Oh, my friends, there was a great deal of talk, back in that illy lit, evilly smelling, unearthly chamber. Mystic talk of ancient things and lost keys and rites long buried in antiquity. But the gist of the whole was that the scarab I possessed was 'the key' to the Magic Skin. This spotted and unlovely affair hung upon a wall, secreted under a sliding panel. It hung directly beneath a painting of the Christ and had been so hanging, my friend the anti-quarian told me, for age after ages long gone to dust.

"On the skin was traced in hieroglyphics which the Ancient made out for me, these words :

Above: A bit of the riotous good time Raphael asked for as the first wish granted by the magic skin

Left: With each wish the magic skin shrinks and when it has shriveled away to nothing, its owner dies

Pauline's father comes home from Russia unexpectedly and unaccountably laden with rare and costly jewels

Possess me and thou shalt possess all things
 Wish and thy wishes shall be fulfilled,
 But measure thy desires
 For with each wish I must shrink
 And in like measure
 Each wish shortens thy life
 Wilt thou have me
 Take me
 So be it.

"Of course, mes amis, I did not believe all this, that is, not wholly. Perhaps I believed it rather more than some men would, for I was a poet and a starving one. Still more, I was a starving poet in love, than which there is no more receptive mind!

"At any rate, I uttered the first wish that came to my mind as I dashed out into the street again, which was that I might meet with my old cronies and have a rousing good evening for once again; music, rich food, fine wine, women, song!

"No sooner said than done. . . . Emil, here, is the only one of you who shared that marvelous evening with me. He was coming along with some four or five of the other fellows in a hansom cab and they nearly ran over me. In my pitiful excitement, clutching my magic skin and looking, or so they thought, very drunk indeed!

"Ah, but we had an evening, eh, Emil?"

Emil, smoking in his corner, smiled and nodded, fires of reminiscence lit in his deep-set eyes.

"Well, that began it," Raphael continued, "surely a 'Strange Story' and with no respects, either, to Bulwer-Lytton.

"I can't say that I was happy. One is never, I think, happy in such abnormal fashion. Besides, I found myself constantly making wishes and, resultantly, with each wish the miserable rag of a skin would shrink and, as I knew, my life shrank with it.

"It was this very phase of the whole strange matter that made me know that the whole affair was strange, indeed, but alarmingly true. For, with each wish that I made, and which was inevitably and instantaneously granted, my own vitality ebbed. My growing weakness was a more grisly fact to me than any of the benefits accruing from my wishes, prodigal enough at first, but gradually matters of the most miserly calculation.

"Most of you remember the incident of my uncle's death. Some of the details of that sordid event are not, perhaps, clear to you. As you may have heard, Fedora asked to meet him. I brought him to her home and he, poor moth, was, like most men, attracted to the brightness of her flame.

What I suffered! What torments! The final and culminating one being an evening when, reflected in a mirror, I beheld the woman I desired above all fleshly things, in his arms.

"That night, that very night, he was attacked by ruffians and staggered into my presence, dying. His vast fortune descended to me. And when I saw the magic skin, and saw that it had shrunk to less than the size of a bank-note, I realized with a sick throb that I had wished for just such an eventuality. Yes, yes, my friends, subconsciously, perhaps, and then again, perhaps not, I had wished for the Duke's death. I had wished for it for two reasons: first because he coveted Fedora and next because I knew that I was the heir to his estates.

"Oh, well, then I took the house in Paris to which all of you have at one time or another, been the guests.

"It was in this house of mine, too, that I again saw Pauline, whom I had not seen in all the months that had transpired between my leaving my garret the night I went toward the Seine bent upon death, up to the time of my receiving in lavish splendor in my own home.

"Pauline was glorious that night. I remember how I stood back to watch her descending my stairway, how I turned to a friend of mine and said, 'Here comes the most perfect woman in the world,' and how my friend, quizzically, said, 'More beautiful than Fedora, then, Raphael?' and how I answered, tranced, 'Ah, infinitely more beautiful than Fedora!'

"Then and there, one evil spell was broken for me. The evil spell of Fedora. And when I realized that the beautiful lady was Pauline, little Pauline Gaudin, who had attended me in my poverty-stricken garret, I was more than ever 'mazed and joyed. Her father, she told me, had made a vast fortune in Russia and they no longer kept a rooming-house for impecunious artists.

"That night, mes amis, my lust was killed and my love was born. They are different, I tell you that now, they are very different, love and lust. . . .

"We began to see one another every day and to make plans for our future. With the birth of love there came, also, of a natural consequence, the spontaneous birth of many, many more wishes. I found myself wishing this for us and that for us, I wished to perfect a happiness more glowing and glorious than ever before experienced by man and woman. And with each wish I grew weaker and more miserable. There was I, with happiness in my two hands, and all the while, my two hands growing more feeble and more futile.

"I was in despair, then. Happiness, and I could not taste it! The wine was at my mouth and the sparkle had died down. I tried in every way to destroy that accursed skin. It would not be destroyed. It would shrink only of its own accord, in its own manner, and with its shrinkage it drank my life-blood from out my impoverished veins.

"I became melancholic, and in order to attempt to regain some degree of health before our marriage, I made a journey into the Swiss Alps.

"There, I thought, away from Paris, away from Pauline, away from Fedora, who, after the fashion of women of her sort, had become malicious and passionate now that she had lost the thing she had despised, away from all of this, I might not have the urge to make any wishes. I might grow stronger.

"The end of it all came there in the Swiss Alps.

"It was my wont to go, every day, to a little shrine at the end of a devious mountain trail. There I would kneel and pray le bon Dieu to restore to me my manhood, to remove from me the devilment under which I lived and under which I was so soon to die. On one of these days I looked down the trail and was aghast to see two figures clambering toward me, the one a trifle in advance of the other. The first, so I saw, was Pauline. Faithful, dear Pauline, who, it transpired, had followed me into my retreat out of her loving anxiety. But the second one, also a woman, a woman with something horrible in her walk, in her attitude, the second was Fedora. Instantly, I was sick with a morbid terror. For well I knew that no such altruistic motive as anxiety had sent Fedora after me into the Swiss Alps.

"As you know, and as I know, Fedora had noised it venomously abroad, that my friendship for her had cost
(Continued on page 98)

Here is the course of true love not running smoothly as is its custom. The poet leaves his garret . . . and his sweetheart

Abandon

Ira L. Hill's vivid study of Gilda Gray in her Voodoo dance, in which she interprets all the mysterious and incomprehensible rites of conjury, snake worship, witchcraft, haunts and so forth. It is an amazing performance—of utter abandon. You really shouldn't miss it. It happens nightly at the Rendezvous

Classic Considers—

WILLA SIBERT CATHER

Because, in a recent poll of the five greatest American authors she was the only woman. Because her novel, "One Of Ours," won the Pulitzer price for 1922, which awards $1,000.00 to the American novel that presents the most wholesome atmosphere and approximates the highest standard of manners and morals. And last, because her latest book, "A Lost Lady," is better than any of her others

Photograph by Kadel and Herbert

Sixty-one)

GAMBARELLI

Because she is première danseuse of that excellent ballet which adorns the Capitol Motion Picture Theater in New York City. Because she has performed the prodigious feat of dancing at eight thousand—yes, we mean thousand, not hundred—consecutive performances

Photograph by Hartsbook, L. A

HAROLD BELL WRIGHT

Because he is the most widely read author in the world, beyond any question. Not one of his books has sold less than a half million copies; and when one figures five readers to each book and there are nine in all, the number of readers is tremendous. Principle Pictures intends to film all nine, starting with "When a Man's a Man." This record is absolutely unparalleled

TONY SARG

Because of all the puppets and marionettes in the world, his are the most unique and interesting. They are good enough for Victor Herbert to compose special music to their antics. The one above is from "The Chinese Willow Plate Story," which will have its première in December at the Belasco Theater. They say it is colored so gorgeously that it looks like a huge animated stained-glass window

Photograph by Alfred Cheney Johnston

Getting Married and Unmarried!

By

LEW CODY

Mr. Cody and Miss Chadwick are playing together in a Goldwyn picture by Rupert Hughes, called "Law Against Law," which deals with the evils of divorce—not because of divorce itself but the unhappiness that results from the arbitrary and conflicting laws to which it is subject. We thought it fitting, therefore, that they be given an opportunity to have their say. It makes interesting reading

BEING a confirmed bachelor, I'm merely an onlooker in this game of marriage. It is perhaps incongruous for me to speak of divorces at all. However, sometimes those who stand on the sidelines get a more detached perspective than the players.

Perhaps if marriage wasn't such an easy proposition, the success would be greater. But then the whole thing is a strange business. Getting married is easy, trying to get unmarried is where the rub comes in. Two people can meet one day, get a marriage license the next and go before a minister or a justice of the peace or a ship's captain and, unquestioned, be married. The mariner, for instance, would not think of setting out on a long voyage without charting out his course with due regard for adverse winds and currents. But less wisely he will cast two people adrift upon the seas of matrimony that are infinitely more uncertain than the storm-swept ocean.

Then, if the hapless couple strike shoals and foresee ahead rocky coasts threatening to wreck their happiness and decide to turn back to the port of departure, people begin to ask questions.

If you take out a driver's license for an automobile, you have to fill out a questionnaire. But they give you a marriage license unquestioningly.

By all of which I mean that our present system seems in some respects fundamentally wrong. They never ask why you want to get married, but they ask a lot of questions and make much fuss over your trying to get unmarried. The point is, getting married is a far more dangerous business and should not be entered into lightly. But when people want to get unmarried, it is a pretty safe bet they have real reasons. They have tried out the thing, and know. Not that I am an advocate of easy and many divorces. Far from it. I regard marriage as the most sacred of human relations. But people do make mistakes.

I never before bothered a great deal about divorce, but when I was cast in Rupert Hughes' new picture, "Law Against Law," and discovered that in one state I might be thoroly divorced and in another state have three wives, simultaneously and all legally, the thing took on

(Continued on page 88)

Why Do People Get Divorces?

By

HELENE CHADWICK

Mr. Cody says: A man is most easily managed when he is managed unwittingly. A man should not hide all his faults and deny his wife the pleasure of reforming him. Miss Chadwick says: Men are strange creatures. For all their being men and strong, they are like little boys. On the other hand, they like women to ask advice of them . . . for man does feel that he is a superior being

Photograph by Clarence S. Bull

DIVORCES seem necessary. Not every marriage, as we know, can be a happy one, and certainly it is better that a couple, discovering they have made a mistake, be given a chance to start over again and have some hope of happiness.

But when the number of divorces each year reaches the alarming number they have in America at present, it is patent that something is wrong somewhere. It is always interesting to consider reasons, and certainly there must be reasons for this untoward condition that sees tens of thousands of homes broken up yearly.

Faults very often lie at home. I think many matrimonial difficulties might be averted if the husband and wife understood each other not simply as such, but as man and woman. There are certain things, call them psychological or what you will, that are inherent in the relations between man and woman that must not be overlooked. A realization of these facts, and the practice of a certain tolerance, would, I feel sure, result in a mutual understanding that would in some degree, at least, lower the number of divorce suits taken into court.

Consider how many couples, on the verge of divorce, have been reconciled in court by an understanding judge who opened their eyes to things to which they had been blind. But not all judges can weigh all cases, therefore it becomes necessary for the principals in the case to take on themselves the responsibility of sound judgment.

First, every woman should consider the qualities a man demands in a wife, and sincerely endeavor to cultivate those qualities. Men are much the same in this respect; in their eyes a wife is a wife, and she must strive to be that.

Men are strange creatures. For all their being men and strong, they are much like little boys, and like to be petted. But too much petting palls. On the other hand, they like a woman to ask advice of them, that they, the men, may look down from the magnificent heights of their superiority. For man does feel he is a superior being.

So, a wife should learn that her husband is not always in the same mood; she should consider when he wishes to

(Continued on page 88)

"A Snare and a Delusion"

Here is your favorite movie star in her favorite garment. Nègligées cover a multitude of sins—if nothing else. As a matter of fact, they were never designed for use, being almost entirely ornamental. We like the black one at the bottom of the page. At least it is consistent—being utterly negligible as a covering!

Upper left is Betty Shannon. Upper right is one of Bluebeard's Eight Wives. Center is Agnes Ayres. Lower left is Ruth Roland. Lower right is Virginia Valli and center (bottom of page) is another of Bluebeard's wives. The real practical purpose of a nègligée is first aid to vamping, but no woman will admit it

Photograph by Freulich

A Happy Young Man

By FAITH SERVICE

YOU so seldom meet a happy young man. You so seldom meet people admittedly happy, who can tell you why they are happy and expect to continue to be happy even in the face of the fact that they know they may not.

There seems to be, in this generation, a sort of crusade against happiness. It isn't the style. It is what the dictionaries might refer to as "disusé." It just isn't being done. It has come to be considered as "interesting" to be morose and melancholic, skeptical, cynical, super-Russian, thickly ironical. God and laughter and Santa Claus and Holy Matrimony, babies and blue skies and kind hearts and simple faiths . . . these are the dethroned idols of a vanished Yesterday.

But Alfred Lunt, on the day I talked with him, was a very happy young man—by my observation and by his admission.

Happy for many excellent and solid reasons, such as the fact that he is in love with his wife, in love with his work, was having his first vacation in many years, had just finished a picture he thought was good, and enjoys his mother rather more than any other woman he knows. Not because his mother happens, by a fortuitous accident of biology, to be his mother, but because she is, by herself and in herself, a personage.

He told me sympathetic and delightfully appreciative things about her. How that he is the child of her first marriage, the only child. How she married again, a Scandinavian gentleman, I believe, and has two or three other children; two girls among them. How she always longed for one of her children, all of them if possible, to go on the stage. How delighted she is because he, Alfred, did go. How she still tries to urge the girls to go and is nettled because they refuse and are adamantly disinclined. And how she would have liked to go on the stage herself.

Photograph by Pach Brothers

He told me something of his former home, still his mother's, in a mid-Western town, of how she makes her lips scarlet because it amuses her and arranges her beautiful hair into an intricate and interesting coiffure, "to charm," her fond son said, "the potato bugs, I suppose."

Mr. Lunt believes with some of the perhaps less popular moderns in the theory that a child owes rather less to the parent than the parent to the child. That if there be a bond of sympathy and congeniality, well and good. But if the bond does exist it is not because they are mother and child, of necessity, but simply because they are two persons with a common point of view and a respect, the one for the other. At any rate, and theories aside, it is obviously enough a very delightful relationship between them.

Well, his mother, then, is one reason for his happiness and I can think of no more basic, no better reason.

Secondly, not necessarily in the order of importance but in the order of my paragraphic tendencies, is his wife, Lynn Fontanne, who made the play and name and character of "Dulcy" famous.

Alfred fell in love with Lynn "at first sight." Yes, an authentic case of the old poetic, cardiac collapse. I have heard people say that there is "no such thing." There is such a thing. Mr. Lunt did it. It happened in this wise:

Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne were to rehearse in the same play, the name of which escapes me, and doesn't matter. Mr. Lunt was first upon the stage, a whole-hearted, emotionally comfortable enough
(Cont'd on page 87)

Above is young Mr. Lunt living up to the title, and right, as he appears in "Second Youth," a Distinctive Picture

Alfred Lunt is happy because he is in love with his wife and in love with his work; two very excellent reasons

Our Boulevardier Steps Out

SINCE the collapse of her romance with Charlie Chaplin, the fair and fascinating Pola Negri seems to have forsworn masculine society altogether. Her inseparable companion now is Kathleen Williams who, in private life, is the wife of Charles Eyton, manager of the Lasky studio. You never see Pola but that her pal, Miss Williams, is somewhere upon the horizon.

* * *

Pola is just beginning work on a new picture, "My Man," in which she plays the part of a rough lady from the apache districts of Paris. In this, she will get back to the kind of stuff she did in "Passion," upon which her reputation was built. Her leading man is to be Charles de Roche, the French actor; Huntley Gordon is also to play a leading part.

* * *

Hollywood is consumed with excitement as to whether Pola was able to put it over Mary Pickford; their two pictures, "Rosita" and "The Spanish Dancer," being the identical story and handled in much the same way. Neither picture has, at this writing, been shown in Hollywood. Pola's admirers say she didn't have Mary's chance because "The Spanish Dancer" wasn't a star picture and Pola had to take her chances with the other boys and girls.

* * *

Top of the page: Neither a funeral nor a wedding, but merely extras from "The Judge and the Woman." Above: Off-stage entertainment by two of the cast of "Tiger Rose." Right: John Bowers and Marguerite de la Motte, who are playing in Harold Bell Wright's "When A Man's A Man." Below: A recent wedding party, Lila Lee and her husband, James Kirkwood

Mary is just beginning work on "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" with her old friend, Marshall Neilan, as director. They started in pictures at about the same time years ago in the old Biography days, and "Mickie" has directed some of Mary's finest work. But you know how it is with Mickie; he just can't get anywhere on time. So for the discipline of his soul, Mary has made certain important preparations. One is to teach her parrot to screech out, "Well, you're late again, Mickie." As a re-enforcement, she dug up an old phonograph record of a once popular song; so the first time Mons. Neilan wanders in late, he will be greeted by the old song, "I've Waited, Honey, Waited Long For You." None of which will worry Mickie in the least, you can be sure.

* * *

All the celebrities in Hollywood turned out the other night for the big opening of "Little Old New York," in which Marion Davies scored a triumph. Among them was Mary Pickford, also

And Reports The Hollywood Gossip To Harry Carr

Doug. They slipped in as unobtrusively as possible, hoping not to be noticed. At the first intermission, a fond mamma came galloping up the aisle with a cherub child and announced in a good strident voice, "My little girl wants to kiss you." Whereupon Mary got smacked. This spread the wild alarm. All over the house, other fond mammas leaped to their feet and started down the aisle dragging other angel cherubs presumably to be kissed. Happily for Mary, the first fond mamma had no intention of letting anybody jump her claim. She seen Mary first b' gosh; so, to the intense indignation of all the rest of the mothers, she stayed right on the job and monopolized Mary until the intermission was over.

* * *

They are having the time of their lives out at Mary and Doug's studio. Mary has got hold of some seventy old Biograph pictures made in 1913. Mary took us in the projecting-room and showed us one in which she appeared as a little page boy in tights. She was as fat as a partridge, so fat she could hardly show her eyes when she desired to emote.

* * *

Bill Hart seems to have come back to the fillums full of pep and excitement. His first picture based upon the life of Wild Bill Hickok was made in the almost unprecedented time of thirty days. And at that, he was much of the time on location out at Victorville where work is ordinarily slow. Among other things, Bill would seem to have scooped all the studios with the first Abraham Lincoln of the season. Everybody is making pictures with Civil War atmosphere and Abe Lincolns, possibly fired by the example of the Rockett boys in filming the life of Lincoln. Ince is making Barbara Frietchie with a Lincoln in it; somebody else is making "The Warrens of Virginia" and so on. Just by way of good measure, Bill also has General Custer, General Sheridan, Bat Masterson and the Earpes and other historical characters in his.

Bill's second picture is going to be one that he wrote himself—a story of the West of about twenty years ago called "Singer Jim McKee."

* * *

Theodore, Roberts has been living a very strenuous life of late. He has been appearing in vaudeville during the evening hours in Los

Top of the page: Spring Magic from "Maytime." Above: Two little children from "The Light That Failed." Left, reading from top to bottom: Charlie Chaplin, Manuel Alonzo, Bill Tilden and Douglas Fairbanks; the best in their professions, screen and net. Below: Victor Seastrom, the great Swedish director, with his wife and children

Bert Lytell, Blanche Sweet and Bryant Washburn, between scenes from "The Meanest Man in the World." Did you ever try this on your piano? Below: An interesting view from "Law Against Law" especially posed for Classic by Paul Ivy and Richard De Vilbiss. Below: Madge Bellamy in "No More Women." Plenty of men, tho

Mabel Normand in her endearing rôle, The Extra Girl

Angeles and putting in his daylight hours at the Lasky studio.

* * *

Ambitious near stars will have to find another friendly angel in Hollywood. L. M. Goodstadt, the casting director who has discovered so many of them, has moved on to another job. From now on, he will be the business manager of Cecil De Mille's producing company. Before going into pictures he managed De Mille's theatrical interests. Since 1916 he has been in charge of the casting for Lasky. During that time he has seen Bebe Daniels, Jack Holt, Agnes Ayres, Gloria Swanson, Wally Reid, Wanda Hawley, Constance Wilson, and many other people now famous have peeked in thru his little window looking for movie jobs.

* * *

Bebe, by the way, is back from New York, about twenty pounds less fat than when she left this salubrious climate. Her first picture in California since her return will be "The Heritage of the Desert" by Zane Grey.

* * *

Norma Talmadge has a more than academic interest in the weather reports just now. She is making the night scenes of an Arab picture yet to be named. And her garb is not of the Arctic. She is an Arab dancing girl, and it seems that Arab girls dont wear. . . . Oh well, the director wants Norma to seem languid and tropical and warm; and the California climate has suddenly gone upon a most unusual rampage and the gooseflesh comes out on Norma, and the next time she makes an Arab picture she says it is going to be in a baker's oven.

* * *

The cold wave is probably the result of the eclipse. And while we are on—or under—that eclipse . . . The most favored spot in the United States from which to view it was a point on the Coast about a hundred miles south of Los Angeles. Everybody who could get hold of a day off and an auto went dashing madly to the scene; but the studio people had to work. So to appease their disappointment, the management of the big United Studios rigged up a regular theater of chairs on top of the largest studio. The players were excused and ranged themselves with awed anticipation. And then a darned old cloud came humping along and got in the way and so they couldn't see the eclipse after all. Yes, it's a hard life, matés. Especially if you live in sunny (?) California, and are a poor hard-working movie star.

(Continued on page 72)

Put them on your Christmas List

Everyone likes to have lovely nails

PRICES and SIZES
FOR EVERY CHRISTMAS NEED

Gay Christmas packages at the right range of prices

FOR the fastidious dressing table the fascinating Boudoir Set with its cunning little compartments for cotton, buffer, Cuticle Remover, Nail White, Cuticle Cream (Comfort) and three different Polishes, including the marvelous new Liquid Polish. This makes a substantial gift of worth and distinction. The buffer, stick and file alone seem almost worth the whole price, only $3.00. For $5.00 there is the still more elegant De Luxe set. The Cutex Ivory Case at $7.50 is luxuriously packed in a charming box of fine quality imitation Ivory.

Cutex Boudoir Set

FOR the greeting that must be more personal than a card—the square little box at the bottom contains half sizes of everything essential for the nicest manicure. The Cuticle Remover, Cake Polish, Paste Polish (with the fashionable new rose tint), Nail White, emery board and the daintiest little orange stick, all gay and cordial in their little black and rose boxes. This compact set is almost indispensable for the week-end, the over-night visit or the office toilet kit, and it costs only 60c.

Cutex Compact Set

CUTEX TRAVELING SET, $1.50

CUTEX BOUDOIR SET, $3.00

CUTEX FIVE MINUTE SET, $1.00

CUTEX COMPACT SET, 60c

EACH WITH A SPECIAL
HOLIDAY WRAPPER

FOR the friend who is always dashing off somewhere the special Cutex Traveling Set at the top slips in the dressing case. The Cuticle Remover, the cake of white Polish, the jar of pink Paste Polish and the convenient Nail White are tucked in securely with a separate pocket for the steel file, the emery boards and the orange sticks. This handsome lasting set is only $1.50.

Cutex Traveling Set

THE third set, for convenient use at the dressing table. How trim and complete it is. And it contains the Cuticle Remover, of course, absorbent cotton, emery boards, and manicure stick, and both the wonderful new Cutex Polishes, the Liquid Polish for speed and brilliance, the Powder Polish for a delicate rose-pearl lustre—all so conveniently arranged not a moment is lost in using it. $1.00.

Cutex Five Minute Set

You can get these Cutex Manicure Sets with the special holiday wrappers at any drug or department store in the United States and Canada and at chemist shops in England. Northam Warren, 114 W. 17th St., New York.

CUTEX

The Movie Encyclopaedia

by
THE ANSWER MAN

PAULINE.—Better to have than to wish, so here is your answer. Richard Dix is not married and is playing in "The Call of the Canyon" with Lois Wilson. Yes, Ramon Novarro and Alice Terry are playing together. By all means write again.

HELEN M.—Too bad, too bad, but since misfortunes cannot be avoided, let them be graciously borne. No, Ramon Novarro is not married. He is twenty-four and has played on the stage. After "The Spanish Dancer," the fiery Pola Negri will play in "My Man."

ALICE ADMIRER.—Dont forget that a good thing is all the sweeter when won with pains. Hoot Gibson in "The Pony Express." Always send twenty-five cents when requesting a picture from a player. Address him at Metro, 1025 Lillian Way, Los Angeles, Cal. You're welcome.

FRANCES ANN.—No, I dont get much money, but I have a lot of fun. It is not what we possess that makes us happy, but what we enjoy. If you live according to nature, you will seldom be poor; if according to opinion, never rich. You refer to Edward Phillips. He was with Warner Bros. in "George Washington, Jr." last, and he played in "Sawdust." Jack Mower was the chauffeur.

ELEANOR G. C.—So you dont believe that I am an old man, but you think I am young and handsome. Well you keep right on thinking, you wont be violating the laws. Yes, of course I like May McAvoy. Lila Lee is eighteen, stands five feet three. Not married—for Richard Dix.

A FLAPPER'S DREAM.—Page Mr. Frcud. Dont think Craig Ward is doing anything right now. Reginald Denny in "The Leather Pushers." Why Priscilla Dean in "The Storm Daughter." Harrison Ford is married to Beatrice Prentice, and Mary Pickford has hazel eyes.

CHING.—So you think I ought to have my whiskers bobbed. Whewu! It's too cold. I usually retire about eleven. One hour's sleep before midnight is worth two hours after. Yes, Malcolm McGregor is married. Boy, oh boy! You say it was so hot where you were that when it rains, it dries up before it hits the ground. Tell me, did you have many playmates?

HECTOR.—Well, I wont say it. It wasn't a nice thought. I was reading in a little book I have which is over one hundred and thirteen years old that modesty is sure the chiefest ornament of our sex, and cannot be blamable in the men; it is one of the most amiable qualities that either man or woman can possess. You wouldn't think so today. Niles Welch was Roy in "The Cup of Life." Clever letter yours.

MOVIE FAN.—Why worry for something you cannot get; usually it is not a want but merely a desire. George O'Hara is with Robertson-Cole, also Mary Beth Milford. Reginald Denny with Universal. Rex Ingram and his wife, Alice Terry, are touring Europe for three months where the director is doing some research work for his next production, "The World's Illusion."

OKLAHOMA CITY.—The player you mention was said to be very much attached to his wife, nevertheless he went to court and got detached. Edward Burns is thirty-one, and Robert Frazer in "Jazzmania." Nita Naldi was born in Italy and she is playing in "Everyday Love." No, indeed, I dont mind answering questions.

R. VALENTINO FAN.—Well you wont see Valentino on the screen before February 1925. Monte Blue is thirty-three, and he and Irene Rich are playing in "Loveless Marriages."

LILLUMS.—You say you would like to have a picture of me eating green corn on the cob. All right, that's a go, provided you will give me a picture of yourself eating spaghetti. Marion Davies at the Cosmopolitan Studios, New York

BROWN-EYED SUE.—No, I do more writing than I do talking. Talking and eloquence are not the same; to speak, and to speak well, are two things. Lloyd Hughes is twenty-four and that is his real name. Address him at Ince, Culver City, Cal. That was George Nichols in "Children of Dust."

SUNSHINE AND MOON.—You bet, the life of love is better than the love of life. Thomas Meighan is thirty-nine. Ray McKee is starring in a series of comedies, also in "Forgive and Forget." Gaston Glass is twenty-five.

BILL.—All right, here are your addresses. Kenneth Harlan at the Schulberg Productions, 3800 Mission Road, Los Angeles, Cal. Tom Mix with Fox. Pauline Garon in "The Turmoil" and she has blue eyes.

ADELINE Z.—Marjorie Rambeau is playing on the stage right now. And, by the way, she is playing in the same show with Maude Leone, who was the first wife of Willard Mack, and Miss Rambeau was his last. Irene Castle is playing in a concert tour right now. Why yes, Mae Marsh and May McAvoy both wear glasses when not taking pictures.

ALICE R.—Good-bye, but not forever. Charles Ray is going to play on the stage in "The Girl I Loved." Then there is Ruth Roland, Nazimova, Theodore Roberts, and many others who are going on the stage. Lloyd Hughes is married to Gloria Hope, and he is twenty-four, six feet tall. Green eyes and dark-brown hair.

JUANITA.—D. W. Griffith is producing a patriotic film called "America." The title was decided upon after a canvass of six universities, schools, clubs and sporting clubs. "America" won by a narrow margin over "The Spirit of '76." Bessie Love is to play in "Gentle Julia" for Fox. Yes, Mae Murray is with Metro.

E. H.—Yes, it is all settled. Joseph Schenck has announced that he is going to produce "Romeo and Juliet" with Norma Talmadge and either Joseph Schildkraut or Conway Tearle. I'm betting on Conway. Dorothy Dalton is twenty-nine; Lillian Gish twenty-seven; Dorothy Gish twenty-five; Bebe Daniels twenty-two and Viola Dana twenty-five.

RED TEX.—Thanks for the sketch, it was a good likeness.

CARL C. W.—Why the first cattle ever brought to America are said to have been introduced by Columbus in his second voyage in 1493. In 1553 cattle were carried by the Portuguese to Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, and are said to have increased there very rapidly. Thanks for the suggestion. Address Rodolph Valentino at 50 West Sixty-seventh Street, New York City. Yes, I think the majority of players were born in America. Garreth Hughes was born in Llanelly, Wales, in 1897.

ANOTHER VAMP.—I suppose you have just graduated from the vamp school. Well the trouble with exercise is that the more you exercise, the more you will eat and drink, and therefore you cannot hope to reduce much except by dieting. Remember your calories—about 2,500 for you. No, Mary Astor is not married; she is about eighteen. Gaston Glass and Clara Bow in "Poisoned Paradise."

HANOVER, PA.—Thanks for sending me the pictures. Last I heard of Lillian Walker she was in vaudeville. Leah Baird is playing in her own pictures. Yale Boss is back in pictures, but I dont know what happened to Mary Fuller. King Baggott is directing Baby Peggy, you know. Audrey Berry played in "Java Head."

DOROTHY VAN D.—Well the best rule I know of is this: Try to keep your body comfortable, and when it becomes uncomfortable seek an intelligent readjustment of your habit.

(Continued on page 73)

This department is for information of general interest only. Those who desire answers by mail, or a list of film manufacturers, with addresses, must enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address all inquiries: The Answer Man, CLASSIC, Brewster Buildings, Brooklyn, N. Y. Use separate sheets for matters intended for other departments of this magazine. Each inquiry must contain the correct name and address of the inquirer at the end of the letter, which will not be printed. At the top of the letter write the name you wish to appear, also the name of the magazine you wish your inquiry to appear in. Those desiring immediate replies or information requiring research, should enclose additional stamp or other small fee; otherwise all inquiries must wait their turn. Let us hear from you.

Do You Know Flapper Psychology?

DANA GATLIN HAS MANAGED, as if by a sixth sense, to uncover the headlong code of the adolescent youth of today. She knows why they are "Go-getters" and "Stand-patters," and she has turned the X-ray on all the little quirks in their emotions that they keep so well hidden from prying maiden aunts and teasing uncles, to say nothing of overanxious mothers and severe fathers.

YOUTHFUL PASSION, MISS GATLIN DEPICTS with a thrill that burns and laughs in a breath. Her stories appear in "Harper's Bazar," the "Cosmopolitan Magazine," the "Saturday Evening Post," and other of the best magazines.

FOR MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE, Dana Gatlin has prepared a six-part serial "Thistle-down," a story of young love that will delight those who know flapperism, those who don't know it, and those who want to know it. The story is full of mystery, suspense, surprise, situations that throb, characters who are like your intimate neighbors; and thru it winds the lure of the silversheet and the glamour of romance.

"THISTLEDOWN"

By DANA GATLIN

Beginning in the January

MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE

IT IS THE OLD STORY OF THE CHASE——
A SON OF THE IDLE RICH—A LOVELY WAITRESS——

"The waitress was new on the job at Thiebaud's—the young men being of the type that notes such things, noted that at once; they postponed their order to eye the waitress appraisingly. She was worth looking at, she had the singular delicate loveliness one sometimes sees in unexpected places."

BUT CAP AND APRON ARE A MASQUERADE——
AND FATE STAGES A SHOCK FOR THE GILDED YOUTH——

"He wanted to hold my hand a while ago," the girl said demurely. The old Alsatian made as if to heave his unwieldy frame over the bar. "He insult you, the dog? Wait, I fix him. I tell him who you are!—then I throw him——"

On the news-stand December first

This Book Supplies all the Family's Winter Needs!

Shop from YOUR Philipsborn Style Book TODAY—it supplies all the family winter needs—wearing apparel, accessories and novelties, including Christmas Gifts. It's a veritable treasure house of bargains for every one of our 3½ million customers. It contains all the latest Paris and New York Styles at the lowest prices ever quoted. Use it right along—from now until January—for all the family shopping, including Xmas gifts.

Lowest Prices! Finest Service!

The most spectacular price reductions in mail order history! Our New and Improved Mail Order Service is absolutely unexcelled! It means that you get exactly what you want, delivered on time and guaranteed to please you or your money back!

Consult YOUR copy of PHILIPSBORN'S Style Book constantly—and profit by the big savings!

No Other PHILIPSBORN Catalog will be Issued Until Our January Spring Book.

LOAN Your PHILIPSBORN Catalog—or if you have none BORROW one from Your Neighbor!

Make this a HAPPIER CHRISTMAS
By Giving Practical Presents from the Philipsborn's Catalog!!

PHILIPSBORN'S DEPARTMENT - 506 - CHICAGO -

Photograph by Edwards Hesteller

Our Boulevardier Steps Out

(Continued from page 68)

A whole city is to co-operate in the making of "Her Temporary Husband," which John McDermott is directing for First National. The city fire department, the entire police force, and two thousand five hundred residents of Long Beach, California, have volunteered.

* * *

Conway Tearle and his wife—Adele Rowland of vaudeville fame—have decided to make their home permanently in Hollywood and have moved the furnishing of their Long Island home out here. They gave an elaborate house-warming the other night at which Ethel Barrymore, Mrs. Leslie Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lloyd were the guests of honor.

* * *

Helene Chadwick has the real-estate bug. She has announced that, at the conclusion of her present contract with Goldwyn, she intends to retire from the screen and open a real-estate office. Art and all that is all right, says the fair Helene, but there never will come another easy-money period like this in the history of the world and—well somebody else can take care of art.

* * *

After he finishes "Black Oxen" with Corinne Griffith, Frank Lloyd is to produce "The Sea Hawk"; cast not stated. In connection with "Black Oxen," Lloyd says that he has found in Little Clara Bow, who was a prize winner in one of the Brewster "Fame and Fortune" contests, one of the real "discoveries" of his career.

* * *

Nearly all the Hollywood studios have shut down hard on visitors. One of the big producers has estimated that every visitor costs his studio (Continued on page 78)

Photograph

by Freulich

Top of the page: Myrtle Steadman and her son, Lincoln, another second generation movie team

Hoot Gibson, who will soon have his own company to make pictures for Universal release

The Movie Encyclopædia

(Continued from page 70)

Why George Hackathorn is five feet seven and is playing in "The Turmoil" with Eileen Percy. You better write in English.

BERLE F.—Better go back than go wrong. Yes, Katherine MacDonald is married to John Schoen Johnson. Antonio Moreno is thirty. So you want me to call on you when I go South. Thanks. Wish I could accept all the invitations I have. Barbara Bedford and Lloyd Hughes in "The Whipping Boss."

PEGGY.—I cant say when Eugene O'Brien will return to the screen.

CLYDE.—The best doctor I know of recommends rubbing vaseline or olive-oil into the scalp every night for preventing the hair from falling out. Look at my picture and tell me if you are willing to take my advice on how to prevent baldness. Yes, that was Kenneth Harlan in "Beautiful and Damned." I attended the opening of "Little Old New York." The Lee children have gone to London to play.

MISS THELMA.—Madge Kennedy in "Three Miles Out." Sounds as tho it might be interesting. Eddie Burns is with Metro. Little Priscilla Dean Moran, Jackie Coogan's adopted sister, is playing one of the children in "Daddies" starring Mae Marsh.

MILDRED A.—Good words cool more than cold water. Yes, Joyce Fair is a child. Yes, Mary Pickford married Owen Moore twice. Once by a preacher and again by a priest. Shirley Mason and Viola Dana are sisters.

LOUISA.—So you have a flivver. As Bugs Baer says, "anything that happens to them is bound to be an improvement." You refer to "De Luxe Annie." It was released some time ago. Write to Metro for a picture of Rex Ingram. John Bowers, Frankie Lee, Sylvia Breamer and Marjorie Daw in "The Barefoot Boy."

So.—Is that so? Of course Lila Lee and Bebe Daniels are friends. Bebe is twenty-two, and is playing in "His Children's Children." Doris May and William Farnum in "The Gun Fighter." House Peters and Evelyn Brent in "Held to Answer."

ME FOR J. WARREN.—No, I dont use my beard as a coffee strainer. What next! Of course I live in a hall room and love buttermilk. No Warren Kerrigan isn't married. I bet many a girl wishes he was. Yes, Dorothy Dalton has been in musical comedy. You know she was the original Aphrodite.

M. R. V.—They do say that Natalie Talmadge is expecting the stork any day now. Mae Murray is twenty-seven. Gloria Swanson is at the Astoria studio in Long Island. Anna Q. Nilsson is married to John Gunnison.

FRANK.—Frank you are. Yes, why dont you try writing to your favorite. They like to receive letters of criticism of their work. How did you like the cover of Strongheart last month? You know that dog certainly has a happy time of it, he lives on three pounds of porterhouse steak every night, and doesn't have to worry about reducing.

JULIA J. H.—William Duncan is playing in "The Fast Express" for Universal. Edith Johnson opposite him. Well if you pay nothing; dont grumble about the score. Yes, there is Nita Naldi. As long as your eyes are not too deep-set, you're all right.

BOBBIE.—Of two evils, choose the least. Why Taylor Holmes has been playing on the stage, but right now he is working on a picture. That was quite some list of

(Seventy-three)

BEFORE USING

Even though the teeth be perfectly formed and regular they cannot be attractive and charming if stained with tartar and discoloration, and dull with lack-lustre

AFTER USING

A three-minute application of Renamel, after the morning tooth-brushing, leaves the teeth pearly white and glistening; every tooth a tooth of gleaming ivory

New Discovery Makes Dull Teeth Pearly White

Beautiful white teeth may now be every woman's possession. Remarkable new liquid removes all dullness and discoloration in few minutes—imparting gleamy whiteness and sparkle to any set of teeth

The Woman Who Dared Not Smile By Richard Sommers

EVERY man fell head-over-heels in love with Henrietta Blaine—until she smiled. Then the charm was broken.

Everybody agreed she would be absolutely irresistible if it only were not for her unsightly, discolored teeth.

Then, one day a miracle happened!

Henrietta appeared at May Osborne's dinner party and was seated at the table opposite George Gould. In the midst of a humorous anecdote George stopped suddenly and stared in disbelief at Henrietta whose lips were parted in a smile.

There followed an awkward pause at the table. All eyes were turned in the direction of George's stare and at once everybody knew: a wonderful thing had happened to Henrietta. Vanished was the ugly, yellowish stain that had for so long marred her teeth. Now they were white and radiant as oriental pearls—beautiful in their gleaming lustre and evenness.

And this is the story as Henrietta later told to May in the privacy of her boudoir:

"Since childhood, I have been a chum of Martha Ryerson's, whose father is head of the famous Century Chemists. One night at the Ryerson home I told Mr. Ryerson frankly the tragedy of my awful-looking teeth and begged him to find a way to help me out. After months of experimenting this is the result."

Pearly Teeth for Every Woman

Ryerson's Renamel for the teeth is the most important beauty discovery in ages. There have been tonics, lotions, dyes and creams galore for the skin, the hair, the figure, but until now the woman with dull, discolored, yellow teeth has had no assistance beyond the ordinary "tooth washes" which merely remove dirt without relieving dullness or stain.

The application of this wonderful new dental discovery is simplicity itself. Any woman can apply it in her own home with lovely and immediate results. Merely apply a thin coat of Renamel (with soft camel's hair brush provided)—just after the morning tooth-brushing. Allow to remain on the teeth for two or three minutes—then wipe off with a dry cloth. And lo! a miracle has been performed. Every tooth is gleaming ivory—as white as virgin pearls—with all tartar and stain vanished completely.

Guaranteed Pure and Harmless

Renamel is not only harmless, but it is positively beneficial to the teeth. Your dentist will endorse its purity. It is pleasantly, but potently, antiseptic—destroying the tiny bacteria that often lurk in the crevices of the teeth.

If you really take pride in your personal appearance, read this wonderful trial offer, and mail the coupon today.

No Profit Distribution of $3.50 Bottles

(ONLY ONE BOTTLE TO A FAMILY)

THE first bottles of Renamel were made up for my personal friends and patrons at $3.50 the bottle, but to introduce this delightful product quickly to a few thousand women throughout America (thus paying the way for drug store sale), I have decided to distribute a few thousand introductory bottles direct by mail, at the actual cost of production—including the bare expense of compounding, shipping and the printed announcements—which we have figured down to $1.87.

You need send no money; simply mail the coupon. Do not delay. This offer may never be repeated. I cannot afford to accept over a few thousand coupons on this "no-profit basis." In the interest of good looks and self-respect, ACT NOW. Send the coupon today. Wm. Ryerson, Chief Chemist

Send No Money—Merely Mail Coupon!

Century Chemists, Dept. 455,
710 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago

Please send me, in plain wrapper, one full-size bottle ($3.50 size) of Mr. Ryerson's Renamel for five days' free trial. I will pay postman the actual cost price of $1.87—plus a few cents postage—with the understanding that if I am not fully satisfied, I may return unused portion of Renamel at the end of five days, and you will refund my money in full.

Name

Address

If apt to be out when postman calls, enclose $2 with coupon, and Renamel will be sent to you postpaid.

Let DIAMONDS say Merry Xmas

642 AD—18" indestructible Pearls of unusual sheen and lustre with White Gold clasp, set with genuine Diamond. $14.50

643 AD—Premier Ring, Blue-white quality Diamond. $95.00

644 AD—Engraved Premier with fine Diamond. $37.50

645 AD—Hexagon Ring—fine Diamond. $55.00

654 AD—Gent's Tooth Ring, Blue-white quality Diamond. $110.00

647 AD—Gent's Round Belcher with Blue-white quality Diamond. $80.00

653 AD—White Gold Hexagon Cluster, 7 quality Diamonds. $59.50

656 AD—Famous 19 jewel Illinois 20 year engraved octagon case, engraved gilt dial. $39.75

649 AD—Premier Cluster, 7 Blue-white quality Diamonds. $73.50

650 AD—Gypsy Cluster Ring, 7 Blue-white Diamonds. $87.50

651 AD—Solid Platinum Ring, Blue-white Diamond. $118.50

652 AD—14 karat White Gold 15 jewel rectangular Wrist Watch. Special Price $33.65

NO MONEY DOWN

Any of the startling diamond values pictured here can be yours without risking a single penny. Each item is ideally suited for Christmas and will make a charming gift. No matter what you select, you pay only a few cents a day. Your selection sent on your simple request without a single penny down. If you don't agree that it is the biggest bargain you have ever seen, return it at our expense. If you keep it, pay at the rate of only a few cents a day.

YEARLY DIVIDEND

You are guaranteed 8% yearly increase in value on all diamond exchanges. Also, 5% bonus privilege.

MILLION DOLLAR BARGAIN BOOK FREE

Send coupon today for your copy to Dept. 1519. See the greatest display of Diamonds and Jewelry bargains in America for yourself sold under the Lyon Charge Account Plan.

SEND FOR MILLION DOLLAR BARGAIN BOOK FREE

J.M. LYON & CO.
2-4 MAIDEN LANE-NEW YORK
In Business Nearly 100 years

J. M. LYON & CO.,
2-4 Maiden Lane, Dept. 1519
New York, N. Y.

Please send me at once your big 123 page MILLION DOLLAR BARGAIN BOOK, showing thousands of America's greatest diamond and jewelry bargains.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____

favorites you have. Enid Bennett with Metro in "The Living Past" with Harrison Ford. No, I dont mind. And so near Christmas too.

THAT RED-HEAD GAL.—Yes, the CLASSIC was formerly called the "Supplement" and then "The Motion Picture Classic" and now it is called just plain CLASSIC. Can you suggest a better name? No, dont be bashful. And you want to see more of Johnnie Walker and Cullen Landis. No, not much to offer you.

MARGARET C.—You will have to wait until February 1925 to see Rodolph Valentino on the screen. Yes, Thomas Meighan; and Gordon Griffith was Sam. Norman Kerry has been signed to play opposite Mabel Forrest in "The Satin Girl."

A PAIR OF CATS.—I dont believe it. Anyway a pair is better than three of a kind. That is, speaking of cats. Jack Holt is six feet and weighs one hundred and seventy-five. That is his right name, and he has been playing for about six years. All right, stop in again sometime.

SISTER SUE.—Well I did not know that business was as bad as you say it is, but I have often noted that the man who is always talking about the poor business outlook is usually the one who has a poor way of looking out for his business. Yes, that is Mae Murray in "Fashion Row." Lloyd Hughes is twenty-four. No offense, and I hope to hear from you soon again.

GLORIA V.—Jane and Eva Novak have been signed to play sister rôles in Fox's "The Man Whom Life Passed By." Percy Marmont opposite Jane and Cullen Landis opposite Eva. Yes, Mary Pickford is thirty, but she doesn't look it. I'm sorry, Gloria, but I cannot tell you how you can get a screen test for yourself.

MARGARET B.—Well you will find that most people love you most for what you have and not for what you are. And dont forget, money talks. Yes, Franklyn Farnum is with Fox. Better give up the idea for a while. Write me again.

Morgan A.—Well there's no watch on me. I cant afford one. The word "watch" comes from the Saxon "waecan" signifying to wake, to excite, and is the name applied to the numerous species of time-makers which have sprung legitimately from what old stirps, or stock—the clock, the earliest history of which is lost in the night of the past, but which has played so wondrous a part in the civilization of the world; and who knows but in barbarism too, for the meaning of the term originally was "bell" and is still retained in the French cloche. My, I didn't mean to say so much. Viola Dana at the Metro Studios. Bebe Daniels was born in Dallas, Texas. So you dont agree with me, and you say love is life, and that is what you make it. Well I agree with you. So much for that.

MARGARET, AURORA.—Norma Talmadge is twenty-eight, and she was born on May 2nd.

MAY Mc.—So you think I look like Father Time. Time does not bow to you, you must bow to time. Just write to J. Warren Kerrigan at the Vitagraph Studio, Hollywood, Cal.

MERRYLEGS.—I should say Betty Blythe is back. I am most anxious to see her in "Chu Chin Chow." Betty Compson in "The Royal Oak." Yes, Metro produced "The Promise" in 1917 with Mae Allison and Harold Lockwood. Yes, you did right. And you sure did write.

DESMOND.—That may be true, but we ought not to judge a man's merits but his qualifications, but by the use he makes of them. Gloria Swanson is your sapphire

(Continued on page 89)

No Wonder Rouge Never Gave a Natural Color!

But at last Science has solved the baffling Secret of Nature's own lovely flush /

SCIENCE now discloses that no known shade of purplish red—the familiar color of rouge—can ever duplicate Nature's perfect artistry. No matter how skillfully rouge is applied, the task is impossible.

In creating the wonderful new Princess Pat Natural Tint, the great handicap of rouge came to light! The startling discovery was made that to obtain perfect results, such as Nature gives, the color used must positively change upon the skin after it is applied. No wonder, then, that rouge never gave a natural color!

No more amazing development has ever been accomplished in beauty's name than the finding of Princess Pat Tint. No more fascinating story has ever been told than the long search by a famous English Scientist for the mysterious "X-Tint" which should duplicate Nature.

Like many great discoveries, chance gave the inspiration and a happy accident brought about the final triumph. Chance led the famous creator of Princess Pat Tint to banteringly criticize the tell-tale rouge upon the cheeks of a feminine acquaintance. She in turn challenged her critic to use his vast store of knowledge to produce something better. Thus a scientist turned his hand to a task which had baffled the cosmetician since rouge was first used.

Search was made first for some actual, definite color, which would simulate the marvelous beauty of Nature's handiwork when the cheek is divinely mantled with soft pink and creamy white. Time after time the attempt was made to perfect ordinary rouge, to so modify the familiar purplish red that it would appear natural. But with every resource of science available, the effort proved futile.

But the scientist worked on, with his assistant the subject for experimentation. Casting aside red tints as impossible, hundreds of different shadings of delicate color were used. Many were an improvement, but none perfect.

"The Amazing Million Dollar Beauty Secret Had at Last Been Discovered"

Then accident stepped in, and by sheer chance a rare and costly ingredient was used. The result was an unknown shade of delicate orange, beautiful indeed, but not the color one would ordinarily select to match Nature's perfect complexion. Idly enough, this new shade was tried upon the assistant's cheeks. And then a wonderful thing happened. Instantly the coloring underwent a subtle alteration. The orange tint changed upon the skin!

The scientist exclaimed in amazement! For beneath his startled gaze there had appeared the absolute perfection of Nature's own coloring, the blending of delicate pink and white that marks the transparent beauty of the famous English complexion. The amazing "Million Dollar Beauty Secret," Princess Pat Tint, had at last been discovered.

"At the Dance—Serenely Sure of Your Color"

Princess Pat Tint
Is Waterproof

Still the scientist was not satisfied. He determined to make this new tint waterproof. And wonderful success attended his efforts. Now, one may actually enjoy surf bathing without the slightest impairment of coloring. Princess Pat Tint on the cheeks simply will not run or streak. Perspiration does not affect it. Yet Princess Pat Tint vanishes instantly beneath a touch of cream or the use of soap.

Princess Pat Tint comes in only one shade, of course; for the one shade blends perfectly with every complexion! It is as perfect in daylight as under artificial light. So it is no wonder that Princess Pat Tint has become a sensation—the demand in New York, Chicago, and other large cities has been simply overwhelming. Dealers everywhere are being supplied as fast as possible.

Meanwhile, however, we will be glad to send Princess Pat Tint Free to every woman who reads this advertisement.

FREE!

Until the shops have been sufficiently stocked with Princess Pat Tint to meet all calls for it, we shall take pleasure in sending to individuals a week's supply—without charge.

PRINCESS PAT, Ltd.
2701 S. Park Ave., Dept. 412, Chicago
Entirely FREE, please forward me postpaid, a complimentary supply of the new Princess Pat Tint.

Name (Print)

Street

City

State

Princess Pat

PRINCESS PAT, Ltd., Chicago, U. S. A.

Princess Pat Creams—Ice Astrigent—Princess Pat Tint—Lip Stick—Princess Pat Perfume

(Seventy-five)

Crossroads of Conversation

Could the telephone directory in the hands of each subscriber be revised from hour to hour, there would be no need for the information operator. But even during its printing and binding, thousands of changes take place in the telephone community. New subscribers are added to the list. Old ones move their places of business or of residence.

Though their names are not listed on the directory, these subscribers must be connected by the highways of speech with all others in the community. To supplement the printed page, there must be guides at the crossroads of conversation.

Such are the information operators, selected for their task because of quickness and accuracy, courtesy and intelligence. At their desks, connected with the switchboards in central offices, they relieve the regular operators from answering thousands of questions about telephone numbers that would otherwise impede the rendering of service. If they are unnecessarily asked for numbers already in the directory, service is retarded.

"Information" stands for the most complete utilization of telephone facilities.

"BELL SYSTEM"
AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY
AND ASSOCIATED COMPANIES

One Policy, One System, Universal Service, and all directed toward Better Service

Youth-Ami Skin Peel

A New Scientific Discovery which painlessly and harmlessly replaces the old skin with a new and removes all Surface Blemishes, Pimples, Blackheads, Discolorations, Sunburns, Eczema, Acne, Birthmarks, etc. A non-acid, invisible liquid. Produces a healthy new skin, beautiful as a baby's. Results astounding. Booklet "The Magic of a New Skin" free in plain sealed envelope.

Youth-Ami Laboratories, Dept. KB, 30 E. 20th St., New York

BECOME A PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER

EARNING $35 TO $125 A WEEK

Three to six months' course. Motion Picture, Commercial, Portraiture, Practical Instruction. Modern Equipment. Ask for Catalog No. 18.

N. Y. INSTITUTE OF PHOTOGRAPHY
 NEW YORK 141 W. 36th St. CHICAGO 630 So. Wabash Ave. BROOKLYN 505 State St.

BATHASWEET

Keep your skin soft with softened, perfumed water

Fastidious women have long realized that to keep the skin soft and sweet and dainty as nature intended it must be bathed in only softest water. Bathasweet gives water a limpid, silky softness that tells you by its very feel how good it is for the skin. Imparts a delicate perfume, too—the height of luxury. If you are not now using it a lovely treat is in store for you. Get Bathasweet at your drug or department store, 25c, 50c, or $1.00. Or send us 10c for miniature can.

THE C. S. WELCH CO. Dept. A. B., New York City

Glenn Hunter—On and Off

(Continued from page 36)

a change—a private secretary, a chauffeur, and an able-bodied man to hold his pants.

But I was glad of it. Glenn knows what it is to be poor and to rise in life. So it was with Guy Plummer in "West of the Water Tower." And that is one reason, when I visited him at the studio, that he was putting so much feeling into the part of Guy. In the story Guy was at the bottom; he rose; he became somebody. And so had Glenn.

One day Glenn told me a little story that made me hopeful. When first he left his small native village and came to New York to be an actor, it was the town joke. "Goin' to New York to be an actor."—it was simply too funny for anything. An Actor? Ha-Ha! When he walked down the street they made fun of him, made cat-calls, squealed from behind windows, taunted him, mocked him. It was funny, they said—Glenn Hunter that everybody knew thinkin' he could be an actor in New York. Then they squealed at him again. It was the same way with Guy in Junction City in "West of the Water Tower." The town "came down" on him. Time passed, in Glenn's case . . . he had the real spark—and now when he goes back with his car and chauffeur he is the most welcome person in town. Some of the persons who used to give the cat-calls are now proud to shake hands with him.

It is by reason of these things that I think Glenn Hunter is such an admirable selection. He has run the gamut; he knows what it is to be down and he knows what it is to be up. I know of no one on the American stage so fitted for the part. Glenn has the goods.

FLORIDA

By MARGARET MAYFIELD

Florida in February!
 Where roses bloom
 And lilies raise
 White cups skyward,
 Where violets peep
 Purple-eyed behind their leaves;
 And yellow oranges
 Hang like golden fruit
 Upon the shining-leaved trees;
 Where motors unroll
 Grey ribbons in the hard sand,
 A road that nature fashioned;
 Where Spain laid her iron heel
 Upon the tropic soil
 And left a medieval fortress,
 Eternal memorial of her pride;
 Where Spanish moss
 Beards the trees in grey;
 Where azaleas burst into pink stars,
 Against a white porch;
 Where palmettos wave their fans
 In the soft breeze
 This is Florida in February!

A Lover of Life

(Continued from page 41)

wild-eyed girl firmly planted on her gorgeous court train.

A moment of wild confusion, a volley of explosives, and Eulalie fled for safety to the flies from which she only ventured forth when the janitor closed the theater at midnight.

This didn't dampen her ardor. With persistence and the cherished slogan, "Never say cant," in her heart, she forged thru several minor engagements and landed on Broadway as a prima donna while still in her teens, appearing in such favorites as "The Wizard of Oz," "The Time, The Place and The Girl," and others of this type.

Miss Jensen grinned: "I must have been a difficult star—I thought being temperamental a part of the game and I wanted to play the game to the limit. I'm a fighter—I like the battle, and there were some spectacular encounters!" She laughed with relish at the memory.

She comes from a colorful line. There are fascinating strains of French, Spanish and Italian in her veins and romance and adventure ran riot among her ancestors. They have left their trace on her. One can readily picture her with a rose between her lips dancing the heart out of the victorious matador under flaming Spanish skies, or mounted on a white charger leading her down-trodden people to glory!

Sorrow has touched this woman too. She says she was left dumb for a time and the song and smile died from her heart. But her spirit couldn't be downed. Leah Beard sent for her to come to Hollywood and in her work she has found contentment.

"It takes heartaches, disappointments and bitter tears to teach one how to act, to understand another woman's emotional reactions," said Miss Jensen. "I do not say that an actress must pass thru, personally, the exact experiences she portrays in her rôles. For instance, she does not have to commit murder in order to enact such a scene. But having touched tragic depths creates in her a perfect comprehension. No woman has the right to grow hard—no matter what her griefs.

"I love my work, I love my people—those who speak my language. I love life—its struggles, its successes, its failures. It gives us tears but it also, gives us smiles.

"There it is——" she looked at me hopelessly. "You see, I'm destined to play many parts!"

Anyway, that is Eulalie Jensen—

(Seventy-seven)

Teeth Like Pearls

Don't leave that film-coat on them

Wherever dainty people meet, you see prettier teeth today.

In old days most teeth were film-coated. Now millions use a new-type tooth paste which fights film.

Make this free test, if only for beauty's sake. Ten days will show you what it means to you.

Those cloudy coats

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it. Much of it clings and stays under old-way methods.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That's how teeth lose luster.

Film also causes most tooth troubles, and very few escape them. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

The new-day method

Dental science has found two effective ways to daily fight that film. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring.

After many careful tests these methods were embodied in a new-type tooth paste. The name is Pepsodent. Leading dentists the world over began to advise it. Now careful people of some 50 nations employ it every day. And to millions of homes it is bringing a new dental situation.

Other discoveries

A way was also found to multiply the alkalinity of the saliva as well as its starch digestant. Those are Nature's agents for neutralizing acid and digesting starch deposits. Pepsodent with every use gives them manifold effect.

These discoveries are everywhere changing the old methods of teeth cleaning. They have brought a new conception of what clean teeth mean.

A delightful test

We offer here a delightful test which will be a revelation.

Send coupon for the 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

What you see and feel will very soon convince you. You will learn the way to benefits you want. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Pepsodent PAT. OFF.
REG. U.S.

The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific tooth paste based on modern research, now advised by leading dentists the world over.

10-Day Tube Free ¹³¹¹

THE PEPSODENT COMPANY,
Dept. 416, 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Mail 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent to

.....
.....

Only one tube to a family.

Genuine

Aspirin

SAY "BAYER" when you buy. Insist!

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over 23 years and proved safe by millions for

- | | |
|-----------|------------|
| Colds | Headache |
| Toothache | Rheumatism |
| Neuritis | Lumbago |
| Neuralgia | Pain, Pain |

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions. Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

FOR PHOTOPLAY IDEAS

Plots accepted any form; revised, criticized, copyrighted, marketed. Advice free. Universal Scenario Corporation, 202 Security Bldg., Santa Monica and Western Avenue, Hollywood, California.

Publishers Scenario Bulletin-Digest
SEND FOR FREE SAMPLE COPY

DEAFNESS IS MISERY

I know because I was Deaf and had Head Noises for over 30 years. My invisible Antiseptic Ear Drums restored my hearing and stopped Head Noises, and will do it for you. They are Tiny Megaphones. Cannot be seen when worn. Effective when Deafness is caused by Catarrh or by Perforated, Partially or Wholly Destroyed Natural Drums. Easy to put in, easy to take out. Are "Unseen Comforts." Inexpensive. Write for Booklet and my sworn statement of how I recovered my hearing.

A. O. LEONARD
Suite 53, 70 5th Avenue • • New York City

LOFTIS BROS. & CO. F&S

DIAMONDS WATCHES

Genuine Diamonds Guaranteed
CASH OR CREDIT

"SYLVIA" Diamond Ring
E 1 1/2 a white, perfect cut Diamond. The ring is 1 1/2 k Solid White Gold. Special at $100

Loftis Carved "Perfection" Diamond Ring
Blue white, perfect cut Diamond. $75

"No. 1 Special" Diamond Ring
Brilliant Diamond, blue white, perfect cut. Ring is 1 1/2 k White Gold, carved. $50

TERMS:
$10 Down, $2.50 a Week

TERMS:
$5.00 Down, $1.25 a Week

The Loftis Carved "Perfection" Ring. In 1 1/2 k Solid Green Gold, Diamond set in White Gold prongs. Grand Blossom design. Special at $75. Terms: $7.50 with order or on delivery, then $2.00 a week. Also at $50, $100, $125, $150, up to $2,500. Wedding Rings to match.

Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS SEND FOR CATALOG

Over 2,000 illustrations of Diamond-set Jewelry, Watches, Wrist Watches, Pearls, Mesh Bags, Silverware, etc.—gifts by which you will always be remembered. There is something appropriate for everyone. Select as many articles as you wish and have all charged in one account. Sent prepaid for your Free Examination. Catalog explains everything. Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

17 JEWEL ELGIN
No. 15—Green Gold, engraved, assorted patterns, guaranteed 25 yrs. 12 Size, gilt Dial $32
Terms: $3.25 Down, then $1.00 a week.

Rectangular Wrist Watch
Solid 1 1/2 k White Gold. 17 Jewels, $35. 14-k, 15 Jewels, $29.
Only $2.50 with order, then $1.00 a week until paid.

LOFTIS THE NATIONAL JEWELERS
BROS. & CO. ESTD 1858
108 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.
Stores in Leading Cities

You can be quickly cured, if you

STAMMER

Send 10 cents for 288-page book on Stammering and Stuttering, "Its Cause and Cure." It tells how I cured myself after stammering 20 yrs. B. N. Bogue, 7701 Bogue Bldg., 1147 N. Ill. St., Indianapolis

Sensational Offer! $3.98

24-inch strand IMPORTED LUCILE PEARLS, in beautiful satin-lined case (as illustrated) at the unbelievable price of $3.98. LUCILE PEARLS are carefully matched and graduated by experts, fitted with a genuine sterling silver clasp and GUARANTEED INDESTRUCTIBLE. COMPARE these pearls with others offered in retail stores from $10 to $15, if you do not find this necklace equal if not superior to them, return it and we will cheerfully refund your money.

NOTE: Do not doubt the value of these pearls because of the low price, our ironclad guarantee is attached to each necklace. SEND US YOUR ORDER and remittance of only $3.98 and in a few days you will receive one of our GENUINE LUCILE PEARL necklaces. If you desire we will send C. O. D., you pay postman $3.98 plus few cents charges upon delivery. This is a rare opportunity. Order now.

ORIENTAL PEARL CO.
853 Kent Ave. Dept. E Brooklyn, N.Y.

Our Boulevardier Steps Out
(Continued from page 72)

at least one hundred dollars in time lost. On the other hand, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks have adopted a policy of letting in everyone who wants to see the place.

* * *

Jean Hersholt claims the distinction of being the champion high-and-low fighter of the world. In Eric von Stroheim's "Greed," he staged a fisticuff three hundred and thirty-seven feet below sea level on the famous alkali skin in Death Valley. In a former production, he had a similar scene on Mount Hood, twelve thousand. In both instances he collapsed from the result of the abnormal atmosphere.

* * *

Mae Marsh has arrived in Hollywood to be in "Daddies" at the Warner Brothers studio under the direction of William Seitor. For company she has her husband and baby. Miss Marsh has starred away from the film colony and has taken a house on West Twenty-eighth Street, several miles away from the rest of 'em. She had a grand reception, her last Griffith picture, "The White Rose," having broken all down-town house records for Sid Graumann.

* * *

Ernst Lubitsch has assembled a somewhat remarkable cast for his second American picture now being made at Warner Brothers—"The Marriage Circle." Among others are Florence Vidor, Marie Prevost, Adolphe Menjou, Creighton Hale, Monte Blue, Harry Meyers. It is the gossip of Hollywood that Marie Prevost is due to be a great actress when Lubitsch gets thru with her. She plays the part of a vamp of a type new to the screen. The German director considers her to be one of the most promising actresses he has seen in America.

* * *

Henry Walthall has cancelled his plans to go back to the stage in order to take the part of the father in the next Booth Tarkington story to be screened by First National, "Old Fathers and Young Sons." The cast includes little Ben Alexander.

* * *

The press-agent sorrowfully admits he didn't mean quite what he said when he gave out Baby Peggy's salary as a million a year. It seems that Sol Lesser has agreed to spend a million a year on her productions.

(Continued on page 86)

New Books In Brief Review

IN modern literature the Problem is the thing. The plot-weary author, laboring overtime, seeks sedulously until he finds something new to worry himself and his public about. Having painted in sad hues various pictures of married life in his last novel, "Brass," Charles G. Norris, turns with equal gloom to the lot of the working woman in "Bread" (E. P. Dutton & Company). Last year A. S. M. Hutchinson in "This Freedom" forced his heroine to undergo all sorts of unpleasant vicissitudes in an effort to prove that marriage and office work do not mate well. Mr. Norris in an utterly dissimilar novel has the same end in view. But after all, are not these two authors bothering themselves and us with something which is no problem at all? The majority of women turn gladly, willingly from office work to married life. The comparative freedom of a home is vastly preferred by most women to the monotonous routine of an office. There are not many secretaries like Jeannette Sturgis who get any thrills over business dictation or typewriter keys. Not often do we find a woman sticking to the humdrum existence of an office when a dominating lover enters her life. There may be, there probably are such resolute spinsters who loudly condemn the holy state—but our guess is that ninety-nine out of every hundred are only whistling to keep up their courage.

Mr. Norris tells his story in rather a colloquial style, not altogether pleasing. The early part of the novel drags wofully, evoking yawns rather than interest. Jeannette Sturgis—brave and independent, efficient and headstrong—is remarkably well portrayed, as are her mother, the little music teacher; Martin Devlin, Jeannette's conquering husband, vulgar and rough, but virile and somehow splendid.

There is a certain power in his description of Jeannette's love for Martin and her struggle to stifle that love because it interferes with her passion for independence. Dramatic intensity, too, in the tragic end when bereft of everything but her once prized independence, she finds herself alone in the old-maidish flat she had chosen to take the place of life with the careless, spendthrift Martin. The poignant memory of that scene still lingers.

Mr. Norris runs to monosyllabic titles. In previous novels he has given us "Brass" and "Salt." Now we have "Bread." One wonders how long our creator of terse titles can keep this up. At this rate we can expect next year a novel by Mr. Norris, entitled, "Dough," dealing with the unsuccessful efforts of a poor man to amass great wealth.

THE story of the first and second Hungarian revolutions of 1918-19 is told in all the details of its terror and debauchery in a remarkable book entitled "An Outlaw's Diary" (Robert M. McBride and Company). Its author, Cécile Tormay, is a novelist of international fame. Her book is not merely the diary of an outlaw during a national upheaval, it is the record of a nation plunged into suffering and sorrow of an almost overwhelming description.

Miss Tormay wrote her thrilling record of the progress of the revolution day by day and week by week, secreting her manuscript wherever she could, and with the threat of death hanging over her if she were tracked and her writing discovered. Proscribed by revolutionary heads who had installed a "tcheka" as terrible as that of Russia, she fled from the parental roof after the death of her mother—one of many innocent victims of the revolution—taking refuge in lonely castles, provincial villas and rustic hovels. She secreted fragments of her diary between the pages of books, under the eaves of strange houses, up chimneys, in recesses of cellars, behind furniture and buried in the ground. It has survived in its integrity almost miraculously to serve as a memento when the graves of the victims it describes are forgotten, when the grass has grown over the gallows' pits, and when the writings in blood and bullets have disappeared from the walls of the torture chambers.

TO certain people "The Future of Painting," by Willard Huntington Wright (Huebsch), will seem the most important critical discussion of that art since the Trattato della Pittura, despite the intervention between the great Leonardo of Taine's lectures on Art and Reinach's Apollo. But these later works estimate a glorious past. Mr. Wright defines an epoch. The whole subject of modern art is made clear. Modern art, to be sure, is an outgrowth of painting, but only in the sense that those who practise it have been painters. Modern art is really the new art of color. With painting, as we have always understood the term and as the academicians understand it, the new art has nothing to do. Hence the controversy. It was trying to affect the optics with sharp, clean color values, not to suggest recognizable objects taking position in space. But recently it has found its true medium—namely, light. Light is pure color.

But if the medium has been discovered, machines for projecting its sharp effects remain to be perfected. Wallace-Rimington's color-organ and Thomas Wilfred's clavilux are far from satisfactory. Furthermore, the new art will conform to the old standards that have been the same thru the ages. Enlarging his field of definition, Mr. Wright goes to the Chinese for a statement of these standards.

UNCHARTED

By JEANNE OLDFIELD POTTER

*There is a land of gold
Rimmed by a sea of light,
Never a day dar'ous cold,
Low hang the stars at night;
Evcu the young arc wise,
Evcu the old arc fair,
Time knows not where it lies,
Love has its dwelling there.*

*Jadc to the rainbow sca
Falls its beloved shore,
Land that is calling me,
Land that my Youth forswore;
How shall we find the place
Close to the sun's warm heart?
I who have known its grace,
Dcar, I have lost the chart.*

IT must in honesty be admitted that one approaches a book by Upton Sinclair with a certain degree of prejudice. He is an inveterate digger-up of grievances. He has generally a chip on his shoulder. His hand is more or less against every man because he has brought himself to believe that every man's hand is against him. It would come almost as a shock to find Mr. Sinclair praising anyone or anything which is held in good esteem by normal and kindly disposed people.

All this is by way of preamble to the few remarks we shall venture to make on his latest book "The Goose Step." Of course it is an exposé, this time of American colleges and universities. It is, perhaps, not without significance that he is his own publisher, which suggests that either he could not get another publisher to take his book or that he would not entrust it to another. Anyhow the poor people were notoriously no swordsmen, the aristocrat would return one fine morning as did the Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr, smirk, and say: "Monsieur le président, my excuses for being late. With them I bring those of Deputy Lagron. Our debate of yesterday has been settled . . . permanently!"

(Continued on page 99)

(Continued from page 32)

So the president, Monsieur le Chapelier, and the hulking Danton, went forth to find a master sword, and the sword they sought was that of one André Louis, alias André-Louis Moreau, assistant fencing-teacher in the Rue du Hazard. Chance had brought André here, and chance had made him a swordsman above all others. So when Chapelier, whom he remembered from Rennes, offered him the deputyship of the defunct Lagron, with the proviso that he should put Monsieur le Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr under ground, he accepted with a will.

So it came about that Scaramouche took his seat in the assembly, made his speech, and the first day was challenged to a duel by no less a person than the Chevalier de Chabrilane!

The next day bright and early, the erstwhile Scaramouche brought his regrets for lateness, and "likewise those of Monsieur de Chabrilane. Our debate of yesterday has been settled" . . . He smiled at Monsieur the Marquis, ". . . permanently!"

The nobles gasped. The gallery cheered. Moreau was the man of the hour; Moreau was the idol of the people.

Presently it befell Monsieur le Marquis to visit Gavillac to seek to soften the heart of Aline. Also it came to pass that Monsieur de Kercadiou, reading the official paper of the nobility, came to the item that one André-Louis Moreau had killed one and wounded four nobles in as many duels and days. He burst wildly into the room, where Monsieur le Marquis was being assured that he need no longer seek favor from Aline.

Monsieur de Kercadiou was a choleric soul, and he raved: "And I pray that André may soon meet a sword that will do to him as he has done to others! The scoundrel!"

Monsieur le Marquis bowed. "Your wish will doubtless come true. Tomorrow, we meet!"

Monsieur de Kercadiou began to feel very sick. But Aline hastened to stop the Marquis as he strode thru the hall. She would forget everything, she cried, she would marry him, if he would forego his duel with André. But scoundrel or no, he held

$1.00 Brings Your Choice

10 Months to Pay

XA38— Brilliant blue white diamond set in Sweet's Engagement Ring. $75

XA30— 7 diamond cluster, platinum set. Engraved white gold ring. $85

XA32— Engraved engagement ring set with perfectly cut diamond. $87.50

XA35— 7 diamond cluster, for men. White gold top, green gold shank. $85

XA36— Perfectly cut diamond hexagon set in platinum ring. $115

XA41— 7 diamond solitaire cluster, platinum set. 14K gold shank. $62.50

XA31— Blue white diamond. Engraved 18K white gold ring. $57.50

XA33— Superior quality diamond set in fancy 14K gold lavallière. $29.50

XA34— Perfectly cut diamond in fancy platinum ring. $85

XA37— Diamond set black onyx ring of 18K white gold. $25

XA39— Men's tooth ring with perfectly cut, sparkling diamond. $87.50

XA42— 14K gold rectangular shape wrist watch. Engraved bezel and dial. Sapphire jewel crown. 15J adjusted movement. Silk ribbon; white gold fittings. $28.50

XA39— Sparkling diamond Sweet's set in engagement ring. $40

XA40— Brilliant diamond set in 18K fancy white gold ring for men. $75

XA43— 7 diamond, platinum set cluster. 14K engraved gold ring. $55

XA44— Perfectly graduated, silk-strung SWEET pearls of silky sheen. 18K white gold clasp, set with perfectly cut diamond. Guaranteed. $22

FREE Upon Request

These worth while Xmas Gifts on our FRIENDLY CREDIT PLAN at less than cash prices. $1.00 here does the work of $5 elsewhere.

SENT FOR ONLY $1.00

Just think!—only $1.00 brings any article you select for your examination. After you have convinced yourself that it is an exceptional value, keep it and pay only 1/5th the price. Ten Months NEXT YEAR TO PAY THE BALANCE.

NO RED TAPE—NO DELAY

Special Xmas Service insures prompt shipment of all orders. All transactions strictly confidential.

EVERY DIAMOND GUARANTEED

ALL SWEET Diamonds are perfect cut, blue white, superior quality gems. You are protected on your diamond purchase with a GUARANTEE VALUE BOND. 7½% YEARLY INCREASE for exchange purposes!

"THE HOUSE OF QUALITY"

CAPITAL $1,000,000.

L.W. SWEET INC.

DEPT 493-T 1650-1660 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

honor highest, and sadly shook his head.

Next morning, André's door opened to Madame de Plougastel, who begged him to accept service with the King of Austria. She had, she faltered, known André's mother. But he only shrugged his shoulders and prepared to go. Hardly had she gone, when Aline appeared. She prayed him to forsake the duel, but he, thinking her concern was for the Marquis, thrust her off and hurried away. His cab far outstripped the coach of Mme. de Plougastel, which Aline had commandeered to stop the duel, and when the two women arrived, an iron door barred the way.

From within came the tinkle and clang of crossed rapiers, the thud of feet, a mutter of voices, then dead silence. The iron door opened and out of it staggered the Marquis, his sleeve in ribbons, his arm reddening slowly from a slight wound. With a cry that André was dead, Aline fainted into his arms.

And this was the tableau that greeted Scaramouche when he emerged unhurt and enraged at having merely wounded the Marquis instead of killing him. He stared, spun on his heel with an oath, and that night accepted service in the provinces for the Commune.

The sands of time sifted fast; Saint Antoine was a roar of ruffians, a rattle of knives; from the South came the men of Marseilles, dirty, dusty, dragging cannon, singing the new song of Rouget de Lisle. Paris rose on her oppressors, the streets ran black with blood, the Swiss guard died on the palace stair; the nobles died on the palace stair; and out of a mass of crumpled bodies crawled Monsieur le Marquis, beaten, broken, bleeding, but a fighting man to the end. He staggered into the house of Madame de Plougastel and fell fainting at the feet of Aline. The women were wild with fear. They had attempted to flee the city, and had found the barriers closed. They had sent their servant for succour, and he lay dead in a ditch. A mile away were the mob, killing, burning, hacking, mutilating, singing, bearing heads on pikes, the dregs of Paris, dancing La Carmagnole!

In Gavrillac, a stranger, flourishing the tricolor cockade, galloped into the inn yard, flung himself off his horse and strode toward the fire. Quintin de Kercadiou spun about to meet him.

"André! Aline and Madame de Plougastel are in Paris! You must save them."

"Aline, yes. But Mme. de Plou-

(Eighty-one)

Would You Think from this Photo that I Ever Weighed 200 Lbs?

By JESSICA PENROSE BAYLISS
(of Bryn Mawr, Penna.)

"I HAD just about all the avoirdufois I could carry around when I first heard of getting thin to music. I am only 5 ft. and 5 in. in height and not of large frame, and 191 lbs. made me positively conspicuous as you can well believe. It was beginning to tell on my arches; I had difficulty in walking any distance. Dancing became out of the question, and I had become a regular stay-at-home when a friend prevailed on me to try the much-talked-of reducing records.

"The first session with this method was a complete surprise. I had expected it would be something of a bore—the things I had tried in the past had all proved so. But the movements that first reducing record contained, the novel commands and counts, and the sparkling musical accompaniment made it extremely interesting. I used it for over a week for the sheer fun of doing it. I felt splendid after each day's 'lesson.' Even then I scarcely took the idea seriously. Surely, this new form of play could not be affecting my huge superfluity of flesh; it must have been ten or twelve days later that I weighed myself.

"I had lost eight pounds!

"No one had to urge me after that! I secured all five of the records and settled down in earnest to reduce. A week later the same scale said 174 lbs. Another week only showed a six pound loss; but the week following I had taken off nine more pounds.

"As I progressed in the lessons I found them growing more and more interesting, and each new and unique movement began improving my proportions in new places. The over-fleshiness at my neck was a condition I never dreamed could be affected by these methods, but it was; even the roll of fat that had foreshadowed a double-chin disappeared in time.

"In six weeks I was dancing, golfing and 'going' as of yore. I got another saddle horse. I started wearing clothes which did not have to sacrifice all style in an effort to conceal. And it is quite needless to say I was delighted and elated. At the end of nine weeks I weighed exactly 138 lbs.—a reduction of fifty-three pounds. I submit my experience in gratitude for what Wallace's wonderful records have done for me. I am humbled by the recollection of how I once fairly scoffed at the enthusiasm of others in what I deemed at the time a mere fad. I shudder to think that I might have remained indifferent to this method. Only a woman who has been over-whelmingly fleshly can appreciate what my new appearance and feelings mean to me. As for those who need reduce but a few pounds to make their figures what they would like them to be, it is pitiful to think that they do not know this easy way—or perhaps do not believe it."

What more can be said of reducing? Mrs. Bayliss' start was made with the full first lesson record which Wallace sent her without cost or obligation. The same offer is open to you. If you, too, do not see remarkable results in only a few days, don't keep the record, and don't pay Wallace anything. Why not use the coupon now?

PHOTO
BY DRURY

WALLACE, 630 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago (251)

Please send me FREE and POSTPAID for 5 days' free trial the original Wallace Reducing Record for my first reducing lesson. If I am not perfectly satisfied with the results, I will return your record and will neither owe you one cent nor be obligated in any way.

Name

Address

City..... State.....

Are your nails starved?

"Brittle nails and hang nails, that so mar the charm of the hands, are caused by lack of nourishment and often by the use of harmful cuticle 'removers'."

Every woman may now have pretty finger nails -- and she should; for well kept nails not only give charm to the hands, but are a mark of refinement by which one is often judged.

Flex-ol insures beautiful nails. It is a nourishing food tonic. A pleasant, easy-to-use lotion that is applied to the nails and finger tips, and allowed to remain, because it is beneficial. The tissues quickly absorb it and soon glow with the pink tints of health. Callous places, dead cuticle and painful hang nails disappear. The nails become flexible -- they no longer break easily. And take and hold the soft, pearl-like lustre so prized by gentlewomen.

Flex-ol is sold only by mail. It is made up fresh each day as the orders come in. A several months' supply costs only 65c. Super Nail Polish, a compact of rare fineness should be used to avoid irritating the delicate cuticle. Flex-ol and Super Nail Polish together, postpaid for $1.00. Thousands of users now testify to the great superiority and need for these preparations. Money refunded if you too are not "more than pleased" with the results. Address,

OSARK COMPANY, 501 Laurel, Arcadia, Mo

FLEX-OL

The Finger Nail Tonic

BLUE WHITE Luxite Diamond

If you can tell it from a Diamond Send it Back!

1 CARAT RINGS $2.98. Not one diamond in a thousand has the blue, dazzling brilliancy of "Luxite Diamonds." They're PERFECT; few diamonds are! Stand acid and all other tests. Only experts can tell you haven't paid $150.00. Hand engraved solitaire ring 14K gold $5. guaranteed!

$2.98 C.O.D.

DON'T SEND A PENNY! Send only name, address and paper strip which fits end to end around finger. When ring comes deposit only $2.98 with postman. We pay postage. Money back if not delighted.

Free Beautiful full-size BAR PIN, set with Luxite Diamonds, platinum finish, free with ring.

2839 ROSEVELT ROAD, Dept. 509-A, CHICAGO

A New Perfume

As a lover of rare perfumes, you will be charmed by the indescribable fragrance of Rieger's new creation--

Honolulu Bouquet

Perfume $1.00 per oz. Toilet water, 4 oz. $1.00. Talcum, 25c. At druggists or department stores.

Send 25c (silver or stamps) for generous trial bottle. Made by the originator of--

Rieger's

PERFUME & TOILET WATER

flower Drops

Flower Drops is the most exquisite perfume ever produced. Made without alcohol. Bottle with long glass stopper, containing enough for 6 months. Lily or Crabapple $1.60; Lily of the Valley, Rose or Violet $2.00. At druggists or by mail. Send 25c stamps for miniature bottle. Send $1.00 for Souvenir Box of five 25c bottles--5 different odors.

Paul Rieger & Co. (Since 1872) 183 First St., San Francisco

Send 25¢ for TRIAL BOTTLE

gastel has connections with Austria. I can do nothing for her!"

"But André! André!" The old man was nearly frantic. "She is your mother!"

Paris roared closer now. Aline heard them, André's mother heard them, the Marquis heard them. The door rattled, and as it flung open, Aline was in André's arms. The Marquis' pistol flashed in his hand, and André's was out of his sleeve, as Madame de Plougastel flung herself between them. "He . . . he is your son," she gasped to the Marquis.

And after that there is much to be told of the fortunes of André-Louis Moreau, of how he and the two women fled thru the city gates, cheered by the frantic admirers of Moreau, of how they settled down happily where the scars of revolution did not show; and of a certain Monsieur de la Tour d'Azyr, who disdaining safety with the son he had so persecuted, went out into the streets with his drawn sword, and died as he would have wished . . . fighting.

Questions and Answers

(Continued from page 19)

Talmadge is easily the Cræsus. She is wealthy in her own right; but her husband, Joseph Schenck, is an enormously rich man. He is the owner of the big Palisades Park in New Jersey. He is one of the big owners in Metro, a heavy owner in the West Coast Theater Company. In addition to which he is one of the owners of the Music Box Revue in New York, one of the dominating figures in the California banking world and an oil king. To Norma Talmadge, a hundred thousand dollars is small change.

THE QUESTION: Who is the most beautiful woman on the screen?

THE ANSWER: This is entirely a matter of individual opinion. Personally I think the choice lies between Florence Vidor and Madge Bellamy. Madge Bellamy is more beautiful off the screen than on; the reverse is true of Miss Vidor.

THE QUESTION: Who is most temperamental?

THE ANSWER: Is it Pola or Mabel Normand or Corinne Griffith? Well, it's this way: Mabel is the most undependable human being that ever lived. A director doesn't mean any more in her life than any impulsive little whim she happens to collide with. That's Mabel. Pola is different; she starts cyclones when things don't go to please her. Corinne Griffith is very young; very sensitive and very determined to have her own way--an appalling combination.

No. 8 $4.28
 No. 7 $3.68
 No. 4 $3.96
 No. 1 $2.84
 No. 5 $3.54
 No. 6 $3.68

GET THIS WONDERFUL RING. If You Can Tell It From a Genuine Diamond Send It Back

These amazing, beautiful CORODITE diamonds positively match genuine diamonds in every respect: blazing flash and dazzling play of living rainbow fire. They, alone, stand the diamond tests, including terrific acid test of direct comparison. Lifetime experts need all their experience to see any difference. Prove this yourself.

Wear a Corodite Diamond 7 Days Free

Make this test. You risk nothing. Wear a genuine Corodite and a diamond side by side on the same finger for 7 days. If you or your friends can tell the difference, send it back; you won't be out a single cent. That's fair enough. If you keep the ring, the price printed here is all you pay. No installments. Remember, Corodite alone have the same cutting as genuine stones.

No. 1—Ladies' Solitaire 14K Gold S. Ring . . . $2.84
 No. 4—Ladies' Hand-Carved Basket Setting, plat. finish $3.96
 No. 5—Ladies' Solitaire Bridal Blossom Engraved . . . $3.54
 No. 7—Gents' Heavy Belcher 14K Gold S. Ring . . . $3.68
 No. 8—Gents' Massive Hand-Carved Octagon Gypsy . . . $4.28

Carat size gems. Beautiful mountings of most modern design. Meticulous of gold or latest white metal finish. Unqualified 20-year guarantee. Handsome art-leather case free with each ring.

SEND NO MONEY Keep your money right at home. Just wanted and size as shown by slip of paper, fitting end to end around finger joint. Your ring will come by return mail. When ring arrives deposit amount shown above with postman. If you decide not to keep ring after 7 days' wear, send it back and your money will be immediately returned. Send today.

E. RICHWINE CO.
 19 W. Jackson Blvd., Dept. 847, Chicago, Ill.
 Sole Importers Genuine Corodite Diamonds

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, OF CLASSIC PUBLISHED MONTHLY at 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y., for OCTOBER 1st, 1923, State of NEW YORK, County of KINGS. Before me, a NOTARY PUBLIC in and for the State and County aforesaid, personally appeared EUGENE V. BREWSTER, having been duly sworn according to law, and deposes and says that he is the PRESIDENT of the CLASSIC and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in sections 1103, 1104, 1105, 1106, 1107, 1108, 1109, 1110, 1111, 1112, 1113, 1114, 1115, 1116, 1117, 1118, 1119, 1120, 1121, 1122, 1123, 1124, 1125, 1126, 1127, 1128, 1129, 1130, 1131, 1132, 1133, 1134, 1135, 1136, 1137, 1138, 1139, 1140, 1141, 1142, 1143, 1144, 1145, 1146, 1147, 1148, 1149, 1150, 1151, 1152, 1153, 1154, 1155, 1156, 1157, 1158, 1159, 1160, 1161, 1162, 1163, 1164, 1165, 1166, 1167, 1168, 1169, 1170, 1171, 1172, 1173, 1174, 1175, 1176, 1177, 1178, 1179, 1180, 1181, 1182, 1183, 1184, 1185, 1186, 1187, 1188, 1189, 1190, 1191, 1192, 1193, 1194, 1195, 1196, 1197, 1198, 1199, 1200, 1201, 1202, 1203, 1204, 1205, 1206, 1207, 1208, 1209, 1210, 1211, 1212, 1213, 1214, 1215, 1216, 1217, 1218, 1219, 1220, 1221, 1222, 1223, 1224, 1225, 1226, 1227, 1228, 1229, 1230, 1231, 1232, 1233, 1234, 1235, 1236, 1237, 1238, 1239, 1240, 1241, 1242, 1243, 1244, 1245, 1246, 1247, 1248, 1249, 1250, 1251, 1252, 1253, 1254, 1255, 1256, 1257, 1258, 1259, 1260, 1261, 1262, 1263, 1264, 1265, 1266, 1267, 1268, 1269, 1270, 1271, 1272, 1273, 1274, 1275, 1276, 1277, 1278, 1279, 1280, 1281, 1282, 1283, 1284, 1285, 1286, 1287, 1288, 1289, 1290, 1291, 1292, 1293, 1294, 1295, 1296, 1297, 1298, 1299, 1300, 1301, 1302, 1303, 1304, 1305, 1306, 1307, 1308, 1309, 1310, 1311, 1312, 1313, 1314, 1315, 1316, 1317, 1318, 1319, 1320, 1321, 1322, 1323, 1324, 1325, 1326, 1327, 1328, 1329, 1330, 1331, 1332, 1333, 1334, 1335, 1336, 1337, 1338, 1339, 1340, 1341, 1342, 1343, 1344, 1345, 1346, 1347, 1348, 1349, 1350, 1351, 1352, 1353, 1354, 1355, 1356, 1357, 1358, 1359, 1360, 1361, 1362, 1363, 1364, 1365, 1366, 1367, 1368, 1369, 1370, 1371, 1372, 1373, 1374, 1375, 1376, 1377, 1378, 1379, 1380, 1381, 1382, 1383, 1384, 1385, 1386, 1387, 1388, 1389, 1390, 1391, 1392, 1393, 1394, 1395, 1396, 1397, 1398, 1399, 1400, 1401, 1402, 1403, 1404, 1405, 1406, 1407, 1408, 1409, 1410, 1411, 1412, 1413, 1414, 1415, 1416, 1417, 1418, 1419, 1420, 1421, 1422, 1423, 1424, 1425, 1426, 1427, 1428, 1429, 1430, 1431, 1432, 1433, 1434, 1435, 1436, 1437, 1438, 1439, 1440, 1441, 1442, 1443, 1444, 1445, 1446, 1447, 1448, 1449, 1450, 1451, 1452, 1453, 1454, 1455, 1456, 1457, 1458, 1459, 1460, 1461, 1462, 1463, 1464, 1465, 1466, 1467, 1468, 1469, 1470, 1471, 1472, 1473, 1474, 1475, 1476, 1477, 1478, 1479, 1480, 1481, 1482, 1483, 1484, 1485, 1486, 1487, 1488, 1489, 1490, 1491, 1492, 1493, 1494, 1495, 1496, 1497, 1498, 1499, 1500, 1501, 1502, 1503, 1504, 1505, 1506, 1507, 1508, 1509, 1510, 1511, 1512, 1513, 1514, 1515, 1516, 1517, 1518, 1519, 1520, 1521, 1522, 1523, 1524, 1525, 1526, 1527, 1528, 1529, 1530, 1531, 1532, 1533, 1534, 1535, 1536, 1537, 1538, 1539, 1540, 1541, 1542, 1543, 1544, 1545, 1546, 1547, 1548, 1549, 1550, 1551, 1552, 1553, 1554, 1555, 1556, 1557, 1558, 1559, 1560, 1561, 1562, 1563, 1564, 1565, 1566, 1567, 1568, 1569, 1570, 1571, 1572, 1573, 1574, 1575, 1576, 1577, 1578, 1579, 1580, 1581, 1582, 1583, 1584, 1585, 1586, 1587, 1588, 1589, 1590, 1591, 1592, 1593, 1594, 1595, 1596, 1597, 1598, 1599, 1600, 1601, 1602, 1603, 1604, 1605, 1606, 1607, 1608, 1609, 1610, 1611, 1612, 1613, 1614, 1615, 1616, 1617, 1618, 1619, 1620, 1621, 1622, 1623, 1624, 1625, 1626, 1627, 1628, 1629, 1630, 1631, 1632, 1633, 1634, 1635, 1636, 1637, 1638, 1639, 1640, 1641, 1642, 1643, 1644, 1645, 1646, 1647, 1648, 1649, 1650, 1651, 1652, 1653, 1654, 1655, 1656, 1657, 1658, 1659, 1660, 1661, 1662, 1663, 1664, 1665, 1666, 1667, 1668, 1669, 1670, 1671, 1672, 1673, 1674, 1675, 1676, 1677, 1678, 1679, 1680, 1681, 1682, 1683, 1684, 1685, 1686, 1687, 1688, 1689, 1690, 1691, 1692, 1693, 1694, 1695, 1696, 1697, 1698, 1699, 1700, 1701, 1702, 1703, 1704, 1705, 1706, 1707, 1708, 1709, 1710, 1711, 1712, 1713, 1714, 1715, 1716, 1717, 1718, 1719, 1720, 1721, 1722, 1723, 1724, 1725, 1726, 1727, 1728, 1729, 1730, 1731, 1732, 1733, 1734, 1735, 1736, 1737, 1738, 1739, 1740, 1741, 1742, 1743, 1744, 1745, 1746, 1747, 1748, 1749, 1750, 1751, 1752, 1753, 1754, 1755, 1756, 1757, 1758, 1759, 1760, 1761, 1762, 1763, 1764, 1765, 1766, 1767, 1768, 1769, 1770, 1771, 1772, 1773, 1774, 1775, 1776, 1777, 1778, 1779, 1780, 1781, 1782, 1783, 1784, 1785, 1786, 1787, 1788, 1789, 1790, 1791, 1792, 1793, 1794, 1795, 1796, 1797, 1798, 1799, 1800, 1801, 1802, 1803, 1804, 1805, 1806, 1807, 1808, 1809, 1810, 1811, 1812, 1813, 1814, 1815, 1816, 1817, 1818, 1819, 1820, 1821, 1822, 1823, 1824, 1825, 1826, 1827, 1828, 1829, 1830, 1831, 1832, 1833, 1834, 1835, 1836, 1837, 1838, 1839, 1840, 1841, 1842, 1843, 1844, 1845, 1846, 1847, 1848, 1849, 1850, 1851, 1852, 1853, 1854, 1855, 1856, 1857, 1858, 1859, 1860, 1861, 1862, 1863, 1864, 1865, 1866, 1867, 1868, 1869, 1870, 1871, 1872, 1873, 1874, 1875, 1876, 1877, 1878, 1879, 1880, 1881, 1882, 1883, 1884, 1885, 1886, 1887, 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894, 1895, 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910, 1911, 1912, 1913, 1914, 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930, 1931, 1932, 1933, 1934, 1935, 1936, 1937, 1938, 1939, 1940, 1941, 1942, 1943, 1944, 1945, 1946, 1947, 1948, 1949, 1950, 1951, 1952, 1953, 1954, 1955, 1956, 1957, 1958, 1959, 1960, 1961, 1962, 1963, 1964, 1965, 1966, 1967, 1968, 1969, 1970, 1971, 1972, 1973, 1974, 1975, 1976, 1977, 1978, 1979, 1980, 1981, 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985, 1986, 1987, 1988, 1989, 1990, 1991, 1992, 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, 2020, 2021, 2022, 2023, 2024, 2025, 2026, 2027, 2028, 2029, 2030, 2031, 2032, 2033, 2034, 2035, 2036, 2037, 2038, 2039, 2040, 2041, 2042, 2043, 2044, 2045, 2046, 2047, 2048, 2049, 2050, 2051, 2052, 2053, 2054, 2055, 2056, 2057, 2058, 2059, 2060, 2061, 2062, 2063, 2064, 2065, 2066, 2067, 2068, 2069, 2070, 2071, 2072, 2073, 2074, 2075, 2076, 2077, 2078, 2079, 2080, 2081, 2082, 2083, 2084, 2085, 2086, 2087, 2088, 2089, 2090, 2091, 2092, 2093, 2094, 2095, 2096, 2097, 2098, 2099, 2100, 2101, 2102, 2103, 2104, 2105, 2106, 2107, 2108, 2109, 2110, 2111, 2112, 2113, 2114, 2115, 2116, 2117, 2118, 2119, 2120, 2121, 2122, 2123, 2124, 2125, 2126, 2127, 2128, 2129, 2130, 2131, 2132, 2133, 2134, 2135, 2136, 2137, 2138, 2139, 2140, 2141, 2142, 2143, 2144, 2145, 2146, 2147, 2148, 2149, 2150, 2151, 2152, 2153, 2154, 2155, 2156, 2157, 2158, 2159, 2160, 2161, 2162, 2163, 2164, 2165, 2166, 2167, 2168, 2169, 2170, 2171, 2172, 2173, 2174, 2175, 2176, 2177, 2178, 2179, 2180, 2181, 2182, 2183, 2184, 2185, 2186, 2187, 2188, 2189, 2190, 2191, 2192, 2193, 2194, 2195, 2196, 2197, 2198, 2199, 2200, 2201, 2202, 2203, 2204, 2205, 2206, 2207, 2208, 2209, 2210, 2211, 2212, 2213, 2214, 2215, 2216, 2217, 2218, 2219, 2220, 2221, 2222, 2223, 2224, 2225, 2226, 2227, 2228, 2229, 2230, 2231, 2232, 2233, 2234, 2235, 2236, 2237, 2238, 2239, 2240, 2241, 2242, 2243, 2244, 2245, 2246, 2247, 2248, 2249, 2250, 2251, 2252, 2253, 2254, 2255, 2256, 2257, 2258, 2259, 2260, 2261, 2262, 2263, 2264, 2265, 2266, 2267, 2268, 2269, 2270, 2271, 2272, 2273, 2274, 2275, 2276, 2277, 2278, 2279, 2280, 2281, 2282, 2283, 2284, 2285, 2286, 2287, 2288, 2289, 2290, 2291, 2292, 2293, 2294, 2295, 2296, 2297, 2298, 2299, 2300, 2301, 2302, 2303, 2304, 2305, 2306, 2307, 2308, 2309, 2310, 2311, 2312, 2313, 2314, 2315, 2316, 2317, 2318, 2319, 2320, 2321, 2322, 2323, 2324, 2325, 2326, 2327, 2328, 2329, 2330, 2331, 2332, 2333, 2334, 2335, 2336, 2337, 2338, 2339, 2340, 2341, 2342, 2343, 2344, 2345, 2346, 2347, 2348, 2349, 2350, 2351, 2352, 2353, 2354, 2355, 2356, 2357, 2358, 2359, 2360, 2361, 2362, 2363, 2364, 2365, 2366, 2367, 2368, 2369, 2370, 2371, 2372, 2373, 2374, 2375, 2376, 2377, 2378, 2379, 2380, 2381, 2382, 2383, 2384, 2385, 2386, 2387, 2388, 2389, 2390, 2391, 2392, 2393, 2394, 2395, 2396, 2397, 2398, 2399, 2400, 2401, 2402, 2403, 2404, 2405, 2406, 2407, 2408, 2409, 2410, 2411, 2412, 2413, 2414, 2415, 2416, 2417, 2418, 2419, 2420, 2421, 2422, 2423, 2424, 2425, 2426, 2427, 2428, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2432, 2433, 2434, 2435, 2436, 2437, 2438, 2439, 2440, 2441, 2442, 2443, 2444, 2445, 2446, 2447, 2448, 2449, 2450, 2451, 2452, 2453, 2454, 2455, 2456, 2457, 2458, 2459, 2460, 2461, 2462, 2463, 2464, 2465, 2466, 2467, 2468, 2469, 2470, 2471, 2472, 2473, 2474, 2475, 2476, 2477, 2478, 2479, 2480, 2481, 2482, 2483, 2484, 2485, 2486, 2487, 2488, 2489, 2490, 2491, 2492, 2493, 2494, 2495, 2496, 2497, 2498, 2499, 2500, 2501, 2502, 2503, 2504, 2505, 2506, 2507, 2508, 2509, 2510, 2511, 2512, 2513, 2514, 2515, 2516, 2517, 2518, 2519, 2520, 2521, 2522, 2523, 2524, 2525, 2526, 2527, 2528, 2529, 2530, 2531, 2532, 2533, 2534, 2535, 2536, 2537, 2538, 2539, 2540, 2541, 2542, 2543, 2544, 2545, 2546, 2547, 2548, 2549, 2550, 2551, 2552, 2553, 2554, 2555, 2556, 2557, 2558, 2559, 2560, 2561, 2562, 2563, 2564, 2565, 2566, 2567, 2568, 2569, 2570, 2571, 2572, 2573, 2574, 2575, 2576, 2577, 2578, 2579, 2580, 2581, 2582, 2583, 2584, 2585, 2586, 2587, 2588, 2589, 2590, 2591, 2592, 2593, 2594, 2595, 2596, 2597, 2598, 2599, 2600, 2601, 2602, 2603, 2604, 2605, 2606, 2607, 2608, 2609, 2610, 2611, 2612, 2613, 2614, 2615, 2616, 2617, 2618, 2619, 2620, 2621, 2622, 2623, 2624, 2625, 2626, 2627, 2628, 2629, 2

What Are You Doing About Your Superfluous Hair?

NOWADAYS no attractive girl will allow a single unwanted hair to blight her otherwise lovely appearance. Every dainty and refined woman the world over is removing her superfluous hair because it seriously detracts from her charm.

To have real charm one must have beauty and poise, and this is impossible with an ugly growth of embarrassing and unwanted superfluous hair.

However, most efforts to rid the millady of superfluous hair result in stronger growth, because the source of nourishment to the hair has not been affected, leaving the follicles to produce a more luxuriant growth just where it isn't wanted. No amount of purely external application can prevent increasing and coarser hair growth. All hair is dependent for life upon the secretions of the hair glands. KILRUTE Hair Destroyer has proven perfectly efficacious in cases of superfluous hair growth, not only by removing the hair, but by its power to penetrate and dry up this nourishment to the hair (wherever applied). The natural and inevitable result is starvation and death to the hair.

A Safe Treatment

"KILRUTE" Combination Treatment consists of a Powder which acts as an instant hair remover and a Lotion which devitalizes those parts which supply nourishment to the hair. It can be applied to the tenderest skin and is absolutely harmless.

Beautifier As Well

The elimination of all hair is not the only advantage of Kilrute for it not only brings the luxury of a hair destroyer at a low cost, but also brings a skin beautifier at no cost, as Kilrute Lotion is a wonderful skin beautifier as well as hair destroyer. "KILRUTE" thus assures the dainty and womanly way to unblighted charm.

Our Guarantee

If after trying the Kilrute Combination Treatment you find it is not as represented, return the unused portion to the dealer who sold it to you and the price will immediately be refunded. You risk nothing.

Men and Women With Superfluous Hair Soon a Rarity

Discriminating men and women of refinement are discarding former methods for this successful treatment for the elimination of unsightly hair growth, and because so many thousands are adopting the Kilrute method for destroying superfluous hair it is said, a man or woman with superfluous hair will soon be a rarity. Have you used it? If not, get a package of Kilrute today and end the annoyance of unsightly hair—don't delay another minute.

Write for our free book containing information on Kilrute and the Three Beauty Secrets, or call at our New York office for FREE DEMONSTRATION.

KILRUTE COMPANY,
Dept. 1012
247 West 72nd St., New York City

Nº 1 14K. WHITE GOLD FILLED 25 YEAR CASE FULL 6 JEWEL MOVEMENTS Nº 2

$6.75 $10.75
REGULAR $15.00 VALUE REGULAR $25.00 VALUE

Get this exquisite watch direct from the importer SAVE MORE THAN ONE HALF

Richly carved cases, beautiful hand made dials, sapphire crown Pure silk crossrain ribbon adjustable bracelet with engraved clasp. Movements stem wind and stem set, carefully adjusted and regulated. Shipped in beautiful gift case no extra charge. These watches are reliable time pieces.

SEND NO MONEY, Pay postman on arrival. Written guarantee with every watch, and if you are not more than delighted, return immediately we will refund your money. ELITE WATCH CO., 321 E'way, Dept. 10, New York

IS YOUR BEAUTY MASKED?

BEAUTYPEEL "Unmasks Your 'Hidden' Beauty." Creates beautiful complexion by removing tan, freckles, blemishes, pimples, blackheads, liver spots, wrinkles, acne, mnddy, oily skins. NON ACID (Patented) Lotion. Painless, harmless. Effects as... proofs and beauty tounding. Guaranteed. FREE book; write today. BEAUTYPEEL CO., Dept. 1202, EL PASO, TEX.

Foreign Films

(Continued from page 27)

ENGLAND

If England has yielded to the historical trend, it has done so less from necessity than from conviction. If in Germany history is a refuge, in England it is an opportunity, and the British producers have withdrawn to the past because for the moment it appears to present an artistic appeal superior to the lure of contemporary events. Tho abiding strictly by the historical convention in such a recent film as "The Virgin Queen," a very effective departure from the rule of uniformity is made in such a film as "Don Quixote," in which legend is given precedence to fact and in which the grotesque adventures of Spain's amiable hero are visualized to a world which knew him only thru translation. The task of presenting Sancho Panza, Don Quixote's faithful servitor, in a language intelligible to all nations has been entrusted to George Robey, England's great character actor, who will make his first screen appearance in this picture, under the patronage of the Stoll Film Company. Robey has until now remained one of the few great artists with a world reputation who has evaded the lure of the films and his capture is an event for the picture world.

Another departure, in which the historical yields to this æsthetic, is the Stoll production of "The Indian Love Lyrics," the immortal songs now familiar the world over. On this slender golden thread is woven a fabric of romance and beauty providing a gorgeous mantle for an aëry form, the screen recreating the pathos and tragedy of the poems, and revealing poetry to be as fertile a field for the film as art.

RUSSIA

A Russian film, actually produced in Russia, is a rare event, but if "The Disinherited" is an example of what can be done in the heart of that enigmatic country, it is a pity that more pictures are not forthcoming. The story itself is Danish, founded on the novel of A. Madelung, but the incidents dealt with are a dramatic phase of Russian life in the days of the Czar. The picture was made by C. P. Dreyer, the Swedish producer, and among the artists appearing in the principal rôles are Mme. Piechowska, of the Korcha Theater, Moscow; V. Gaidaroff and R. Boleslawsky, of the Stanislawsky Theater; and J. Duvan-Torzoff, of the Drama Theater of Kiev. The adventure involved in the making of the picture makes almost as interesting a narrative as the

Make Your Little Girl Happy with an

Add-a-pearl
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
NECKLACE

The family and friends will keep it growing

Additional pearls for the Add-a-pearl necklace are sold only on this card

ASK YOUR JEWELER

Free—To Try
Send for Trial Bottle

Don't Be Gray

When I can stop it

To let gray hair spoil your looks, by making you seem old, is so unnecessary when Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer will bring back the original color surely and safely. Very easily applied—you simply comb it through the hair. No greasy sediment to make your hair sticky or stringy, nothing to wash or rub off—just beautiful, natural, becoming hair.

My Restorer is a clear, colorless liquid, clean as water. No danger of streaking or discoloration, restored color is even and natural in all lights. Faded or discolored hair restored just as successfully and naturally as gray hair.

Mail Coupon Today

Send today for the special patented Free Trial package which contains a trial bottle of Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer and full instructions for making the convincing test on one lock of hair. Indicate color of hair with X. Print name and address plainly. If possible, enclose a lock of your hair in your letter.

FREE TRIAL COUPON

Please print your name and address
Mary T. Goldman,
37-P Goldman Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Please send your patented Free Trial Outfit. X shows color of hair. Black..... dark brown..... medium brown..... auburn (dark red)..... light brown..... light auburn (light red)..... blonde.....

Name.....
Street..... City.....

REGAL Pearls with Genuine Diamond Set Solid Gold Clasp—Only $4.88!

Money Back Guarantee

You do not risk a penny. Our binding legal guarantee in writing to refund your money in full is attached to every strand of Regal Pearls we sell. You must be absolutely satisfied.

A Mighty Bargain

World famous Regal Pearls at a price that seems a pittance compared to their real value ($18.00 Retail List Price). Regal Pearls are made in France where they have mastered the art of creating the finest synthetic Gems. Matching all the delicate beauty of Genuine Oriental Pearls, their exquisite colorings and soft blending tones, produce a rich luminous sheen and lustre that no other but real Oriental Pearls possess. This beautiful necklace is 24 inches long and fastened with a Solid White Gold Safety Catch set with a Genuine Diamond. Regal Pearls are guaranteed indestructible. Blows, heat, cold, water or perspiration do not dim their magnificent beauty. They will not crack, peel, chip or discolor. This sensational low price was made possible only by the low gold value of the "Franc" and a tremendous Spot Cash purchase. Send your order at once before our present supply is exhausted. An exquisite gift.

Send No Money Keep your money right at home. Just send name and address. Pearls will come by return mail. Pay postman only $4.88 plus a few pennies postage. Our Money Back Guarantee protects you.

FREE!

With every strand of Regal Pearls, a rich and costly Royal Blue Art Leather Silk and Velvet lined gift case, beautifully embossed in gold.

E. RICHWINE CO., 19 W. Jackson Blvd., Dept. 841, CHICAGO

Christmas Cards from the Stars!

DO SCREEN STARS put anything of their personality into their season's greetings?

DO THEY DESIGN lovely cards themselves and compose their own poetic messages?

ASPREAD OF SEVERAL PAGES of reproductions of the cards that silversheet actors send each year in greeting will appear in the JANUARY MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE. They will give you as much pleasure as tho you had received a personal card from your favorite star.

In
J
A N
U
A
R
Y

In
J
A N
U
A
R
Y

Motion Picture Magazine

Wally's Last Word

AN EXCLUSIVE STORY by Charles A. Post, Wally's best friend, in whose arms he died. It is not of the happy-go-lucky Wally, but of the Wallace Reid with whom Post tramped the hills by day making the fight; of the Wallace Reid who found only emptiness in fame and fortune.

THIS ISSUE IS FULL OF CHRISTMAS FEATURES as intensely interesting, as intriguing as any gaily wrapped Christmas package. Among its surprises are: the first instalment of "Thistledown," a six-part serial, by Dana Gatlin; an unusually beautiful folio of cinema stars; gossip, more intimate and chatty than ever, by the Editor, and articles in plenty.

film itself. As the story deals with the tyrannical methods of the Czar, the Soviet authorities granted permission to the producer to film the actual localities mentioned in the novel, thinking that the picture would be excellent propaganda for the Soviets. However, when the picture was almost finished, the authorities observed that the producer was more interested in art than in propaganda, that the tragedy was being presented without any attempt to spoil it by intruding politics. They thereupon withdrew permission for further filming. But by then the better part of the picture had already been made, and the negative was slipped out of the country before the Soviets could lay hands on it, the few remaining scenes being taken in a Warsaw studio.

"The Disinherited" reveals the ugly machinery of tyranny, in which, whenever the existence of that tyranny is being threatened by enlightening influences, the lowest and meanest instincts of hatred and brutality are deliberately aroused by the dark influences serving the tyrant, so that the cause of liberty is forgotten in the exercise of these hatreds and brutalities. Despite the intensesness of the emotions which dominate the story, the acting is characterized by a masterly restraint and a well-marked tempo not often seen in other European productions, and those who have had the opportunity of estimating the talent of Russian actors thru the Stanislavsky troupe and the Balieff artists on their visit to America will have cause, after seeing the superb workmanship of their countrymen in "The Disinherited," to regret that the Russians have thus far played such a minor rôle in the advancement of screen art.

The Powers Behind the Screen

(Continued from page 20)

had been back in the old nickelodeon days, the days when he plead with the General Film for a chance—an exhibitor.

He was at this game until the summer of 1921 when he realized that there were more theater seats in the country than there were people willing to fill them.

Exhibitors, too, had begun to object violently to competition in their end of the game from a man they thought should devote his talents to producing and distribution. Gracefully, Zukor yielded. He began selling theaters that had ceased to pay.

The exhibitors' own organization, the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, representing thousands of theaters in forty states, next turned its attention to First National and thru its executive officers was in the process of delivering itself of a number of disagreeable comments when the picture world, abruptly, forgot all this family bickering. For a time they had eyes and ears for nothing save the Federal Trade Commission's bolt from the blue.

With a suddenness that startled Broadway, the newspapers printed the Commission's charge that the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, Paramount, Adolph Zukor, et al., had been operating in restraint of trade and violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. Hearings on this charge took place this year, but at the time the effect of all this was in turn as nothing compared to the fear of censorship which grew slowly, but surely—so surely that soon it overshadowed all other considerations.

More than any other business of like proportions the theater is dependent upon the whim, the caprice of the public, and censorship threatened box-office revenues.

The impetus which had brought it to such amazing and paralyzing proportions, of course, had its source in a real complaint. Fly-by-night producers had offered the public films with an indefensible moral tone, and, as a result, the whole industry had to suffer, but the real objection to censorship is not the obvious one.

As has been made clear before, the obvious objections can be sustained and have been, times without number. Censorship is sectional and local. Its ridiculous whimsies, however, are practised on the finished film.

What the menace of it did to the film in the process of manufacture or conception—this is what kept the officials of Famous, First National, Metro, Universal, Fox, Pathé, this is what kept Zukor, Laemmle, Rowland, De Mille, Brunet and Kane awake nights. This is what mattered.

Because of it, story writers, directors and actors were in the grip of a deadly fear. It had them by the throat. It paralyzed their initiative. It kept them from doing new things, from attempting anything unusual, however innocent, for fear of what some wild duck of morality, in charge of some backwoods' board of censorship, might think. Naturally, they stuck to the old stand-bys.

But the public was wearying of the old stand-bys. It knew them by heart. It could guess what was coming. Uneducated, as yet, to the point of holding the censor and censorship responsible, it began, more and more, to stay away from the theater.

$100 Brings You Any of these Beautiful Xmas Gifts

Positively the biggest Xmas offer ever made! Send a dollar—mention gift desired. That's all. We ship at once. All shipping charges prepaid. If satisfied pay 10% monthly. Otherwise return and we refund deposit! Do your Xmas shopping NOW! RUSH YOUR DOLLAR TODAY!

BUY NOW! Pay As You Please

FREE CATALOG
 These wonderful values are only a few of the thousands offered in the Big Beautiful Bale Blue Book! 72 pages of America's Best Values, in Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry, Pearls, Ivory-ware, Silverware, Cameras and Thousands of other Gift Suggestions. Buy NOW! PAY AS YOU PLEASE!
 Cash or YOUR OWN TERMS (within reason) most liberal credit offer ever made. Send for FREE copy TODAY! Dept. CL.

O.F. Bale & Co. EST. 1888
 21-23 Maiden Lane New York

DIAMONDS and other Xmas Gifts

Send No Money On Credit
10 Days' Free Trial

$5 down and only $2 a month for any of these three rings.

X46—Handsome richly carved 18k. white gold onyx ring set with perfect cut blue white diamond. $25.00

X32—Solid 18k. white gold ring set with perfect cut blue white diamond $22.50

X36—Perfect cut blue white diamond. 18k. white gold ring set with pierced ring. $25.00

$10 down and only $1 a week for any of these six rings.

X84—18k. white gold perfect cut blue white quality diamond $50.00

X76—18k. white gold two perfect cut blue white diamonds one square sapphire $42.50

X38—Seven blue white diamonds set in PLATINUM. Green gold 14k ring. $52.50

X92—Man's 14k. green gold ring 18k. white gold top. Perfect cut blue white diamond. $57.50

X66—Two blue white perfect cut diamonds one sapphire 18k white gold ring. $50.00

X94—Artistic 18k. white gold ring. Perfect cut blue white diamond. Rare beauty $48.50 $15 down and only $1.50 a week for any of these three rings.

X20—White diamonds. PLATINUM set 18k. white gold ring. $77.50

X90—Engagement ring. 14k. yellow gold. Perfect cut blue white diamond. $75.00

X44—18k. white gold ring. Perfect cut blue white diamond. $73.50

X48—Solid PLATINUM ring. Five perfect cut blue white diamonds. $125.00 $25.00 down—$2.50 weekly.

X64—Engagement ring. 18k. white gold engraved. Perfect cut blue white diamond. $100.00. $20. down—$2 weekly

X72—Solid PLATINUM ring. 5 perfect cut blue white diamonds. Four sapphires $135 $25.00 down—$3 weekly.

X68—Solid 14k. white gold case. Sapphire crown. Fancy dial. Adjusted 15 jewel movement. Guaranteed time-piece. Very dainty. $25. $5 down—$2 a month.

Send No Money Buy on credit as others do. Simply send your name and address and we will send ring or watch you select. Only if satisfied make first payment down. If after 10 days' trial you are not in every way satisfied, return to us and receive your money back immediately. You take no risk. Transactions confidential. Guarantee Bond with each purchase.

FREE Write for Xmas Catalog. Latest designs in quality jewelry at lowest prices and most liberal credit terms ever offered. Diamonds, watches, jewelry, silverware, ivory and amber toilet sets, wedding rings, etc. Prices from $10 to $1000. Large and choice variety. No promises made that are not lived up to. Our prompt and efficient service has earned us thousands of satisfied customers. If you do not see what you want here, do not order your Xmas Gifts until you send for our beautiful catalog.

Established 1890. Write Dept. E-25

BAER BROS. Co.
6 MAIDEN LANE - NEW YORK

When I Come Back (Continued from page 23)

do not forget that. After all, who is this Valentino that he should lord it over others?

And so I do not let my head be turned. And that is harder than you think . . . so many letters I get . . . such crowds came to watch us dance . . . such mobs of people staring . . . but I cannot forget that once, I was nobody.

Valentino smiles once more and when he smiles, it is like the sun coming out. This man is proper stuff. He has the wisdom of lessons learned, the humanity of hardships endured, the philosophy that comes of experienced facts, and the intelligence—far more intelligence than he is popularly credited with—formed of those other attributes.

I shall be again the romantic lover. It is what I can do best and it is what most people want. I do not mean the matinee-idol type. Heaven forbid! But romance and drama are what most lives lack and I shall try to supply it. And above all I shall try to be human, understandable. I shall play characters that may be made comprehensible to everyone. I want my own ability tested. I want to act life, to create characters, to move an audience, not just to pose. I have kept my ear to the ground, I have studied, I have consulted hundreds, and best of all I have thought, and now I believe I know the thing that universally appeals to people. I promise to give it to them.

Our Boulevardier Steps Out (Continued from page 78)

She is to get a percentage. The European papers have raged at the report that this child was to get this fortune.

* * *

Frank Mayo is to take the rôle in "Wild Oranges" that James Kirkwood had to vacate when a fall from his horse so nearly killed him. I understand that Kirkwood and Lila Lee, his wife, are to appear in the same picture very soon at the Thomas H. Ince studio.

* * *

Patsy Ruth Miller is an indignant young lady. She returned the other day from San Francisco where she had been working in Victor Seastrom's "The Judge and the Woman" and looked forward to a vacation. Her train got in at seven; at ten she was on the way back to San Francisco to appear with Douglas MacLean in "The Yankee Consul."

Learn PHOTOPLAY Writing

John Emerson Anita Loos

From John Emerson and Anita Loos, two of the world's most famous, most successful, highest paid screen writers. They have written photoplays for Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Constance and Norma Talmadge, Madge Kennedy, Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Lionel Barrymore, Blanche Sweet, Henry Walthal, Mae Marsh and other stars, and for Griffith, Ince, Sennett, Zukor, Paramount, Famous Players and other producers.

Study Under Recognized Authorities

Let these two masters of screen technique, continuity and satire—Emerson and Loos—give you a careful systematic training in writing and selling scenarios. Exactly the practical, comprehensive, thorough, teachable course in Photoplay Writing you have wanted— at moderate cost. Teaches you every angle— correction and criticism of your lessons as you proceed. Not merely some printed matter.

Send Today for Free Book

Millions paid yearly to screen writers. Big increasing demand for good screen stories. Why not make this a profitable side-line for you? Costs nothing to investigate. Write today for FREE BOOK—"Photoplay Writing." Special Low Rate and Profit Sharing Plan. (No agents.)

LAIRD EXTENSION INSTITUTE
Dept. 530, 126 E. 54th St., N. Y. City

PERSONAL APPEARANCE

is now more than ever the key-note of success. Bow-Legged and Knock-Kneed men and women, both young and old, will be glad to hear that I have now ready for market my new appliance, which will successfully straighten, within a short time, bow-leggedness and knock-kneed legs, safely, quickly and permanently, without pain, operation or discomfort. Will not interfere with your daily work, being worn at night. My new "Lim-Straitner," Model 18, U. S. Patent, is easy to adjust; its result will save you soon from further humiliation, and improve your personal appearance 100 per cent.

Write today for my free copyrighted physiological and anatomical book which tells you how to correct bow and knock-kneed legs without any obligation on your part. Enclose a dime for postage.

M. TRILETY, SPECIALIST
622-L, Ackerman Building, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

WHY ENVY OTHERS?

You can now own this superb watch

Through enormous purchases we can offer superb watches at absurdly low prices. High grade timekeepers and prettiest watches imaginable. You can't get better looking ones for more money. First is a Ladies' Watch of beautiful 14k White Gold filled (very popular) 25 year guarantee; elegantly carved tonneau case; imported 6 jewel movement; clean-cut hand made dial with distinct figures; sapphire crown. Attractive grosgrain ribbon with clasp. Guaranteed fully for one year. Price only $6.75

You can secure this watch with latest style rectangular case and rectangular movement for only $11.75

Send No Money. We Prepay Postage. Pay postman. Money back if not O. K. These are selling so fast that we cannot guarantee to hold offer open indefinitely. These are good time-keepers. ORDER NOW

Precious Wares Co.
ART JEWELRY
389 FIFTH AVE., DEPT. 5212
NEW YORK, N.Y.

A Happy Young Man
(Continued from page 65)

young man. Then Miss Fontanne walked across the stage. Just like that, walked across the stage. And that was, then and there, the total collapse, the complete emotional annihilation of the whole-hearted young man. He felt as tho the very foundations of the theater were under his feet. He felt as tho the heavens and all the stars had fallen to upon his head. He couldn't walk very steadily and he dared not attempt words of more than one syllable. "So this is Love!" is what he said to his arrested heart.

They planned, however, that despite the falling of the seven heavens upon them, they would not marry until each one, individually, had made good. Shortly thereafter Mr. Lunt "did" Booth Tarkington's "Clarence," which put him into Class I A, and very shortly after that Miss Fontanne did "Dulcy," which made them about even as to dramatic score.

They married . . . and they expect to live happily ever after!

Mr. Lunt admitted with a slight upraising of his volatile eyebrows that he knows there are marriages which do not last, happiness that unhappily deteriorates with time and wear. "but," he says, "we have such a wonderful time together!"

Also, they have a sense of humor. More, they have two senses of humor, which you will know, without being told if you were fortunate enough to see "Clarence" and "Dulcy." A sense of humor is the best ballast I know for matrimonial success and two senses of humor ought to be a ninety-nine-year lease of conjugal contentment.

What they would like to do, this happy twain, is to play together on the stage and perhaps, too, on the screen. They recently made a picture together and enjoyed doing it so enormously that Mr. Lunt believes the Public will enjoy it, too. As a matter of fact, he rather believes that the Public likes to see husband and wife playing together rather than the reverse and he would appreciate some points of view along this line.

Taking him by and large, Mr. Lunt is a very delightful young man. He has a trace of "Clarence," an atmosphere of the West he comes from, a necessary dash of New York sophistication and the theater, and an attraction which is completely unique. One could not classify him with any of the popular favorites. He is no kin of Valentino nor of Barthelme, no shade of Charlie Ray or Douglas Fairbanks. He is essentially and entirely Alfred Lunt.

(Eighty-seven)

Free
Booklet &
Sample Lessons

Stop Wondering How I Teach Piano
I'll Show You, FREE!

Year after year you've seen my advertisement in all the leading publications, offering to teach you piano in quarter the usual time. Year after year my school has grown and grown until now I have far more students than were ever before taught by one man. In 1922 over two thousand students graduated from my Piano or Organ course and received their diplomas.

Yet when I first started giving piano and organ lessons by mail in 1891 my method was laughed at. Could my conservatory have grown as it has, obtained students in every State of the Union and, in fact, practically every civilized country of the world, unless it produced very unusual and satisfying RESULTS for its students? See for yourself what it is that has brought my method so rapidly to the front. Write for free booklet and sample lessons.

Now, for the first time, you can obtain sample lessons without charge. In the past, I have always been opposed to sending out free lessons, even to persons who were seriously interested in my course. But my friends have insisted that I give everybody a chance to see for themselves just how simple, interesting and DIFFERENT my lessons are, and I have consented to try the experiment for a short time. Simply mail the coupon below or write a postcard, and the 64-page booklet and sample lessons will go to you at once and without obligation.

Within four lessons you will play an interesting piece on the piano or organ, not only in the original key, but in all other keys as well. Most students practise months before they acquire this ability. It is made possible by my patented invention, the Colorotone.

Another invention, obtainable only from me, is my hand-operated moving picture device, Quinn-dex. By means of Quinn-dex you actually see my fingers in motion on the piano, and can learn just how to train your own fingers.

When I say that I can teach you piano in quarter the usual time, do not think that this is too good to be true. Modern inventions and improved methods have accomplished just as great wonders in other branches of education. You at least owe it to yourself to investigate. Send coupon or postcard at once, before the offer of free sample lessons is withdrawn.

QUINN
Conservatory
Studio, MI-71
598 Columbia Road
Boston, 25, Mass.

Name.....
Address.....

SEND NO MONEY CHOOSE YOUR WATCH

Your choice of the three most Popular and Fashionable wrist watches sold today at prices that save you half. Cased in the latest products of leading American Watch Case Makers. Artistically engraved and polished—positively warranted.

14K WHITE GOLD

Filled and guaranteed for 25 years. The movements are carefully timed, tested and adjusted. All have Six Ruby Jewels and One Sapphire Crown Jewel. They are fitted with beautifully engraved Silver Metal Dials. Each is remarkably accurate time-keeper that you will be proud to wear. Every watch comes complete with heavy Silk Ribbon and Snap in a handsome Art Leather Velvet Lined Presentation Case.

No. 4M—Fashionable Maximo Tonneau Shape..... $ 6.86
No. 6R—Small Narrow Rectangular Case and Movement..... $11.82
No. 9T—Small Narrow Oval Case and Movement..... $11.82

Send No Money Keep your money right at home, just send your name, address and number of watch wanted. When your watch comes by return mail, pay the postman amount shown above. You do not risk a single penny as our Binding Written Guarantee to refund all your money if you are not fully satisfied is attached to every watch. Send today.

E. RICHWINE COMPANY
19 W. Jackson Blvd., Dept. 845, Chicago, Ill.

$3 Brings you a Genuine UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITER

10 DAYS FREE TRIAL Your $3.00 unconditionally returned if at end of 10 days you are not satisfied with this late model UNDERWOOD typewriter rebuilt by the famous Shipman Ward process.

GREAT PRICE SAVING Direct to you from the largest typewriter factory in the world by our money saving method.

EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS So small that you will not notice it when you enjoy the use of this wonderful machine.

FREE BOOK OF FACTS Explaining Shipman Ward's wonderful system of rebuilding typewriters and also valuable information about the typewriter industry both instructive and entertaining.

Act Today! Mail Coupon 5 Year Guarantee

Shipman Ward Mfg. Company
2039 Shipman Building
Montrose & Ravenswood
Aves., Chicago

Name.....
St. and No.....
City..... State.....

Please send me a copy of your free book of facts, explaining bargain offer.

Eyes that Tantalize

No wonder women envy them—those clear, sparkling EYES that lure and tantalize. For men have ever paid homage to such EYES. They are the EYES of which the poet wrote, "Man's destiny lies in a woman's EYES."

If you would have magnetic EYES, use Murine night and morning. This refreshing lotion adds new beauty to the EYES—makes them brighter and more compelling.

Murine clears the whites of the EYES, intensifies their natural color, and imparts a most alluring sparkle. It's good for the EYES—contains no belladonna or any other harmful ingredient.

Our attractively illustrated book, "Beauty Lies Within the Eyes," tells how to properly care for your Eyes, Brows and Lashes, and thus enhance their beauty. Send for a copy of this helpful book. It's FREE.

The Murine Company
Dept. 23, Chicago

MURINE FOR YOUR EYES

All the other gifts are forgotten when they see how easy it is to coax those joyful Yuletide tunes out of the melodious Hohner!

HOLIDAY HARMONY

"There is no music you enjoy like the music you make yourself." That's as true of your friends as it is of you. Give them Hohners for Christmas—no other gift at the price will give half the pleasure. The Hohner is a whole orchestra in itself—it makes real music—sweet, tuneful, delightful music. Anybody can learn to play it in an hour. Ask the dealer for the Hohner Free Instruction Book; if he is out of them, write "M. Hohner, New York." Hohner Harmonicas are sold everywhere; 50c. up.

"Own Your Own Hohner"

HOHNER HARMONICAS

Getting Married and Unmarried!

(Continued from page 62)

an interesting aspect. I began to sympathize.

There is no denying that the present conflicting divorce laws of the various states are an awful mess and that a great need of the nation today is some uniform measure. But one cannot help thinking that were people required to think more sanely before getting married, there would be fewer of them wanting to get unmarried.

Anyway, I think the court of first and last appeals should be at home. I once knew a couple who, however bitterly they quarreled, at night kissed and made up, so that should anything happen to either before another day, the other should not have to go thru life with the terrible shadow of harbored bitterness burning in his or her soul. I think a general practice of this rule, of not allowing differences to grow and grow, but to forgive, would materially lessen the number of divorces.

There are things a man and woman should consider when getting married, for instance:

A man is most easily managed when he is managed unwittingly. A man should not hide all his faults and deny his wife the pleasure of reforming him. Too often courtship ends with marriage, where it should really begin. A cynic might remark, at least it will keep them in practice. Love and let love—take its course.

Why Do People Get Divorces?

(Continued from page 63)

be petted, and when he wishes to be the strong oak to which she clings for support. Too many wives regard their husbands in the light of an old shoe, which is always the same, and men do not like to be classed with outworn pedal adornments.

Husbands, on the other hand, very often and too often, do not consider that a wife has a mind of her own, that she thinks and has ideas. She does not like these ideas always to be scorned as the wild fancies of some inferior being, incapable of thinking or acting for herself any more than she likes to have them treated with the condescending tolerance with which one treats the immature ideas of a child. She likes to be a baby to her husband at times, true, but there are other times when she must be taken seriously.

Therefore, it would seem that a possible cure for many matrimonial ills is understanding and tolerance.

Now Only $1.98

The Famous Book of Etiquette

An Amazing Bargain—Nearly Half-Million Sold at $3.50—Special Limited Offer at Only $1.98. Send Your Order Now

THE Book of Etiquette needs no introduction. It is the recognized authority on the subject among people of culture, refinement and good breeding everywhere. It covers every phase of proper conduct and manners—at the wedding, dance, dinner, on the street, in the theatre—at all places and at all times. Nothing is omitted. It saves you from distressing embarrassments which arise at the most unexpected moments—gives you delightful ease, poise, confidence in yourself.

Nearly 500,000 people have paid the regular publisher's price of $3.50 for this wonderful 2-volume social guide. Only an unusual lull in the book business has prompted the publishers to make this extraordinary short-time reduction in price. When the orders reach a certain number, this offer will be immediately withdrawn.

Send No Money

Drop us a line—a postcard will do—and the famous two-volume Book of Etiquette will be mailed at once in plain carton. Pay the postman only $1.98 (plus a few cents postage) and the books are yours. But remember, this remarkable offer may be withdrawn at any moment. So don't delay. Send your order now. If for any reason you are not satisfied, return the books within 5 days and your $1.98 will be promptly refunded.

NELSON DOUBLEDAY, Inc.

Dept. 8212

Garden City, N. Y.

BE A RAILWAY TRAFFIC INSPECTOR

Earn Up to $250 Per Mo., Expenses Paid

Position Guaranteed to you or money refunded. Enter this fascinating, uncrowded profession. Many opportunities to meet big railway officials; advancement rapid. Travel or remain near home; healthful, steady, outdoor work.

GUARANTEE

Our guarantee states that tuition will be refunded to you if, upon graduation, position is not obtained, paying at least $110, per month and expenses.

How You Can Prepare

Any average man can qualify in 3 months' spare-time study at home. Easy to understand. Upon graduation, we get you a position as per Guarantee Notice. You take no risk!

Must Train More Men!

Hundreds of positions to be filled. Decide now to get particulars; a wonderful opportunity. Send coupon today.

Standard Business Training Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Send me, entirely free, Booklet No. D-59 giving full particulars about course in Railway Traffic Inspection.

Standard Business Training Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Name.....
Street.....
City.....

(Eighty-eight)

The Movie Encyclopædia

(Continued from page 74)

lady. In other words, she is true blue. Lloyd Hughes was born in Bisbee, Arizona, in 1899. He is six feet and weighs one hundred and fifty.

SUNNY—The best is the cheapest in the end. Yes, in the beginning too. No, Gaston Glass is not married. "Mad Love" was made in Europe. Yes, Antonio Moreno married Mrs. Daisy Canfield Danziger.

GLADYS M.—And now to think that your favorite, Lew Cody, is to play in "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model." You just wait. You might write to Mrs. Wallace Reid at Beverly Hills, Los Angeles, Cal. So you would like to see a picture of me. How about the one up above.

DAISY FACE KENNEDY.—So you think I am a model young man. Well I don't drink, smoke or swear, but I do profess to be over thirty-eight. Robert Agnew is twenty-four. Marie Prevost is twenty-five and she is playing in "The Wanters." Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. is playing in "Stephen Steps Out."

A COUNTRY LASS.—And so it is. Happiness is the shadow of man; remembrance of it follows him; hope of it precedes him. No, Carlyle Blackwell is only thirty-five and he is not married right now. Betty Compson in "The Royal Oak" taken in England, and she is twenty-six.

MARIE ANTOINETTE.—I am glad you like the CLASSIC. Well it is so cold here that words freeze in your mouth. Sometimes the sidewalks are covered with conversations and we have to take them in the house and put them in the oven to thaw before we can tell what we are talking about. They say that down in Texas it is now so hot that they have to feed the hens cracked ice to prevent them laying hard-boiled eggs. That's a nifty! Yes, Reginald Denny played in "The Abysmal Brute." Bebe Daniels in twenty-two. Niles Welch is married to Dell Boone. Don't mention it.

FILLUM FAN.—So am I. No, I am not Freddie nor Percy of the Hall room boys. I haven't any such fancy name. Conway Tearle is forty-three. Yes, married to Adele Rowland.

WINONA.—However rare true love, true friendship is rarer. Yes, Ramon Novarro played in "Rupert of Hentzau." Herbert Rawlinson is thirty-eight. Kenneth Harlan is at the Schulberg Productions, 3800 Mission Road, Los Angeles, Cal. Huntley Gordon in "Blue Beard's Eighth Wife."

OLIVE E.—So Constance Talmadge is your favorite. Bebe Daniels is five feet five.

HELENE B. O. B.—Coming events cast their shadows before us. Yes, I can stand it, fire away. Rodolph Valentino has signed with the Ritz-Carlton Productions, and I don't believe his first picture has been selected. See you later.

JACQUELINE N.—Thanks for the information. No, R. C. stands for Robertson Cole and not Ritz Carlton. J. Warren Kerrigan in "The Man From Brodney" for Vitagraph. No, Theda Bara has never played in the "Hunchback of Notre Dame." What are you trying to do, tease your poor old Answer Man. Francis Bushman and his charming wife, Beverly Bayne, in "Under Suspicion." That's the way it goes sometimes.

VIRGINIA.—Well a thought entering the mind will be welcomed or banished—according to the character of the mind. Tom Moore is playing in "Big Brother." Yes,

Ethel Clayton, Photoplay Star, one of the many famous American Beauties who know the value of "MAYBELLINE"

Maybelline

Adds Wonderful Charm, Beauty and Expression to Any Face

More than all else, well defined eyebrows and luxuriant lashes create the beauty and expression of your face. The slight darkening, the accentuation of line and shadow, in the secret. Instantly and unfailingly the eyes appear larger, deeper and more brilliant. "MAYBELLINE" makes scant eyebrows and lashes appear naturally dark, long and luxuriant. Used regularly by beautiful girls and women everywhere. Unlike other preparations, absolutely greaseless, will not spread or smear on the face. Perfectly harmless. Each dainty box contains mirror and brush for applying. Two shades. Brown for Blondes, Black for Brunettes. 75c AT YOUR DEALER or direct from us. Accept only genuine "MAYBELLINE" and your satisfaction is assured. MAYBELLINE CO., 4750-56 Sheridan Road, CHICAGO

SENT FOR $1

An astounding watch offer—highest quality, 21 Jewel, extra thin model.

STUDEBAKER The Insured Watch.

The balance in easy monthly payments. The famous Studenaker—direct from the maker; insured for a lifetime. 8 Dial Styles; 8 adjustments—Choice 54 new Art Beauty Cases at lowest direct prices. Write for BOOK of advance Watch Styles. Sent Free!

Fine Chain FREE WRITE!

For a limited time we are giving away FREE a Fine Chain with every Studenaker Insured Watch. Buy now and take advantage of it. Send for book of advance Watch Styles Free! STUDEBAKER WATCH CO., Dept. 3412, South Bend, Ind.

$2 Brings Any Ring NO REFERENCES NEEDED

MEN and women of the most refined character wear reproductions of their costly jewelry more often than they do the genuine. So skillfully are these made that they deceive all but the expert. Artex Rings are of that type, designed after the most exclusive platinum creations. The stones are of perfect cut, with the true blue-white diamond brilliancy. All settings platinum finish.

No. 1—Men's 1 1/2 Ct. Stone, Blue sapphires on sides. Price, $12.
No. 2—Fine 7-stone cluster. $7.
No. 3—Ladies' 1 1/4 Ct., with French cut blue sapphires. $12.
No. 4—Men's tooth ring, 1 Ct. $6.
No. 5—Fine dinner, or "pinkie" ring. French blue sapphire and 12 brilliant small stones. Price, $9.

Order by Number. Send $2.00; balance, $1.00 a week.
ARTEX CO., Dept 15 1133 Broadway, New York City

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN as he is to-day

Call the Undertaker!

What's the use of living when you're only half alive? You get up in the morning and you don't have the pep of a jelly fish. Your work is a burden and life has ceased to give you a thrill. You don't seem to get anywhere and nobody cares whether you do or not. What's the use, fellows? Call the Undertaker, for you're dead and you don't know it.

A New Life

Stop! It's all wrong. There is another life right here before you. A new and a better one. A life that is full of thrills and sunshine. Every day opens new worlds to conquer, new joys, new friends and lasting ones. Come with me and let me guide you to it.

I have a system that knocks those gloom bugs higher than a kite. I'll put pep in your old backbone that will make you feel like a jack rabbit. I'll put a spring to your step and a flash to your eye so that your own friends won't know you.

Health and Strength

That's what you need and that's what you get. Come on now, pull in your belt and throw out your chest. Take a good deep breath of that pure air that's all about you. Give your heart a treat with some rich blood. You will feel so good you will think it's your birthday. Drop me a line and I'll show you how to do it. I'm going to put a chest on you that will make your old ribs strain with the pressure. I'm going to change those skinny arms and legs of yours to a real man's size. You will have the strength and vitality to do things you never thought possible. Come on, fellows! Get busy. I don't promise these things—I guarantee them. Are you with me?

Send for My New 64-Page Book "MUSCULAR DEVELOPMENT"

It contains forty-three full-page photographs of myself and some of the many prize-winning pupils I have trained. Some of these came to me as pitiful weaklings, imploring me to help them. Look them over now and you will marvel at their present physiques. This book will prove an impetus and a real inspiration to you. It will thrill you through and through. All I ask is ten cents to cover the cost of wrapping and mailing and it is yours to keep. This will not obligate you at all, but for the sake of your future health and happiness, do not put it off. Send today—right now, before you turn this page.

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN

Dept. 1812, 305 Broadway, New York City

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN, Dept. 1812, 305 Broadway, New York City

Dear Sir:—I enclose herewith 10 cents for which you are to send me, without any obligation on my part whatever, a copy of your latest book, "Muscular Development." (Please write or print plainly.)

Name.....
Address.....
City..... State.....

Thousands Can Draw CARTOONS Who Have Never Even Tried

Cartoonists earn from $60 to far over $300 a week. Why tie yourself to work that is drudgery when through a remarkable new method you can easily learn at home in spare time to draw cartoons that SELL?

MANY are earning pitifully small salaries who could make wonderful salaries in cartooning. Briggs, Fox, Fisher, Goldberg and other leading cartoonists earn more than the President. Yet a few years ago many of our most successful cartoonists never dreamed they could draw a good cartoon!

The World's Easiest, Pleasantest and Best Paying Profession

Just watch a cartoonist work. A few little lines—a couple of simple curves—a splash of black here and there—and then you see a splendid cartoon before you. With a few strokes of his pen, he has taken some little incident of his day's experience—some humorous or sad scene he has witnessed—and produced a wonderful cartoon.

New Easy Way to Learn Cartooning

This fascinating ability to draw cartoons can now easily be yours—this ability which can mean so much real pleasure and profit to you. Through a wonderful new method you receive right at home through the mail a complete training in Cartoon Making, and personal corrections on all of your work from one of America's most prominent cartoonists!

With his help, you can in an amazingly short time, learn to draw the comic strips, humorous, political and animated cartoons which are in such big demand.

Learn More About Cartooning Send for FREE BOOK

Never have cartoons been so popular. Millions of dollars were spent last year on cartoons of all kinds—and every week newspapers increase the amount of cartoons used. Get full details on the amazing opportunities in this fast growing field of Cartooning and full information on this remarkable home study method. Mail coupon for FREE BOOKLET today. WASHINGTON SCHOOL OF CARTOONING, Room 2912, 1113-15th St. N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL OF CARTOONING,
Room 2912, 1113-15th St. N. W., Washington, D. C.

Please send me without obligation your illustrated
FREE BOOKLET on Cartooning and details of Free Offer.

Name.....
(Write name plainly—State Mr., Mrs. or Miss)

Address.....

City..... State.....

If under 16 years, please state age.....

A BRACELET YOU'LL BE PROUD OF $1

Massive Sterling Silver, with two rows, with four rings, $2.00, sent prepaid. Chased in attractive design. Exquisitely finished. A present most appropriate for making your remembrance ever present in her mind.
Send for a copy of our Blue Book of Jewelry;
Free, it is replete with unique suggestions.

CHAS. L. TROUT COMPANY, Inc.
Dept. M. 2 Maiden Lane New York City

Reginald Denny in "The Spice of Life." It ought to be well flavored. Baby Peggy in "The Right to Love." That's about the age they start in nowadays. Cullen Landis is American. Write him at the Vitagraph Studios.

WALLACE REID FOREVER.—Yes, Wallace Reid played in "The Birth of a Nation." No, Mrs. Reid was never married before. So you like my dog in the above picture. He is a great help to me.

LITTLE SISTER.—You know what the engaged girl says—a gift on the hand is better than two promises. Ivor Novello in "The White Rose." Yes. Mae Marsh calls her little girl Mary.

EDNA M.—Wind sawmills were erected by the Dutch in New York as early as 1633, and were also used there for grinding mills. One of the first sawmills built there was on Governor's Island, in the harbor of New York City. William Reed is Eva Novak's husband. Barbara Bedford is Mrs. Albert Roscoe. No Edna Murphy is not married. Barbara was born in Wisconsin. Buck Jones is twenty-eight. Hoot Gibson thirty-one and Jack Gilbert twenty-eight.

HELEN H.—Yes, Norma Talmadge played in "Poppy" several years ago. Haven't the cast for the play you speak of. Sorry.

BETTY.—Oh the hour-glass dates back from the beginning of the Christian Era. Agnes Ayres in "The Marriage Maker." Pauline Garon in "The Turmoil." John Barrymore is forty-one. Oh yes, Thomas Meighan played opposite Norma Talmadge in "The Heart of Wetona" some years ago. Dorothy Mackaill in "Mighty Lak a Rose." You're very welcome, and I hope to see you next month. Au revoir!

MANETT.—You want to know how the stars in Hollywood approve of Pola Negri. I guess it isn't worrying Pola any. Lillian Gish was born in Springfield, O. Matt Moore can be reached at the Louis B. Mayer Studios, 3800 Mission Road, Los Angeles, Cal. Norma Talmadge at 5341 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles.

MAID OF MARYLAND.—So it's Ralph Bushman you're after. He was playing in comedies, but not featured. His father is touring with his last picture you know.

MARJORIE F.—Last address I had of Walter McGrail's was with Mack Sennett Comedies, Los Angeles, Cal. He played in "Suzanna."

CUTEY; CUTEX; ANTONIO MORENO FAN; DOTTIE J.; THOMAS N.; ELIZABETH B.; MISS F. W.; VIRGINIA S.; CARMELLA Z.; LYTELL FAN; ROBERTA H.; JEAN B.; BILLIE MAY; BERTHA E.; MARILYN; IRIS MC; KITTY; MARY H.; ETHEL M.; CHARLES O.; PAULINE E.; IMA SWEETE, STRAWBERRY BLONDE, and WILLIAM S. Your letters have been answered up above. Sorry to have to put you in with the alsorans.

SEVENTEEN

By CLARIBEL WEEKS AVERY

I hate to put my shoes on, but I suppose I must.

I want to scamper barefoot in the yellow dust,

Or lie among the daisies on the sunlit green—

It's very hard for me to be as old as seventeen.

I want a jeweled comb to hold my flying hair,

A cape of purple satin such as stately women wear,

A handsome, grown-up lover and a limousine—

It's very hard to be as young as seventeen!

Flavory

Delightful, too
—the tempting
taste of good old-fashioned wintergreen—
its use is

"a sensible habit"

Aids digestion

BEEMAN'S Pepsin Gum

American Chicle Co.

PIMPLY SKIN made WELL

When a few applications of this wonder working lotion has cleared faces of pimples, blackheads,

acne eruptions on the face or body, enlarged pores, oily or shiny skin, you can realize why CLEAR-TONE has been tested and approved in over 100,000 Test Cases.

The simplicity of the treatment,

The Story of How I Cured Myself

are all explained in my free booklet. Write for your copy today and learn of the results got ten by thousands of men and women.

E. S. GIVENS

223 CHEMICAL BLDG. KANSAS CITY, MO.

HAPPINESS MARRIAGE
HEALTH WEALTH
LUCKY

What is your Zodiac Sign? What does it mean to your future?—happiness in marriage?—friends, enemies, success in all undertakings?—and other important questions?

FREE

We tell you FREE.

Your future is governed by Astrology, the science that has foretold events with almost unerring accuracy since 1200 years before Christ. The dependability of its truths has been investigated.

Let us give your Astrological reading. To cover packing, enclose TEN CENTS (stamps or coin), your name, address, exact birthdate and receive yours by return mail. Learn the truth. A big surprise. Write today. DO NOT FORGET TO ENCLOSE YOUR BIRTHDATE.

ZODIAC RESEARCH SOCIETY
415-58 St. Suite 360 Brooklyn, N. Y.

$ 100
Down
Brings This

Gas or Electric
The Lamp—

Comes equipped for choice of gas or electricity. Has 2-light Benjamin socket for electricity only, with 8-foot silk cord ready for use; or comes with 6-foot rubber hose, burner, mantle and chimney for gas.

Mahogany Finish

Standard is 60 in. high, 3 in. in diameter. Highly polished French mahogany finish.

The Shade—

Made in Fifth Avenue design, 24 in. in diameter, of delft blue silk, shirred top, alternating plain and fancy art silk panels. Twelve panels in all, tinsel braid border, with four inch Chenille fringe. American beauty shirred lining. The harmonious color scheme gives effect of red light shining through a blue haze—a rich warm light. Shipping weight, 27 pounds.

Marshall Silky Fringe Pull-Cords

Also pair of Marshall silky fringe cords with 3½ in. silky fringed tassels, giving an added luxurious effect.

For gas use, order by No. G6332NA. For electricity, order by No. G6333NA.

Send only $1 with the coupon, $2 monthly. Total Bargain Price for lamp and shade, $19.85.

Free Bargain Catalog

Shows thousands of bargains in home furnishings: furniture, jewelry, rugs, curtains, phonographs, stoves, dishes, aluminum ware, etc. All sold on easy terms. Catalog sent free, with or without order. See the coupon.

Floor Lamp
With 5th Ave. Silk Shade

Here is something you have always wanted—a beautiful floor lamp with handsome and elegant Fifth Avenue silk shade—to add an extra tone of elegance and luxury to your home. On this generous offer you can see just how this floor lamp and silk shade will look in your home, without risking anything. Send only $1.00 with the coupon below, and we will send it complete to your home on approval, equipped for use with either gas or electricity. We take all the risk!

30 Days Trial When the lamp outfit comes, use it freely for 30 days. See how beautifully the colorings of the handsome silk shade blend and harmonize with everything in the home. How useful it is, too—so handy for reading, can be moved around with ease to furnish a beautiful light and rich warmth and coziness to any room in the house. If after 30 days trial you decide not to keep the lamp, just return it at our expense and we will refund you $1.00 deposit, plus any freight or express you paid. You cannot lose a single penny.

$2.00 a Month If you discover that this lamp is a tremendous bargain at the price we ask and you decide to keep it, send only $2.00 a month until you have paid the total bargain price of $19.85. Yes, only $19.85 for this luxurious lamp and silk shade complete. Compare this value with anything you could buy locally at anywhere near the same price—even for spot cash! Straus & Schram gives you this bargain price and almost a year to pay. We trust honest people anywhere in U. S. No discount for cash; nothing extra for credit. No C. O. D.

Price Slashed!

Decide now to see this beautiful floor lamp and silk shade in your home on approval on this price smashing offer. Think how the nickels and dimes slip away for useless things; save them for something worth while that will give satisfaction for years. Send coupon with only $1.00 now! Satisfaction guaranteed.

STRAUS & SCHRAM, Dept. 1519 Chicago, Ill.

MAIL THIS COUPON NOW! STRAUS & SCHRAM
 Dept. 1519 CHICAGO

Enclosed find $1.00. Ship special advertised Floor Lamp and Silk Shade as checked below. I am to have 30 days free trial. If I keep the lamp, I will send $2.00 a month. If not satisfied, I am to return the lamp and shade within 30 days and you are to refund my $1.00 plus any transportation charges I paid.

- Gas Floor Lamp No. G 6332NA, $19.85.
- Electric Floor Lamp No. G 6333NA, $19.85

Name.....

Street, R. F. D. or Box No.....

Shipping Point.....

Post Office..... State.....

If you want ONLY our free catalog of home furnishings, mark X here

Do You Want A Bigger Salary?

It doesn't matter what you are Today or what you were Yesterday. Tomorrow is your bright, clear day of Opportunity. Nothing can keep you down if you really make up your mind to go up.

Maybe you've gotten a bad start. Perhaps you haven't had a decent raise in years. Or perhaps you are among those thousands who have had their wages cut—or have been thrown out of a job. But you aren't going to quit, are you? Right now, when trained men are in such demand, you've the best chance you ever had to get out of the rut and do something worth while.

But you're "too old to start over," you say? Nonsense! When some of the big men of this country were your age, they weren't earning half what you are getting today. But they didn't quit! They worked! They studied! They learned to do some one thing well.

At 35, Henry Ford was working in the mechanical department of the Edison Electric Light & Power Company. At 38, John H. Patterson, who founded the National Cash Register Company, was the proprietor of a small and none too successful country store. At 25, George Eastman, president of the Eastman Kodak Company, was a bookkeeper in a savings bank. At 22, Edison was a roaming telegraph operator—out of a job, too poor, when he arrived in New York, to buy his own breakfast!

Forget what you are today and decide on what you want to be. No man has failed until he admits it to himself. And no real man ever admits it. Why, man, in just one hour a day—in the spare time you will never miss—you can fit yourself for a better job and a bigger salary.

This is all we ask: Without cost, without obligating yourself in any way, put it up to us to prove how we can help you. Just mark and mail this coupon.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS

Box 6759-C, Scranton, Penna.

Without cost or obligation on my part, please tell me how I can qualify for the position or in the subject before which I have marked an X:

- | | |
|--|---|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Business Management | <input type="checkbox"/> Salesmanship |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Industrial Management | <input type="checkbox"/> Advertising |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Personnel Organization | <input type="checkbox"/> Better Letters |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traffic Management | <input type="checkbox"/> Show Card Lettering |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Business Law | <input type="checkbox"/> Stenography and Typing |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Banking and Banking Law | <input type="checkbox"/> Business English |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Accountancy (including C.P.A.) | <input type="checkbox"/> Civil Service |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Cost Accounting | <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Mail Clerk |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Bookkeeping | <input type="checkbox"/> Common School Subjects |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Private Secretary | <input type="checkbox"/> High School Subjects |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Spanish <input type="checkbox"/> French | <input type="checkbox"/> Illustrating |

TECHNICAL AND INDUSTRIAL COURSES

- | | |
|---|--|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Electrical Engineering | <input type="checkbox"/> Architect |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Electric Lighting | <input type="checkbox"/> Blue Print Reading |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Engineer | <input type="checkbox"/> Contractor and Builder |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Draftsman | <input type="checkbox"/> Architectural Draftsman |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Machine Shop Practice | <input type="checkbox"/> Concrete Builder |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Railroad Positions | <input type="checkbox"/> Structural Engineer |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Gas Engine Operating | <input type="checkbox"/> Chemistry <input type="checkbox"/> Pharmacy |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Civil Engineer | <input type="checkbox"/> Automobile Work |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Surveying and Mapping | <input type="checkbox"/> Airplane Engines |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Metallurgy <input type="checkbox"/> Mining | <input type="checkbox"/> Agriculture and Poultry |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Steam Engineering <input type="checkbox"/> Radio | <input type="checkbox"/> Mathematics |

Name.....
Street..... 8-3-23
Address.....

City.....State.....

Occupation.....
Persons residing in Canada should send this coupon to the International Correspondence Schools Canadian, Limited, Montreal, Canada

DON'T STAY FAT!
BATHE YOUR WAY TO SLENDERNESS
14 Treatments $3.00

BELCOR BATH TREATMENTS

NO DIETING
NO EXERCISING
NO HARMFUL DRUGS

Wonderfully Simple To Use
Simply Wonderful in Results

A scientific medical compound containing absolutely harmless ingredients that will reduce your weight.
Merely dissolve one BELCOR carton in your daily bath and see yourself grow slimmer, healthier, more beautiful.
Send no money; just mail your order and pay the postman $3.00 plus postage upon delivery.
Descriptive Booklet Free

DR. L. OSBORNE CO. 220 Fifth Avenue New York
Established 1912

Iris In

(Continued from page 50)

Which brings us back to a time long ago when we were highly privileged to see Theda Bara in "Cleopatra" in the presence of that Reel Rameses, William Fox himself.

The celluloid kaiser was not too content with the film. He made remarks—some of which wouldn't go too well on this pure page, despite the snappy illustration. The shots alternated rapidly between the two principal scenes of action. Now Caesar was in Italy, now he was in Egypt. "Gawd, Miss Bangs!" complained Mr. Fox to his secretary, "this guy Octavius goes from Rome to Alexandria like he was going from N'York ta Brookalyn."

* * *

"Scaramouche" is a worthy effort of Rex Ingram's; a director who has a great deal to his credit already. But figure the anguish it must be causing the people who read subtitles out loud. The cast of characters contains such tongue-stranglers as "Marquis de la Tour D'Azyr," "Aline and Quintin de Kercadiou" and "Comtesse Therèse de Plougastel."

* * *

Out of our innate decency we are not going to be piggish about our superior French education, but hereby append a pronouncing dictionary of the above names for any or all to make use of. If it helps you to enjoy the picture and annoy your neighbor, go to it and God bless you.

"Marquis de la Tour D'Azyr" is pronounced macky (as in macaroni) delly tore (as in rip) de Zowie (as in Mutt and Jeff).

"Aline de Kercadiou" is pronounced A Liney dee Cork Cashew (as in nut).

"Quintin" is pronounced Quinine, or if you want to get real fancy, Canteen.

"Comtesse Therèse de Plougastel" is pronounced Come Tassy Tear Easy (as in tissue paper) dee Plug (as in Spark Plug) Estelle (a girl's name.)

* * *

No, dont thank us. It's really a gift.

MOTH

By JOHN HANLON

Around my flickering light
A white moth flutters;
Shall I give it back to the night
Thru the open shutters,
To the night from whence it came,
Free, without fetter?
No, having loved a flame,
To die is better.

How to care for Dull Hair

You cannot expect hair which is naturally devoid of lustre to look brilliant or exceptionally bright after an ordinary shampoo. You must use a shampoo that is different—a shampoo that will add real beauty to your hair—GOLDEN GLINT Shampoo. This shampoo will make your hair look so much prettier, so much more attractive, that you will just love to fuss with it. In addition to the clean freshness any good shampoo gives, it offers something unusual, something new, something more than a promise. This "something" is a secret you'll discover with your first Golden Glint Shampoo. 25c a package at toilet counters or direct. * * * J. W. Kobi Co., 652 Rainier Ave., Seattle, Wash.

Golden Glint SHAMPOO

LEARN

Movie Acting!

A fascinating profession that pays big. Would you like to know if you are adapted to this work? Send 10c for our Twelve-Hour Talent Tester or Key to Movie Acting Aptitude, and find whether or not you are suited to take up Movie Acting. A novel, instructive and valuable work. Send dime or stamps today. A large, interesting, illustrated Booklet on Movie Acting included FREE! FILM INFORMATION BUREAU, Sta. N., Jackson, Mich.

Reduce Your Bust during the Day

No longer need you have a large bust. You can easily make your figure slim, beautiful and attractive. Put on an Annette Bust Reducer when you get up in the morning. Before retiring you will be amazed at the remarkable change. You can actually measure the difference. No pain—no rubbing or massage. Used by society women and actresses everywhere.

Send No Money Just send me the measurement of your Bust and I will send you in plain wrapper one of these remarkable bust reducers. Pay the postman only $3.50 plus a few cents postage. Or send $3.50 and I will send the reducer prepaid. Money back if you are not satisfied.

Write Now! ANNETTE, Dept. C-4, Evanston, Ill.

"DON'T SHOUT"

"I hear you. I can hear now as well as anybody. 'How?' With THE MORLEY PHONE. I've a pair in my ears now, but they are invisible. I would not know I had them in myself, only that I hear all right."

The Morley Phone for the DEAF

is to the ears what glasses are to the eyes. Invisible, comfortable, weightless and harmless. Anyone can adjust it. Over one hundred thousand sold. Write for booklet and testimonials.

THE MORLEY CO., Dept. 792, 26 S. 15th Street, Phila.

LADIES GOLD BRACELET FREE WATCH

YOU will be proud to own this beautiful 6-jewelled, 20-year guaranteed gold-filled bracelet watch, complete in an exquisite velvet case. Retail at $15.00, but you can have it ABSOLUTELY FREE

RUSH your name for our free watch plan. Remember, with this plan it won't cost you a cent. Don't delay—write now.

HOME SUPPLY CO.
131 Duane Street Dept. 87
New York City

The Celluloid Critic

(Continued from page 49)

and there a bold touch of burlesque. Then it swings into a melodramatic climax as the head designer goes to jail and wrecks the business as a result. You catch the pathos as the partners are submerged in gloom.

Barney Bernard, who created the character of Potash, humanizes it in such a manner that he fairly speaks to you. Alexander Carr who created Perlmutter in the original makes an excellent foil. The director has given it a fine sympathetic treatment. And we catalog it as worth seeing.

A CUMBERSOME, heavy picture is the German importation, "Monna Vanna" (Fox), which is entirely devoid of any dramatic interest and which is filled to overflowing with huge mobs of extras and flowery titles. They miss Lubitsch over there and aside from "Peter the Great," the land of the Rhine has fallen behind the procession. Here we have the mediæval tale of love and war in Pisa as sponsored by Maeterlinck. It is one of those creaking dramas of an Italian bride who, to save her starving city, offers herself to the general of the opposing forces, only to discover that he is the man she had been in love with ever since he burst into her room in the early part of the story.

The picture demanded skilled treatment—somebody who is deft with a rapier instead of a bludgeon. The photography is blurred, the lighting poor, and the acting of the lowest order of expression—which means mad, bad facial distortions and what not. The ten thousand or more extras are before us time and again. But crowds badly directed do not lift a spectacle to the heights. What good points it possesses may be found in some massive sets and some appropriate atmosphere.

SOMETHING new in love-making is exposed in "Six Days" (Goldwyn) which may be called subterranean instead of sub-rosa as is characteristic of most of Elinor Glyn's stories. Instead of carrying her lovers and the spectators to the heights she plunges them to the depths—and the lovers (not the spectators) are swept into a grand passion which endures six days. If you think that the daring British authoress steps out of character, pay attention to the titles attached to the subterranean episodes. "And thus the first day ended. Thus the second day ended." They are so terse—so pointed that they invite laughter

(Ninety-three)

MAGIC GLOVES

Whiten Hands Overnight

ASTOUNDING SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY—Dr. Egan's Magic Night Gloves! Make rough, reddened, work-worn hands soft and white over-night!

Results Absolutely Guaranteed in Writing. Legal Guarantee Bond with Every Pair.

JUST think of it—putting on a pair of gloves for a night and finding your hands exquisitely white and soft! That is the magic of Dr. Egan's amazing medicated gloves! Nothing like them ever known! These gloves of medicated fabric (not rubber) actually turn your hands white, as white as a lily and as smooth and soft.

No matter how red your hands, or how sallow or yellow or how deeply blotched with freckles or liver spots—no matter how rough or coarse or workworn your hands, the magic of these medicated gloves will turn them white and soft, fresh and young-looking.

Results in One Night

Just one night's wear of these marvelous gloves is enough to convince you. You see a difference in your hands almost unbelievable. Wear the gloves four or five nights and you have a new pair of hands. It's the medicated fabric that does the work. The gloves are impregnated with a marvelous solution perfected by the famous Dr. S. J. Egan. The medicated fabric when activated by the natural warmth of the hands has a peculiarly potent whitening and softening effect upon the hands. The hands become white—a charming, natural white. They become soft and smooth as velvet. And all so quick as to be dumfounding.

The complete Dr. Egan Magic Glove outfit consists of: one pair freshly medicated gloves; one jar Dr. Egan's Pore-Lax; one bottle Glove Mediator; one copy Dr. Egan's booklet, "The Care of the Hands"; all in neat container. The Pore-Lax is a special cream to apply before donning the gloves to open the pores of the skin for the action of the medicated gloves. The Glove Mediator is for restoring the potency of the gloves after a period of wear. Gloves may be worn at night while you sleep or during the day while doing your sweeping and dusting.

Photograph of the hand of Miss Mildred McKamy before and after just four nights wearing of the Magic Gloves

Try the Gloves FREE

Try the gloves five nights free. Note the amazing difference in your hands in just five nights' wear. Mark how lovely your hands, how white and smooth. If five nights of wear of the gloves doesn't make your hands more beautiful than you ever dreamed possible, don't keep the gloves. Return them to us and you won't be out one cent for the free trial. You are the judge.

SEND NO MONEY

Just Mail the Coupon

Send no money now—just the coupon. Pay the postman only $1.95 (plus postage) on delivery of the gloves. If in 5 days you are not more than delighted and amazed with the results from the gloves, just send them back and your money will be promptly refunded in full. We give you a written guarantee to this effect. You run no risk. Fill out and mail the coupon now or copy it in a post card or letter. If apt to be out when postman calls send $2.00 now. Our guarantee assures you of your money back if you are not perfectly satisfied. Address DR. S. J. EGAN, Dept. 86, 220 South State Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Complete $5.00 Outfit on this Amazing Introductory Offer only $1.95

These gloves will soon be offered the public through the regular channels at $5 the pair. But a limited number of sets are now being offered for advertising purposes at practically cost—$1.95. You can get this complete $5.00 outfit—Medicated Gloves, generous supply of Pore-Lax and Mediator—all for $1.95 on this introductory offer. But you must act at once, as only 10,000 sets are to be distributed at the cut price. You may pay the postman or, if you prefer enclose $2 with coupon and receive package all paid for. Remember, every penny of your money back if you say so. Clip and mail the coupon now before you forget.

Dr. S. J. EGAN, Dept 86
220 S. State Street, Chicago, Ill.

Please send me (in plain package) for free trial a pair of Dr. Egan's Magic Gloves for whitening and softening the hands, with Pore-Lax and Mediator. I will pay postman $1.95 (plus postage) on delivery of the gloves. If I am not perfectly delighted with the change in my hands in 5 days, I may return gloves and get my money back in full. (If apt to be out when postman calls send $2 now and the complete outfit will be mailed prepaid.)

Name.....

Address.....

My glove size is.....

Shapeliness

is easily acquired by reducing disfiguring fat in any part of the body of MEN OR WOMEN, by few minutes' daily use of the famous invention

DR. LAWTON'S GUARANTEED FAT REDUCER AND ILLUSTRATED COURSE ON WEIGHT CONTROL

It performs a gentle deep-rooted massage, wherever applied, which disintegrates ugly fat and only where you wish to lose. This waste matter is then carried out of the body through the organs of elimination.

The Reduction Is Permanent

You can reduce from 1 to 100 pounds. No medicines or starvation diet. No exercises or electricity. Easiest way in the world to rid your body of that useless, joke-inviting fat. Internationally known for many years. Used by thousands and thousands of men and women. Approved and recommended by physicians. Dr. Lawton's Guaranteed Fat Reducer is made of light, soft, pillable rubber.

Smooths The Skin; Firms The Flesh

Dr. Lawton's authoritative book, "WEIGHT REDUCTION," is sent with the Fat Reducer. This explains how to use it, also how to stay thin after the Reducer has done its work.

SPECIAL PRICE

$3.75

SENT C. O. D.

Reducing results must show in eleven days or you may return the Reducer complete and receive back your full purchase price. This is Dr. Lawton's positive guarantee! Sent C. O. D. in plain sealed wrapper, or if you prefer remit $3.75 plus 20c. for shipping costs. Order yours now. Free literature sent on request.

DR. THOMAS LAWTON

19 West 70th Street

Dept. 6

New York City

NOW Everybody Can Dance

Learn in One Hour at Home

There's now no need of being a wall-flower. In one hour—at home—by mail—I can make you an easy confident dancer—popular in any ball-room.

NEW EASY METHOD

No Partner Needed — No Embarrassment

Over 60,000 men and women have become popular dancers of Fox Trot, One Step, Waltz and all latest up-to-the-minute society dance steps through my new Foto-tell and Fono-tell Method set to music. Amazingly easy -- fascinating. No other course like it. I teach you perfect time and rhythm—the secret of good dancing.

Six Lesson FREE TRIAL Course on

Convince yourself at my expense how amazingly easy it is to learn modern dancing with my new method. For a short time only I'll send the first six lessons of my course (in plain wrapper) including 10-inch dance instruction record, free and prepaid for five days trial. See, test and prove this remarkable new method in your own home. Then, if not delighted at your success, simply return record and lessons within five days and you'll owe me nothing. Write quick before this unusual offer expires. Please mention make of phonograph you have.

WILLIAM CHANDLER PEAK, M. B.

Studio 144 4601-11 Broadway Chicago, Ill.

Only $6.25 for this $20 value White Gold Wrist Watch

25 year 14K white gold-filled case, richly engraved, latest Tonneau shape, sapphire crown, gros-grain ribbon with white gold-filled clasp. 6 jewel movement. An excellent timekeeper. Comes in beautiful velvet and silk-lined case.

AN IDEAL GIFT

that will make any girl or woman happy. We specialize in this watch exclusively and are in a position to offer it at a price lower than the usual wholesale price. If after receiving and examining this watch, you do not consider it equal to any watch priced up to $20.00 by jewelers, send it back—we will promptly refund amount paid. If you desire we will ship C. O. D., you to pay postman $6.25 plus 18c charges on delivery. Order now.

Williams Co., 4750-53 N. Sheridan Road, Chicago

send birth date

Are You Reaching for the Truth?

Were You Born Under a Lucky Star?

It will tell you
FREE

Under which Zodiac Sign were you born? What are your opportunities in life, your future prospects, happiness in marriage, friends, enemies, success in all undertakings and many other vital questions as indicated by ASTROLOGY, the most ancient and interesting science of history?

Were you born under a lucky star? I will tell you, free, the most interesting astrological interpretation of the Zodiac Sign you were born under.

Simply send me the exact date of your birth in your own handwriting. To cover cost of this notice and postage, inclose twelve cents in any form and your exact name and address. Your astrological interpretation will be written in plain language and sent to you securely sealed and post-paid. A great surprise awaits you!

Do not fail to send birthdate and to inclose 12 cents. Print correct name and address to avoid delay in mailing.

Write now—TODAY—to the
ASTA STUDIO, 309 Fifth Ave., Dept. 133, New York

which would certainly be out of place in such a harrowing experience as lived thru by the romancers.

The plot is heavy-handed dime-novel material—thrilling in its exposure of the will to live by these figures in the dugouts left by the Germans. It's a picture of land-slides which entomb the priest and the lovers—a picture of grim and ghastly situations which terminate when the girl tells her mother she cannot marry the wealthy Englishman since she is already married to the man who was lost to her while making love in the bosom of the earth. Of course he eventually bobs up safe and sound.

The picture carries a certain spiritual quality which makes the petting-party episodes in the dugouts very much out of order. The most impressive touch to us is Corinne Griffith's portrayal—in reality her first big opportunity. She endows the rôle with sincerity and charm and plays with vital feeling. Heavy melodrama that it is, it somehow lingers in the memory.

PERHAPS Gloria Swanson thought she could not be a convincing French personage of the theater unless she resorted to extremes, but it seems to us that with half the expenditure of physical energy in playing the title-rôle of "Zaza" (Paramount) she could have achieved much better results. She is a combination of Nazimova, Mae Murray and Leonore Ulric—and makes a frantic effort to be temperamental. Such outbursts are wearing upon one's composure. In her tranquil moments—which are few—she succeeds in being real. On the other hand H. B. Warner is too subdued. It is a frigid performance indeed, for a character supposedly French

The picture is staged with undue lavishness and really proves interesting in a majority of its scenes—particularly when Zaza is swinging in a ballet number over the heads of the audience. It's a story of a dancer's romance and a broken heart which is mended when the good Frenchman's wife conveniently dies, releasing him to fan the embers of a previous passionate love into a quick and vivid flame.

Miss Swanson may not be at her best here, but her clientele is so secure that we can hear the box-office cracking under the strain.

A CURIOUS composition is "Red Lights" (Goldwyn) which is offered as a mystery melodrama, but which before it develops its powers takes on the form
(Continued on page 96)

Manufacturers, Distributors and Studios
of
Motion Pictures
New York City

Advanced Motion Picture Corp., 1493 B'way.
Arrow Film Corp., 220 W. 42nd St.
Astra Film Corp., 1 Congress St., Jersey
City, N. J. (Studio.)

Ballin Hugo, Productions, 366 Fifth Ave.
Biograph Studio, 807 E. 175th St.

Community Motion Picture Bureau, 46 W.
24th St.
Consolidated Film Corp., 80 Fifth Ave.
Cosmopolitan Productions, 2478 Second Ave.

Educational Film Co., 729 Seventh Ave.
Export & Import Film Co., 729 Seventh Ave.

Famous Players-Lasky, 485 Fifth Ave. (Studio, 6th and Pierce Sts., Astoria, L. I.)
Film Booking Offices, 723 Seventh Ave.
Film Guild, 8 W. 40th St.
Film Market, Inc., 1482 Broadway.
First National Exhibitors, Inc., 6 W. 48th St.
Fox Studios, Tenth Ave. and 55th St.

Gaumont Co., Congress Ave., Flushing, L. I.
General Enterprises, Inc., 1540 Broadway.
Goldwyn Pictures Corp., 469 Fifth Ave.
Graphic Film Corp., 720 Seventh Ave.
Griffith, D. W., Films, 1476 Broadway. (Studio, Oriental Pt., Mamaroneck, N. Y.)

Hampton, Hope, Productions, 1452 B'way.
Hodkinson, W. W., Film Corp., 469 Fifth Ave.

Inspiration Pictures, 565 Fifth Ave.
International Studios, 2478 Second Ave.
Ivan Film Prod., 126 W. 46th St.

Jans Pictures, 729 Seventh Ave.
Jester Comedy Co., 220 W. 42nd St.

Kane, Arthur S., Prod., 25 W. 43rd St.

Metro Pictures, Loew Bldg., 1540 Broadway.
Moss, B. S., 1564 Broadway.

Outing Chester Pictures, 220 W. 42nd St.

Pathé Exchange, 35 W. 45th St.
Piedmont Pictures Corp., 45 Light St.
Preferred Pictures, 1650 Broadway.
Prizma, Inc., 110 W. 40th St.
Pyramid Picture Corp., 150 W. 34th St.

S. L. Pictures, 1540 Broadway.
Scitz, George B., 1990 Park Ave.
Selznick Pictures, 729 Seventh Ave. (Studio, W. Fort Lee, N. J.)
Stewart, Anita, Prod., Inc., 6 W. 48th St.
Sunshine Films, Inc., 140 W. 44th St.

Talmadge Film Corp., 1540 Broadway.
Topics of the Day Film Co., 1562 Broadway.
Triangle Distributing Corp., 1459 B'way.
Tully, Richard Walton, Prod., 1482 B'way.

United Artists, 729 Seventh Ave.
Universal Film Corp., 1600 Broadway.

Vitagraph Films, E. 16th St. and Locust
Ave., Brooklyn.

Warner Bros., 1600 Broadway.
West, Roland, Prod. Co., 236 W. 55th St.
Whitman, Bennett, Prod., 537 Riverdale Ave.

IMPORTERS CUT PRICE SALE! INDESTRUCTIBLE PEARLS

1 ONLY
$100
DOWN

JUST SEND YOUR
NAME

La Helene Pearls

THE FAIREST OFFER
EVER PRINTED

WE'LL SEND
THE PEARLS

NO
RED TAPE

NO REFERENCES

NO WAITING

GUARANTEED FRENCH PEARLS

A guarantee tag is attached to each pearl necklace. We guarantee these pearls for a life-time of wear. They will never peel or crack or break or discolor. They are indestructible and insoluble. Neither water, perspiration or cosmetics can harm them. This strong guarantee can be given only on the very best quality pearls.

25,000 pearl necklaces have been imported by us direct from France. They are 24 inches long, perfectly matched, carefully graduated, strung on strong silk cord, and fastened with a 14 kt. white gold spring safety clasp. They glow with rich, opalescent colors and look exactly like real pearls worth thousands of dollars. They have the same beautiful tints and sheen. They are best quality, sure to please.

10 Days' Trial

You can wear these fascinatingly beautiful pearls for ten days on free trial. Show them to your friends. Compare them with pearls sold by other jewelers for $30.00 or more. If you are not satisfied, just send them back and we will return your money.

FREE!

Diamond Clasp Plush Gift Case

To give you extra special value for your money, we supply a 14 kt. solid white gold, engraved and pierced clasp, latest style, set with a sparkling, blue-white, genuine diamond. We give it away absolutely free. We also give you a large sized heart-shape, satin-lined plush gift case.

TEAR OUT AND MAIL

STERLING DIAMOND AND WATCH CO.,
63 Park Row, Dept. 1290, New York

Gentlemen; Please send a 24-inch necklace of genuine imported French pearls, perfectly matched and graduated, full of opalescent beauty, as described in this advertisement, to me by parcel post, C. O. D., only $1.00 down (or inclose a dollar). If I am satisfied, I will pay $1.00 a month until your new low price of $11.00 is paid. If I return the necklace within 10 days you will return all of my money.

NAME.....

ADDRESS.....

CITY &
STATE.....

Our Guarantee

$1.00 a Month

After satisfying yourself that the pearls really are worth $30.00, and that you have the greatest bargain you ever heard of, just pay $1.00 a month for only ten months, total price $11.00. This includes the genuine diamond set 14 kt. solid white gold clasp and the satin-lined, heart-shape plush gift case. (10% off for cash with order.)

Price Was $30.00

These magnificent, indestructible pearls were made to sell for $30.00, and your friends will think you paid at least $30.00 for them. By importing 25,000 necklaces, we are able to bring the price down to only $11.00.

Splendid Gift

Every girl and woman loves pearls, because they are a jewel of adornment as well as of beauty. Pearls enhance a woman's beauty. These exquisite pearls will be appreciated as a $30.00 present (30 inches long, price $15.00).

JUST SIGN COUPON

That's all you sign—just your name and address on coupon. There are no questions to answer. Your credit is good. We trust you. You will be glad to pay for such wonderful pearls. They come to you at once for ten days' trial. Don't wait; order right now.

Write for Catalog

We also import sparkling, brilliant, blue-white genuine diamonds, and sell at greatly reduced prices. Our large catalog shows a jewelry store full of diamonds, watches and jewelry. Write for a copy.

STERLING DIAMOND & WATCH CO.
63 Park Row, Dept. 1290, New York

ONE CARAT $195

Former price was $325.00 a carat. This new low price is possible because we import the diamonds direct from Europe through our office in Antwerp. They are guaranteed perfectly cut, sparkling, brilliant, blue white, genuine diamonds, and will stand any test or comparison. We carry a million dollar stock for you to select from.

10 DAYS FREE TRIAL

Select whichever one of these two rings you prefer, and we will send it to your bank or express office for free examination. Or, send the price marked, and we will deliver by registered mail for ten days' trial. If you return it, we will return your money. Any size diamond from 1/4 carat to 2 carats can be ordered on the same terms, at $195.00 per carat.

RING A

Large sized, sparkling blue white genuine diamond, guaranteed perfectly cut, set in 18 carat solid white gold ring, which looks like solid platinum. Makes a very popular engagement ring. Regular price, $150.00.

RING B

Basket style, closed mounting of 18 karat solid white gold, hand pierced and engraved. Set with fiery, brilliant, blue white, genuine diamond. Former price $75.00. Will be greatly appreciated as a present. Give finger size.

Write for Catalog No. 1234

Our handsomely illustrated catalog of diamonds, watches and jewelry brings our large jewelry store right into your home. Compare our prices.

B. GUTTER & SONS

172 Nassau St., Dept. 1283 New York

$9

24 in. long

Genuine Diamond Clasp

Jeweled Adjusted Regulated

Two splendid gift selections are pictured here at greatly reduced prices. They are just the thing for presents to loved ones. The pearl necklace is a regular $25.00 value. They are indestructible and full of opalescent beauty. Order on trial.

The 14 carat solid white gold rectangular wrist watch is hand engraved, and fitted with high grade, fully guaranteed movement and silk grosgrain ribbon. PRICE WAS $32

TEAR OUT COUPON AND SEND FOR FREE CATALOG

14 KT. SOLID GOLD ONLY $19

B. GUTTER & SONS NEW YORK

172 Nassau St., Dept. 1283, New York.

Gentlemen: Please send your new bargain catalog.

I have selected.....
 which you may ship to my address for free trial, upon the guarantee that you will return my money if I return the selection within 10 days.

Name.....

Local Address.....

City and State.....

The Celluloid Critic (Continued from page 94)

of high-handed comedy. The idea behind it smacks of Old King Brady and Diamond Dick at their dime-novel best, tho with vast improvement in generating novel touches in pointing its quite mad hokum.

Word comes to a railroad magnate that he may never set eyes upon his daughter. He hops a train for the boundless West and the action starts a-popping. The story becomes involved with strange situations, arranged by equally strange characters. For instance the girl's fellow employs a crime deflector whose profession is checking villainy before it can get under way. The red lights of the title come from various sources—some from the train—some from the tinting—and most of them from some eccentric inventor who has perfected a diabolical machine whereby arc lights are made to talk.

There is much tiptoeing—much business of crooks stalking their prey with the inevitable pursuit which culminates in the climax when the bad men are playing tag with their pursuers over and under and in and out of a train. It is improbable to be sure, but it offers no moments of tedium. A flickering frenzied pot-pourri.

SEASONED with a Cohanesque dash of paprika, George M's comedy satire of rural high jinks, "The Meanest Man In The World" (First National), carries on with the same spirit that the original did upon the stage. The limitations of the proscenium arch are replaced by the rustic open spaces—so that the quaint figures that are concerned in the conflict of foreclosing and lifting the mortgage seem more genuine—what with the general store as a background and an oil spouter in close proximity.

Bert Lytell is the "meanest man" who is too tender-hearted to carry out the designs of his harsh client. Thru a clever manipulation of the papers—and the figures, the oil gushes forth just in time to foil the wily skinflint.

The picture is bright and breezy and filled with Cohanisms in its subtitles. It is good-natured tomfoolery touched off with a spark of rural burlesque. Blanche Sweet makes a wistful and charming heroine upon whose land the w. s. holds the option—and upon whose store there is a mortgage. By treating the play in a satirical manner the producers should get results in good coin of the realm.

Are you his "Dream Eyes?"

"WHEN he is away does he dream of your eyes?" Does he send flowers to his dream eyes?

You can have eyes that he will remember for their beauty. Use WINX to darken your lashes, and make them appear longer and heavier. Applied with the sanitary glass rod attached to the stopper, WINX dries instantly and lasts even through weeping at the theatre. WINX is invisible on the lashes and does not run or smear. Absolutely harmless, water and perspiration proof.

Winx (black or brown) 75c. To promote growth and nourish the roots of the lashes, apply colorless cream Lashlux at night. Cream Lashlux (black, brown or colorless) 50c. At drug or department stores or by mail.

Write today for samples of WINX and of PERT Rouge—enough of each to last a week. Samples are a dime each. Enclose coins.

ROSS COMPANY

78 Grand Street New York

WINX Waterproof

$2 DOWN BRINGS YOU THIS 14-KT. WHITE GOLD WRIST WATCH

TEN MONTHS TO PAY

Latest Octagon Shape. 14-KT SOLID WHITE GOLD. Beautifully hand engraved. Silk grosgrain ribbon band. 15-jewel lever movement. Absolutely guaranteed. Send only $2 down, watch comes all charges paid. You have 30 days to convince of its beauty and perfect time keeping. If not the biggest bargain ever offered, return watch and deposit will be promptly refunded. If pleased, send $1.90 a month for 10 months, full price only $21. Regular value, $35. Transactions strictly confidential.

GUARANTY WATCH CO., Dept. O-12, New York

Will You Take $15 a Week For One Hour a Day?

I want to buy your spare time—will you take $15 to $35 a week for one hour, two hours or three hours a day? Read my offer.

I must have at once a limited number of refined, cultured women in every community who will sell me their spare time. An amazing new scientific discovery has been made which assures radiant beauty to every woman—in five days. I want to pay you for just telling other women where they can get this wonderful new discovery. Many are making from $15 to $35 a week. I will finance you. BEAUTY OUTFIT FREE. Write to me immediately and I'll explain my whole wonderful offer to you. No obligation. You can start earning money at once if you write me now. MARIE FRANZAN, Dept. 1412, 2707 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill.

SEND US YOUR FILMS

$550.00 in Prizes Given Away. First Prize Ford Touring Car. Write us for Free Coupon entitling you to share in drawing held Dec. 17, 1923. Trial roll of film developed free. Prints 3c each. Roanoke Photo Fin. Co. 207 Bell, Roanoke, Va.

WEIRD MYSTO OUTFIT

The ORIGINAL weird Mysto Talisman Run—wards off evil spirits, sickness, spells, etc. Ancient belief, brings Success to wearer in love, business, games, ALL Undertakings. Green Gold finish, snakes set with Lucky Mysto Ruby and Emerald, fits any finger. ALSO The startling MYSTO WONDER, ALL questions. LOVE? Hate? Enemies? Marriage? Children? Money? Life? Luck? FREE with Oufit—Direction and Question Booklet—A DREAM BOOK —ALSO Free plan to make money. Pay on arrival $1.97 Plus Postage. MYSTO CO., 103 E. 125th St., Dept. 902, N. Y. C.

WE don't understand how Charles de Roche was selected to play the rôle of a raunt in "The Marriage Maker" (Paramount), but there he is presenting a physique not unlike Firpo's in a pantomimic sketch which would have better suited that master pantomimist, George Arliss.

The Frenchman is younger and athletic—which are his only qualifications. Otherwise his study lacks imagery and deft shading. He bounds all over the place—twice appearing in a tiger skin and changing to evening clothes while he attempts to place a house in order. There is no sparkle to the picture. A single-track story which drags.

"THE Silent Command" (Fox) would have scored a complete knock-out during the frenzied days of the war. The hysterical public would have scaled the heights of patriotism. As it is the idea is a little belated tho it does serve as propaganda for Seeing the World, the naval slogan. Call it deep-dyed melodrama if you will, it does glorify the American navy and it does carry a punch—even tho that punch comes from an old-fashioned school established by Lincoln J. Carter, et al.

Revealed in the turbulent action are a heavy storm, a dashing fight, a wreck, and a column of marines storming the rendezvous of the enemy. The climax is a long time coming to a head because of the plotting and counterplotting. The best features? The storm effects, the flashes of the fleet and marine scenes.

THEY ask for tears in "Man and Wife" (Arrow) only and succeed in extracting laughs. Two sisters, farm-girls, marry the same man. One of the girls runs away from the farm, marries a city surgeon and is supposed to die in a fire—during his absence. He returns home—and instead of investigating the tragedy, conveniently retires to the very farmhouse from which his wife made her escape, courts and marries her sister within a period of six months! And neither one has spoken of the departed relative, nor consulted the family album. But stay—the despicable villain informs the surgeon that his wife isn't dead, but on the contrary is alive, tho hopelessly insane. So he operates, restoring her sanity. Not for long, however, for she is told by the same d. v. that her husband is a bigamist and she goes mad again. A second operation brings the undertaker. She had to be eliminated for the sake of the second wife's unborn child. This weird contraption defies logic and insults intelligence.

(Ninety-seven)

The Magic Power of A Few Little Lines

Have you ever noticed a cartoonist draw a short line here. Another there. A small curve. A splash of shading—and you have a wonderful picture! It was all so easy because he knew how he knew which lines to use and just where to put them. Through this New Easy Way to Draw you too can learn the Magic Power of a Few Little Lines and how to make big money in drawing them!

New Easy Way to DRAW

How Easy!

Note how these few little lines are transformed into a picture.

One of the most fascinating, best paid businesses—yours after a few minutes' training a day.

Delightful pastime! Endless fun! Acquire the knack in your spare time.

Invaluable asset in your present business. A few lines can drive home your intangible ideas. New way makes it easy to learn drawing.

THIS wonderful new method makes it possible for anyone to learn Illustrating, Cartooning, or Commercial Art. Hundreds of our students are now making splendid incomes. And most of them never touched a drawing pencil before they studied with us.

The simplicity of this method will astound you. You will be amazed at your own rapid progress. You learn by mail—yet you receive personal instruction from one of America's foremost Commercial Artists of 30 years' successful experience.—Frank Godwin and Wynn Holcomb (Wynn), the famous artists, are but two of his many successful students. Get into this fascinating game, NOW. You can easily qualify and make big money. A few minutes' study each day is all that is needed.

Newspapers, advertising agencies, magazines, business concerns—all are looking for men and women to handle their art work. Cartoonists and designers are at a premium. Dozens of our students started work at a high salary. Many earn more than the cost of the course while they are learning!

YOU—with a little spare time study in your own home—can easily and quickly get on of these big-paying artists' jobs.

This amazing method has exploded the old idea that talent is an absolute necessity in art—that "It's all a gift." Just as you have learned to write, this new method teaches you to draw. We start you with straight lines, then curves. Then you learn how to put them together. Now you begin making pictures. Shading, action, perspective and all the rest follow in their right order, until you are making pictures that bring you splendid prices. Prominent artists get as high as $1,000 for a single drawing.

Big money is gladly paid and big money is waiting for anyone with foresight enough to prepare for this pleasant profession. Through our new easy method of teaching, YOU can earn big money as an artist, regardless of your present ability. Mail coupon today for interesting booklet telling all about it.

Coupon Brings Fascinating Booklet

An interesting and handsomely illustrated booklet, "New and Easy Way to Become an Artist," has been prepared and will be sent to you without cost. It tells how you can easily become an artist in a few minutes' daily spare time and at the cost of a few cents a day. Explains about this amazing method in detail. Tells of our students—and their wonderful progress—and how we can qualify you for a high-salaried artist's position. Booklet gives full particulars about our "Free Artist's Outfit" Offer. This booklet will be sent free, and without obligation. Read all about this amazing New Easy Way to Draw and how you can quickly learn, at home in spare time. Fill out the booklet-coupon now. Mail it TODAY.

Mail coupon today for this fascinating booklet, and learn how you can become an Artist in a few minutes a day of your spare time. Cut out coupon and mail NOW.

The Washington School of Art, Inc.
Room 2912, 1115-15th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Please send me, without cost or obligation on my part, your free book, "New and Easy Way to Become an Artist," and full details about your special Short-Time Offer.

Name.....
(State whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss)

Address.....

City..... State.....

Washington School of Art, Inc., Room 2912, 1115-15th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

A PERFECT NOSE FOR YOU

SPECIAL SIZES BEFORE AFTER FOR CHILDREN

ANITA - The Genuine - PATENTED - NOSE ADJUSTER

Winner of GOLD MEDAL — Highest in Merit — Lowest in Price

Support nature and look your best. If your nose is ill-shaped, you can make it perfect with ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER. In a few weeks, in the privacy of your own room and without interfering with your daily occupation, you can remedy your nasal irregularity. No need for costly, painful operations. ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER shapes while you sleep—quickly, painlessly, permanently and inexpensively. The ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER is the ORIGINAL NASAL SUPPDRTER absolutely guaranteed. Highly recommended by physicians for bulbous and fractured noses. Self adjustable. No screws. No metal parts. GENTLE, FIRM and PERFECTLY COMFORTABLE. Beware of Imitations! Write today (list your name and address) for FREE Booklet, "Happy Days Ahead," which explains how you can have a perfect nose, and our blank to fill out for sizes. No Obligations. Money refunded if not fully satisfied with results.

The ANITA Company, Dept. 1229, ANITA Building, Newark, N. J.

DO YOU SEE YOURSELF AS OTHERS SEE YOU?

A perfect looking nose can easily be yours

A NEW SCIENTIFIC, PAINLESS METHOD OF CORRECTING ILL-SHAPED NOSES AT HOME

TIME ADVANCES—as does science succeed in perfecting each invention. My 15 years of experience in manufacturing and selling Nose Shapers have proven to me that I can now offer to the unfortunate possessors of ill-shaped noses the most meritorious Nose Adjuster of the age. My latest improved Model No. 25 (U. S. and many foreign patents) has so many superior qualities that it surpasses all my previous shapers and other Nose Adjusters by a large margin.

In the first place, my newest appliance is better fitting; the adjustments are such that it will fit every nose without exception—my apparatus is constructed of light weight metal, and is afforded very accurate regulation by means of six hexagonal screws, which are regulated with a key and the screws are then locked in the desired position. These screws will bring about the exact pressure for correcting the various nasal deformities—such as: Long—pointed nose—pug—hook or shrew nose —and turned up nose—and will give marked success in modulating the distended or wide nostrils. There are no straps to be pulled in order to exert pressure on the nasal organ.

Model No. 25 is upholstered inside with a very fine chamois (covering a layer of thin metal) which protects the nose from direct contact with the apparatus; this lining of metal causes an even, moderate pressure on the parts being corrected, thus avoiding a harsh, violent pressure in any one place.

Model No. 25 is guaranteed, and corrects now all ill-shaped noses without operation, quickly, safely, comfortably and permanently. It is to be worn at night and, therefore, will not interfere with your daily work.

If you wish to have a perfect looking nose, write today for my free booklet which tells you how to correct ill-shaped noses without cost if not satisfactory.

M. TRILETY, Face Specialist 1935 Ackerman Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y.

Buy Direct-Save 1/2

A FORTUNATE cash purchase enables us to offer genuine ARTEX WATCHES at these astonishing low prices. Patterned after the daintiest and highest priced platinum models of the day. Their charm is equalled by their practical value as time keepers. Every watch has jewel crown, is regulated and fully guaranteed. Sent, post-paid, in handsome silk lined box. Money back if not more than satisfied.

No. 10—Tonneau shape, 6 Amethyst jewel movement, 25 yr. white gold case. Price, this sale, $6.80.
 No. 11—New diamond shape, 6 Amethyst jewel movement, 25 yr. white gold case. Price, this sale, $8.75.
 No. 12—Most popular rectangular model, 6 Amethyst jewel movement, 25 yr. white gold case. Price, this sale, $10.85.
ARTEX CO. Dept. 14 1133 Broadway New York City

BLANK CARTRIDGE PISTOL

Well made and effective; modelled on latest type of Revolver; appearance alone is enough to scare a burglar. When loaded it may be as effective as a real revolver without danger to life. It takes standard .22 Cal. Blank Cartridges obtainable everywhere. Price 50c., Superior quality $1.00 post-paid. Blank Cartridges, by express, 50c per 100.

JOHNSON SMITH & CO. Dept. 29 Racine, Wis.

Art Corner Your Pictures—Album

where you can keep them safe and enjoy them always.
Engel
 5 Styles Art Corners Colors are on sale at Photo Supply and Album counters everywhere. They are the only Quick, Easy, Artistic, No Paste, No Fold way to mount Kodak Prints. A dime brings 100 and samples to try. Write ENGEL MFG. CO. Dept. 262 471 N. Clark St., Chicago

This Beautiful Hawaiian UKULELE FREE!

Yes, absolutely free, a beautiful genuine Koa-wood finish Hawaiian ukulele, full size—given free with our new amazingly easy copyrighted Short Cut Ukulele Course. Our ukulele makes rich harmonious music to accompany impromptu singing—provides wonderful fun and entertainment anywhere any time. Finest workmanship, sweet singing tone.

Learn to Play in 1 Hour!

Think of it! You can learn to play the ukulele in one short hour by our amazing new method. Yes—only ONE hour. No weeks of drudgery. No months of hard practice. By our new copyrighted method you can be playing the sweet sounding Hawaiian Ukulele in one hour. You can accompany popular songs or amusing ditties. In a short time you can become an expert player of the ukulele. Send no money. Mail just this coupon today.

FERRY & CO., 75 W. Van Buren, Dept 1514, Chicago, Ill.
 Please send me your complete copyrighted short cut ukulele course including full size Free ukulele outfit. On arrival I will deposit $2.98, plus postage, with postman. If I am not satisfied you will refund my money.

Name
 Address City State

The Slave of Desire
 (Continued from page 59)

her a score or more of other admirers. This, of course, was not the truth. The truth was that Fedora had outlived her day of triumph. She was no longer 'the rage.' Her vile ill tempers, her maliciousness, her covetousness had all served to eclipse her beauty in the eyes of men, not so blind as they may sometimes seem, or not, anyway, for so long a while. But because she must have someone to blame it upon, Fedora blamed her downfall upon me, whom she had always, secretly, loathed.

"When I announced my coming marriage to Pauline, her venom had spread broadcast. She had done all that lay within her by no means limited power to undo my approaching nuptials, and if Pauline had not been a woman with a soul as white as Faith, she might have succeeded.

"Little wonder, then, that I shuddered and grew cold and sick when I saw this woman advancing up a precipitous incline in the immediate wake of Pauline. A slight contact, an 'accident,' and one could easily have pushed the other off any one of the precipices pitfalling the narrow trail.

"And as I looked I knew that this, just this, was what Fedora had in mind.

"In less time than my sick heart took to beat thrice, Fedora had seized upon Pauline and my beloved was struggling for her dear and precious life upon the thin edge of eternity.

"Mes amis, in that moment I knew the love that is stronger than life and more valiant than death.

"I knew, I knew to a certainty, that the Magic Skin, no larger now than a garden pea, could grant me one wish, one more, one last wish. With the uttering of that wish my depleted life would go out, as surely, with as little storm in passing, as a breath blown upon the head of a dandelion when it has gone to seed.

"My life for Pauline . . . ah, little, little enough!

"I made the wish.
 "As I made it Pauline stumbled over the edge of the fatal decline and caught securely fast to a scrubby oak or bush, growing there, and as I made it, a trickle of earth and rock and gravel came thundering thinly down the mountainside and formed for Fedora a tomb . . . a grim and final epitaph.

"C'est tout!"
 Raphael ceased, and looked about him. Still, in the golden candle-light the faces of his friends were faintly blurred with uncertainty.

"You still do not understand," the poet said. . . . "It was like this . . ."

"It was your last wish, you say," one of the group broke in, "your last wish and you were to die with it. What then?"

"As I made that last wish," Raphael said, solemnly, "I felt a chill creep over me. It was as if a mist had risen from some cold, north sea and in that mist, dimly, dimly, I saw the face of the antiquarian. The mouth moved and I seemed to strain thru the mist to hear what he might be saying and what he said was this: 'You have made with your last wish the first unselfish one you have ever uttered . . . the curse of the skin is lifted . . . you are free. . . .'"

Now the poet Raphael rose from his chair and stretched with sinuous grace. He looked about at the faces of his friends and found them clear with comprehension. He breathed a sigh of relief and his eyes sought the room from whence came the sound of a dim song, Pauline playing . . .

"C'est fini!" he smiled.

New Books In Brief Review

(Continued from page 79)

it is one long diatribe against the foremost collegiate institutions of the country, which, if we are to believe Mr. Sinclair, are in as bad a way as the American newspaper press, which he so roundly and soundly denounced in "The Brass Check."

The author claims that he spent a whole year in preparing his last book by reading "book, pamphlets, reports, speeches, letters, newspaper and magazine articles to the extent of five or six million words; traveled over America from coast to coast and back again; stopped in twenty-five American cities and questioned not less than a thousand people—school-teachers and principals, superintendents and board members, pupils and parents, college professors, students and alumni; presidents, chancellors, deans, regents, trustees, governors, curators, fellows, overseers, founders and donors, et al."

This sort of thing leaves one a little breathless, but not so the author, who keeps up the pace more or less thru-out nearly five hundred pages, leaving the reader panting behind and ever and anon mopping his brow and saying, "If this is to continue may I be given the strength to bear it." Mr. Sinclair, as usual, spoils his case to a large extent by overstatement. But if he wants to disagree with nine-tenths of his fellow creatures why not let him?

(Ninety-nine)

$2

XMAS GIFTS

$2

L 11—Platinum front bar pin with perfect cut diamond. 14 K. pin. $33.00.

L 2—Ladies seven diamond cluster resembles 2 ct. solitaire. 14 K. mounting. $62.50.

L 5—Three perfect cut diamonds set in 14 K. white gold top, mounting 14 K. green gold. $75.00.

L 16—14 K. wavy ring with 5 diamonds. $35.00.

L 3—Newest style oval watch of 14 K. white gold. High grade 15-jewel warranted movement. $24.50.

L 8—Ladies diamond cluster ring, in platinum; 18 K. white gold mounting. $52.50.

L 13—Lady's Onyx ring with fine diamond. 14 K. mounting. $16.50.

L 9—20 K. white gold ring; fine diamond set in 1/2 Karat cup. $75.00.

L 17—"Loveheart" betrothal ring, solid platinum; fine diamond in center, 4 diamonds on sides. $120.00.

L 20—Diamond set rectangular wrist watch, 14 K. white gold. High grade 15 jewel movement. Four blue white diamonds in platinum. Lifetime guarantee. $42.50.

L 18—Lady's 18 K. white gold with fine diamond in center; sapphire each side. $65.00.

L 18—Lady's 18 K. white gold hand engraved ring, with two first quality diamonds. $45.00.

L 7—Gentleman's 18 K. white gold, fine diamond in center; sapphire each side. $90.00.

L 14—Platinum front scarf pin set with perfect cut diamond. 14 K. pin. $27.50.

L 15—14 K. laval-liere; diamond center, pearl drop; 14 K. neck chain. $27.50.

L 4—Gentleman's seven diamond cluster set in platinum. $55.00.

L 19—18 K. white gold, fine blue white diamond set in lady's hand engraved ring of 18 K. white gold. $22.50.

L 12—Lady's ring of 14 K. gold set with perfect cut blue white diamond. $30.00.

L 10—Lady's 18 K. white gold with fine diamond in center; sapphire each side. $65.00.

L 18—Lady's 18 K. white gold hand engraved ring, with two first quality diamonds. $45.00.

L 7—Gentleman's 18 K. white gold, fine diamond in center; sapphire each side. $90.00.

L 14—Platinum front scarf pin set with perfect cut diamond. 14 K. pin. $27.50.

L 1—Fine diamond in 14 K. white gold top, 14 K. green gold shank. $30.00.

L 6—Gentleman's 14 K. ring fine diamond, 18 K. white gold top. $48.50.

$2.00 Brings Your Choice
NO RED TAPE—NO DELAY
 Simply send $2.00 and your choice goes to you charges paid. You have ten days in which to decide. Money back instantly if you are not satisfied as to the quality and value.

Ten Days' Free Trial
 Send only $2.00 and your choice goes to you in handsome gift box all charges paid. Guarantee Bond attesting to quality and value accompanies each shipment.

A Full Year to Pay
 Simply send $2.00 and receive your selection, all charges paid. After trial pay balance in 12 monthly payments. 10% discount for cash.

Free Royal Xmas Catalog
 The most complete catalog ever published of Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry, Silverware, Cameras, Ivory Toilet Sets, etc., sent FREE. Prices from $5.00 to $1000—quality the highest. Ten days' trial and a full year to pay on everything you order from our $2,000,000 stock. Send for your copy today. Dept. 943.

ROYAL DIAMOND & WATCH CO.
170 Broadway—New York

Stacomb

Prevents "Flying Hair" Even After Washing

Wash your hair as often as you like now, and don't worry about its untidy appearance.

Both men and women know the value of STACOMB. After a shampoo you can comb your hair just as you like it and it will stay neatly combed all day. Adds luster and leaves the hair soft.

Women find that STACOMB keeps the curl in, and is an excellent aid to permanent waving.

At all drug counters.

Tubes—35c
Jars—75c

Send coupon for Free Trial Tube.

STANDARD LABORATORIES, Inc.
750 Stanford Ave., Los Angeles, California. Dept. 3-B.
Please send me free trial tube.

Name _____
Address _____

Wrestling Book FREE

Tells how to be a great athlete and scientific wrestler—how to WIN. Startling secrets taught in wonderful lessons by world's champions Farmer Burns and Frank Gotch. Be strong, healthy, athletic. Handle big men with ease. Learn self defense. Be a leader. Men and boys, write for Free Book today. State your age. Farmer Burns School, 1519 Railway Bldg., Omaha, Neb.

Women of History

—have all known the bewitching charm of beautiful eyes. Cleopatra, Helen of Troy, and so on—down through the ages—women have swayed men and countries by the urge and appeal of the magic of their eyes.

You, too, can find the method of beautifying your eyes. Where Cleopatra darkened her lashes and eyes with charred bits of wood, modern women have a simpler and more practical way—

Delica-Brow

Delica-Brow is easy to apply—only a few seconds are required. After one application your eyes will be utterly transformed. Your lashes will be lengthened—will be darker and much more lustrous. Your brows will be arched in a perfect curved line; Then your eyes will have their proper setting.

You can purchase DELICA-BROW at the better Beauty Shops, Drug and Department Stores, or, on receipt of a dime, we will mail you a generous sample for trial. Send TODAY for your aid to beauty—DELICA-BROW.

DELICA LABORATORIES, Inc., Dept. A
30 Church St. 734 Cole St.
New York Chicago San Francisco

"DELICA" the new waterproof lipstick is also obtainable at your dealer—or a free sample will be enclosed with your sample of DELICA-BROW. Ask for it

FREE Marvo

BEAUTY BOOKLET

explaining how the FAMOUS MARVO LIQUID SKIN PIEL PREPARATION removes all surface blemishes, Freckles, Pimples, Blackheads, Eczema, discolorations, etc. Wonderful results proven. GUARANTEED absolutely Painless and Harmless. Produces healthy new skin as Nature intended you to have. Write NOW—before you turn this page—for full details and free "MARVO BEAUTY BOOKLET."

Marvo Beauty Laboratories, Inc., 1658 B'way, Dept. 82, N.Y.

Flashes from the Eastern Stars

(Continued from page 53)

the votes were for "America," with "The Spirit of '76" a heavy second.

Allan Dwan has begun production of Rex Beach's story, "Big Brother" at the Manhattan Casino, 155th Street and Eighth Avenue, New York, by filming one of the biggest scenes in the picture, using seven hundred and fifty extras in addition to the principals.

John Barrymore will return to New York in November for a four-weeks' engagement in "Hamlet," followed by a brief tour of the principal cities. Negotiations are under way for Arthur Hopkins to take the production to London in the spring. Barrymore has just completed "Beau Brummell" for Warner Brothers.

Tom Geraghty, who has been in Kennebunkport, Maine, working with Booth Tarkington on the screen version of his story, "Pied Piper Malone," which will be Thomas Meighan's next Paramount picture, has returned to the Paramount Long Island studio to begin work on the scenario. The story is an original by Mr. Tarkington and many of the scenes will be filmed at Mr. Tarkington's summer home in Maine. Mr. Geraghty said that many of the summer residents were remaining in Kennebunkport just waiting for the picture company to come. Tommy has had his transcontinental commutation ticket punched again and is back in New York after a two-months' stay at the Lasky studio in Hollywood.

Madge Kennedy has completed the second of a series of six special productions which she is making for the Kenna Corporation. The name of the new picture is "Three Miles Out," and as the title indicates, has to do with bootlegging activities in the waters surrounding New York City. The idea for the story was furnished by the famous illustrator, Neysa McMein and the production was directed by Irvin Willat. Miss Kennedy is now the star of what has been called one of the most successful and spritely musical comedies ever staged in New York. This is "Poppy," which is enjoying a run at the Apollo Theater.

Flying thru fog and rain at night, landing once in a valley when he became lost and finally skimming one hundred and fifty feet above tree and

(Continued on page 102)

Cheval Pearls with Genuine Diamond Clasp, only $5.95
(Reg. $18 Value.)

For the first time we are offering these wonderful Cheval reproductions of genuine Oriental Pearls direct to you at less than wholesale cost.

Cheval Pearls have the same delicate color, the same soft, rose tints of the genuine deep sea gems. Cheval Pearls are indestructible and are guaranteed against cracking, peeling, discoloring, or losing their gorgeous lustre. 24 inches long, perfectly matched and graduated, and fitted with solid white gold clasp set with genuine diamond, they come to you in a beautiful, velvet jewel box with satin lined removable tray.

You can order these wonderful Cheval Pearls with the understanding that if you aren't entirely satisfied or if you can duplicate them for less than $18, your money will be refunded at once. SEND NO MONEY. Just name and address. Pay postman only $5.95. We pay postage.

LAWRENCE CO., Dept. E, 1151 Broadway, N. Y.

New Way to Make Money at Home

Do you need money? National organization, Fireside Industries, has a few openings for new members. Wonderful, easy way to earn $5, $10 or more every day right in your own home. Fascinating, pleasant work. No experience needed. We teach you everything.

FREE Book Tells How

Beautiful FREE Book explains how to become a member of Fireside Industries, how you earn money in spare time at home decorating Art Novelties, how you get complete outfit FREE. Write today, enclosing 2c stamp.

FIRESIDE INDUSTRIES Department 3712 Adrian, Michigan

You, Too, Can Be ALLURING

"CUDDLE ME" DOES IT

This recent discovery of an eminent Parisian expert is held to be the most enchanting Perfume ever made. Aside from its exquisite odor, it surrounds you with an atmosphere so radiant, inviting, enticing and alluring that everyone is immediately attracted to you and cannot resist the charm it gives you. To introduce this marvelous discovery to every man and woman in America we offer you for a short time only a full sized bottle (ordinarily costing $5.00) for only $2.98. Full detailed Confidential Instructions

- how to use Cuddle-Me most effectively will be sent with each bottle. SEND NO MONEY. Just your name and address.
- dress. When Cuddle-Me arrives simply deposit $2.98 and a few cents postage with your mailman. If not satisfied, return after 7 days and we guarantee refund of your deposit.

PARIS IMPORTERS
Dept. 10 535 W. 31st Street, Chicago, Ill.

Deafness

Perfect hearing is now being restored in every condition of deafness or defective hearing from causes such as Catarrhal Deafness, Relaxed or Sunken Drums, Thickened Drums, Roaring and Hissing Sounds, Perforated, Wholly or Partially Destroyed Drums, Discharge from Ears, etc.

Wilson Common-Sense Ear Drums

"Little Wireless Phones for the Ears" require no medicine but effectively replace what is lacking or defective in the natural ear drums. They are simple devices, which the wearer easily fits into the ears where they are invisible. Soft, safe and comfortable.

Write today for our 168 page FREE book on DEAFNESS, giving you full particulars and testimonials.

WILSON EAR DRUM CO., Incorporated
277 Inter-Southern Bldg. LOUISVILLE, KY.

(One hundred)

Pert

The Waterproof Rouge

Lasts all day

DON'T allow yourself to look pinched and cold! A little Pert on your cheeks will offset any pinkness of nose and give your face that healthy freshness which is especially attractive in winter.

Pert is a cream rouge, orange-colored in the jar, but changing to a becoming pink as soon as it touches the skin. It lasts all day or evening, through dancing or walking or skating—until you remove it yourself with cold cream or soap and water. Unaffected by perspiration or even by constant powdering.

At drug or department stores or by mail, 75c. Ask to see the new Pert lip-stick with unusual mirror, 75c.

Send a dime today for a generous sample of Pert rouge. Another dime will bring you a sample of Winx, for darkening the lashes.

ROSS COMPANY
78 Grand Street
New York

Superfluous HAIR all GONE

Forever removed by the Mahler Method which kills the hair root without pain or injuries to the skin in the privacy of your own home

Send today 3 stamps for Free Booklet

D. J. MAHLER CO., 272-B Mahler Park, Providence, R. I.

Distinctive Watches

Gifts in Good Taste

SEND NO MONEY FREE TRIAL

An unusual chance to buy a dependable watch at less than half its ordinary price. As MANUFACTURERS selling direct to the public we save you both RETAIL and WHOLESALE DEALERS' profits.

$35 is a low retail price for this beautiful rectangular watch 14K white gold filled, guaranteed for 25 years—15 Jeweled fine lever escapement such as used in only very high grade watches: Engraved dial, silk bracelet—14K gold filled clasps—An elegant, accurate time-piece only....

$14.50

PRICE TO YOU SAME AS TO DEALERS

$18 is the value of this Tonneau watch—a good imported Swiss movement, handsome 14K gold filled case, guaranteed for 25 years; complete with silk ribbon and gold filled clasps.

$7

All delivery charges prepaid by us. Send No Money—Pay the postman when he delivers the watch. You risk nothing. Every watch guaranteed—wear one for 5 days. Your money back promptly if not completely satisfied. Dept. 65.

EMPIRE WATCH MFG. CO.
FROM FACTORY TO YOU
296 BROADWAY
NEW YORK, N.Y.

WRITE FOR THE MOVIES

TURN YOUR TALENT INTO MONEY
Stories Wanted by Producers

A valuable money making field Try it!—Mail us stories or ideas, in any FORM, at once for FREE examination, criticism and advice. We give our honest services to amateurs who would convert their thoughts into DOLLARS. No experience necessary.

Free booklet sent on request.

Continental Photoplay Studio
154 Nassau St., New York
Suite 1112-14, Dept. G.

OPPORTUNITY MARKET

AGENTS WANTED

AGENTS—90c an hour to advertise and distribute samples to consumer. Write quick for territory and particulars. American Products Co., 9795 American Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

HELP WANTED

Men—Women—Girls, 18 up, wanted for U. S. Government positions, $95 to $250 month. Steady. Short hours. Paid vacation. List positions free. Write today sure. Franklin Institute, Dept. D 103, Rochester, N. Y.

DETECTIVES EARN BIG MONEY. Excellent opportunity. Travel. Experience unnecessary. Particulars free. Write, George C. Wagner, former Government Detective, 1968 Broadway, New York.

HOW TO ENTERTAIN

Plays, Musical Comedies and Revues, minstrel music, blackface skits, vaudeville acts, monologs, dialog, recitations, entertainments, musical readings, stage handbooks, make-up goods, big catalog free. T. S. Denison & Co., 623 So. Wabash, Dept. 63, Chicago.

INTEREST TO WOMEN

Jewel-Like Vanity Case, Thin Model, Complete Combination, Puffs, compact powder, slide drawer contains rouge, lipstick; state shades desired, $2. Valentine, 520 Balmbridge St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS

$35.00 PROFIT NIGHTLY. Small capital starts you. Outfits sold on installments. No experience needed. Our machines are used and endorsed by Government Institutions. Catalog free. Atlas Moving Picture Co., 426 Morton Bldg., Chicago.

NEWS CORRESPONDENCE

EARN $25 WEEKLY, spare time, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 560, St. Louis, Mo.

PATENTS

PATENTS. Write for Free Illustrated Guide Book. Send model or sketch for free opinion of its patentable nature. Highest references. Prompt Attention. Reasonable Terms. Victor J. Evans & Co., 621 Ninth, Washington, D. C.

PERSONAL

ARE YOU BASHFUL, SELF-CONSCIOUS, easily embarrassed? These troubles overcome. Send dime for particulars. L. Veritas, 1400 Broadway, New York.

PHOTOPLAYS

Journalism—Photoplays—Short Stories. Plot Chart and Details free to those wishing to enter above professions or dispose of manuscripts on Commission. (The Service offered is given by Professional Authors and Editors of high standing.) Harvard Company, 433, San Francisco.

BIG MONEY IN WRITING photoplays, short stories, poems, songs, etc. Send today for free copy America's greatest magazine for writers. Filled with practical help to writing and selling. Writer's Digest, 622 Butler Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Successful Photoplays Bring Big Money. Send for our free book, "Successful Photoplays" which gives instructions on photoplay writing and marketing. Successful Photoplays, Box 43 Des Moines, Ia.

$$$ For Photoplay Ideas. Plots accepted any form; revised, criticized, copyrighted, marketed. Advice free. Universal Scenario Corporation, 208 Security Bldg., Santa Monica and Western Ave., Hollywood, Cal.

SHORT STORIES

$50 to $100 WEEKLY Writing Jokes, Epigrams and Humorous Stories for Publications. Write for details. American Institute of Humor, Office R. 414 Park Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio.

EARN $25 WEEKLY, spare time, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 560 St. Louis, Mo.

Stories and Photoplay Ideas Wanted by 48 companies; big pay. Details free to beginners. Producers' League, 441, St. Louis, Mo.

Stories, Poems, Plays, Etc., are wanted for publication. Good ideas bring big money. Submit MSS. or write Literary Bureau, 134 Hanthart, Mo.

FREE TO WRITERS—A wonderful little book of money-making hints, suggestions, ideas; the A B C of successful story and movie play writing. Absolutely Free. Just address Authors' Press, Dept. 14, Auburn, N. Y.

STAMPING NAMES

Stamp Names On Key Checks. Make $19 per 100. Some make $10 daily. Either sex. Work can be done at home, spare time. Send 25c for sample and instructions. M. Keytag Co., Cohoes, N. Y.

VAUDEVILLE

GET ON THE STAGE. I tell you how! Personality, confidence, skill developed. Experience unnecessary. Send 6c postage for instructive illustrated Stage Book and particulars. O. LaDelle, Box 557, Los Angeles, Cal.

WURLITZER

Any Musical Instrument

On Trial

Easy Payments

A few cents a day will pay. Instruments and complete outfits at factory prices direct to you.

Send for New Catalog Illustrated in Colors

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., Dept. 1519

117 E. 4th St., Cincinnati—329 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago

120 W. 42nd St., New York—250 Stockton St., San Francisco

Send me your new catalog, which illustrates and describes every new known musical instrument, many of them shown in full colors, all at lowest factory prices. Also tell me how I may have any instrument on a week's trial in my own home at your expense and without obligation, and may pay for it on your special easy payment plan.

Name _____

Address _____

(State instrument in which you are especially interested)
Copyright 1922, The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.

Easy to Play Easy to Pay

Donald Clark
Soloist with the famous Paul Whiteman's Orchestra. Victor Records by Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra are all played with Buescher instruments.

BUESCHER True-Tone Saxophone

Easiest of all wind instruments to play and one of the most beautiful. With the aid of the first three lessons, which are sent free (upon request) with each new Saxophone, you can learn the scale in an hour's practice and play popular music in a few weeks. You can take your place in a band within 90 days, if you so desire. Unrivalled for home entertainment, church, lodge or school. In big demand for orchestra dance music.

Buescher-Grand Trumpet

(12) Especially easy to blow, with an improved bore and new proportions. With the mute in, it blows so softly and sweetly that practice never annoys. A splendid home instrument.

Free Trial You will be allowed six days' free trial of any Buescher Grand Saxophone, Cornet, Trumpet, Trombone, or other instrument. Easy terms of payments can be arranged.

Saxophone Book Free

It tells which Saxophone takes violin, cello and bass parts, and many other things you would like to know. Also illustrates first lesson. Mention instrument interested in and complete catalog will be mailed free.

BUESCHER BAND INSTRUMENT CO.

Everything in Band and Orchestra Instruments
2012 BUESCHER BLOCK ELKHART, INDIANA

Buescher Band Instrument Co.
2012 Buescher Block, Elkhart, Ind.

Gentlemen:
I am interested in the instrument checked below:
Saxophone..... Cornet..... Trombone..... Trumpet.....
(Mention any other instrument interested in)

Name.....

Street Address.....

Town..... State.....

Reduce Your Flesh

in spots—

Arms, Legs, Bust
Double Chin, etc.

In fact, the entire body, or any part, can be reduced without dieting by dissolving the fat through perspiration produced by wearing my garments.

Anklets, for reducing and shaping the ankles. Send ankle measurement.
Per pair $7.00
Extrahigh . 9.00

Brassiere—to reduce bust and diaphragm . . $7.00
Neck and Chin Reducer 3.50
Double Chin Reducer . 2.50

Send for Illustrated Booklet

Dr. JEANNE M. C. WALTER FAMOUS MEDICATED REDUCING RUBBER GARMENTS

359 Fifth Avenue, New York City
Office entrance near 36th St., Suite 605

LABLACHE FACE POWDER

Against Winter's blustery snowy winds, delicate skins need protection. Lablache protects—is safe, pure, clinging, daintily fragrant, invisible.

For fifty years the choice of fastidious women.

Refuse Substitutes

They may be dangerous. Flesh, White, Pink or Cream. 50 cents a box of druggists or by mail.

SAMPLE FREE

BEN. LEVY CO.
French Perfumery, Dept. C
125 Kingston St., Boston, Mass.

Flashes from the Eastern Stars (Continued from page 100)

House tops across New Jersey and Staten Island, Eddie Stinson, famous speed flyer, reached New York last Wednesday afternoon with the first motion-picture films of the Japanese earthquake. It was one of the most reckless competitions on record to transport news pictures half-way around the world for the purpose of showing them first to the American public. Stinson was able to snatch only a few hours' sleep from Sunday until Wednesday night. As a result audiences in the Rivoli and Rialto theaters. New York City, were able to see a film record of the catastrophe twelve days after the film had left Japan, and on the thirteenth day prints were being shipped to all parts of the country. This is believed to be a speed record for the long-distance transportation of merchandise of any kind.

Bert Lytell is appearing in vaudeville for a five-weeks period.

The engagement of Sidney Olcott, producer of "Little Old New York" and "The Green Goddess," as a Paramount director on a long-term contract was announced this week by Jesse L. Lasky. Mr. Olcott's first picture for Paramount, will be Maude Fulton's play, "The Humming Bird," which had a successful run on Broadway last season. Gloria Swanson will be the star.

May McAvoy has signed a contract with Inspiration Pictures and has already begun work, playing the lead opposite Richard Barthelmess in his next production, "The Enchanted Cottage." Not only has Miss McAvoy been engaged to play in "The Enchanted Cottage," but Inspiration has taken an option on her services for subsequent productions. Those who have followed Miss McAvoy's career will be pleased to know that she is again to play under the direction of John S. Robertson, for it was with him that she created her memorable Grizel, in "Sentimental Tommy."

Following the successful launching in the East of his "Scaramouche," Rex Ingram with his wife and star, Alice Terry, has gone abroad to make a new picture. One of Mr. Ingram's most important pleasure trips will be to Ireland, his native heath. Mr. Ingram left Ireland at the age of nineteen, practically penniless, but with lots of ambi-

NO.1 NO.2
$2.63 $3.25

NO.3 NO.4
$5.90 $4.98

WEAR SEVEN DAYS FREE

OUR MARVELOUS MEXICAN DIAMONDS

have delighted thousands of customers for 18 years. They positively match genuine diamonds. Some perfect cut, some dazzling play of rainbow fire. Stand intense acid test of side by side comparison with genuine. Noted experts positively need their experience to detect any difference whatever. Perhaps the gems you admire on your closest friends are MEXICAN DIAMONDS and you never knew it. Test a MEXICAN DIAMOND FREE; you risk nothing. Wear it seven days side by side with a genuine diamond. If you see any difference, send it back; it won't cost you a cent.

HALF PRICE TO INTRODUCE

To introduce to new customers, we quote these prices which are all you pay and just half our catalog prices.

No. 1—Ladies 1 ct. Solitaire, fine 14k gold f. $2.63
No. 2—Gents Heavy Tooth Belcher, 1 ct. gem, 14k gold f. 3.25
No. 3—Ladies 3 stone Duchess ring, fine platinum finish, two 5/8 ct. first water Mex. diamonds, one blue sapphire. 5.98
No. 4—Gents Ex. Heavy Gypsy ring, platinum finish, black inlay on sides; 1 7/8 ct. first water Mex. Diamond. 4.98

SEND NO MONEY Just send name, address and slip of paper that meets around ring finger to show size. Say which ring you want. We ship promptly. On arrival, deposit price with postman if you decide not to keep it, return in 7 days and we'll refund your money. Write TODAY. Agents wanted.

MEXICAN DIAMOND IMPORTING CO.
Dept. C LAS CRUCES, N. MEX.
Exclusive Controllers of Mexican Diamonds for 18 years.

REAL PHOTOS

OF YOUR SCREEN FAVORITES

YOU admirers of the clever screen stars, just glance through this selected list of the BIG ONES. Wouldn't you like to receive by return mail, genuine photos of your Movie Favorites, size 8x10, in original poses by the Stars? They are beautiful and life-like. Wonderful value for the money. 50c each, 12 for $5.00. Make your selection NOW from this list.

Wallace Reid	Jackie Coogan
Fola Negri	Clara Bow
Mary Miles Minter	Frank Mayo
Mabel Normand	Katherine
Milton Sills	McDonald
Mary Pickford	Mae Murray
Betty Compson	Charles Ray
Anita Stewart	Nazimova
Conna Dalmage	Charles Chaplin
Pearl White	Marion Davies
Earle Williams	Richard
Rodolph Valentino	Barthelmess

or any of the other popular stars.
50c Each — 12 for $5.00

Money cheerfully refunded if not satisfactory. Send money order, U. S. bills or U. S. stamps with name and address plainly written to
S. BRAM, Dept. 142, 209 W. 48th Street, New York City
Special prices to dealers

FILM STAR REVEALS SECRET OF ALLURING EYES

Ruth Roland is enthusiastic about the new discovery that makes lashes instantly appear long and sweeping. She says: "I use it and recommend it to others. It makes the eyes seem larger and more fascinating."

It is a fragrant liquid, easily applied with a brush. It dries instantly, remains all day and does not run or rub off. It is not an ordinary cosmetic. It is absolutely harmless, and does not give a made-up or beaded effect.

Unlike other eyelash preparations Lashbrow Liquid does not harden the lashes, or cause them to become brittle and break off. It contains a pure natural oil which gives to the lashes a delicate silk curl.

Free Trial

For introductory purposes, we will send you free a generous supply of Lashbrow Liquid. And we will include a trial size of another Lashbrow product, Lashbrow Pomade, which quickly stimulates the growth of the brows and lashes. Clip this announcement and send it at once to Lashbrow Laboratories, Dept. 2312, 37 West 20th Street, New York City. Enclose 10 cents to cover cost of packing and shipping.

WRITE FOR THE MOVIES

Ideas for moving picture plays wanted by producers. Big prices paid for accepted material. Submit ideas in any form at once for our immediate examination. Or write for FREE PHOTO-PLAY BOOKLET and details of our service to Authors.

BRISTOL PHOTOPLAY STUDIOS
Suite 604F Bristol Building, New York

No Tell-Tale Circles!

A French scientist has found the natural way to remove circles under the eyes. He has composed a marvelous golden creme for restoring and reviving the dark and sunken tissues and for bringing back original freshness. Circles make you look years older and are so embarrassing. I want you to see how thousands of other pretty women drive them away.

FREE PROOF Send No Money

Through my liberal "get acquainted" offer you may now receive by mail a large 25 franc jar of Circle Creme. Send no money—only the coupon. Pay postman the special introductory price of $1.87 (plus few cents postage) on delivery. Simply follow directions and then, if you are not delighted, return the jar and I will return every penny. My present supply of Circle Creme is limited. Write Today, care Studio E. MARCELINE, 849 Washington Blvd., Chicago, U.S.A.

Send me Circle Creme (In Plain Wrapper)

Name.....
Address.....
City..... State.....

If you wish, you may send cash with coupon and save postage. Price outside U. S. $2.25 cash with order.

21 Jewel Burlington

$1 Down
Adjusted to the Second—Temperature — Isochronism — Positions — 21 Ruby and Sapphire Jewels—Cased in a 25 year Gold Strata Case. Only $1 down will bring you this masterpiece. Write today for free book to Burlington Watch Company 19th St. & Marshall Blvd., Dept. 12-79 Chicago, Ill.

PIANO JAZZ

By Note or Ear. With or without music. Short Course. Adult beginners taught by mail. No teacher required. Self-Instruction Course for Advanced Pianists. Learn 67 styles of Bass, 180 Syncopated Effects, Blue Harmony, Oriental, Chime, Movic and Cafe Jazz, Trick Endings, Clever Breaks, Space Fillers, Sax Slurs, Triple Bass, Wicked Harmony, Blue Obligato, and 247 other Subjects, including Ear Playing. 110 pages of REAL Jazz, 25,000 words. A Postal brings our FREE Special Offer. Waterman Piano School, 250 Superba Theatre Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

$3.00 On Genuine Diamonds per Month
Send No Money
Only a few cents a day places this brilliant, fiery Blue White Genuine Perfect Cut Diamond on your finger. Sent promptly for free examination. One Whole Year to Pay. Regular $75 Value. Special $48.50.
Money Back Guarantee
Amazing Bargains—Prices smashed on Million dollar stock of Diamonds, Watches and Jewelry. We save you 1/3 and treat you for any article you want to buy. Satisfaction Guaranteed.
Write for FREE Catalog
Beautifully illustrates our sensational bargains, explains credit plan which makes it easy to secure any article you desire. Get this free book TODAY! NOW!
WHY NOT LOOK PROSPEROUS
KLEIN & CO. 122 W. Madison Street, Dept. 3012, Chicago, Ill. Nearly One-Quarter Century in Same Location

High School Course in 2 Years
You can complete this simplified High School Course at home inside two years. Meets all requirements for entrance to college and the leading professions. This and thirty-six other practical courses are described in our Free Bulletin. Send for it TODAY.
AMERICAN SCHOOL
Dept. H9, 62 Drexel Av. & 55th St., © A.S. 1923 CHICAGO

tion. And now look at him! But is he not Irish?

"Whole heart and fancy free," Betty Compson arrived home from England. It was reported that she was engaged to Sir Charles Higham. She denied it emphatically . . . but they always deny it.

Livingston Platt, the famous theatrical scenic designer, has been signed to create the settings for "The Enchanted Cottage." Mr. Platt has designed most of the settings for William Harris in recent years, including such successes as "Abraham Lincoln," "Madame Pierre," and "In Love With Love." Until recently he has been at work on John Drinkwater's newest play, "Robert E. Lee."

Bryan Fox, son of the renowned "Eddie," and eldest of the "Famous Seven," who recently was promoted to a comedy directorship at the William Fox lot, is in New York visiting his father and the other six. It is his first vacation in two years. Young Mr. Fox's first comedy, "Somebody Lied," will be released shortly.

George Randolph Chester, author and former editor-in-chief of Vitagraph, has been especially engaged to edit and title "On the Banks of the Wabash." Commodore Blackton's first Vitagraph release. An all-star cast includes: Mary Carr, James Morrison, Burr McIntosh, Mary McLaren, Madge Evans and Lumsden Hare.

Locations in both California and New York will probably be used by Cecil B. De Mille in the filming of his next picture, "Triumph," which is to be started soon. The present plans call for the making of interiors in California and the exteriors in New York. "Triumph" was a Saturday Evening Post story by May Edginton and is being adapted by her for the screen.

Truth is said to be stranger than fiction and fickle fate to play peculiar caprices, with all of which, Elsie Geib, waitress in the lunchroom at the Cosmopolitan Studio is now ready to agree. For Elsie has undergone a metamorphosis that has her sister waitresses all abuzz with excitement. A fairy wand recently touched her checking pad and converted it into a movie make-up box and her ears have been attuned from "Pie à la mode, Miss" to "On the set Miss Geib." For Elsie has crystallized into a real honest-to-goodness

The Simple Secret of Caruso's Power

WHAT are the physiological reasons for a beautiful, powerful voice? In the past, this subject has been a mystery even to voice instructors. Now a great scientist has cleared up this subject. Few understand the principles involved in the Feuchtinger method—but everyone marvels at the striking results attained. A close study of the vocal mechanism of the late Enrico Caruso, preserved by scientists of his native Italy, has fully corroborated the theory and practice of the famous Eugene Feuchtinger, A. M.

For three generations, the family of Feuchtinger has been famous in the music capitals of Europe. Grand Opera stars have been trained by their method. Voices apparently lost, have been recovered. Until a few years ago, America knew nothing of this method.

American singers who desired not merely vocal training, but voice development, sought their goal in Europe.

Now Professor Feuchtinger's training is open to you. Professor Feuchtinger himself is here in Chicago. He is devoting his time to thousands of American pupils. Hundreds are being benefited where only one could have his attention before. The marvelous Feuchtinger method is perfectly adapted to instruction by mail. You can practice these wonderful, silent exercises in the privacy of your own home. The Professor, himself, follows your progress. He encourages you—answers your questions, and explains everything with perfect clearness.

Prof. Feuchtinger Guarantees to Improve Your Voice 100%

You alone are to be the judge. After faithfully following this course of training, if you are not fully satisfied, your money will be refunded. You take no risk.

If you are ambitious to sing or to speak—if you stammer or stutter, Professor Feuchtinger will help you. Everything about this wonderful method is explained in the Professor's free book, "Enter Your World." Send for it to-day. He wants you to have it.

Perfect Voice Institute

1922 Sunnyside Ave., Studio 12-79 Chicago

This Book FREE

If You Mail this Coupon!

Perfect Voice Institute

1922 Sunnyside Avenue
Studio 12-79 Chicago

Please send me your book, "Enter Your World" without charge or obligation. I have put X after the subject that interests me most.

Singing Speaking Stammering Weak Voice

Name.....

Address.....

Age.....

Genuine Blue White DIAMONDS

10 MONTHS TO PAY

When you get a chance like this to buy perfectly cut, sparkling, brilliant, blue-white, genuine diamonds, direct from diamond importers, at greatly reduced prices, you should take advantage of it by signing the coupon below. It is the opportunity of a lifetime to buy diamonds at about 40% less than retail stores charge.

JUST CHOOSE YOUR RING

RING N—$49.00
Large, extra fine quality, blue-white diamond, set in closed mounting of 18 kt. solid white gold, bow knot design. Looks like platinum. Was $75.00.

RING M—$69.00
Extra large, very fine blue-white, perfectly cut diamond set in open prong, 18 kt. solid white goldring, hand engraved. Former price was $100.00.

WEAR WHILE YOU PAY

Pay only $2.00 down to show your good faith, and we will send the diamond ring of your choice for your free inspection. If satisfied, pay only $4.70 on ring N or $6.70 a month on ring M, for ten months. These rings make unexcelled presents or engagement rings.

ORDER ON FREE TRIAL

You get a handsomely engraved guarantee certificate which specifies that every cent you paid will be returned if you are not satisfied, and return the ring within ten days. These rings will stand any test. Compare them with diamond rings costing twice as much. We allow 8% annual increase in value on exchanges.

NO RED TAPE: NO DELAY

Sign the coupon and we'll send the ring. You can pay the deposit to the postman if you prefer. Everything is very confidential. You will find it a pleasure to deal with us. We have been pleasing diamond buyers since 1879, and our values will surely please you.

NEW LOW PRICES: ORDER NOW!

Don't wait; just sign your name, and get the ring on trial before deciding if you will buy it, either for yourself or for a friend. Save 40%. The coupon makes it easy. It is the biggest bargain you will ever find.

WRITE FOR BARGAIN CATALOG

It tells you all facts about diamonds. Learn to buy wisely. It is just like having a big jewelry store full of diamonds, watches, etc. delivered right into your home. Sign the coupon right now!

STERLING DIAMOND & WATCH CO.
Diamond Importers. Established 1879
63 Park Row Dept. 1282 New York

TEAR OUT AND MAIL

STERLING DIAMOND & WATCH CO.
63 Park Row, Dept. 1282, New York, N. Y.

I have selected ring _____ Please send this ring to me in accordance with terms printed above. I am enclosing $2.00 deposit to show my good faith, and I agree to pay the balance in ten equal monthly payments as specified in this advertisement. If not satisfied, you will return my $2.

Please send your big new free catalog to me, showing diamonds, watches and jewelry at special low prices.

Name _____

Local Address _____

Town & State _____

movie actress and is now experiencing the thrill of appearing in support of Marion Davies.

The romance of Elsie had its inception just prior to the making of a big scene in "Yolanda" representing a silk carnival in the fifteenth century and called for a number of young women in serving-booths. Tom Kennedy, assistant casting director at Cosmopolitan, had happened into the lunchroom, and, noticing, the poise, easy grace and good looks of the waitress, was suddenly struck with the idea that she might qualify for a "bit" in the serving-booth. According to other players Elsie has come through with flying colors. Does she like the flickering films? Well, Elsie declares her "ham and —" days are gone forever.

Sig Schlager, official film representative for Irene Castle, has announced that the dancer is planning to return to the studio and Klieg lights for another series of pictures. Miss Castle is at the present time on tour with a dancing-act as part of her show. Robert Tremaine, her husband, is her manager as well. It is understood that Miss Castle is still married. . . .

Lou Tellegen, after an absence of about four years, is going to return to the screen. He will appear in J. Stuart Blackton's next production, "Let Not Man Put Asunder," adapted from the novel by Basil King. Mr. Tellegen has been appearing for the past year or more as a headliner on the Orpheum and Keith vaudeville circuits. A selection of equal importance has been made for the chief feminine rôle, Pauline Frederick having also been lured back to the screen for the part after an absence of about two years. Both stars, it is reported, have been engaged for the one picture only.

Whitman Bennett announces that his next special production, following "The Leavenworth Case," by Anna Katherine Green, will be another American story, but of an entirely different nature. The subject will be "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," by Edward Eggleston, and Mr. Bennett has acquired the rights direct from the heirs of the author. This book, written by a Yankee who has been on a visit to friends in Indiana was the first Hoosier novel—the forerunner of many famous stories of that district now familiar to readers.

Some spectacular scenes were shot last week by Director Flynn, who is

HOW TO GET RID OF TOO Much FAT

French Specialist Makes Startling Discovery and Tells How She Lost 50 Pounds in Two Months.

See Her Free Offer Below

So as to enable every fat man or woman to benefit by the amazing French discovery with which Europeans are now getting rid of flabby hips and double chins, I will explain, for limited time only to every one who mails coupon below, how I took off 50 pounds in 2 months. No matter how much or how little you want to reduce, or how many things you have tried in the past, you can NOW do just as I did and get a slim, beautiful figure without DIETS, EXERCISES, DRUGS, ABSURD CREAMS or APPLIANCES. I will tell you just what to do to reduce and give you the directions for which Europeans have paid thousands and which will only cost you a few cents a day to follow.

MADAME ELAINE, Dept. 22,
1819 Broadway, New York City.
Kindly explain to me confidentially what you did to reduce.
Name _____
Address _____
If you care to, enclose 5 cents in stamps to help cover expense. Print name and address.

King TUT Famous Movie Stars wear King TUT'S GOOD LUCK RING. They say it brings success, happiness, love. Over one million sold. Only original LUCKY RING, beware of imitations. Genuine silver finish. Today! $1.95, c.o.d. postpaid. Cash with order $1.75. 2 for $3.25. Be sure to send paper strip for finger size. State if men's, women's or boy's or girl's style.
GOLD WATCH CO., Dept. 281, 6301-09 South Park Ave., CHICAGO

"VICTORIA" The Necklace You Have Always Wanted For Length Full 24 inches
CELEBRATED FRENCH PEARLS
Solid White Gold Clasp Set with Genuine DIAMOND
$479
Regular List Price $22.50
Put this wonderful string of pearls next to a string of genuine oriental pearls costing hundreds of dollars, and if you can tell the difference, send it back. "Victoria" pearls are famous for their resemblance to genuine oriental pearls. Only an expert can tell them apart. "Victoria" (indestructible pearls) have the same lustre, the same exquisite coloring, and will not crack or discolor. They will retain their wonderful lustre and sheen permanently. Written Guarantee with Every Purchase.
WEAR A STRING OF VICTORIA PEARLS 10 DAYS FREE
SEND NO MONEY! Pay postman on delivery plus a few cents postage. If you are not entirely satisfied or if you decide not to keep them within 10 days, send them back and get your money. A beautiful velvet gift case free.
"VICTORIA" CO., 366 Fifth Ave. Dept M, New York

MAKE MONEY AT HOME
YOU CAN earn $1 to $2 an hour writing show cards at home in your spare time. Quickly and easily learned by our new simple "Instructograph" method. No canvassing or soliciting. We show you how, guarantee you steady work at home, no matter where you live, and pay you cash each week. Full particulars and booklet free. Write to-day.
AMERICAN SHOW CARD SYSTEM LIMITED
Authorized and Fully Paid Capital, One Million Dollars
211 Adams Bldg. Toronto, Canada.

here making exteriors for "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model" which Goldwyn is producing.

As those who recall the old Al Woods melodrama will recollect, the climax of the picture is when Claire Windsor, as the beautiful heroine, is strapped to the elevated tracks by the villain (played by Lew Cody) with the express train grinding swiftly toward her. Director Flynn spent several days working on the express track of the Ninth Avenue elevated line and obtained some satisfactory shots.

Another thrill was furnished by Flynn himself. He began life as a taxi driver, and when the story called for the machine carrying the hero, Edmund Lowe to crash into the rear of a taxicab, Mr. Flynn himself took the wheel. Going at a speed of thirty miles an hour he struck the rear of the taxi and then sent the wrecked car spinning against an electric-light pole. Nobody was injured, but an anxious moment was endured by Mr. Lowe, sitting in the rear seat and unaware of what was about to happen.

"Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model" will show many views of New York life. One moment an ambulance (supposed to be carrying the maimed body of Hobart Bosworth) speeds thru heavy Fifth Avenue traffic. Another time there is an auto chase thru Broadway "with the villain still pursuing her." Riverside Drive, and the tenement districts have also been utilized.

We have derived considerable satisfaction from the fact that lately, a great many stage and screen stars are giving subscriptions to CLASSIC as Christmas gifts. A propos of that, a curious coincidence has just happened. A certain popular star, whose name we cannot give for obvious reasons, ordered CLASSIC sent to another popular star, ditto. The recipient had also been seized with the same pleasant idea and the original giver of CLASSIC will be the getter of CLASSIC on Christmas day! We know another movie star who sends ten subscriptions yearly to the prisons and charity hospitals. And sometimes with that in mind, we try to jazz our book up a little. . . . All of which, is very pleasant and gratifying to report.

THEY OFTEN ARE

By MARY CAROLYN DAVIES

You broke my heart—Fate brings to pass,
At that, a happy ending:
For, since, I've met another lass
Who's very good at mending!

(One hundred and five)

YOU CAN PLAY THE HAWAIIAN GUITAR

Just Like the Hawaiians!

Because Our Native Hawaiian Instructors Will Show You How!

Be the Most Popular Member of Your Set, Play "When You Walked Out," "Ten Ten Tennesseer," "Stella," "Louisville Lou." All the Late Song and Dance Hits. You can play First Selection in Half an Hour—and Harmonious Chords AT ONCE.

Here is your chance to get in the swim—to learn to play the most fascinating of all instruments, the Hawaiian Guitar, just as the Hawaiians do, and in an amazingly short time. Our method is so simple, plain and easy that you begin a piece your first lesson. In half an hour you can play it! Thousands of successful students prove this to be true. It is quite astonishing to find the ease with which you can master the Hawaiian Guitar—no matter how little your knowledge of music may be you can positively learn to play by our plain and easy method.

Expert Hawaiians Teach You to Quickly Master Their Secrets of This Fascinating Music

The instructions you receive from such world famous artists as Lawrence Kaluluhi, Walter Kolomoiki, Frank Ferrer, Carl Seville and others are invaluable. A native Conservatory can even begin to give you the expert teaching and knowledge you gain through us. And remember, while it is conceded that the Hawaiian Guitar produces the sweetest music, yet its mastery by you will be simple and quick, since there are to learn to be able to play any music—popular, dance, classical, native Hawaiian airs, or old time melodies and hymns. Just think of it! You need never have read a musical note in your life! For that matter, even though you haven't the slightest knowledge of any musical instrument we guarantee to teach you how to play just like the Hawaiians!

ONLY 4 EASY MOTIONS

A Complete Conservatory Course!

Never before has such a complete and easily understood Conservatory Course in Hawaiian Guitar been offered. We are able to grant you this opportunity of quickly learning how to play the Hawaiian Guitar through acquiring the services of real Hawaiians to teach you.

How well this has been accomplished is proved by the fact that this is the only Conservatory teaching Hawaiian Guitar exactly as played by the Hawaiians. It is your good fortune as well as ours, that these Native Masters of Hawaiian Guitar came to this Conservatory to teach—and best of all

We Furnish Everything

When you enroll as a student in this Conservatory you receive FREE a handsome, sweet toned Genuine Hawaiian Guitar—valued at $15.00—52 specially arranged lessons and 52 carefully selected pieces of music, as well as all necessary picks, Steel Playing Bar, etc. There is nothing extra to buy, everything is furnished.

SEND FOR TODAY

of this remarkable course—simply fill in the coupon, mail to us and we'll gladly send you full details of our complete Conservatory Course and FREE Hawaiian Guitar Offer!

We know you will not let another day go by without enrolling as a student in this Conservatory, once you learn how quickly and easily you can master this most popular of all instruments—the Hawaiian Guitar—So mail the Coupon NOW.

First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc. Dept. 49, 233 Broadway (Woolworth Bldg.) N. Y.

Special Courses Under Famous Teachers: TENOR-BANJO VIOLIN, BANJO-UKULELE and UKULELE

This Makes a Splendid Christmas Gift

---COME ON OVER, AND BE SURE TO BRING YOUR HAWAIIAN GUITAR!

FREE
This Genuine HAWAIIAN Guitar—
A Real $15.00 Value

MAIL THIS COUPON NOW!

First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc. Dept. 49, 233 Broadway (Woolworth Bldg.), New York

Please mail at once full details of your 52 easy lessons and FREE Hawaiian Guitar offer. This, of course, does not obligate me in the least.

Name: _____
Address: _____
City: _____ State: _____

(Please PRINT name and address clearly)

FREE Fine Tone Musical Instruments

We have a wonderful new copyrighted system of teaching note music by mail! To first pupils in each locality we will give free a $20 superb Violin, Tenor Banjo, Ukulele, Hawaiian-Guitar, Banjo, Mandolin, Banjo-Ukulele, Banjo-Mandolin, Cornet or Banjo-Guitar absolutely free. Also teach Piano and Organ. Very small charge for lessons only. Four lessons will teach you several pieces. Over 100,000 successful players. We guarantee success or no charge. Complete outfit free. Write today, Dept. 138, no obligation. Slingerland School of Music, 1815 Orchard St., Chicago, Ill.

MAKE MONEY AT HOME

You can make 15 to 50 Dollars a week at Home, IN YOUR SPARE TIME. Easily learned by our New Simple Method. NO UNPAVING. EXPERIENCE UNNECESSARY. We Teach You. GUARANTEE you STEADY WORK and pay you cash no matter where you live. Write today for FREE sample lesson and illustrated Booklet.

UNITED SHOW CARD STUDIOS,
215 Dinan Building, Detroit, Mich.

Informal snapshots of famous movie stars

Just the sort of pictures you might have taken yourself had you been wandering around the studios with a kodak. They will fit in your album with your other snapshots. Any six for 25 cents.

Wanda Hawley	Rudolph Valentino	Clara Kimball Young
Jackie Coogan	Charlie Chaplin	Lloyd Hughes
Anita Stewart	Mae Murray	Tom Mix
Harold Lloyd	Wallace Reid	Baby Peggy
Charlie Ray	Hill Hary	Claire Windsor
Agnes Ayres	Wesley Barry	Priscilla Dean
Ethel Clayton	Lila Lee	Norma Talmadge
Mary Pickford	Douglas Fairbanks	Reginald Denny

MOVETTE CAMERA SHOP
401 S. Hill Street Los Angeles, Cal.

14 KT. GOLD FILLED $5.95

14 KT. WHITE GOLD FILLED $6.65

Save 1/2

Save one-half by ordering direct from us. Your choice of either high-grade watch. Octagon or round case. 14Kt. gold-filled 20-yr. case with 20-yr. gold-filled link bracelet. Full jewel. Stem wind and set. Adjusted and regulated. $12 value, our price ONLY $5.95, prepaid. Tonneau, shape 14Kt. White, gold-filled, 20-yr. case. Silk grosgrain ribbon, gold-filled clasp. Beautiful white dial. Sapphire crown, 6 jewels. Regulated, adjusted. Fully guaranteed. $15 value, our special price ONLY $6.65, prepaid. Order today. Send no money. Pay on arrival. Satisfaction guaranteed or money promptly refunded.

SUPREME JEWELRY MFG. CO.
Dept. 12355 434 Broadway, New York

Have You Made Your New Year's Vow? Why Not Resolve to Cultivate Charm?

Beauty Provides the Text-Book In

A Portfolio of Beautiful Women

BEAUTY offers your first lesson in creating charm— That is to observe beauty, to think personality, to emulate charm—

BEAUTY, in January, the month of youthful loveliness, uses in the portfolio, girls in their fascinating 'teens—the piquant, the demure, the blonde, the brunette—the naïve, the sophisticated—

BEAUTY will present in succeeding issues—girls in the sweet twenties—women of youthful maturity—and lastly, the woman of full maturity which many artists consider the age of perfected beauty—

JANUARY Beauty JANUARY

The Service Department Made More Serviceable

A reorganization of the Service Department has brought to its helm Mrs. Emilie Belmont Taylor, an authority on beauty problems. The department will now be able to serve every reader of BEAUTY, and in a more comprehensive way. When you write to her for help and advice, send a self-addressed and stamped envelope. It will speed your reply.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER FIVE MONTHS FOR $1.00

Because the New Year is the time for you to take stock of all assets and liabilities, we are making you a special introductory offer on BEAUTY, the magazine that will help you submerge your shortcomings in personal beauty and build a new loveliness—a greater charm. Follow the dotted line with a dollar, or secure a copy of BEAUTY from any news-stand, and we are confident BEAUTY will be its own best argument for your placing an order for a year's, or better still, a two years' subscription.

ON ALL NEWS-STANDS 25c per COPY

Yearly subscription price $2.50 Two years $4.50
(50c a year extra in Canada—Foreign $1.00 extra.)

Pin a Dollar Bill to this coupon and receive the next five big numbers of "Beauty" Magazine. Mail at once to BEAUTY, 175 Duffield St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Name.....
St. and No.....
City.....State.....

Mi Choice

The Aristocrat of Chocolates

The choice assortment of most frequently chosen of all the famous Bunte fine candies. Each luscious center coated with chocolate specially blended the inimitable Bunte way. The candy gift for Christmastide that bespeaks the thoughtfulness of the giver.

A Bunte
ESTABLISHED CHICAGO
1876
Candy

BUNTE BROTHERS · CHICAGO

AT DAWN, in an Oriental garden, the fragrance of a thousand flowers is blended in one exquisite scent—a delightful perfume that lingers in memory long after the colorful blossoms are gone.

... and when the landscape is flowerless, it is this very perfume that comes to you in the delicate loveliness of Florient; for in Florient extract

Colgate offers you the golden sunshine and the flower-laden air of the East.

You will be interested in the story of the famous perfume test in which Florient won first place. Let us send you a miniature test set and information on the art of choosing perfumes. Send a 2c stamp to Colgate & Co., Department 15, 199 Fulton St., New York City.

COLGATE'S

Perfumes

CLASSIC

PICTORIAL OF SCREEN AND STAGE

Colored by its ingredients Palm and olive oils—these only—impart the rich, mossy green color to Palmolive Soap. The fine, firm, long-wearing cake is colored by its rare ingredients.

While the use of these rare oils as cleansers is as old as civilization, no more perfect soap ingredients have ever been found. Modern science has developed the blend to final perfection and established Palmolive the world over as the most popular and appreciated toilet soap. Look for the famous black-banded green wrapper.

Where Beauty Begins

With thorough daily cleansing, as every skin specialist will tell you. The net-work of tiny pores which compose the surface of the skin must be kept free from accumulations of dirt, oil, perspiration and powder if you value a smooth, fine-textured complexion.

Look critically into your mirror and note what it reveals, just as if you were another girl. Don't condone defects or minimize imperfections; instead, begin at once to remedy them.

Don't resort to medication, for this is dealing with the effect and overlooking the cause. Instead, learn the proper method of cleansing which will keep your complexion smooth, fresh and firm.

Solve the soap problem first

Beautifying cleansing depends on the use of mild, soothing soap, blended from the finest, mildest ingredients. These are palm and olive oils which make Palmolive the most perfect and the most popular of all soaps.

The mild, creamy lather is lotion-like in its action, soothing and beautifying as it cleanses. Every night before you sleep you should give your face a beautifying treatment with Palmolive Soap. Massage the fragrant lather thoroughly into the skin, rinse thoroughly and dry with a soft towel. A dry skin will be benefited by the application of your favorite cold cream.

This nightly treatment gives your skin the opportunity to refresh and renew its smoothness over night, free from any irritating accumulations of foreign matter.

Cleopatra's secret

Washing for beauty is an age-old secret practised by Cleopatra. She used the same palm and olive oils which are scientifically blended in Palmolive, prizing them both as cleanser and cosmetic.

The modest price of Palmolive puts the greatest luxury of all the ages within the reach of all and allows enjoyment of its use for every toilet purpose. Let it do, too, for your body what it does for your face.

Palm and olive oils—nothing else—give nature's green color to Palmolive Soap.

Volume and efficiency produce 25c quality for

10c

Note carefully the name and wrapper. Palmolive Soap is never sold unwrapped.

J. M. CARTER

Copyright 1923—The Palmolive Co. 1936

BOTH PREMIUMS

FREE

50 inch Table Cloth and
6 Napkins, 6 Silver-Plated
Knives and 6 Forks

This superb 110-piece set, with initial in 2 places on every piece, decorated in blue and gold, with gold covered handles, consists of:

- | | |
|----------------------------|--|
| 12 Dinner Plates, 9 in. | 12 Cups |
| 12 Breakfast Plates, 7 in. | 12 Saucers |
| 12 Soup Plates, 7 1/2 in. | 12 Individual Bread and Butter Plates, 6 1/4 in. |
| 12 Cereal Dishes, 6 in. | 1 Platter, 13 1/2 in. |
| 12 Fruit Dishes, 6 1/4 in. | |

This Design and Your Initial

in Two Places on Every Piece

- | | |
|---|------------------------------------|
| 1 Platter, 11 1/2 in. | 1 Deep Bowl, 8 1/2 in. |
| 1 Celery Dish, 8 1/2 in. | 1 Oval Baker, 9 in. |
| 1 Sauce Boat Tray, 7 1/2 inches. | 1 Small Deep Bowl, 6 inches. |
| 1 Butter Plate, 6 in. | 1 Gravy Boat, 7 1/2 in. |
| 1 Vegetable Dish, 10 1/2 in., with lid (2 pieces) | 1 Creamer |
| | 1 Sugar Bowl with cover (2 pieces) |

Brings 110-Piece Martha Washington Blue and Gold Decorated Dinner Set

To fully appreciate this extraordinary bargain, you must actually see the dishes on your own table. Send only $1 and Hartman, the Largest Home Furnishing Concern in the World, will ship this complete 110-piece set of exquisite dinnerware and with it, absolutely FREE, the beautiful 7-Piece genuine "Indian Head" linene set and also the six silver-plated knives and six forks (pictured above). Use all these things on 30 Days' Free Trial. Then, if not delighted with your choice for any reason, send everything back and Hartman will not only return your $1 but also pay transportation charges both ways. If you keep them, take nearly a year to pay for the Dinner Set—a little every month. Nothing to pay either now or later for the "Indian Head" Linene Set and the Knives and Forks. They are FREE—Gifts from Hartman.

Your Initial in Gold, Surrounded by Gold Wreath, in 2 Places on Every Piece

(Gold Covered Handles)

You'll be proud to use this beautiful Colonial Martha Washington Set on every occasion—proud of its clear, white, lustrous body and unique decoration. Like the costliest china-ware, every piece is decorated with a rich gold band edge, a mazarine blue follow band and 2 pure gold initials in Old English design, surrounded by gold wreaths. Handles are of solid design, entirely gold covered. Guaranteed all firsts; no "seconds." An amazing value which you must not pass up. And if you act quickly, you also get—

IMPORTANT!

Hartman guarantees that every piece in this set is absolutely first quality—no "seconds." This is a standard or "open" pattern. Replacement pieces may be had of us for 3 years. Each piece wrapped in tissue paper. Excellent packing to prevent breakage. Shipped at once.

FREE Bargain Catalog

Over 300 pages (of which 68 are in actual colors) of the world's greatest bargains in furniture, rugs, carpets, sewing machines, silverware; also farm implements and accessories, etc.—all sold on easy monthly payment terms and 30 days' free trial. Many valuable hints on how to make your home more beautiful.

FREE GIFTS

Book explains Hartman's gift plan which brings you FREE with purchases, articles such as glassware, dishes, silverware, toilet sets, jewelry, table linens, etc. Send a postal for the big free catalog today. "Let Hartman Feather YOUR Nest!"

FREE "Indian Head" Linene Finish 50-in. Round Table Cloth and 6 Napkins to Match—also 6 Silver-Plated Knives and 6 Forks.

With every Dinner Set we send you Free the Handsome Linene Set and 6 heavy, richly patterned knives and forks. This includes a handsome 50-inch round table cloth and 6 pretty 17-inch napkins to match—all of the famous "Indian Head" linene; finished with attractive scalloped embroidered edges. Knives and forks of fine, extra heavy silver-plate in fleur-de-lis pattern. Send at once. Offer is limited.

Order by No. 320FMA22. Bargain Price, $33.85.

Pay $1 now. Balance $3 monthly. 7-Piece Linene Set, 6 Knives and 6 Forks are FREE.

Just Pin Dollar Bill to Coupon and Mail Now!

HARTMAN Furniture & Carpet Co.
Dept. 5977 Chicago, Ill.

Enclosed find $1. Send the 110-Piece Dinner Set, No. 320FMA22. Price $33.85, as described, and with the 7-Piece Linene Set and 6 Knives and 6 Forks, absolutely FREE. It is understood that if I am satisfied, I will send you $3 monthly until full price of Dinner Set, $33.85, is paid. Title remains with you until paid in full. If not satisfied, after 30 days' free trial, I will ship all goods back and you will refund my $1 and pay transportation charges both ways.

Print Initial You Want Here

Name

R. F. D., Box No. or Street and No.

Town..... State

Occupation of Head of Household

How long have you lived at present address?.....

HARTMAN FURNITURE & CARPET CO.
Dept. 5977 Copyright, 1924. Hartman's Chicago Chicago, Ill.
Largest Home Furnishing Concern in the World

1924 brings an abundance of Paramount Pictures

Compare values and you will follow the Paramount trademark

To know how to get better entertainment just compare pictures, point by point.

Story-interest!—maybe that's the biggest thing. No story can become a Paramount Picture unless it is drenched with the spirit of entertainment.

In acting and in the subtle art of the director you have your own taste. Discover what a considerable amount of the best of this reaches the screen of your theatre marked Paramount.

Splendor of staging! Luxury of dressing! Brilliancy of setting! You experienced fans have actually come to take these for granted in every Paramount Picture that requires them.

Many Paramount Pictures have been the outstanding successes of '23. "The Covered Wagon" loomed up as the biggest planet ever seen in the sky of entertainment!

1924 will see an abundance of Paramount Pictures. The excitement created by Cecil de Mille's production "The Ten Commandments" will take seasons to die down. Many other great new Paramount Pictures are coming.

Take the trouble to note the brand names of pictures. Do it and you'll appreciate that the name Paramount is a sure guide to the best show in town.

8 Current PARAMOUNT PICTURES

"To the Ladies"

A James Cruze production with Edward Horton, Theodore Roberts, Helen Jerome Eddy and Louise Dresser. From the play by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly. Written for the screen by Walter Woods.

"Big Brother"

An Allan Dwan production with Tom Moore, Raymond Hatton and Edith Roberts. Written for the screen by Paul Sloane.

"Don't Call it Love"

A William de Mille production with Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Nita Naldi, Theodore Kosloff and Rod La Rocque. From the novel "Rita Coventry" by Julian Street. Written for the screen by Clara Beranger.

"West of the Water Tower"

Starring GLENN HUNTER, with Ernest Torrence and May McAvoy. Supported by George Fawcett and Zasu Pitts. Directed by Rollin Sturgeon. Adapted by Doris Schroeder from the novel by Homer Croy.

"Flaming Barriers"

A George Melford production, with Jacqueline Logan, Antonio Moreno, Walter Hiers. By Byron Morgan. Adapted by Jack Cunningham.

"The Heritage of the Desert"

An Irvin Willatt production, with Bebe Daniels, Ernest Torrence, Noah Beery and Lloyd Hughes. Written for the screen by Albert Shelby Le Vino.

"The Humming Bird"

Starring GLORIA SWANSON. A Sidney Olcott production. From the play by Maude Fulton. Screen play by Forrest Halsey.

"Pied Piper Malone"

Starring THOMAS MEIGHAN. Supported by Lois Wilson and George Fawcett. By Booth Tarkington. Directed by Alfred E. Green. Adapted by Tom Geraghty.

Paramount Pictures

If it's a Paramount Picture it's the best show in town!

CLASSIC

PICTORIAL OF SCREEN AND STAGE

A BREWSTER PUBLICATION

Vol. XVIII

FEBRUARY, 1924

No. 6

COVER PORTRAIT—LILLIAN GISH

Painted by E. Dahl from a photograph by Kenneth Alexander

	PAGE
Now That Winter's Here—An editorial.....	11
CLASSIC'S Favorites.....	13
Music Hath Charms—To sooth the savage ciemese.....	Maudie Cheatham 14
Mme. Olga Petrova, A new camera study of the brilliant Pole.....	17
The Mutual Admiration Society, Blanche Sweet and Marshall Neilan.....	Harry Carr 18
Odious Comparisons, Between the stage and screen "Scaramouche".....	20
The Thing We Cant Escape in the Movies.....	Aldon Kelley 22
The Powers Behind the Screen, The fifth and last instalment.....	Stanton Leeds 24
La Pucelle, Famous Heroines No. 5. Pola Negri as Joan of Arc.....	25
Au Sauce Piquante, A picture page.....	28
Tiger Rose, Told in short-story form.....	Dorothy Donnell 29
Rhythm and Rebellion, An interview.....	Maudie Cheatham 34
When Lubitsch Directs.....	Harry Carr 38
On Location, Literally all over the world.....	40
CLASSIC Considers—The great and the near great.....	43
W. Somerset Maugham Is With Us Again.....	B. F. Wilson 44
The Photographer Takes the Stage, Highlights of the theatrical season.....	45
The World's Most Famous Nose, Is in "Cyrano de Bergerac," the play of the month.....	Kenneth Macgowan 48
The Movie of the Month, Is "Anna Christie".....	Laurence Reid 49
The Celluloid Critic, Mr. Reid goes to the movies.....	50
Hollywood Homes, June Mathis'.....	52
Iris In, Pertinent and impertinent screen chatter.....	H. W. Haucmann 54
The Immortal Clown, Striking and original photographic studies of Larry Semon.....	55
Flashes From the Eastern Stars, Of the stage, on the screen.....	Caught by the Editor 56
The Yankee Consul, Fictionized by.....	Norman Bruce 58
The Rejected Suitor, An English imitation of a popular American.....	63
Dixit, Richard Dix does.....	Dorothy Donnell 64
The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats.....	Harry Carr 66
The Movie Encyclopedia.....	By the Answer Man 70

Subscription $2.50 per year, in advance, including postage, in the United States, Cuba, Mexico and Philippine Islands. In Canada $3.00; Foreign Countries $3.50 per year. Single copies 25 cents postage prepaid. United States Government stamps accepted. Subscribers must notify us at once of any change in address, giving both old and new address.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, INC., AT JAMAICA, N. Y.

Entered at the Post Office at Jamaica, N. Y., as second-class matter, under the act of March 3rd, 1879. Printed in U. S. A.

Eugene V. Brewster, President and Editor-in-Chief; Guy L. Harrington, Vice-President and Business Manager; L. G. Conlon, Treasurer; E. M. Heinemann, Secretary.

EXECUTIVE and EDITORIAL OFFICES, 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Copyright, 1924, by Brewster Publications, Inc., in the United States and Great Britain.

SUSAN ELIZABETH BRADY, Editor

Adele Whitely Fletcher..... Managing Editor
 Harry Carr..... Western Representative
 A. M. Hopfmuller..... Art Director
 Duncan A. Dobie..... Director of Advertising

CLASSIC comes out on the 12th of every month, MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE on the 1st, BEAUTY on the 16th

Announcement for March

Fortunate Misfortunes is the title of an absorbingly interesting story on the lame, the halt, the blind, the grotesque and the abnormal who have made a pilgrimage to Hollywood, and made a fortune from Hollywood. You have seen all these lucky misfits on the screen.

Jim Tulley has written a most beautiful and understanding story on that still unfathomed genius of the screen, Charlie Chaplin. John Decker has illustrated it with a cartoon signed by Charlie himself.

CLASSIC, in its dual rôle of Stage and Screen Pictorial, offers the greatest number and the most beautifully reproduced pictures of any other magazine in its class. If it's beautiful, it's in CLASSIC.

Current Stage Plays

(Readers in distant towns will do well to preserve this list for reference when these spoken plays appear in their vicinity.)

Ambassador.—"The Dancers." Gerald Du Maurier's old-time British melodrama is both smart and picturesque. Richard Bennett, Florence Eldridge and Kathleen MacDonnell play the principal rôles. Mr. Bennett's daughter, Barbara, is the most audacious of the dancing girls.

Apollo.—"Poppy." A musical comedy concerning a strolling swindler and his daughter; W. G. Fields and Madge Kennedy in the leading rôles.

Belasco.—"Laugh, Clown, Laugh!" An English version of Fausto Martini's "Ridi, Pagliaccio," Lionel Barrymore's characterization of the love-lorn clown who is forced to give up Simonetta, the girl he loves, because she loves another, is a stirring performance. Irene Fenwick plays the rôle of Simonetta. Barrymore is superb.

Belmont.—"Tarnish." A finely acted play about a once idle rich family, now fallen to a state where the salary of the daughter keeps the wolf from the door. Ann Harding does some excellent acting as the daughter.

Bijou.—"The Whole Town's Talking." A farce by John Emerson and Anita Loos, well-known motion-picture scenarists, written around a movie director who ignores the Eighteenth Amendment.

Booth.—"The Seventh Heaven." Hand-made on melodramatic pattern in a Montmartre tenement in Paris, of an admixture of love, regeneration, humor and unreality. An excellent performance with Helen Menken starring.

Broadhurst.—"Topics of 1923." Shubert's new spectacular revue of dance music, and beauty, brings back the charming French comedienne, Alice Delysia. The cast includes many other well-known and popular principals.

Carroll.—"Kid Boots." Eddie Cantor in a musical comedy glorifying the game of golf. The cast includes Mary Eaton and many others and a large Ziegfeld chorus.

Casino.—"Wildflower," in which the lovely Edith Day flashes thru an exquisite musical score.

Century.—"The Miracle." A spectacular pantomime by Dr. Karl Vollmoeller, with Lady Diana Manners, Werner Kraus and Maria Carmi. Personally staged and directed by Prof. Max Reinhardt.

Colonial.—"Runnin' Wild." A negro revue. The cast includes F. E. Miller and A. L. Lyles, the stars who helped make "Shuffle Along" a success.

Comedy.—"The Shame Woman," by Lulu Vollmer, author of "Sun Up," is also a story about the Carolina mountain folk, in which a small-town Lothario wrecks the lives of two ignorant and innocent mountain girls, one the foster daughter of the other. Extremely well acted.

Cort.—"The Swan." Eva Le Gallienne and an all-star cast in Ferenc Molnar's comedy of romance and imaginary royalty. Not at all "Graustarkian," however. Very subtle, witty, deft, sophisticated in performance and lines. Typically Molnar and as brilliant and unsatisfactory as Shaw.

Daly's.—"Sharlee." A musical comedy by Harry L. Cort and George L. Stoddard, with Juliette Day, a most charming heroine. The cast also includes Otilie Corday, Eddie Nelson, Frances Arms and Sydney Grant.

Elliott.—"Rain." A bitter tragedy by Somerset Maugham; a violent attack on the repressions of Puritanism. Jeanne Eagels is superb in the leading rôle.

Eltinge.—"Spring Cleaning." A tense and bitterly comic drama exposing the depravity of the degenerate rich and the general stupidity of preoccupied husbands. The cast includes Arthur Byron, Violet Heming, A. E. Matthews and Estelle Winwood, a quartet of notable leading men and women.

Empire.—"The Lady." An indictment against "the stage-door Johnny" in which Mary Nash, as the dance-hall girl and later as the grey-haired mother, points a new way to become The Lady. A fine piece of emotional acting, a play full of the atmosphere of France, its locale, wit, and humor.

Forty-ninth.—"For All of Us." A comedy given to moralizing, in which William Hodge, the author, plays the rôle of the laborer, who chances into a rich home, the members of which have permitted their lives to become somewhat entangled and, in a varying Irish accent, conveys the message of right thinking and right action as cures for bodily ills and sets three lives straight.

Frazee.—"The Heart of Cellini." Anthony Wharton's play with Lionel Atwill and Elsie Mackay.

Frolic.—"Hurricane." A strange and interesting play dealing with prostitution, by Olga Petrova, with Olga Petrova, Lewis Willoughby, John Kingsberry, Camilla Dalberg and others.

Fulton.—"One Kiss." An operetta from the French about a love affair in which the young man's father and the girl's mother pretend to be wealthy, altho both are very poor. When the parents learn the truth about each other, they try to break up the match, but the girl wins over a rich uncle and gets a fortune for her lad and all ends well.

Gaiety.—"Aren't We All?" Cyril Maude in a delightful light comedy that revolves around a philandering husband and an indiscreet wife. Mr. Maude in a Grumpyish character sets a rare pace of fun and his support keeps it up.

Garrick.—"The Failures." A strange and fascinating play from the French of Lenormand in which all its characters are failures. One, a young poet, marries a girl who becomes an actress with a small road company and later makes the last sacrifice and yields to a casual admirer in order to provide for her husband. Jacob Ben Ami, Dudley Digges and Winifred Lenihan are included in the cast.

Globe.—"Stepping Stones." One of the best of Fred Stone's musical comedies, in which his daughter, Dorothy, does some exceptionally good dancing and singing and rivals her own father.

Greenwich Village.—"White Cargo." Leon Gordon's vivid play about a young Englishman who succumbs to the wiles of a half-breed in the absence of white women on the West coast of Africa. The cast includes Conway Wingfield, Richard Stevenson and A. E. Anson.

Harris.—"The Nervous Wreck." An excellent farce by Owen Davis. Otto Kruger plays the part of the nervous wreck, a young clerk, sent West to cure himself of the diseases he imagines he has. He wishes to be left alone to die peacefully, but June Walker, as the entrancing heroine, tries to run away with him and thus starts an endless amount of trouble for him.

Hudson.—"Sancho Panza." A drama in which the story divides honors with the ballet. It deals with Sancho Panza as governor of the City of Barataria and offers a colorful rôle for Otis Skinner. Romantic and utterly charming.

Imperial.—"Mary Jane McKane." A musical comedy by Oscar Hammerstein 2nd and William Cary Duncan, with Mary Hay, Hal Skelly, Dallas Welford, Kitty Kelly, Stanley Ridges and Eva Clark.

Jolson's.—"The Blue Bird." Maeterlinck's fantasy of our search for happiness, replete with pictures of the most weird and beautiful things of earth and the most mystifying things of heaven—a fairy tale for the children—exquisite mysticism for the adult.

Klaw.—"Meet the Wife." A bright and witty comedy about a modern mother who is rushing the engagement of her daughter to a dumb young artist while she is really in love with a New York newspaper re-

(Continued on page 8)

Classic Lists the Plays in New York That You Should See

☞

Tarnish
The Swan
Sancho Panza
Stepping Stones
Cyrano de Bergerac
Laugh, Clown, Laugh!

Now $1.89

For the Genuine
ZARA VANITIES

To distribute the Genuine Zara Vanities at once among those who have not had an opportunity of obtaining them we are now making a special offer on both our fascinating, new styles. One, you wear on a ribbon bracelet like a wrist watch — the other, around your neck as a sautoir. They are the daintiest compact cases you ever saw and so convenient to carry. You know how much bother it is to carry a powder puff or an ordinary, big compact in your coat pocket or purse. A Zara Vanity will solve this problem to your lasting satisfaction. You will be perfectly delighted with one of these little cases.

Used as Wrist
Watch

A Vanity that is Worn Like a Wrist Watch

This wrist vanity is charming and distinctive. It is worn like a wrist watch on a ribbon bracelet with an attractive clasp to match the case in gold or platinum finish. Inside is a small compact of delicately scented powder, a mirror which reflects your whole face and a puff just big enough for the touch of powder that assures perfect grooming.

A Dainty Zara Sautoir Vanity

If you desire, you may have this dainty sautoir vanity. It looks just like an elegant little locket. You wear it around your neck on a long black gros grain ribbon. Every ribbon is complete with a slide with gold finish to match the vanity. This lovely vanity also contains a powder compact, mirror and puff.

The Sautoir
or Locket Style

Two Popular Styles

Zara Vanities

Only $1.89!

Mail This Coupon NOW! Send No Money!

You do not have to send a penny for one of these popular Zara Vanities. Just pay the postman the small sum of $1.89 plus postage when it arrives. Mark on the coupon whether you want a Zara Wrist or Sautoir Vanity and the finish you desire. After you receive your vanity, you have three days in which to decide. Show it to your friends. Think how they will envy you when they see you with one of these chic vanities on your wrist or hanging from a gros grain ribbon around your neck. You will just love to wear your Zara. But if you are not perfectly satisfied, return the vanity within the three days and your money will be refunded.

Fill out the coupon and mail it right away. There is no additional charge for the wrist bracelet or neck ribbon. Don't delay ordering until the limited supply is gone. Send the coupon TODAY!

ZARAVAN COMPANY, 311 River Street,
Dept. 12-72 Chicago, Ill.

ZARAVAN COMPANY, Dept. 12-72
311 River Street, Chicago, Ill.

Will you please send me a Zara Vanity in the style and finish indicated below. I will pay the postman $1.89 and postage when it arrives. I understand that if I am not satisfied, I can return the vanity within 3 days and my money will be refunded.

(Please check style and finish desired)

- Zara Wrist Vanity Platinum Finish
 Zara Sautoir Vanity Green Gold Finish

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____

If there is likely to be no one at home when the Vanity arrives it is advisable to enclose a post office or express order for $1.89. You may do this if you choose.

MOVIE STAR TEARS UP HER CONTRACT WORTH $250,000

Samuel Goldwyn Has Turned Author, and In His Book "Behind the Screen" Many Startling Secrets Are Told.

Every Movie Fan
Should Have a Copy of This Book

"Behind the Screen" is the book of the day, in the world of motion pictures. Delightfully entertaining, astoundingly personal, exceedingly educational—"Behind the Screen" cannot help but win your instant approval.

Most of the "Stars" have worked for Mr. Goldwyn and he knows them as well as they know themselves. He has fought with them over contracts—he has dined with them in their homes—and in his book he takes you, actually, Behind the Screen.

All who read this book will have many a good laugh—and perhaps a cry or two. Your copy is waiting for you at a bargain price. The regular price is $2.50.

$5.00 Value For
Only $3.50

So thoroughly does the Motion Picture Magazine appreciate "Behind the Screen," that by special arrangement provision has been made to give every devotee of the "Pictures" an opportunity to obtain a copy of Mr. Goldwyn's book at a remarkably low price. For a limited time only, we offer you twelve big consecutive numbers of the Motion Picture Magazine with a copy of "Behind the Screen," for only $3.50—regular value for both $5.00. By placing your order at once, you save $1.50.

----- CUT HERE -----
SPECIAL ORDER COUPON

Motion Picture Magazine
Department C2
175 Duffield Street
Brooklyn, N. Y.

Please enter my name on your mailing list to receive the Motion Picture Magazine for one year commencing . . . and also send me a copy of "Behind the Screen." I have checked below the method of payment I prefer.

$3.50 enclosed to pay in full, postage prepaid.
$1.00 enclosed—balance of $2.50, plus postage will be paid Postman upon delivery of book.

Name
St. and No.
City
State

For Canada add 75c—Foreign $1.25

Current Stage Plays

(Continued from page 6)

porter. The performances of Mary Boland, as the mother, and Eleanor Griffith, as the daughter, are perfect.

Knickerbocker.—"The Lullaby." An Edward Knoblock drama starring Florence Reed. This is the story of a sinning woman's life, seventy-five years of it.

Liberty.—"The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly." A lively musical comedy by George M. Cohan, with Virginia O'Brien, Emma Haig, Jack McGowan, Bobby Watson and others.

Little.—"Chicken Feed." A comedy dealing with small-town life, setting forward what happens about the fifteenth year of married life. Roberta Arnold is featured.

Longacre.—"Little Jessie James." A musical comedy with Nan Halperin as Little Jessie. The Paul Whiteman band, dubbed the "James Boys," takes care of the orchestration.

Lyceum.—"Little Miss Bluebeard." A diverting musical drama in which the piquant comedienne, Irene Bordoni, is equipped with four delightful songs and twice that number of delightful gowns. The climax reveals a situation that comes as a complete surprise to nine-tenths of the audience.

Henry Miller.—"The Changelings." A comedy by Lee Wilson Dodd. The cast includes Henry Miller, the producer, Blanche Bates, Ruth Chatterton, and Laura Hope Crews.

Morocco.—"The Other Rose." A comedy by George Middleton, adapted from the French of Edouard Bourdet, with Fay Bainter, Henry Hull, Effie Shannon and Carlotta Monterey.

Music Box.—"Music Box Revue." A new edition of Irving Berlin's extravagant display of beauty and humor.

National.—"Cyrano de Bergerac." Walter Hampden in a perfect interpretation of Rostand's poetizing, swashbuckling hero with a grotesque nose who is in love with his cousin Roxane (Carroll McComas). The piece is beautifully mounted and thoroly worth seeing.

New Amsterdam.—"Ziegfeld Follies." The 1923 edition of the Follies has many of the famous vaudeville headliners, including Bert Wheeler, and a wealth of beautiful girls.

Palace.—"Keith Vaudeville. Always a good bill, and drawing more and more talent from the headliners of the regulars.

Playhouse.—"Chains." A drama in which the heroine (Helen Gahagan) insists upon bearing her share of the blame following an affair with a young man.

Plymouth.—"The Potters." A stimulating domestic comedy by J. P. McEvoy, with Mary Carroll, Donald Meek and Catherine Calhoun Doucet.

Princess.—"Sun Up." A passionate tragedy of the North Carolina mountain folk. The widow Cagle is superbly played by Lucile La Verne.

Punch and Judy.—"Go West, Young Man." A satirical comedy. Poorly acted with the exception of one member of the cast, a sweet and pretty newcomer, Kay Johnson.

Republic.—"Abie's Irish Rose." An amusing study in temperaments of the Irish and Jew in which the irreconcilable is reconciled thru emotion. Terrible, but incredibly popular.

Ritz.—"The Business Widow." A comedy from the German of Alexander Engel and Hans Sassen, adapted by Gladys Unger, with Leo Ditrichstein, Lola Fisher, Adrienne Morrison, John Davidson, Marjorie Wood, Elwood Bostwick, Gaby Fleury and others.

Selwyn.—"Mr. Battling Buttler." A peppy musical comedy about a husband who impersonates a prize-fighter having the same name as his, which enables him to steal away from his wife on many supposed training trips. Very funny.

Shubert.—"Artists and Models." A revue; the professional version of the Illustrators' Show. It includes sketches by James Montgomery Flagg, Henry Wagstaff Cribble and Clarence Buddington Kelland. Adele Klaer, who acts, paints and writes poetry has the lead.

Thirty-ninth Street.—"The Alarm Clock." A comedy adapted by Avery Hopwood, from the French of Maurice Hennequin and Roman Coolus. The cast includes Blanche Ring, Bruce McRae, Marion Coakly and others.

Times Square.—"Pelleas and Melisande." Jane Cowl looking as beautiful as a fairy-book princess and Rollo Peters almost as beautiful as John Barrymore in "The Jest" of a few seasons ago. Everybody looks beautiful and acts well, but the play is disappointing, the fault of the playwright, one Maurice Maeterlinck. Too bad, because a great deal of money and brains have been spent on the production.

Vanderbilt.—"In the Next Room." Mrs. August Belmont offers a thrilling melodrama which centers about the mysterious murder of two men in the "next room." What Percy Hammond refers to as the "Who-done-it? drama." Better than the best of this breed.

Winter Garden.—"Greenwich Village Follies." Fifth edition. Typical John Murray Anderson revue; much beauty, a little music, less wit. Glorified vaudeville.

OSTIA

By GORDON MALHERBE HILLMAN

Red-golden was the galley and her sail was dark as wine,
Her oars were flashing silver and her mast was carven pine,
With awnings rich in silken stuffs; amber, white and corn,
By Ostia, by Ostia, before the breath of dawn!

Clean from the salt of marshes, with her prow like a burnished brand
Set straight for the dim-seen watchers on the wall above the sand,
Whipped by the slashing spindrift and blinded by the spray
We drove her into Ostia before the break of day!

Right gallant was the harbor in the glitter of the dawn
With sails in blue and crimson and the roadstead dull saffron,
And all the flags aflutter before a haze of trees,
And rolling Roman sailormen asleep along the quays!

TO A CERTAIN MAN

By MARY CAROLYN DAVIES

You are not worth two women's thought,
Too small a man to make such stir;
For this, and not because I ought,
I give you up to her.

I have no will to be unkind,
Only relief that all is done;
I can but hope that she will find
Enough in you for one.

She Dares to Tell the Truth About Love and Marriage!

Elinor Glyn, famous author of "Three Weeks," has written an amazing book that should be read by every man and woman—married or single. "The Philosophy of Love" is not a novel—it is a penetrating searchlight fearlessly turned on the most intimate relations of men and women. Read below how you can get this daring book at our risk—without advancing a penny.

WILL you marry the man you love, or will you take the one you can get?

If a husband stops loving his wife, or becomes infatuated with another woman, who is to blame—the husband, the wife, or the "other woman?"

Will you win the girl you want, or will Fate select your Mate?

Should a bride tell her husband what happened at seventeen?

Will you be able to hold the love of the one you cherish—or will your marriage end in divorce?

Do you know how to make people like you?

If you can answer the above questions—if you know all there is to know about winning a woman's heart or holding a man's affections—you don't need "The Philosophy of Love." But if you are in doubt—if you don't know just how to handle your husband, or satisfy your wife, or win the devotion of the one you care for—then you must get this wonderful book. You can't afford to take chances with your happiness.

What Do YOU Know About Love?

DO you know how to win the one you love? Do you know why husbands, with devoted, virtuous wives, often become secret slaves to creatures of another "world"—and how to prevent it? Why do some men antagonize women, finding themselves beating against a stone wall in affairs of love? When is it dangerous to disregard convention? Do you know how to curb a headstrong man, or are you the victim of men's whims?

What Every Man and Woman Should Know

- how to win the man you love.
- how to win the girl you want.
- how to hold your husband's love
- how to make people admire you.
- why "petting parties" destroy the capacity for true love.
- why many marriages end in despair.
- how to hold a woman's affection.
- how to keep a husband home nights.
- things that turn men against you.
- how to make marriage a perpetual honeymoon.
- the "danger year" of married life.
- how to ignite love—how to keep it flaming—how to rekindle it if burnt out.
- how to cope with the "hunting instinct" in men.
- how to attract people you like.
- why some men and women are always lovable, regardless of age.
- are there any real grounds for divorce?
- how to increase your desirability in a man's eye.
- how to tell if someone really loves you.
- things that make a woman "cheap" or "common."

ELINOR GLYN
"The Oracle of Love"

Do you know how to retain a man's affection always? How to attract men? Do you know the things that most irritate a man? Or disgust a woman? Can you tell when a man really loves you—or must you take his word for it? Do you know what you MUST NOT DO unless you want to be a "wall flower" or an "old maid"? Do you know the little things that make women like you? Why do "wonderful lovers" often become thoughtless husbands soon after marriage—and how can the wife prevent it? Do you know how to make marriage a perpetual honeymoon?

In "The Philosophy of Love," Elinor Glyn courageously solves the most vital problems of love and marriage. She places a magnifying glass unflinchingly on the most intimate relations of men and women. No detail, no matter how avoided by others, is spared. She warns you gravely, she suggests wisely, she explains fully.

"The Philosophy of Love" is one of the most daring books ever written. It had to be. A book of this type, to be of real value, could not mince words. Every problem had to be faced with utter honesty, deep sincerity, and resolute courage. But while Madame Glyn calls a spade a spade—while she deals with strong emotions and passions in her frank, fearless manner—she nevertheless handles her subject so tenderly and sacredly that the book can safely be read by any man or woman. In fact, anyone over eighteen should be compelled to read "The Philosophy of Love"; for, while ignorance may sometimes be bliss, it is folly of the most dangerous sort to be ignorant of the problems of love and marriage. As one mother wrote us: "I wish I had read this book when I was a young girl—it would have saved me a lot of misery and suffering."

Certain shallow-minded persons may condemn "The Philosophy of Love." Anything of such an unusual character generally is. But Madame Glyn is content to rest her world wide reputation on this book—the greatest masterpiece of love ever attempted!

SEND NO MONEY

YOU need not advance a single penny for "The Philosophy of Love." Simply fill out the coupon below—or write a letter—and the book will be sent to you on approval. When the postman delivers the book to your door—when it is actually in your hands—pay him only $1.98, plus a few pennies postage, and the book is yours. Go over it to your heart's content—read it from cover to cover—and if you are not more than pleased, simply send the book back in good condition within five days and your money will be refunded instantly.

Over 75,000,000 people have read Elinor Glyn's stories or have seen them in the movies. Her books sell like magic. "The Philosophy of Love" is the supreme culmination of her brilliant career. It is destined to sell in huge quantities. Everybody will talk about it everywhere. So it will be exceedingly difficult to keep the book in print. It is possible that the present edition may be exhausted, and you may be compelled to wait for your copy, unless you mail the coupon below AT ONCE. We do not say this to hurry you—it is the truth.

Get your pencil—fill out the coupon NOW. Mail it to The Authors' Press, Auburn, N. Y., before it is too late. Then be prepared to read the most daring book ever written!

The Authors' Press, Dept. 416, Auburn, N. Y.

Please send me on approval Elinor Glyn's masterpiece, "The Philosophy of Love." When the postman delivers the book to my door, I will pay him only $1.98, plus a few pennies postage. It is understood, however, that this is not to be considered a purchase. If the book does not in every way come up to expectations, I reserve the right to return it any time within five days after it is received, and you agree to refund my money.

De Luxe Leather Edition—We have prepared a Limited Edition, handsomely bound in Royal Blue Genuine Leather and lettered in Gold, with Gold Tops and Blue Silk Markers. No expense spared—makes a gorgeous gift. If you prefer this leather edition—as most people do—simply sign below, place a cross in the little square at the right, and pay the postman only $2.98 plus postage.

Name.....
(Write your name and address plainly)

Address.....

City and State.....

IMPORTANT—If it is possible that you may not be at home when the postman calls, send cash in advance. Also if you reside outside the U. S. A., payment must be made in advance. Regular Edition $2.12. Leather Edition, $3.12. Cash with coupon.

After Thirty—can a woman still gain the charm of "A Skin You Love to Touch"?

SOME women have a better complexion at thirty or thirty-five than they ever had in their twenties.

The reason is simply that they have learned to take better care of their skin.

At twenty, contrary to popular tradition, a girl's complexion is often at its worst.

Too many sweets—late hours—and, above all, neglect of a few simple rules of skin hygiene, result in a dull, sallow color, disfiguring blemishes, and ugly little blackheads.

By giving your skin the right care you can often gain a lovelier skin at thirty than you ever had before.

Remember that each day your skin is changing; old skin dies and new takes its place. Whatever your complexion has been in the past—by beginning, now, to give this new skin the treatment it needs, you can gradually build up a fresh, clear, radiant complexion.

The cause of blackheads and blemishes

Blackheads are caused by dirt and oil collecting in the pores of your skin. A large-pored skin, or one that is much exposed to dust and soft-coal smoke, is especially susceptible to blackheads. Blemishes are generally the result of infection from bacteria carried by dust into the pores.

Don't neglect defects like black-

Often the best of life doesn't begin for a woman until she is thirty. Often it is only then that she begins to realize herself and her own possibilities. Don't think of your age, whatever it is, as a limitation—think of it as an opportunity! Use the knowledge you have gained from life to overcome past faults and disadvantages. Make up your mind to be lovelier every year—and you will be!

heads or blemishes. They can easily be overcome by the following two treatments:—

To Free your Skin from Blemishes

Just before you go to bed, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes, then rinse very carefully, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

Use this treatment until the blemishes have disappeared, then continue to give your face, every night, a thorough bath in the regular Woodbury way, with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water, ending with a dash of cold water. In this way you can guard against a re-appearance of the blemishes.

A Special Treatment for Blackheads

Every night before retiring, apply hot cloths to your face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough washcloth work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold. If possible rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

To remove blackheads already formed, substitute a flesh brush for the washcloth in this treatment. Then protect the fingers with a handkerchief and press out the blackheads.

Special treatments for each different skin need are given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap. Follow the treatment you need regularly and see how much clearer your skin will become and what a world of difference it will make in its attractiveness.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake of Woodbury's lasts a month or six weeks for regular use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments. Woodbury's also comes in convenient 3-cake boxes.

Three Woodbury skin preparations—guest size—for 10 cents

THE ANDREW JERGENS CO.
902 Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

For the enclosed 10 cents—Please send me a miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations, containing:

A trial size cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap
A sample tube of Woodbury's Facial Cream
A sample box of Woodbury's Facial Powder
Together with the treatment booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 902 Sherbrooke St., Perth, Ontario. English Agents: H. C. Quelch & Co., 4 Ludgate Square, London, E. C. 4.

Name

Street

City State

Cut out this coupon and send it to us today

Now That Winter's Here—

“IF winter comes, can spring be far behind—” was first the thought of a poet, and then a novelist took it for the theme of his story. Now we are moved thereby, to a brief, humble editorial.

For winter is here, in fact and fancy, for numberless motion-picture workers. The shut-down of so many of the big studios, even tho it is temporary, has turned the world upside down for great and small alike in this industry. But, of course, anyone with half an eye could see that things could not go on the way they were: with production costs mounting higher and higher; pictures in quantity piling up and piling up; salaries going the same gait from prop boy up; time, meaning money being flung away; competition forcing the expenditure of unprecedented sums, and so on and so forth, ad nauseam.

Now there never was a great revolution accomplished without the shedding of blood. No change, however trivial, has ever taken place without a disturbance of some sort. There can be no readjustment without pain. And you who are down in the valley now, who are out of jobs and facing the chill of an unknown future, no matter how intolerable you find the situation, take heart. The discomfort and suffering is only a question of time—nothing else; and when you know a thing is temporary and will pass, you can stand it. If one just finds the courage to stick it out—why spring will come again, and the movies and its great army of adherents will once more take their rightful places in the sun.

These things we know to be true.

Photograph by Aug. Rupp, Berlin

White Studio

Billie Burke

Not content to be the beautiful wife of the most noted beauty connoisseur in the country, Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld, professionally known as Billie Burke, must add new laurels to her crown each year in the drama. This year she opens late in a comedy whose title is not yet announced

Classic's Favorites

These Two Men Are Classic's Favorite Movie Stars and We Dont Care Who Knows It

Photographs by Richee

Theodore Roberts is the dean of cinema character actors. He has played more fathers, uncles and grandfathers than any other man on the screen. He is lovable, crotchety, irascible, endearing, unreasonable, peppery, gallant and adorable as the case may be. He has just completed "The Ten Commandments," in which he portrayed the patriarch Moses with great dramatic dignity. Just at present he is on tour in vaudeville

The spectacular rise to fame on the screen of Ernest Torrence is known to everyone. From the lightest of musical-comedy comedians he became the heaviest of moving-picture villains. He is booked up for months ahead always. In "The Covered Wagon," altho he was unregenerate to the end, he had his endearing moments, and in "Ruggles of Red Gap" he was wholly amusing. In "West of the Water Tower" he has a profoundly moving part—a disappointed father. We, personally, go to see any picture that boasts of him in its cast

Music Hath Charms—

By
MAUDE CHEATHAM

A great deal of fun is poked at the necessity for music as an aid to emotion, but it really serves a practical purpose. Left is Gladys Hulette having her heart stirred by the studio orchestra. Below is Marshall Neilan's string quartette, of which he makes persistent use in all his pictures. This shot was taken during the making of "The Rendez-vous"

"OF all the liberal arts," said Napoleon the Great, "it is music which has the greatest influence over the passions."

This pertinent comment is recalled as we contemplate an illuminating phase of the motion-picture industry, which is the development of music as a technical tool, both in the filming and presentation of photoplays.

Music and drama have always been more or less closely allied and as far back as Shakespeare and his fellow dramatists of the Elizabethan period—which was pre-eminently an age of minstrelsy—plays were studded with exquisite lyrics to be sung to music. In fact, in glancing thru Shakespeare's few stage directions there will be found many such orders as "Music and Song," clearly showing his idea of combining the two arts in telling a story.

The dramatic use of music probably had its birth in the early melodramas which interpolated incidental melodies to create atmosphere and heighten certain effects. The suggestion of the raging storm—the villain's deadly work and the pensive home-coming of the lovely heroine—all these were intensified by descriptive music. It glorified the love scenes too, endowing them with the glamour of romance that even the cleverest actor and stage setting failed to meet.

Every human emotion has its own musical note, or perhaps a combination of notes that coincides and emphasizes its meaning.

Richard Wagner's wonderful success in setting great dramatic themes to music is given a concise description by Bernard Shaw, an ardent admirer of the composer. He says: "The main leading motifs are so emphatically impressed upon the ear while the spectator is following a strong dramatic expression that a requisite association is formed unconsciously."

This is precisely what is being done today in motion pictures.

To Geraldine Farrar is given the credit of first realizing the tremendous aid music brings to actors and directors in their work before the camera.

When she began filming her operatic success, "Carmen," Miss Farrar found it impossible to get into the spirit of the story without the familiar music and asked that the score be played in the studio the same as if she were acting in the theater. Now there is seldom a scene demanding emotional expression that is made without appropriate musical setting.

The great studios in Hollywood regularly employ many skilled musicians, ready with a large repertoire in order to meet all dramatic exigencies.

While large orchestras are frequently needed for certain elaborate scenes, the usual combination consists of a piano or movable organ, violin and cello, which furnishes the accompaniment for the tense moments that thrill thousands of film fans thruout the world.

Under this influence the actor loses his self-consciousness and readily drops into a natural grace, as well as responding to the rhythm, emotionally.

It quickens the blood that warms the heart and tho the wise ones insist that its appeal is only to the emotions—never binding the intelligence, for it carries no definite ideas, it certainly creates eloquent backgrounds upon which the sentiments and passions play.

Cecil De Mille keeps a violinist on his pay-roll the year around and uses this music for every scene. When the occasion demands it, he adds other instruments. This he does entirely for his players and he allows them to choose their favorite selections.

He believes, however, that music lessens the director's critical capacity, which should be ever active, and I have seen him many times sitting with his fingers in his ears as he watched a scene being filmed to the seductive music of a splendid orchestra. For this reason too, Mr. De Mille insists that his players keep their voices pitched very low—he does not want to be swayed by the quality of their tones, which form a subtle avenue for emotional expression—and one to which he is peculiarly susceptible.

At the top of the page is Glenn Hunter making a scene from "West of the Water Tower." Note the three musicians doing their best to help Glenn toward the proper mood. Above is Jane Novak playing for Victor Schertzinger and her sister Eva on the studio organ. It doesn't seem to be going so well. Right: Music is a very pleasant accompaniment to kissing, we are sure Monte Blue thinks, and doubtless Irene Rich finds it pleasant too—the music, we mean

Left: Ruth Dickey and her ten-piece orchestra were transported on sand sleds to the sandy desertlike location Cecil De Mille selected for some of the scenes of "The Ten Commandments." In the picture Charles de Roche and Leatrice Joy take a hand to "spell" the musicians. Below is Eric von Stroheim and his regular orchestra on a peak of the Panamint mountains on the edge of "Death Valley." Altho heat prostrations threatened, they played away for the successful climax of "Greed"

He often tells his cast: "Remember, cameras have no ears. Act your feelings. Don't be content to speak them. When the picture is shown on the screen, it must stand on the acting and nothing else."

In his new mammoth production, "The Ten Commandments," music has become one of the several fascinating elements in the upbuilding of the various periods in which Mr. De Mille seeks to interpret the Mosaic Law.

Fred Niblo always has music when directing his masterpieces. In studying the reactions of his actors to this influence he has made a significant discovery. Said he: "I find that women respond far more readily to melodies played in the lower register and men to those pitched in the treble. This is but the natural psychological attraction of masculine and feminine in tone."

With an eight-piece orchestra playing the dramatic arias from "Pagliacci," as inspiration for a series of tragic scenes being made by the strolling players in his new production, "Scaramouche," Rex Ingram stopped to remark that everyone responds to music to some degree.

"I know little of the technique of this art," said Mr. Ingram, "yet a Wagnerian opera stirs me tremendously. While I invariably use music in my scenes, delving into the preferences and prejudices of my players to find what moves them, I believe it must be used carefully, for it gives a false stimulus to the action. Sensitive natures depend upon the emotionalism of the music to carry their scene rather than their own acting. They are so swayed by the rhythm that they think they are expressing it thru pantomime when in reality they are merely feeling and their body is placid."

The many-sided brilliance of Eric von Stroheim would naturally include a knowledge of music. He plays the violin like a professional and brings to it that vitality that characterizes his other achievements. Understanding music and human nature so perfectly, this genius arranges his music scores as he plans his continuity, practically making an opera of his pictures while filming them.

(Continued on page 86)

Townsend

Mme. Olga Petrova

This brilliant Polish woman has trifled with many arts, obtaining a measure of success in all she has touched. At once a playwright, an actress, an author, a poet, a producer and director, a magnificent poseuse, she still retains a beautiful feminine charm and an incomparable social grace. Someone has said that glamour never happens on women who do things. But Olga Petrova is glamorous. She is at present on tour acting in a condensed version of her own play, "The Hurricane"

Edwin Bower Hesser

The Mutual Admiration Society

By
HARRY CARR

Blanche Sweet takes two pages to tell what she thinks of her husband; but Marshall Neilan needed only two lines to tell what he feels about his wife

Left is a recent portrait of "the most extraordinary personality on the screen," Blanche Sweet. Below, as Anna Christie in O'Neill's drama of that name

I HAVE always wondered about these stars who are directed by their own husbands.

Whether at the breakfast table the lord and master tastes the coffee and says: "This is worse than your close-up in that love scene in the third reel."

Or if perhaps she waits until he gets his face lathered and he is sliding down the difficult slope north of the upper lip before she reproaches him with giving all the good scenes to the vamp lady in the picture.

Well, Blanche Sweet says not. Positively no.

Her husband is Marshall Neilan.

A great many picture experts agree with Blanche that he is the one great genius that the cinema has thus far produced.

He and Blanche have been in pictures together since the early Biograph days when she was a little dancer called in for a special scene in one of the first Griffith pictures and "Mickie" was a boy driving an automobile.

The writers of "success stories" like to refer to Marshall Neilan as the chauffeur who became one of the greatest directors in the world. Far be it from me to crush the illusions and artistic yearnings of any gent now piloting a taxicab; but the fact is Mickie was an actor and the ravishingly handsome young Valentino of his day on the screen while still a mere boy. His auto career was a kid performance. But, anyhow, this is what Blanche says about it.

"They are all wrong about Mickie. Everybody around the studio thinks that Mickie is a careless, happy-go-lucky idler who drifts in late to the studio and just sort of makes the thing up as he goes along.

"I used to think so myself until we were married.

"The fact is that Mickie is doing his hardest work when he appears to be playing.

"I can always tell at home when he is working out a big scene in his mind. Our home life straightway takes on an atmosphere of jazz and excitement.

"Mickie whirls me around to jazz emporiums at loud and unusual hours of the night. We dance at road houses and Mickie gives prizes to the best fox-trotters and we whirl thru a round of pleasure until I am positively dazed and dizzy.

"I have learned from experience to know that at these times, Mickie is working out some big situation in a big story.

"There are many minds—big, creative minds—which work like this.

"No doubt there are some creative writers who need quiet and Left is another "Anna Christie character study. On another page this photoplay is discussed as the best of the month. Below is the Irish "Mickie" Neilan who ranks among the first ten directors of the screen solitude; but the Mickie Neilans of this world need the stimulus of motion and excitement. It seems to rouse their thoughts and stimulate their imaginations—just as a race-horse needs another horse as a pace-maker.

Mandeville

Evans, L. A.

"Mickie very seldom talks about his pictures at home. I am glad he doesn't. It would be miserable to have a home life made up of Kleig lights and baby spots and scenarios.

"Sometimes he brings up the subject of some play and discusses the situation. In the earlier days of our married life I used to torture my brain trying to help him with these situations. I know better now. I know from experience that he never really talks of the play he is thinking about. When he talks of one, I know that he is working out the details of some other one. So I have learned that the way I can best help the family fortunes is to sleep with my boots at my bedside like a fireman and be ready to go tearing around the dance halls and the jazz places while my talented husband wrestles with the muse.

"Sometimes it takes Mickie a long time to work out a story. I know that he had the idea of "The

(Continued on page 84)

White Studios

Odious and Pictorial

The "Scaramouche" Of the Stage

It is interesting and a bit exciting to have two "Scaramouches" running on Broadway at the same time. It invites—no—it challenges comparison. Indeed, it makes comparison inevitable. CLASSIC, which serves the interests of both stage and screen, finds itself in a difficult position—for one "Scaramouche" is unquestionably superior to the other. Making due allowance for the limitations of both mediums, we believe the motion-picture the finer, truer and more entertaining

White Studios

This is Sidney Blackmer himself and above, in the character of André-Louis Moreau. To us he is still Sidney Blackmer, a rather earnest, serious-minded, likable chap

Goldberg

Above is Margalo Gillmore as Aline de Kercadiou, who makes of her a pretty, petulant, sweetly feminine and altogether human and understandable person. She looks as pretty as it is humanly possible in the lovely soft colors of her billowing costumes, but she did suggest the ladies that conceal boudoir lamps, telephones, powder boxes and so forth

Comparisons

Contrasts

The "Scaramouche" Of the Screen

Ramon Novarro in the title rôle is satisfyingly picturesque and disturbing. He swashbuckles a bit, is scornful and sardonic at times, romantic and tender at others. At no time does one get a thrill out of Blackmer's Scaramouche. It is kindly and gentle, quietly determined, persistently idealistic and not very exciting. This does not seem to us consistent with the character, who, if you recall, "was born with the gift of laughter and a sense that the world was mad"

Melbourne Spurr

Hoover Art Studios

This is Alice Terry as the Lady Aline de Kercadiou, the beloved of André-Louis. There was a consistent hauteur and dignity in her performance, tho we found it less moving than Miss Gillmore's. Even lacking the undeniable aid of color, she was surpassingly pretty. The white wig also helped the illusion of the period

This is Ramon Novarro himself, and we call your attention to the similarity in pose and costume with Sidney Blackmer across the page. Above is his Scaramouche, a romantically youthful and beautiful figure

The Things We Cant Escape in the Movies

Drawings and Text
by Eldon Kelley

HE ALWAYS GETS HIS MAN

It is practically assured from the first reel that no half-breed trader, however bent on trouble, can cope with one of the Northwest Mounted Policemen. No thrill here

THE SUPERPRODUCTION, "WHAT ARE THE WILD WIVES DOING?"

Containing for the most part a cut-back to ancient Egypt (including a few news-reel shots of the late lamented Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb) and showing Cleopatra in all her glory—and little else

THE CHILD WHO BRINGS THEM TOGETHER

Lonely Wall Street husband — Social Butterfly wife—about to live their own lives when—"Daddy, is dat my mumsie?" lispes the little child. Husband, wife and audience break d'own “Something old,

 Nothing new—
 Much that’s borrowed,
 Naught that’s true!”

(With apologies to whoever said it first)

THE RURAL DRAMMER

Showing the indispensable picket fence and the compromising situation that makes it hot for the gal. Ye Gods and little Gishes!

THE COSTUME FLOOD

Imogene, the daughter, mind you, of an effete aristocracy, disguises herself in boots and britches and indulges in numerous imbroglios. No one penetrates her disguise—but the audience

THE INEVITABLE
 WALL STREET
 STORY

Adolphus Mugg, financier and only father of the beautiful Miss Mugg, has just lost all on the street. Little does he dream that the man who ruined him is the news-boy he thoughtlessly ran over years before in his Rolls Royce. Does the young man marry Miss Mugg before the show is over? Of course!

THE CINDERELLA
 STORY

“Oh,” she captions, “how you frightened me.” Poor thing, she is working as a servant in the mansion of her aunt, who has bilked her out of her rightful fortune. Does she fall in love with the rich young man next door? Ten guesses!

The Powers Behind the Screen

Who's Who in the Motion-Picture Business

By STANTON LEEDS

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the fifth and last of the series of five articles on the business end of the motion picture and a discussion and a description of the truly great personalities that have put the movies on the map

WHAT about the boy politician, the pride of the G. O. P.—what about Will H. Hays? In ducking out of politics for a fat job in motion pictures did he sell his Indiana birthright for a mess of pottage? Should he have stuck to the Cabinet, strung along with President Harding, or was being boss of the screen worth more, as his friends declare?

Meanwhile, is he boss of the screen? Hardly. With men like Adolph Zukor, Carl Laemmle, William Fox, to say nothing of William Randolph Hearst and Frank J. Godsol with their reorganized Goldwyn company, and entirely forgetting a dozen or so other fast steppers already in power or rapidly getting there—with these in the motion-picture game is it likely a Republican politician is bossing the works?

It is not. The truth is that Mr. Hays is working with these men, his backers and employers, and using his keen political sense, his gift for maintaining harmony, to their advantage and the screen's. Outside of his original mistake, his calm acceptance of the weird belief that there was something the matter with pictures, that they were really naughty, his backers seem to feel that he has done very well.

But the assumption, very generally taken for granted thruout the country, that so far as motion pictures are concerned Mr. Will H. Hays is it in the sense that Judge Landis is it in baseball—this assumption is mistaken. The power behind the screen lies elsewhere.

It is vested in such as Zukor, whose history is the history of the growth of pictures from nickelodeon to a big-ten, three-ring circus; in men like William Fox, who has fought it alone; in such as Carl Laemmle and his right-hand bower, R. H. Cochrane; in such an amazing and variously gifted person as William Randolph Hearst who, when asked if there were money in pictures, replied, "my money is in them."

There are others, but for the moment consider these—consider Carl Laemmle in particular. During these ten years when Zukor has been large in the limelight, during this time when H. E. Aitken and many others disappeared altogether from the field, during this time that saw at least the temporary eclipse of such men as Samuel Goldwyn, P. A. Powers, R. A. Rowland, W. W. Hodkinson, Lewis Selznick, J. D. Williams, R. S. Cole, J. Stuart Blackton and so on—during this time Laemmle has persisted.

People got into the way of shouting at his pictures, Universal pictures, "cheap." But Universal went right on. Others made more expensive pictures. Others went under. Laemmle and Universal went on. Year in, year out, with the pace pulling this, that and the other runner, Laemmle kept them coming to see his pictures.

The price seemed to please them, and the pictures, and when, all of a sudden, out of a clear sky, this same Carl Laemmle produced the most expensive picture ever made, it seemed time to seek information concerning this individual who kept his head above water where so many others had drowned.

It seems that the man knows figures. Others may guess about art and have all sorts of notions, but he, Carl Laemmle, bases his ideas on bed-rock, facts, the food of the fattest bankrolls. Also he remembers actual pictures. Knowing what they paid, he has a fair notion of what other pictures will pay if they follow similar lines, for, after all, the number of possible plots is strictly limited. In short, the hot air that artists and dreamers are given to—this doesn't bother Laemmle. He has (and right in his head) the statistics.

All morning he studies these same statistics. In the afternoon he sees anyone who calls. If the idea stands the acid test of the figures, it's a Universal idea.

An entirely different type, William Fox is generally credited with being himself the best film editor in the business. Before the time of pictures, he had a small vaudeville circuit and he saw the possibility of using films in those same theaters. Rather than be dependent, he got into the habit of making his own pictures. In more ways than one, they are his very own. Either assertively masculine or correspondingly feminine, they have a quality that keeps audiences saying, "if that isn't the truth!"

Their humanity, their story value, however, is only part of the story so far as William Fox is concerned. From political life, he picked as a partner a young Irishman, a former reporter and once secretary to the Police Commissioner of New York, Winfield R. Sheehan. A man whose abilities are so extraordinary, whose vision is so far-sighted that he has been given, to hold him, almost a controlling interest in the Fox enterprises, the boyish appearing Winnie Sheehan is one of the comers in pictures, one of that industry's assets.

His future is problematical, (Continued on page 85)

Undeniably one of the "Powers," is Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures Corporation

La Pucelle

JOAN OF ARC, THE MAID OF ORLEANS
Famous Heroines No. V. Posed by Pola Negri

Everyone knows of the peasant girl of Domremy who watched her sheep on the hillside and saw the visions that raised her from the ranks of common mortals; that fired her with the divine determination to free her country of the English yoke; that placed her at the head of the armies of France, which she led to unforgettable victory. She was finally betrayed into the hands of her enemies and burned at the stake in 1431, when she was just nineteen years old. Her true story reads like a golden legend. Her martyrdom was the most shameful in history, but her glory redeems the dark past.

Foreign

Cineman Glances Over

FRANCE

THERE are certain advantages in failure, and the failure of French films to conquer the American market, tho marking a definite commercial setback for French producers, is already beginning to show artistic benefits which might have been much longer in developing had the effort to invade America been successful. As pointed out last month, French as well as other foreign producers, with the vast transatlantic market luring them, have been concocting film monstrosities supposedly conceived after the American pattern but in the end failing to be either American or anything else; a mongrel product in which American invention was grotesquely travestied and European artistry basely betrayed. The mistake of the foreign producers was that they chose to compete with America in the one field in which they had no chance, lavishness of production, while they ignored the one element which alone could place them on a footing with American productions, the advantages of Old World background and Old World artistry. This error has evidently been perceived now, and the result, so far as France is concerned, is a series of films which, diverging widely from the American standard, yet can hold its head up beside the best American productions. The completeness of the about-face in French film methods may be seen in the fact that within the last two or three months at least half a dozen productions have appeared in which extreme simplicity of setting is the rule and in which the native soil is dramatized and native talent is given the full burden of the film.

A beginning in this direction, and a most successful one, was made with "Crainquebille," Anatole France's masterpiece, with the star rôle entrusted to De Féraudy, one of the Above is a scene from a German film called "Such Are Men." Mr. Ziegfeld's influence seems to have extended to the Eastern hemisphere. Right is the beautiful Russian star, Mme. Kovanko, who has the lead in a photoplay based on Turgenev's "The Song of Love Triumphant" greatest character actors in France. Every foot of this film is French, with no effort to disguise its nationality, and the result was that it was sold at once for the American market. This success has paved the way for a series of productions in the same manner, real native products, both subject and treatment faithful to the soil and spirit of France. Among the new films of this kind are "Little Jacques," Jules Claretie's classic, a French "Oliver Twist" with a strong strain of Gallic intensity running thru it; "Geneviève," Mallarmé's classic pastoral romance, picturized with all its beauty and poetry charmingly preserved; "The Urchin of Paris," a homely, humorous domestic drama which loses none of its interest for being written for an older generation; "Faithful Heart," the tragedy of a French port town against a sombre background of harbor life; and several other films of a kindred nature.

Above is Pedro de Cordoba in an English film, "I Will Repay." Right is a scene from the picture version of Mallarmé's immortal poem, "Geneviève"

Films

The European Studios

Pictorially, "Geneviève" is perhaps the most beautiful of the series, the photography and poetic treatment being faultless, but emotionally "Little Jacques" is the most effective. The story is hardly original, verging on the melodramatic, but it is so well told, so truthfully executed, as to give the narrative the quality of stirring reality. The picture is a great advance over the abortive efforts à l'Américaine which preceded it.

ITALY

Simultaneously with the French reversion to native subjects and native treatment, the Italian producers reveal a similar tendency, after having exploited, like the other European producers, ill-starred efforts to make films in the

(Continued on page 81)

Above is a Russian picture based on the life of the great Shakespearean actor. It is called simply, "Kean." Left is a vendetta about to be consummated. It is from an Italian film called "Supreme Love." Below is a Swedish picture romantically titled "The Eyes of Love"

Left is a bit from a French film, so typically French in every aspect that one might call it "one hundred per cent. French"

Au Sauce Piquante

Cinema Spice for Jaded Appetites

Melbourne Spurr

Clarence S. Bull

Some of us like our movies highly seasoned, and then again some of us can take them or leave them alone. We for one, like them well flavored. It saves mental indigestion anyway. We dont go to the movies to be put to sleep, but to be entertained, and no one can deny the entertainment value—per capita, we'd better say—of this page

Nickolas Muray

Upper left: Norma Talmadge as an Ouled-Nail dancing girl in "Dust of Desire" is most provocatively beautiful. Above: Jean Haskell, a little Goldwyn treasure, gives a pleasant tang to many an otherwise flat movie. Left: Dolores Rousse, a delicious bit from Fox's box of spices

THREE men, that golden morning in Northern Canada, were thinking of one thing, a woman, and they thought of her according to their three points of view. To Michael Devlin, of the Northwest Mounted, a woman was something to be possessed. He had known—and possessed many in his thirty hard-lived years, but none like this one, wild and elusive and, for all of her life lived among trappers, miners, drunken Indians, fiercely virginal. Rose Bocion . . . the hoofs of his horse on the hard forest path beat out the name, Rose, a blossom to be plucked, a fragrance to give delight or what were roses—or women—for?

With hot, desirous memory he conjured her up now and she danced before him down the path, the sun sprinkled on her dark hair, the young curves of her, the lips that invited, the eyes that mocked, and the look of his face was not good to see. "Damn her!" he muttered, "she gets into a man's blood! I'm drunk with her. She's a fever I've had since that day I found her on her raft drifting toward the Anger o' God Rapids and brought her ashore to the Trading Post. That gave me a right to her, didn't it? I thought she felt it, too, but last night—"

His great hand with the white furrow of an old wound across it tightened on the reins with the suggestion of crushing something. Last night he had held her in his arms, and it had been like clasping the wind. She had not been there. And when he had demanded of McCollins, the old factor who had adopted her, the meaning of the change, he sensed in her, that canny Scot had been evasive and taken refuge in philosophizing.

"The mair I know wummen the less I know about 'em! But one thing certain, they dont gie their love for a debt that is owed but for a gift whaur they will."

Michael Devlin uttered an oath, and because his

Tiger Rose

Written in Short-Story Form

by

DOROTHY DONNELL

instinct was the simple primitive one of hurting when he felt pain he lashed at his patient horse. "If it's that dude engineer chap, Norton, I'll teach him to meddle with what's mine!" he muttered. "When I get back from this trip I'll settle it—I didn't drag her out of the river for him to kiss—"

In the Company's Store, McCollins the factor was thinking about Rose too; the anxious, timid thoughts of old age which knows humbly that it is helpless to aid youth because it speaks another language. He had lived a long existence here in the Northland, he had read few books, known few people, yet he had seen Life. When he thought of Rose Bocion he thought of her as a duty, something to be guarded, protected, a flower to be sheltered from harsh storms.

"'Tis a hard thing," he reflected as he sorted the settlement mail which had just arrived by canoe, "that we must pay so dear for experience in this world and then 'tis no use to anyone; we cant gie it to them we lo'e. I hae ma doots about this young city mon. He doesna belong up here and Rose does. An' there's a look in her eyes these days that wummen dont wear unless the thocht o' some mon puts it there. But there's nae use meddlin' wi' young folks. They must cut their own fingers before they can learn that a knife can hurt, an' there's the pity!"

The other man who was thinking of Rose Bocion was tall and good to look at, and wore his rough homespun with an easy grace, all of which the girl was aware of, tho she was not looking at him as she sat on the broken oak limb swinging her feet and singing a wild folk-song about a maiden who loved a loup-garou—

To Bruce Norton, engineer in charge of the railroad surveyors, women in general were something of a nuisance; in particular, incomprehensible creatures of mysterious moods who wanted to marry one. But this girl before him, with her naïve remarks, her amazing

Michael Devlin of the Northwest Mounted finds Rose Bocion drifting down the river on a raft toward the Anger o' God Rapids, pulls her out just in time, carries her back to the trading post, where she collapses

Norton straightened as tho a whip lash of memory had flicked him on the heart. His face grew grim.

"There are men who make a woman look like that—damn them!" he said slowly, "I knew one once. Wolf man fits him very well. Wolves are dangerous. They should be killed."

He got hold of himself hurriedly, smiled at her. "Go on! Tell me more. I know you're not Mr. McCollins' real daughter, but I dont know whose daughter you are. Perhaps you just growed like Topsy—that's the way you seem, like a part of all this—" his gesture brought the dappled forest, the blue rushing river simplicity and her beauty which was half that of a wild wood creature, and half the age-old lure of Eve, vaguely disturbed him. Rose . . . Rose, a flower of the forest instead of the garden. Last night, in his board shack he had written a poem about her, called her "Tiger Rose."

"You know about thas loup-garou?" she asked, pausing abruptly in her song. Under the elfin masses of her hair her eyes grew wide and solemn, her voice dropped a full octave to the deeps of awe, "he is ver' bad to fall in love wiz, because on'y half he is nize han'some young man and the res' of the time he is a wolf. The loup-garou eat the heart ri' out of a girl who love wiz heem. Yes, thas so! Ask anybody!"

Bruce leaned against a tree, arms folded, watching the play of emotion on the vivid face under lazy eyelids. "You dont believe that, Rose! Aren't you a Christian?"

She nodded with conviction, "Yas, I'm a Christian, sure as hell!" she affirmed, and looked startled at his shout of laughter, "all the same I know what I know! Me, I saw a woman thas had her heart eaten by the loup-garou—always she put the hand over the place where the wolf man hurt her, always she hunt for heem wiz face that mek like this!" Amazingly the young, fresh curves before his eyes took on haggardness, the eyes were haunting wells of tragedy. Bruce with the surveyors staking out a line along it, the far hills into the woods.

Sitting lightly, swinging her feet in their Indian moccasins, Rose told him her simple Odyssey, her lonely childhood in the far deep woods with only her trapper father and the tame wildcat for companionship, her father's death—"I buried heem," she said simply, "the ground was froze and it was ver' hard work. He wanted a priest to read prayers before he died. He theenk mebbe he go to hell wizout. Me, I don' theenk so. Monsieur le bon Dieu is a gentilhomme."

What a child she was, Bruce thought, feeling her words tug at his heart. Before such marvelous simplicity he felt old and disillusioned and paternal. He was only twenty-four, and one can be older at twenty-four than at any other age. "Then you came to the settlements?" he prompted, for she had fallen into one of her rich silences. That was the reason he had noticed her first and taken her from his general category of women who talked incessantly. If Rose hadn't anything to say, she said nothing.

"I mek a raft," she nodded, "but the river he is ver' bad. I goin' be drown mebbe but Michael Devlin hear me yell and comes. Papa McCollins got no daughter. I stay. Thas five year now."

"Michael Devlin," Bruce

TIGER ROSE

Fictionized by permission from Warner Brothers' production of the adaptation by Edmund Goulding of the play by Willard Mack. Directed by Sydney Franklin and personally supervised by David Belasco. The cast, starring Lenore Ulric:

- Rose Bocion ("Tiger Rose").....Lenore Ulric
- Michael Devlin.....Forrest Stanley
- Father Thibault.....Joseph Dowling
- Pierre.....André De Beranger
- Dr. Cusick.....Sam De Grasse
- Bruce Norton.....Theodore Von Eltz

frowned, "the big Mounted, eh? I suppose you're very grateful to him?"

Rose was puzzled. Grateful? I don't know that grateful? He breeng me red ribbons from the beeg town. It mus' be ver' nize in the town—"

Bruce shook his head. "You'd hate it! Nothing green or sweet—grey, dirty stone canyons where the sun never shines," he went on to paint a sordid picture of ugliness and dirt and people, all hurrying, hating each other, thinking of money, fighting each other for money, but at the end Rose only smiled. She slid down from her branch and stood before him, looking up with unwavering eyes.

"But you would be there," she said. "I tink me I lak any place where you were there too!"

Under the tight jersey she wore her low breasts rose and fell swiftly. Her cheeks were the color of sun-ripened fruit, but the warm tint did not deepen altho Bruce Norton could feel himself blushing. She was not such a child after all, seventeen or eighteen perhaps, and lovely enough to turn any man's head. He adopted a fatherly tone, taking one hard little hand in his own. "The place for Roses is out of doors, not shut up in stone cages! I'll send you a picture of the kind of houses people live in in the city when I go back, houses like mountains—"

Terror sounded in her voice, "You're going away, yas? Dont go! I love you—I love you lak hell!"

Bruce Norton stood still, staring startled into the implacable face of Memory. "Think what you came here to do! Think of the vow you made beside your mother's bed—your mother who died of a broken heart! Are you free to play at love-making?"

As tho he could forget for more than a few moments at a time the thing that had brought him up into this wilderness, the thing that had shadowed his youth, the thing that lay between him and any hope for the future! But just for now, just for a few days might he not be free from it, free to be young and happy?

He lifted the brown little paw he held and kissed the back of it ceremoniously. "I'm not going away yet, little Rose," he smiled. "you dont mean what you just said, of course. Some day when you've grown up you'll marry Devlin or some one who lives up here and be very happy but now before I go we'll be friends, wont we?"

She looked at him slantingly, hid her eyes behind smooth creamy lids. "All ri!" sighed Tiger Rose, "if

She came closer, her face ghastly. "They 'ave foun' heem?" "They haven't—yet," Cusick snapped, "the damn fool could have gotten away—but he said he had to come back to see you. Where can we hide him?"

you lak thas better, I lak thas too! We be fren

Indian summer with its poignant hint of sadness, its golden gift of beauty and sunshine without promise for the future, made of the Northwest woods in the days following a magic place, an enchanted land to Bruce Norton, without yesterdays or tomorrows. Because he knew the shortness of his moment he made the most of it. While his surveyors languidly drove their stakes, while the river murmured a background to their voices, he and Rose sat together under the trees and he talked as he had never talked to anyone before, of the books that he had read the shy unspoken boy dreams he had dreamed. Rose chatted too, in her quaint broken English, and made wreaths of crimson and yellow maple leaves. Her moods were sudden in their changes, one moment she was a teasing elf, crowned with red haws, the next and she was become a tragedy queen reciting a weird folk tale.

And then one evening at dinner in the factor's house McCollins said casually: "We're tae have another citizen in the settlement. Meester Norton, a mon frae your own part o' the wurruld. The new company doctor is coming tomorrow. His name is Glendenning—Robert Glendenning."

Bruce Norton laid down his knife and fork, but said nothing. Surprised at the silence, the old factor glanced across the table and saw a strange thing; he saw a man die before his eyes and go on breathing. Indeed in a moment Norton spoke, too, about some trivial subject, but he was a dead man speaking nevertheless, a man who had definitely resigned his hold on life.

Only at the end of the meal did he refer to the new company doctor. "Tomorrow, I think you said Doctor Glendenning was to arrive?"

McCollins nodded, puzzled. "Aye, he wrote that he wud drive himself froom the Landing. He'll be here by noon I'm thinkin'. Do ye—perhaps ye might be knowin' him?"

Bruce Norton shook his head. His voice had an edge, "I have never had the pleasure of meeting the doctor personally. But I had a—a friend who knew him some years ago. I—have heard of him."

He went out into the darkness and presently, not knowing where his steps were leading him, he found himself in the grove where he had spent enchanted hours this last week, as a ghost returns to the scene of old happiness. The moon was up now and in the white light that lay across the grass he saw Rose, and as she came toward him he knew that she was no longer a child or an elf but a woman, a woman to be held close, to be kissed. . . .

He kept his arms rigid at his sides for

Above: He started to his feet with the groan of a savage beast and had made two bounds for the door when the revolver in Rose's hand spoke shrewishly fear that they might go out to her. "I am going away, Rose," he tried to speak matter-of-factly, "I have something I must do—"

Her cry stripped the words from his lips: "You tak' me too! I will be ver' good—I dont be any trouble. You tak me!"

"I—cant—"

She was Tiger Rose now, fighting for what she wanted. "Ees it then some other girl? I will keel her—I will scratch her dam face! I will mek an image of her and stick pins into her heart!"

Bruce held the quivering little figure by the wrists. "There's no one else, Rose. I cant explain—"

He felt the fierceness ebb from her. The small face under the wild dark hair seemed to shrink still smaller: "Then—you don' want me? Scuse please—Michael Devlin, he lak' me, I didn' think—"

Her agony awoke echoes in his own soul, taught him his heart. "No, no, Rose! Not that, not that—God, if I only could stay with you, marry you, live here all my Left: Tiger Rose in agonized suspense watches the tramping feet of her lover's hunter until at last they lead him up to bed. But they soon came back—years——” Somehow she was in his arms. They cling together, two children frightened of the dark. Against her hair he whispered wild things, broken words of tenderness, and at last a little of the truth. Years ago a man had wronged his sister, left her to die in disgrace. The shock had killed their mother. He had been searching for the man ever since, and now he knew where to find him. . . .

“I see,” Tiger Rose said quietly, “you do not need to tell me what you mus’ do. But—afterward——”

He shook his head dumbly, his hands, on either side of her face straining it back to his gaze as if he were committing it to memory. “I have given you my trouble to bear,” he said bitterly, “I have made you grow up, Rose. Will you ever forgive me?”

“Forgive? I don’ know thas word,” she smiled thru her tears, “I guess when you’re in love wiz someone thas all the word you know!”

He did not kiss her good-bye, because he knew that if he kissed her he would not go.

A heavy-eyed Rose was pouring the factor’s coffee the next morning when Michael Devlin, wearing his uniform, aggressively brought his news.

“I’ll be staying here a few days, sir, if you can put me up,” he announced, portentously, “maybe you haven’t heard? There’s been murder done! The new company doctor was shot early this morning between here and the Landing, and what’s more it’s known who did it!” He shot a spiteful glance of triumph at Rose: “no more nor less than the fine city dude that’s been staying under your roof—one of the Injuns saw him running thru the woods!”

McCollins’ cup went down with a clatter. “So that was the meanin’ of his face last night! Devlin, I’ve been a God-fearing mon a’ ma days, but yon laddie is no common criminal. I hae na doot the mon needed a bit o’ killin’ an I’m dommed if I dont hope Norton gets awa!”

The Mounted Policeman laughed unpleasantly. “Small chance! We’ve got fifty men on horseback beating up the woods—he’ll be behind bars before night—ouch!” he uttered a yelp of anguish as Rose neatly overturned a cup of scalding coffee on his hand.

The settlement joined the man hunt. All day the baying of dogs and the far off shouts of the searchers came to the straining ears of Rose Boeion as she stood behind the counter in the company store, all day as she weighed out sugar, and measured off calico she was trying to bribe Le Bon Dieu to let her lover escape. “— know, Mis’eu Dieu, you couldn’ help heem, but mebbe Yon jus’ look the other way one lil’ minute——”

Dusk hung like cobwebs in the corners of the room when Doctor Cusick, the settlement physician, came in, closing the door behind him. He was a middle-aged man with a face chiseled by old emotion as a stone is worn by strong currents. He spoke rapidly. “Rose, I think you are a girl who can be trusted not to faint or go into hysterics if I tell you something.”

She came closer, face ghastly. “They ’ave foun’ him?”

“They haven’t yet,” Cusick snapped, “the damn fool could have gotten away clean, but he chose to come back, said he had to see you again.

Well, love’s a disease there’s no cure for but time! I found him on the back road and brought him here, under the buggy robes. Where can we hide him?”

She pointed to the trap-door in the rough flooring.

“Down there among the boxes—— Queek! I hear them come. Mon Dieu, all the day I ’ave the great fear but now I fear nothing! Now there is somesing I can do——”

One moment she stood folded in Bruce Norton’s arms, then violently she thrust him away. “We are mad! Me, I t’ink thas a dam bad time for mak’ love.”

“She’s right, my boy!” Cusick said grimly, “get down into the cellar. Tomorrow we’ll figure some way to start you toward the States.”

The trap-door slid into place. Rose turned to the doctor, “W’y you do eet? W’y you help us?”

Cusick looked suddenly old. “Because his shoes fit me!” he answered slowly, “if he hadn’t killed that skunk I should have. You see Norton’s sister happened to be—my wife. Hark! Someone’s coming——”

When Devlin opened the door, Rose, humming a little song, was measuring out castor-oil with a steady hand.

Her face had lost its pallor, her eyes shone, she gave the policeman a gay nod. “Mebbe you lak’ the house to stan’ treat wiz this, yas? Bon nuit, Mis’eu Doctor! Come in tomorrow and see w’y Papa got him seek in his back——”

(Continued on page 78)

The policeman’s revolver in his hand, Bruce came to the side of Tiger Rose. “My brave little girl! But it’s no good, dear. I’ve decided to face the music”

Waxman

Eleanor Boardman

Tradition chained this young girl to a narrow path, bound her to a past generation, linked her with a staid old family atmosphere. But early in life she asserted her right to be a person on her own account and not just an echo of past formality. A pretty pioneer, Eleanor!

Rhythm and Rebellion

By
MAUDE CHEATHAM

Right is a recent portrait and below is Eleanor Boardman's appealing Amelia Sedley in "Vanity Fair." Her current picture is "The Day of Faith"

ELEANOR BOARDMAN spells REBELLION! You would never guess it when you see her on the screen in those sweet, sympathetic rôles that have brought a delightful rhythm to a number of recent pictures.

"That's just it," wailed Eleanor, "They always give me goody, goody parts when I would rather play characters——"

I laughed. It was amusing to find a girl with her lovely angelic face, and eyes that flood quickly with womanly tears, craving to mask her charms in vampire and worldly rôles. It is nearly always the other way

Her rebellions date away back. In fact, they first burst forth when she suddenly discovered that her pioneer spirit had been placed in a staid old Philadelphia atmosphere. According to the program, her life lay cut and dried before her. Traditions chained her to a narrow path.

When she asserted her independence to think for herself, which she frequently did, she was rebuked. She was expected to be merely an echo of past generations.

"Families are a wonderful institution," admitted Eleanor, "but they have a distressing way of arresting any development of individuality. Seldom is a child given the freedom really to grow—to become a definite personality."

I imagine the battles were spirited. She was like a bird hopping about on the family limb, blinking at the sun and longing to try her wings to reach it.

At eighteen she ran away to New York.

"For the first time I really breathed," she explained.

"Of course, I had a hard struggle, I expected this, and I also had several bad experiences but these taught me to live.

She was both down and out. She had no job and no money; things were hopelessly quiet in New York and she was beginning to wonder if, after all, she was to be beaten. And then came the wonderful opportunity to come to California with a chance at the Goldwyn studio.

She hasn't lost the thrill of it yet, despite her level head and poise, and I rather suspect she pinches herself sometimes, to see if it is really true.

After luncheon we drove up to her home on Whitley Heights where she lives alone with a funny little maid. Eleanor says that people with opinions should travel the single path.

The house is typical of its owner. It is extremely artistic and there is a spaciousness in the large living-room with its friendly fireplace, grand piano and rows of books. Long windows on three sides offer magnificent views of Hollywood and the hills. A few pieces of rare tapestry decorate the walls—"I hate new, shiny things—they have no background," she explained.

(Continued on page 76)

I could feel myself waking up, a delicious sensation of vivid realities swept me along and I began to feel—to thrill—to grasp dimly what it was all about. I think I had been numb before. And then I found that life is very short when you begin to live—there is so much to crowd into the days. Our span is so brief—in point of years—we must fill it to the brim."

It wasn't very long before Miss Boardman landed in a Broadway chorus, then she won a small part in Arthur Hopkins' "A Very Good Young Man." She lived in a dingy little boarding-house and spent most of her salary on ballet lessons as a part of her dramatic training.

This is illuminating, for it discloses the directness of her ambitions. Today, she is as slim and straight as a young tree, with every muscle in full coordination; she has mastered that rarest of all accomplishments, a perfect gliding walk in which every movement is of grace.

We'll admit that Eleanor Boardman forced her first steps toward a career but her sudden and phenomenal jump into motion-pictures, playing leading rôles after two films, shows she is a petted child of the fairies.

Upper left is Eleanor Boardman in her own back yard. Above, she tries to paint a little, and we'll aver we'd like to 'sit for her whether she knows how or not. Left, a Waxman portrait.

Nickolas Muray

Lowell Sherman

Who is the hero of one of the most picturesque and colorful dramatic successes on the New York stage. That is "Casanova," in which he was billed as an "Arch-Rogue," but turned out to be rather a gentle than a villainous Casanova. It looks as tho he had deserted the movies for good

The stars of "The Marriage Circle," which Lubitsch is making for Warner Brothers. They are: Marie Prevost, Adolphe Menjou, Ernst Lubitsch, Monte Blue, Creighton Hale, and Florence Vidor.

When Lubitsch Directs

By HARRY CARR

WHEN Lubitsch is directing a picture, he has an odd way of entertaining a visitor. At the end of the scene, he comes over to where you sit and gives you a little character sketch of the actor who has been performing.

For instance, when Florence Vidor finished her scene and the camera stopped clicking, he came over and painted her psychic picture: "She haf beauty; but she got distinction; she got good family. It show on the screen."

Which made us all wonder what he was going to say about Marie Prevost. Marie has many ardent admirers, but I think that even Marie herself gulped a little with astonishment when Lubitsch picked her as one of the finest actresses he has seen in America and gave her the big part in his new picture, "The Marriage Circle," upon which he is staking his career.

"When I first came to America," said Herr Lubitsch, "my position was a very difficult one. The war was just over. I didn't know a soul. I arrived in Hollywood one drizzling cold foggy night when it seemed that even the climate was against me. As a matter of fact, I was treated everywhere with kindness and sympathetic cordiality; but, of course, I couldn't know that was going to happen. Consequently, in my first picture, I had to make all kinds of concessions to what they told me the American people wanted. I made my first one that way. This one I am going to make to please Lubitsch."

So, just as he tossed away all the other stale ideas that movie convention had built, so he airily ignored the actresses whom Hollywood had stamped "great" and picked out a graduate bathing young lady for his great acting part.

At the end of one of her

Marie Prevost says of Lubitsch: "To act even one scene under his direction is not only an education but a revelation." Lubitsch says of Marie Prevost: "She is a goot actress—she haf life und animation und she got emotion. But she got hoomer too. No actress is goot in a heavy rôle unless she haf got also a sense of hoomer."

scenes, Lubitsch came bustling out of the set, dragged me out of the studio and around behind an alley and explained himself.

"My peecheer—I dont know if he is good. He cant know about a peecheer until you see him on the screen but Marie Prevost she is goot. She is a goot actress—she haf life and animation and she got emotion. But she got hoomer too. No actress is goot in a heavy rôle unless they got a sense of hoomer, especially what you call vamps."

Marie, herself, is a very frank outspoken young lady. And being such, she makes no secret of the fact that she is staggered by what has happened to her. It isn't so long since Marie's chief claim to artistic distinction consisted of the most beautiful legs in the world. They got her a job at Mack Sennett's old comedy lot.

Marie was sitting on a camp stool on the edge of the Lubitsch set as she talked about it. She was all covered up this time in a very beautiful evening gown. But she was just the same candid, unspoiled Marie as in the one-piece bathing-suit days.

"Over at the Sennett lot," she said, "I was one of the few girls who could really swim. I had to double for the girl stars and sometimes I even doubled for the men. In those days, it didn't matter what happened to me if the pulchritude of the real actresses was not damaged. To say the least, life was not monotonous. I never knew whether I was going to be alive or dead at the end of the day.

Above is the great director in an informal moment and below he is directing Florence Vidor in a troublesome bit. He says of her: "She haf beauty; but she haf distinction; she got goot family. It show on the screen"

"Incidentally, the shock to my family when they saw me on the screen was considerable. And they were not the only ones shocked.

"One of the tragedies of my young life was one of these shocks. I was very much enamored of a young man whose mother was a very strict Presbyterian with a natural horror of young women who made their living play-acting.

"My boy friend tried to convince her that I was different. His arguments prevailed to the point where I was invited to a family dinner to be put thru my
(Cont'd on page 80)

"On Location"

Above is the awe-inspiring tract of land known as Death Valley for the appropriate reason that sixty-three out of sixty-five miners died of thirst when they went prospecting there in 1849, and many others have died since. It is in the southeastern part of California and the hottest place in the world. Von Stroheim completed "Greed" there

Above is an ancient Roman ruin, one of the beautiful and authentic backgrounds for "The Eternal City." It is just outside of Rome

In the oval is a location picked for "Cap'n Dan." It is off the coast of California. Below is the historic Weeks Hall Estate, "Shadows-on-the-Teche," in and around which D. W. Griffith shot many scenes for "The White Rose." It is in western Louisiana on the bayou Teche

In no one field of endeavor, artistic or commercial, is there to be found so much beauty, interest and variety as on the screen, not to mention its educational value. Movie maligners' most frequent taunt is that we are "commercial." We offer the evidence on these two pages in refutation

Right is a section of the endless Florida swamps, unwholesome and treacherous, where King Vidor took his company to make "Wild Oranges," the Hergesheimer story, for Goldwyn

*"From Greenland's icy mountains
To India's coral strands—"
(Or thereabouts)*

Across the page is an American desert, but the picture above was taken in the Egyptian desert at Ghizeh, near Cairo. For most of us that are sit-by-the-fires, the view of the great pyramids and the mysterious sphinx to be had in the movies, will constitute our traveling experience. William Fox had "The Shepherd King" made here

Above is a view in our own most beautiful spot, Yellowstone National Park, where Rupert Hughes took all of the final scenes in "Law Against Law"

Left is a beautiful vista up in the Canadian Rockies. Tom Mix, seeking authenticity for his picture, "Where the North Begins," selected this mountain chain for it. Below is the exquisitely beautiful Bay of Naples in whose haunting vicinity "The White Sister" was made

These wonderful locations are spread practically all over the globe and you must appreciate that it costs a great deal of money to take whole companies to these far places. This, however, seems to us a justifiable expense, far more worthy than the building of lavish sets. The artistic return is greater

Left is a doorway and the moldering walls of a thirteenth-century abbey, Beaulieu in Hampshire, England. This interesting ruin served as a background for J. Stuart Blackton's "The Virgin Queen."

Photograph by Evans, L. A

A Midwinter Maid

Colleen Moore has adopted a new manner, like Mae Allison and Lillian Gish. It is a roguish flapper sort of halo, and we find it very becoming. As the unrestrained flapper heroine of "Flaming Youth," she has at last come into her own. All the critics commend her.. More power to ye, Colleen!

Classic Considers—

The Great and the Near Great

© Claude
Harris, Ltd
London

CECILIA LOFTUS

Just because she is back over here in the United States again amusing and delighting us as she used to do more years ago than we can remember. Because age has not withered her charm and vivacity, nor has custom had a chance to stale her infinite allure. Because she literally stops the show whenever she offers her imitations on the Keith circuit. But mostly because we shall never forget her, tho we have forgotten her name, when she played with E. H. Sothorn in "If I Were King"

GEORGE WALSH

For the very good reason that he has taken a new lease on life in the movies and has the most promising future ahead of him of any other star who started when he did. Because he is June Mathis' choice for Ben Hur, and we remember that she discovered Valentino. Because also, altho he is a wonderful athlete and has, without exception, the most perfect physique of any male star of the screen, he has gone in for things that required brain rather than brawn and gotten away with it

Clarence
S. Bull

OTTO H. KAHN

Chiefly because of the dignity and charm of his letters to Caruso, which were published in Caruso's biography. And because he is at once a banker, a philanthropist, a financier and a liberal patron of the arts. He is president of several railroads, director of numerous trust companies, honorary member of various opera and theatrical companies, including our own Metropolitan; a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France, a Knight of the Order of Charles II of Spain, a Commander of the Order of the Crown of Italy, and—
Citizen of the United States

W. Somerset Maugham Is With Us Again

By B. F. WILSON

EVERY time I see Somerset Maugham he is in the act of being sketched. The last time I saw him a well-known newspaper artist was sweating blood in a mad endeavor to get the famous author's features down on his sketch-pad; this time a very young Mexican boy with an unspellable name, who by the way has an uncanny gift of caricature, was trying to catch a straw of likeness from the inscrutable face of his subject.

The portrayal of this English writer has been the despair of every artist and cartoonist on both sides of the Atlantic. They have all tried and failed. Every well-known caricaturist from Max Beerbohm on down has had a sling at it—but Mr. Maugham says: "I can draw only one conclusion—my face must be so utterly void of interest that there is nothing to work from."

This, however, is polite rot. The face of the author is one you could never forget. Disillusionment marks the lower part with deep lines about the mouth. The keen eyes ordinarily cynical, can upon occasion warm into human tolerance. When he laughs—a rare occurrence—he is transformed. He seems momentarily to throw off the cloak of worldly scepticism and becomes almost boyish in expression.

He had visited this country again for the purpose of rehearsing his latest play, "The Camel's Back," which the Selwyns have produced. He very rarely behaves in this fashion—in fact, he never goes near the theater when a play of his has been accepted for production. I asked him why he had done so this time.

"I had rather an unfortunate experience with my last play," he replied. "You know, I don't exactly care to have my plays rewritten by the managers. So I decided that I would attend the rehearsals personally. I've been frightfully busy of late with nothing but rehearsing. You know, I have just had a play put on in London which I am glad to say has turned out to be a sensation. The name of it is 'Our Betters.' It was produced in this country some years ago, but unfortunately, it didn't seem

Maurice Beck and Helene Macgregor, London

England's most distinguished author-playwright, Somerset Maugham, came over to this country for the rehearsals of his play, "The Camel's Back," a scene from which is pictured on page 46 of this issue. This is positively the only interview he gave and CLASSIC is fortunate to have secured it. "Rain" is also from his gifted pen to please American audiences."

I recalled having heard that it was one of the most brilliant farces ever seen in this country. Its author was at that time comparatively little known over here. It was before the days of "The Moon and Sixpence," "The Circle," and others. Also before the days of "The Demi-Virgin," "Getting Gertie's Garter," etc. Even when the first two were produced, they made very little money for their owners, while the parties of the second part reaped a golden harvest. Which goes to show you that you never can tell what an American audience will like.

"The English stage is in a period of stagnation," he continued. "Nobody is writing any plays, no one, comparatively speaking, is producing any. I think America at the present time is the theatrical center of the world. A producer over here can see possibilities and can take chances that a European manager would never dare to. He hasn't any money he can afford to lose. You people over here have a whole mass of theaters which of course have to be filled. Your managers have so much money that they can say when a play is offered them, 'Now look here, this is a new idea. I wonder how it will get over. I think I'll try it and see what happens.' Very few of the writers in Europe, therefore, have turned out plays recently. They feel it a waste of time. I happen to be particularly fortunate, but after I get back to Europe I don't intend writing any more plays immediately.

"They are going to turn 'The Moon and Sixpence' into a play to be produced here next season. I hope they will be able to get Lionel Barrymore for the lead.

"I expect to be here for about six weeks then I shall return to London, shut myself up in my house and get to work on my novel. It is going to be a long one, the provisional title is 'The Painted Veil.' However, I have had so much misfortune with titles that I don't know what I shall really call it. Every time I get a very good one

(Continued on page 84)

Right is the beautiful Japanese Print scene from "Artists and Models." In the oval is Otis Skinner in another of his delightful characterizations. This season it is Sancho Panza, the philosophical squire of Don Quixote

Below is the Stone family: Fred, his wife Allene, and his daughter Dorothy, bright star of the new musical extravaganza "Stepping Stones." Dorothy made a great hit—almost stole the show from her father

Apeda

The Photographer

Takes the Stage

White

Apeda

Left is Beryl Mercer in her interesting rôle of Queen Victoria. Beside her is George Forren as Gladstone. Below is the banquet scene from the hit of the season, "The Swan," by Ferenc Molnar. The set is so dignified and lovely that the audience bursts into irresistible applause before a word is spoken

White

White

White

Above is a scene from a curious drama called "Spring Cleaning," in which a man (Arthur Byron) introduces a prostitute (Estelle Winwood) into his own home by way of showing up his wife and her friends

Classic's
Monthly Department
of the Theater

White

Above: One of the fine plays of a wonderful season, "Tarnish." Ann Harding is pictured with Mrs. Jacques Martin

White

Above is a moment from the Maugham comedy-drama, "The Camel's Back." The actors are: Violet Kemble Cooper, Arthur Lewis and Charles Cherry. Right is "The Failures," a rather more grim than usual Theatre Guild offering. Left to right: Winifred Lenihan as the actress, Jacob Ben-Ami as the author, Erskine Sanford as the musician, Dudley Digges as the Art Theater manager

Bruguière

Variety
Is the Spice
of This Season

White

Four of the leads in "One Kiss." Clare Kummer's "comedy with music." They are: Oscar Shaw, Louise Groody, Ada Lewis and John Price Jones

Above is Roberta Arnold in a typical Golden production, "Chicken Feed," which deals with wives and their nearly always inadequate allowances

White

Above is Jane Cowl as Mélisande, with J. Sayre Crawly as Arkel, in a scene from the most tragically beautiful of all Maeterlinck's haunting and beautiful dramas, "Pelléas et Mélisande." Left are: General Stuart (James Durkin), Robert E. Lee (Berton Churchill) and Stonewall Jackson (David Landau), all from Drinkwater's "Robert E. Lee," which took a bad flop

Richard Burke

Walter Hampden,
Playing Superbly,
Makes "Cyrano de Bergerac" The Play of the Month

© Mary Dale Clarke

This is the second of Mr. Macgowan's monthly articles on the stage for CLASSIC. An unfortunate accident at the height of Mr. Hampden's success in "Cyrano" caused a three weeks' suspension of performances. They have, however, now been resumed and those interested may see it at The National Theater, New York.

The World's Most Famous Nose

By KENNETH MACGOWAN

AFTER creating the greatest nose in all history any writer ought to be satisfied to die. Edmond Rostand was not. He insisted on living on into his thirties, his forties, even his fifties. And all to no purpose. The author of "Cyrano de Bergerac" never created a facial blemish, let alone a whole character, to equal the nose or the soul of the Gascon cadet.

Perhaps Rostand made a mistake when he did so well by Cyrano. Certainly the fellow threw "L'Aiglon," "Chanteclair," and all the rest of his plays in the shade. More than that, he was too tremendous a hero to get himself very much acted. Coquelin learned the two hundred pages on which Cyrano monopolized attention in the two hundred and fifteen pages of the play, and actor after actor has stood in awe of Coquelin ever since. Richard Mansfield played this Gargantuan part over here, and, tho a few American actors have talked about reviving the play, the only one who had done so up to the present season — Robert Lorraine — cautiously turned Englishman and emigrated before he tried it. A great part and a great acting tradition have almost killed a great play.

Francis Bruguere

But now Walter Hampden comes cheerily along, and revives "Cyrano" as a mere
(Continued on page 92)

The Movie of the Month

By LAURENCE REID

Mr. Reid Selects "Anna Christie" as the Best Photoplay of This Month and Explains Why

EUGENE O'NEIL'S Pulitzer prize play, "Anna Christie" (First National), comes to the screen as a vigorous, stirring document. Here is one instance where the producer has not made a single departure from the original. On the contrary, he has approached the author's vital subject with deep appreciation of its dramatic sweep, its rich characterization—and its very human attributes—with the result that we have a picture of breadth and substance—a picture comparable to "A Woman of Paris" in its direct, progressive action, tho carrying a much more significant theme.

Thomas H. Ince, like Chaplin, has marked out a clear path for himself. Defiant of censorship, he has had the audacity and the sincerity to tell the truth as O'Neil presented it—without throwing a sop to the sentimentalists. And so we have "Anna Christie"—one of the boldest dramas of life in the raw that has ever been screened.

In certain States, we can hear the censors crying: "This is too strong; it is liable to offend." On the other hand, those of us who would see life expressed realistically are crying in the wilderness for just such screen treatment as is revealed here. Mr. Ince has gambled. He has chosen no path which beats around the bush. He has seen his goal, striven for it and reached it—and the O'Neil drama is his profit. The encomiums we passed on to Charles Chaplin will have to be shared with Thomas H. Ince. One has plunged into the superficialities of life, the other into the realities. And yet how like each other are these stories—in the manner of their compact treatment.

Eugene O'Neil, a realist, sketches life as he sees it. That life may expose raw crudities—but it is invariably moving and compelling. Woven deep in the fabric is a vital spiritual note. We will say that there is more of a spiritual quality in "Anna Christie" than in all the sugar-coated slices of sentiment which masquerade under the name of humanity. It carries a comforting quality in its revelation of human frailties—because it strikes at the very vitals of character—showing us how tricks of circumstance guide our destinies. If the censors would look beneath the raw surfaces and see the rugged heart-beat inside, they would have no occasion to point thumbs down.

It is seldom that such a bold document reaches the screen with its vital ingredients intact. Surely Ince hasn't been guided by the idea that his throbbing opus will be passed along to the tender fledglings. Yet, even these fledglings will take nothing from it but worthy impulses.

The director has kept faith with the play—right down to the most unimportant detail. We may miss the ruggedness of the spoken line, but compensation is effected thru the range of the camera to catch a most authentic atmosphere. Ince has so shaped his scenes and guided his players—that we seem to be actual participants. He makes us feel O'Neil's psychology of distressed souls—that emotions guide the heart and mind. The author has played upon the superstition that molds the character of sailor-folk. His figures have tasted the dregs of life—yet all are playboys and playgirls.

These are the people who most profitably helped to make "Anna Christie" better than all the other screen plays of this month. Left to right: George Marion, John Wray, Blanche Sweet and William Russell

O'Neil knows his subject and Ince has kept faith with the text. He releases no sentimentalities, nor any conventional sops. He takes the subject and penetrates into the cross-currents of the human heart—showing us a superstitious, child-like old sailor who ridiculously tries to defy the deep with a futile cry: "Dat old devil sea!" He would keep his daughter away from it—knowing the anguish he has caused his wife who had waited in vain

(Continued on page 95)

The Celluloid Critic

TWO adaptations of highly successful novels bid for recognition in the First National entries, "Ponjola," and "Flaming Youth." The first mentioned is an adventure yarn fashioned from a familiar formula, but thru a clever manipulation of plot and incident framed against an effective background—and played with creditable feeling, it takes on a value which should also cause it to become highly popular on the screen.

If you are not in the know concerning the title, let us state that "Ponjola" is the Kaffir word for whiskey. And it serves as the medium toward the degeneration of a man who has given too much thought to business and romantic reverses executed by a crooked partner and an unappreciative girl.

The idea will be recognized as having served the screen many times before. But its treatment is different. It features the exploits of a beautiful young Englishwoman who journeys to South Africa to escape the embarrassment of the law.

While in Paris she is balked in a suicidal venture by a stranger who is returning to the veldt. He takes her into his confidence—as a result she takes a new lease on life—and even goes so far as to accompany him to South Africa disguised as a man.

What follows is an extremely conventional line of adventure and incident—with the masquerader holding the interest thru her radical disguise. While her sex could be easily identified, for the purpose of the plot—she gets away with it. And regenerates the man who had run away from his character.

There is a deal of melodramatic incident and a fair quota of thrills in this picture—which, as a sample of its kind, is interesting screen fare. Anna Q. Nilsson makes a startling appearance as the heroine. She has not spared the shears in trimming her locks and she makes a wonderfully attractive young man.

James Kirkwood employs his poise and repression to good advantage. He can convey more soul tortures than most of his contemporaries.

Above: Young Douglas Fairbanks in "Stephen Steps Out." Left: Harrison Ford and Ethel Shannon in "Maytime"

Right: Barbara La Marr in "The Eternal City." Below: Anna Q. Nilsson and James Kirkwood in "Ponjola"

AN effort to be naughty but nice is the little movement behind "Flaming Youth," which is the latest visualization of flapperdom. So we have the usual exposé of the fast jazz life, tho it is shown against a much more effective background than what is customarily depicted. Some may call it risqué—but it is mostly suggestion—without much flair of subtlety. We are offered an undressing party for the big swim (no picture of society fast-steppers is complete without its swimming episode)—and so on until we discover that mamma's little girl is growing up and demands expression.

Colleen Moore, once the story gets under way, gives a capable performance of the jazz-crazed flapper. She is pert in appearance and to the point in her craving for a good time. She gives pure "white" kisses and when "red" kisses are forced on her pouty lips, she flames up with indignation. She is not far from being a pathological study—is little Patricia Fentriss. She observes hectic "doings" in her home and decides to participate. Her mother has been discovered in the arms of a man—a mother who has succumbed to the giddy life. After her death her most faithful admirer shows a great interest in the girl—who must experience a harrowing adventure aboard a yacht before she is lugged out of danger.

It is artistically designed—this picture, and its petting and "necking" parties will doubtless establish long lines at the box-office. But it skims the surface most of the time. We would catalog it as bright and playful, but artificial.

THERE seems to be no end to a picturization of the stormy days of French history. Here we have in "Under the Red Robe" (Cosmopolitan) an elaborate exposé of the silk and satin period when Richelieu ruled the affairs of state during the reign of Louis XIII. Unfortunately this vital character—one of the dominant figures of his time—is allowed to pass almost unnoticed once he is introduced—in order that the picture conventions may be obeyed. Thus we have a long, tiresome romance developed between a young scallawag—gifted with the sword, who is sentenced by Richelieu to bring back a rebel or suffer the loss of his head in the basket—and the rebel's sister.

Laurence Reid Reviews the Latest Photoplays

An unwieldy pattern—this, which falters in robbing the cardinal of the spotlight—and permitting the romance to take away the historical value.

Furthermore, there is little variety in the love episodes. On the credit side is a gorgeousness of design—capitalized in an array of beautiful settings and costumes—which are truly suggestive of the period. There is not so much an air of solidity and massiveness as there is one of color and richness. Occasionally it stirs us with a dramatic stroke—such as the death of the spy—and Richelieu's humiliation when he suffers the loss of his power for a day. It's a picture which has a distinct ocular appeal, but which is not skilfully constructed to indicate the real intrigue of court.

Most of the acting leaves us cold. John Charles Thomas is a robust and fleshy cavalier, but is too awkward and too stiff of posture to be the gay charmer of Weyman's book. Alma Rubens does not scale any emotional heights as the heroine. Robert B. Mantell's Richelieu is too theatric of expression.

ANOTHER unwieldy design is "The Eternal City" (Goldwyn-First National), which has little in common with the book. True, it carries Hall Caine's atmosphere, title—and a suggestion of his

Alma Rubens in "Under the Red Robe"

Below: Thomas Meighan and Lila Lee In "Woman Proof"

Bill Hart in "Wild Bill Hickok"

Edward Horton in "To The Ladies"

Colleen Moore in "Flaming Youth" romantic conflict, but there is nothing impressive about it aside from some Roman backgrounds, such as the Fascisti storming the Coliseum—and other ancient landmarks.

We are offered an artificial story of children who grow up as lovers. Now comes the Great War with the boy enlisting thru patriotic enthusiasm—and the girl reading the report that he has been killed in action. Which plants the reason why she becomes victimized by a wealthy roué. One may see the climax indicated far in advance. It is a certainty that the youth will return from the war and surprise his erstwhile sweetheart with another. So when he comes back, the picture has lost every suggestion of surprise. The puzzling query here is why the sponsors relied upon such an ancient theme in their modernization of the novel. There is a deal of storm and stress before her honor is vindicated. Indeed, the scenes become involved with much melodrama—which introduces conflict of a propaganda quality when the Fascisti are introduced. The hero has enlisted as one of Mussolini's most trusted lieutenants. At the proper moment he strikes against the arch-rebel who is the very man who involved the girl in scandal.

The picture is rambling of story and tries to cover too much ground. The spiritual note is striven for, but poorly indicated. And the acting is anything but inspired. Barbara La Marr is permitted too many close-ups, so that her portrayal impresses us as a photographic
(Continued on page 96)

Above is one of the bedrooms, dainty and charming, in its rose and white and ivory-painted furniture.

Above is the dining-room in dull blue and rose with ivory wood work. The furniture is Circassian walnut, the rug an oriental. Right is Miss Mathis' own study with its typical California atmosphere. It is done in red and green and the furniture is mission. You should have great respect for this room, for it is here that Miss Mathis earns her salary

The salary of June Mathis as editorial director for Goldwyn pictures is $100,000.00 a year. It is not surprising that she should have a charming home. It was designed by Louis Benton, of Los Angeles, and decorated by Miss Mathis herself with the assistance of the designer. These photographs were taken by George D. Haight

Above is a little out-door sun-room facing the grounds, insuring privacy and peace

Hollywood Homes

No. XVI

The home of June Mathis, Goldwyn's Editorial Director, is pictured here

At the top of the page is the view from the street. The house is of soft Italian pink stucco with a dark-red tiled roof. The planting is admirable and the lawns and garden unusually trim

Left is Miss Mathis in her living-room arranging the roses from her own garden. A charming home and a charming hostess. Note the odd effect the California sun has on the tiles of the roof at the top of the page

FROM the movie vocabulary in "The Best Moving Pictures of 1922-23," by Robert E. Sherwood:

GROSS, v. To make money. It is applied only to pictures. ("This film will gross a million dollars.")

In other words, William Fox's "Temple of Venus" is a million dollars' worth of grossness.

✦ ✦ ✦

"God never meant laughter to be full of daggers that dig into the heart," says the heroine in "The Temple of Venus."

This fella, now, Fox, just knows everything, ain't it?

✦ ✦ ✦

At this writing, Gene Sarazen, the golf enthusiast, is to be married to Pauline Garon, the First Flapper of Filmdom.

Looks as if he had an almost perfect approach.

✦ ✦ ✦

Later: Miss Garon has denied that she is betrothed to Mr. Sarazen, thus laying him a mean stymie.

✦ ✦ ✦

If you ask us, it's our opinion that the whole affair's the bunker.

✦ ✦ ✦

Whatever harsh words may be justly spoken of the legitimate stage, at least it spares us the puerile effect of the gel's face appearing deep in the heart of a rose. Nor, as in "His Children's Children," do devils ever emanate from wine-cups and flaming matches to philosophize in illiterate subtitles. We fatuously thought such trick photography was as dead as a dinosaur's egg.

✦ ✦ ✦

Devils in their proper place, to be sure, are not without a certain dignity. Embellishing the advertisements of corn-cures, dyspepsia tablets and Underwood's Picnic Ham, for instance, they are hot stuff.

✦ ✦ ✦

"His Children's Children" also offers an interesting example of the proper Christian sentiment. In what might be called a prolog, Grandpapa is shown whooping it up on the observation platform of his private car with a Fancy Person. A lassie, however, from a nearby group of Salvation Army choristers brings him the Light. Grandpapa morally renovated, his mistress becomes most offensive to his sight. "Get out!" he says in a fine frenzy of righteousness. "Here are your things—go!" And out she goes, without benefit of clergy, or any spiritual reinforcement whatever.

Now that's no way for a gent to treat a lady!

✦ ✦ ✦

OUR OWN CENSORSHIP STANDARDS

A casual examination of the platforms of the various state censorship boards has practically forced us to form one of our own. So far as we are concerned, the boards have failed utterly in the proper execution of their duties. And then, one always gets better results when one does things oneself, doesn't one?

Our rulings are as below:

1. There will be not more than three bathing beauties shown in any one scene. All bathing beauties must enter the water. Bathing suits obviously designed not for comfort but for the exploitation of the female form divine will be frowned upon. This need not apply to news reel pictures of beauty contests.

2. There will be no more pictures of swimming-pool parties countenanced until July 24, 1978.

3. Scenes of motion-picture actors and actresses presumably engaged in a set of tennis will be strongly disapproved. This goes for golf, also.

4. No actor over forty-five will be permitted to take the part of a student in scenes of college life.

5. Scenes displaying the star in improper lingerie will either be cut out entirely or given a reasonable amount of footage. A little knowledge is a dangerous thing.

6. The wearing of caps with evening clothes by male actors will be discouraged.

7. All scenes showing the actual consumption of food at a civilized repast will positively not be tolerated unless the performers are made to stop acting naturally. (Very probably to be continued.)

✦ ✦ ✦

"Surely," said the Boss (who is more of a Darn Good Pal than a boss), "you are going to write something about 'A Woman of Paris.'" And so we are. Charles Spencer
(Continued on page 90)

Photograph by Clarence S. Bull

Courtesy of Ina Anson and Goldwyn Pictures

The Immortal Clown

With Specially Posed Photographs of Larry Semon
by Lejaren à Hiller

LITERATURE is filled with portraits of the tragic clown, the fun-maker who carries in his heart the burden of a great personal sorrow, but who laughs away the hours in gay hearted abandonment, while his soul suffers because of grief he dare not reveal in his guise of purveyor of merriment.

In all literature there is no more tragic figure than the clown made famous by Caruso, the Pagliacci of the opera, with whom we have all laughed, over whom we have all wept; the shadow of whose tragedy has brought to the stage one of those wonderful and sublime moments which are the very pinnacle of human experience.

There have been many sympathetic portrayals of Pagliacci which have added dramatic art to lash the imagination and awaken in the heart and soul a sense of grief so almost divine as to be next to unbearable.

It was a daring thing to plan—to give to art-lovers photographic portrait

Right: Here the clown has yielded gradually to conviction and the grim determination to avenge betrays itself in his features. Below is portrayed an abject and hopeless despair. Revenge has not brought relief. These are fine and sympathetic studies. Bravo, Mr. Semon!

Here is a new Larry Semon telling the familiar story of Pagliacci's grief and despair. Above is the funny man without a care in the world, the old Larry Semon at his best. Left is the first hint of his wife's unfaithfulness, which, in his surprise, he is not quite ready to believe studies of Pagliacci; to believe that any man could, by mere facial expression, bring to us the grief portrayed by the classic clown, relieve for us the scenes of that tragedy in silence, making us remember our hurt and crying sympathy which the voice of Caruso has left as a memory in our ears.

Lejaren à Hiller, well-known artist-photographer, has made such an attempt, and he chose from his long sought-for subjects and original of his picture-studies, Larry Semon. . . . Semon, who has made us laugh till we cried . . . Semon, the clever . . . the agile . . . the merryman, without a suggestion of sorrow in the world.

"I looked and looked almost in vain," says Mr. Hiller, "for a man who could interpret these master-studies, but could find no one. However, when I met Larry Semon,

I felt, at last, I had discovered my man. Mr. Semon has shown a new side of the artist in him thru these portraits. He portrays his own story and in a way that you can fairly hear the sobs, the grief of one betrayed.

The studies are of the clown—in his usual mood; the funny man without a care, giving of his fun. What did he know of grief? What did he suspect of treachery?

Then the first hint of his wife's unfaithfulness; the surprised man, not quite ready to believe, not quite ready to yield to the impulse of jealousy. Life is still funny, tho something in it is becoming complicated.

He yields gradually to conviction, then all his pent-up emotions are aroused . . . the gay nonchalance for which he is famous, droops

(Continued on page 94)

Flashes From the Eastern Stars

Of the Stage, on the Screen.

Caught by the Editor

Apeda

Above: Alice Delysia, of "Topics of 1923."
Below: J. Hartley Manners and his wife,
Laurette Taylor, back in New York

© Underwood and Underwood

Above is John P. Brawn on tour with Frank Craven in "The First Year," playing with conspicuous success the Mr. Livingstone of the play. Below are the dear (?) familiar "L" tracks of New York, in, on, and around which, Director Emmett Flynn made most of "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model"

THE pleasantest thing we can think of that has happened so far in the movies, is that Lillian Gish and Richard Barthelmess will play "Romeo and Juliet" on the screen. There is no debating the appropriateness of the choice. Lillian and Dorothy are both in Italy for the filming of "Romola." "Romeo and Juliet" will also be made there, and "Joan Of Arc," starring Lillian Gish, will be deferred until later. * * * Richard Barthelmess is in the midst of "The Enchanted Cottage," upon completion of which he will join the Gishes in Italy. May McAvoy has the lead in this picture. Holmes Herbert is playing Major Hillgrove, the blind officer. John S. Robertson is directing. He will also direct "Romeo and Juliet." * * * Al Woods has put into rehearsal a new play by John Hunter Booth, titled "Softy." Robert Ames is the featured player. Elizabeth Murray, Florence Flinn, Jack Raeffael and William Calhoun are in the cast * * * Flora Le Breton, the English motion-picture star, who is creating a very favorable impression on American producers, thinks New York is about the most interesting place she ever visited. She is fascinated by the electric signs. The other day the Wrigley Spearment sign attracted her interest so long that she stood watching it for quite a long time until the crowd gathered around her. Miss Le Breton was not aware of the crowd until a policeman came up and informed her that she was obstructing traffic * * * Dr. Daniel Carson Goodman, author-producer, and Alma Rubens, star of "Under the Red Robe," now playing at Cosmopolitan Theater. New York City, have announced their marriage. It took place last August * * * Fourteen gallons of chewing gum remover have been used since the opening of the Music Box Theater in keeping theater chairs safe for the spectator. The liquid has been used to separate individual piles of fully masticated gum from furtive parking spaces under the theater seats. Fifteen cuds of chewing gum has been the average discovery following performances. The objectionable wads of gum have been found on bannisters, walls of the theater, carpets, under seats in the beautiful lounge, and under arms of chairs. Every known or suspected place is explored each day by the cleaning squad. Do you do this? We hope not * * * Gloria Swanson does an apache dance in her newest Paramount picture, "The Humming Bird," which will be a revelation. For weeks she has been practising the weird dance creation with Aurelio Coccia, who, for the last ten years, has been dancing it thruout the United States.

Left are Pauline Frederick and Lou Tellegen playing together in "Let No Man Put Asunder." Right are Jane Cowl, Rollo Peters and Kate Terry, famous sister of Ellen and one of the great Juliets of the stage. Below is "Mother Ashton," with her little niece and her staff of deft, polite and attentive Japanese, who help make her newly opened tea-room the success it deserves to be, and is "The apache dance is cruel, fierce, and wild," explained Coccia. "Many people believe that it has been exaggerated by dancers, but that is not so. One night in Paris while making the rounds of the cafés in the Montmartre district in search of color for my dance, I was fortunate enough to witness a little triangle drama between two apache men and a girl. One of the apaches, seeing the woman with his rival, picked up a bottle and smashed it to fragments on the floor. He deliberately cut his hand with a piece of the glass, advanced to the defiant girl, seized her with his bloody hands and began to dance to the strains of the notorious Mattischiche. It was a fascinating sight." Miss Swanson had to give up work on this picture for nearly two weeks due to a particularly severe case of "Kleig eyes" * * * Glowing reports of the effectiveness of F. Scott Fitzgerald's comedy, "The Vegetable," drift in from Atlantic City, where Sam H. Harris first presented the play. It is being prepared for a Broadway showing with Ernest Truex as star. * * * Lee Kugel, who says he counted them, reports that 3,000 actors, actresses and dancers yesterday afternoon stormed the doors of Morris Gest at the Princess Theater seeking engagements in Max Reinhardt's "The Miracle." * * * Homer

Croy, author of "West of the Water Tower," has just offered a prize of $100 for the best bit of writing done during the current school year by a student of the University of Missouri. The award is very unusual. Mr. Croy says he doesn't want any red tape connected with it and wants to "encourage some student who has the writing germ buried in his soul and who thinks no one cares." Mr. Croy was formerly a student at the

Ball

University of Missouri. Just at present he is a kind of literary hero among the undergraduates because "West of the Water Tower" has become a best-seller and has just been produced as a motion picture by Paramount, with Glenn Hunter in the star rôle. * * * Probably no member of the theatrical profession has traveled more extensively than Miss Georgette Harvey of the "Runnin' Wild" company, the all-colored musical show now playing in New York City. Miss Harvey, tho comparatively a young woman, has spent fourteen consecutive years playing thruout Europe and Asia, ten of which were spent in Russia. During her long stay in the latter country she witnessed five revolutions, and was in Petrograd at the time of the overthrow of the late Czar. Her recital of the terrible experiences which she was forced to undergo are dramatic in the extreme. Desiring to leave the country, she was thwarted at every move and accomplished it only after traveling across Russia to Siberia and the far East. During this trip she personally saw more than two hundred executions. An uneviable record! * * * After four months of searching the market for a suitable story for George Fitzmaurice's second independent production, Samuel Goldwyn announces the acquisition of Joseph Hergesheimer's novel, "Cytheria," and work will begin the latter part of this month. The director is now in Cuba, selecting locations. * * * Nita Naldi is in New York again after a long stay on the Coast. Her plans are undecided. * * * Colleen Moore has been honeymooning, a bit late, but still honeymooning, in this greatest of cities. She has been buying furniture for her new home. She has been (Con. on page 102)

The Yankee Consul

By NORMAN BRUCE

"I'VE seen people down in the mouth before," said Jarvis with mournful relish, "but I never saw one down in the mouther than Mr. Ainsworth. No, sir. Thank you, sir." Jarvis always thanked you. He was imported from England; and he knew what was expected of him.

"No desire to gather him roses while he may, eh?" Morrell commented sympathetically, reaching for the bottle of Bourbon on the tray in the butler's hands, "finds no comfort in the jolly old flowing bowl and all that kind of thing? Maybe some girl has turned him down. We must cherchez la femme in cases where a fellow with everything he wants in the world suddenly discovers that he doesn't want anything."

"I dont think it's that, sir," Jarvis shook his head, "I've been thru three affairs of the 'eart with young gentlemen I've 'ad the honor of serving and I know the symptoms. Thank you, sir."

"It cant be money troubles," Morrell reflected, "his income tax looks like a movie star's salary. Liver, perhaps."

"I've been butler to two livers, sir, and one gout." Jarvis sighed, "there's nothing wrong with Mr. Ainsworth's 'ealth, I'm certain. If I may venture a suggestion, sir, I think he needs a h'interest in life and if he doesn't get it," he made an eloquent gesture of putting an invisible pistol to his forehead and pulling the trigger, "I was once second footman to a suicide, sir. Thank you, sir."

Left to himself and the Bourbon by the grateful Jarvis, Jack Morrell laughed, then frowned. He had known

Dudley Ainsworth since freshman year at Yale and between them existed that rare thing that men never put into words—friendship. If he had occasion to speak of it, Morrell, shying in horror from sentiment, would have said that they were Dud Damon and Jack Pythias. He had noticed his chum's depression but Jarvis' report gave him the first hint of its seriousness.

"I must put the old bean at work," he told himself, "it's hard to think with nothing to do it with, but it's got to be done! Let's see, if he isn't in love he ought to be——"

Dudley Ainsworth, lounging in shortly afterward, barely glanced at his friend. He flung himself into a chair, fumbled for a cigaret and when the match went out, irritably tossed the unlighted cigaret away. The muscles of his handsome young face were drawn so taut that he looked as tho he were wearing a mask but his hands shook, and catching Morrell's glance he thrust them into his pockets.

"Damn!" he said drearily, "Damn everything!"

"Come out to dinner with me." Jack suggested, "I can manage the wine and the women and I might even be persuaded to oblige with a song!"

Ainsworth shook his head. "Have to dress, and I'm sick of dressing. D'you ever stop to think, Jack, how many more times we'll have to dress before we die? How many shirt studs we'll have to put in—Gad! When I look ahead to forty years of tying my necktie and brushing my hair, I feel as tho I couldn't go thru with it!" His voice had risen to the pitch of hysteria. Jack Morrell was shocked. Lord, but the poor chap was in a bad way—in another moment he'd be bursting into tears!

"Dont worry, your hair wont last another forty years, m'boy!" he said flippantly, "do come along, Dud! I want you to meet a girl, reg'lar stunner, my sister's chum at Vassar, but she doesn't wear blue stockings, and she doesn't flap either. Hairpins instead of a bob, and uses her head for something besides a parking place for a hat. You'd like her."

It appeared that Ainsworth wouldn't go across the street to meet Helen of Troy. Women talked, which was bad, or else they expected to be talked to, which was worse. Argument and pleading were of no avail, and then Morrell played his trump card.

"The trouble with you, Dud, you're out of the game, you're sitting on the side-lines instead of being out on the field where you belong. A job is what you need. Look here, I'm willing to bet you ten thousand dollars that if you go to work for a month and live on what you can make life will look entirely different to you."

Ainsworth stared wanly. "A job! What d'you suppose anyone would hire me to do—I'm the most useless object on God's green earth, I'm as worthless as a corpse and I take up a good deal more room. Job! I couldn't get a job to pound sand in a rat hole!"

For reply, Jack turned to the telephone. "Listen, girlie, I'm not doing this to exercise the 'phone," he added earnestly after giving a number. "I know, sweetie, that the line is busy and the party dont answer and all that. Why not be original and get me the number?"

Dudley Ainsworth listened with a wry smile. He told himself that the plan was preposterous, that he wouldn't be a party to it, and yet he made no move to interfere, even when, from the one-sided conversation on the 'phone, he deduced that he had been hired by the Happy Days Travel Bureau to sell steamship tickets and distribute gaudy booklets over a counter for twenty-two dollars and fifty cents a week, somewhat less than he usually spent on cigars. Morrell hung up the receiver triumphantly. "There you are! Remember the conditions, one month's work and you're to live on your pay. If at the end of the time you dont confess life is worth living, I'll hand you a check for ten thousand!"

"You're a fool, Jack," his friend remarked listlessly, "but I'm desperate enough to try it. And if it doesn't succeed I wont want your money, I'll just let you treat me to a cyanide cocktail. I'm tired of sticking around this stale, flat and unprofitable world waiting for something to happen."

"I have a hunch you'll find your job—interesting." Morrell said cryptically, "well, so long! Of course I dont mingle much with the proletariat, and our stations in life will be different from now on, but maybe I'll drop in now and again to wring your horny hand of toil."

The first two days at the travel bureau were unusual enough to provide a young millionaire who had never been into such a place with a few novel impressions. Faithful to the terms of the wager, Ainsworth took a frightful room in a lodging-house on Twenty-third Street where the sheets smelled of boiled cabbage and the carpet was like decayed vegetation, and since he must choose between three meals a day in dirty lunchrooms or one meal a day in a decent if modest restaurant he decided on the latter and found himself really hungry for the first time in weeks. He was even able to smile feebly at the thought of Jarvis' horror if he could see the tin tub in the lodging-house's one bathroom and the pink powder scattered on the lavatory by the hall-bedroom manicurist—a determined blonde.

But on the third morning the dark cloud of depression settled down again. It was all so futile—the booklets of standardized tours with their specious pictures of pagodas and Roman ruins, the cheap people who came in to talk about cheap cabins. With the morbid fancy of a sick and jaded mind, Ainsworth seemed to see the Inverted Bowl of old Omar and underneath, crawling aimless as ants, the human millions caught in the trap of existence. From these thoughts he was roused by a familiar voice asking casually for a ticket to San Domingo.

"San Domingo," stammered Ainsworth, "for Heavens' sake why would you want a ticket to San Domingo?"

"In order to travel there, of course, my good fellow!" Morrell said blandly, "Steamship Mariposa, sailing this afternoon. Come, come, hurry up!"

"I say, Jack, if you're really going to San Domingo, I'll come along," Ainsworth automatically placed a blue ticket in an envelope and pushed it over the counter, "you were wrong—there's no kick to this job, and the fellow in the room above mine plays 'Old Black Joe' on a cornet all the evening!"

"Tut, tut, what are the working classes coming to?" Morrell grinned, "think of your wager! Picture me sitting under palm with a book of verses, a jug of wine, and a charming Thou, but as for you work hard, my boy—work wins, you know! See you later!" With an airy wave of his hand he strolled out, almost colliding in the doorway with an agitated young lady of such unusual beauty that Ainsworth who had been about to dash after his friend stood still in his tracks staring dazedly at the dark pale loveliness revealed by the lifting of the heavy black veil she wore.

"As the Mariposa she sail yet?" the young lady inquired with a foreign accent which Ainsworth could not quite place, "ave the boat to San Domingo a'ready depart?" And now he saw that she seemed to be laboring under some emotion. The bosom of her dress rose and fell swiftly and she cast frequent glances toward the door.

Dudley Ainsworth had led an entirely average life. The women he had known had been dancing partners or dinner neighbors, charming, carefully trained to please, perfectly understandable even to the meaning of the conscious look in their blue, black or brown eyes when they gazed at him.

"For love of ze good Saint Mike zat you Americans worship, do not leave me—I am in so great trouble—but I cannot tell you jus' now—I write—" The ventilator clicked shut as another woman's hand drew the girl away from the window

"I'll be damned if I will!" Ainsworth returned promptly. What would have happened next he did not know and he did not particularly care. A fellow like a musical-comedy king giving orders to a citizen of the United States!

But this woman was different, tantalizing, mysterious. She was like a flirt of a scarlet fan in a carnival crowd, laughter in stormy moonlight, she was like—

Confusedly he heard his own voice assuring her that the Mariposa had not gone. Dizzily he was conscious of following her hurrying figure to the door, of standing bareheaded on the pavement watching a foreign-looking gentleman and a lady with diamonds in her ears hurry her into a taxicab which a moment later was lost in the tide of traffic, but not before he had caught a memory of a wild white face pressed to the window, the gesture of a little hand, whether in farewell or entreaty he did not know.

A snicker brought him back to his surroundings and the consciousness that he lacked a hat. Behind his counter once more Ainsworth sold several tickets with entire disregard for such small details as destination and date, then for the third time that morning the Steamship Mariposa was the subject of excited inquiry. An elderly man, face almost hidden behind an underbrush of ginger-colored whiskers, stood as close to the counter as his girth would allow, banging a tattoo with a rusty cotton umbrella.

"Looky here, young man," he addressed Ainsworth belligerently. "my name is Abijah Boos."

He seemed to expect some comment, but not exactly the one his hearer made. "Of course," Ainsworth murmured, "it couldn't be anything else. What can I do for you, Mr. Boos?"

The umbrella increased its tempo. "You can take this here passport and ticket and go aboard the Steamship Mariposa and git my luggage off'n her before she sails. I've changed my mind. I'm going to stay over for the Independent Order of Woodman's Ball."

The Unknown Lady had asked for the Mariposa—in ten minutes Dudley Ainsworth, before whom even head waiters were wont to grow servile, was hurrying up the gangplank and diving down into a hold odorous of bilge to seek the belongings of one Abijah Boos. Over mountains of trunks and foot-hills of suit-cases he toiled, bruising his shins and barking his knuckles. At last, triumphant he emerged from the nether regions and beckoned a steward: "I have a couple of trunks down here," he said briskly. "I want you to throw them off on the dock."

The man stared, grinned. "Sorry, sir, but I cant throw that far," he snickered, jerking a thumb toward a porthole, "you see we're ten miles out already!"

Ainsworth rushed to the port-hole—green billows, foam embossed, and not a sign of land! He shrugged all responsibility from his shoulders. Morrell, with his idiotic wager had got-

THE YANKEE CONSUL

Fictionized by permission from Associated Exhibitors' production of the screen adaptation by Raymond Griffith and Raymond Cannon of the musical comedy by Henry M. Blossom, Jr., and Alfred G. Robyn. Directed by James W. Horne. The cast:

- Dudley Ainsworth.....Douglas MacLean
- Jack Morrell.....Arthur Stuart Hull
- Leopoldo.....Stanhope Wheatcroft
- Donna Teresa.....Eulalie Jensen
- Don Raphael Deschado.....George Periolat
- Maria.....Patsy Ruth Miller
- John J. Doyle.....Fred Kelsey
- Duncan, ship's purser.....L. C. Shumway
- Ripley, retired consul.....Gerald Pring
- Servant.....Bert Hadley

him into this, Morrell must get him out. But did he want to get out? What if the lady of the black veil and eyes like the perilous seas in fairy lands forlorn were on board? He was amazed at the way his pulses quickened at the thought. He felt suddenly alive, eager, as he went up the companion-way stairs to the smoking-room.

Morrell, a tall glass in front of him, greeted him without surprise and listened to his story with an only perfunctory interest. His rotund countenance wore a worried look as tho he were waiting for the worst to happen. "Do you notice how we're rocking?" he asked feebly, "always did hate the water! I get seasick every time I take a bath—'fraid I'm not going to be able to help you much. But you're all right, you've got Boos' passport and ticket—"

"Think I look like that bird?" Ainsworth displayed the whiskered countenance on the passport indignantly, "it would take me a month to grow a crop of foliage like that!"

The boat gave a lurch, climbed a steep wave and shuddered violently. Morrell turned green, and rose in haste. "Might take your own picture and stick it on the passport," he murmured, "I—got a camera and flashlight powders—oh Lord, I think we're rolling worse—ugh!"

Ainsworth strolled out on deck. Perhaps it would be better to go back with the pilot. By the second time around he was certain that it would. Habit reasserted itself—how could he ever have dreamed for a moment of impersonating a man with an unspeakable name like Abijah Boos? What would Jarvis say? He would have to use the contents of the trunks in the hold and he knew beforehand that Abijah would wear nightshirts. Impossible. He stopped, startled. A hand was rapping on the glass window of the stateroom he was passing! As he drew nearer, the girl whom he had seen in the travel bureau appeared a moment at the port-hole. Hurried words reached him thru the ventilator: "For the love

Above: The Yankee Consul poses for his picture blissfully unaware that the suit of armor will soon come to life and hack at him with the battle-ax. Right, below. "A joke?" he asked softly . . . "was it all a joke, my dear? The things I said to you . . . the things you said to me?"

of ze good Saint Mike zat you Americans worship. do not leave me. I knew firs' time I see that you were brave. I am in the so—great trouble but I cannot tell you now, I write—"

The ventilator clicked shut as another woman's hand, old, but bedizened with rings, drew the girl away from the window. And at almost the same moment the foreign-looking gentleman who had hustled her away in the taxicab strolled out on deck, regarding Ainsworth with the smile of the cat just before it devours the canary. "Ah-h!" Dudley did not care for the way he said it, tho his tone was polite, "we are to be fellow travelers. Permit me to introduce myself—Señor Jose Leopoldo, ver' much at your service. And you, señor, are—?"

Ainsworth made his decision rapidly. "My name is Abijah Boos, and I am traveling to San Domingo for my health."

Leopoldo tapped him confidentially on the chest with a dazzling nail. "Take my advice, my young fren'," he purred, "San Domingo will not be healthy for you. If you are wise and do not wan' lose what health you a'ready got, take a steamer back as soon as we land!"

A search among his namesake's effects confirmed Ainsworth's forebodings as to that gentleman's taste in night-wear. Another

(Continued on page 100)

The Principals of a Notable
Production

Warner Brothers
Present
John Barrymore
in "Beau Brummell"

John Ellis

A Beau
and
Two Belles

John Ellis

At the top of the page is Mary Astor in the rôle of Lady Marjorie Albanley. To play opposite John Barrymore is a distinction of which this young girl should be very proud. Directly above is Carmel Myers as Lady Hester Stanhope. People are talking about her now as tho she were a new discovery

Left is John Barrymore, America's most distinguished actor, in the title-rôle of "Beau Brummell," the stage play that Richard Mansfield made famous. Above is a bit from the picture. This film promises to be one of the truly great of the season, certainly one of the most beautiful and artistic

Abbé

The Rejected Suitor

An English Imitation of a Popular American

Gertrude Laurence does an imitation of Irene Castle that is more like Irene than Irene is herself. Miss Laurence is an English beauty and one of the stars of the starriest of English Revues, André Charlot's. The Selwyns have imported the whole troupe, body and soul, principally—well, they are beautiful, and you will have a chance to see their—well, every shining soul in the late winter when the Revue will reach New York City

Melbourne Spurr

Richard Dix is that rarity, a Hollywood bachelor. He is one of the most popular of the younger leading men and has just signed a five-year contract with Famous Players

THE original little bird who tells people things has its nest in a date palm on Hollywood Boulevard. As soon as you arrive in town, you hear its piping:

"They say he isn't—well you know—"

Here's the real dope on So-and-So—"

But there is one note noticeably missing in the litany of gossip. That chatty little bird has got nothing—not a single darn thing on Richard Dix.

"No use trying to interview me—everybody who ever tried it says I'm too normal," he said apologetically as we balanced our trays on the rails in McComber's Cafeteria. Some stars should be interviewed only in a dramatic setting of dark Tudor oak, sandalwood scent and the half light of flickering candles, but the cheerful noonday atmosphere of a cafeteria with the bracing smell of coffee and the brisk clatter of china as accompaniments seems a more fitting locale for a chat with Dix.

Dixit

By DOROTHY DONNELL

"Yes," he continued, when the important matter of which kind of pie was settled, "I get to the studio at nine o'clock, work around here all day and afterwards go home like a regular commuter. Sometimes I've thought that maybe I ought to go in more for complexes or inhibitions or something a little bit, well—goofy!"

Neither on the screen nor off, does Richard Dix play a part. Every man knows him at once for a member of the order of Reg'lar Guys, the chap he'd like to go fishing with, the sort of boy he'd pick for a son or a son-in-law. Every woman recognizes him the moment she sees him as the Next Door Boy she went to school with and made fudge for—the one who played short-stop on the high eleven and sat evenings on the front porch railing while

(Continued on page 87)

Edwin Bower Hesser

Norma Shearer

Is one of the younger movie set in Hollywood, of more than usual promise. She has just completed the engaging rôle of Mimi, in "Lucretia Lombard," second only in importance to the star

The Hollywood

Transcribed by

Above: The female apache is Viola Dana, pretty thoroly disguised too. The young man-about-to-end-it-all is Warner Baxter, who is playing opposite her in, "In Search of a Thrill." Right: Even Farina, the great Hal Roach star, has her directorial moments. Her-or-er-his name, by the way, is Allan Clay Hoskins. Below: Netta Westcott, the English beauty, visits Tom Forman's company while they were making "The Virginian"

NOW that the worst of the excitement is over and we can all breathe again, it is discovered that the casualties of the motion-picture shake-up were not quite so terrible as they sounded. Sundry and various people—mostly scenario writers—are out of jobs; but the good old wagon is trundling along just the same.

The truth is, the motion-picture panic was brought on deliberately to reduce salaries to a sane point. Last April and May there happened to be a sudden scarcity of actors and the resultant emoluments rose to a point that sounded like a handful of German marks. Every actor bought an arithmetic and hunted up the highest number he could find by way of weekly pay envelope. There were various other business complications, but this was the main reason for the closing of several studios.

Altho some of the big stars are a trifle chagrined to find themselves "rented out" by the Famous Players-Lasky Company to other companies, there are not many out of work.

* * *

Leatrice Joy has been passed along to Thomas H. Ince who is about to make a South Sea picture something on the order of "Rain." The part of the missionary, in this instance, will be taken by Percy Marmont who made such a hit in "If Winter Comes." The indifferent, cynical husband will be played by Adolphe Menjou. It is a terrific tragedy.

* * *

Even Bebe Daniels, the darling of the Lasky lot, has been rented out. She is going to play Katherine, in a modernized version of "The Taming of the Shrew," which is to be screened by the youngest of all the producers, Bennie Zeidman.

Petruchio will be played by Norman Kerry. Bebe feels very much excited at the prospect of playing in a Shakespearian production.

Bebe is also thrilled by the fact that her young and girlish aunt, Elena Griffin, who was formerly an actress, is going back to her screen career. It isn't every girl who has an opportunity to chaperon aunty past the pitfalls that lurk in the cinema.

* * *

Charlie Chaplin, I understand, is again busy with soul revelations. Every so often, Charlie feels that he should write the real story of his life, sparing nothing; just ripping the cover off his innermost ego in the fashion of Mary MacLean. The trouble is, when Charlie comes to read it over, it always embarrasses him so that he tears it up.

Charlie has a devoted friend who is one of the great surgeons of the world. They have the most ferocious quarrels over Charlie's autobiography and the doctor

Boulevardier Chats

HARRY CARR

always ends by storming out of the house with the remark: "All I ask is to get that fellow in a bed in my hospital sometime; I'll show him."

* * *

So many girls are pouring into Hollywood looking for fame and fortune in the movies that the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce is issuing a circular warning, to be sent to the four quarters of the earth, telling pretty girls that the movies are already overcrowded and there isn't a chance in ten thousand of getting a living job in any studio.

* * *

The overflow of talent and beauty has created a curious industrial condition in Los Angeles. The employment agencies are so crowded with youth and baffled beauty humbly looking for jobs as stenographers, etc., that a plain girl hasn't a chance.

Los Angeles business men, seeking help, have grown so amazingly particular as regards the pulchritude of their hired help that one man even sent in an order for a girl who would look well with his new set of mahogany furniture.

The disappointed girls who cant even stenog will face a hard winter. The charity organizations of Los Angeles have helped many to go back to the homes they left.

* * *

The champion scandal of the winter has been provided by Barbara La Marr, who electrified Hollywood by causing the arrest of a well-known theatrical lawyer on a charge of blackmail. According to her accusation, he demanded $25,000 to suppress a divorce suit about to be brought by her husband, N. Bernard Deely, in which, the lawyer said, thirty-seven co-respondents were to be named. Mr. Deely denies that he had any connection with the affair. Thru the help of Miss La Marr's manager, a trap was laid for the lawyer with marked bills. He is now out of jail on bail.

* * *

When the detectives searched his office, they found what seemed to be the papers of a suit for divorce in which Blanche Sweet was plaintiff and Marshall Neilan, her husband, was defendant. According to the allegations of the suit, Blanche alleged that Mr. Neilan had married her only to defraud her of her legal rights and had thereafter refused to live with her. Both Neilan and Miss Sweet say that the paper is a fake; that they are living together happily and that no divorce suit was ever thought of.

Above: Ella Hall, the wife and star of Emory Johnson, and their two cunning youngsters, pose for their picture in their own charming garden. Left: Walter Hiers demonstrates his versatility in a most alarming manner. We trust the sword swallowing is not to be a permanent performance. Below: The beloved clown of the screen, Will Rogers, is introduced to "Our Gang" by little Mickey Daniels, their leader

Above: The great prima donna, Margarete Matznauer, and her daughter Adrienne meet Elinor Glyn on a recent visit to Hollywood. Right is a sketch of Jacqueline Logan as Bessie Brook in "The Light That Failed"

Cecil De Mille who will start the new production program, at Lasky's, with "Triumph," has just returned from a bear hunt in Sonora, laden with trophies and with the profound thanks of an old mother bear. He found some rough gentlemen bears and slew them, but all that his hunting companions could find was a mother bear with a cub. In spite of his protests, they insisted they would hunt her to death the following day. Whereupon Cecil arose at the dewy hour of 4 A. M. and covered up the bear tracks and popped noisily around with a gun until he had warned the mother bear. He finished the trip more popular with lady bears than with irate hunters.

* * *

He celebrated the end of his summer vacation with a grand outing party at his ranch in the Little Tujunga Canyon at which he gave each of the guests a jewel of great price as a souvenir. De Mille's ranch is a wonderful estate but extremely inaccessible in the heart of the mountains.

* * *

Renée Adorée cracked five ribs and all but mashed her face in the other day when the brake of her automobile kicked up and let her slide down-hill into the front of a rapidly approaching street-car. Her motor was smashed into splinters and so was she—almost. She is now in a hospital dwelling in deathly terror lest some of her friends will visit her. The reason for Renée's lack of sociability is that her nose was badly misused by the street-car and she has to wear an immense plaster right across the front of her countenance.

* * *

When Claire Windsor sailed the other day for the wilds of Algeria to appear in a motion-picture with Bert Lytell, she is reputed to have left an aching heart behind her, said organ pounding in the thorax of John Steele, the tenor. Claire runs neck and neck with Constance Talmadge in the number of engagement rumors.

* * *

The beautiful Connie, by the way, has returned to the Coast after a Fifth Avenue vacation, quite content to be a Californian. She has always, until now, felt like an exile when in Hollywood; but the big town didn't seem to have the same charm this time. For some reason, very few of the actors want to return East to live any more.

* * *

Eugene O'Brien, who is one of the California converts, is in the throes of house-building. That is to say, of house-settling, for the edifice has been completed. His friends accuse Gene of trying to carry off all their furniture. They say that whenever he comes to call now, he casts baleful and covetous eyes at all the choice things in the house and wants to convince you they

(Continued on page 74)

Above: One of the cast of King Vidor's "Wild Oranges" looks things over. Right is—well, really, the picture is self-explanatory.

An Interview with Mrs. O.H.P. BELMONT on the care of the skin

"A woman who neglects her personal appearance loses half her influence. The wise care of one's body constructs the frame encircling our mentality, the ability of which insures the success of one's life. I advise a daily use of Pond's Two Creams."

Alex. S. Belmont—

IT was in the beautiful great hall of Beacon Towers on Sand's Point, Port Washington, Long Island, that I first talked with Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

I was excited and eager for the interview because I knew that Mrs. Belmont not only has given lavishly to women's causes from her colossal fortune, has been and is a tremendous worker, but also is particularly interested in woman's special problem of how to keep her force and her charm through middle life and later.

From all this I expected to meet a very commanding woman the day I visited Beacon Towers. But Mrs. Belmont, on the contrary, is quiet and gracious and sweet. She could not have been a more charming hostess.

She herself opened the grilled iron door and I stepped into the big hall with its impressive mural paintings of the life of Joan of Arc and its wide doors opening straight onto Long Island Sound. Here, I felt instantly, is the spirit of beauty strengthened by sincerity.

After we had admired the glorious view she showed me the pictures of her two sons, and of her grandson, who will some day be one of England's dukes, and—very proudly—the latest snapshot of her very young Ladyship, a small great granddaughter.

"How fine textured and fresh her skin is," I thought. And she has just acknowledged herself a great grandmother!"

Begs Women not to Neglect Themselves

"NOW," she was saying smilingly, "I suppose you want me to tell you what I think is the relation between a woman's success and her personal appearance."

"Yes," I admitted, "Just how important do you think personal appearance is?"

"It is vital. That is just as true for the woman at home or in business as for those who are socially prominent.

"Don't you know," she said, "how often the woman with an unattractive face fails in the most reasonable undertaking? Nothing is so distressing. Neglect of one's personal attractions generally comes from ignorance and as I am greatly interested in the success of women in every possible way, I urge them not to neglect themselves."

The Library of Mrs. O. H. P. BELMONT at Beacon Towers on Long Island, where this interview was given.

Mrs. Belmont, now President of the National Woman's Party is known all over America for her active services in securing the suffrage for women. Mrs. Belmont is also interested in better conditions for women, is strong for the abolition of child labor and for the improvement of Children's Homes. She is a trained architect; her three magnificent residences—Villa Isoletto in France, the famous Marble House at Newport, and the imposing country home, Beacon Towers on Long Island, being the products of time not devoted to politics and business.

Pond's Two Creams used by the women who must keep their charm, their beauty, their influence.
EVERY SKIN NEEDS THESE TWO CREAMS

Frenchwomen say, Cleanse and Protect

"YOU spend a part of each year in France. Do Frenchwomen use creams much?" I asked Mrs. Belmont.

"In France," she said "they have always used cleansing creams and protecting creams, knowing that water is not enough and that the face cannot stand much strain and exposure."

"Then you think women should use two creams?"

"I know they should. That is why I advise the daily use of Pond's Two Creams, so that women can keep their charm and influence as long as they need them—and that is always," she smiled.

Use this Famous Method

GIVE your skin these two indispensables to lasting skin loveliness—the kind of cleaning that restores each night your skin's essential suppleness, and the freshening that, besides protecting, brings each time the beauty of fresh smooth skin under your powder.

For this, two distinctly different face creams were perfected—Pond's Cold Cream and Pond's Vanishing Cream.

Every night—with the finger tips or a piece of moistened cotton, apply Pond's Cold Cream freely. The very fine oil in it is able to penetrate every pore of your skin. Leave it on a minute. Then remove it with a soft cloth. Dirt and excess oil, the rouge and powder you have used during the day, are taken off your skin and out of the pores. How relaxed your face is. Do this twice. Now finish with ice rubbed over your face or a dash of cold water. Your skin looks fresh and is beautifully supple again. If your skin is very dry, pat on more cream, especially where wrinkles come first—around the eyes, the nose, the corners of your mouth—and leave it on over night.

After every cleansing, before you powder, and always before you go out—Smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream very evenly—just enough for your skin to absorb. Now if you wish, rouge—powder. How smooth and velvety your face feels. Nothing can roughen it. When you get up in the morning, after a dash of cold water, this cream will keep your skin fresh and untired for hours. And it will stay evenly powdered.

Use this method regularly. Soon your face will be permanently fresher, smoother and you can count on the charm of a fresh, young skin for years longer than would otherwise be possible. Begin now. Buy both Pond's Creams tonight in jars or tubes at any drug store or department store. The Pond's Extract Company.

GENEROUS TUBES
MAIL THIS COUPON WITH 10c TODAY

The Pond's Extract Co.
132 L Hudson St., New York

Ten cents (10c) is enclosed for your special introductory tubes of the two creams every normal skin needs—enough of each cream for two weeks' ordinary toilet uses.

Name _____

Street _____

City _____ State _____

The Movie Encyclopaedia

by
THE ANSWER MAN

BROWN EYES.—Hope you haven't broken any of your resolutions. Gertrude Messenger is fourteen and Buddy is her brother. That was Hope Drew in "Hollywood." Marie Prevost and Harry Myers in Elinor Glyn's "How to Educate a Wife."

MILDRED P.—Well, I will try to believe you, but as Ovid said: "We are slow to believe what, if believed, would hurt our feelings." So you like Mary Hay. So do I. Richard Barthelmess in "The Enchanted Cottage." All right, come along any time. I'm always here.

A READER.—Tom Mix has deserted the Western pictures for a story of the North, "North of the Hudson Bay." Kathleen Key supports him, but Tony the famous horse is not in the cast.

BERTHA C.—You have the right idea, "God made the country, but man made the dangerous curves." Watch your step. Yes, Bert Lytell is married to Evelyn Vaughn. He is in Europe now. Conrad Nagel is with Goldwyn, and is playing in "Three Weeks." Also in "Blood and Gold." Yes, I shall buy me some buttermilk with the fee you enclosed.

MARGARET M.—You had better watch your calories, and remember that there are 3,000 calories per pound in peanuts. This is nearly three times as much as in any other food. The colon is five feet long. Why Hope Hampton has red hair. Oh yes, Alice Calhoun, Miss Dupont, Wanda Hawley, Pat O'Malley and Warren Kerrigan in "A Man from Brodne's."

CHERRY STONE.—Yes, I love them too. Any kind of shell food. I see you are all for Richard Barthelmess. Yes, he is twenty-eight, and born in New York City. Married to Mary Hay. Pola Negri in "Shadows of Paris" and "Sans Gène."

MARGUERITE.—I should say you are not old. The oldest widow on the U. S. pension rolls is now past one hundred and four years of age. No, Norma Talmadge is not playing in "The Garden of Allah" now, but she hopes to do that picture some time. Cullen Landis is twenty-eight.

WAIPUKURAN.—No, I am not that old. I dont remember the Battle of Waterloo which was fought on June 18, 1815. Yes, I would be glad to have the views. No, I have never been to Honolulu, but I should like to go some time.

EVELYN BROWN EYES.—Alas! Many an enamored pair have courted in poetry, and after marriage lived in prose. Barbara Castleton, Albert Roscoe and Raymond Bloomer in "The Net."

EDNA B.—Thanks for the card. Guess you know all I know about Valentino, so there isn't any more.

JEANIE.—As Charles Kingsley says: "Never lose an opportunity of seeing anything beautiful. Beauty is God's handwriting, a wayside sacrament, it is a charmed draught, a cup of blessing." Jack Mulhall is married to Evelyn Winans.

FEATHERS.—Cheer up, no man is free who is not master of himself, and hope is a splendid thing for such as have the strength to bear it. Eddie Burns in "Jazzmania." Rodolph Valentino was born on May 6, 1895. No, I dont know his favorite color. What next!

BRIGHT EYES.—Knowledge will introduce you, and good breeding will endear you to the best of companies. So you should like to see me dancing with my long beard. You'd be surprised. I can do the new finale, too. So you would like to see more of Miriam Batista. She is playing right along. Yes, Mahlon Hamilton and Betty Blythe in "Recoil," now being made abroad.

SYRIE.—Well, the highest exercise of charity is charity towards the uncharitable. That was Orville Caldwell in "The Eternal Two" with Corliss Palmer. Yes, Wallace Beery in "Patsy." Ramon Novarro in "Thy Name is Woman." He is now in Egypt playing in "The Arab."

JUNE.—Your letter is mighty interesting, and I would advise marriage and a home with kiddies for you, in preference to a business career. You dont seem to belong to the business world. As Robert Louis Stevenson says: "To marry is to domesticate the recording angel. Once you are married there is nothing left for you, not even suicide, but to be good."

MAMA'S BABY.—Well, well, well, what do you mean by saluting me as "Hello Kid." Well, I should worry, it makes me feel younger. I certainly am over eighty years old, and just had another birthday too. Father Time and I are twins. No, Monte Blue is not married. Aileen Pringle is married, but I haven't her husband's name. No, Richard Dix is not married.

TUESDAY.—Call on a business man at business time only, and on business, transact your business and go about your business. In order to give him time to attend to his business. I should say you are frank. Address Constance Talmadge at United, 5341 Melrose Avenue, Los Angeles, California.

AMERICAN BEAUTY.—What do you expect? He that would have the perfection of pleasure must be moderate in the use of it. Noble Johnson was Friday in "Robinson Crusoe." No, none of the players you mention are married. So long for this time.

HAPPY.—I'm glad of that. Address Ruth Roland at 3828 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, California. The little boy is Edward Treboal. Come in again some time, but you must shun idleness, as it is the rust that attaches itself to the most brilliant metals.

MRS. C. R. T.—That's pretty classy paper you are using, was it a Christmas present? Lucille LaVerne was Gloria's Aunt in "Zaza." You know that Mary Pickford adopted her sister Lottie's child. Tell your hubby he is all wrong.

TOM MIX.—So you think I am very successful. 'Tis to laugh. Most people would succeed in small things if they were not troubled with great ambitions. Yes, Tom Mix is with Fox, 1401 Western Avenue, Los Angeles, California. He has brown hair. Address Rodolph Valentino at Ritz-Carleton Productions, 6 West Forty-eighth Street, New York City.

OLIVE.—No, I never lend. Friendship ends where loan begins. Flo Hart was Kenneth Harlan's first wife. Yes, to your last. Selah!

ANNA S.—No, Monte Blue is not married now. You can reach him at Warner Brothers, Bronson Avenue and Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, California. Conway Tearle is married to Adele Rowland. I know that King Baggott has been asked to produce "Ivanhoe" by an English company, but I am not sure that he will do so.

DULCY.—Oh, are you a dulcy? Knowledge and timber should not be much used till they are well seasoned. Norma is twenty-eight and will be twenty-nine May 2nd. Jack Mulhall is free lancing right now, and Claire Windsor is with Goldwyn.

COMANCHE KID.—Hurrah! Well, if you ever come across some one who thinks he knows it all, treat him as if he did, and let him go. Buck Jones is twenty-eight and is playing in "Cupid's Fireman." I do believe Jane Novak is Swedish.

EMMA F. M.—And books are windows thru which the soul looks out. Barbara Bedford was Mona, Carl Miller was Claude, Barbara La Marr was Kate in "Cinderella of the Hills." Reginald Denny is married to a non-professional. The same of Buck Jones. Write me some more.

(Continued on page 82)

This department is for information of general interest only. Those who desire answers by mail, or a list of film manufacturers, with addresses, must enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address all inquiries: The Answer Man, CLASSIC, Brewster Buildings, Brooklyn, N. Y. Use separate sheets for matters intended for other departments of this magazine. Each inquiry must contain the correct name and address of the inquirer at the end of the letter, which will not be printed. At the top of the letter write the name you wish to appear, also the name of the magazine you wish your inquiry to appear in. Those desiring immediate replies or information requiring research, should enclose additional stamp or other small fee; otherwise all inquiries must wait their turn. Let us hear from you.

HE found her at last!
 She was sitting in the garden—just where she belonged.
 She quickly raised her little mask up to her eyes as he approached.
 "Oh, never mind.
 Fair Stranger—I know who you are. You are a rose disguised as a Beautiful Lady."

Protecting your skin with powder and rouge

By MME. JEANNETTE

OH, you lucky women of today who know—or can learn—the pleasant roads to Beauty through fragrant avenues of cosmetics that help and do not harm! It is a proven fact that good cosmetics actually benefit the skin.

A pure, harmless vanishing cream, powder, or rouge, such as Pompeian, performs a distinctly beneficial service to the skin, in addition to its beautifying effect.

This service is that of protection. Creams, powders, and rouges all put a soft, gossamer film over the delicate surface of the skin that guards it from sun and wind, dust and dirt.

Again, the lip stick tends to protect the lips from chapping, roughening, and cracking. It keeps them soft and mobile.

Pompeian Day Cream (vanishing), Pompeian Beauty Powder, Pompeian Bloom (the rouge), and Pompeian Lip Stick, like all Pompeian Preparations, are absolutely pure and harmless. They are formulated with a care as great as though they were intended for medicinal uses and in a laboratory always scrupulously clean.

Coupled with their purity will be found the other desired qualities of cosmetics—naturalness of effect, high adhering property, attractiveness of perfume.

Do not overlook the importance of the Day Cream in achieving the most successful effects from the use of other Pompeian "Instant Beauty" Preparations. This cream provides a foundation for powder and rouge that makes them go on more smoothly, adhere much better, and blend with each other more perfectly than when they are used without it.

▽
 "Don't Envy Beauty—Use Pompeian"

DAY CREAM (vanishing)	60c per jar
BEAUTY POWDER	60c per box
BLOOM (the rouge)	60c per box
LIP STICK	25c each
FRAGRANCE	25c a can
NIGHT CREAM	60c per jar
(cold cream)

POMPEIAN LABORATORIES, CLEVELAND, OHIO
 Also Made in Canada

Pompeian Beauty Powder

Get 1924
 Pompeian Panel and Four Samples
 For Ten Cents

The newest Pompeian art panel, done in pastel by a famous artist, and reproduced in rich colors. Size 28 x 7 1/2 in. For ten cents we will send you all of these: The 1924 Beauty Panel, "Honey-mooning in the Alps," and samples of Day Cream, Beauty Powder, Bloom and Night Cream. Tear off the coupon now.

IS YOUR SKIN A GRATEFUL SKIN?

There is an intriguing loveliness about a clear skin.

Rose-petal enchantments of the skin are much more possible to attain than the average woman realizes.

Pompeian Night Cream is a necessity to this cultivation of a lovely skin. It is a remarkable cleansing cream, and at the same time it has properties that make it healing and softening to the skin.

A Cleansing Cream

A dirty skin does not always declare its uncleanness by an immediate appearance of being dirty.

Pompeian Night Cream is supremely effective as a cleanser. It is pure, and scientifically compounded, and effectively accomplishes its work in cleaning the skin.

Just before retiring, and while your skin is still warm from the pleasant exercise of your bath, apply the Night Cream to your face and neck and shoulders. Use your finger tips for the application of the cream, rubbing it in swift little circular movements. This will loosen the dirt and release the closed pores to healthy activity. Wipe off with a soft, clean cloth.

A Softening Cream

The continued use of soap and water will make the average skin very harsh, and this harshness encourages wrinkles and other skin-unsightliness. Pompeian Night Cream counteracts this tendency and softens with its healing qualities.

If your skin is very dry it will be helpful for you to use this cream every morning and night regularly. But if your skin is oily it will be sufficient to give it a thorough cream bath at night only, following it with a quick ice rub.

Mme. Jeannette

Specialiste en Beauté

TEAR OFF, SIGN, AND SEND

POMPEIAN LABORATORIES
 2128 Payne Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio

Gentlemen: I enclose to you a dime preferred for 1924 Pompeian Art Panel, "Honey-mooning in the Alps," and the four samples named in offer.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____

What shade of face powder wanted _____

© 1924, The Pompeian Co.

The North Wind Doth Blow

And We Shall

Have Snow—

Below is Beverly Bayne (Mrs. Francis X. Bushman) and her little son out at the Whitman Bennett studios enjoying themselves between scenes

Across the top of the page are Tom Mix and some of his company way up—"North of Hudson Bay." Below is Hedda Hopper at her home on Long Island

Above: Little Fay McKenzie and Frankie Darro are tired and cold and they don't care whether they lose their jobs or not. They are on location for "Judgment of the Storm." Director Del Andrews excused them for the day

Are You Ready for the Ash-Can?

Do you realize what it means to neglect your body? Do you know that you will clog up with waste matter and deaden your life just as ashes do in a furnace? Are you going to drag yourself through a life of misery and be ready for the undertaker when you should really be only starting to enjoy life? Come on and brace up. Take a good hold of yourself and shake those cobwebs out of your brain. Give me a chance at that weak backbone of yours and let me put a pair of man sized arms into those narrow shoulders.

Pills Never Made Muscles

I am not a medical doctor. I don't claim to cure disease. Neither do I put any self-assumed title of Professor before my name. I am a builder of muscle—internal as well as external. I claim and can prove that by proper exercise you can even build muscle in and around your heart and every vital organ. The kind that shoots a thrill through your veins and reaches every crevice of your body. I add years to your life, and oh boy! what a kick you get out of every day you live. And talk about big, brawny arms and legs, or broad backs and husky chests—just take a look through this winter's copies of Physical Culture Magazine and see for yourself. You will see a few pictures of my pupils there—living examples of the Earle Liederman system—doctors, lawyers, business men, but every last one of them good enough to pose as professional strong men. Some are in better shape than men who are now acting as instructors to others.

Pep Up

What are you going to do about it? Don't sit idle and wish for strength. That will never bring it. Come on and get busy. You must have it, and I'm going to give it to you. I don't promise it, I guarantee it. You don't take any chance with me, so come on and make me prove it.

Earle E. Liederman
America's Leading Director of Physical Education

Send for My New 64-Page Book

“MUSCULAR DEVELOPMENT”

It contains forty-three full-page photographs of myself and some of the many prize-winning pupils I have trained. Some of these came to me as pitiful weaklings, imploring me to help them. Look them over now and you will marvel at their present physiques. This book will prove an impetus and a real inspiration to you. It will thrill you through and through. All I ask is 10 cents to cover the cost of wrapping and mailing and it is yours to keep. This will not obligate you at all, but for the sake of your future health and happiness, do not put it off. Send today—right now, before you turn this page.

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN
Dept. 1802, 305 Broadway, New York City

EARLE E. LIEDERMAN
Dept. 1802, 305 Broadway, New York City

Dear Sir:—I enclose herewith 10 cents for which you are to send me, without any obligation on my part whatever, a copy of your latest book, “Muscular Development.” Please write or print plainly.

Name.....

Street.....

City..... State.....

A perfect base for face powder. Apply a little cream. When nearly dry dust on the powder.

Copyright 1923
A. S. Hinds Co.

Now for his Face!
Let's give him

Mama's Complexion Cream

COLD winds injure a delicate, tender complexion, and so does the sudden change from indoors to frosty air. Roughness and chapping usually follow any prolonged exposure unless the skin is protected with a softening and healing emollient like HINDS Honey and Almond CREAM.

Many who love the bracing, cold weather have found that by applying Hinds Cream to any sore, irritated surfaces, or to parts of the body that have been chafed or compressed by warm clothing, they can make themselves comfortable at once.

You can use this cream freely at any time, on the face, neck, arms and hands, with absolute assurance of deriving gratifying results. It is economical and agreeable. The treatment is simple.

Hinds Cre-mis Face Powder, surpassing in quality and refinement; distinctive in fragrance and effect. White, flesh, pink, brunette. Boxes 60c, 15c. Samples 2c.

All dealers sell Hinds Honey and Almond Cream, 50c, $1.00. We will mail a sample for 2c, trial bottle, 6c traveler size, 10c. Try-out box of 5 samples, assorted, 10c. Booklet Free.

Write A. S. HINDS CO.
Dept. 22, Portland, Maine, U.S.A.

In the sick room Hinds Cream gives grateful comfort to the patient, also keeps nurse's hands soft.

Chapped cheeks, hands, knees, and ankles quickly relieved with Hinds Cream.

For baby's skin troubles Hinds Cream soothes and comforts. Dilute the cream one-half with water.

After shaving use Hinds Cream to soothe and relieve irritation from close shave or soap.

In Southern winter resorts Hinds Cream is depended upon by tourists to keep the complexion attractive.

If you have ever wondered what the ten commandments looked like, here they are

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 68)

would look better in his house than in yours. He is now the leading man for Norma Talmadge in "Secrets."

* * *

Pola Negri bravely signaled the fact that she has torn all the "Ritz" out of her soul one day this week when she ordered the wall that surrounds her "set" torn down. When she first came to Hollywood, she was very up-stage and whenever visitors came, she demanded to know who "those people" were and insisted that they be shooed off. But, as time goes on, Pola becomes a regular fellow. Now she works out in the open with the rest of the folks like a nice girl. Upon the completion of her latest picture, "The Shadows of Paris," she is going on a long vacation to Honolulu where she will probably pass the holidays. It will probably be February before she begins another picture. It is very likely that this picture will be "Madame Sans Gene."

* * *

Laurence Trimble, who directed the "Strongheart" dog stories, has discovered another Richard Barthelmess, so he thinks, in the person of a twenty-year-old Dartmouth college boy named Allen Vincent whose father is a banker in Seattle. Trimble met him in New York and gave him a five-year contract after two days' acquaintance.

* * *

One of the saddest events that the film colony has ever suffered came this week with the death of Allen

(Continued on page 89)

The Inside Story of Princess Pat

By the Only Woman Who Witnessed the Discovery of the Complexion Tint that Duplicates Nature

"Now Watch what happens!"

You could have heard a pin drop as the analyst's words caused all eyes to gaze intently at my face. Science had solved an old and perplexing beauty problem with a new, mysterious tint. The moment had arrived for demonstration.

Two years of hard work led up to this hour of triumph. There had been day and night testings of rouges—of every conceivable color. Whole weeks devoted to first one shade then another in an effort to overcome that common fault of all the old-fashioned rouges—the purplish, artificial look which makes their use so obvious. Then the day when the right tint was found! It is an interesting story.

How the True Tint Came to Light

When a new use of ingredients produced this first "true" tone it was regarded curiously; no one realized its full significance; so different was the color, it was fortunate we even tried it. But the rule was to test everything on the face. So for the thousandth time a new tint was applied to my cheeks.

The first demonstration of this marvelous new color brought one surprise after another. It was first believed to be just a particularly happy choice for my complexion—or for skins the same as mine. But tests quickly followed on every conceivable type of skin from darkest to lightest—with the same miraculously natural result. Then came the thought that perhaps only sparing use could be made of the new tint. So to the tiny amount that had achieved the perfect color, more and more of the tint was applied. The coloring merely deepened; there was no sign of artificiality. Next came the question of lights and exhaustive light tests made the triumph complete. Even old-time rouges were acceptable in the kindly gleam of lamp or candle light, but the Tint called Princess Pat stands the severe test of a brilliantly lighted room, or glare of noonday sun. The new tint becomes and appears your color from the moment applied. Nature varies it on your face and unfailingly produces exactly the right degree and tone to give the color you should have.

That is why you are not aware of the numbers all around you who use this new natural tint. The color is too natural to permit detection. So women who never used ordinary rouge have taken joyfully to Princess Pat.

Really Waterproof

Since the day Princess Pat tint was introduced many thousands have made its acquaintance. It is the identical tint today as when the first tiny bit was produced and tried; and it brings the same color charm to any cheek. You'll be glad to know it's been made waterproof—completely so. Profuse perspiration will not affect it—nor even surf bathing—yet a bit of cream, or soap removes it.

And remember: there's only one shade! No "matching"—no need to; for this true tone blends with any complexion. Science thus gives you the means of imparting natural color to your cheeks—to any degree desired. A color that's perfectly natural—color you can control—a gentle glow of color that has no beginning or end—a tone only blending can bring. Why use an obvious rouge? Try Princess Pat!

Avoid Imitations

The success of Princess Pat Tint has called forth many so-called "orange rouges." But these lack the secret which causes Princess Pat Tint to change color when applied—and without this secret Nature cannot blend the color to exactly meet the requirements of your individual need.

"A Tint That No Light Could Make Appear Unreal"

Princess Pat

The New, Natural Tint : Always Ask for It by Name

PRINCESS PAT, LTD., CHICAGO, U. S. A.

Princess Pat Tint—Ice Astringent—Creams—Lip Stick—Powder—Princess Pat Perfume

NOTE:—Princess Pat Lip Stick gives natural color to the lips—just as Tint does to the cheeks. It exactly harmonizes with any complexion, any coloring and any light. Cannot be detected as artificial.

FREE!

Until the shops have been sufficiently stocked with Princess Pat Tint to meet all calls for it, we shall take pleasure in sending to individuals a week's supply—without charge.

PRINCESS PAT Ltd.
2701 S. Wells St., Dept. 42, Chicago
Entirely FREE, please forward me postpaid, a complimentary supply of the new Princess Pat Tint.

Name (Print):.....
Street.....
City.....
State.....

Priceless Service

Despite fire or storm or flood, a telephone operator sticks to her switchboard. A lineman risks life and limb that his wires may continue to vibrate with messages of business or social life. Other telephone employees forego comfort and even sacrifice health that the job may not be slighted.

True, the opportunity for these extremes of service has come to comparatively few; but they indicate the devotion to duty that prevails among the quarter-million telephone workers.

The mass of people called the public has come to take this type of service for granted and use the telephone in its daily business and in emergencies, seldom realizing what it receives in human devotion to duty, and what vast resources are drawn upon to restore service.

It is right that the public should receive this type of telephone service, that it should expect the employment of every practical improvement in the art, and should insist upon progress that keeps ahead of demand. Telephone users realize that dollars can never measure the value of many of their telephone calls. The public wants the service and, if it stops to think, cheerfully pays the moderate cost.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY
AND ASSOCIATED COMPANIES

BELL SYSTEM

One Policy, One System, Universal Service

SPECIAL SIZES
FOR CHILDREN
SEND NO MONEY

A PERFECT NOSE FOR YOU

GOLD MEDAL AWARDED
"for distinguished service to mankind" by International Inventors Exposition, New York,
Feb. 1923.

ANITA - The Genuine - PATENTED - NOSE ADJUSTER

Winner of GOLD MEDAL — Highest in Merit — Lowest in Price
Support nature and look your best. If your nose is ill-shaped, you can make it perfect with ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER, in a few weeks, in the privacy of your own room and without interfering with your daily occupation. No need for costly, painful operations. ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER shapes while you sleep—quickly, painlessly, permanently and inexpensively. The ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER is the ORIGINAL NASAL SUPPORTER absolutely guaranteed. Highly recommended by physicians for misshapen and fractured noses. Self adjustable. No screws. No metal parts. GENTLE, FIRM and PERFECTLY COMFORTABLE. Beware of imitations! Write today (just your name and address) for FREE Booklet, "Happy Days Ahead," which explains how you can have a perfect nose—and our blank to fill out for sizes. Money refunded if not fully satisfied with results.

The ANITA Company, Dept. 229, ANITA Building, Newark, N. J.

Rhythm and Rebellion

(Continued from page 36)

Two important events had occurred the day of our interview. First, she had turned down one of the most coveted rôles Goldwyn had to offer, the film to be made in Italy, too. "If anyone had told me a year ago that I would do such a thing, I would have thought him crazy," said Eleanor. "But after considering it from every angle. I felt it was best."

Then, Goldwyn had loaned her to Universal and on the morrow she was to begin work on a film version of Booth Tarkington's "The Turmoil," under Hobart Henley's direction, playing the leading character.

We fell to talking of her various rôles. Her first was in "Gimme," then came "The Stranger's Banquet," where she had her only chance as a "heavy"—and liked it. Then came Amelia in "Vanity Fair," which she feels was too weepy but which the critics united in declaring to be a beautiful portrayal. This brought her to the leading rôle in Rupert Hughes' "Souls for Sale," and everyone recalls her delightful Sidney in "Three Wise Fools." "The Day of Faith," soon to be released, shows her in a straight leading rôle.

Miss Boardman has an intriguing way of viewing herself and her work in a detached manner, and she studies her limitations as well as her possibilities. This is an encouraging sign. She is not content to win thru her beauty, nor are her eyes blinded by her success, but are sharply alert to future triumphs.

Do dreams come true?
Ask Eleanor Boardman.

O FOOLISH WIND

By LOUISE LIEBHARDT

O sighing wind among the willow wands,
O sobbing wind among the willow wands
Where rests thy heart whose breaking seems to shake
The fragrant stillness of the night, and moaning cadence make
Of all that borders on this secret pool.

O grieving wind among the willow wands,
O weeping wind among the willow wands,
Hast lost thy love, who fickle from thee
now hast turned
To seek new romance? Ha! Hast thy love fires burned
Thy heart to ashes? Thou art fool.

O moaning wind among the willow wands,
O foolish wind among the willow wands,
To mourn one love when many wait but for the breaking dawn
To seek thy kisses, and upon thy favor fawn.

Waste not thy tears. The night has turned thee fool.

O simple wind among the willow wands.
O silly wind among the willow wands.

(Seventy-six)

Marvelous New Spanish Liquid Makes any hair naturally curly in 20 minutes

The Spanish Beggar's Priceless Gift

by Winnifred Ralston

FROM the day we started to school, Charity Winthrop and I were called the tousled-hair twins. Our hair simply wouldn't behave.

As we grew older the hated name still clung to us. It followed us through the grades and into boarding school. Then Charity's family moved to Spain and I didn't see her again until last New Year's eve.

A party of us had gone to the Drake Hotel for dinner that night. As usual I was terribly embarrassed and ashamed of my hair.

Horribly self-conscious I was sitting at the table, scarcely touching my food, wishing I were home. It seemed that everyone had wonderful, lustrous, curly hair but me and I felt they were all laughing—or worse, pitying me behind my back.

My eyes strayed to the dance floor and there I saw a beautiful girl dancing with Tom Harvey. Her eye caught mine and to my surprise she smiled and started toward me.

About this girl's face was a halo of golden curls. I think she had the most beautiful hair I ever saw. My face must have turned scarlet as I compared it mentally with my own straggly, ugly mop.

Of course you have guessed her identity—Charity Winthrop, who once had dull straight hair like mine.

It had been five long years since I had seen her. But I simply couldn't wait. I blurted out—"Charity Winthrop—tell me—what miracle has happened to your hair?"

She smiled and said mysteriously, "Come to my room and I will tell you the whole story."

Charity tells of the beggar's gift

"Our house in Madrid faced a little, old plaza where I often strolled after my siesta.

"Miguel, the beggar, always occupied the end bench of the south end of the plaza. I always dropped a few centavos in his hat when I passed and he soon grew to know me.

"The day before I left Madrid I stopped to bid him goodby and pressed a gold coin in his palm."

"¡Hija mía!" he said, "You have been very kind to an old man. ¡Dígame! (tell me) senorita, what it is your heart most desires."

"I laughed at the idea, then said jokingly, 'Miguel, my hair is straight and dull. I would have it lustrous and curly!'"

"¡Oigame, señorita!" he said—"Many years ago a Castilian prince was wedded to a Moorish beauty. Her hair was black as a raven's wing and straight as an arrow. Like you, this lady wanted los pelos rizados (curly hair). Her husband offered thousands of pesos to the man who would fulfill her wish. The prize fell to Pedro, the droguero. Out of roots and herbs he brewed a potion that converted the princess' straight, unruly hair into a glorious mass of ringlet curls.

"Pedro, son of the son of Pedro, has that secret today. Years ago I did him a great service. Here you will find him, go to him and tell your wish."

"I called a coche and gave the driver the address Miguel had given me.

"At the door of the apothecary shop, a funny old hawk-nosed Spaniard met me. I stammered out my explanation. When I finished, he bowed and vanished into his store. Presently he returned and handed me a bottle.

"Terribly excited—I could hardly wait until I reached home. When I was in my room alone, I took down my hair and applied the liquid as directed. In twenty minutes, not one second more, the transformation, which you have noted, had taken place.

"Come, Winnifred—apply it to your own hair and see what it can do for you."

Twenty minutes later as I looked into Charity's mirror I could hardly believe my eyes. The impossible had happened. My dull, straight hair had wound itself into curling tendrils. My head was a mass of ringlets and waves. It shone with a lustre it never had before.

You can imagine the amazement of the others in the party when I returned to the ballroom. Everybody noticed the change. Never did I have such a glorious night. I was popular. Men clustered about me. I had never been so happy. My hair was curly and beautiful.

I asked Charity's permission to take a sample of the Spanish liquid to my cousin at the Century Laboratories. For days he worked, analyzing the liquid. Finally, he solved the problem, isolated the two Spanish herbs, the important ingredients.

They experimented on fifty women and the results were simply astounding. Now the Century Chemists are prepared to supply the wonderful Spanish Curling Liquid to women everywhere.

Take advantage of their generous trial offer—

I told my cousin I did not want one penny for the information I had given him. I did make one stipulation, however. I insisted that he introduce the discovery by selling it for a limited time at actual laboratory cost plus postage so that as many women as possible could take advantage of it. This he agreed to do.

Don't delay another day. For the Century Chemists guarantee satisfaction or refund your money.

No Profit Distribution of $3.50 Bottles

(ONLY ONE TO A FAMILY)

We are offering for a limited time only, no-profit distribution of the regular $3.50 size of our Spanish Curling Liquid.

The actual cost of preparing and compounding this Spanish Curling Liquid, including bottling, packing and shipping is $1.87. We have decided to ship the first bottle to each new user at actual cost price.

You do not have to send one penny in advance. Merely fill out the coupon below—then pay the postman $1.87 plus the few cents postage, when he delivers the liquid. If you are not satisfied in every way, even this low laboratory fee will be refunded promptly. This opportunity may never appear again. Miss Ralston urges that you take advantage of it at once.

Wavy Bob

CENTURY CHEMISTS

(Originators of the famous 40 Minute Beauty Clay)
710 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago

Send No Money—Simply Sign and Mail Coupon
CENTURY CHEMISTS Dept. 485
710 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago

Please send me in plain wrapper, by insured parcel post, a full size $3.50 bottle of Liquid Marcelle (Spanish Curling Liquid). I will pay postman $1.87, plus few cents postage, on delivery, with the understanding that if, after a five-day trial, I am not elated with the results from this magic curling fluid, I may return the unused contents in the bottle, and you will immediately return my money in full.

Name

Street

Town State

If apt. to be out when postman calls, you may enclose $2 with coupon, and Liquid Marcelle will be sent you postpaid.

A Matchless Marcel

Lovely Curls

Free Trial Bottle

Read Special Offer

Gray Hair— Stop It!

—Here is the way

Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer isn't a new experimental preparation, for I invented it many years ago to restore my own prematurely gray hair. It is a clear, colorless liquid, clean as water, which restores the perfect original color to graying, bleached or discolored hair; perfect results assured. No interference with shampooing, nothing to wash or rub off, but soft, clean, fluffy, natural hair which renews your youth.

Now I have discovered a new method of application which hastens results and improves the health of the hair. Fully explained in my free trial outfit, containing trial bottle of restorer with full directions for making test on single lock. Mail coupon for absolutely free bottle and let me prove how easily, quickly and surely your gray hair can be restored.

In the coupon be sure to state the color of your hair carefully. Enclose lock of your hair if possible.

Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer

Please print your name and address

Mary T. Goldman, 195-B Goldman Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.
Please send me your FREE trial bottle of Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer. The natural color of my hair blackdark brown..... medium brown..... auburn (dark red).....light brown.....
light auburn (light red).....blonde.....

Name

Address

Large List New
Vaudeville, Acts,
Stage Monologs,
New Minstrel Choruses and Novelty
Songs, Blackface After-pieces and Crossfire, Musical Comedies and Revue, Musical Readings, Novelty
Entertainments, Wigs, Beards,
Grease Paints and other Make-up
Goods. ILLUSTRATED CATA-LOGUE FREE. WRITE NOW.

T. S. Denison & Co., 623 So. Wabash, Dept. 42, Chicago

Have a Satin-Smooth Hair-Free Skin

With NEET Virginia Brown Faire removes hair without slightest danger to the skin or complexion. Just apply NEET, a dairy cream, as mild as your favorite cold cream. Spread it on and then rinse off with clear water. That's all; the hair will be gone, rinsed away, and the skin left refreshingly cool, smooth and white! Old methods, the unwomanly razor and severe chemical preparations, have given way to NEET, the accepted method of well groomed women everywhere. Used by physicians. Money back if NEET fails to please. 50c at Drug and Department stores. Trial tube 10c by mail.

Hannibal Phar. Co., 627 Olive, St. Louis, Mo.

Tiger Rose

(Continued from page 33)

For the next few hours Rose's gaiety was unflagging. At supper she made them all laugh with her mimicry of the squaw who drank the violet perfume. Afterward she danced for them, flinging coquettish glances at the sullen Devlin over her shoulder until greed crept to the surface of his muddy eyes and he licked his thick lips with his tongue. At last the danger for the evening at least seemed over. Devlin, candle in hand, creaked up the stairs to bed, the factor kissed her good night and followed. She was making the rounds of the oil lamps, blowing them out when a heavy hand fell on her shoulder. Without turning she knew by the odor of tobacco and gin that Michael Devlin had returned.

"Come back for a good-night kiss, girlie," he chuckled, "maybe I'll take two—or three. I've waited long enough for them, you tantalizing little devil!"

She would have struck him across his leering face but a sudden thought held her hand. Bruce Norton must not hear anything. If she could only cajole this man into forgetting his drunken love-making just for this time—

She drew away, but his great arms dragged her back. His hot breath scorched her cheek. "Guess you're not grieving over that dude after all! Like Michael a lil' bit, dont you? And you're going to like me a whole lot more before I'm thru!"

Never before in her tempestuous life had Rose smiled when she wanted to rage, spoken sweetly when she wanted to shriek out the picturesque epithets of the settlement. "W'at they say—'Get your man' firs', and then get your woman!" she urged, with desperate guile. "Pleas' not tonight! Mebbe tomorrow I lak' you lil' bit."

"No you dont!" Devlin grinned, his embrace stifling her. "tomorrow may never come." Hot lips sought her throat. She struggled silently, futilely, biting back the cry that surged to her lips. Only the sound of shuffling feet and panting breasts broke the silence.

"You beast, let go of her!"

The dropping of the trap-door brought Devlin around, hand on gun. Rose, freed from the intolerable embrace, fell back against the counter staring from the furious face of the man she loved to Devlin's exultant grin as he leveled his revolver at the newcomer. "You, eh! Say, this means promotion for me all right!

Set a trap to catch a bird and get a ba'r! Better not move now. I'd just love a chance to use this, you damn murderer!"

"Executioner is a better word," Bruce Norton suggested quietly, "I'll come along with you all right. Rose, as soon as we're gone, go up to your room and bolt the door. Good night, dear!"

"Make it good-bye!" Devlin grated, and burst into a jangling laugh. "Give yourself away for a woman! That's a hot one—"

"Mebbe it's not so dam funny!" Rose's voice sounded behind him. "Put your hands up—queek or I shoot you. Me, I t'ink you forgot you had two guns! I got this one when you try to kees me. Thas right! Bruce take his gun away—lak' so!"

The policeman's revolver in his hand Bruce came to the side of Tiger Rose, "My brave little girl! But it's no good, dear. I've decided to face the music! I wouldn't be worthy of you if I ran away."

Never moving her eyes from the discomfited Devlin, glowering in the corner, Rose tried argument and entreaty in vain. It was for Cusick, shambling in at this point, to add the final plea. "Beat it, boy! D'you think it's going to make this little girl any happier to have you in jail? If you love her, go while you've got the chance."

Devlin watched the leave-taking sullenly. To the righteous anger of the Mounted Police was added the jealousy of the mere man. This girl was his—hadn't he pulled her out of the river? And now he must sit here helpless and watch her give another man the kisses rightfully his! As the door closed behind his rival, he started to his feet with the growl of a savage beast and had made two bounds toward the door when the revolver in Rose's hand spoke shrewishly. The policeman stopped, wavered, and with an absurd expression of amazement sat heavily down on the floor clutching at his arm.

"She winged me," he muttered in vast astonishment as Cusick bent over him examining the wound, "that little tiger cat winged me. Say, what is women comin' to these days when a fellow cant beat em up lawful?" he was quite plaintive about it. "Dont tell 'em she did it! Say I shot myself accidental," he begged the doctor abjectly, "I'd never hear the last of it on the force."

The door opened. Bruce Norton stepped back into the room. To the eyes of Tiger Rose he had never looked so tall, so strong, so much a man—like one of the more-than-mortal heroes of her old folk tales. It was to Cusick and Michael Devlin that he spoke as tho in some language that she could not understand. "God knows I want her to be happy, but—a fellow cant hide behind a woman's skirts! I'm not ashamed of what I did to Glendenning, but if I sneaked off now and left her to bear the blame of helping me I'd hate myself the rest of my days. Blow your whistle, Devlin—you get your promotion after all!"

The shriek of the whistle tore the silence to ragged shreds. The revolver clattered from Rose Bocion's nerveless fingers as she sank sobbing into a chair, crying the first tears her fierce young eyes had ever shed. For all time the Tiger was gone, leaving only a woman.

Outside sounded footsteps, voices. In the moment that was left him Bruce Norton bent above her, patting her hair clumsily. "I'm sorry, dear, but there's some things a man cant do. Dont grieve so—somehow I've got a notion that when the jury hears how it was they wont be hard on me."

She lifted her head, eyes shining thru the tears. "Grieve! I cry because I am so glad!" Rose answered womanwise. "I cry because I t'ink you are mos' brave an mos' best man in all the world!"

One kiss, held close against the strong pounding of his heart, and he was gone. "Cheer up, Rose," Doctor Cusick called back from the doorway, "if there's any justice in Canada and any chivalry left in men's hearts he'll soon come back to you."

Rose smiled, "Yas, me I t'ink he will soon be back wiz me!" she answered confidently, "Monsieur, Le Bon Dieu ees—what you say?—a gentleman!"

JOURNEY'S END

By LESLIE NELSON JENNINGS

I have been long away, now,
But what are foreign lands!
I have come home to stay, now—
Give me your hands!

Ask not, because you love me,
If I have been unwise;
Silently lean above me
With patient eyes!

What tho we stand or fall, dear,
Go saved or unconfessed—
I can forget it all, dear,
Against your breast!

I can forget the danger,
The foes, the fellowships!
I've been too long a ranger—
Give me your lips!

(Seventy-nine)

What Charm Excels Pearly Teeth?

Combat that dingy film

What adds so much to charm and beauty as pearly teeth?

You see them everywhere today: A new way of teeth cleaning has come. Millions now employ it. This offers a ten-day test, to show you.

They now fight film

Teeth are clouded by that viscous film you feel. It clings and stays. Soon it forms a dingy coat. Then teeth lose their luster and beauty.

Film holds food substances which ferment and form acid. The acid causes decay. Germs breed by millions in it. With tartar, they are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

After long research, dental science discovered two ways to fight that film. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

These methods have proved effective. A new-type tooth paste applies these methods daily. The name is Pepsodent.

It brings a new dental era to the homes of some 50 nations.

Delightful secrets

Pepsodent brings other essential effects. It multiplies alkalinity of the saliva, which is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the digestant for starch deposits.

Its use multiplies the power of these natural protecting agents.

Send the coupon for a 10-day tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. See teeth become whiter as film disappears.

You will prize these benefits: You will want your family to have them. Clip coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Pepsodent PAT. OFF.
REG. U. S.

The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific tooth paste, now advised by leading dentists the world over.

10-DAY TUBE FREE ¹³⁹³

THE PEPSODENT COMPANY
Dept. 646, 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
Mail 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent to

Only one tube to a family.

Do Your Eyes Dance, Too?

Night-time is so enchanting when it brings parties, dinners and dances. But night-time often finds you with your EYES dull and heavy, and you feel that the evening is ruined.

A few drops of Murine before going out in the evening will instantly enliven those drowsy EYES and makethemdancewithlight. It takes away not only the tired look but the tired feeling.

Use Murine night and morning and keep your EYES always clear and sparkling. It's easy to apply, and contains no belladonna or other harmful ingredients.

Our attractively illustrated book, "Beauty Lies Within the Eyes," tells how to properly care for your Eyes, Brows and Lashes, and thus enhance their beauty. Send for a copy of this helpful book. It's FREE.

The Murine Company
Dept. 23, Chicago

MURINE

FOR YOUR EYES

Own Your Own Hohner

Meet Jack Frost and Tuneful Hohner, the twin merry monarchs of winter. What lively zest and rollicking gayety they bring to every outdoor sport and fireside frolic!

WINTER SPORTS HARMONY

Winter's the time for jolly music. You've just GOT to have a Hohner mouth organ now. It puts life and punch into big parties or little; it brightens up those lonely hours when the storms keep you at home. You can learn to play it in an hour—any kind of music you like. Ask the dealer for the Hohner Free Instruction Book—if he is out of them, write "M. Hohner, New York" for a copy. Hohner Harmonicas are sold everywhere; 50c. up.

HOHNER HARMONICAS

When Lubitsch Directs

(Continued from page 39)

paces. I was so polite and demure on that occasion that you could have written books of etiquette just following me around and listening to what I said. To my intense relief, the mother of my sheik agreed that I would pass muster. In fact, she unbent to the extent of admitting that I was a sweet girl—or something like that.

"The next day I was working in a comedy. The particular scene that I was adorning had to do with the supposed raid of a den of vice. Of course, the sheik's mother had to come along just as the police patrol wagon backed up to the curb and I was carried out, fighting and kicking, in the arms of three policemen.

"It was no use trying to tell her it was just a movie. The next time I met her, she passed me by in cold and cutting scorn and the highest altitude ever attained by any human nose was hers when next we met."

Marie left the comedies flat to go to Universal to make a few starring pictures and she appeared in "Brass" and one or two other important productions at Warner Brothers before she got this big chance with Lubitsch.

She says that, when she first saw the part Lubitsch had planned for her—a cynical, skittish young Viennese wife—a vamp—she took the script indignantly to the office of the Warner Brothers and handed it back to them. She couldn't see it at all. Finally, however, the producers prevailed upon her to try it.

"And then," she said, "I began to go to school. I never realized what acting really meant until I began to hear Mr. Lubitsch's voice coming to me from behind the camera.

"He deals in subtleties that I never dreamed of before. His marvelous technique consists of elements and effects that I never heard of before.

"At first it was terribly discouraging. He made me do simple scenes—just coming in and out of rooms—fifteen or twenty times. At first it seemed as tho there wasn't any sense to it all. Then it began to dawn upon me what the art of acting was all about, and it seemed intolerably and impossibly difficult. Then I began to see as he saw it.

"He is a tremendous and wonderful artist. To act even one scene under his direction is not only an education but a revelation."

And, as for Lubitsch, he only says, "Yes; she's goot; she's a goot actress; she haf emotion but she got hoomer too.

"Is the picture goot; vell, I hope. "But she is goot. Ja. Gewiss."

SOME FOLKS INDULGE IN HOBBIES THAT COST MONEY

But I Prefer My Magazine Business Because It Brings Me Pleasure and Money At The Same Time

We are glad to introduce to our readers, Miss Agathe Zimmer, whose remarkable courage and sunny disposition have gained for her a lasting friendship among a host of people—her customers in the Magazine business which she conducts.

Money alone did not induce Miss Zimmer to become one of our representatives. What she wanted most of all was something interesting to do—something which she could pick up or drop at will and still would be worth while.

In her magazine business, Miss Zimmer has found employment for her spare time—work which is as profitable as it is pleasant. And she now sends this message to every woman who may have a need for more money—"The Magazine Business is the most profitable line to follow that I know of. If you have an hour or two a day or week to spare and want more money, take my advice and join the Staff of the Brewster Publications."

SPARE TIME OR FULL TIME

Some of our most successful representatives today are men and women who started as spare time workers. It is so easy to get on to and there are so many people to do business with, that practically all you need at the start is the "will" to get ahead. Why be satisfied with a small income when more money and a business of your own are within your reach? Join the money class by sending in the coupon below, today.

— CUT HERE —

Subscription Department.

BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, INC.
175 Duffield Street,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

Please tell me how to turn my spare time into money through your plan.

Name.....

St. and No.

City.....

State.....

Foreign Films

(Continued from page 27)

American style and to go far afield in the quest of subjects in order to conceal the Italian identity of the production. The Italian conversion, however, is as yet half-hearted, and, as indicated in "Supreme Love," an effort at compromise is made, the producer still adhering hopefully to the theory that an English subject will find a more favorable response in the Anglo-Saxon market. To this end, tho the story has a purely and characteristically Italian setting, the leading male rôle is that of an Englishman. Sir James, an old English aristocrat, brings his son Harford to Italy in the hope that the climate will cure him of his malady.

The adventures that follow, shifting from England to Italy and from Italy to England, constitute what the producers regard as the Anglo-Italian touch which will assure the film a run in the British Isles. But the most attractive parts of the picture are the scenes taken in Italy, with the Italian atmosphere and background pre-eminent, once more proving that European film talent is at its best when it adheres to its own soil and tradition.

RUSSIA

Contrary to the methods pursued by the other foreign producers, the Russians have adhered pretty strictly to native subjects until now, with excellent results. If the Russian films are today the most noteworthy in Europe, it is chiefly because they have not gone far afield in quest of material but have found it on their own soil or in their own literary tradition. Having made their start in this way, they are perhaps well qualified to borrow from the best tradition of other countries. A divergence from their loyalty to Slavic subjects is marked by the film, "Kean," a dramatization of the life of the great Shakespearean actor. Kean's amours were numerous and varied, the inevitable accompaniment of the idolatry which he enjoyed during his supremacy, but it is part of the irony of his life that his doom should have come thru the one innocent passion of his career. This ironic element is dramatically brought out in the Russian production.

In "The Song of Love Triumphant," based on a story by Turgenef, tho the action takes place in Italy during the period of the Renaissance, the spirit of the narrative remains Slavic in its essence. The settings of the film are imposing, and the beauty of Mme. Kovanko, in the rôle of Valeria, contributes to its success.

(Eighty-one)

One Box Free

At Drug Stores
and Drug Departments
Present Coupon

May Odors

In your breath—insure them

One of the gravest social offenses is bad breath. One of the commonest, too. Yet the offender is usually unaware.

Cigars or cigarets may cause it.

Or decaying food between the teeth.

Or affected teeth or gums.

Or a stomach disorder. Or certain foods and drinks.

That offensive breath, however caused, kills nearly every charm.

A mere breath perfume suggests concealment. You seek to hide an odor, and everybody knows it.

A May Breath tablet combats those bad odors, whether from the mouth or stomach.

It is an antiseptic mouth wash in tablet form—a purifier. It brings the odor of spring to the breath. In the stomach it also acts as an aid to digestion.

This method successfully overcomes bad breath. It combats it because it is a complete deodorant.

Carry May Breath with you—in your pocket or your bag. Before any close contact, eat one and you are safe.

Dainty, careful people do that everywhere today. They never risk offense.

Let us buy you a box to show what May Breath means to you. Cut out the coupon and present it—now. This is something you need and want.

May Breath is candy tablets designed to deodorize both the mouth and stomach. Not a mere perfume, but an antiseptic purifier. Carry it with you.

10c and 25c

GOOD FOR A 10c BOX

Present this coupon to any druggist or drug department for a 10c box of May Breath free. He will charge to us.

All leading druggists now have May Breath. If your druggist fails you, send coupon to us. Only one box to a family.

TO DRUGGISTS: These coupons will continue to appear. Redeem as per our offer, send to us as they accumulate, and we will pay you 10 cents each in cash.

MAY BREATH COMPANY

1104 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago

The Movie Encyclopædia

(Continued from page 70)

EVENING MAIL.—Constance Talmadge in "The Dangerous Maid." Conrad Nagel and Wyndham Standing are playing in Alma Rubens' "Blood and Gold." Baby Peggy in "Captain January."

GEORGETTE.—Ah, but I do like it. Lon Chaney is an American. Richard Dix is twenty-eight. Yes, they do say he is engaged to Lois Wilson. Holmes E. Herbert is playing in "The Enchanted Cottage." Your English is splendid, and I hope to hear from you again.

CY.—Well, as Carlyle says: "Make yourself an honest man, and then you may be sure that there is one rascal less in the world." Ralph Graves is twenty-six, and Antonio Moreno is married to Mrs. Daisy Danzinger.

G. M. L.—So you have been reading the CLASSIC ever since it began. That's a long time. Glad to hear about "Robin Hood" in London. I hope you write to me soon again.

AUSTRALIAN ADMIRER.—The great difficulty about advice is the preponderance of quantity over quality. No, Jacqueline Logan is not married. She played in "The Light that Failed." Viola Dana's "Angel Face Molly" will be released as "The Good Bad Girl."

RODOLPH VALENTINO FAN.—Most of the players you mention are with Famous Players, 1520 Vine Street, Los Angeles, California.

MARY E.—You've got to be stronger than that. A woman's hopes are woven of sunbeams; a shadow annihilates them. Be brave. Bessie Barriscale is not playing now.

STUD FARMER.—That's some letter of yours. You got your wish—yes? Cant very well give you the cast for "The Four Horsemen," but Rodolph Valentino was Julio, Alice Terry was Marguerite and Brinsley Shaw was Celendonio.

MANUEL.—I'm sorry, but I dont know the picture you mention.

IVY M. W.—All I know about canary birds is that a long body and thick, smooth plumage are marks of a good canary. Males only sing. King Vidor is directing Laurette Taylor in "Happiness" at the Metro Studios. How did you know green ink was my favorite. Pearl White is playing in "Terror."

PATTE.—Never respect men merely for their riches; but rather for their philanthropy; we do not value the sun for its height, but for its use. The only place I know of where you can get Ramon Novarro is at the Metro Studios. Why not try it

LITTLE MOONMOTH.—Eugene O'Brien is playing with Norma Talmadge in "Secrets." This is a story of crinoline days in America and England.

IVAN.—Thanks for the charming letter. You bet I am still living in my hall-room, and right now it is about ten degrees below zero. Yes, I have always admired George Arliss. Address the Fairbanks at Hollywood, California.

GLENVINA.—Well, the first step toward useful knowledge is to be able to detect falsehood. No, I never lie, it isn't because I cannot, tho. Myrtle Stedman and not Kathlyn Williams in "The Famous Mrs. Fair." Cleo Madison was the wife in "The Dangerous Age." Write me again.

BRIC-A-BRAC.—Censure is the tax which a man pays to the public for being em-

Welcome to New York and the Alamãc

71 ST STREET AND BROADWAY

A masterpiece of modern hotel creation. Most convenient, yet quiet. A revelation in hospitality and service, offering many innovations including Servidors, taxis, etc. Unique Congo Room—Medieval Grille and Blue Room Restaurants.

New York's latest hotel achievement

LATZ OWNERSHIP—MANAGEMENT

How to care for Dull Hair

You cannot expect hair which is naturally devoid of lustre to look brilliant or exceptionally bright after an ordinary shampoo. You must use a shampoo that is different—a shampoo that will add real beauty to your hair—GOLDEN GLINT Shampoo. This shampoo will make your hair look so much prettier, so much more attractive, that you will just love to fuss with it. In addition to the clean freshness any good shampoo gives, it offers something unusual, something new, something more than a promise. This "something" is a secret you'll discover with your first Golden Glint Shampoo. 25c a package at toilet counters or direct. * * * * * J.W. Kobi Co., 652 Rainier Ave., Seattle, Wash.

Golden Glint SHAMPOO

LABLACHE
FACE POWDER

Winters come and go—Lablache stays on. What the complexion needs to protect, beautify, and preserve—Lablache provides. Economical, clinging, pure, and safe. Delicately fragrant.

Two Sizes—50c & $1.00

of druggists or by mail. Flesh, White, Pink, or Cream. Refuse substitutes—they may be dangerous.

Sample Free
BEN LEVY CO.
French Perfumers, Dep't. C.
125 Kingston St., Boston, Mass.

A COMPLETE BASEBALL OUTFIT FREE!

Come On Boys! The Baseball Season Will Be Here Before You Know It. Get Your Outfit Now

It might be good and cold when you read this offer. Perhaps you will be hugging the fire and summer will be farthest from your thoughts. But don't you let a little bit of cold weather or snow either for that matter, make you forget what is going to be expected of you when you take your position on the nine next season. Now is none too soon to be thinking and talking about the games you are going to win and how your team will size up against the other teams in your League. Think of the cheer you'll get if you "blossom" out this Spring in a brand-new uniform, and glove, and bat 'n' everything.

You Can Be
At The Bat In
This Uniform
When The
Ump' Calls
PLAY BALL

In return for a little of your spare time, we will give you this complete uniform free—shirt, trousers, cap and belt. All we ask you to do is to get three people to subscribe for the CLASSIC. You know this magazine, otherwise you wouldn't be reading this offer. Therefore it should be an easy matter for you to interest your friends in having the CLASSIC come to their homes. For a whole year's subscription, the price is only $2.50—a saving of 50 cents over the newsstand price.

Now don't wait for any further word from us. Hustle out and get your three subscriptions. When you have them all, then send us their names with this ad and the $7.50 collected, and the uniform is yours. By the way, don't forget to sign your own name too so we'll know to whom the uniform should be sent and also tell us what size to send. The suits range in size from 4 to 14.

Remember, only three subscriptions. Mail you order to

The Treasure Chest Department

Motion Picture Magazine

175 Duffield Street,

Brooklyn, N. Y.

ment. Lloyd Hughes and Bebe Daniels in "The Heritage of the Desert." So you think I should have a stool to sit on in my picture above. I want to grow tall.

FRANK H.—Yes, and the error of certain women is to imagine that, to acquire distinction they must imitate the manners of men. Yes, Edwin Mills in "His Children's Children." Aileen Pringle is the daughter-in-law of Sir John Pringle, former governor-general of Jamaica. She gave up social fame and a great fortune to appear in pictures. So they say.

GENEVIEVE.—Is that all that is worrying you, whether I am a man or woman. Got you guessing. Well, cheer up, I'm not so bad. No, Eugene O'Brien is not married.

BROWN EYES.—I never knew so many brown eyes. Buddy Messenger is fourteen, and he has brown eyes and hair. "Stephen Steps Out" was Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s first picture.

BABE OF OXFORD.—One is alone in a crowd when one suffers or when one loves. I understand perfectly. Andrée Lafayette has returned to Paris where she will make a picture for American producers. She expects to return in about three months. Write me again.

KATHARINE.—Yes, I believe in reading the good books—recognized old masters before reading so much fiction. What is a great love of books? It is something like a personal introduction to the great and good men of all past times. Yes, Bert Lytell is abroad now. Baby Peggy with Principal Pictures, Los Angeles, California.

ANXIOUS.—Glad to see yourself here, are you? Lois Wilson and Lila Lee are not sisters. Douglas Fairbanks was married to Beth Sully. He and Mary Pickford have been married since March 28, 1920. So you would like to see a picture of Milton Sills and one of Gloria Swanson on the cover.

MICKY.—Your letter reminds me of what Oliver Wendell Holmes said: "I should like to see any kind of a man distinguishable from a gorilla, that some good and even pretty woman could not shape a husband out of." Anna Q. Nilsson, in "Flowing Gold." Pearl White is playing in Paris.

GOLDA BAKER.—Yes, it is the lack of moral balance that makes genius akin to madness. J. Warren Kerrigan is thirty-four, and he has never been married. He is with Vitagraph now. Glad to hear from you. Do write to me again.

IRENE F.—Richard Barthelmess is five feet seven, and Conrad Nagel is six feet.

WILDFLOWER.—That was Forrest Stanley in "Bavu." Naomi Childers is playing in "Restless Wives." Gloria Swanson in "The Humming Bird." King Baggott takes credit for discovering Mary Philbin when she made her first hit in "Human Hearts." She is playing in "The Inheritors."

SWEET BLUE EYES.—How are you today? Cullen Landis in "Pioneer Trails." Glenn Hunter is twenty-four. Anita Stewart and her brother, George Stewart, are in vaudeville.

CUCU BLUE EYES.—As a rule, we suffer more than we inflict. Yes, Pedro de Cordoba is to play in "I Will Pay."

FLORENCE R.—Another foolish child. All the way from Australia to get into the movies. Well I hope you have better luck with your music. I have never heard of that picture. Can you tell me more about it?

Would You Think from this Photo that I Ever Weighed 200 Lbs?

By JESSICA BAYLISS
(of Bryn Mawr, Pa.)

"I HAD just about all the avoir-dupois I could carry around when I first heard of getting thin to music. I am only 5 ft. and 5 in. in height and not of large frame, and 191 lbs. made me positively conspicuous as you can well believe. It was beginning to tell on my arches; I had difficulty in walking any distance. Dancing became out of the question, and I had become a regular stay-at-home when a friend prevailed on me to try the much-talked-of reducing records.

"The first session with this method was a complete surprise. I had expected it would be something of a bore—the things I had tried in the past had all proved so. But the movements that first reducing record contained, the novel commands and counts, and the sparkling musical accompaniment made it extremely interesting. I used it for over a week for the sheer fun of doing it. I felt splendid after each day's 'lesson.' Even then I scarcely took the idea seriously. Surely, this new form of play could not be affecting my huge superfluity of flesh; it must have been ten or twelve days later that I weighed myself.

"I had lost eight pounds!

"No one had to urge me after that! I secured all five of the records and settled down in earnest to reduce. A week later the same scale said 174 lbs. Another week only showed a six pound loss; but the week following I had taken off nine more pounds.

"As I progressed in the lessons I found them growing more and more interesting, and each new and unique movement began improving my proportions in new places. The over-fleshiness at my neck was a condition I never dreamed could be affected by these methods, but it was; even the roll of fat that had foreshadowed a double-chin disappeared in time.

"In six weeks I was dancing, golfing and 'going' as of yore. I got another saddle horse. I started wearing clothes which did not have to sacrifice all style in an effort to conceal. And it is quite needless to say I was delighted and elated. At the end of nine weeks I weighed exactly 138 lbs.—a reduction of fifty-three pounds. I submit my experience in gratitude for what Wallace's wonderful records have done for me. I am humbled by the recollection of how I once fairly scoffed at the enthusiasm of others in what I deemed at the time a mere fad. I shudder to think that I might have remained indifferent to this method. Only a woman who has been over-whelmingly fleshly can appreciate what my new appearance and feelings mean to me. As for those who need reduce but a few pounds to make their figures what they would like them to be, it is pitiful to think that they do not know this easy way—or perhaps do not believe it."

What more can be said of reducing? Mrs. Bayliss' start was made with the full first lesson record which Wallace sent her without cost or obligation. The same offer is open to you. If you, too, do not see remarkable results in only a few days, don't keep the record, and don't pay Wallace anything. Why not use the coupon now?

PHOTO BY DRURY

WALLACE
Dept. 32, 632 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago

Please send me FREE and POST-PAID for a week's free trial the Original Wallace Reducing Record.

Name

Address

"What a whale
of a difference
just a few cents
make"

All the difference between just an ordinary cigarette and the most skillful blend in cigarette history.

FATIMA
—a mild cigarette

You can be quickly cured, if you

STAMMER

Send 10 cents for 288-page book on Stammering and Stuttering, "Its Cause and Cure." It tells how I cured myself after stammering 20 yrs. B. N. Boyce, 7703 Bogus Bldg., 1147 N. Ill. St., Indianapolis

Why Not Improve Your PERSONAL APPEARANCE

Send for Booklet showing photos of men with and without the PERFECT LEG FORMS for BOW LEGS AND KNOCK KNEES. Also BRACES for children for PERMANENT CURE.

PERFECT SALES CO., Dept. 63
140 N. Mayfield Ave., Chicago, Ill.

ARE YOU GROPING IN DARKNESS?

Let Me Tell You, FREE! Would you like to know under which Zodiac Sign you were born and what significance it has in shaping the destiny of your life?

Your opportunities in life, future prospects, happiness in marriage, your friends, enemies, success in all undertakings and many other vital questions, are indicated through Astrology, the most ancient and interesting science of the world.

I have made Astrology my life's work and offer to all readers of this paper the most interesting astrological interpretations of the Zodiac Sign under which you were born.

If you will send your full name, address and exact date of birth in your own handwriting, your astrological interpretation will be sent to you in simple language which you can readily understand. A great surprise awaits you. Enclose 10 cents to cover cost of this notice and postage. Address me personally.—DHASSI

TARA STUDIO, 1133 Broadway - Desk 16-A - NEW YORK

The Mutual Admiration Society
(Continued from page 19)

Eternal Three" for two or three years before he finally worked out the details to the point where he was ready to begin shooting."

Now, by rights, Mickie should be interviewed about Blanche. We know what Blanche has to say about Hubby. What has Mickie to say about Wifey?

Well, just try to interview Mickie! Just try it; that's all. You might as well have tried to interview the eclipse. If you ask Mickie about the national debt, it makes him think of a story about a rattlesnake which tried to swallow a gopher. And then he sees an army aviator he used to know on the other side of the café and—that's that.

But one day Mickie and I were sitting in a darkened projecting-room looking at an old Biograph picture in which Blanche and Mickie were both acting. Mary Pickford and Dorothy Gish and Henry Walthall and a lot more were also in it. Blanche was then a rather sallow girl with enormous masses of blonde hair, a funny-looking long dress hanging around her heels.

Suddenly out of the darkness I heard Mickie mutter half to himself and half to me.

"By God, Blanche just had it—even then. In spite of all that crude stuff, she was wonderful. She's got the stuff you cant learn. You just gotta have it. And she's got it."

W. Somerset Maugham Is With Us Again

(Continued from page 44)

some one comes along and uses it before I have a chance to.

"After I have finished my novel I expect to get to work on another play. You know, I envy people who haven't an idea in their heads. I have this mass of mental notes and no matter what I do, I cant escape from them. I should like to have about six months' holiday, for I am very tired, but I am simply forced to go on writing."

Maugham has stopped giving "messages" in his late work. He declares it is like butting a stone wall to try to put over the truth. In "The Circle," as brilliant an exposition of human kind as anyone would ever hope to see, he discovered that the message shocked everyone who saw it. There was truth in it—there was an inevitable futility, and a terrifying knowledge of what humanity is really like—but humanity doesn't care to have the mirror held up too closely to nature.

The Powers Behind the Screen

(Continued from page 24)

but his activities indicate as well-rounded and balanced a personality as Zukor's. Where Lichtman is pre-eminently the salesman; Schulberg a picker; Arthur Friend a lawyer and organizer; Charles H. Dnell an outsider with Fifth Avenue backing, and others, men with either a present that has been defined or only a past, Sheehan has everything and a future behind the screen distinctly worth guessing. Like Hearst, he reaches only toward maximum.

To Mr. Hearst, moreover, in so far as it isn't Zukor's, this present in motion pictures, and the more immediate future, may be entirely opined.

No one else has quite his exceptional sense of what the American public wants in the way of entertainment. That has been amply demonstrated by the unparalleled success of his newspapers. He has, too, a mind that sees the every-sided possibility of any proposition. Interested in politics as he is, he has not read Roman history in vain nor forgotten that a fundamental precept of all polity is to keep the people amused.

The person who does this most widely and effectively, other things being equal, is a country's most popular person. This was true of Cæsar. It was true of Theodore Roosevelt. It may come to be true of Hearst. If it does, Mr. Hearst will have reached out his hands for the greatest political opportunity modern life presents.

Bernard Shaw foresaw it when he said, "give me the motion picture and I'll give you a revolution." Those politicians who gave Will H. Hays their blessing when he left political life—they foresaw it, but their hope, of course, was that the former Postmaster-General would give us evolution, not revolution. Others have also foreseen it, particularly those who describe Chaplin, Fairbanks and Mary Pickford as the greatest ambassadors this country has ever had. There is the crux of the opportunity, the fact that pictures are a universal language, intelligible in any tongue, clear to any understanding all the wide world over. Hence it comes that he who sees in them a world force, who masters them sufficiently to make them acceptable to all the world instead of a single country, has in his hands a weapon for good or evil whose power is beyond imagination to measure.

Each and all, meanwhile, are like the particles in a kaleidoscope, tumbling brightly into place to form the vision of a more and more marvelous future.

DRAW YOUR WAY to Fame and Fortune

THE modern successful Commercial Artist dresses well, lives in a fine home, drives his own car and enjoys the luxuries of life. He is well paid for his drawings and is independent. Modern business firms spend millions of dollars annually for drawings and advertising illustrations. Present-day advertising literally could not exist without commercial art—it is a necessity.

Your Opportunity If you can draw, you have a talent which only a few possess. Then why compete with the crowd in ordinary occupations? Train your drawing ability for practical work, and take the surest road to success.

The Federal School Will Train You

by the most modern methods. This fascinating and easily understood home study course contains exclusive lessons and drawings prepared by many nationally known artists, Charles E. Chambers, Franklin Booth, Neysa McMein, Edw. V. Brewer, Charles Livingston Bull and many others among them. An individual criticism given on every lesson of the course.

We don't claim any trick methods. Any artist of standing will tell you there are none. We do, however, teach you correct principles and direct your training along lines that bring proficiency most quickly. The Federal School management is the same as that of the Bureau of Engraving, a large Commercial Art establishment which has for a quarter of a century successfully served modern advertisers. That's why the Federal School has become America's Foremost School of Commercial Art. Hundreds of our students and graduates are making good. Why don't you get into the game? Through the Federal Course you can prepare yourself in a fraction of the time it would otherwise take.

Send today for "Your Future"

This handsome book explains all about Commercial Art as a profession and how to secure a training in that line. It shows examples of our students' work—after all the only real proof of the worth of any school's method. Send 6 cents in stamps for "Your Future" now—while you have it in mind. Just write your name and address plainly in the coupon below, giving your age and occupation.

COUPON
Federal School of Commercial Designing

1016 Federal Schools Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.
Please send me "Your Future" for which I enclose 6 cents in stamps.
Name.....
Age..... Occupation.....
(Write your address plainly in the margin)

America's Foremost School of Commercial Art

Your Figure

Has Charm Only as You Are Fully Developed

BEAUTY OF FORM

can be cultivated just the same as flowers are made to blossom with proper care. Woman, by nature refined and delicate, craves the natural beauty of her sex. How wonderful to be a perfect woman!

Bust Pads and Ruffles

never look natural or feel right. They are really harmful and retard development. You should add to your physical beauty by enlarging your bust-form to its natural size. This is easy to accomplish with the NATIONAL, a new scientific appliance that brings delightful results.

FREE BEAUTY BOOK

If you wish a beautiful, womanly figure, write for a copy of the treatise by Dr. C. S. Carr, formerly published in the Physical Culture Magazine, entitled: "The Bust—How It May Be Developed." Of this method Dr. Carr states:

"Indeed, it will bring about a development of the busts quite astonishing."

This valuable information, explaining the causes of non-development, together with photographic proof showing as much as five inches enlargement by this method, will be sent FREE to every woman who writes quickly. Those desiring book sent sealed, enclose 4c postage.

THE OLIVE COMPANY Dept. 210 CLARINDA, IOWA

BE A RAILWAY TRAFFIC INSPECTOR

EARN UP TO $250 PER MO.

POSITION GUARANTEED

Many big opportunities for trained men in this new, uncrowded profession. Healthful, outdoor work; travel or remain near home; something new every day. Contact with high railway officials.

Start at $110 per Mo., expenses paid, after 3 mos. spare-time study at home. Hundreds of successful graduates. You can't help but succeed!

POSITION GUARANTEED

Our guarantee states that tuition will be refunded to you if, upon graduation, position is not obtained for you, paying at least $110 per mo. and expenses.

YOU TAKE NO RISK

If we don't secure you a position after completing course we refund all you have paid. We must train more men for positions open.

MAIL TODAY

Training is simple, easy, quick. You can easily qualify. Send today for full details.

STANDARD
BUSINESS TRAINING INSTITUTE,
Buffalo, N. Y.

Standard Business Training Institute,
Buffalo, N. Y.

Send me, entirely free, Booklet No. D-59 giving full particulars about course in Railway Traffic Inspection.

Name.....
Street.....
City.....

SEND US YOUR FILMS

Mail us 20c with any size film for development and six prints, or send us six negatives, any size, and 20c for six prints. Trial 6x7 enlargement in handsome folder, 25c. Overnight Service.

ROANOKE PHOTO FINISHING CO.
207 Bell Ave. Roanoke, Va.

WANTED

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS

$1600 to $2300 Year

MEN—BOYS 18 UP.

MAIL COUPON IMMEDIATELY

Steady work. No layoffs. Paid Vacations

Common Education Sufficient:

TRAVEL—SEE YOUR COUNTRY

FRANKLIN INSTITUTE,
Dept. F259, Rochester, N. Y.

Sirs: Send me without charge, (1) Sample Railway Mail Clerk Examination questions; (2) List of Government jobs now obtainable; (3) Send free illustrated book, "How to Get Government Jobs."

Name.....
Address.....

"Convenient to Everywhere"

Rittenhouse Hotel

22d and Chestnut Streets
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

A hotel of the highest type catering only to the best patronage

Rooms with hot and cold running water $2 UP
Rooms with bath..... $3 UP

Club Breakfast, 50c up
Special Luncheon, 90c
Evening Dinner, $1.25

As well as service a la carte.
Music During Luncheon,
Dinner and Supper.

LEARN

Movie Acting!

A fascinating profession that pays big. Would you like to know if you are adapted to this work? Send 10c for our Twelve-Hour Talent-Tester or Key to Movie Acting Aptitude, and find whether or not you are suited to take up Movie Acting. A novel, instructive and valuable work. Send dime or stamps today. A large, interesting, illustrated Booklet on Movie Acting included FREE! FILM INFORMATION BUREAU, Sta. N., Jackson, Mich.

Music Hath Charms—

(Continued from page 16)

Marshall Neilan plays both the piano and pipe organ and as he shouts "Shoot" to his cameraman, he calls the name of the selection he wants played to his orchestra.

It would seem, "Once a Russian always a Russian" so far as music is concerned, for Theodore Kosloff and Madame Nazimova both demand those glorious melodies of their native country, the works of Tschaiikowsky, his "Chanson Triste," "Meditation," Rubinstein—his "Barcarole," "Melody in F"—for their big moments.

Tho Mary Pickford loves music and insists on real artists for her orchestra, she does not need this aid to stimulate her emotions.

"I rather doubt the wisdom of too much music on the set, for it causes a false estimate of our own work," Miss Pickford pondered the question, wrinkling her pretty forehead.

"While we were on location making 'Tess,' we discovered that one of the truck drivers played a mouth organ. He had a list of favorite tunes like 'Shall We Gather at the River,' 'Buck and Wing,' and 'Swanee River,' and these were inspiration for most of my scenes."

Mary especially likes Charles Wakefield Cadman's "Land of the Sky-Blue Water," while the minor strains of Massenet's "Elégie" make a profound appeal to her susceptible little heart and many of those wistful, poignant moments that live in our memories, were enacted to these melodies.

Warner Baxter makes the girl's hearts go pit-a-pat to operatic selections. He once shone in musical comedy, and let the orchestra burst forth with "Kiss Me Again," or "Oh Promise Me," and there's no holding Warner. Cullen Landis says he's afraid his emotions are jazy, for it takes such classics as "Livery Stable Blues," or "Three O'Clock in the Morning" to make him emote.

Milton Sills takes his arts separately. He is not moved by music during his work and if he could have his way there would be none. This may be the result of his discriminating taste, for unless the music exactly supplements his mental balance he finds it disturbing rather than helpful. Lewis Stone confesses the chief good it does for him is to put a spark of life into the barnlike skating-rink atmosphere of the large studios—

"We respond to music just as a column of soldiers quicken their steps to the cheer of the drum corp," he said.

Gloria Swanson loves luring waltzes, and "Visions of Salome"

How YOU Can Write Stories and Photoplays

By ELINOR GLYN

Author of "Three Weeks," "Beyond the Rocks,"
"The Great Moment," Etc., Etc.

FOR years the mistaken idea prevailed that writing was a "gift" miraculously placed in the hands of the chosen few. People said you had to be an Emotional Genius with long hair and strange ways. Many vowed it was no use to try unless you'd been touched by the Magic Wand of the Muse. They discouraged and often scoffed at attempts of ambitious people to express themselves.

These mistaken ideas have recently been proved to be "bunk." People know better now. The entire world is now learning the TRUTH about writing. People everywhere are finding out that writers are no different from the rest of the world. They have nothing "up their sleeve"; no mysterious magic to make them successful. They are plain, ordinary people. They have simply learned the principles of writing and have intelligently applied them.

Of course, we still believe in genius, and not everyone can be a Shakespeare or a Milton. But the people who are turning out the thousands and thousands of stories and photoplays of to-day for which millions of dollars are being paid ARE NOT GENIUSES.

You can accept my advice because millions of copies of my stories have been sold in Europe and America. My book, "Three Weeks," has been read throughout the civilized world and translated into every foreign language, except Spanish, and thousands of copies are still sold every year. My stories, novels, and articles have appeared in the foremost European and American magazines. For Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, greatest motion picture producers in the world, I have written and personally supervised such photoplays as, "The Great Moment," starring Gloria Swanson, and "Beyond the Rocks," starring Miss Swanson and featuring Rodolph Valentino. I have received thousands and thousands of dollars in royalties. I do not say this to boast, but merely to prove that you can be successful without being a genius.

Many people think they can't write because they lack "imagination" or the ability to construct out-of-the-ordinary plots. Nothing could be further from the truth. The really successful authors—those who make fortunes with their pens—are those who write in a simple manner about plain, ordinary events of every-day life—things with which everyone is familiar. This is the real secret of success—a secret within the reach of all, for everyone is familiar with some kind of life.

Every heart has its story. Every life has experiences worth passing on. There are just as many stories of human interest right in your own vicinity, stories for which some editor will pay good money, as there are in Greenwich Village or the South Sea Islands. And editors will welcome a story or photoplay from you just as quickly as from any well-known writer if your story is good enough. They are eager and anxious for the work of new writers, with all their blithe, vivacious, youthful ideas. They will pay you well for your ideas, too. Big money is paid for stories and scenarios to-day—a good deal bigger money than is paid in salaries.

The man who clerked in a store last year is making more money this year with his pen than he would have made in the store in a life-time. The young woman who earned eighteen dollars a week last summer at stenography just sold a photoplay for $500.00. The man who wrote the serial story now appearing in one of America's leading magazines hadn't thought of writing until about three years ago—he did not even know that he could. Now his name appears almost every month in the best magazines. You don't know whether you can write or not until you try.

I believe there are thousands of people who can write much better stories and plays than many we now read in magazines and see on the screen. I believe thousands of people can make money in this absorbing profession and at the same time greatly improve present-day fiction with their fresh, true-to-life ideas. I believe the motion picture business especially needs new writers with new angles. I believe this so firmly that I have decided to give some simple instructions which may be the means of bringing success to many who have not as yet put pen to paper. I am going to show YOU how easy it is when you know how!

Just fill out the coupon below. Mail it to my publishers, The Authors' Press, Auburn, N. Y. They will send you, ABSOLUTELY FREE, a handsome little book called "The Short-Cut to Successful Writing." This book was written to help all aspiring people who want to become writers, who want to improve their condition, who want to make money in their spare time. Within its pages are many surprises for doubting beginners; it is crowded with things that gratify your expectations—good news that is dear to the heart of all those aspiring to write; illustrations that enthuse, stories of success; new hope, encouragement, helps, hints—things you've long wanted to know.

"The Short-Cut to Successful Writing" tells how many suddenly realize they can write after years of doubt and indecision. How story and play writers began. How many rose to fame and fortune. How simple plots and ordinary incidents become successful stories and plays when correctly handled. How new writers get their names into print. How one's imagination properly directed may bring glory and greatness. How to WIN.

This book and all its secrets are YOURS. You may have a copy ABSOLUTELY FREE. You need not send a penny. You need not feel obligated. You need not hesitate for ANY reason. The book will be mailed to you without any charge whatever.

Get your pencil—fill out the coupon below. Mail it to The Authors' Press before you sleep to-night. This little act may be the turning point of your whole career. Who knows?

THE AUTHORS' PRESS, Dept. 88, Auburn, N. Y.

Send me ABSOLUTELY FREE "The Short-Cut to Successful Writing." This does not obligate me in any way. (Print your name and address plainly in pencil.)

Name.....

Address.....

City and State.....

Elinor Glyn

Dixit

(Continued from page 64)

the Bunch sang "Shine On, O Silver Moon" in close harmony. And because the public knows Dix and likes him, he has had no vacations between pictures in the three years he has been on the screen, and has just signed a five-year contract with Lasky.

In one respect at least Richard Dix is the most remarkable person in Hollywood. His eyesight is apparently good, he is twenty-eight years old and yet, in this town of lovely, lovable and often beloved ladies he is a bachelor. He has never been married, almost married or unmarried.

The plain little stenographer with the shell spectacles had gazed wistfully after him when we passed her table; the starched waitress behind the counter had been recklessly lavish with the cream in his coffee; the famous scenario lady in the imported gown had patted his shoulder when she went by; but still he has managed to remain Hollywood's only bachelor.

"How do you get away with it?" we asked—for interviewers rush in where theatrical angels fear to tread.

Dix seemed honestly puzzled. "What chance does a movie star have to get acquainted with girls?" he demanded pathetically. "I don't suppose I meet half a dozen people a year outside the studio. You can't get away from your screen personality in this game. You're always on exhibition and that makes your

New Life to Hair from Tropical Tree

I AM writing this from my uncle's plantation in the West Indies, where I came recently to live. The first thing I noticed was that all women on this island have the most beautiful hair—thick, abundant, and shining with life and health. Today, my once scraggly locks are long and I, too, have loads of hair.

No doubt many would welcome this secret of the tropics that makes hair so long and luxuriant. It is the use of Kakoa seed, that Nature must have just meant for people's heads. Just a tiny bit of this pure, white paste nourishes hair marvelously—for all types. Young and old, darkest natives and fairest blonds from England, enrich hair roots and pigments with Kakoa and soon have a wealth of soft, glossy hair. Tourists know the secret, and many send for Kakoa every year; it seems as if every boat brings more requests for this wonderful natural stimulant. But now my uncle has permitted preparing and packing enough Kakoa for all who may write and ask for supply.

JUANITA REQUA

Ask for Proof; I'll Send It FREE

It will cost you nothing to learn how this natural aid to hair growth works, and will work on your hair. I don't want a penny unless it does. All I ask now is your name and address; send it now, on the coupon printed here. Before long you can possess a head of hair which anyone might envy!

REQUA & Co., 229 S. State Street, Chicago, U. S. A. (62)

Please send postpaid, without cost or obligation, data covering the complete Kakoa treatment which is guaranteed to bring hair to abundant thickness, full life and brilliance.

For
At

How to Cultivate A "Rose Leaf" Complexion

A cleanser and skin food in one its use is a daily refreshment. Dr. Palmer's Almomeal keeps the skin delightfully healthy, correcting oily and dry conditions alike. Use it like soap. Ask your dealer.

DR. PALMER'S
ALMOMEAL
COMPOUND

Send 10c for large sample package.

HOLTON & ADAMS, 27 East 22nd St., New York

Name _____
Street _____ City _____

New Easy Way to learn Fancy Dancing

Studio Costume and Record Free

Famous teacher-danceuse now gives her training in this wonderful accomplishment through clever, new home-study system. Develop your innate grace and charm by becoming an accomplished Fancy Dancer. Amazingly easy and simple with this extraordinary method given to you.

Right at Home!

Let me send free proof that you can quickly become a charming Fancy Dancer. Instinct inborn in every girl. Large repertoire, from simple compositions to classical numbers and advanced toe-dancing. Students prepared in short time for public appearance, home entertainments, stage, etc. Low cost. Free equipment. Write for "The Art of Fancy Dancing"—sent free, no obligation.

MADAME LUDWIG STUDIOS
Studio 1512, 1105 Lawrence Ave., Chicago

Mothers teach your children—girls over 12 teach themselves contacts with people unnatural. They look at you as a curiosity instead of a regular human being. There's one place tho, where I can go and not be Richard Dix, the film actor, and that's Minneapolis where I was brought up!" he chuckled reminiscently, "nobody is a celebrity in his home town. Too many old ladies to remember about the times he swiped apples off the fruit-stand by the fire-house and other youthful sins! I played in stock three years in Minneapolis but all the time I was simply 'that Dix boy.' That's why youngsters leave home I expect—to find people who will take them as seriously as they take themselves. Anyhow that was the way with me."

Acting, it seems, didn't run in the Dix family. His father, in particular, regarded Richard's stage symptoms when they began to develop in high school as one might stuttering or kleptomania or any other misfortune that afflicts the best of families. Pish! The boy was to be a doctor—let's hear no more of this play-acting nonsense!

But a surgeon who faints at the sight of blood is as badly off as a burglar with hay fever. The University of Minnesota came next—till Richard found that studying interfered with his regular college work which was the dramatic club. And so at last came the local stock, then leading man with the Morosco Company in Los Angeles and then the screen.

It seemed, we suggested, almost a pity to be a success at twenty-eight. What more was there to look ahead to? Where, in other words, did he go from here?

Dix's face took on the grim lines it wears when he is doing a he-man rôle on the screen. They make him look ten years older. "Some day I want to be at the other end of the megaphone." There were no fist-clenching heroics about the way he said it, but you caught his earnestness. "You're darn right! The way things are done on the screen there's not much chance to develop, but the director can do anything. I want to try the new technique, the 'Woman of Paris' sort of thing. There's a great play for you! Screen people who act like human beings. . . ."

Human—that is a word Dix uses often, a word that expresses his own personality as no other. He has always been cast in "good" rôles. In "The Ten Commandments," his most important picture, he is the one of the two brothers who keeps 'em, not the one who breaks 'em. But in spite of the handicap of some impossibly virtuous parts he manages to make real characters out of them.

"KILRUTE" Hair Destroyer

is demanded by men and women from coast to coast because it is effective, easy to apply and guaranteed absolutely harmless leaving the skin positively lovely. "KILRUTE" is a combination treatment—never before anything like it. Accept no substitute—insist on "KILRUTE" the genuine, the hair destroyer. Results guaranteed or money refunded. For sale at all good stores or direct from us. Write for free booklet.

Kilrute Company, Dept. B., 247 W. 72nd St., N. Y. C.

Youth-Ami Skin Peel

A New Scientific Discovery which painlessly and harmlessly replaces the old skin with a new and removes all Surface Blemishes, Pimples, Blackheads, Discolorations, Sunburns, Eczema, Acne, Birthmarks, etc. A non-acid, invisible liquid. Produces a healthy new skin, beautiful as a baby's. Results astounding. Booklet "The Magic of a New Skin" free in plain sealed envelope.

Youth-Ami Laboratories, Dept. KB, 30 E. 20th St., New York

NEW LIQUID MAKE-UP FOR THE EYES

Gives Instant Beauty to Lashes and Erows

At last Science has perfected a liquid make-up for the eyes that is really water-proof. Tears, bathing, perspiration cannot affect it.

It goes on evenly for it is applied with a glass rod that comes with each package and dries instantly. It contains a natural oil which stimulates growth, so that the lashes won't break off or become brittle. Easy to use, instantly effective.

Makes lashes look luxuriant, brows well arched and groomed. Try Lashbrow Liquid today. Is on sale at all good Toilet goods counters everywhere.

FREE TRIAL

For introductory purposes, we will send you free a generous supply of Lashbrow Liquid. And we will include a trial size of another Lashbrow product, Lashbrow Pomade, which quickly stimulates the growth of the brows and lashes. Clip this announcement, enclose 10c to cover cost of packing and shipping and send it at once to Lashbrow Laboratories, Dept. 232, 37 West 20th Street, New York City.

Develops Bust Like Magic!

During the past 15 years thousands have added to their captivating glory of womanhood by using

GROWDINA

for bust, neck or arm development Great Discovery of Parisian beauty expert. Harmless, easy, certain results accomplished quickly. Marvelous testimonials of efficiency. Confidential proof and literature (sent) on request. Write now. Mlle. Sophie Koppel, Suite 903, 503 Fifth Ave., New York

SELL US YOUR SPARE TIME

You can earn $15 to $50 a week writing show cards in your own home.—No canvassing.—A pleasant profitable profession easily and quickly learnt by our new simple graphic block system. Artistic ability not necessary.—We teach you how, and supply you with work.—Distance no object. Full particulars and booklet free.

WILSON METHODS LIMITED—DEPT. 5-B
64 East Richmond, Toronto, Canada.

Constant powdering cannot rub off this Rouge

Pert is a rouge which stays on! It lasts all day or all evening, through wind or warmth, until you remove it yourself with cold cream or soap and water. Pert is a waterproof rouge, orange-colored in the jar, but changing to a becoming pink as soon as it touches the skin. At drug or department stores or by mail, 75c. Ask to see the new Pert Lip-stick with unique mirror, 75c. Send a dime today for a generous sample of Pert rouge. Another dime will bring you a sample of WINX, for darkening the lashes.

ROSS COMPANY
78 Grand Street New York

Pert Rouge

Musical

Novelty Instruments

Not toys—but high-grade practical instruments for Symphony or Jazz orchestras. Great for solo work at Club, Lodge or Legion gatherings or home entertainments. Anyone can play with a few simple lessons, furnished with each instrument.

Musical Pitch Fork Mando-Zi Harp
Glassophone Jazz-O-Nette
Musical Saw Honner Sax

Free Trial Try any of these instruments for 15 days. If not satisfied, if you can't learn to play it quickly and easily, return at our expense. Remarkably low prices. Easy Time Payments. Send today for new, illustrated catalog describing complete line.

MUSSEHL & WESTPHAL
489 S. Water Street Ft. Atkinson, Wis.

MAKE MONEY AT HOME

DETROIT SHOW CARD STUDIOS
215 Dinan Building, Detroit, Mich.

Dear Sirs—Without further obligation please send me your FREE Illustrated Book giving full particulars how I can make $15 to $50 a week at home in my SPARE TIME, WITHOUT CANVASSING. Also your GUARANTEE to teach me how. Supply me with WORK and pay me CASH EACH WEEK, no matter where I live.

Name.....
(Print Name and Address)
Street.....
City..... State.....

FREE Marvo BEAUTY BOOKLET

Explaining how the FAMOUS MARVO LIQUID SKIN PEEL PREPARATION removes all surface blemishes, Freckles, Pimples, Blackheads, Eczema, discolorations, etc. Wonderful results proven. GUARANTEED absolutely Painless and Harmless. Produces healthy new skin as Nature intended you to have. Write NOW—before you turn this page—for full details and free "MARVO BEAUTY BOOKLET."

Marvo Beauty Laboratories, Inc., 1658 B'way, Dept. 144, N.Y.

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 71)

Holubar, the director of "Hell Morgan's Girl," "Hearts of Humanity," "The Right to Happiness," "Broken Chains," "Hurricane's Gal," "Men, Women and Marriage," "Slander the Woman," and many other great successes. He was in Tennessee on location shooting some scenes of a new picture to be made from the "Bishop of Cottontown" when he was taken ill. He came back to California where a major operation was performed. He did not recover from the operation. His wife was Dorothy Phillips and their marriage was one of the happiest in the whole film colony. They have one little daughter, eight years old. Mr. Holubar was a San Francisco boy, born in 1890. He had been a stage actor before coming to pictures.

* * *

Two well-known figures have quit pictures. Orville Caldwell has gone back to New York to play opposite Lady Diana Manners in "The Miracle," and Guy Bates Post has abandoned the screen in disgust and has returned to the stage. Mr. Post came to the screen after a notable stage career; but had bad luck with his pictures, among which were "Omar, the Tent Maker" and "The Masquerader."

* * *

A lawsuit that has been going on for over a year between George Walsh and Tom Mix has been settled at last. Walsh left a favorite horse named "Joe" with Mix when he went East about two years ago. When he came back, the sad news was broken to him that Joe had passed to horse heaven. What was his amazement one day to see Mix riding blithely by on a nag that seemed to him to be his beloved steed. High and heavy words led to lawsuits and then to more lawsuits. It was finally demonstrated to the satisfaction of the court and even to the reluctant if mourning Mr. Walsh that his horse had been killed over a year ago in a fall over a cliff at Big Bear Lake. The horse Mix was riding was another one of similar appearance. And so the world goes on once more, breathing more easily.

* * *

Mrs. Harold Lloyd, who was Mildred Davis, was cleaning house the other day, the way brides will. She came across a dusty overcoat in the pockets of which she found her marriage license, a pair of her gloves, a crumpled-up pink rose and a roll

"I'm as Good a Man as Jim!"

"They made him manager to-day, at a fine increase in salary. He's the fourth man in the office to be promoted in the last few months. And all were picked for the same reason—they had studied in spare time with the International Correspondence Schools and learned to do some one thing better than the rest of us.

"I've thought it all out, Grace. I'm as good a man as any of them. All I need is special training—and I'm going to get it. If the I. C. S. can raise other men's salaries it can raise mine. See this coupon? It means my start toward a better job and I'm going to mail it to Scranton to-night!"

Thousands of men now know the joy of happy, prosperous homes because they let the I. C. S. prepare them in spare hours for bigger work and better pay.

Why don't you study some one thing and get ready for a real job, at a salary that will give your wife and children the things you would like them to have?

You can do it! Pick the position you want in the work you like best and the I. C. S. will prepare you for it right in your own home, in your spare time.

Mail the Coupon To-day

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS
Box 6761-C, Scranton, Penna.

Without cost or obligation on my part, please tell me how I can qualify for the position or in the subject before which I have marked an X

<input type="checkbox"/> Business Management	<input type="checkbox"/> Salesmanship
<input type="checkbox"/> Industrial Management	<input type="checkbox"/> Advertising
<input type="checkbox"/> Personnel Organization	<input type="checkbox"/> Better Letters
<input type="checkbox"/> Traffic Management	<input type="checkbox"/> Show Card Lettering
<input type="checkbox"/> Business Law	<input type="checkbox"/> Stenography and Typing
<input type="checkbox"/> Banking and Banking Law	<input type="checkbox"/> Business English
<input type="checkbox"/> Accountancy (Including C.P.A.)	<input type="checkbox"/> Civil Service
<input type="checkbox"/> Cost Accounting	<input type="checkbox"/> Railway Mail Clerk
<input type="checkbox"/> Bookkeeping	<input type="checkbox"/> Common School Subjects
<input type="checkbox"/> Private Secretary	<input type="checkbox"/> High School Subjects
<input type="checkbox"/> Spanish	<input type="checkbox"/> French
<input type="checkbox"/> Illustrating

TECHNICAL AND INDUSTRIAL COURSES

<input type="checkbox"/> Electrical Engineering	<input type="checkbox"/> Architect
<input type="checkbox"/> Electric Lighting	<input type="checkbox"/> Blue Print Reading
<input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Engineer	<input type="checkbox"/> Contractor and Builder
<input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Draftsman	<input type="checkbox"/> Architectural Draftsman
<input type="checkbox"/> Machine Shop Practice	<input type="checkbox"/> Concrete Builder
<input type="checkbox"/> Railroad Positions	<input type="checkbox"/> Structural Engineer
<input type="checkbox"/> Gas Engine Operating	<input type="checkbox"/> Chemistry
<input type="checkbox"/> Civil Engineer	<input type="checkbox"/> Pharmacy
<input type="checkbox"/> Surveying and Mapping	<input type="checkbox"/> Automobile Work
<input type="checkbox"/> Metallurgy	<input type="checkbox"/> Airplane Engines
<input type="checkbox"/> Mining	<input type="checkbox"/> Agriculture and Poultry
<input type="checkbox"/> Steam Engineering	<input type="checkbox"/> Radio
<input type="checkbox"/> Mathematies

Name.....
Street.....
Address.....
City..... State.....

Occupation.....

Persons residing in Canada should send this coupon to the International Correspondence Schools Canadian, Limited, Montreal, Canada

$13.45 FRONTIER SPECIAL FAMOUS SIDE SWING

BRAND new blue steel, 6-shot, famous Frontier Special, swing-out hand-ejector revolver with 6-inch barrel. Imported from Spain, the equal of any $35 model, and specially priced for limited time to add new customers.

LOW PRICE SPECIAL in 32, 32-20, or 38 cal., OUR No. 35—$13.45
EXTRA SPECIAL, our No. 260, latest 1924 model of tool steel—32 cal.—6 shot—$14.95. 32-20 or 38 cal.—6 shot—$15.45.

20-SHOT "PANTHER" RAPID FIRE AUTOMATIC

LIMITED quantity of brand new, 32 cal. $8.45
"Panthers" 10 shots with extra magazine making 20 rapid fire shots. Special at Above guns all shoot any standard American cartridge. PAY POSTMAN ON DELIVERY plus postage. Money back promptly if not satisfied.

CONSUMERS CO., Dept. A1V, 1265 Broadway, N.Y.

Demand ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER" when you buy—Genuine
Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds Headache Neuralgia Lumbago
Pain Toothache Neuritis Rheumatism

Genuine → Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Music Lessons At Home

With Celebrated Teachers

Our simplified courses are specially prepared for home study. Not a new method. Long established School now celebrating its 20th Anniversary. Send for Illustrated Catalog. Every person who loves music should read this free book. Write which instrument you have. Get details of the lessons and our Anniversary Offer—one which means a cash credit on your tuition. Courses, endorsed by Paderewski: Piano, Harmony, Voice, Public School Music, Violin, Cornet, Mandolin, Guitar, Banjo, and Reed Organ. Careful training by Faculty in grading examinations makes the instruction personal for each individual pupil. See for yourself what others have done. You can be sure of same results.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION CONSERVATORY
885 Siegel-Myers Bldg. Chicago, Illinois

PIMPLY SKIN made WELL

When a few applications of this wonder working lotion, has cleared faces of pimples, blackheads, acne eruptions on the face or body, enlarged pores, oily or shiny skin, you can realize why CLEAR-TONE has been tested and approved in over 100,000 Test Cases.

The simplicity of the treatment. The Story of How I Cured Myself are all explained in my free booklet. Write for your copy today and learn of the results gotten by thousands of men and women.

E. S. GIVENS
223 CHEMICAL BLDG. KANSAS CITY, MO.

Shapeliness

is easily acquired by reducing disfiguring fat in any part of the body of MEN OR WOMEN, by a few minutes' daily use of the famous invention—

DR. LAWTON'S GUARANTEED FAT REDUCER

It performs a gentle, deep-rooted massage, wherever applied, which disintegrates ugly fat, and only where you wish to lose. This waste matter is then carried out of the body through the organs of elimination.

The Reduction Is Permanent!
You can reduce from 1 to 100 pounds. No medicines, starvation diet or exercise. Used and recommended by thousands of men and women. Endorsed by physicians. Dr. Lawton's Guaranteed Fat Reducer is made of soft rubber and weighs but a few ounces. Not electrical.

Results are Positive!
Reducing results must show in eleven days or you may return the Reducer complete and receive back your full purchase price. This is Dr. Lawton's positive guarantee. Sent C. O. D. in plain sealed wrapper, or, if you prefer, remit $3.75 plus 20 cents for postage. Send for your Fat Reducer today. Remember, it is guaranteed.

SPECIAL PRICE
$3.75

SENT C. O. D.

DR. THOMAS LAWTON, 19 W. 70th St., Dept. B-403, New York City of bills with a rubber band around them. With many a sigh and a housewifely cluck, she sorted everything out and sent the coat to the cleaners. When Harold came home, there was dismay and a bleeding heart. It seems that he had worn the overcoat to his wedding and had reverently put it away with all these souvenirs abroad. He had intended to take it out some day and show his great-grandchildren the wedding license, the little rumpled gloves, the pink rose and even the bank-notes. Whereupon there was a wild ride by a bride to the cleaners. The coat was recovered in time with its wedding dust still on, rice and everything; and the things were hastily and ruefully shoved back into the pockets and the romance was saved

Iris In

(Continued from page 54)

Chaplin has produced a picture that merits all the adjectives ever brought out on parade by a movie press-agent. It is remarkable in restraint, in motivity, in the excellence of the titling and in the perfection of detail. Adolphe Menjou, one of the screen's few actors, has been playing secondary rôle too long to stars whose effulgence he patently outshone. It is good to see Menjou obtain recognition at last. It is better yet for it to happen in so notable a picture as "A Woman of Paris."

We are sending no flowers to Mr. Chaplin on the story. Our orchids are all for the directing. If it is to carp at all, we regret the scene of the anguished lover falling into the fountain. It reminded us strongly of a similar bygone fountain into which Mr. Chaplin himself fell. Charlie, however, rose triumphantly to brush his gleaming teeth with the dank stalk of a rhubarb-like water plant growing conveniently from the center.

* * *

Still speaking of restraint, Edward Horton, in "To the Ladies," justifies all he inspired in "Ruggles of Red Gap." He is establishing himself as a refreshing contrast to a roster of stuffed shirts. We await the third evidence of his ability with trepidation.

* * *

Babby Peggy, a recent visitor to New York City, did what was expected of her nobly.

"Your skyline is remarkable," she said, "and your women (kissing two dainty fingers) are positively beautiful."

IRIS OUT

A Thrill Every Minute!

That's just about the average in the March instalment of Thistledown, and if you never understood the psychology of Flapperdom, you will when you've read it—a psychology in striking contrast to that of Hi Daggett's impossible sister Julia.

It was his look, even more than his words, that gave the girl, just then, the deepest thrill that Hi Daggett had ever given her.

And her eyes were so bright and candid and sweet as to cover her secret shame, as she said: "You want so much to help me? Oh, you're good!"

It is the best story of the year.

It entertains.

It vibrates.

It compels.

It thrills.

It will set you thinking.

BUT good heavens. Dolly has gone—vanished—a note pinned to a cushion tells him so. In a flash he is out of the house, into his devil car and stepping on the gas. He is off in a cloud of dust, to the ends of the earth, if need be, to find her—will he?

You will be let in on this thrilling event, and several more in the March Instalment of “Thistledown”

By Dana Gatlin

in the

March Motion Picture Magazine

On Any News-stand February First

She Found A Pleasant Way To Reduce Her Fat

She did not have to go to the trouble of diet or exercise. She found a better way, which aids the digestive organs to turn food into muscle, bone and sinew instead of fat.

She used Marmola Prescription Tablets, which are made from the famous Marmola prescription. They aid the digestive system to obtain the full nutriment of food. They will allow you to eat many kinds of food without the necessity of dieting or exercising.

Thousands have found that the Marmola Prescription Tablets give complete relief from obesity. And when the accumulation of fat is checked, reduction to normal, healthy weight soon follows.

All good drug stores the world over sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar a box. Ask your druggist for them, or order direct and they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid.

MARMOLA COMPANY

239 Garfield Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

A Shapely Foot is a Joy Forever
BEAUTIFY YOUR FEET

The Perfection Toe Spring REMOVES THE ACTUAL CAUSE of the BUNION or enlarged joint. Worn at night, with auxiliary appliance for day use.

Straighten Your Toes
Banish that Bunion

Full particulars in plain envelope
C. R. ACFIELD, Foot Specialties
Dept. 313 1328 Broadway New York

DeLuxe DIAMOND BOOK FREE!

3000
Exceptional Values in Diamonds, Watches and Jewelry

The most complete and beautiful book of its kind—YOURS FREE! 96 colored pages full of wonderful bargains—gifts for every occasion. Buy on our Friendly Credit Terms You have 10 WHOLE MONTHS to PAY on anything you select. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. No Red Tape. Every transaction strictly confidential.

Limited Supply
Write for your copy TODAY to Dept. 494-G
Dept. 494-G "THE HOUSE OF QUALITY"
AUTHORIZED CAPITAL $1,000,000.
L.W. SWEET INC.
1650-1660 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

The World's Most Famous Nose
(Continued from page 48)

side-line to establishing a repertory of Shakespearean and modern dramas in the National Theater. And he revives it so well that it proves to be one of those entertainments which Broadwayites quaintly call "Wows." Audiences cheer after the fourth act, and the house manager has to sign a box-office statement for seventeen or eighteen thousand dollars each week.

This is, by the way, a poetic drama, and the star fails to marry the leading lady.

Now why the success? Whenever "Cyrano" has been successfully produced, the credit has been divided between the playwright and the actor. It is so in the present case.

In spite of a certain Chicago scribbler, Rostand did an original and striking piece of work when he wrote "Cyrano." The Chicago gentleman, whose name I forgot but who might have been a butcher, wrote a play called "The Merchant Prince of Cornville," and he succeeded in getting a United States court to declare that, because he had written a play, "The Merchant Prince of Cornville," he and not Rostand was the author of "Cyrano de Bergerac." The matter being properly adjusted, we of a new generation discover that the Frenchman made an exciting, graceful, and truly heroic drama out of an eccentric duelist, playwright, and philosopher who lived in Paris three centuries ago.

Rostand used a remarkable number of facts out of this Cyrano's life without in the least preventing his play from being utterly incredible and tearfully convincing. We accept with cheerful alacrity the yarn that the hideous Cyrano succeeded in making love to a woman who, standing in a balcony above him, imagined his voice was the voice of her handsome but nitwit sweetheart. The fact that Cyrano loved the woman more than did the nitwit, and that the woman really loved the soul in his words—this pathetic fact makes us swallow the most outrageous impossibility in all modern drama. It is also the secret of why this is a most satisfying tragedy. Not the whole secret, of course, for Rostand writes with dramatic fervor and poetic beauty.

The rest of the credit is Hampden's, but it must not all go to the actor. Some is reserved for the part of Hampden which is director and manager. Hampden turned aside from the five dull translations that ornament my shelves, and hired

French Woman Tells How to Get Thin

Without Drugs, Diets, Absurd Creams, Exercises or Appliances

I reduced my own weight 50 pounds in less than 9 weeks and at the same time marvelously improved my general health and appearance.

Today I look, act, and feel far younger than my real age.

From the results in my own case and those of my friends, I am absolutely convinced that any man or woman burdened with rolls of ugly, injurious, unwholesome fat can take it off easily, quickly and surely by the same simple way which did so much for me.

The secret is one I learned in Paris, where women of every age pride themselves on keeping their figures slender and graceful, and where the men detest a heavy waistline or double chin. With this simple new way, which will only cost you a few cents a day to follow, you can in your own home reduce all parts of your body or you can simply get rid of excess flesh from the places where it shows.

No matter how fat you are, or what you have done in the past to reduce, I want you to send me the Free Coupon below, and I will explain to you personally, confidentially, what I did to reduce.

MADAME ELAINE, Dept. 69,
1819 Broadway, New York City.

Kindly explain to me confidentially and absolutely FREE OF CHARGE what you did to reduce. (Print your name and address)

Name.....

Address.....

If you care to, enclose 5 cents in stamps to help cover expense.

GROW TALLER!

INCREASE YOUR HEIGHT
Develop your Physical Beauty. Natural, simple method. Will increase your height and improve your appearance. Write for Free Booklet. Dept. D.

THE NATURAL METHOD BUREAU, Atlantic City, N. J.

BUNIONS

PEDODYNE "Solvent." New way. Pain immediately vanishes. Acts like magic on worst Bunions, Bump gradually disappears.

SENT ON TRIAL

To introduce we will gladly arrange to send you a Box of "Solvent" to try for your own Bunion. Thousands are sending. Simply write and say, "I want to try PEDODYNE." KAY LABORATORIES, Dept. K-650
386 No. La Salle St., Chicago, Illinois

WRITE FOR THE MOVIES

TURN YOUR TALENT INTO MONEY
Stories Wanted by Producers

A valuable money making field Try it!—Mail us stories or ideas, in any FORM, at once for FREE examination, criticism and advice. We give our honest services to amateurs who would convert their thoughts into DOLLARS. No experience necessary.

Free booklet sent on request.
Continental Photoplay Studio
154 Nassau St., New York
Suite 1112-14, Dept. G.

TANGOS

5¢ Peanuts—crunchy, golden—with fluffy marshmallow—Bunte blended chocolate—creamy maple—all in one. A favorite for years!

A Bunte Candy

BUNTE BROTHERS · CHICAGO

Standard of Spanish Army Genuine Astra

$7.75

Adopted by French During World War

The finest European pistol—Drop Forged Blue Steel Throughout—uses standard ammunition, an accurate, hard-hitting, brand-new weapon.

Bought before recent tariff raise. Buy now from sole U. S. importers and save about 1/2 on these fine guns.

$7.75 25 cal., 7 shot ASTRA, C. O. Q. Automatic.
8.95 25 cal., 7 shot ASTRA, Automatic.
9.98 25 cal., 7 shot ASTRA, triple safety.
10.95 32 cal., 10 shot ASTRA, extra magazine.
16.95 32-20 and 38 cal. swing-out cyl. revolvers.

Write for firearms catalogue. We guarantee perfect workmanship and material; every gun brand new; of drop forged steel throughout. Before buying any gun insist on this guarantee. Send no money unless you wish. Pay postman on delivery plus postage. Money cheerfully refunded if not fully satisfied. ACT NOW to get these SPECIAL LOW PRICES. WRITE TODAY.

CALIFORNIA TRADING COMPANY
Dept. 92, Terminal Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

"DON'T SHOUT"

"I hear you. I can hear you as well as anybody. 'How?' With THE MORLEY PHONE. I've a pair in my ears now, but they are invisible. I would not know I had them in myself, only that I hear all right."

DEAF

is to the ears what glasses are to the eyes. Invisible, comfortable, weightless and harmless. Anyone can adjust it. Over one hundred thousand sold. Write for booklet and testimonials.

THE MORLEY CO., Dept. 792, 10 S. 18th Street, Phila.

AGENTS: $60 a Week

taking orders for Jiffykake, a prepared cake flour containing eggs, milk, sugar, shortening, baking powder and flavoring—add water—and bake. Anyone can easily and quickly make a delicious cake. Every home a prospect. Housewives eager to buy—just the article they have been looking for. Repeat orders every week bring you profit and a big, permanent business. This is just one of the 350 famous that are making men and women independent and prosperous. No experience necessary, no capital needed. We supply everything. We want good, energetic men and women to represent us. Write for money-making proposition.

Zanol Products

AMERICAN PRODUCTS CO., 104 American Bldg., Cincinnati, O.

(Ninety-three)

Brian Hooker to make a new version. It is an exceptionally fine job—fluent and beautiful and always dramatic. You would hardly know it was blank verse! On top of that, Hampden has brought together some modern scenery and lights by Claude Bragdon and Munroe Pevear, and he has drilled a rather ordinary lot of actors so skilfully that they play the piece like a whirlwind. The direction is the best that any romantic drama has had in years. It culminates the only effective stage battle that I have ever seen.

Hampden's own work as actor is not absolutely impeccable; at two or three points he loses his grip a little. But nine-tenths of the part is superbly acted. No star in America has a more flexible voice, and Hampden makes the most of it. His comedy is rich and he runs off into bravado and sorrow with almost equal ease. I have seen no other Cyrano, but I can't say that I regret it so very keenly when I am looking at Hampden's.

And yet—what about Mansfield? It is my keenest regret in the theater that when he was playing his last seasons on this earth my dramatic taste ran to "Babes in Toyland," "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," and "The Heir to the Hoorah." Particularly, as in the past half year Broadway has taken quite a passion for reviving some of Mansfield's notable vehicles—"Peer Gynt," "The Devil's Disciple," and now "Cyrano de Bergerac." The success that has met these plays may be a testimony to the playwrights or their newest interpreters. But it seems to me that it may have an interesting bearing on a change in public taste. Mansfield was never an enthusiast for realistic drama. He acted practically none of it. The poetic, the romantic, the demoniac, the heroic—all these types interested him, and these only. It is a heartening thing to see them interesting the American public once more.

DEFIANCE

By JOY O'HARA

Oh, pitying judges, your pity is wasted
On a dreamer, whose dream rose . . .
and reigned . . . and set
Like the morning sun. True, the Cup I tasted—
Tasted, drank deep, and have no regret.

Love, bittersweet, to my heart I clasped,
Knowing full well what the dream
would cost,
And it still outweighs (tho' the rapture has passed)
The world's esteem I so willingly lost.

Our day was brief, but we lived it madly,
I cherished no hopes—so none were blasted—

The price was high, but I paid it gladly,
For the Dream was sweet—while it lasted.

ONLY $3

Brings You This
Genuine Underwood Typewriter

on 10 Days' FREE TRIAL

A perfect machine,
complete in every detail. Read all about this great offer

Yes, We Will Positively
Ship You

this splendid Underwood upon receipt of only $3.00. This is by far the most liberal typewriter offer that has ever been made on so perfect a machine. Nearly two million Underwoods have been made and sold, proving conclusively that it is superior to all others in appearance, mechanical perfection and all-round excellence.

Ten Days' Free Trial

We want you to see for yourself that this is the typewriter you ought to have, and, therefore, we make our great free trial offer. You merely send us the three dollars deposit and we ship the machine for you to try for ten full days before you decide to keep it. If not satisfied, every penny of your money will be returned to you.

Rebuilt Like New

Every Underwood we sell is rebuilt just like new. It is dismantled right to the very bottom, and remanufactured to make it just like a new typewriter, with new enamel, new nickel, new platen, new key rings, new type; a complete, perfect typewriter, with two-color ribbon, back spacer, stencil device, automatic ribbon reversal, tabulator, key shift lock, etc. Impossible to tell it from a brand new Underwood, either in appearance, durability or quality of work.

Easy Monthly Payments

Our easy monthly payment plan makes it possible for YOU to own this splendid machine without having to pay out any big sum of money. You will hardly know you are paying for it. REMEMBER, you have the full use of the machine, just the same as though it was fully paid for.

Over 325,000 Sold

Over 325,000 people have purchased and been satisfied with our product. What better proof could anyone ask of the perfection of our typewriters and the integrity of this firm!

Your Money Back

Yes, you can have your money back if you want it. After you have examined the typewriter carefully, need it to write letters, if you decide for any reason whatever that you do not care for it, you may return it to us at our expense and every penny you have paid will be cheerfully and promptly refunded.

No Obligation on Your Part

When you send in the coupon for either further information about our great typewriter offer or for the typewriter itself on our free trial plan, you are under no obligation whatever until after you have tried it and have decided for yourself that you want to keep it.

Write Now for Our Big Typewriter Book

telling all about our great big typewriter factory. In this book we illustrate and describe all of the various processes of re-enameling, re-nickeling and assembling this splendid Underwood. It tells in an interesting way how each part is examined and tested carefully and thoroughly to insure the finished machine being one you will be proud to own.

Write Right Today
Use Coupon Below

SHIPMAN-WARD MFG. CO.

2032 Shipman Bldg., Chicago

Send me your big bargain catalog and complete details of your surprising offer, without obligation on my part.

NAME

STREET

CITY..... STATE.....

Mildred Davis, Photoplay Beauty, recommends Maybelline

You, Too, May Instantly Beautify Your Eyes With

Maybelline

Just a wee touch of "MAYBELLINE" will make light, short, thin eyelashes and brows appear naturally dark, long and luxurious, thereby giving charm, beauty and soulful expression to any eyes. Unlike other preparations, absolutely harmless and greaseless, will not spread and smear on the face. The instant beautifying effect will delight you. Used by beautiful girls and women everywhere. Each dainty box contains mirror and brush. Two shades: Brown for Blondes, Black for Brunettes. To AT YOUR DEALER'S or direct from us. Accept only genuine "MAYBELLINE" and your satisfaction is assured. Tear out this ad now as a reminder.

Maybelline Co., 4750-56 Sheridan Road, Chicago

WE TEACH COMMERCIAL ART

Meyer Both Company, the largest Commercial Art Organization in the World, offers you an unusual opportunity for practical training. If you like to draw develop your talent. Study this practical course—taught by the nationally known Meyer Both Company, with twenty-two years success—who each year produces and sells to advertisers over 15,000 commercial drawings. Our teachers give you the double advantage of being instructors of proven ability, as well as artists in this widely known organization. Meyer Both instruction is the difference between successful fact and experimental theory. Commercial Art is a highly paid, intensely interesting profession, equally open to men and women. Home study instruction.

Get Facts Before You Enroll in any School.

Ask the Advertising Manager of the leading newspapers in your city, anywhere in the United States, Canada, England or Australia about the Meyer Both Company—let them tell you about us. Write for our illustrated book "YOUR OPPORTUNITY"—for one-half the cost of mailing—four cents in stamps.

MEYER BOTH COMPANY

Department of Art Instruction

Michigan Ave. at 20th St., Dept. 55, CHICAGO, ILL.

NOTE—To Art and Engraving Firms: Secure practical artists among our graduates. Write us.

25 YEARS THE STANDARD TRAINING SCHOOL FOR THEATRE ARTS

ALVIENE SCHOOL OF DRAMATIC ARTS

FOUR SCHOOLS IN ONE. PRACTICAL STAGE TRAINING. THE SCHOOL'S STUDENT'S STOCK THEATRE AFFORD PUBLIC STAGE APPEARANCES. Write for catalog mentioning study desired to Secretary

ALVIENE SCHOOLS, Suite 17
43 West 72nd Street
Bet. B'way & Central Park West, New York

MAKE MONEY AT HOME

YOU CAN earn $1 to $2 an hour writing show cards at home in your spare time. Quickly and easily learned by our new simple "Instructograph" method. No canvassing or soliciting. We show you how, guarantee you steady work at home, no matter where you live, and pay you cash each week. Full particulars and booklet free. Write to-day.

AMERICAN SHOW CARD SYSTEM LIMITED
Authorized and Fully Paid Capital, One Million Dollars
207 Adams Bldg. Toronto, Canada.

The Immortal Clown

(Continued from page 55)

away, he becomes grim, determined, an avenging angel bent on punishment. For infidelity, a life! That is the simplest solution.

One would scarcely recognize in the fury and passion of these portraits the gentle humorous features of our beloved comedian, yet Larry Semon has risen to epic heights in portraying the emotions of this study.

Then follows the physical tragedy and finally the grief. Without words, soundless, by facial expression and gesture alone, Semon conveys it in a study of human emotion that is little short of sublime.

"As a photographer I had no need to interpret to Mr. Semon my thought for these pictures. He mastered the idea at almost a single leap. He immediately saw the possibilities and his imagination swept across the chasm between the real and the unreal, and gave back the vision in a picture that seemed instilled with life, afire with feeling, convincing in its strength and abandonment to human emotion. I saw the artist in him all the while... every gesture of his was weighed in the balance, every flicker of feeling in his face showed that fine understanding of the value of an art-product which needed only the torch of imagination to kindle it into the flame of an inspiration.

"Larry Semon has proved himself an artist of the very finest caliber—give him something big and vitally serious to do and see how he does it. His Pagliacci is a triumph in histrionic skill—only a man who can live thru the terror of that tragedy can give it back to you as Semon gave it. "Perhaps Semon will give us Pagliacci on the screen some day—we hope so. It would be a demonstration of those powers which we know he possesses, and it would add fresh laurels to his crown.

LIVE FULL TODAY

By LOUISE LIEBHARDT

And, if tomorrow comes
Can we rest sure in joy?
Who knows but pain
May be its grievous meed
And sorrow still the song
That now swells goldenly
Upon each passing breeze.
Live full today
And let no pleasure pass
Untasted,
And no transient beauty scorn.
Fill well the storehouse
Of thy soul's delight
With light of memory.
Who knows?
Tomorrow may be night.

Easy to Play
Easy to Pay

BUESCHER
True-Tone
Saxophone

Saxophone Book Free
Tells when to use Saxophone—singly, in sextette or in regular band; how to transpose cello parts in orchestra and many other things you would like to know.

Easiest of all wind instruments to play and one of the most beautiful. With the aid of the first three lessons, which are sent free (upon request) with each new Saxophone, the scale can be mastered in an hour; in a few weeks you can be playing popular music. You can take your place in a band within 90 days, if you so desire. Unrivalled for home entertainment, church, lodge or school. In big demand for orchestra dance music.

Free Trial You may have six days' free trial of any Buescher Grand Saxophone, Cornet, Trumpet, Trombone or other instrument. Easy terms of payment can be arranged. Mention the instrument interested in and a complete catalog will be mailed to you free.

BUESCHER BAND INSTRUMENT CO.
Everything in Band and Orchestra Instruments
2034 Buescher Block Elkhart, Indiana

Art Corner Your Pictures—Album in an where you can keep them safe and enjoy them always.

Engel's Styles [Art Corners] Colors are on sale at Photo Supply and Album counters everywhere. They are the only Quick, Easy, Artistic, No Paste, No Fold, Easy, modern Kodak Prints. A time bribe 100 and sample to try. Write ENGEL MFG. CO., Dept. 26B 4711 N. Clark St., Chicago

BECOME A PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER
EARNING $35 TO $125 A WEEK

Three to six months' course. Motion Picture, Commercial, Portraiture, Practical Instruction. Modern Equipment. Ask for Catalog No. 18.

N. Y. INSTITUTE OF PHOTOGRAPHY
NEW YORK CHICAGO BROOKLYN
141 W. 36th St. 630 So. Wabash Ave. 505 State St.

DON'T WEAR A TRUSS

BE COMFORTABLE—
Wear the Brooks Appliance, the modern scientific invention which gives rupture sufferers immediate relief. It has no obnoxious springs or pads. Automatic Air Cushions bind and draw together the broken parts. No salves or plasters. Durable. Cheap. MR. C. E. BROOKS
Sent on trial to prove its worth. Beware of imitations. Look for trade-mark bearing portrait and signature of C. E. Brooks which appears on every Appliance. None other genuine. Full information and booklet sent free in plain, sealed envelope.

BROOKS APPLIANCE CO., 220 State St., Marshall, Mich.

Get Rid of Your FAT
Free Trial Treatment

Sent on request. Ask for my "pay-when-reduced" offer. I have successfully reduced thousands of persons, often at the rate of a pound a day, without diet or exercise. Let me send you proof at my expense.

DR. R. NEWMAN, Licensed Physician,
State of New York, 286 Fifth Ave., N. Y., Desk G 105

DIAMONDS
FOR A FEW CENTS A DAY

Don't send a single penny. Ten days' Free Trial. When the ring comes, examine it—if you are not convinced it is the Greatest Bargain in America, send it back at our expense. Only if pleased, send $1.50 weekly—at the rate of a few cents a day. This Bargain Cluster Ring with 7 Blue-White Perfect Cut Diamonds can be yours. No Red Tape. No Risk.

Million Dollar Bargain Book FREE Send for it today. It pictures thousands of Bargains. Address Dept 1512

J.M. LYON & CO.
2-4 Maiden Lane N.Y.

On a busy day
Beeman's
quiets the nerves and keeps you calm — its daily use is

"a sensible habit"

BEEMAN'S
Pepsin Gum

AMERICAN CHICLE CO.

FREE
$20
Fine Tone
Musical Instruments

We have a wonderful new copyrighted system of teaching note music by mail. To first pupils in each locality we will give free a $20 superb Violin, Tenor Banjo, Ukulele, Hawaiian-Guitar, Banjo, Mandolin, Banjo-Ukulele, Banjo-Mandolin, Cornet or Banjo-Guitar absolutely free. Also teach Piano and Organ. Very small charge for lessons only. Four lessons will teach you several pieces. Over 100,000 successful players. We guarantee success or no charge. Complete outfit free. Write today, Dept. 128, no obligation. Slingerland School of Music, 1815 Orchard St., Chicago, Ill.

NO. 1 $2.63 NO. 2 $3.25
NO. 3 $5.90 NO. 4 $4.98

WEAR SEVEN DAYS FREE

OUR MARVELOUS MEXICAN DIAMONDS

have delighted thousands of customers for 18 years. They positively match genuine diamonds. Same perfect cut, same dazzling play of rainbow fire. Stand intense acid test of side by side comparison with genuine. Hated experts positively need their experience to detect any difference whatsoever. Perhaps the gems you admire on your closest friends are MEXICAN DIAMONDS and you never knew it. Test a MEXICAN DIAMOND FREE! you risk nothing. Wear it seven days side by side with a genuine diamond. If you see any difference, send it back; it won't cost you a cent.

HALF PRICE TO INTRODUCE

To introduce to new customers, we quote these prices which are all you pay and just half our catalog prices.
No. 1—Ladies 1 ct. Solitaire, fine 14k gold f. $2.63
No. 2—Gents Heavy Tooth Belcher, 1 ct. gem, 14k gold f. 1.75
No. 3—Ladies 3 stone Duchess ring, fine platino finish, two 6/8 ct. first water Mex. diamonds, one blue sapphire $5.98
No. 4—Gents Ex. Heavy Opey ring, platino finish, black inlay on sides, 1 7/8 ct. first water Mex. Diamond $4.98

SEND NO MONEY Just send name, address and slip of paper to show size. Say which ring you want. We ship promptly. On arrival, deposit price with postman. If you decide not to keep it, return in 7 days and we'll refund your money. Write TODAY, Dept. C.

MEXICAN DIAMOND IMPORTING CO.
LAS CRUCES, N. MEX.
Exclusive Controllers of Mexican Diamonds for 18 years.

The Movie of the Month

(Continued from page 49)

for her sailor-man. A pathetic, old figure—this skipper of a coal barge. And the drama, soaring with vital humanities—and with a spiritual tug, embraces one with an emotional sweep as the girl joins him—a girl defiant of men (she has been their plaything in an inland town)—yet succumbing to the call of love and youth. The other vital figure is the rescued sailor-man—a swaggering, blustering, coal-stoker—sure of himself and of his importance to the world. He listens to no entreaties from the old Swede and his daughter.

It might be called a quadrangle—a conflict between a hag of the water-front saloon to hold the skipper's love—and the latter's futile fight against the overpowering forces of youthful hearts. And his angry remonstrations against the sea make him a pitiful figure indeed. There is much hard drinking. Why not? Rough sailor-folk must have their grog. But beneath these raw externals (which expose the girl's life of shame—a condition brought about thru a parent's neglect and the lust of men, and the conflicts between father, lover and daughter) is a big, throbbing idea—pounding relentlessly on a major theme, that of a parent's determination to compensate for his neglect—and a spirited girl's conflict with herself. And the sea calls them to its bosom. It is the strongest force of all.

Blanche Sweet's rendition of the title rôle is marvelously human. The emotions which race across her face indicate that she lived the part thoroly. She plays with a remarkable depth of sympathy and understanding. George Marion in his original rôle of the old Swede provides picturesque characterization. He is the perfect embodiment of the superstitious salt as colored by the imagination. William Russell, playing the sailor-man, abandons himself completely to the task of revealing the influence of the sea in making its playboys swaggering, boastful adventurers, while Eugenie Besserer acts the water-front hag in a manner recognizably real.

"Anna Christie"? It surely belongs on the heights. It moves with powerful strokes—and embraces realities and humanities. And considerable spiritual comfort. So devastating is its hand of fate, so compelling is its clash of emotions—that we do not miss the spoken lines at all. It is as if we could hear them.

Look Here!

I will make you a DRAFTING EXPERT!

If you're earning less than $100 a week, GO INTO DRAFTING! I guarantee to train you AT HOME the "JOB-WAY"—with actual Drafting Room jobs. Send for my free book, find out about the wonderful opportunities to earn big money in this easy, fascinating business. Drafting experts are close to the boss—are first in line of promotion for executive positions.

$250 to $400 a Month!

Common schooling all you need! I train you by my copyrighted "JOB-WAY" instruction. I cover every branch of Drafting by giving you actual JOBS to do. No books or useless theory to waste your time. My graduates are SUCCESSFUL—employers prefer Coyne-trained Draftsmen. So I guarantee satisfaction or to refund your money!

FREE Experts' Drafting Outfit

"JOB-WAY" training makes you a DRAFTING EXPERT quick because you learn to do actual JOBS with the same instruments you will use when employed at a big salary. To encourage you to START RIGHT NOW, I will give you with my course this complete EXPERT'S outfit FREE. Coupon brings complete information.

LEARN AT HOME!

Thousands of big-salaried jobs all over the country looking for DRAFTING EXPERTS! Railroads, factories, builders, architects, ship yards, auto plants, Cities, Counties, States, and the U. S. Government all calling for Drafting Experts, all waiting for you to take the big pay job. Mail coupon, get my free book. Let me tell you the rest of this story personally. Address

CHIEF DRAFTSMAN COYNE SCHOOL OF DRAFTING
Dept. 242, 1-9 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago

CHIEF DRAFTSMAN COYNE SCHOOL OF DRAFTING
Dept. 242 1-9 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago

Without obligating me in any way please send me your book, "Drafting, the Foundation of Industry," absolutely free. Also complete information of your rapid home-study Drafting course and Free Instruments.

Name.....
St. No.....
City.....State.....

Save $1.50
on the Famous
Book of Etiquette

Nearly Half a Million Sold for $3.50
Special Short Time Offer Only $1.98

Here's the bargain you have been waiting for. No longer do you need to say, "I'm going to get the BOOK OF ETIQUETTE some day," for your day has arrived.

Think of getting the complete, original, authentic BOOK OF ETIQUETTE which solves every social difficulty and tells you exactly what to do, say, write and wear on every occasion, for almost half price!

Here's your opportunity to get this rare book for which nearly 500,000 people have paid $3.50 at only $1.98, on a no money down offer. It covers every phase of wedding etiquette, street etiquette, dinner and dance etiquette, tips for bachelors and business women and helpful paragraphs for the self-conscious and timid.

Send No Money

Just send a postcard or a letter. The complete two-volume Book of Etiquette will be sent to you at once in a plain carton. Simply give the postman $1.98 (plus a few cents delivery charges) on arrival, instead of the regular price of $3.50. You may return the books any time within 5 days if you are not delighted, and your money will be refunded. Write now before this remarkable offer is withdrawn.

Nelson Doubleday, Inc.,
Dept. 822, Garden City, New York.

Send No Money

for this genuine
"NightLight" VANITY

Only $4.82. A Mighty Bargain. Former price $8.50. Devoting an entire section of the factory to its exclusive manufacture has made this amazing price possible. Snappy, up-to-date and beautiful, this handsome Vanity Case will please the most fastidious. Made from the finest black moleskin, in the lustrous Patent finish over a strong veneer wood frame. The interior of the case is lined with beautiful two tone design "Cloth of Gold." A heavy mitered plate glass mirror is fixed to the inside of cover. Handsome French Ivory Toilette Fittings. A double strap handle makes it easy to carry. The size is generous, 7 1/2 in. long, 6 1/2 in. wide and 5 in. deep. Has the latest Patent Snap Trunk Key Lock as illustrated. The greatest feature of this wonderful case is the Brilliant Electric Bulb which throws a clear powerful light into the mirror at the touch of a button. It enables Mildy to correct her appearance without being at the mercy of darkness. A tiny Tungsten battery that will last for months is concealed in the case. It can be replaced at any hardware store for 20c. Makes a Wonderful Gift. FREE with every Vanity we give a handsome "Cloth of Gold" coin and card purse. SEND NO MONEY Keep your money right at home; just send name and address and your Vanity will come by return mail. When it arrives, pay postman $4.82 plus a few pennies postage. You do not risk a single penny on our Binding Written Guarantee to refund all your money if you are not satisfied is attached to every Vanity Case. SEND TODAY.

E. RICHWINE CO., Dept. 929
19 W. Jackson Blvd. Chicago, Illinois

The Celluloid Critic (Continued from page 51)

study. The player who seems to be mostly in character is Richard Bennett. The Italian extras are competently handled in the Fascisti scenes. The camera is unkind, however, in bringing forth any suggestion of reality. The majority of these extras appear to be having great fun out of it. The atmosphere, on the other hand, is authentic and gives the picture its sole redeeming quality.

SEVERAL hundred westerns have been ground thru the movie mill since Owen Wister wrote "The Virginian," a story which has served as one of the models for cow country pictures, but none has contained more vitality of plot and characterization than this new version by Preferred. While all of us are familiar with the bashful cowboy from Virginia who took romance so easily and gracefully—we stay to follow his exploits in love. A sympathetic character—this Virginian, played in an appropriate lackadaisical manner by Kenneth Harlan. He interests us because he is not ever performing the conventional sacrifices of the orthodox movie cowboy.

The sponsors have caught the salient points of the story and welded them into a vigorous yarn—using backgrounds which are truly eloquent. The humor is not abundant. It is compressed here in the episode involving the exchange of babies at the husking-bee. Pathos creeps in—and is presented with genuine feeling. We overlook the familiar points—such as the conflict with the rustlers—and the romance between the cowboy and the school-teacher. These obvious factors are absorbed thru a genuinely dramatic treatment of a compelling story.

But it drags interminably at times—due to an emphasis being placed upon the characters and detail—and also to the fact that we are familiar with its plot. The Virginian and the other cowhands grow tiresome toward the end.

IT is plain to be seen that James Cruze's forte is comedy, after witnessing the sparkling treatment of "To the Ladies" (Paramount). We approached this satire on business efficiency rather skeptical whether anything substantial could be made from it—seeing that the authors depended on a quantity of witticisms and a realistic slant of that most wearisome of indoor sports—banqueting. Indeed, the play depended entirely upon this banquet

"Slender at Last!"

How Wonderful it Feels"

PROMINENT women in society, business and the theatrical profession give unqualified praise to Dr. R. Lincoln Graham's prescription, NEUTROIDS, for flesh reduction. "Slender at last! Oh, how wonderful it feels," write hundreds of grateful women. Dr. Graham has more than 3000 such letters on file at his famous sanitarium on Eighty-ninth Street, New York. Without the annoyance of diet, baths or exercise, it is now possible to regain and retain the slenderness, and consequently the vitality of youth much longer than most women had expected.

Dr. Graham's Prescription is Harmless
Neutroids, the prescription developed by Dr. R. Lincoln Graham, famous New York stomach specialist, after a lifetime of research, merely reduces the yeast cells in your stomach. This causes your food to turn into firm tissue instead of fat. Neutroids have just the opposite effect of yeast cakes and preparations taken by people who wish to gain flesh. Dr. R. L. Graham They relieve you of that bloated feeling, nausea, headache, blood pressure and all the ills of obesity—at the same time reducing you to your desired weight. Neutroids are guaranteed harmless, containing no thyroid or other dangerous drug.

Personal Consultation Without Charge
Dr. Graham would be pleased to have you consult him personally at his sanitarium or if you can not conveniently call, you may feel quite free to write him for professional advice regarding your case. This offer is open to all who order Dr. Graham's prescription Neutroids, using the coupon below.

GUARANTEE ELIMINATES RISK
Dr. Graham guarantees Neutroids to give satisfactory results; and that his prescription may be taken with safety by any one. Every woman or man who wishes to regain or retain the youthful slender appearance and vigor of youth will use this coupon without delay.

Dr. R. Lincoln Graham, 123 East 89th Street, Dept. 613 c/o The Graham Sanitarium, Inc., New York City.—Send me 2 weeks' treatment of Neutroids which entitles me to free professional mail consulting service and free booklet on Obesity. I will pay postman $2 (plus 15c postage) on arrival of the Neutroids in plain package. I understand my money will be refunded if I do not get a satisfactory reduction from this 2 weeks' treatment.

Name

Address

EARN MONEY AT HOME

YOU can make $15 to $60 weekly in your spare time writing show cards. No canvassing or soliciting. We instruct you by our new simple Directograph System, supply you with work and pay you cash each week. Write today for full particulars and free booklet.

WEST-ANGUS SHOW CARD SERVICE LIMITED
Authorized Capital $1,250,000.00
74 Colborne Building, Toronto, Can.

scene—since it exposed the hokum of after-dinner speeches.

Cruze, however, has enlarged upon the play. He has sensed the keynote of middle-class mediocrity—and draws the humdrum existence of a wage slave in a most human and sympathetic manner. So we have Leonard Beebe (our central character) at home and at the factory—a meek, colorless individual—whose wife goads him into asserting himself. Comes a time when he is advised that he will be called upon to make a speech at a forthcoming banquet, so he memorizes a made-to-order address, one culled from a book. The party who precedes him gives the identical speech, thus stealing his thunder. He is stricken with fear—but his wife grasps the opportunity by making an impromptu address which instantly wins her husband a long-awaited reward. There is a little conflict here which is a sort of anticlimax, but Cruze has handled his material so deftly—that the picture offers a deal of spontaneity of humor—a quality which more than compensates for the rather weak conclusion.

The banquet scene is a gem—one which is never overstressed—and keeping pace with it is a lifelike slant upon those people who buy their homes and their household goods upon the instalment plan—a slant not so well suggested in the play. It is clever satire, skilfully humanized. And expertly acted by Edward Horton, Helen Jerome Eddy, who carries away the honors, Theodore Roberts and Louise Dresser.

AN argumentative subject is given a visual hearing in "This Freedom" (Fox)—and allowing for a scarcity of action which is replaced by wordy captions, it may be called a first-rate picture. Indeed, it is the best English importation to date—and carries out its author's theories to the dot. A. S. M. Hutchinson has not written another "If Winter Comes." In the first place, it doesn't present any such idealistic figure as Mark Sabre, nor does it offer much dramatic movement. However, once its characters are all introduced, it swings into its main argument and finishes with a stirring climax.

Hutchinson argues in a familiar fashion. He would show a woman's home crumbling to pieces in her refusal to abide by the natural law of her sex—the care of that home. She will trespass on man's domains—with the inevitable result—stark tragedy. A daughter dies—and a son is disgraced—and she realizes the futility of her career. But lead-

YOU CAN PLAY THE HAWAIIAN GUITAR

Just Like the Hawaiians!

Because Our Native Hawaiian Instructors Will Show You How!

Be the Most Popular Member of Your Set, Play "When You Walked Out," "Ten Ten Tennessee," "Stella," "Louisville Lou." All the Late Song and Dance Hits. You can play First Selection in Half an Hour—and Harmonious Chords AT ONCE.

Here is your chance to get in the swim—to learn to play the most fascinating of all instruments, the Hawaiian Guitar, just as the Hawaiians do, and in an amazingly short time. Our method is so simple, plain and easy that you begin a piece your first lesson. In half an hour you can play it! Thousands of successful students prove this to be true. It is quite astonishing to find the ease with which you can master the Hawaiian Guitar—no matter how little your knowledge of music may be you can positively learn to play by our plain and easy method.

Expert Hawaiians Teach You to Quickly Master Their Secrets of This Fascinating Music

The instructions you receive from such world famous experts as Lawrence Kalaniki, Walter Kolomoku, Frank Ferrer, Carl Seville and others are invaluable. No other Conservatory can even begin to give you the expert teaching and knowledge you gain through us. And remember, while it is conceded that the Hawaiian Guitar produces the sweetest music, yet its mastery by you will be simple and quick, since there are to learn to be able to play any music—popular, dance, classical, native Hawaiian airs, or old time melodies and hymns. Just think of it! You need never have read a musical note in your life! For that matter, even though you haven't the slightest knowledge of any musical instrument we guarantee to teach you how to play just like the Hawaiians!

ONLY 4 EASY MOTIONS

A Complete Conservatory Course!

Never before has such a complete and easily understood Conservatory Course in Hawaiian Guitar been offered. We are able to grant you this opportunity of quickly learning how to play the Hawaiian Guitar through acquiring the services of real Hawaiians to teach you.

How well this has been accomplished is proved by the fact that this is the only Conservatory teaching Hawaiian Guitar exactly as played by the Hawaiians. It is your good fortune as well as ours, that these Native Masters of Hawaiian Guitar came to this Conservatory to teach—and best of all

We Furnish Everything

When you enroll as a student in this Conservatory you receive FREE a handsome, selected Genuine Hawaiian Guitar—valued at $15.00—52 especially arranged lessons and 52 carefully selected pieces of music, as well as all necessary picks, Steel Playing Bar, etc. There is nothing extra to buy—everything is furnished.

SEND FOR TODAY

of this remarkable course—simply fill in the coupon, mail to us and we'll gladly send you full details of our complete Conservatory Course and FREE Hawaiian Guitar Offer!

We know you will not let another day go by without enrolling as a student in this Conservatory, once you learn how quickly and easily you can master this most popular of all instruments—the Hawaiian Guitar—So mail the Coupon NOW.

First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc. Dept. 49, 233 Broadway (Woolworth Bldg.), N. Y.

Special Courses Under Famous Teachers: TENOR BANJO VIOLIN, BANJO-UKULELE and UKULELE.

---COME ON OVER, AND BE SURE TO BRING YOUR HAWAIIAN GUITAR!

FREE
This Genuine HAWAIIAN Guitar—
A Real $15.00 Value

MAIL THIS COUPON NOW!

First Hawaiian Conservatory of Music, Inc. Dept. 49, 233 Broadway (Woolworth Bldg.), New York
Please mail at once full details of your $2 easy lessons and FREE Hawaiian Guitar offer. This, of course, does not obligate me in the least.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____

(Please PRINT name and address clearly)

Get this Wonderful Ring
If you can tell it from a Genuine Diamond SEND IT BACK
These Amazingly Beautiful CORODITE Gems are the nearest approach to GENUINE DIAMONDS that the ingenuity of man, aided by years of scientific and chemical research can produce. They have the same opacity, blazing flash and dazzling play of living rainbow tints. Standing the terrific acid test of direct comparison. Even lifetime experts need all their experience to see any difference. Prove this yourself!

Make this Test You risk nothing. Wear a Genuine side on the same finger. If you and your friends can tell the difference, send it back. You won't be out a single penny. That's fair enough!

If you keep the ring, price printed here is all you pay. Remember only CORODITE GEMS have the same facet cutting as genuine stones. Beautifully hand made, hand carved mountings created in latest and most fashionable designs. Rings No. 2, 3, 4 and 8 are finished in the true Platinum effect on a base of Solid Sterling Silver. Rings No. 1, 6 and 7 are made from the finest 14K Gold Filled stock unqualifiedly warranted 20 years. Carat Size Gems, Handsome Art Leather Velvet lined case FREE with each ring.

- No. 1 Ladies Solitaire Fine 14K Gold Filled Ring - $2.84
- No. 2 Ladies latest Pierced Filigree 4 Post Ring Plat. effect - $4.19
- No. 3 Ladies Hand Carved Pierced Basket Ring Plat. effect - $4.93
- No. 4 Ladies Hand Carved Basket Ring Platinum effect - $3.96
- No. 5 Ladies Blossom Entwined Solitaire Ring - $3.54
- No. 7 Mens Heavy 8 Prong Belcher 14K Gold Filled Ring - $3.68
- No. 8 Mens Massive Hand Carved Hexagon Gypsy Ring - $4.28

Send No Money

Money Back Guarantee
You do not risk a penny. Our signed binding legal guarantee to refund your money in full is attached to every ring we sell. You must be satisfied.
Sole Importers Genuine Corodite Gems

E. RICHWINE CO., 19 W. Jackson Blvd., Dept. 901, CHICAGO

OPPORTUNITY MARKET

AGENTS WANTED

$100 to $250 Month. Men—women, 18 up wanted. U. S. Government steady positions. Short hours. Pleasant work. Paid vacation. List positions free. Write immediately—urgent. Franklin Institute, Dept. F-104, Rochester, N. Y.

AGENTS.—Here's the best line of food flavors, perfumes, soaps, toilet preparations, etc., ever offered. No capital needed. Complete outfits furnished free to workers. Write today for full particulars. AMERICAN PRODUCTS CO., 1692 American Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

HELP WANTED

Movie Types Wanted. Acting ability not essential. A legitimate medium successfully used by hundreds. Send photo for full particulars. Casting Office, 304 Security Bldg., Santa Monica & Western, Hollywood, California.

HOW TO ENTERTAIN

Plays, Musical Comedies and Revues, minstrel music, blackface skits, vaudeville acts, monologs, dialog, recitations, entertainments, musical readings, stage handbooks, make-up goods. Big catalog free. T. S. Denison & Co., 623 So. Wabash, Dept. 63, Chicago.

INTEREST TO WOMEN

LADIES EARN $6—$18 a dozen decorating pillow tops at home; experience unnecessary; particulars for stamp. Tapestry Paint Co., 127 La-Grange, Ind.

Important Information. Wonderful effect Tyler's Health Food has with Expectant and Nursing Mothers. Sealed literature free. Byron Tyler, Estab. 1899. 33 Gibraltar Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

NEWS CORRESPONDENCE

EARN $25 WEEKLY, spare time, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 561 St. Louis, Mo.

OLD COINS WANTED

Old Coins, Large Spring Selling Catalog of coins for sale free. Catalog quoting prices paid for coins, ten cents. William Hesslein, 101 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

PATENTS

PATENTS. Write for Free Illustrated Guide Book. Send model or sketch for free opinion of its patentable nature. Highest references. Prompt Attention. Reasonable Terms. Victor J. Evans & Co., 621 Ninth, Washington, D. C.

PERSONAL

ARE YOU BASHFUL, SELF-CONSCIOUS, easily embarrassed? These troubles overcome. Send dime for particulars. L. Veritas, 1400 Broadway, New York.

Why Good Dancers Are Popular

EVERYONE admires and wants to dance with the person who knows the latest steps. There is no need of being a wallflower! By my remarkable new easy method anyone can learn the newest dances at home in a few hours. Much less expensive than from a personal teacher. No music or partner needed. So simple even a child can learn quickly. 30,000 have learned dancing by mail. Your own success is guaranteed. To prove I can quickly make you an accomplished dancer. I will send you FREE, in plain cover, a lesson in Fox Trot, Secret of Leading, How to Gain Confidence, How to Follow and How to Avoid Embarrassing Mistakes. To help pay the cost of handling, mailing, etc., send 10c. Learn in private, surprise your friends. Act now. Be a good dancer soon. ARTHUR MURRAY, Studio 9, 801 Madison Ave., New York

PHOTOPLAYS

Write Successful Photoplays. Big Money. Free book gives practical instructions; describes our revision, typewriting, marketing service, and commission rates. Successful Photoplays, Box 43, Des Moines, Ia.

Journalism—Photoplays—Short Stories. Plot Chart and Details free to those wishing to enter above professions or dispose of manuscripts on Commission. (The Service offered is given by Professional Authors and Editors of high standing.) Harvard Company, 433 Montgomery, San Francisco.

Big money writing photoplays, stories, poems, songs. Send for free copy America's greatest magazine for writers. Tells you how to write and sell. Writer's Digest, 622 Butler Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

$$$ For Photoplay Ideas. Plots accepted any form; revised, criticized, copyrighted, marketed. Advice free. Universal Scenario Corporation, 203 Security Bldg., Santa Monica and Western Ave., Hollywood, Cal.

SHORT STORIES

EARN $25 WEEKLY, spare time, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details free. Press Syndicate, 561 St. Louis, Mo.

Stories and Photoplay Ideas Wanted by 48 companies; big pay. Details free to beginners. Producers' League, 441, St. Louis, Mo.

Stories, Poems, Plays, Etc., are wanted for publication. Good ideas bring big money. Submit MSS. or write Literary Bureau, 134 Hannibal, Mo.

FREE TO WRITERS—A wonderful little book of money-making hints, suggestions, ideas; the A B C of successful story and movie play writing. Absolutely Free. Just address Authors' Press, Dept. 14, Auburn, N. Y.

SONG WRITERS

A $500 Cash Prize is offered for the best second verse written for the song "Remember." Those wishing to compete may receive a free copy with rules by addressing Equitable Music Corporation, 455 State Theatre, New York.

STAMPING NAMES

Stamp Names On Key Checks. Make $19 per 100. Some make $10 daily. Either sex. Work can be done at home, spare time. Send 25c for sample and instructions. M. Keytag Co., Cohoes, N. Y.

VAUDEVILLE

GET ON THE STAGE. I tell you how! Personality, confidence, skill developed. Experience unnecessary. Send 6c postage for instructive illustrated Stage Book and particulars. O. LaDelle, Box 557, Los Angeles, Cal.

LOOK YOUNG! BIG JAR BETTER QUALITY

Bring the glow of youth and health to your face with Richardson's BEAUTY CLAY

Cleanser and beautifier. Works like magic. Superior to all others. Costs less. Over 30 treatments to jar. SEND NO MONEY. Write for big jar today and pay postman $1.50 plus postage.

RICHARDSON TOILET CO.
42 Central St., Dept. A Bradford, Mass.

AGENTS WANTED

Agents are wanted at once in every locality to solicit yearly subscriptions for the MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE, CLASSIC and BEAUTY. If you are not afraid to work hard for big pay, send for immediate appointment.

CLASSIC 175 Duffield St. Brooklyn, N. Y.

Send For FREE Catalog

LOFTIS Genuine Diamonds BROS. & CO. ESTD. 1858 GUARANTEED

DIAMONDS WATCHES

"SYLVIA" Diamond Ring
Blue white, radiant, perfect cut Diamond. The ring is 18-K Solid White Gold, carved and pierced. Special at $100. Only $10 down, then $2.50 a week. Also bargains at $75 to $600

Rectangular WRIST WATCH
18-K White Gold 17 Jewels $29.75. 14-K 15 Jewels $24.85. Yours for $5.50 down, then $1.00 a Week until paid.

CASH OR CREDIT
We import Diamonds direct from European markets and sell direct to you by mail. SEND FOR CATALOG. There are over 2,000 illustrations of Diamond-set Jewelry, Watches, Wrist Watches, Pearls, Mesh Bags, Silverware, etc. Select as many articles as you wish and have all charged in one account. Sent prepaid for your FREE EXAMINATION. We can fill any requirement. Our IMMENSE BUYING POWER insures you LOWEST PRICES. We invite comparison of quality and prices. CATALOG explains everything.

17-Jewel ELGIN
No. 15—Green Gold, engraved, assorted patterns, guaranteed 25 years. 12 Size. $32 gilt dial. Terms $3.25 Down, then $1.00 a Week until paid.

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded
LOFTIS BROS. & CO. National Jewelers
Dept. K616 108 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

Stores in Leading Cities

ing up this chaotic state, the spectator is compelled to sit thru a deal of incidental argument between husband and wife. He is indecisive as she is impulsive. And neither is able to extract any sympathy. It may be said that the heroine presents a pathological study.

The picture is often tiresome and always obvious—but it is deftly acted by Fay Compton—whose poise and understanding are sure and accurate. Her portrayal belongs in the most exclusive gallery. She seems to be the perfect embodiment of what she represents. The other players are colorless in comparison, partly because they're not sufficiently competent; partly because Hutchinson sacrifices lesser characters to make capital of his protagonist.

GEOURGE ADE has given Thomas Meighan another likely story in "Woman Proof" (Paramount). While it is a variation of an old theme, the author has a faculty of dressing up his ideas so that they appear novel and bright. This time he employs the "Brewster's Millions" formula with a twist or two. Instead of presenting one heir compelled to be married within a specified time—he shows two—in addition to a couple of heiresses. His hero is not painted as a young spend-thrift, but as a hard-working youth who is shy of feminine entanglements.

The piece sparkles with bright quips and incident—and while it furnishes a typical movie finish, it is conceived and executed in such a humorous manner—that there is not a single moment of boredom suggested. It offers two or three happy surprises—one of which is the wedding on the ship—with the radio being employed to transmit the marriage to the folks at home. It releases clever satire and is played with fine appreciation by Tom Meighan.

"NOTHING is added, nothing is taken away"—to quote the slogan of a prominent bread-maker—in regard to Bill Hart's picture, "Wild Bill Hickok" (Paramount). It goes back to first principles—back to the days when the man who made gun-toting an art was a Triangle star. The spectator will be more interested in watching Hart—to discover if Bill has some new tricks up his sleeve since his retirement. But he won't be surprised, for the star still carries on in the same, old familiar fashion—crouching when pulling his trigger fingers—and shutting his eyes when the spark of romance fades from his life.

It is quite episodic, tho it does re-

She Looks up Confidingly

BUT her confidence is as much in her own beauty as in him. She knows that her eyes are bewitching, veiled as they are by WINX-darkened lashes. Although this is the final dance of a crowded evening, the WINX has lasted throughout it all. Close as he is he cannot see it—it is invisible on the lashes.

Make your eyes beautiful by darkening the lashes with WINX. Apply it with the glass rod attached to the stopper—it makes the lashes appear longer and heavier. Dries instantly. Harmless, waterproof. Unaffected by perspiration or weeping at the theatre.

WINX (black or brown) 75c. To nourish the lashes and promote growth use colorless Cream Lashlux at night. Cream Lashlux (black, brown or colorless) 50c. At drug, department stores or by mail.

Write today for samples of WINX and of PERT Rouge—enough of each to last a week. Samples are a dime each. Enclose coins.

ROSS COMPANY
78 Grand Street New York

WINX

Waterproof

YOU CAN WRITE for the MOVIES!

Producers want—need—new ideas for motion picture plays. Attractive prices paid on acceptance.

Send us your ideas for film plots in ANY form for free and immediate examination. Not a correspondence course or school. We extend a special service to those who wish to turn their photoplay ideas into profits. Send now for our FREE booklet, "From Photoplay Plot to the Screen," which shows a way to aspiring writers.

EARLE PHOTOPLAY STUDIOS
Suite 607F, Earle Bldg., New York

BLUE WHITE Luxite Diamond

If you can tell it from a Diamond Send it Back!

1 CARAT RINGS $2.98. Not one diamond in a thousand has the blue, dazzling brilliancy of "Luxite Diamonds." They're PERFECT; few diamonds are! Stand acid and all other tests. Only experts can tell you haven't paid $150.00!

Hand engraved solitaire ring 14k gold $5. guaranteed!

DON'T SEND A PENNY! Send only name, address and paper strip which fits end to end around ring. When ring comes deposit only $2.00 with postman. We pay postage! Money back if not delighted.

GARFIELD IMPORTING CO., Dept. 709-A, CHICAGO

FOR PHOTOPLAY IDEAS

Don't send your manuscripts to studios until first protected by copyright. Plots accepted in any form: revised, criticized, copyrighted, marketed. We are right on the ground in daily touch with the studios. Not a school—no courses or books to sell. Advice free.

UNIVERSAL SCENARIO CORPORATION
227 Security Bldg., Santa Monica and Western Ave., Hollywood, California Publishers Scenario Bulletin-Digest Send for free sample copy

BE A JAZZ MUSIC MASTER

PLAY PIANO BY EAR

Play popular song hits perfectly by ear. Hum the tune, play it BY EAR. No tedious, ding-dong daily practice—just twenty brief, entertaining lessons which you can master.

At Home in Your Spare Time
Send for the FREE BOOK. It tells how to start if you want musical ability at which friends will marvel.

NIAGARA SCHOOL OF MUSIC,
Dept. 630, Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Send for this Free Book

lease considerable gun-play. But the discerning onlooker will wonder over a few tricks that are exposed. For instance, how is it that Bill can fire his six-shooters fifteen or twenty times without reloading—with bullets speeding toward him on every side? Again he makes a fine target of himself when he raises his guns to the sky before shooting.

The plot exposes the hectic life of a genuine figure—back in the days when danger lurked in the frontier town. A typical Bill Hart story—even to the romance. And we call it hokum.

OODLES of sentiment and romance gush forth in the picture version of "Maytime" (Preferred) until by the time the conclusion is reached, the number is as sticky as a molasses jug. The character of this plot calls for much repetition of scene—and because there is little dramatic movement, the action becomes uninteresting—and this goes for most of the characters. Aside from the development of the romance between the central figures, the lesser characters don't have any opportunities for emotional expression. Several stand around in dramatic postures.

It is not deftly acted, Ethel Shannon not being the right choice for the romantic girl. She appears to be playing the part more than she is living it. The quaint comedy relief of the stage is exceedingly mild and almost negligible. It strikes us as if it could have been done much better. A parade of costumes and romantic postures.

THE edge has been taken off this Topus thru its having been picture-ized before—with much better effectiveness—and also because of any lack of that elusive quality known as suspense. Kipling's "The Light That Failed" (Paramount)—a tale of an artist who is stricken with blindness just as he is completing his masterpiece, is as old-fashioned as it is depressive—and aside from Percy Marmont's sympathetic study of the painter and Jacqueline Logan's brunette appeal, it fails in winning recognition to be placed in the exclusive gallery.

George Melford has much more feeling with his atmosphere, altho he has striven to make the story ring true. But why the suggestion that the artist's sight will return? Must we continually serve up pap to the happy enders? This picture is told smoothly enough, but its vital pathos is only mildly indicated.

YOU Are Wanted For A Better Job

That was the good news they brought him just a few short months ago. Then he held an ordinary job working long and hard on small pay. TODAY he is a high salaried Draftsman earning nearly $100 a week. How did it happen? It isn't a long story, because it's all so simple—so easy. You can do just what he has done if you'll start by reading every word—clear down to the coupon that marks your way to better pay.

It all started one evening while he was sitting at home reading. He saw the advertisement of the COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING and he knew it was his opportunity to earn from $50 to $100 a week in an unexcelled field with a big, sure future. He sent in the coupon. Later he enrolled for the COLUMBIA course. Today he's making real money. His brain is working, as well as his hands. He's standing on the threshold of a brilliant future with all that it means—Independence—money—success—happiness.

MADE $275 EXTRA IN 3 DAYS. He recently received $275 for one drawing that he made in spare time in three days.

HOW ABOUT YOU? Are you working up hill or down? Don't let the money in your pay envelope next pay day. You'll find the answer there.

MAKE $50 to $100 A WEEK. COLUMBIA will train you to be an expert Draftsman in your spare time at home by mail. There's lots of room for you if you act now. PROMOTION IS QUICK. WE'LL QUALIFY YOU for a high-salaried position in the Drafting field and keep you in touch with openings for Draftsmen in the big machine shops, industrial plants, and United States Government departments. Men who start as Draftsmen are often advanced to Chief Draftsmen, Chief Engineers, Production Managers, and so on.

GET THE "BRIGHT" TRAINING. Mr. Claffin, the founder and director, stands personally in back of the COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING. You spend no time in long-winded theories—useless and expensive to you. You start on actual drawing work the day you receive your first lesson. YOU NEED NO PREVIOUS TRAINING. The course is easy to understand and easy to follow. Many students are qualified even before they complete the course. SUCCESS CALLS MEN OF ACTION ONLY. If you are a man of action clip the coupon now and show that you are a man of action. Keep right on top of this opportunity to make real money. Don't go looking for a pair of scissors. Tear the coupon off and mail it right now. Get started now.

WHAT WE GIVE YOU
PRACTICAL PROBLEMS. You receive carefully coached practical Drafting work.
WE HELP YOU GET A JOB. We help you get a position as a practical Draftsman, as soon as you are qualified.
PERSONAL INSTRUCTION AND SUPERVISION THROUGHOUT THE COURSE. You receive the personal instruction and help of Roy C. Claffin, President of the COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING and a practical Draftsman of many years' experience.
DRAFTSMAN'S EQUIPMENT. We furnish you with a full set of First Class Drawing Equipment and Drafting Instruments as shown in the picture below when you enroll. You keep both sets on completing the course—CONSULTATION PRIVILEGES. You are free to write to us at any time for advice and suggestions regarding your success.
DIPLOMA. The diploma we give you on completing the course attests to your proficiency as a Draftsman. It is an "entering wedge" to success.
FREE SUBSCRIPTION TO DRAFTING PUBLICATION, "THE COMPASS." You are given free a subscription to our helpful, inspiring publication, "The Compass."

FREE DRAFTING OUTFIT
We give you Free, with our course, this professional Drafting outfit. It is yours to keep when you complete the Course.

U.S. Civil Service Commission Needs DRAFTSMEN
The following are a few of the many positions open in Government Departments from time to time. The salaries are six-figure salaries, subject to increase. Practically all of them carry a bonus of $240 a year additional.

Architectural Designer $4,000.
Chief Draftsman Naval Aircraft Factory $15.04 per day.
Aeronautical Draftsman—Field Service of Navy Dept., $5.20 to $12. per day.

FREE BOOK Send in this coupon today. Immediately on receipt of it we will send you our book, "Drafting—Your Success," which tells about Drafting and its opportunities for you as well as the peculiar method of learning Mechanical Drafting through COLUMBIA methods.

THE COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING
Roy C. Claffin, President
Dept. 2281, 14th & T Sts., N. W., Washington, D. C.

FREE BOOK COUPON

COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF DRAFTING,
Dept. 2281, 14th and T Sts., N. W.,
Washington, D. C.

Please send me without charge your free illustrated book on Drafting, telling me how I can secure your complete Home Study Course and your help in securing a position as Draftsman.

Name.....
Address.....
City..... State.....

Conn Saxophone Book FREE

The saxophone is today's most popular instrument. With a Conn you can learn the scale in one hour — master popular music in a short time. Entertain yourself and friends — make more money. Saxophonists are in demand for orchestra and solo work.

This Free Book explains exclusive features which make the Conn saxophone easiest to play, beautiful in tone, reliable in action. Tells why world-famous artists such as Isham Jones, Paul Biese and scores more prefer the Conn. Free Trial; Easy Payments on any Conn instrument for band or orchestra. Send now for Free Book and details.

C. G. CONN, Ltd.
254 Conn Building Elkhart, Indiana

30 Days' Free Trial

Select from 44 Styles, colors and sizes, famous Ranger bicycles. Delivered free on approval, express prepaid, at Factory Prices. You can easily save $10 to $25.

12 Months to Pay if desired. Parents to give ten advance first deposit. Boys can earn small payments.

Tires, wheels, lamps, horns, equipment at half usual prices. Send No Money. Write for our marvelous prices and terms.

Mead Cycle Company Dept. M-120, Chicago

MAKE THAT LUGER INTO A RIFLE!

LUGER CARBINE, 16" barrel Model de Luxe.

Mail us your Luger for equipment with any of the above interchangeable Long Barrels with 880 yard sight. Free labor. Shoot 200 accurate shots per minute with our 32-shot magazine and holster-stocks, equaling 8 riflemen. World famous super-accurate Mausers and Mannlichers; Luger, Mauser, etc., pistols. PACIFIC ARMS CORP., Liberty Bank Bldg., San Francisco, U. S. A.

HOLLYWOOD STUDIO OF THE DANCE

By our special method you can now easily learn at Home Ballet Technique, Classical and Oriental Dancing. The cost is most reasonable. Write for particulars.

HOLLYWOOD STUDIO OF THE DANCE
403 South Hill St. Los Angeles, Calif.

WRITE FOR THE MOVIES

Ideas for moving picture plays wanted by producers. Big prices paid for accepted material. Submit ideas in any form at once for our immediate examination. Or write for FREE PHOTOPLAY BOOKLET and details of our service to Authors.

BRISTOL PHOTOPLAY STUDIOS
Suite 601F Bristol Building, New York

NORMA TALMADGE says:

CINEMA ART IS ONE OF MY FAVORITE MAGAZINES. I ENJOY READING IT EVERY MONTH.

JUST TO GET ACQUAINTED

Send ONE DOLLAR and receive the next four numbers of

CINEMA ART

Contributions by leading authors—beautifully illustrated—handsomely printed.

BY THE YEAR - - $3.50

At NEWS STANDS 35c a Copy.

Cinema Art Magazine, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Yankee Consul

(Continued from page 61)

discovery brought a whistle to his lips. He stared down at the official-looking paper on the top tray of the trunk. "Appointment of Abijah Boos as consular agent to San Domingo," he muttered. "Whew, I am in bad! Wonder what other crimes besides impersonating a U. S. Consul I'm going to commit?"

With each difficulty, each hint of danger, his spirits rose. With the aid of Morrell's camera and flashlight powder he took his own picture to replace the bewhiskered one on the passport. Meanwhile there was always the chance that he might become better acquainted with the mysterious but lovely lady who needed his help.

The immigration officials regarded the distorted countenance on the passport Ainsworth presented them and shrugged their shoulders—but certainly that was never the señor! "It's awfully kind of you to say so," the señor said gratefully. "Take another look now." He screwed his face into the horrible squint which it had worn when the flashlight powder exploded and the likeness was unmistakable. As he and Morrell emerged from the customs-house, two Americans in white-duck suits and pith helmets pushed thru the clamoring horde of native beggars and the shorter, after a glance at the initials A. B. on the handbag Ainsworth carried, shook him heartily by the hand.

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Boos," he said with unmistakable sincerity. "I was afraid you wouldn't get down till the next boat—I'm Ripley, you know, the retiring consul, and I don't want to discourage you right at the outset but I don't mind telling you I'll be mighty glad to go back to the United States."

It was no part of Dudley Ainsworth's plan to carry the impersonation of Abijah Boos beyond the customs-house door. He was opening his lips to disclaim all rights to the name, but the words of the other white-clad man halted his confession. "Excuse me for butting in," said that worthy, "but my name's Doyle, George J. Doyle, I'm a Secret Service man and I've got a warrant here for one Dudley Ainsworth who's wanted back in the States. Do you happen to know whether there was a fellow by that name on board?"

The incoming consul replied hastily that he was certain there wasn't.

The pseudo Abijah Boos mopped a bedewed brow. "Sweet town!" he commented bitterly to Morrell after the others had left, "with a box of gold pieces in the place a man's life wouldn't be worth a German mark if the natives found out about it!"

"Well, you were keen on dying a week ago," Morrell reminded him unfeelingly, "remember that cyanide cocktail you were begging for so pitifully? S'long, old top. I'm going to take a nap if I can find a bed—in this marble shanty."

Morrell opened a reluctant eye to see his friend standing over him. "I'm leaving you to guard that chest," Ainsworth said hoarsely, "something has got to be done about it and I'm going to do it! After all, I'm responsible so long as I'm playing consul! And I can't stop playing consul or that Doyle will clap me in jail—God knows what I'm accused of back in the States, probably old Boos wants me arrested for absconding with his nightshirts!"

He was gone, wild-eyed. Morrell winked at the charming lithographed lady taking a bath in a marble pool on the wall, turned over and went to sleep.

The telegraph office was close to the consulate. Ainsworth signed the atrocious name which it seemed likely he might carry to his grave and handed the message to the operator. "To be sent by radio," he directed and felt in his pockets for change. With a dollar bill he drew out another bit of paper folded in a cocked-hat note and addressed to Abijah Boos in a woman's handwriting. Incredulously he stared down at the single line it contained: "Save me by five o'clock or all is over—Maria, Sans Souci Palace." She must have slipped it into his pocket when she brushed near him in the hurry of disembarking! A quick glance at the clock brought a groan from his lips—four o'clock and in an hour all would be over!

Leopoldo beckoned him with a glitter of polished nails. But Ainsworth shook his head. "I've got an engagement—"

"Certainly. I understand. All the consuls have the engagement to report at the San Souci Palace as soon as they arrive." Leopoldo smiled, "I have come to get you, Señor Boos!"

But at least he was going to the Sans Souci Palace where Maria was waiting. The new consul found himself returning the bow of a magnificent gentleman with a uniform that looked like that of the carriage starter at the Ritz Hotel.

(Continued on page 103)

$ 100
Down
Brings This

Gas or Electric
The Lamp—

Comes equipped for choice of gas or electricity. Has 2-light Benjamin socket for electricity only, with 8-foot silk cord ready for use; or comes with 6-foot rubber hose, burner, mantle and chimney for gas.

Mahogany Finish

Standard is 60 in. high, 3 in. in diameter. Highly polished-French mahogany finish.

The Shade—

Made in Fifth Avenue design, 24 in. in diameter, of delft blue silk, shirred top, alternating plain and fancy art silk panels. Twelve panels in all, tinsel braid border, with four inch Chenille fringe. American beauty shirred lining. The harmonious color scheme gives effect of red light shining through a blue haze—a rich warm light. Shipping weight, 27 pounds.

Marshall Silky Fringe Pull-Cords

Also pair of Marshall silky fringe cords with 3½ in. silky fringed tassels, giving an added luxurious effect.

For gas use, order by No. G6332NA. For electricity, order by No. G6333NA. Send only $1 with the coupon, $2 monthly. Total Bargain Price for lamp and shade, $19.85.

Free Bargain Catalog

Shows thousands of bargains in home furnishings: furniture, jewelry, rugs, curtains, phonographs, stoves, dishes, aluminum ware, etc. All sold on easy terms. Catalog sent free, with or without order. See the coupon.

Floor Lamp
 With
5th Ave. Silk Shade

Here is something you have always wanted—a beautiful floor lamp with handsome and elegant Fifth Avenue silk shade—to add an extra tone of elegance and luxury to your home. On this generous offer you can see just how this floor lamp and silk shade will look in your home, without risking anything. Send only $1.00 with the coupon below, and we will send it complete to your home on approval, equipped for use with either gas or electricity. We take all the risk.

30 Days Trial When the lamp outfit comes, use it freely for 30 days. See how beautifully the colorings of the handsome silk shade blend and harmonize with everything in the home. How useful it is, too—so handy for reading, can be moved around with ease to furnish a beautiful light and rich warmth and coziness to any room in the house. If after 30 days trial you decide not to keep the lamp, just return it at our expense and we will refund your $1.00 deposit, plus any freight or express you paid. You cannot lose a single penny.

$2.00 a Month If you discover that this lamp is a tremendous bargain at the price we ask and you decide to keep it, send only $2.00 a month until you have paid the total bargain price of $19.85. Yes, only $19.85 for this luxurious lamp and silk shade complete. Compare this value with anything you could buy locally at anywhere near the same price—even for spot cash! Straus & Schram gives you this bargain price and almost a year to pay. We trust honest people anywhere in U. S. No discount for cash; nothing extra for credit. No C. O. D.

Price Slashed!

Decide now to see this beautiful floor lamp and silk shade in your home on approval on this price smashing offer. Think how the nickels and dimes slip away for useless things; save them for something worth while that will give satisfaction for years. Send coupon with only $1.00 now! Satisfaction guaranteed.

STRAUS & SCHRAM, Dept. 1512 Chicago, Ill.

MAIL THIS COUPON NOW! STRAUS & SCHRAM
 Dept. 1512 CHICAGO

Enclosed find $1.00. Ship special advertised Floor Lamp and Silk Shade as checked below. I am to have 30 days free trial. If I keep the lamp, I will send $2.00 a month. If not satisfied, I am to return the lamp and shade within 30 days and you are to refund my $1.00 plus any transportation charges I paid.

- Gas Floor Lamp No. G 6332NA, $19.85.
- Electric Floor Lamp No. G 6333NA, $19.85

Name.....

Street, R. F. D. or Box No.....

Shipping Point.....

Post Office..... State.....

If you want ONLY our free catalog of home furnishings, mark X here

SEND US

Most wonderful offer ever made! Send a dollar TO-DAY! No bother! No delay! Beautiful cluster 7 lery brilliant blue-white diamonds, platinum set comes at once for 30 DAYS' FREE TRIAL. See for yourself that it looks exactly like a big solitaire. Try to buy it anywhere at our price. If satisfied, pay only $4.57 on a fifty-price $46.75. Otherwise return and we'll refund your dollar. Rush your dollar TO-DAY!

For this GENUINE DIAMOND CLUSTER

FREE CATALOG -- of other wonderful values. Diamonds, watches, etc. Best values -- your OWN TERMS (within reason).

PAY-AS-YOU-PLEASE!
Address Dept. F-C1

O. F. Bale & Co. EST. 1888
21-23 Maiden Lane New York

Develops Busts Amazingly Quick and Easy!

Just what every woman has been waiting for at a price every one can afford.

"BEAUTIBUST"

for real bust and neck development. No pumps, vacuum, extreme exercising. No foolish or dangerous systems, but a real tried and very successful natural method that WILL be extremely pleasing and beneficial. You can't fail if you follow the simple instructions. Everything mailed (sealed) for only $1.00. Do not miss this opportunity. It may not be repeated.

BEAUTIBUST CO., 1014-MM LEXINGTON BLDG., BALTIMORE, MD.

Cut Me Out

I'm only a coupon, but if you send me home at once I'll reward you by telling you how to turn your spare time into money, through acting as local subscription representative for the MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE, CLASSIC and BEAUTY. Liberal proposition to willing workers.

Name.....
St. & No.....
City.....
State.....

MAIL COUPON TO Subscription Manager
Motion Picture Magazine
175 Duffield Street, Brooklyn, Y. N.

21 Jewel Burlington

Used on nearly every vessel in the U.S. Navy. 21 Ruby and Sapphire jewel. 25 year Gold Strata case. Only $1 down. Balance in easy payments. Send for free book TODAY!

BURLINGTON WATCH COMPANY
19th St. and Marshall Blvd.
Dept. 12-72 Chicago, Ill.

Down

PIANO JAZZ

By Note or Ear. With or without music. Short Course. Adult beginners taught by mail. No teacher required. Self-Instruction Course for Advanced Pianists. Learn 67 styles of Bass, 180 Syncopated Effects, Blue Harmony, Oriental, Chime, Movie and Cafe Jazz, Trick Endings, Clever Breaks, Space Fillers, Sax Slurs, Triple Bass, Wicked Harmony, Blue Obligato, and 247 other Subjects, including Ear Playing. 110 pages of REAL Jazz. 25,000 words. A Postal brings our FREE Special Offer.

Waterman Piano School, 250 Superba Theatre Bldg. Los Angeles, Calif.

COMPLETE MANICURING COURSE $2

BE A MANICURIST
Earn $40 to $75 Per Week
Learn in Your Spare Time at Home
6 easy lessons. Become an expert. Send $2 to Malson Curtis, 4428 Maiden St., Apt. 1-D, Chicago

Flashes from the Eastern Stars

(Continued from page 57)

married now three or four months and still adores her Irish husband. The New York critics liked her part in "Flaming Youth." * * *

A new studio has opened down in Florida, in no wise discouraged by the big shut down. This studio is located in Hialeah, a suburb of Miami, and is available for immediate use. * * *

A play dealing with the custom of married women's retaining their maiden names, titled "The Waning Sex," by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, has been produced on the West Coast and is to be brought to Broadway at the end of the season. Lucy Stone League, please take warning! * * *

Oliver Morosco will put into immediate rehearsal a play by Richard A. Purdy, entitled "Across the Street." * * *

Eugene O'Neill, author of "Anna Christie," says that Thos. H. Ince's motion picture of the play is a "fine, true representation, faithful to the spirit and intent of the original." He formed this opinion and expressed it in a telegram to the producer when the film was projected for him at the home of Kenneth MacGowan, his associate in the direction of the Provincetown Playhouse. Altho the show lasted over two hours because the eight reels were projected by a small machine at less speed than is usual in a theater, the playwright gave unflagging attention to the first of his dramas to reach the screen. * * *

D. W. Griffith returned yesterday from Virginia to his Mamaroneck studios, after photographing scenes on eleven historical spots for his Revolutionary film, "America." The surrender of Cornwallis was taken in Yorktown on the ground where it actually occurred. More than forty persons whose ancestors were present at the surrender took part in the scenes. Yorktown gave Griffith a thrill by parking his special train on a siding around which was buried a cache of TNT said by government officials to be valued at two hundred million dollars. This is the army base for high explosives and the tracking where the train stood was on government property. * * *

Dr. Luigi Pirandello is seated on a pier on the Mediterranean awaiting word from Brock Pemberton that one of the Broadway theaters is available for his plays. Mr. Pemberton will probably come in with either "Right You Are" or "Henry IV." It is worthy of remark that Pirandello gained Continental recognition thru America. After "Six Characters in Search of an Author" was produced here, Paris condescended to look at it. The play was a sensation and it was followed by "The Pleasure of Being Honest." Preparations were made to show it in London, but censorship supervened. Then a German manager dashed to Paris to buy all the rights in the world to Pirandello's plays. Mr. Pemberton just managed to secure the American rights. * * *

Booth Tarkington, who wrote "Pied Piper Malone" especially for Thomas Meighan, has consented to write another original story for the screen, according to Mr. Meighan. So pleased was Mr. Tarkington with what he saw at the Paramount Long Island studio where Alfred E. Green is producing "Pied Piper Malone" that he immediately agreed to write another story in the near future for Mr. Meighan. This is the first time that the famous Hoosier author has taken an active part in the filming of one of his stories. He is chief supervisor of the present film and has spent several days at the company's studio getting the story into shape. Mr. Meighan's father died unexpectedly last month and altho both Thomas and James Meighan hurried to Pittsburgh, they were too late. We extend our true sympathy to Mr. Meighan. * * *

The memory of Martha Mansfield's tragic death is still with us. Her body was sent to New York for burial and many friends of both stage and screen paid their last respects. We are deeply sorry for the passing of a sweet spirit. * * *

Doris Kenyon just refused a motion-picture offer of $2,500.00 a week, to play the leading rôle in "The Gift," a stage play by Julia Chandler and Anna Lambert Stewart. * * *

Rehearsals are under way by Joseph Schildkraut in Gladys Unger's "The Robber Knight," which Sam H. Harris is producing. Another of Miss Unger's plays is now in the hands of Leo Ditrichstein and Lola Fisher. * * *

Old Fort Schuyler, New York, which has been practically abandoned for a number of years, has been reconstructed to appear like the St. Lazare prison of Paris for scenes in "The Humming Bird." From information received from Paris thru Jules Seville, of the French Bureau of Information in New York, the art department at the Paramount Long Island studio was able to reconstruct the prison, using the old fort as a foundation. * * * No theatrical person has ever taken the town quite so by storm as did Dorothy Stone, oldest daughter of Fred Stone, when she made her debut with her father and mother at the Globe Theater. The many things that have been written about this seventeen-year-old prodigy have not been inspired by mawkish sentimentality, if one takes as evidence the manner in which even the hardest boiled critics have raved about her talents. Much has been said about how she was trained for her part in the mimic world from the time she was seven years old. It was not all training that did it. If ever the theory of heredity was proved, it is, in her case. * * * A whole Warner contingent has arrived from the West Coast studios, headed by Jack L. Warner, Ernest Lubitsch, his wife, and Erie Locke, the latter's manager. Lubitsch's purpose in coming to New York is three-fold. He has completed his new picture, "The Marriage Circle," and needs a rest; his children are en route from Europe and he has come to meet them; and he has to find material for his next picture to be made under the Warner banner. * * * The Cosmopolitan Corporation announces that it has selected "Janice Meredith" to star Marion Davies following her appearance in "Yolanda." "Janice Meredith" has been adapted from the novel of the same name by the late Paul Leicester Ford. It is a romance of the Revolutionary period of American history, and many of its characters are those who were founders of the American Republic, or who were conspicuous in its early development. Those famous in history who will appear in the screen version are: George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Lafayette, Samuel Adams, John Hancock, Rochambeau, General Charles Lee, Paul Revere, General Cornwallis, Lord Howe, Major Pitcairn, King Louis XVI, and Marie Antoinette. The research necessary for the planning of costumes, settings and multitudinous details of the production has consumed nearly a year. It has been found necessary to scour antique shops, museums and Colonial homes in New England and New York for paraphernalia, such as muskets, swords and clothing appropriate to the time, which will give a note of accuracy. * * * Thomas Meighan and his company of fifty-nine players ended their stay in Georgetown, S. C., where they have been filming exterior scenes for "Pied Piper Malone," with a benefit performance for the poor children of the town which netted six hundred dollars. Mr. Meighan contributed one hundred dollars and other members of the company gave two hundred dollars, the balance coming from the townspeople who paid to see the performance. * * * Vitagraph announces that it has purchased world rights to "Borrowed Husbands," by Mildred K. Barbour, for the third J. Stuart Blackton production to be released by this firm. The scenario is now being written by C. Graham Baker, editor-in-chief of Vitagraph. * * * Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, has returned from London where he met Rafael Sabatini, author of "Captain Blood," world picture rights to which Mr. Smith purchased. He had the exceptional experience of spending a day with the author and tramping over the scenes near Bridgewater, where the story is laid. * * * Whitman Bennett announces that his screen production, "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," is almost finished. From what he has already seen of the film edition of Edward Eggleston's story, Mr. Bennett believes that the production adheres faithfully to the original story. It is a portrayal of the early pioneer days of Indiana—the days of '53, when a few hardy advocates of "law and order" coped with night riders who would have made of frontier life an endless horror. It is a story of the period in Indiana history when neighbor distrusted neighbor and only seeds of hate were sown until the Hoosier schoolmaster came to bring order out of chaos. Henry Hull plays the lead. * * * J. Parker Read, Jr., is producing in Europe a film version of Rex Beach's story, "The Recoil," for Goldwyn. Betty Blythe is the star and Mahlon Hamilton will be seen opposite her. The scenes will be laid in London, Paris, Rome and Monte Carlo. * * * Hodkinson announces for January "Grit," a Film Guild production, starring Glenn Hunter. The story is by F. Scott Fitzgerald and in the cast is Clara Bow, who made her film debut in "Down to the Sea in Ships," and Osgood Perkins, who played the Devil in "Puritan Passions." * * *

The Yankee Consul

(Continued from page 100)

"Señor Boos, Don Rafael Deschado is your worship's servant," this resplendent being assured him, "we will drink the health, no? Yes? But first one so-small matter of business. You Yan-kees do not mind the business, yes? No?" he poked a playful finger into Dudley's ribs, "you have in your consulate some property of mine, a chest, no? Yes! Ah, you will deliver it to my servant when you return? Yes? No?" Tho' couched in terms of a question, it sounded more like an order.

"I'll be damned if I will!" Ainsworth returned promptly. What would happen next he did not know and he didn't particularly care. A fellow rigged up like a musical-comedy king giving orders to a citizen of the United States! His muscles tautened for defence, then he uttered a startled exclamation. For an instant the curtains at the end of the room had parted, showing the terrified face of Maria, more beautiful than ever in its distress, then a hand clasped around her throat, drew her back and the curtains closed.

In six strides the Yankee consul had reached them, but the room beyond was empty. Hot rage swept him, he whirled violently upon the two men to demand an explanation, only to find that they too had disappeared!

The next hour was too crammed with action to leave time for sane thought. It did not even surprise him that suits of armor should come to gibbering life as he raced down endless stone corridors and hack at him with battle-axes or that an uppercut upon the point of the vizor should reveal Leopoldo's face within.

And then, from the direction of the sea came the roar of a cannon in salute. The umbrella wavered in Dudley Ainsworth's hand. "Thank God!" he gasped, "the Navy got my wireless for help and has come."

The words had a strange effect upon the two corpses, bringing them to life with a start. Morrell uttered an exclamation of consternation and flung the revolver pettishly into a far corner. "You sent for the United

Another Gripping Instalment of "Thistledown"

By DANA GATLIN

In which Hi Daggett finds considerable opposition on the part of his high and mighty sister to his meetings with Thistledown. He has somewhat of a shock when he discovers what seems to be a rival for the hand of the beautiful waitress— But get the March number of MOTION PICTURE and read it yourself—the farther you get into this gripping romance, the more surprises you will meet. The March MOTION PICTURE will let you know just what Hi Daggett thinks of so-called family pride. There is a lesson for all of us in this.

"Mae Marsh and Early Days"

By Helen Carlisle

Tells about the way Mae won her stardom in the movies and how she threw rocks at the dear, departed Bobby Harron to attract his attention; how she idealized Blanche Sweet; and how she captured Mary Pickford's interest. (Appealing)

The Movie Fan Abroad

By One of Them

How she cut out the regular sight-seeing for the movies and discovered "Charlot" (Charlie Chaplin) and Pearl White in the French houses and Harold Lloyd in England, how she was corrected for saying "Movies" instead of "Cinema" in London, and spurned for passing up Michael Angelo in Rome. (Humorous)

Interviewing Movie Stars

Harry Carr tells different characteristics of the movie stars when being interviewed: Doug interviews himself. Mary is so indiscreet she must be protected against herself. Lillian Gish is the delight of all scared little girl interviewers. Dorothy the same. Pola Negri has inward contempt for interviewers but talks well and thinks what she thinks. Charlie Chaplin is easy—gives striking ideas without coaxing. Mack Sennett has to be led by the nose to the ordeal. Norma Talmadge least impressed by publicity. Constance doesn't think about it one way or the other. Louise Fazenda's interviews a hilarious experience. Mabel Norman—might as well try to interview the March wind.

MARCH

MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE

The Quality Magazine of the Screen

Yearly Subscription Price $2.50

Two Years $4.50

On All News-stands 25c per copy

Wrestling Book FREE

Tells how to be a great athlete and scientific wrestler—how to WIN. Startling secrets taught in wonderful lessons by world's champions Farmer Burns and Frank Gotch. Be strong, healthy, athletic. Handle big men with ease. Learn self defense. Be a leader. Men and boys, write for Free Book today. State your age. Farmer Burns School, 1512 Railway Bldg., Omaha, Neb.

Be sure to read Beauty Magazine

On All News-stands

send birth date

Are You Reaching for the Truth?

I will tell you
FREE

Under which Zodiac Sign were you born? What are your opportunities in life, your future prospects, happiness in marriage, friends, enemies, success in all undertakings and many other vital questions as indicated by ASTROLOGY, the most ancient and interesting science of history?

Were you born under a lucky star? I will tell you, free, the most interesting astrological interpretation of the Zodiac Sign you were born under.

Simply send me the exact date of your birth in your own handwriting. To cover cost of this notice and postage, inclose 12 cents in any form and your exact name and address. Your astrological interpretation will be written in plain language and sent to you securely sealed and post-paid. A great surprise awaits you!

Do not fail to send birth date and to inclose 12 cents. Print name and address to avoid delay in mailing.

Write now—TODAY—to the
ASTA STUDIO, 309 Fifth Ave., Dept. 133, New York

States Navy?" he wailed, "a nice mess you've got us in!"

The faces of Leopoldo and Don Rafael registered ludicrous dismay. Maria helpless with laughter had sunk upon the chest. With growing comprehension Ainsworth's glance traveled from one to the other. Very slowly he clicked his heels together and made them a stiff little bow. "I confess," he said curtly, "that I don't see it all yet, but I take it I have been furnishing you with a good deal of amusement by playing the fool. If you are quite thru, perhaps you will excuse me——"

He was turning away but a small hand touched his arm. The laughter had slipped from Maria's lips: "Oh you mustn't think that! It was all a plot to furnish you with an interest in life. Jack was terribly worried about you when he had dinner with us last week and we decided that you needed something to take your mind off yourself and—and—your collar buttons!"

Morrell gripped his friend's hand. "If it will make you feel any better to kick me downstairs, Dud, old fellow, go ahead and kick. But don't blame the others, they're all good friends of mine and I persuaded them into it. I meant well, but I didn't reckon on your sending for the Navy!"

Ainsworth's set face relaxed. He smiled grudgingly.

Maria turned from the window. "No need to worry about the Admiral!" she exulted. "I can see the flags on the launch—it's the Bellerophon that got your message, and my Uncle Walter is in command! But I am afraid your reign is almost over, Mr. Consul!"

Dudley Ainsworth took a step toward her and there was something in his expression that sent the others hastily tiptoeing out of the room. Morrell, last to leave, turned on the threshold, "Oh, by the way, Dud, let me introduce Miss Mary Rutledge—she's the girl I wanted you to meet in New York. Mary's awfully clever. I bet she even knows how to put collar buttons in shirts——"

In two strides Dudley reached the door, slamming it on his chum's grin, then he turned back into the room. "A joke?" he asked softly, taking the lovely face before him between his big palms, "was it—all a joke, my dear? The things I said to you this afternoon—the things you said to me?"

A lusty knock sounded on the door, "I say, Dud," Morrell called, "how about it? Do I win the ten thousand?"

He rapped again, more loudly, but there was no answer. The two within had not heard. . . .

Beauty Is Its Own Excuse for Being

We do not have to make excuses for the beautiful things of the world—and in this spirit we are presenting the

Big March Number of Beauty which is more brimful than ever of the good things that make for a beautiful woman, from the secret formula of a charming character to the art of wearing clothes.

The Thoughtful + + Follies' Girls + + + + + + Twenties + Reveal Beauty Secrets

A never-to-be-forgotten folio of seven lovely young women who are just over or under twenty. This alone is worth the price of the magazine.

A Quartette of Follies' Girls Reveal Their Beauty Secrets, a two-page spread with exquisite portraits of girls, and their own rules for preserving their beauty of face and figure.

DEPARTMENTS TO BE CONTINUED: Dr. Brewster will discuss the subject of "Nerves" and give advice and a scheme of living to nervous women. Josephine Bessems will talk to the woman who has no "pep" and give her a special diet. Penelope Knapp will discuss relaxation. Frances Harmer in her department, "The Lady Looks About Her," will give the latest news about what women in society, on the stage and in the movies or in public life are wearing, are doing and talking about.

Inspirational, many sided, distinctly individual, this magazine's policy is to arouse woman to seek beauty as her inalienable right, using its radiating influence for good, so that she as well as those about her may be happier. There is no doubt about it, the best effort of this aristocratic magazine is to be found in the

March

On All News-stands
25c Per Copy

Beauty

Yearly Subscriptions, $2.50
Two Years $4.50

By Merit Alone, Chiropractic

has grown from an idea in the mind of one man in 1905, to the second largest health profession in the world.

There are now approximately 25,000 practitioners, more than a hundred schools and about 15,000 students.

Twenty-six state governments have recognized the science as distinct and different from anything else on earth.

In less than nineteen years this growth has been effected by reason of its efficiency as a health method.

Chiropractic has never had a single dollar of endowment from state or national governments. It has overcome the prejudice of the public and adverse laws in every state in the Union by its results upon the sick.

It has recruited its patients from among those upon whom other methods failed, and with these failures of other methods upon which to prove its efficiency, it has made the most phenomenal growth of any health method in the history of the world.

TRY CHIROPRACTIC AND GET WELL

DEFINITION
The practice of Chiropractic consists of the palpation and adjustment, with the hands, of the movable segments of the spinal column to normal position for the purpose of releasing the prisoned impulse.

Write for information regarding Chiropractors or Schools to the Universal Chiropractors' Association, Davenport, Iowa, U. S. A.

All Rights Reserved

MARY PICKFORD
HOLLYWOOD, CAL.

May 10th
1923.

George Borgfeldt & Co.,
111-119 East 16th Street,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

This is the first time I have endorsed any sort of a commercial article, but I recommend with a great deal of pleasure, the Leichner cosmetics.

I have used them for several years now and find that they not alone blend smoothly and look better, but that the make-up lasts all day even under the stress of sun and wind and the terrific glare of the artificial studio lights.

Leichner preparations have reached a stage of perfection and I have found them absolutely supreme in the art of make-up.

Sincerely,
Mary Pickford.

for the first time— the loveliest of screen stars tells a priceless beauty secret

THE charm of Mary Pickford has won such adoration as no queen in the world's history has ever enjoyed. Her vivid personality, her appealing beauty will never be forgotten by any man or woman who has seen one of her screen masterpieces.

Miss Pickford well knows the priceless value of her own loveliness. Under the scorching sun and blustery wind of outdoor "locations" her skin must be protected. In the studio, under the blinding glare of the lights, she must always look her best. Rouge, lip-stick, and especially powder, must be selected with the most scrupulous care, for only those preparations of the most perfect tint and texture can stand the test of the picture-making profession.

the theater, in the ball-room, under sunshine or artificial light, Leichner's powder brings out and preserves the charm and beauty of your face. Soft, fragrant and amazingly lasting, it is a refreshing delight to the most delicate skin.

Leichner's powder is made in every tint and shade to suit the individual requirements of every type and coloring. It is for sale at all first class drug and department stores. If your dealer cannot supply you, clip the coupon below and mail it today with fifty cents for a large size box. Be sure to indicate on coupon the tint desired. Until you have used this wonderful powder you cannot know the luxurious enjoyment of a perfect toilette. With Leichner's powder you always look your best.

L. LEICHNER
Imported
Toilette Preparations

- Face Powder
- Stage Powder
- Grease Paints
- Solid Rouge
- Liquid Rouge
- Liquid Face Powder
- Eyebrow Pencils
- Lip Sticks

STAGE FAVORITES FOR OVER HALF A CENTURY

Under these most trying conditions, indoors or out, Miss Pickford chooses the products of L. Leichner. She finds that for perfect protection, for permanence and for appealing daintiness nothing can equal them.

Here, at last then, is the ideal powder for the modern woman who lives under conditions varying almost as widely as those which obtain in the "movie" world. Out-of-doors, at

L. LEICHNER

Sole Distributors: GEO. BORGFELDT & CO.
111 East 16th Street New York

GEO. BORGFELDT & Co.
111 EAST 16TH STREET, NEW YORK

Gentlemen: I enclose 50c. Please send me prepaid one box of Leichner's Face Powder. I have checked shade desired.

White Flesh Rachel Flesh Brunette
 Deep Brunette Light Brown

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____

A New Liquid Polish with all the features women want

THE COMPLETE MANICURE

Send 12c for
Special Introductory Set

The polish is the last step of the famous Cutex manicure. First shape the nails with the Cutex emery board. Then soften the cuticle and remove all the dead skin with Cutex Cuticle Remover and a Cutex orange stick. Then comes Cutex Liquid Polish or the new Powder Polish. Between manicures, keep the nails smooth and healthy with a little Cuticle Cream (Comfort).

Send the coupon below with 12c today for the special Introductory Set containing trial sizes of all these things. If you live in Canada address Dept. N2, 200 Mountain St., Montreal, Canada.

Now another convenience for the smart woman's manicure has been perfected by the makers of Cutex. A liquid polish with all the features the fastidious woman has wished for.

Won't dry in ridges	Lasts a whole week
Won't peel off	Gives a brilliance water won't hurt
Dries almost instantly	Needs no separate polish remover

Cutex Liquid Polish is just thin enough to spread evenly so the nails never look thickened or varnished. The brush holds just enough polish for one nail. When it is time for a fresh manicure the nails are still rosy, smooth and bright. You can get it at any drug or department store for 35c, or in the $1.00 and $3.00 sets. Sets with other polishes are 60c and $1.50.

MAIL THIS COUPON WITH 12c TODAY

CUTEX Liquid Polish

NORTHAM WARREN, Dept. N 2,
114 West 17th Street, New York

I enclose 12c in stamps or coin for new Introductory Set including a trial size of the new Cutex Liquid Polish.

Name _____

Street _____
(or P. O. box)

City _____ State _____

MOTION PICTURE
CLASSIC

OCTOBER

25¢

Bebe Daniels

*A new face poudre of just the weight
Madame has long sought—*

AS MADAME well knows, finding poudre of a weight neither too heavy nor too light has been much like pursuing the rainbow's end.

For that reason, changing from one poudre to another—ever seeking, never finding—has become perforce almost a habit to most women.

Now Lournay offers poudre of a new weight and extraordinary adhesiveness, achieved under new principles of the laboratory. To you, Madame, Mademoiselle, it will prove a revelation.

Correct!—the weight. Exquisite the texture—indescribable the fineness that blends so perfectly with one's skin! And scented with that languorous fragrance of living flowers which has swept over the world like a happy bon mot. To try it is to adore it—to seek no longer! At your favorite shop—POUDRE VIVANTE!

VIVANTE

PARIS
4, Rue de la Paix

Lournay

NEW YORK
509, Fifth Avenue

C'est très important

So as to avoid the faux pas of discord in one's scheme of fragrance—a crème of one scent, poudre of another, rouge of yet another!—L'odeur Vivante wafts its personality throughout all articles de toilette by Lournay.

- Vivante Extract* . . $1, $3, $6
- Toilet Water* . . $1.25, $3, $6
- Face Powder* $1.00
- Crème de Beauté* 50c
(Vanishing Cream)
- Crème de Toilette* . . 50c, $1.00
(Cold Cream)
- Skin Food* $1.50
- Powder Compact* $1.00
- Rouge Compact* . . . 50c, $1.00
- Vivante Talc* 25c, $1.00

- 5 tints:
- Bianche
 - Naturelle
 - Rachel
 - Rosée
 - Monte Carlo

Watch 3 to 10 Inches Vanish From Hips and Waist

Safest, healthiest way to reduce! The amazing Madame X Girdle massages away excess fat almost before you know it. Worn as a corset. The instant you put it on, you look inches thinner and years younger. Gives you at once Fashion's trim, straight, boyish lines.

THE marvelous scientific Madame X Reducing Girdle improves your appearance immediately and reduces your waist, hips, thighs and abdomen "almost while you wait." The instant you put it on, the bulky fat on waist and hips seems to vanish, the waistline lengthens and your figure becomes erect, graceful, youthfully slender! And then, with every step you take, with every breath, the fat is met by new live rubber which gently massages it away—though you hardly know you have the girdle on. Most women lose one to three inches the very first week and thousands have lost from seven to ten inches in a remarkably short time!

Physicians Endorse It

The Madame X is the safest, surest, healthiest way to reduce. Its principles are endorsed by reputable physicians everywhere not only for its reducing action but because of the support it gives the figure. It is made of the highest grade, dry heat-cured, live rubber (the same kind used by famous athletes for healthful reducing purposes) and is based on scientific massage principles that have caused reductions of 5, 10, 20 pounds and more. The rubber is live and therefore gives you a real massage effect. Only live uncovered rubber can hold and knead the fat, so that it is gently eased away. Strong enough to really hold you in and give you the necessary support and a new way of reinforcing eliminates all danger of splitting or tearing. No more protruding abdomen—no more fat, bulgy hips! The Madame X Reducing Girdle does away with them forever!

New Hand Turned Hem Prevents Splitting or Tearing

Pat. No. 13, 1924

tinually. It is always worn over the undergarment.

Worn Over the Vest

It encircles the hips and thighs as well as the abdomen and holds them in. It comes well up over the diaphragm and supports the muscles of back and sides, helping prevent fatigue. Observe the front cut-out which insures perfect comfort while you sit, work or play. And the special lacing in the back which makes it easy to adjust as you become more slender. The garters hold the Madame X firmly in place, so that while you enjoy maximum freedom of motion, your entire figure is held in firmly and the body is kept erect and well-poised.

Leading Actresses Wear It

Step into the Madame X Girdle and you will readily see why so many prominent actresses are so enthusiastic about it. You can wear stylish, becoming clothes at once! It gives you immediately the smooth, straight, unbroken lines that add so much to the appearance—and absolutely insures your remaining slender. Thousands of slender women wear the Madame X solely for its wonderful comfort.

So great is the popularity of the Madame X that one of New York's largest stores was recently forced to throw open a whole new department to handle the crowds.

See the Madame X Reducing Girdle for yourself. Also be sure and ask to see the new Madame X Brassiere which does for the upper figure just what the girdle does for the waist, hips and thighs.

Miss Gilda Gray

the famous dancer and Ziegfeld Follies star, says:

"The Madame X corset does all that is claimed for it and more. It is really a reducing corset that reduces, and so easily and comfortably worn, it is a joy as well as a benefaction."

(signed)
GILDA GRAY

Photo by Edward Thayer Monroe

Note: To avoid disappointment always insist on the Madame X, the original reducing girdle, which is made of pure, live, dry heat-cured rubber, the strongest and most durable rubber known, with special hand turned hem which prevents splitting or tearing.

Write for new 24 page booklet "The New Healthful Way to Reduce" which explains in detail how the Madame X makes you look thin while getting thin. Address

THE MADAME X COMPANY, INC.

Dept. G-2010, 410 Fourth Avenue, New York City

On Sale at All Leading Stores Where Corsets Are Sold

Madame X Reducing Girdle
Makes You Look Thin X While Getting Thin

The Madame X Brassiere

WESTERN DISTRIBUTORS: I-NEWMAN & SONS INC. CHICAGO •••• CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS: DOMINION CORSET COMPANY LTD. QUEBEC

(Three)

P

ARAMOUNT'S unique facilities enable any star or any director to create greater pictures and greater success. The consciousness of no limits on necessary time, money or equipment, together with the sense of thousands of waiting Paramount audiences, is the ideal tonic for the creative temperament.

This is another reason why if it's a Paramount Picture it's the best show in town!

NEW PARAMOUNT PICTURES

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present
"CODE OF THE SEA"

A VICTOR FLEMING Production with Rod La Rocque and Jacqueline Logan. Story by Byron Morgan. Screen play by Bertram Millhauser.

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present
"BLUFF"

A SAM WOOD Production with Agnes Ayres and Antonio Moreno. From the story by Rita Weiman and Josephine L. Quirk. Screen play by Willis Goldbeck.

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present
WILLIAM de MILLE'S Production
"THE BEDROOM WINDOW"

With May McAvoy, George Fawcett, Ricardo Cortez, Ethel Wales and Malcolm McGregor. Story and adaptation by Clara Beranger.

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present
CECIL B. DeMILLE'S Production "TRIUMPH"
With Leatrice Joy, Rod La Rocque, Victor Varconi, Charles Ogle, Julia Faye, George Fawcett, Theodore Kosloff, Robert Edson and Raymond Hatton. Screen play by Jeanie Macpherson. From the story by May Edginton.

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present
POLA NEGRI in "MEN"

A DIMITRI BUCHOWETSKI Production. From the story by Dimitri Buchowetski. Screen play by Paul Bern.

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present
RUDOLPH VALENTINO in
"MONSIEUR BEUCAIRE"

A SIDNEY OLCOTT Production
With Bebe Daniels, Lois Wilson, Doris Kenyon, Lowell Sherman. From the novel by Booth Tarkington and the play by Booth Tarkington and Evelyn Greenleaf Suiberland. Screen play by Forrest Halsey.

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present
Zane Grey's
"WANDERER OF THE WASTELAND"

An IRVIN WILLAT production with Jack Holt, Kathlyn Williams, Noah Beery and Billie Dove. Screen play by George C. Hull and Victor Irvin.

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present
GLORIA SWANSON in "MANHANDLED"
An ALLAN DWAN Production. From the Saturday Evening Post story of the same name by Arthur Stringer. Adapted by Frank Tuttle.

PRODUCED BY FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION

Paramount Pictures

MOTION PICTURE
CLASSIC

Vol. XX

OCTOBER, 1924

No. 2

COVER PORTRAIT—BEBE DANIELS

Painted by E. Dahl from a photograph by Russell Ball

	PAGE
Classic's Gallery Of Players, Stage and screen.....	11
Where Was the Camera?..... Dorothy Donnell	16
Jetta and Her Temperament..... Harry Carr	20
Some Costume Caricatures..... De Panne	22
Cleopatra, Famous Heroines No. XIII. Posed by Jane Cowl.....	23
The Drama's Pousse Café, Classic's department of vaudeville.....	24
K—The Unknown, A short story..... Patricia Cork Dugan	27
"Great Britain's Queen of Happiness".....	31
Hollywood Homes No. XXIV. Marshall Neilan and Blanche Sweet's.....	32
"Elsie Janis At Home," A picture page.....	34
The Romance of the Extra..... Orville Caldwell	35
On the Wings of Song, Two sonnets..... Doris Kenyon	36
Doug and Mary Vacationing at Aix-les-Bains.....	38
A Thousand Dollars a Day!..... Jim Tully	40
Classic's Gallery Of Handsome Men No. V. Courad Nagel.....	42
Who's Who? On stage and screen.....	43
The Photographer Takes the Stage.....	44
The Play of the Month, Is "Abie's Irish Rose"..... Kenneth Macgowan	46
The Picture of the Month, Is "Manhandled"..... Lawrence Reid	47
The Celluloid Critic, Mr. Reid goes to the movies.....	48
Iris In, Pertinent and impertinent screen chatter..... H. W. Hanemann	50
Flashes From the Eastern Stars, Of the stage, on the screen..... Caught by the Editor	51
The New Contest, Dont miss this page.....	52
In A California Garden, "Fine Arts" series No. IV.....	55
Tess of the D'Urbervilles, Written in short-story form..... Dorothy Donnell	56
Rex, King of Wild Horses, His story..... Tom Reeves	62
The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats..... Harry Carr	64
Dick At West Point, A picture page.....	68
The Movie Encyclopædia..... By the Answer Man	72

Subscription $2.50 per year, in advance, including postage, in the United States, Cuba, Mexico and Philippine Islands. In Canada $3.00; Foreign Countries $3.50 per year. Single copies 25 cents postage prepaid. United States Government stamps accepted. Subscribers must notify us at once of any change in address, giving both old and new address.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY BREWSTER PUBLICATIONS, INC., AT 18410 JAMAICA AVE., JAMAICA, N. Y.

Entered at the Post Office at Jamaica, N. Y., as second-class matter, under the act of March 3rd, 1879. Printed in U. S. A.

Eugene V. Brewster, President and Editor-in-Chief; Duncan A. Dobie, Jr., Vice-President and Business Manager; George J. Tresham, Circulation Director; L. G. Conlon, Treasurer; E. M. Heinemann, Secretary.

EXECUTIVE and EDITORIAL OFFICES, 175 DUFFIELD ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Copyright, 1924, by Brewster Publications, Inc., in the United States and Great Britain.

Susan Elizabeth Brady.....Editor
 F. M. Osborne.....Managing Editor
 Harry Carr.....Western Representative
 A. M. Hopfmuller.....Art Director

CLASSIC comes out on the 12th of every month, MOTION PICTURE MAGAZINE on the 1st, BEAUTY on the 15th

Announcement for November

MARION DAVIES and her "Janice Meredith" curl on a lovely lavender cover

"WHO'S ZOO AT THE STUDIOS?"

Is the title of one of those clever and informative articles by Dorothy Donnell about the animals, wild and tame, in the movies: How they are trained; where they are kept; their habits, family life, working hours and so forth.

"Almost the only animal that cannot be found in Hollywood is the well-known wolf at the door."

Says the writer of this original and witty story. There's another Jim Tully story too, and Harry Carr interviews the firm's first villain, Wallace Beery. You can't possibly overlook the November number of "That Different Screen Magazine."

Current Stage Plays

Tabloid Reviews by Marion Martone

(Readers in distant towns will do well to preserve this list for reference when these spoken plays appear in their vicinity.)

Ambassador.—"The Dream Girl." A musical version of "The Road to Yesterday." Music by Victor Herbert. With Fay Bainter, Walter Wolf, Edna May Oliver, George LeMaire, Billy B. Van, Harry Delf and Wyn Richmond.

Apollo.—"Scandals." George White's new revue; an elaborate and lively show. Among the principals in the cast are: Winnie Lightner, Lester Allen, Tom Patricola, Will Mahoney, Richard Bold, Helen Hudson, Newtown Alexander, Thea Lightner, Olive Vaughn, The Williams Sisters, Elm City Four, Alice Weaver, Sally Starr, James Miller, and the De Marcos and their seven sheiks.

Booth.—"Dancing Mothers." A play by Edgar Selwyn and Edmund Goulding, with Helen Hayes, Mary Young, Henry Stephenson, John Halliday and others.

Broadhurst.—"Beggars on Horseback." An odd and interesting dream play, in which a poor struggling composer, under the influence of an opiate, goes off into a troubled sleep and has a nightmare. Roland Young gives a fine performance as the composer who moves through the nightmare. A fantastic pantomime with charming music is introduced in the second act.

Carroll.—"Kid Boots." A gay musical comedy with gorgeous settings and costumes. Eddie Cantor furnishes some excellent comedy as caddie master and private bootlegger, while Mary Eaton supplies some exceptionally good dancing and singing.

Casino.—"I'll Say She Is." The clever Marx Brothers' quartet in a delightful musical comedy revue. It has a splendid cast which includes Cecile d'Andres, who performs some sensational and daring dances, and the three De Villon sisters of the Folies Bergère, Paris.

Century.—"The Miracle." A gorgeous spectacle which no one should miss; magnificently staged and acted.

Cherry Lane.—"The Way of the World." Congreve's comedy. Review later.

George M. Cohan.—"The Haunted House." A play by Owen Davis. Review later.

Colonial.—"The Chocolate Dandies." A Negro revue. Review later.

Cort.—"Fashion." A revival of a comedy of manners; the sensational success of 1845.

Daly's.—"White Cargo." Leon Gordon's vivid play about a young Englishman who succumbs to the wiles of a half-breed in the absence of white women on the west coast of Africa. The cast includes Conway Wingfield, Richard Stevenson and A. E. Anson.

Empire.—"Grounds for Divorce." A comedy from the Hungarian. Review later.

Fifty-second Street Theater.—"The Crazy Quilt." A revue something like "Charlot's Revue."

Forty-eighth Street.—"Expressing Willie." A delightful comedy by Rachel Crothers in which a simple girl from the Middle West happens among a week-end party in a country house on Long Island, and, by her goodness, exposes and humbles the demi-fashionable and demi-fakes.

Forty-ninth Street.—"The Werwolf." A play from the German of Rudolph Lothar, adapted by Gladys Unger, with Laura Hope Crews, Lennox Pawle, Warburton Gamble, Leslie Howard, Bela Lugosi, Marion Coakley, and others.

Frazee.—"Sweeney Todd." An excellent and well-acted revival of the old English melodrama about a murderous barber. The program also includes "Bombastes Furioso"—a sensational burlesque operetta.

Fulton.—"Top Hole." Musical comedy. Review later.

Garrick.—"Fata Morgana." An ironic comedy of Hungarian country manners and Budapest morals. The cast includes Morgan Farley, Emily Stevens and Helen Westley.

Gaiety.—"Silence." A play by Max Marcin. Review later.

Globe.—"Keep Kool." A clever and comic revue with Hazel Dawn, Johnny Dooley, Charles King, Ina Williams, and others.

Greenwich Village.—"All God's Chillun Got Wings." A tragic story of a stumbling, groping Negro law student who tries to break down the barriers separating the white and the black races.

Harris.—"Plain Jane." A lavishly produced musical comedy in which the heroine, Lorraine Manville, invents something new in rag dolls. This comedy is made popular by its slick, smart, exciting dancing and extremely beautiful tunes. The cast includes Joe Laurie, Jr., Marion Saki, and May Cory Kitchen.

Hippodrome.—Keith vaudeville. The greatest entertainment in the world's largest theater.

Hudson.—"Cobra." A well-acted play of sex reactions. Judith Anderson plays the rôle of a snakish charmer who lures a rich youth into marriage.

Imperial.—"Rose-Marie." A musical comedy. Review later.

Klaw.—"The Green Beetle." A play by John Willard. Review later.

Liberty.—"Vanities." Earl Carroll's annual revue. Review later.

Little.—"Pigs." A comedy. Review later.

Lyceum.—"The Best People." A comedy by David Gray and Avery Hopwood, adapted from David Gray's story, "The Self-Determination of the Lennoxes," with James Rennie, Florence Johns, Frances Howard, Hope Brown and Charles Richman.

Miller's.—"Strange Bedfellows." A pleasantly foolish comedy in which William Courtleigh plays the rôle of a Tammany type political boss who proves he is honest when he tries to beat big business and high society grafters by directing the campaign of a woman's party. Majorie Gateson, Glenn Anders, Alice Fleming and others make up the cast.

Morosco.—"No Other Girl." Musical comedy, with Helen Ford, Eddie Buzzell, Francis X. Donegan, Henry Mortimer, John Sheehan, Ruth Conley, Doris Eaton, and Helen Carrington.

Music Box.—"No, No, Nanette." Musical version of "My Lady Friends." Review later.

Neighborhood.—"Grand Street Follies." Is somewhat of an American "Charlot's Revue." Exceedingly smart and "peppy." Pokes fun at everything and everybody. "Little Theater" groups should see this perfectly splendid "spoofing."

New Amsterdam.—"Follies." A new "Follies" in which the American girl is again glorified in the characteristic Ziegfeld way. A lavish production. Will Rogers, Ann Pennington, Lupino Lane, Vivienne Segal, Irving Fisher, Evelyn Shaw, Martha Lorber, and George Olsen and his orchestra are members of the cast.

Palace.—Keith vaudeville. Always a good bill, and drawing more and more talent from the headliners of the regulars.

Playhouse.—"The Show-Off." A highly entertaining comedy of an American family, the daughter of which is in love with a vain and untrustworthy braggart who is forever getting himself and those about him into some kind of mess.

Princess.—"The Wonderful Visit," by H. G. Wells and St. John Ervine, in which Catherine Murphy plays the rôle of an angel who falls to earth and exposes the evil doings of the earth dwellers.

Republic.—"Abie's Irish Rose." An amusing study in temperaments of the Irish and the Jew, in which the irreconcilable is reconciled thru emotion.

Ritz.—"Hassard Short's Ritz Revue."

(Continued on page 8)

Classic Lists the Plays in New York That You Should See

- The Miracle
- Charlot's Revue
- The Show-Off
- White Cargo
- Expressing Willie

IT'S HERE AT LAST!

The Great American Picture

AND what more natural than that it should tell the engrossing story of a great American—in many ways the greatest of all Americans.

"Here is a screen epic if ever there was one—something to be mentioned in the same breath as 'The Birth of a Nation,' which it even surpasses."

—BOSTON ADVERTISER.

AL and RAY ROCKETT'S
"ABRAHAM LINCOLN"

Scenario by FRANCES MARION Directed by PHILIP ROSEN

THE best proof in the world that fact can be every bit as thrilling as fiction is to be found in this remarkable photoplay. It is film entertainment of the finest sort. Happily it was realized that the life of the great emancipator, unvarnished and unaltered, contained all the elements that make for genuine drama of the kind that holds an audience spellbound.

During its tense moments you scarcely dare breathe lest you dispel the charm which has been woven around you

Your local theatre will show "Abraham Lincoln." Learn when by inquiring at the box office.

A First National Picture

Miss Charlotte Stevens, Christie Film Company.

"I Can Teach You to Dance Like This"

—Sergei Marinoff

"And you can study under my personal direction right in your own home"

FEW people living outside of New York, Chicago or the great European capitals have the opportunity to study dancing with any of the really great masters. And the private, personal instructions of even average teachers range upward from ten dollars an hour.

But now, the famous Sergei Marinoff has worked out a system of home instruction. You can learn classic dancing in all its forms — interpretive, Russian, ballet, aesthetic, Greek — at a mere fraction of the cost of lessons in the studio.

A Fascinating Way to Learn

It is so easy and so delightful. Just put the record on the phonograph, slip into the dainty little dancing costume (furnished free with the Course) and you are ready to start.

And guided by the charts, the photographs of Marinoff students and the easy text, you master the technique of the dance.

Charm and Grace

The natural beauty of the body is developed, an exquisite grace and flexibility cultivated by correct training in classic dancing. For better health

—FREE—
Dancing Costume, Phonograph Records, Complete Studio Outfit
 A dainty costume, designed so as to permit free use of the limbs, ballet slippers, everything you need to help you with your lessons, comes FREE with the course. Simple charts and beautiful photographs illustrate every lesson while phonograph records and the simply worded text teach the essential points of technique.

—for greater beauty—for poise
 —for slenderness—dance!

As a means of developing grace in children, dancing is unsurpassed. And with my method, mother and daughter can grow graceful together.

For the theatre—vaudeville—the movies—civic and college pageants—for private and social affairs—everywhere the dancer is in demand. Startling salaries are paid. And those who can dance for charitable entertainments or for the pleasure of their friends quickly become social favorites.

Write to Sergei Marinoff

Everyone interested in dancing should write to Sergei Marinoff at once and get complete information concerning his splendid system of home instruction in Classic Dancing. This information is FREE. Send the coupon today.

M. Sergei Marinoff

School of Classic Dancing

1924 Sunnyside Avenue Studio 12-77, Chicago

M. Sergei Marinoff,
 School of Classic Dancing,
 1924 Sunnyside Ave., Studio 12-77 Chicago
 Please send me full information about your home study course in Classic Dancing. I understand that this is absolutely FREE.

Name

Address

Age

Current Stage Plays

(Continued from page 6)

Revue by Anne Caldwell, and Roy and Kenneth Webb; music by Jerome Kern and others. With Charlotte Greenwood, Tom Burke, Myrtle Schaaf, Hal Forde, and Brennan and Rogers.

Selwyn.—"Charlot's Revue of 1924." A London revue produced by André Charlot, and imported by the Selwyns, with Beatrice Lillie, Gertrude Laurence, Hobert Munden, Nelson Keys, Jack Buchanan, and others.

Shubert.—"Marjorie." Musical comedy. With Elizabeth Hines, Richard Gallagher, Andrew Tombes, Roy Royston, Ethel Shutta. Review later.

Vanderbilt.—"The Exiles." A play by Arthur Richman. Review later.

Winter Garden.—"Innocent Eyes." A musical comedy-revue of extreme sophistication. Lively and swiftly-moving.

ON TOUR

"Abie's Irish Rose." An amusing study in temperaments. Second company.

"Artists and Models." Second company.

"Blossom Time." A musical comedy based on the life of Franz Schubert.

"Dew Drop Inn." Wherein a black-faced comedian leads the musical show.

"George White's Scandals." A de luxe edition.

"Good Morning, Dearie." Entertaining musical comedy.

"Greenwich Village Follies." Musical revue.

"Helen of Troy, New York." A good musical comedy.

"Icebound." A dramatic study of New England life.

"Lady in Ermine." A musical comedy concerning a romantic legend.

"A Lesson in Love." An emotional comedy-drama.

"Lightnin'." The comedy that Frank Bacon made famous.

"Little Jessie James." A lively and entertaining musical comedy.

"Loyalties," a Galsworthy play with an English cast—the story of Semitic conflict.

"Magnolia," a Booth Tarkington comedy.

"Merton of the Movies." About a self-visualized movie hero.

"Shuffle Along." A Negro revue.

"The Bat." The Hopwood - Rinehart mystery play of record run.

"The Business Widow." A comedy from the German.

"The Changelings." A comedy.

"The Dancers." An old-time British melodrama.

"The Dancing Girl." Song and dance.

"The Fool," a drama about a minister who tries to follow the life of Christ in modern locale.

"The Gingham Girl." Good comedy and better music.

"The Good Old Days," a prohibition divertissement.

"The Nervous Wreck," an Owen Davis farce. Second company.

"The Perfect Fool." Edwin Wynn making it perfect.

"Thumbs Down." A somewhat wild but amusing mystery play.

"Topics of 1923." A spectacular revue with the French comédienne, Alice Delysia.

"Up the Ladder," a drama concerning the newly married and their extravagance.

"Two Fellows and a Girl," typical Cohan comedy-drama.

"Wildflower," which has a delightful musical score. Second company.

WILLIAM FOX
UNEXCELLED ENTERTAINMENTS

for 1924-1925

AND ABOVE ALL
DON'T MISS THESE

5 SUPER
PHOTOPLAYS

THE MAN WHO CAME BACK

Jules Eckert Goodman's play from novel by John
Fleming Wilson
An Emmett Flynn
production

THE FOOL

From Channing Pollock's stage triumph of the same
name
A Harry Millarde
production

DANTE'S INFERNO

A modern version of the
classic
A Henry Otto production

THE DANCERS

From stage play by Gerald du Maurier and
Viola Tree
An Emmett Flynn
production

HUNTING WILD ANIMALS IN HOLLYWOOD

A thrilling Comedy
Melodrama
A Thomas Buckingham
production

Watch For Your Theatre's Announcement of These 26 Special Screen Plays

THE PAINTED LADY

From the story by Larry Evans
A Chester Bennett production

GERALD CRANSTON'S LADY

From the novel by Gilbert Frankau
An Emmett Flynn production

TOM MIX in OH, YOU TONY!

A sizzling Comedy Melodrama
A J. G. Blystone production

DAUGHTERS OF THE NIGHT

Secrets and perils of the telephone girl
An Elmer Clifton production

TOM MIX in TEETH

A red-blooded Drama with
Duke, the dog, and Tony, the horse
A J. G. Blystone production

THE CYCLONE RIDER

Lincoln J. Carter's latest thriller
A Thomas Buckingham production

TOM MIX in DICK TURPIN

A thrilling adventure romance
A John Conway production

THE WARRENS OF VIRGINIA

David Belasco's stage triumph
An Elmer Clifton production

TOM MIX in RIDERS OF THE PURPLE SAGE

With Tony, the Wonder Horse
Zane Grey's best seller
A Lynn Reynolds production

THORNS OF PASSION

Adapted from "The Roughneck"
by Robert W. Service
A John Conway production

TOM MIX and TONY in
THE RAINBOW TRAIL

Zane Grey's Western Drama
A Lynn Reynolds production

TOM MIX in THE
DEADWOOD COACH

With Tony, the Wonder Horse
From Clarence E. Mulford's novel
"The Orphan"
A John Conway production

EVERYMAN'S WIFE

Intrigue, mystery and happiness
An Emmett Flynn production

TOM MIX in THE
LAST OF THE DUANES

Zane Grey's virile Drama, with Tony, the wonder horse
A Lynn Reynolds production

IT IS THE LAW

A mystery Drama that swept America
A J. Gordon Edwards production

FLAMES OF DESIRE

Adapted from Ouida's "Strathmore"
A Denison Clift production

HEARTS OF OAK

James A. Herne's celebrated Melodrama
A John Ford production

THE LAST MAN ON EARTH

A fantastic novelty
with 1,000 beautiful girls
A J. G. Blystone production

GOLD HEELS

Based on "Checkers," by Henry
M. Blossom, Jr.
A Lambert Hilmyer production

IN LOVE WITH LOVE

From Comedy Drama by Vincent Lawrence
A J. G. Blystone production

DARWIN WAS RIGHT

The Human Monkeys in a screen novelty
A Lewis Seiler production

TROUBLES OF A BRIDE

At what age should a girl marry?
A Thomas Buckingham production

NEPTUNE'S ROMANCE

A fantasy of love, beauty and romance
A Henry Otto production

DAMAGED SOULS

A chapter from life today
A John Ford production

THE HUNTED WOMAN

James Oliver Curwood's novel of the great outdoors
A John Ford production

SHE WOLVES

A story of Paris
A Maurice Elvey production

FOX FILM CORPORATION

WEST 55TH STREET

NEW YORK

2 The hair is held in "waves" by the cross pieces and allowed to dry in this position. Meanwhile you can read or finish dressing.

1 After moistening hair with Spanish Curling Liquid, furnished free with every Curling Cap, place cap over the head and pull the hair forward through the rubberized cross pieces with the fingers.

Patents Pending

Marvelous New Curling Cap Marcelle Waves any Hair

Startling new invention makes marcelling quick and easy

HERE'S the greatest beauty news you've had in many a day! It makes no difference whether you wear your hair bobbed or long—whether it's thick and fluffy or thin and scraggly—for this great beauty invention insures a mass of lovely ringlets, waves and curls all the time at practically no expense to you and with only a few minutes' time every few days.

Like all great inventions, McGowan's Curling Cap is very simple. There is no complicated apparatus. Nothing to catch in your hair or get out of order. It is a simple device that applies the principles of the curling iron, using a specially prepared, safe and harmless curling fluid—Spanish Curling Liquid—in the place of water and heat.

You can see at a glance how the Curling Cap works. Elastic head bands hold the six rubberized cross pieces in place. The hair is held in "waves" by the cross pieces until it dries, when the Curling Cap is removed, and you have a beautiful Marcelle that would cost a dollar or more at a Beauty Shop and take about an hour's time.

A timely aid to beauty

There never was a more timely invention than this, when nearly all girls and young women are wearing bobbed hair—and wondering how they will keep it curled through the summer. Tennis, golf, boating, swimming and other summer sports always have played havoc with Marcelles and make it nearly impossible for the average outdoor girl to keep her bob looking as smart as it should. But now she can laugh at her former worries, for with McGowan's Curling Cap and a bottle of Spanish Curling Liquid she can have a fresh Marcelle every day in less time than it took to comb her hair when it was long.

Curly hair's the thing now

No matter what style of bob you favor, or even if you wear your hair long, you've got to keep it curly and wavy if you want to be in style. There never was a style more universally becoming and there never was one more rigidly demanded by the arbiters of fashion.

It makes no difference, either, whether you prefer the waves running across your hair or from front to back. The Curling Cap is adjustable either way. When not in use the Cap may be folded and carried in your handbag.

Read this amazing offer

If you are familiar with the price of other curling devices—none of which is to be compared with the Curling Cap—you would expect this one to cost at least $10 or $15. In fact, when Mr. McGowan first showed his invention to his friends many of them advised him to sell it for that price because it is easily worth it. But Mr. McGowan wants every girl and woman to get the benefit of his great invention,

3 After 15 minutes the hair is dry, the cap is removed and your mirror reflects as beautiful a Marcelle as you ever had in your life.

so he decided to put the price within reach of all. By selling in tremendous quantities it will be possible for him to make a price of $2.87 for the entire outfit, which includes a large sized bottle of Spanish Curling Liquid as well as the newly invented Curling Cap. This delightful hair balsam is not only a marvelous curling fluid, but a splendid tonic as well. It makes the hair soft and glossy, and promotes luxurious growth. There is no heat to sear the tender strands of hair and dry out the scalp.

Send no money—just mail the coupon

You don't even have to pay for this wonderful curling outfit in advance. Just sign the coupon and in a few days the postman will deliver the Curling Cap and Spanish Curling Liquid to you. Simply pay him $2.87, plus postage—and then your Marcelle worries will be at an end. If you don't find it the greatest beauty aid you ever used—if it doesn't bring you the most beautiful of Marcelles just as we promised—if you are not satisfied with McGowan's Curling Cap and Spanish Curling Liquid in every way, just return the outfit and your money will be refunded.

COUPON

THE MCGOWAN LABORATORIES
710 W. Jackson Blvd., Dept. 613, Chicago

Dear Mr. McGowan: Please send me your hair curling outfit, which includes your newly invented Curling Cap and a bottle of Spanish Curling Liquid. I agree to deposit $2.87 (plus postage) with the postman upon its delivery. If I am not satisfied with results in every way I will return the outfit to you and you are to refund my money.

Name.....

Address.....

Note: If you expect to be out when the postman calls, enclose $3 with your order and the McGowan Curling Outfit will be sent postpaid.

MOTION PICTURE

CLASSIC

VOL. XX

No. 2

W. F. Seely

BETTY AND EVELYN FRANCISCO

Here is another pretty pair of sisters who ornament the screen. Betty has already "arrived," and Evelyn is a Mack Sennett beauty, which will eventually mean the same thing

Miss Faire is an American girl with an odd Oriental charm. She is one of the several Brewster Fame and Fortune Contest girls who have made good in pictures. Her current film is the wonderful Conan Doyle story, "The Lost World," which First National, Inc., is screening

Ball

VIRGINIA BROWN FAIRE

Waxman

CARMEL MYERS

The lovely Carmel is commuting these days between Germany and Italy miraculously, managing to make a picture in either country; "Garragan" for Germany, and "Ben Hur" in Italy. At least, as we go to press, she was still in the "Ben Hur" cast

Waxman

Fox's pretty popular starlet has just finished making "The Great Diamond Mystery," and is plunging gaily into the scramble to be called "Her Husband's Wives." Bet he wishes they were all Shirley! Any husband would, for one cant have too much of a good thing

SHIRLEY MASON

Waxman

JACK PICKFORD

Who represents the sartorial perfection of Hollywood and New York. His next film will be "Her Son." We cant help wondering why his wife, Marilyn Miller, doesn't star with him

Where Was

By DOROTHY

Above: Getting a closeup in motion. Jacqueline Logan and Malcolm McGregor

Above: Altho it looks dangerous, it isn't. The scene was shot down a hill

Above: Leatrice Joy was followed to the top of this structure by the Ackley camera

Above: By the clever angle at which this was shot, the on-looker is made to feel he is listening, too. Right: King Vidor and his camera man, Charles von Enger, getting the wheels of a speeding car

AN English actress who has played a lifetime of successful rôles on the speaking stage was persuaded to take a part in a motion picture. Her contempt for the proceedings grew during her first morning's work at the studio and when the director shouted to her not to look at the camera it found most forceful vent.

"Look at the camera!" shrieked the outraged actress, "why, my good man, I don't even know where the thing is!"

Something of the poor woman's bewilderment fills the mind of the picture fan who watches a troop of horsemen gallop straight out of the screen toward him, or finds himself peering into an eagle's nest perched on a dizzy crag. Where, oh, where is the camera? It seems to be able to go everywhere, and see everything—sometimes, indeed, it reveals to us intimate scenes which convict it of peering thru keyholes!

When Rod La Rocque was whirled on a seething rip tide toward the rocks in the "Ten Commandments," where was the camera? When Dorothy Devore, the feminine gender of Harold Lloyd, hangs by one hand from the tenth story of an office building, what is the cameraman who catches her plight doing? And when Douglas McLean in "The Yankee Consul" gazes at us over the railing of the top deck of an ocean steamship, is our mental picture of a photographer suspended by one hand from an aeroplane while he cranks his machine with the other the correct explanation?

The eye of the camera is only one-eighth of an inch in diameter. Yet into this tiny opening millions of dollars are poured every year, thru this Cyclops eye pass French Revolutionary mobs with thousands of extras, and closeups of a single face, exteriors showing the restless horizons of the sea or the skyline of a city, and interiors of a de Millionaire bathroom, speeding automobiles and peregrinating snails. The exodus of a race, and the passage of the Red Sea in "The Ten Commandments," came to us thru the same camera-eye that recorded the humble supper-table in the second half of the picture.

The secret of these widely different shots lies in the camera angle, the position from which they were taken. There used to be a saying to the effect that a camera doesn't lie. Don't you believe it! The modern movie machine makes Ananias a piker by comparison and Munchausen's record look as spotless as George Washington's. For instance, the camera tells you—doesn't it?—that these children in an "Our Gang" comedy are in deadly peril of falling at any moment some twenty stories to the street below, while, as a matter of fact, they are just as safe as tho they were in their own little beddy byes. The plank on which they are so dizzily balanced is only a few feet from the top of a hillside, and the camera has simply shot the scene at an angle which doesn't show the ground and does show the street far below at the bottom of the hill.

The Camera?

DONNELL

As for the incredibly beautiful beings who people the silver screen—well, of course, the stars are a nice-looking lot of boys and girls, but at that the camera tells a few polite fibs about some of them. It can make an ordinary every-day actor into an Adonis and a girl with features of Celtic architecture look as Greek as Mrs. Menelaus of Troy.

What the camera sees and shows us on the screen, is not what the cameraman sees. The human eye has a wider range of vision than the lens but it can focus on only one point at a time. Thus the cameraman who shot the magic-carpet scene in "The Thief of Bagdad" saw not only the seething crowd of three thousand extras in the market square of an Eastern dream city which the camera saw, but the board fence where tourists from Keokuk were getting splinters in their noses trying to peek thru, the hot-dog wagons on the outskirts of Bagdad and the chewing-gum signs and radio masts on the roofs of the apartment houses beyond. On the other hand, he saw only a few faces in the crowd distinctly while the camera saw everything with equal clearness.

If the motion-picture camera couldn't do things impossible to human eyesight, there would be no motion pictures. It must be able to depict the emotions on the face of a man standing on the farther side of a deep chasm, to follow a speeding auto so swiftly that its occupants are plainly visible, to get above people's heads and see around them—in short, it must possess the powers of a telescope, magnifying glass, X-Ray machine, and an old maid's spy-glass at one and the same time.

The increased flexibility of the camera angle is perhaps the most important advance in cinema taking since the days when screen husbands turned erring wives into the driving snow with a stern semaphore gesture of the arm, screen villains struggled with the heroines until their hair came virtuously down, and screen comedians sat down suddenly on a screen banana, all within a carefully chalk-marked triangle with the camera as its apex. Film wives still stagger thru the snow, film comedians still heave the same kind of pies that mother used to throw, but the camera is no longer on the floor in front of them. It may be peeking Lady Teazlingly from behind a screen,

This scene from "Babbitt" is a natural eye-level angle, very intimate all around

Above: An elaborate device for taking a man at the wheel of a car

Above: We give up guessing where the camera was for this scene in "Law Against Law"

Above: Here the camera was lashed to the topmast of a sailing vessel in Los Angeles harbor. Left: To get these charging horses, the camera was buried in an underground dugout

Above: An odd camera angle was required for this monster shadow. It is not the shadow of the man present in the picture snooping up thru a knot-hole in the floor or slung from the ceiling.

As the average man can tell the make of a car with a single knowledgeable glance, as the scofflaw can distinguish Bourbon from bootleg with the first sip, so the seasoned movie fan can name the director of a picture when it first flashes on the screen. And it is the difference in their uses of the camera angle more than anything else which gives personality to pictures. William de Mille is more interested in his characters than their setting, while his brother Cecil shoots his scenes from the audience angle, never losing sight of their effect as a picture. Griffith alternates long shots with closeups and George Melford works from the story angle, and in order to catch interesting and revealing bits of action takes his camera right onto the set and eavesdrops on what is going on from behind the piano or thru the shower-bath curtains. One director, perhaps, has a penchant for close-ups and so we have enormous glycerine tears the size of marbles rolling down the giant cheeks of beauty in distress, another likes wide angles with solitary horsemen on the horizon, while still another treats the onlooker to such intimate viewpoints that he has the uncomfortable sensation of having opened the wrong door by mistake.

In "Greed," von Stroheim, the celluloid Bernard Shaw, has taken a motion picture entirely from a "practical" angle for the first time. By this, he explains, he means the angle from which a human being would be likely to see the same scene in real life and not from a distorted position as tho the onlooker were perched on the chandelier or draped on the picture molding. The audience is added to the cast of characters. Step right up onto the screen, Ladeez and Gen'lemen! Meet Mist' McTeague and th' wife and make yourselves at home!

In one scene in "Greed" you sit with the McTeagues and their gabby friend Marcus as one of the group, while a slight change in the camera angle would make you an eavesdropping outsider. In another scene where an old woman presses her ear to the wall in order to overhear what is being said in the next room you feel an actual sensation of ear strain, so close does the camera bring you to the wall!

Below: Here the camera is raised thirty feet above the mob to include several thousand people in the angle of vision

"A Woman of Paris" leads the spectator onto the screen first by a long shot of a house, then a closer view of the same house with the heroine's face looking out of an upper window, and last of all he is brought inside the room with her. This is a familiar use of the camera angle, but there are no such rapid alterations of distance in "Greed," during the course of a single episode. It leaves an audience mentally breathless, von Stroheim claims, to approach within three feet of something, then instantly to dash back a couple of blocks and the next moment pounce to another viewpoint like a restless kangaroo afflicted with Saint Vitus' Dance.

If you are one of those who hoist an opera-glass at emotional moments in a (Cont'd on page 90)

Left: The closeup is the screen's substitute for opera-glasses. Below: The only way to get faces in a crowd is to shoot from above

G. Eder

Albertina Rasch

One time première danseuse of the Imperial Opera of Vienna, this famous dancer is now in this country interpreting her art. She is a stern and relentless maîtresse de ballet, and the men and women of her ensemble betray an effortless technique no less perfect than her own. She recently danced a few feet of film in "Virtuous Liars"

White

Jetta and Her Temperament

By
HARRY CARR

Elle Est Française,
Mais Oui! Et Ce
N'Est Pas Tout!

NOT since Pola Negri arrived from Germany with her five-carat diamond has Hollywood had such a thrill.

The lady's name is Jetta Goudal. She looks like a beautiful Cossack. She looks like an Oriental princess. She looks like . . . well, whatever it is that has changing hazel eyes that slant at the corners; that slumber and drowse; then blaze with fires.

But Jetta insists that she is none of these thrilling and exciting things. She says she is just French.

She came here from New York to play a vampish rôle in "Open All Night," which is being filmed at the Lasky studio.

White

Above is Jetta Goudal in the fascinating rôle of La Pilar in "The Bright Shawl," in which she first attracted the attention of the critics. At the top of the page, a late portrait and left, with Paul Bern, who directed her in "Open All Night"

In addition to the Hollywood advent of the beautiful Jetta, this picture is notable in some other ways. It is the first independent free-lance engagement of Viola Dana since she voluntarily renounced stardom; it is the first picture to be directed by Paul Bern, the brilliant scenario writer recently promoted to a megaphone; the scenario is the work of Willis Goldbeck and is said to be the finest script ever written in Hollywood. So, altogether, Jetta has stepped into fast company.

In hoarse stage whispers, Hollywood has exchanged the information that she is said to be the most temperamental actress that has ever been on the screen. When you ask Jetta about this, her eyes wander up and down your personality; then they half close and she says with a tired little smile that she isn't temperamental at all; she just has her own ideas about things.

She says otherwise she never would have been here in America at all.

You see it was this way. When the war broke out, Jetta was a very young girl—sixteen or seventeen.

But she was engaged to be married. Her fiancé was a lieutenant in the French army. He was wounded in the very first engagement of his regiment. They repaired him in a hospital as well as they could and detailed him to special work in connection with the diplomatic corps. This kept him galloping from one allied country to another, so Jetta never saw him. She worked for a while with the Belgian refugees. Then she couldn't stand it any longer. It was too harrowing. She decided to come to America.

Here was where Jetta's far-famed temperament began to function. They told her she couldn't possibly get a passport in less than three weeks.

White

Just now this fascinating foreigner is one of the vamps in Valentino's picture, "The Sainted Devil." Harry Carr says of her: She has the French instinct for gesture and the French adroitness of suggestion

"There's a steamer sailing tomorrow and I am going to be on board," she said.

"There aren't any berths," they faltered.

"I'll have one," she told them. And she showed me the way she looked at the offending French officials. If Germany had attacked suddenly while the French Government was still quailing under that look, the Kaiser would right now be collecting taxes in Paris.

"When the boat sailed," says Jetta, "I was on board and I had a berth."

She said she didn't want to act over here. She just wanted to hide and forget. But somebody was always dragging her out of her solitude and making her act. So, if she was temperamental, it was because she didn't want to, anyhow.

She appeared in the "Bright Shawl" and "The Green Goddess" and on the stage in "Simon Called Peter"; and now she has come to Hollywood.

"They always give me parts where I have to be drunk," she said the day she struck Hollywood. "I hope they give me a

(Continued on page 78)

Some Costume Caricatures

By VICTOR DE PAUW

Above is Valentino in his double rôle of aristocrat and barber in "Monsieur Beaucaire." Right are three characterizations of Milton Sills in the manly rôle of The Sea Hawk; this picture is still filling a big New York theater daily, by the way

Left is George Walsh when he was making "Ben Hur," Mary Pickford as Mistress Dorothy in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," and Ernest Torrence in "The Sideshow Of Life." It looks as tho Mary was telling George to "cheer up, the worst is yet to come!"

Cleopatra

FAMOUS HEROINES
NO. XIII

POSED BY JANE COWL

This Queen of Egypt is perhaps the most famous woman that ever lived. The world's greatest poets, musicians, artists, scholars and soldiers have variously sung, painted, written, and waged wars in her praises. She had not only fabulous beauty and what is now known as "sex appeal" but considerable mental endowment as well. It was her pleasant custom to give one glorious night to her lovers, then have them thrown into the Nile to the crocodiles. She died by putting a poisonous asp to her bosom and with her ended the dynasty of the Ptolemies, and Egypt became a Roman province

Murray

White

The Drama's Pousse-Café

CLASSIC'S Monthly Department of the Vaudeville Stage

Across the top of the page is a row of the "incredibly rhythmic" Tiller Girls, as Percy Hammond calls them. This group is the "Sunshine Girls," late of "Stepping Stones" and now in the two-a-day. It affords everlasting interest to see sixteen girls move as one, for that is the way, these English dancing girls are taught. They move together in perfect time with the precision of a machine.

Charles Snyder

Burke

Henry Hull, another stage and screen star, is "revueing" in vaudeville with Edna Hibbard. Theirs is a two-scene playlet called "Five Minutes From the Station"

Left and right are Paul McCulloch and Bobby Clark, late of "The Music Box Revue," who are adding to the harmless gaiety of nations by their comic skits, "The Interview," and "The Bath Between." They are reported to be funnier than Gallagher and Shean

A great many vaudevillian rumors are rife around Times Square. One is that Elsie Janis will be back this winter on the Orpheum circuit at $3,500.00 a week and Mother Janis' car-fare. Another is that Florence Walton and Leon Leitrim will dance at the Palace; that Charles Foy, son of Eddie, will do an act; that Beryl Mercer, Frank Mayo and Jacob Ben-Ami will also

Charles Snyder

Pictures
and Gossip Gathered Around
Longacre
Square
and Tin Pan
Alley

Melbourne Spurr

Above is Bird Millman, "the Little Queen of the Wire," who is undoubtedly pre-eminent in her entertainment. After an absence of several years, in the circus, "Ziegfeld," and "Greenwich Village Follies," she and her silver wire are back in vaudeville

J. H. Connolly

Above is the greatest female impersonator of them all, Julian Eltinge, who is billed as "America's Foremost Delineator of Feminine Characterizations," and who has quite a repertoire of acts for his brief vaudeville tour. Back to his first love, for a while, anyway

Below is Adele Rowland, the wife of our own Conway Tearle, who has taken a little fier in vaudeville. Her turn is called "Story Songs"

Below is Pauline Lord of "Anna Christie" fame, who makes her two-a-day debut in a tabloid drama called "For Five Thousand Dollars"

Apeda

Here on the same page with America's Foremost Delineator of, etc., is "America's Greatest Male Impersonator," Kitty Donner, who is also at home in musical comedy or vaudeville. Her skit is called "Twenty Minutes in Paris." She is a top-hole dancer and wears evening clothes better than most men

National

Hori

La Habañera

Especially posed for CLASSIC by Fokina, the talented wife of Michel Fokine

(Twenty-six)

K--The Unknown

Written in Short-Story Form by PATRICIA CORK DUGAN

CHARLOTTETOWN was a little town. It didn't even aspire to be a big town. It had a substantial, settled, matronly sort of air that proclaimed a placid satisfaction in itself. Contentment brooded upon it. Not for Charlottetown the hectic rush, the mad clamor, the eager thirst for this, that, and the other that characterized great cities. Its concerns were little concerns, its lives serene.

Not that Charlottetown lacked excitement. Oh, no. There was always Sidney Page and Slim and Joe to speculate about. Since her grammar school days Slim and Joe had been courting Sidney, and no one ever knew which was ahead in this amatory marathon. For that matter, neither did Sidney. That is, she really never thought seriously of marrying either one of them, altho the announcement of this fact to both young swains served only to redouble their efforts.

The truth is, Sidney had suddenly begun to take life seriously. Being the belle of a small town was pleasant in its way but hardly absorbing enough for a lifetime. Sidney had decided to go to work. Charlottetown buzzed with the news and was relieved when it was discovered that she had taken up nursing at St. Luke's Hospital. This was by all Charlottetown standards, at least "genteel," and the village breathed calmly once more, giving its interest to the mad exploits of Slim and Joe trying to get sick or hurt enough to be sent to the hospital. Finally Slim did manage to get himself appallingly disfigured with poison oak and he was turned over to Sidney to nurse. It was an inimical triumph, however, because by that time Sidney had another pair of suitors hot upon her heels.

Dr. Max Wilson, "Doctor Max," as everyone called him, had just been put in charge of the hospital. He was new in Charlottetown and therefore mildly exciting to the inhabitants. They wondered collectively and individ-

It was a page from Mary Blum's chart and underneath Mary's fever zigzag it said: "Ice pack; drops every two hours; light diet: broth, cereals, etc.; I love you"

Mary Blum's chart and underneath Mary's fever zigzag it said in Doctor Max's quick nervous handwriting: "Ice pack; drops every two hours; light diet: broth, cereals, etc.; I love you." Thereafter, the frequency with which Sidney consulted charts to make sure of—er proper directions, was commendably regular. Sidney was very happy and she made her patients happy—and well, which was more important.

In the nurses' restroom one day, Carlotta, who was head nurse, waited for Max Wilson to come to her. She caught him as he walked by the door, hat in hand, and with a coat over his arm. It was Sidney Page's coat.

"Oh, Max!" cried Carlotta, "it's such a hot day, wont you take me for a little ride?"

"Cant do it, Carlotta," the man answered hurriedly. "I have a call to make——"

"On Sidney Page, I suppose," angrily retorted Carlotta and her habitual restraint gave way. "You're with her all the time—everybody is talking about it. What did you bring me here for, to flaunt that girl in my face? You owe something to me, Max Wilson, and you're going to pay it. Do you think after I've given you my whole life ually about this "Carlotta person" who arrived with him. She was said to be his private nurse and a purely professional understanding was reported to exist between them; but Charlottetown elevated its several eyebrows, examined the lady, and just didn't believe it was altogether professional. Neither did they quite believe it in the hospital.

In fact, no one really credited it but Sidney who liked Doctor Max from the start, and who was quite sure that Doctor Max liked her. Indeed she had the proof of it right with her, folded up inside the front of her stiff starched waist, where it crackled with pleasant reassurance from time to time.

It was a page torn from Mary Blum's chart and underneath Mary's fever zigzag it said in Doctor Max's quick nervous handwriting: "Ice pack; drops every two hours; light diet: broth, cereals, etc.; I love you." Thereafter, the frequency with which Sidney consulted charts to make sure of—er proper directions, was commendably regular. Sidney was very happy and she made her patients happy—and well, which was more important.

The doctor dropped untidily to the floor and slipped in a ghastly comic sprawl down the stairs, "You dirty cad!" screamed Joe, mad with excitement and terror. "You dirty cad—to treat a decent girl so!" "Never mind that, young man," said the proprietor, "just come along with me" in the world for me, that ever will be or ever has been," he added in his more habitual manner, and Sidney was content.

"I was told at the station," said the gentlest of voices to Mrs. Page as she stood in her doorway regarding the man before her, "that I could perhaps rent a room here. You have such a pretty yard and such a pleasant faced house—I'd like to live here——"

Mrs. Page hesitated. She knew, of course, the hazards of taking in strange men, but this one looked so kind, so clean and kind, and so tired. His clothes, altho they needed pressing, were not the sort one got from the local tailors, she recognized that. A fine piece of cloth, too. He had white, firm-looking hands, an artist's or a surgeon's; delicate, skilful-looking hands that bespoke breeding as well as ability. Besides, Sidney's apprenticeship in the hospital was taking money out and not adding to the slender family purse. She considered another moment.

"I'll pay in advance," said the man, feeling her distrust.

"Oh, it isn't that," answered Mrs. Page. "It's nothing, really. Come in. I'll show you a room."

"My name is——" he hesitated the fraction of a second, "Le Moyne——K. Le Moyne," and followed her into the house.

For three weeks Charlottetown was occupied with the stranger. Where had he come from and why? What was he doing, or going to do in Charlottetown? Dr. Max could be accounted for, one knew a number of things about him; but one knew absolutely nothing of this "K. Le Moyne" beside the fact that he kept to himself, seldom straying beyond Mrs. Page's garden, speaking to no one, volunteering nothing. Mrs. Page hotly defended him as she was called upon to do several times. Aside from the exemplary habit of paying the rent in advance, he kept her garden like a professional—was tidier about his room than any man she ever saw—no more trouble than no one —never asked for a thing—never intruded—was gentle as a lamb with the children and strong as an ox for work. No, he never told her anything about himself—she wouldn't ask—anyone could see he was a gentleman—— When Sidney came home on her leave, she'd be glad to have her daughter know him.

—everything a woman can give—that I'm going to see it thrown away for a miserable little upstart. You have no right——"

"Calm down, Carlotta," interrupted the man a little anxiously, for Carlotta's voice rose with each accusation, "I have a right to do exactly as I please. I'm not married to you——"

"Oh, dear God," moaned the woman, "you said you wanted to—you said you would marry me as soon as your practice was assured. You said——"

But Max had gone and a girl snuggled down contentedly at his side, in his big red car and said shyly, "You're so good, Max, no wonder the nurses all love you and your patients adore you. I dont see how you can love only me."

"That's the easiest thing I do, honey," answered the man, for once in his life telling the absolute truth. "You are the only woman

K—THE UNKNOWN

Fictionized by permission from Universal's screen presentation of Mary Roberts Rinehart's novel "K." Directed by Harry Pollard. The cast:

- Sidney Page.....Virginia Valli
- "K." Le Moyne.....Percy Marmont
- Carlotta Harrison.....Margarita Pollard
- George "Slim" Benson.....Francis Feeney
- Dr. Max Wilson.....John Roche
- Joe Drummond.....Maurice Ryan

When Sidney did come home the next time, it was to stay. Something terrible had happened at the hospital and the long-looked-for leave was lengthened indefinitely—or it would have been if Doctor Max hadn't interfered. A heart-broken and tearful girl sobbed out her story to her mother.

"You know, mother," Sidney told her, "Slim was getting better—Max—Doctor Max said I had done wonderfully and then I was ordered to increase his dose—I thought it seemed a lot, but you know we're not supposed to think under orders and—and he got so sick—nearly died—if Max—Doctor Max hadn't acted promptly he would have died. Oh, he was wonderful, mother." Sidney hugged her mother ecstatically, forgetting her grief in admiration of her adored doctor.

"And then," she went on, "when they investigated they discovered I had given the dose—but mother, you believe me—I had orders and when I went to find the order blank on my desk it was gone, tho, of course, I keep all instructions. I can't understand it. Max has been so sweet, mother, I wish you liked him a little more. He says he'll get me back in a month or two."

"I hope so, dearie," answered her mother. "It isn't that I don't like your Doctor Max—it is just that I feel I couldn't trust him, but probably it's just an old woman's notion. Now, wait until you meet Mr. Le Moyne—K."

Sidney didn't like the idea of a roomer. She really was hurt and stunned by her suspension from the hospital and she wanted to be alone. However, as the days went by, she could not fail to respond to the man's

Above:
"Gentlemen," she said a few breathless minutes later, standing with K before an astonished group of physicians, "here is a surgeon who can save the life of our Doctor Max. I will stake my life on that. He must be allowed to operate at once!"

Left: "I alone am responsible for the death of Dr. Edwardes' patients. I did it so that Max Wilson would get his place on the staff of Flower Hospital. I loved him so—I loved him so—he said he'd marry me when he got on the staff" quick sympathy and his sensitive understanding. They got to know each other rather well; that is, Sidney knew how K's mind worked and the way he reacted to certain things, and the way his hair grew rakishly up over one eye, and the proud way he held his head, and the odd little trick of halting his speech right in the middle to smile at her, and the quick electric touch of his hands, and many little things like that she learned, but of his former home or activities never a thing was hinted.

Max called her up every day, but he thought it better not to go there until the affair had blown over. Slim was out of the hospital, and he and Joe, still undaunted, clung to their hopes of Sidney. Once Sidney turned from the telephone to see K looking at her rather oddly, almost absently. She misunderstood the look. "I suppose," she said, "that you thought that was a pretty affectionate conversation. But, you see, I was talking to my fiancé—Dr. Max Wilson."

"Wilson—Wilson," repeated K, a little stupidly. Sidney thought. His lips tightened and his eyes closed almost involuntarily as if to shut out a horrid sight. Sidney stared at him wonderingly.

"I hope," the man said, quietly recovering himself, "that you will be very happy—my—my dear."

Sidney didn't exactly like the way he said "my dear." Or, rather she did like it. It kept repeating itself in her ears all the rest of the evening, "my—dear," so soft, so hesitating, but so decided, somehow. "My—dear . . . my dear . . ."

At the end of three months the stranger and Sidney were "K" and "Sid" to each other, but neither really knew how each had filled the other's heart. Only Sidney felt an odd tugging at her heart when one day Dr. Max telephoned that he was coming to take her back to the hospital. She was standing with K in the garden when the big red car drove up and Max cleared the drive in one bound. "Sidney—sweet-heart!" he cried and drew the girl to him. Over the top of her head he saw K. A curious look came into the eyes of both men, but neither said a word.

"This is Dr. Max, K," Sidney cried gaily, "and this is K, Max. I want—"

"I am acquainted with the—ah—gentleman," answered Max surprisingly.

K raised his hand almost involuntarily.

"Never mind," spoke up Max with malicious good nature, "I wont notify the police—"

"What do you mean?" cried Sidney helplessly. "I dont understand— K—explain—cant you?"

But the man stood silent before her and Max gently led the dazed girl to his car.

K's unhappy reverie was interrupted by the arrival of a much-excited Joe Drummond. "She's gone back to the hospital with that crook," he yelled.

"Yes, I know," answered K. "He isn't a crook. There's nothing we can do about it."

"Oh, yes there is," retorted the boy angrily. "I happen to know he's going to Schwitters tonight with some dame from the hospital—they lived together before they came here—I'm going to get the dope and give it to Sidney straight—she wont marry me, but by God, I cant see her marry a dirty cad that will break her heart!"

Carlotta was making one last desperate effort to keep Max. He had picked her up again during Sidney's absence almost as tho there had not been any indifferent interlude. Poor, deluded Carlotta believed he had come back to stay. She would get sick at Schwitters and, pretending to faint. Max would be a little drunk. They'd have to get a room—a dozen desperate expedients occurred to her, but she would be governed by the moment. Poor Carlotta!

It was a wild ride Joe and K took following the pair from road-house to road-house. They couldn't recognize the girl, and Joe finally decided that it was Sidney. Whereupon K firmly refused to follow, feeling that after all it was her right to go where she pleased with the man she was going to marry. Joe, however, had worked himself up to a fever heat and with some half-formed quixotic notion of protecting Sidney was right behind Doctor Max and the woman as they entered Schwitters.

"Oh, Max," said Carlotta expectantly as they took their seats in a shaded alcove, "you do love me, dont you?"

"Sure," answered the man without looking at her, and the lack of conviction in his tone registered even with a woman who wanted desperately not to feel it.

Carlotta ran her hands thru her hair a little wildly. Tiny beads of perspiration stood out on her forehead. She really did feel sick. "Oh, Max," she said again, "I'm ill—I feel—faint."

Carlotta had seen too many women faint not to know how to do it properly. With visible annoyance Doctor Max picked her up and carried her upstairs to a hastily requisitioned room, from which an excited management was with difficulty expelled.

From the details of the sordid ugly bitter quarrel that

(Continued on page 80)

The first thing Dr. Edwardes did after his public ex- operation was get into trouble again—at least some folks call it trouble. What he did was get married

“Great Britain’s Queen of Happiness”

Who Wins a Popularity Contest Every Six Months. How Do You Like Her?

With Ralph Forbes in “Reveille”

Betty Balfour is England's favorite screen star, and that means, we hope, that we'll see her pictures over here. She is under contract to Welsh, Pearson & Co., in case any of our American producers want to look her up! Below, left, is Miss Balfour as she appeared in “Love, Life and Laughter.” Below, right, in “Squibbs’ Honeymoon”

As “Squibbs,” the Piccadilly flower girl

S. M. Cooper,
L. A.
Architect

M. Herbert,
L. A.
Decorator

Blanche Sweet
and
Marshall Neilan
Tone Down
Their Colorful Personalities
by a Conventional Home

It is a little odd that two of the most arresting and original personalities in Hollywood should elect to live in a house just like other peoples'. You would expect exotic colors and bizarre hangings and all sorts of unexpected features. But nothing of the sort obtains here. The home of Marshall Neilan and Blanche Sweet is quiet, modest, comfortable and unassuming. The exterior is white stucco with a red-tiled roof, square and substantial-looking

Above is the living-room. The rug is grey velour, the walls white damask, and the draperies are soft subdued colors. Ornaments, pillows and upholstery furnish the high lights. Right are the owners on their front lawn with a distinguished guest, Rebecca West, the celebrated English novelist. Mr. and Mrs. Neilan are at present in England

Right is a sunshiny corner of the reading-room with Mr. Neilan's desk and Mrs. Neilan's chair

This room, too, has white walls and grey velour rugs. The furniture is rich old mahogany

Hollywood Homes—No. XXIV

Above is the dining-room, conventional but charming, and in perfect taste

Above is the informal breakfast-room where the Neilans sit and talk over their next picture

Right is another favorite corner flooded with sunshine

This room is grey and green and white, a pleasant and livable combination

“Elsie Janis At Home”

Photographs © by Abbé

Our Elsie isn't really at home, she's over in London, and that is what she calls her skit, revue, act, or whatever the thing is. At any rate, it is one of the three shows in London that is making money. To date, it has sold out for every performance. Elsie, we suppose, feels under some patriotic obligation to do for America what the Charlot players have done for England. Fair exchange is no robbery and all the rest of it

Above is Elsie playing the piano, we think, but this fascinating person bewitches us so completely that we never really know what she is doing

Left: The tall gentleman supporting Miss Janis is a “pleasing” barytone named Pidgeon and the “accomplished” pianist is named Lester. They all help in Elsie's at home. Upper left: Elsie as a sort of glorified costermonger (look it up in the dictionary) with a million “pearlies.” The props for this show, we are told on reliable authority, consist of one grey velvet drop and two gold pillows

The Romance of the Extra

By ORVILLE CALDWELL

WHEN I first began to rehearse for my part in "The Miracle," the army of extras; soldiers, monks, nuns, foresters, knights, et al.; were simply a mob with no individuality whatever — but little by little as rehearsals went on and then the big spectacle began its run at the Century Theater, more and more certain individuals called themselves to my attention. The mob of extras one by one became definite personalities to me and I am glad to say many of them have since become my friends.

In the background of each life there was a dramatic epic — depicting the age-old story of a struggle to keep soul and body together. It is not my subject to write a "sob sister" story so I am not going to dwell on heartaches and heartbreaks — they were all there — but in sketching some of the characters I hope they may serve to prove that one can never judge by appearances.

Many were Russian refugees who came here after Lenin gained control in Russia. One, a splendid old man of aristocratic appearance had been a Supreme Court Judge in Moscow. He also owned a chain of dairies that circumrailroaded all Great Russia. All was wiped out in the revolution. He is eighty-six years old and speaks eight languages. He ekes out an existence by teaching languages and acting in "The Miracle."

There are two brothers in their early thirties, Russian Princes with a strain of royal blood. They came over here with the Russian Commission in 1916, then returned to Russia where everything was taken from them. They came back to New York where they sold enough jewels to live on for a time, finally went broke, washed dishes in a restaurant and are now numbered among the extras of "The Miracle." They are both highly educated and fine

Mr. Caldwell confesses that he is an actor not a writer and asked to have his story edited, but he has told it in such a straightforward, interesting manner that we haven't touched a single comma.—
THE EDITOR.

fellows. They hope to find enough work on the stage and screen to keep them going.

A Russian girl, formerly a member of the Imperial ballet, is also doing extra work. Like the others, the revolution drove her from Russia and she is supporting a father seventy-five and a mother sixty-six, entirely on her earnings in "The Miracle," and teaching dancing on the side whenever she has time.

Another girl is the daughter of the erstwhile owner of Petrograd's leading newspaper. He also owned a chain of theaters in Russia, all of which were confiscated by the Bolshevik government.

There is also a former Colonel of the Imperial Guard who served two years in a German prison and another man who was an impresario on a par with Belasco. There were other Russians but the above were the most interesting.

Among these high-born extras were two charming women, an aunt and her niece, both Roumanian Princesses who were descendants of the Paleologue's, the Ancient Greek royal family. The girl is in hopes of a dramatic career and the aunt is with her heart and soul.

There were also two French girls, one a countess, who taught French, and a Russian and a German girl who each taught their language in addition to working in "The Miracle."

But everyone who was interesting was not foreign by any means. One was a boy who belongs to one of Chicago's first families. His dramatic career was highly frowned upon by his family so he struck a bargain with his parents. They gave him two and a half years to make good on the stage and if he falls down he must give the next two and one-half years to his father's business. He is a graduate

(Continued on page 79)

Orville Caldwell is now in California making pictures, but New Yorkers will remember him as the beautiful Knight of "The Miracle," and it was in that extraordinary mob of extras that he found so much interest and pathos, romance and heartbreak and gallant conquering of insurmountable odds. This sketch was made by the mother of Lady Diana Manners, the Duchess of Rutland

Murray

Doris Kenyon

This time appears as a poet. Inspired by her work with Valentino in "Monsieur Beaucaire," and her contact with his wife in the interests of the same picture, Miss Kenyon, who is a dreamer of lovely lyric verse, wrote the two sonnets on the opposite page, which we think the most gracious and charming tribute one artist could pay another and which we are proud and grateful to offer in the pages of CLASSIC. The sickening cant about professional jealousy must now forfeit its right to be heard

(Thirty-six)

On the Wings of Song

Two Sonnets
By DORIS KENYON

+ + +

Rudolph Valentino

*He is the reason for Venetian nights,
And low-sung moons and shadows that caress,
And all the unsighed sighs and unsung songs
Hidden so deep within night's throbbing breast;
He is the chant pale slave girls sing at dawn;
He is the whisper from a lover's tryst;
No Villon nor a knight of olden times
Had more of romance born within his soul;
A Shelley nor a Keats could not express
More with his pen than he in pantomime;
The lure of silence just before a storm
Lurks in his slumberous eyes and in his smile,
Friendly yet strange, familiar yet unknown,
Are memories and unfulfilled desires.*

+ + +

Victor Georg

+ + +

Russell Ball

Mrs. Rudolph Valentino

*She is an iris, swaying on its stem,
Poised, cool, elusive, in the evening dusk;
Her eyes, low-curtained by a veil of mist,
Speak of strange dreams, remembered yesterday
In some far land—as echoes call again;
The lilt of her proud grace and gentle tread
Is like a music played on muted strings;
Out of the beauties of an age-old Greece
Was born her mind, reflecting these today;
Her heart reveals a sheltered garden
close,
Where none may enter save he knows the key
That turns the magic lock, but once inside,
Is filled with wonder at the rare perfume.*

+ + +

Doug and Mary Vacationing

AT AIX-LES-BAINS

All Photographs by Abbé

Below is Doug being quiet. The Graflex caught him resting—a breathless moment—between leaps and bounds. Left is Mary in a Lanvin gown in the gardens of their hotel at Aix-les-Bains

At the top of the page is Doug in his more habitual manner. He is demonstrating jiu-jitsu to a fascinated audience of children in the garden of the Hotel de l'Europe. It seems to delight Mary also, tho you'd think by this time she'd be used to Douglas

Abbé

The Siren

As Portrayed in England by Fay Compton

Fay Compton, one of England's better known actresses, has just completed her long and successful run as the spectacular vampire of the more-than-spectacular "Hassam." She has accepted a motion-picture engagement to play Queen Elizabeth, a long step from the fascinating voluptuary whose naughty career she just finished. When "Hassam" is produced here in the fall, Mary Nash will have the interesting title-rôle. Comstock and Gest appropriately sponsor the spectacle in America

A Thousand Dollars a Day!

By JIM TULLY

A THOUSAND dollars a day! There are those who claim that Jim Cruze receives that much for directing pictures. No one would think of calling Cruze James. He is Jimmy to most people. This forty-year-old ex-vagabond and fisherman is undoubtedly the most dynamic and vivid personality in pictures. I would call him the ideal director. Long vigils on fishing vessels plying Alaskan waters, gruelling rides on freight trains as a youthful hobo, long days spent traveling over Utah and Montana deserts with a wagon show, in which months passed without seeing a railroad, the descendant of a long line of Danish-Americans who trekked across valley and mountain in covered wagons and on foot—this man Cruze was for thirty-eight years absorbing the masterpiece which he later made and called "The Covered Wagon."

It was my good fortune to be down among men from my twelfth birthday. One learns much from such a training—the most valuable thing being—to appreciate the genuine because it is so rare. Jim Cruze is all man in the highest sense of that much abused term.

It is only once in a while that destiny meets the man. Napoleon fretting his heart away over love for a Parisian demi-monde whom he later married, was vaulted into the saddle by Paul Barras—a lover who was tired of her. The man whom Josephine laughingly dubbed her "little corporal" then dashed away to fame and fortune as Commander of the Army of Italy. I should apologize to Jim Cruze here—he would allow no Josephine to bother him for twenty years . . . but when the epic of the West was ready to be filmed—Cruze was accidentally vaulted into the saddle by Jesse Lasky, who knows men. Lasky felt that the job of directing "The Covered Wagon" would require a man who could obtain the required effects of distance and primeval backgrounds. Cruze had directed some pictures which gave evidence of this knowledge, among them "The Valley of the Giants"—but he was known principally as a high-class comedy director. Lasky had faith.

Cruze was born in Ogden, Utah, and left home at fifteen to travel with a medicine show. It was during these days while bumping over yellow leagues of desert that destiny prepared the boy for the man that was to be.

Out of the vast caldron of life an atom is now and then thrown up that is charged with more energy—more vitality—more tremendous lust for surviving. Cruze was such an atom.

Heavy shoulders, a restless mentality that pounds at things, quick observing eyes, a dark complexion, not at all revealing the Scandinavian background, Cruze is a Rabelaisian character with gusto and a fine sense of humor.

In other words, he knows what everything is about. He puts life into films but there is no film over his eyes. He was just born a thorobred and he cannot be explained.

It is seldom that I meet a man that I feel instinctively that women would like—for men are a sorry breed—but I can imagine how women would like Jim Cruze—like him for the reason that he is the master always. For men who lose their hearts to women, lose the women. Housekeepers for ages—women always place doormats outside the door. The real men walk over the doormats with the dust of life on their feet, and chant compelling songs in the hearts of women and lock the doors. Cruze is that kind of man.

Jim Cruze knocked about the West with the medicine show for some time and then tramped about the country, meeting another chap on the road who was destined to become known. The two young hobo's exchanged their views on things in general and told one another of countries where sandwiches grew on bushes and lager flowed from the hills and then went on their devious ways ribald in the joy of their picturesque existence. The other chap's name was Jack London. We talked for a moment of Jack London. "Jack was a poseur always. He died one. He was a poseur as a hobo. But he wrote some damn fine things."

These are Jim's words about London—no sentimentality, no film over his eyes, just a plain statement.

Cruze became weary of tramping, as smart tramps will, and became a fisherman. He lived thru tales of death and disaster, and saw fanatics at prayer being swept into the sea and oblivion, and battles with whales and the elements—all too long to record here—but they made Jim Cruze.

We talked a long time. Cruze, the man who carries his life locked up within him as a strong man will, had met a fellow rover. His secretary said when the chat was over, "I never knew him to talk so much—what did you do to him?" "Nothing," I answered. "We're blood brothers, that's all."

There were certain things about directing I wanted to
(Continued on page 77)

Richee

Heavy shoulders, quick observing eyes, a dark complexion, not at all revealing the Scandinavian background, James Cruze is a Rabelaisian character with great gusto and a fine sense of humor. Right: Working on the script of "Merton," his last picture

Ball

To Be Or Not To Be—

Back again in pictures, is Mabel Ballin's particular query these days. Every week we get a different report about Mabel: that her husband is to direct her, that he is not to direct her; that she is to be a free-lance star, that she is to form her own company, and so on. Meanwhile, the screen languishes without her quaint, elusive charm. We'll leave it to you that she should be back

Conrad Nagel

CLASSIC'S GALLERY OF HANDSOME MEN—NO. V

Altho Conrad Nagel has been a married man lo, these many years, his youthful charm never seems to have deserted him. He is undeniably one of the handsomest of our younger leading men, and one of the most popular as well. His last picture was "Mrs. Paramour," and his next will be "So This Is Marriage!" Watch for it

Who's Who?

On Stage and Screen

JANE MURFIN

Is the owner of Strongheart, distinction enough for one woman in one lifetime. She has written a number of successful scenarios; directed and produced several pictures; collaborated with Jane Cowl on "Smilin' Through" and one other stage play and is at present resting on her laurels in Hollywood, where this picture was taken

W. C. FIELDS

Played on the stage for twenty-six years and never spoke a line! He was a pantomimist and juggler in every country on the face of the globe, once jumping from Australia to Syracuse, N. Y., for a one-night stand only to find when he got there that his part had been written out! His first speaking part was in "Poppy" and it was an instant hit. Let us hope he'll always talk after this

© Claude Harris, London

BERNARD SHAW

Has had so much written about him that there is absolutely nothing left to say. This famous Irish scoffer, author of many subtle, brilliant and sophisticated plays, has at last written a play totally unlike any of his others. That is "Saint Joan," which has just ended its most successful New York run. It is humble, beautiful and moving, a drama with a soul. It is now published in book form by Brentano's. If you like Shaw, or, dislike him, get the book

White Studios

The Photographer Takes the Stage

Right is a pretty pose from the Japanese music-dance drama, "Ka-Bu-Ki," that Michio Itow is producing for the Threshold Players. Left to right they are: Margaret Manson, Betty Calender and Marion Robb

Next month CLASSIC will have scenes from all the early fall openings, a staggering number of which are promised. The new dramatic season is still in its experimental stage and needs a lot of re-vamping

Hori

Apeda

Below are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lunt (Lynn Fontanne) who are appearing together for the first time in "The Guardsman," by Franz Molnar, the Theatre Guild's first production

Burke

Abbé

Above are Richard Sterling and Louise Closser Hale in "Expressing Willie," one of the few plays to survive the summer

Above is Grock, the famous Swiss clown, who has been imported for Selwyn's great international revue, the "Rue de la Paix"

JOHN
DECKER

THOSE FOUR FUNNY FELLOWS IN "I'LL SAY SHE IS!"

The four Marx Brothers who have conquered New York without a single casualty. Left to right they are Chico, Groucho, Beppo, Harpo, Leonard, Julius, Herbert and Arthur respectively

The Play of the Month

By KENNETH MACGOWAN

White

CRITICS have certain very entertaining habits. One is to lay the faults of the newspaper reviews to the fact that they have to be written in the first forty-five minutes after the curtain falls. Another Hazlittian habit is for the critics on the weeklies and monthlies to review the reviews instead of the plays, to pan the forty-five-minute opinions of the daily critics instead of panning the play.

In writing about "Abie's Irish Rose" in the year of grace 1924, I naturally escape a lot of the troubles connected with that habit-forming drug-on-the-market, dramatic criticism.

On the May evening of 1922 when Anne Nichols' play was exhibited to the pained, but not at all surprised collection of second-string reviewers, I was watching a chorus of bulky Berlin damsels coyly pulling a petticoat half an inch above a Gargantuan ankle while they sang about the naughtiness of a "Maedel von siebzehn Jahr." If I had been in New York, I should have revenged myself on the weather and the whole stage by completely losing patience with the kind of show we have to see ninety-seven evenings out of one hundred and twenty-one. I should have declared that "Abie's Irish Rose" was as obvious as a Third Avenue ham sandwich and about as tasteful. And—blissfully unable to penetrate two years of theatrical history—I should have declared that this bit of hokum would never, never last out the week.

Now this would have been perfectly all right as a revenge and an estimate on the level of Broadway drama. But I would find it just a little embarrassing today to read the electric sign outside the Republic Theater—"3rd Year." And as for hearing that "Abie's Irish Rose" had spent fifteen weeks in Washington, twelve weeks in Baltimore, seven months in Pittsburgh, eight months or more in Cleveland, ten weeks in Montreal and twice as long in Toronto, twelve weeks in Columbus, ten in Atlantic City, and eighteen nights in Erie, Pennsylvania—the spectacle of going so
(Continued on page 89)

The phenomenon of "Abie's Irish Rose" is still puzzling theatrical savants. When it first appeared nearly three years ago it was universally condemned by the critics. Since then it has earned more than a million dollars for its author and producer, Ann Nichols, pictured below. Left are Alfred White, Jack Bertin, Harry Bradley and Andrew Mack

Apeda

The Picture of the Month

By LAURENCE REID

"MANHANDLED" (Paramount) is one of those very rare screen entertainments that serve to project the entire business of motion-picture production on to a plane closely parallel with the artistic, if indeed, it doesn't project it to the very plane of art itself. Here is a picture, not new in its essentials of plot by any means, that is so humanly told, so truthfully sketched in characterization, so convincingly acted and so cleverly presented, that it makes us forget the undeniable fact that sometimes pictures are poor and at other times very bad.

It presents the very simple story of a girl and a boy in New York City. And for the most part it draws accurate and true pictures of common, every-day types.

In this, indeed, is its great merit.

Here are characters living and breathing the very air of Manhattan. They are not stuffed puppets who jump into activity thru the manipulated strings of a director. They are wholly animate and alive.

They are truly the characters of which scenario editors beg amateurs to write. They are the people next door or in the apartment across the hall. There is drama in their apparently drab existences. If you are a clever dramatist or story-teller you can find it.

Arthur Stringer found it and wrote "Manhandled." You, who distribute prizes, step forward.

Mr. Stringer was fortunate in that his story fell into thoroly competent hands. Gloria Swanson is the girl, a department-store worker, and Tom Moore is the boy, an automobile mechanic. Theirs is the life of New York, of early rising and trips to work in crowded underground cars, of long, hard days of labor, and of subway rides back "home" again. Sometimes a chop-suey dinner is thrown in to round off the day. It is a simple yarn, rather slight of plot—but it is told so humanly that the picture rises above its tale by means of the introduction of quaint divertissements.

Neither Chaplin nor Lloyd has done anything funnier than Miss Swanson's pictured adventure in the subway at rush hour. It is the opening sequence of "Manhandled"—and it carries a gale of laughs. It is burlesqued slightly, but not much at that. It may seem ridiculous to people in cities where there are no subways, but then so may all New York seem ridiculous.

The story, as said, is utterly simple. While the boy is away exploiting a mechanical invention, the girl tastes a bit of Broadway life.

She has left the subway for good after the first scene

—a subway in which the men are too heavy to be young and too crowded to be wealthy. So she rides on a cushioned seat in taxis or private cars. Well, the upshot of her rise from the department-store trenches is that she escapes without harm, but the escape is close and at first, when the boy returns, he wont believe her.

All the gowns are honest, as she explains when he comes back to find them hanging guiltily in her wardrobe.

But there are signs that determine her true character that he cannot ignore.

So there is a very happy love scene for the finale.

The scenes between Miss Swanson and Tom Moore are some of the prettiest the celluloid has revealed. They remind us of Griffith at his best. Often these two players are motionless yet their scenes seem to vibrate with a vital current. They are a great credit to the players themselves and to Allan Dwan, who directed the picture. Previously we have associated Mr. Dwan with unreal stories and similar settings. Rooms in plain houses have become as enormous as the Louvre under his evident desire for space. Here he gets

(Continued on page 92)

In "Manhandled," Gloria Swanson sets herself a new record. She is a brilliant screen comédienne, a quality hitherto unsuspected in her make-up. She and Tom Moore share the honors as simple, human, every-day young people of the working class

The Celluloid Critic

REX INGRAM did the only thing possible in filming "The Arab" (Metro-Goldwyn)—he went to the Orient to stage it—thus compensating for a story which has become frayed at the edges thru long and faithful service. The director came back with some striking photographs. The ornate horizons of the East have served Ingram's camera as they've never served anyone else who went overseas to capture them. Scenically, the picture is hard to beat. But Edgar Selwyn's play is stereotyped fictional fare. It hasn't enough variety of situation, nor enough dramatic substance to cope with its backgrounds. And these are as easy on the eye as the story is tiresome on the mind.

We will not say that these fine shots diminish the plot values entirely. But it is really of little consequence and countless serials which have gone before it—serials exploiting the same idea—take away the dramatic sting of showing impending massacres of Christians by the Moslems. So we return to the backgrounds and pronounce them good. We also pronounce Ramon Novarro's performance good. Excepting the pictorial quality of the film, his work is the outstanding feature. He makes the Arab scornful, insolent and bold, but a likable fellow for all of that. His heroism in behalf of the missionary's daughter wins him the necessary sympathy. Alice Terry wearing her own brunette tresses (the blonde wig having been discarded here) appears as beautiful and charming as ever. She brings appeal to a rather inconsequential rôle. There are several foreign actors whose work is excellent.

The picture will draw crowds because of its sheik flavor—and the fact that the names of Novarro and Ingram carry weight. These crowds won't see much of a story, but they will see Nature at her best with her clays and paints.

WILLIAM J. LOCKE'S story, "The Mountebank," which was adapted to the stage last season, has finally emerged as a Paramount picture under the colorful title of "The Side Show of Life." It is treated sympathetically, if with not sufficient feeling—and serves in registering as a very good film, if not a brilliant one. It lacks the Locke quaintness, a quality which is woven in all his stories—and there isn't enough of the Locke wistfulness and tender humor. But it does hold you—even grips you at times, principally because of the gifted pantomime of Ernest Torrence who plays an English buffoon in a French circus.

Circus stories are always sentimental—and embroidered with pathos. And this clown suffers when the show becomes bankrupt and when he returns from the war to receive the jeers of his audience. But the picture doesn't move with that steady heartbeat—and it often lacks color. Torrence uses his plastic face to draw upon his emotions and he gives a touching performance in his moments of pathos—especially the burial of the dog. You may have to use your handkerchief here to brush away a tear. But he is not the hapless clown—the pitiable clown of all song and story. Which makes us wonder if he is not more adaptable for comedy and heavy character.

The picture is finely staged, carries restraint and considerable charm. And there's a newcomer, Louise La Grange, who will be heard from some day. She shows sincere emotion and a wide range of expression. Anna Q. Nilsson plays a small rôle with her usual skill. A more sprinkling of humanities, a little more balancing humor—and the picture would have been a real triumph. Still, we'll call it good entertainment as it stands.

"BREAD" (Metro-Goldwyn) would be a real human picture if the director had brought out the pathos and mental conflict which are found in Charles G. Norris' original story. It fails to touch the inner feelings of the heart—and yet the central characters fairly cried for sympathy. It may be that Victor Schertzinger, the director, tried too hard to establish a moral. But we fail to find it here. What we do find is a lot of marital trouble stressed with too much unimportant detail. What should have been a compact picture contains several loose ends which are not well tied together.

Yet it is interesting. Any one will have lots of fun in

A scene from "Wine of Youth"

A scene from "Babbitt"

Top of the page: Mae Bush and supporting players in "Bread." Above: Ramon Novarro in "The Arab"

Laurence Reid Reviews the Latest Photoplays

accompanying Mae Busch thru her maze of marital trouble. It is fairly true to life without tugging at the emotions. It sketches a cross-section of humdrum life as it pertains to a poverty-stricken family determined to keep up appearances. The central figures are a proud mother and her equally proud daughters. The latter are contrasted. One marries a hard-working man and finds solace with a brood of children; the other plunges into business and eventually marries a young boaster—a character not well interpreted by Robert Frazer who is miscast as an Irishman. The best work is contributed by Miss Busch, Pat O'Malley and Eugenie Besserer.

The book hasn't been tampered with to any extent, tho the Irish husband undergoes a too sudden change of character as depicted here. As we said above, it touches life fairly accurately, contains some first-rate comedy—and is appropriately staged. And it offers a pleasant hour and a half.

BOOTH as an example of flapper expression at its highest peak and as entertainment, "Wine of Youth" (Metro-Goldwyn) leaves but little to ask for in the way of entertainment. It is similar to others of its cloth in that its theme brings forth that Youth of today is no different than when grandma was a girl. But where it surpasses the others is in its prodigality of scenes.

King Vidor, you are responsible for this effort. And you have brought out the jazz spirit here so that the picture eclipses anything heretofore presented along this line.

The heroine has her fling—a good, big one—then she sees the error of her ways, and accepts matrimony as the best solution of a conventional existence. She has been goaded into wedlock thru her quarrelsome parents, each of whom has accused the other of being responsible for Mary's streak of wildness. The picture is an adaptation of Rachel Crother's play, "Mary, the Third." And it moves at lively pace, offering one rich scene after another, until its climax, when Vidor allows it to become a preachment. The concluding scenes offer too much generalization on morals. Had it maintained its pace and not flirted with preachy advice it would have been almost perfect. It is capitally played by a group of the younger troupers who act in the modern sophisticated style called for in the story.

"B A B-BITT"
(Warner Brothers) is a dull, routine affair—which is minus the necessary spark to give it life. Sinclair Lewis' manner of writing takes in every detail. His is a photographic mind—and translating one of his stories calls for laborious labor. It isn't that the sponsors here haven't expended considerable effort to humanize Babbitt. It remains that Babbitt simply refuses to respond to camera treatment because it is mostly a study of character. So the parties who made it did the next best thing—they fashioned it along picture lines.

They have injected some drama, a faint dash of comedy, some character sketching—and a sprinkling of heart interest. And there is a note of the eternal triangle interlaced thru it. The story does not build much interest—and moves slowly without much flash of inspiration to its orthodox conclusion.

A picture came out some seasons ago entitled "A Gay Old Dog" which was much closer the truth—in its portrayal of a middle-aged man searching for youth and romance. Babbitt here is married and he has grown tired of domesticity. But the note of the obvious mind that symbolized Babbitt in the novel is missing. Babbitt spells boobery as Lewis interpreted it. But Willard Louis in the title-rôle is not the symbol of the man in the street

(Continued on page 94)

Upper left: Tom Mix in "The Heart Buster." Upper right: Irene Rich in "Behold This Woman." Center: Ernest Torrence in "The Side-Show of Life." Upper left: Marie Prevost and Monte Blue in "How to Educate a Wife." Upper right: Baby Peggy in "Captain January"

Pertinent and Impertinent Screen Comment

IF Rodolph, or Rudolph, or possibly Randolph by now, Valentino is the most talked about Film Fürst these days, Wallace Beery is certainly the most seen about.

✦ ✦ ✦

Probably if all the recent footage taken of Wallace Beery was connected in one long roll, it would reach from New York to Hollywood three times and there would still be enough left to make up nifty sport belts for Hope Hampton, Nita Naldi and Barbara La Marr.

✦ ✦ ✦

Or putting it another way, it would be only about two miles shorter than a picture directed by Eric von Stroheim, the man who loves to hate himself.

✦ ✦ ✦

There has been considerable pro and a whole lot of con about how funny a fat man really is, and we have consistently stood up and cheered with the contrary-minded. Nevertheless, it is our public opinion that if Walter Hiers could take over the Bawby Ephalunt stories of Holworthy Hall which are running in the Saturday Evening Post he would bust the movie rhinoceros-hide, as we sport writers say, for a circuit clout. The plots of the stories are not only highly ingenious and diverting, but the dialog is priceless. The material is, Lafayette, certainly there, and if Hiers' talents can stand the strain, and if Hall can keep them to stick to the text for the titles, another one of these new epochs—or is it epics—in the shining history of cinematography will have dawned.

As usual, we've broken the ice. And who's going to produce the hair-liniment?

✦ ✦ ✦

While we are on the subject, Tommie Muddin, of Charlot's Revue, says he wants to do a movie, or a series of shorts built around "Jarge," the rural lout, or oaf, who has made such a hit in the revue. In this case, all that is needed is someone intelligent enough to write him a script, and somebody else intelligent enough to direct it, and somebody else intelligent enough—but here! here! we're getting idealistic.

There is, we frequently notice, a touch of Socrates, Christ, Mohammed and St. Joan of Arc in our attitude toward the movies. Try as hard as we can, and that isn't so very hard, we cannot refrain from announcing—in a pleasant, conversational tone, to be sure, just what is wrong with the movie under inspection. And invariably the five rows in front of us, and the five rows in back of us grow very, very peeved—altho it's really all in their interest.

Eventually if we are not burned over a rotisserie grill, we expect we shall be dragged forth by a howling mob of movie fans and made to drink a Nedick orange drink.

✦ ✦ ✦

Speaking of Socrates, in his preface to "St. Joan," Shaw says, "he had no suspicion of the extent to which his mental superiority had roused fear and hatred against him in the hearts of men towards whom he was conscious of nothing but good will and good service."

Ah, that's the idea, exactly!

✦ ✦ ✦

Milton Sills, it is rumored, will play the title-rôle in "The Life of Christ."

We understand perfectly what faction is back of this subtle propaganda and we intend writing a letter to Henry Ford.

✦ ✦ ✦

IS MARRIAGE MARRIAGE?
(Twenty-ninth Instalment)

NOTE: The preceding instalments were mysteriously stolen from the back seat of an aquaplane while the author was crossing the Andes on roller skates. But dont let that worry you.

Essmore Dismal, our hero, after various adventures is finally driven by the friendly realtor to the shores of beautiful Lake Apopka. Here he leaves him, rather suddenly. Essmore, enchanted by the scenery, is wandering thru an orange grove when a grapefruit drops from a tree on his head and knocks him unconscious.

When he comes to, he finds his head in the lap of Guava Golightly, the girl he has come to Florida to seek. Insert:

Fate plays many strange tricks when Cupid winds the dice.

"Where am I?" asks Essmore, just as if the realtor hadn't been telling him about the natural beauties of citrus-growing Florida for five hundred and
(Continued on page 93)

Decoration
Thru the Courtesy of
Hal Roach Studios
Posed by Beth Darlington
and
Billie Beck

The New Contest

AND THE BEST

CLASSIC'S LIFE-STORY SCENARIO CONTEST

CLASSIC, after its seven years in the motion-picture field, has come to the conclusion, first, that ninety per cent. of movie fans after seeing ninety per cent. of the pictures come away believing that they could write as good a one, if not better; second, that their own story, if properly told, would make a more thrilling picture than any they have seen. This is not surmise—it is the inevitable conclusion of experienced facts.

Now:

Every human being has his story, no matter how drab or uninteresting he may appear on the surface. You remember your girlhood on the farm and the amazing thing that happened there, that you can never forget, that only three people knew about it. You remember when you first ran away from home as a mere boy, and the exciting adventures that you never dared tell, that you had before you got safely home. You remember that wild survey up in Canada and the dangers and hardships and loneliness; the forbidden voyage to the South Sea Islands; the mutiny; the railroad wreck; the fire and the heroism of the mysterious stranger; the curious neighbor that never left his house without an overcoat, no matter what the weather; the suspicious couple that drifted unexpectedly into your life and left as inexplicably as they had come; the dope raid in your own heretofore respectable neighborhood; your own love story that you have never told before; and so on ad infinitum. Life is full of thrills—they can't all have passed you by.

We want you to tell us your story, the story of your life, the thing that has happened to you that would serve as the nucleus for a moving picture. Dig deep in your memory—and find a movie plot, or just an idea, or an incident that could be elaborated into a scenario. More exciting things happen daily in real life than one could ever find on the screen. Truth is stranger than fiction no matter how often it has been said. Every fiction story has its counterpart in reality. Just read the daily papers; just keep your eyes open and your wits about you and you'll find a story in real life—if not your own story, your friend's, or your neighbor's. Life is nothing but stories, true stories that have been lived. You've got one—send it to us.

Never mind the form. This contest has nothing to do with literature. Correct spelling, a neat paper, big words, style, the proper approach—all these things that have been of importance in determining the winners of other contests, mean nothing here. It is the story we want—the idea—the plot. We'll put it in its proper form if it proves saleable. All you have to do is write it down as you remember it. All you really need is to know how to write!

Every month CLASSIC will publish three of these stories; the one judged best in the opinion of the editor and her staff will be awarded $15.00; the second, $10.00, and the third, $5.00. These three awards will be given every month as long as the contest lasts, so that your chances multiply indefinitely.

At the end of the contest Brewster Publications, Inc., will engage a competent author to develop the story or plot adjudged the best of all those submitted, published or unpublished, into a workable scenario and will use its influence and best effort to sell it to some producing company, whatever price obtained to be paid directly to the winner. Naturally, if accepted, your scenario will get publicity in all three of our magazines. You are also free to sell your story elsewhere, even if it has been published in CLASSIC, any time after the contest closes.

It seems to us that this is the opportunity of a lifetime. It is the sort of thing that practically everybody can try for, since it requires neither education, nor skill, nor any technical knowledge whatever. The moving picture is badly in need of original stories, real life stories. Through you, and you, and you, CLASSIC is going to supply them.

The rules are as simple as we can make them. You must follow them. They will be printed every month. Because of the enormous bulk of material we
(Continued on page 86)

THE RULES

1. No manuscripts will be returned.
2. Positively no exceptions will be made to Rule 1. Keep a copy.
3. Manuscripts must not exceed 600 words (about two typewritten pages).
4. Your name and address must be distinctly printed at the top of every manuscript. If you wish another name used, sign it at the end of the story.
5. Manuscripts are better typewritten, but long-hand will be accepted.
6. Address your manuscripts:

Life-Story Scenario Editor

MOTION PICTURE CLASSIC

175 Duffield Street Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE PRIZES

1. Every month as long as the contest lasts CLASSIC will print three Life Stories; the best to win $15.00; the second, $10.00; and the third, $5.00.
2. At the close of the contest, which will be announced later, Brewster Publications, Inc., will engage a competent author to develop the story or plot adjudged the best of all those submitted, published or unpublished, into a workable scenario and will use its influence and best effort to sell it to some producing company, whatever price obtained to be paid directly to the winner.

Watch each issue of CLASSIC for news, awards and announcements.

Flashes From the

Of the Stage

Caught by

THINGS theatrical are picking up after the summer slump that makes each year a quiet country lane of Broadway—almost.

There have been dozens of new openings and some of them have stuck. * * * After several disappointments with foreign revues early last season, André Charlot's revue upset the dope and now, confident that novelties from abroad are fixtures, Arch Selwyn already has arranged for a second revue by Charlot. Prior, however, will come "Rue de la Paix," with a cast of international names: Raquel Meller, Grock, the clown, the Russian Lilliputians (who originated the "parade of the wooden soldiers"), Maurice and Leonora Hughes, Ivor Novello, and Patou, the Parisian fashion designer. Because of the wealth of revues nominated for New York in the fall, "Rue de la Paix" has been timed to enter after the others, about November 1st. * * * Edward Laemmle, Universal director, is making shots of the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupré near Quebec, for use in Clarence Budington Kelland's story, "Miracle," which is being filmed. * * * Judith Anderson, who plays the wicked, wicked lady in "Cobra," was greatly incensed recently when a letter, addressed merely to the wickedest woman in New York, was marked "Try Judith Anderson, Hudson Theater," by some one in the Post Office Department. The letter was a scathing arraignment of women vampires, and altho the actress takes pride in her realistic work, she thinks that is going a bit far. Altho Miss Anderson has been signed by David Belasco for several years and will appear in a play under his management in the fall, the idea has occurred to Mr. Williams, of the Ritz Pictures Corporation, that she

Underwood & Underwood

Above: Hope Hampton, who will sing the title-rôle of "Madame Pompadour," an operetta, in her first stage venture

Above: Little Charlie Gould, who plays Tom in Kingsley's "The Water Babies," can stay under water eighty-eight seconds

Sasha, London

Above: Bebe Daniels in a blonde wig and Richard Dix in a merry moment from "Sinners In Heaven." Right: Adele Astaire and her mother and her husband Fred, who are leaving their London triumphs to come home to star in a comedy by Guy Bolton

Eastern Stars

On the Screen

the Editor

can be arranged with Mr. Belasco remains to be seen, but so favorably impressed was Mr. Williams by the acting of the young star that he is endeavoring to arrange it. * * * Rehearsals of Billie Burke's latest vehicle, tentatively called "Annabelle," which her husband, Florenz Ziegfeld, will produce this season, have begun on the lawn of the country estate leased by the producer on Long Island.

Edward Royce is staging the piece. Ernest Truex plays the male lead. Clare Kummer, author of the play, is directing most of the rehearsals in conjunction with Mr. Royce. * * *

Richard Barthelmess is completing "Classmates" at the Tec-Art Studios which they leased for this picture. The company just returned from Florida where some exteriors were shot. * * * William Brush, producer of Kingsley's "The Water Babies," is in Miami, Florida, trying to persuade a sword fish and a shark to give him a mortal combat for his picture. He is going to stay aboard his lugger until he gets it. Mr. Brush has selected little Charles Gould for the rôle of "Tom." Charlie has a record of remaining under water eighty-eight seconds which is supposed to be the world's record. * * * It is considered likely Madge Kennedy will be seen this fall in Lynn Starling's new comedy, "In His Arms," which was tried out on the coast this summer by Margaret Lawrence. * * * While abroad, Gilbert Miller saw "Antonia," which his company will present here, and he brought back a translation by Somerset Maugham of Luigi Chiarelli's "The Mask and the Face." Mr. Miller also obtained the rights for American presentation of Barrie's "Shall We Join the Ladies?"

would be a very good bet to play the part which she created on the stage in a picture version. Whether her appearance in the film

International News Reel

Above: Dorothy Dalton and her new husband, Arthur Hammerstein, returning from their honeymoon

Abbé

Above: The Dolly Sisters with their best friend, Pearl White, pose together before the Dollys left Paris for the United States to star in the new "Greenwich Village Follies." Left: Two of our own movie stars in an English film called "Swords and the Woman." They are Pedro de Cordoba and Holmes Herbert

Above: Allan Conner as Alexander Hamilton in the picture of the same name. The likeness is said to be remarkable

Puffer

Above: Flora Le Breton directing her director, E. H. Griffith, in "Another Scandal." Right: The first of the "Follies" girls to get her millionaire, Addie Rolph, now Mrs. Cecil Sillman, posing on the most famous fire-escape in the world, that behind the New Amsterdam Theater which houses the "Ziegfeld Follies"

* * * Eve Stuyvesant, well-known scenario writer, together with Helen Klumph and Elizabeth Stuyvesant, have incorporated The Stuyvesant Pictures to produce a series of split reels featuring famous women of our time. The company intends making a pictorial hall of fame or historical record in motion-pictures of what women are doing in the way of world's work. * * * Recently, while making "Dixie" in Charleston, S. C., Allan Conner, who plays the lead, met Charles Durand, millionaire clubman, and the latter became so interested in picture making that he took an active part in the picture. Both Mr. Durand and Allan Conner are expert duelists, and in one of the scenes for the picture a duel was staged. Unfortunately Mr. Conner wounded Mr. Durand so badly that he was taken to a hospital. * * * Hope Hampton bought more than one hundred gowns while in Paris recently. Francs, Miss Hampton said, were selling at twenty-eight for one American dollar the week she selected the gowns and she quickly learned to compute the price of the raiment in dollars and cents as soon as it was announced to her by the shopkeepers. But alas, when she went to pay for the gowns which she had selected, she learned that only seventeen francs could be purchased for a dollar! And so that shopping expedition cost Miss Hampton nearly ten thousand dollars more than she had expected!

* * * The McCall Publishing Company will produce a series of fashion films which probably will be called "Notes for Women," in which Miss Hampton will star with her one hundred Paris gowns. A regular story has been woven and the film will not be merely a fashion parade. Miss Hampton plans to go abroad at least twice a year to bring back gowns for the McCall series. This is the first time that any such thing has been attempted on the screen and it should prove interesting as well as profitable. * * *

© Keystone View

An exciting moment from Commissioner Enright's screen serial, "Into the Net." Both Jack Mulhall and the cameraman risked their life on Brooklyn Bridge for this stunt Horace Liveright, book publisher, heads a new firm of theatrical producers just incorporated with offices at 61 West Forty-eighth Street. Four plays, including one musical comedy, already have been obtained by the firm for October production. The first offering will be an American comedy by Edwin Justus Mayer, a young author, with scenery and costumes by Lee Simonson. * * * A new Owen Davis play is scheduled for early presentation under the management of Lewis & Gordon. It is entitled "The Haunted House." Wallace Eddinger will be the principal player. This piece was tried out at the tag end of last season under the name of "Find the Woman," and later as "The Long Arm." * * * After an out-of-town tour "The Green Beetle," by John Willard, is to be brought into the Klaw Theater early this month. * * * Herbert Brenon is in New York chafing to begin

(Continued on page 97)

In a California Garden

BEING THE FOURTH OF CLASSIC'S "FINE ARTS" SERIES

This lovely spot is a corner of one of the many beautiful gardens of the Jewett Estate in Pasadena, which was most generously loaned for the exteriors of First National's "Single Wives." An appropriate setting for Corinne Griffith, who starred in this picture, we think. This one charming view is a perfect example of what the screen can do to bring beauty to those whose lives lack it altogether. If one can't have, one can at least see lovely things, merely by going to the movies

Fictionized by permission from the Marshall Neilan production of the screen adaptation by Dorothy Farnum of Thomas Hardy's famous novel

IT all seemed so queer like, thought Tess, watching the hot red moon behind the haystacks. Harvest moon again, a farm dog baying somewhere beyond the downs, the doves making a sound like running water in the thatched eaves, and she sitting here in the dimsey—waiting—

Like as if, thought Tess, it was meant somehow. Always it was that way, things just seemed to happen. She was like that leaf there blown along the ground by the wind. It had to go the way the wind sent it, and the wind was strong and cruel. There was no use trying to hold against the wind. Her arms which had been cradling something invisible fell listlessly at her sides. Leaves—blown into the hedges—or into bonfires—leaves blown among tall stones, strange, grey, old stones—

"I must be fey!" Tess whispered, "why should I always be dreaming of stones standing on end? And yet—it frightens me sore—that dream—" a shudder ran thru her slight frame, "they're so cold—"

Thru the shadows a deeper shadow was moving toward her. Tess knew well who came, yet she watched him coming with horror washing in a chill tide over her soul. The moon-flashed night became another night when the Wessex woods and fields of her childhood had looked to her waking eyes unfamiliar under a pallid moon, like the dead body of a loved friend. In the pale light the face that she lifted to Angel Clare was stamped with fear.

"Why, Tess!" he said, in that gentleman's voice of his that was the echo of another voice, "Why, Tess, my dear little girl—did I startle you?"

Fear and the weight of memory slipped from her spirit as she looked up into the sensitive, clear-cut face that made her think of Saint Michael's in the stained glass window of the church. Angel Clare was beautiful, rather than handsome, but his slight figure in its rough homespun farm garb had a man's strength. Yesterday he had lifted a sick sheep in his arms and carried it from the fields to the byre, crooning to it all the way like a mother soothing a sick child. And today she had seen that nervous, slender hand double into a fist and knock down a hulking yokel who was teasing a dairymaid.

"No I beant afeard—I'm not afraid," she corrected herself, cheeks scorched with shame of her uncouth tongue.

Angel Clare laughed as he sat down on the bench beside her. But there was no mockery in the sound, rather a rushing tenderness. "Dont be ashamed of your Wessex dialect. Tess! With your face it gives you a charming air of a great lady masquerading as a milkmaid—for you have birth and family in every line of you!"

"He gave me no peace," Tess pleaded, "but I knew 'twas not the right way of loving. . . . I begged him to let me go"

The small head beside him with its crown of hair like metallic gold lifted with an odd pride. "Please, Mr. Clare! I've told you afore that I'm from very humble folk, born and reared in a cottage. Father did odd jobs for the gentry and there was never food nor clothes enough to go around the six of us children——"

"Durbeyville——" mused Angel Clare, unheeding her piteous attempt to change the trend of his thought, "it might easily be the corruption of some noble name. Our old families have always had branches that went to seed. I must look it up and find a crest for Tess to wear——" he took her hand, but it was snatched from him suddenly. Tess had leaped to her feet, small bosom rising and falling with stormy breaths.

"I tell ee I daont want to be gentry!" all her hard-won precision of speech forgotten, she swept on into the broad vowels of her childhood, "us was happy and hard-working till Parson, he comes to the cottage wi' a tale as we ought rightly to be D'Urberville. Seems like he'd looked us up in a book he had, and when my feyther gets it in ee head as he's got blue blood he's too proud to do an honest day's work and spends his time in the Three Highwaymen drinkin' and tellin' folk how grand he be till he drank hissell under sod."

"D'Urberville!" cried Angel Clare, giving the word the correct pronunciation. There was a triumphant note in his voice as tho answering some question in his own soul. Homespun and heavy boots he might wear, and work at Talbothays' farm in order to learn how to manage a dairy farm of his own, but—the Clares had been gentlefolk since Alfred's reign, and he never forgot that fact even in his sleep. "Why, Tess! Do you realize that's a fine name—a great name?" He saw that she was trembling violently, and drew her down beside him, "There! There! We wont talk about it any more, you queer, proud little thing! We'll talk about something else—something that I came out here to tell you tonight, Tess——"

He thought that that was true, swept away from his life-long moorings by the warm, sweet nearness of her, the touch of her hair on his face, "I love you—nothing's been the same since I saw you six weeks ago, coming in at the gate with your little bag—I've—I've been wanting to tell you so ever since, but I didn't dare! You're such an easily frightened little thing, Tess!"

His hands were gentle on hers that fluttered like quivering bird wings, his eyes looked down at her with the clear light—she thought—of the candles on the church altar of a Sunday. Why did she remember eyes that held the hot flame of bonfires—bonfires that consume wind-swept leaves?

"I want you for my wife, Tess," said Angel Clare. Perhaps there was just a trace of vaingloriousness in his attitude, a hint that not every fellow in his position would have said that, but if there were she did not understand. It seemed to her that she would die of worship for this godlike being who had come down from his stained-glass window to the common ground. Yet she sat silent, staring with sick eyes at the hot red harvest moon which lighted the hayrick with ghostly flames.

"Of course," said Angel Clare, with a new note of humility, "I know I'm not good enough for you, dear."

"Good enough," thought Tess. "Oh God, him not good enough for me!"

"I've always known I would have to tell the woman I wanted to marry," went on Clare, almost with a fanatic's pride of confession. "But years ago when I was only a boy I went to London for a school vacation——" it was a common enough experience he had to relate, that of an ignorant boy initiated into sin by a woman he met in a restaurant, a tawdry little incident of a night of gin and love in a red-papered room over a pub, but it had evidently assumed terrible proportions in his eyes from

"It died," whispered Tess, "the parson wouldn't baptize it so I did it myself. Such a little pretty baby . . . but it died"

Angel Clare discovers that poor Tess Durbeyfield is one of a fine old family formerly called D'Urberville, whereupon he asks her to marry him

North Country parson, his father, and that daughter of a Squire, his mother.

And then—for he was only a boy and very much stirred by the white loveliness of this girl, the dross of self was gone from the moment and only the gold remained. He took her gently into his arms and held her close, murmuring broken words—"Tess—so beautiful—love—always and always—"

A little wind came up sending a shower of leaves dancing by in gay carousal. A lamb in the near-by byre made a thin plaintive sound. Why, thought Tess, when she was safe in Angel Clare's arms must she be minded of other arms, ruthless—terribly strong? Would it be so always? No, no, thought Tess, she would be happy, she must be happy—

And the wind whirled the leaves on and on.

The master and mistress of Talbothays would have given them a fine country wedding with hearty eating and drinking and dancing in the great kitchen, but long brooding on it. His sensitive soul had been scorched by the everlasting fires.

Tess listened, hardly hearing his stumbling abasement, and happiness which had seemed so far away and impossible a moment ago suddenly reached out a hand to her. She who could never, now, marry a stained-glass saint perhaps might still be the wife of a human being who had sinned and suffered and who could understand—the way of leaves in the wind. Strangely enough, he grew only the dearer for his sordid little story, for his ludicrous fall. And then, at the end of it, his head went down on her knees she gathered it against her breast with mother-tenderness.

"There, there, my deary! I'm glad you told me—glad!"

"Then in spite of what I did you can still love me?" Angel asked humbly, and yet complacently—for after all not every man would have confessed! "You will marry me, Tess—Tess of the D'Urbervilles!" He gave the name its aristocratic form. Tho he had loved Tess as he had told her, since her first coming to work in the dairy at Talbothays, he loved her even more now that he felt her connected with the nobility. She would be easier to explain to the narrow-minded old Angel Clare refused in that gentleman's way of his. "We shall go to her people in Wessex," he explained.

Tess said nothing at first when he spoke of his plan to her, only one small hand went up to her throat and for a moment her eyes seemed to look on some terrible thing. Then she laughed it off—no, she wouldn't go home, nor to his home either! She wanted no staring folk eating her up with their greedy eyes and making a fuss!

Angel Clare remembered afterward the way she had clung to him, as tho something was tearing her away. "No one at our wedding, dear heart! Just the parson and you and me—and God!"

On his wedding eve Angel walked for miles across field and down, wondering at the beauty of the world, a-tremble with his own happiness. But Tess knelt all night by her window gazing into the darkness with desolate eyes. "Maybe I'll never tell him," she whispered once, then in passionate denial, "Why should I be afear'd! He will understand. He'll see that it wasna my fault—'twas meant to be—I'll tell him afore we go to the church—" her hands wrung together convulsively, "—or maybe afterward!"

The eglantine was a-bloom on all the hedges when Tess and Angel

TESS OF THE D'URBERVILLES

A Marshall Neilan production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Starring Blanche Sweet. The cast:

Tess.....Blanche Sweet
 Angel Clare.....Conrad Nagel
 Alec D'Urberville.....Stuart Holmes
 John Durbeyfield.....George Fawcett
 Joan Durbeyfield.....Victory Bateman
 Dick.....Courtenay Foote
 South American Priest.....Joseph J. Dowling

Clare walked along the road to the village the next day. Their simple luggage was to follow on a carter's wagon and after they were married they would take a train for the next town. The kind mistress of Talbothays had helped Tess make the plain white dress she wore, commenting slyly the while thru a mouthful of pins, "Well, well, art thin as a rail, my deary! Ess fay! But never mind—a raft of young 'uns will plumpen 'ee up wunnerful! Why, what's amiss, lass! Did I stick 'ee wi' a pin that you try to jump ontoen your skin?"

Tess was feverishly gay, pulling roses from the hedge and tearing them to tatters with restless fingers. The molten gold of her hair dazzled Angel's eyes. It made a radiance in the dark little church with the smell of mold and candle grease that he, a parson's son, had learned to associate with religion. It seemed the only living thing in a world of shadows as they whirred endlessly thru green English landscape afterward and later sought supper and lodging in the busy shire town.

When at last they were alone in a clean, bare little room high above the rattling carts and clamor of tongues in the market square, he took Tess into his arms and they stood so for a long time, not speaking, while the flickering candle cast a grotesque shadow embrace upon the whitewashed wall. "Are you happy, Tess?" he whispered, and she answered almost defiantly, "Yes! I am happy."

"Do you know why I came here?" Angel Clare asked, presently. "I played a little trick on you, darling! You asked where we were going, but I didn't tell you it was to Marlott—" he laughed boyishly, "I'm jealous, Tess! Jealous of the long years when I didn't know you.

So we're going to your home village and you shall show me all the places where you played when you were a fat little girl with tow-colored pigtails!"

He stopped, for Tess had made a strange sound. Step by step she drew away from him till she was standing against the wall. Something in the stricken face she turned toward him warned him not to follow. Then her arms dropped helplessly. "See!" said Tess in a dead tone, "things just happen wi'out our contriving. I thought I'd never see Marlott again—and I'm going there on my wedding trip!" She laughed rather dreadfully.

At the top of the page: Tess and Angel Clare on their honeymoon, at last alone in a clean little bare room, high above the rattling carts and clamor of tongues in the market square, Tess tells her story. . . . Left: "I . . . killed him," said Tess. "I suppose they will hang me, wont they? 'Tis proper queer how things come—I never wanted to be wicked and now I must be hung—"

"Tess!" said Angel Clare. His face had grown hard and stern, a stranger's face staring horrified at her, "what—can you mean?"

In the silence the bang of the shutters as some tradesman closed his shop for the night came to their ears, and the light, empty sound of a girl's laugh.

"I'll tell 'ee!" said Tess, stonily, "you'd hear it anyhow afore you'd been ten minutes in Marlott. There was little else they talked about when I ran away to be beyond the clack of their tongues——"

It was a year and a bit more ago—said Tess—that her father got it into his head that he was by rights one of the D'Urbervilles and after that nothing would do but they must claim kin with the family that lived in a grand house on the hill beyond the village. By night nor day her mother would give her no peace till she promised to go to the D'Urberville house and ask them to do something for their blood relations. And at last she went, tho she thought she'd die of shame telling the parson's silly guess to the haughty lady, and seeing her smile so scornful like.

But the lady's son, Alec D'Urberville, a fine young gentleman with rings on his fingers, was there, too, and he spoke up and begged his mother to give her work in the poultry yard. So she stayed on in the grand house and Alec D'Urberville——

"He gave me no peace," Tess pleaded, and now her stony calm was gone and she rushed on wildly, "he told me he loved me, but I knew 'twas not the right way of loving and I tried to keep away from him. I begged him to let me be but he only laughed—and then one night I was walking home from town with some o' the other maids and they started quarreling and shoving, and Alec D'Urberville came riding by and offered to drive me to the big house himself. I was afeared of the girls, for they'd been drinking so I climbed into the cart with him and I fell asleep——"

Sobs choked her. Thru them came Angel Clare's voice, harsh with scorn, "And I was afraid to kiss you! God! What a fool I've been!"

She ran to him, with frantic hands, "but I wasna to blame! I was asleep and when I woke up—I wanted to die! Angel, dont look at me like that. Why—why you look just like the rest of 'em when I come home wi' my shame——"

He moved his rigid lips with an effort, "——you mean—you have a—child?"

"It died," whispered Tess. Unconsciously her arms made a cradling motion, "the parson wouldn't baptize it so I did it myself wi' a basin of water. Such a little pretty baby, Angel—but it died. And I couldn't bear the staring eyes and the whispers, so I went away. And then I met you and it seemed maybe God was sorry and was going to give me a chance to be happy after all."

He put her away not ungently and strode to the window, frowning out into the darkness, "and you let me marry you——"

"But you told me—about that night in Lunnon——" Tess pleaded, "it didn't make me love you the less! After all, how am I different than I was? I always wanted to be good!"

He had loved her very much, tremulously like a boy, bitterly like a man, and the struggle between love and hurt pride was a sharp one. But after all he had been the lover but a few weeks, and he had been Angel Clare, the parson's son, for twenty-four years. The end was marked from the beginning, tho it did not come until after devastating hours of tears and futile words and fierce spasms of rage on his part toward the man who had insolently stolen what belonged to him.

Toward morning Tess, sunk upon the floor by the window, fell into the troubled sleep of utter exhaustion to dream of great grey stones towering over her and when she awoke Angel Clare was gone. A note pinned with some bills to the window sill said briefly that he thought it best for both of them not to see each other again. "I am going to South America," he wrote, "I love you, but things cant ever be the same after what you've told me. If you need money write to my father——" he gave the address and that was all.

In the grey dawn beyond the window a tiny object whirled by, a leaf borne on the gust. The easy relief of tears was beyond Tess now. She had wept herself dry thru the dreadful scenes of the night. In a stony calm she took off the crumpled white bridal dress, put on a coarse clean smock from her bag, and smoothed the heavy gold of her hair. "When there's nothing more as can happen to 'ee," she said to the white face in the glass, "you're safe."

This fatalistic sense of being driven by forces outside of her went with Tess Durbeyville thru the drab days that followed when—back in her native village again—she moved automatically thru the old familiar drudgery, unheeding the avid stares of old crones who paused by the gate to watch her, unheeding her mother's perpetual whine. "Live on fat o' the land 'ee could, an' a'd rather see her own brothers an' sisters starve, an' the mother who bore 'ee!"

Tess knew that she referred to Alec D'Urberville and the money she might be able to get out of him. She knew that their situation was growing desperate and that soon something must be done or they would be put out of the miserable cottage, but it was the hungry wails of her youngest brother which finally pierced the numbness of her heart. They were a little like the thin plaint of the hapless scrap of life that she had held for a short few weeks in her arms.

And when Alec D'Urberville rode his curveting black horse down the winding street, flung the bridle rein to a
(Continued on page 76)

In the grim grey shadows of Stonehenge the "strange men" find Tess

Star Light A Billion Dollar Cast

The combined glory of this group would outshine the sun. We never saw so many stars together before. The occasion was a party that Conway Tearle gave in honor of Ethel Barrymore at the conclusion of her Los Angeles theatrical engagement. The group includes: Conway Tearle, Ethel Barrymore, Laurette Taylor, Bessie Love, George Archainbaud, Natalie, Constance and Norma Talmadge, Leatrice Joy, Colleen Moore, Theda Bara, Donald Brian, Vivian Martin, George Fitzmaurice, Percy Marmont, Buster Keaton, Ernest Torrence, Owen Moore, John McCormick, John Gilbert and others. How many can you recognize?

Rex, King of

His Story

THE making of "Rex, King of Wild Horses," featuring a wild horse, under the Hal Roach banner, has marked a new epoch in the production of animal pictures. It has brought to the screen the impossible, and in days to come will bring many more new pictures of real, original and interesting entertainment.

When it was decided to make "The King of Wild Horses," Hal Roach very naturally wanted the best man obtainable to handle the selection, training, and direction of the animal. He wanted a man who could go out on the ranges, get a real wild horse, tame it sufficiently without breaking its spirit, to carry the lead in this picture. There was little doubt in the producer's mind as to what man he wanted, and he succeeded in gaining the services of Chick Morrison, the dean of horsemen.

After a search thru several states, Morrison found Rex, an untamed, yet registered stallion in Colorado. It may seem peculiar to the reader to call Rex a real wild horse and at the same time say that he is a registered Morgan stallion, but the following few lines will explain this complex. When this horse was but a colt, he displayed every sign of what might be called meanness. He was treacherous and dangerous and developed an extreme hatred for man. Deciding to leave him alone for a while, as he was yet too young for commercial purposes, his owner gave him the freedom of the range. The call of the wild was greater than that of civilization and after a short while he became a character not unlike the "Black," which he portrays in the picture. Many attempts were made to capture him, none meeting with success.

Rex and his trainer, the late "Chick" Morrison

Wild Horses

By TOM REEVES

The State Reformatory, located in the little town of Golden, found themselves in need of a work horse. The most economical thing for them to do was to take a horse from the range. In their search, Rex was discovered. His beauty attracted them. Several times individuals attempted a capture, but in vain. A round-up took place and they succeeded in driving the stallion into a large corral. The next move was to rope and break him. Many attempts were made which resulted in serious injury to the participants and to one, even death. They gave up the job as hopeless and driving him into a box-stall, left him unmolested. Even those who fed him did so with the greatest caution. It was then that Morrison appeared on the scene.

After an examination of the animal, he knew that Rex was the horse he wanted. Of course, having gone thru the excitement of being captured, which was none too gentle, the horse had increased his hatred for man. Such a thing as kindness from a human was beyond his imagination. Overcoming this was Morrison's task. It cost him a good deal, from a physical standpoint, to do this. He was kicked, stamped, bitten and pawed by Rex, many, many times. Morrison's leg was broken twice during the production of this picture. Each time thru the treachery of Rex. But this did not stop him. It was really pitiful to watch him hobble around on crutches, talking to Rex, telling him to do this and that.

That's how Rex was trained. Not thru beating, but by first being shown, using a certain set of words or phrases in explaining. This same set of words were used

(Continued on page 83)

Havral

Alexandresca

This interesting woman is considered a great beauty in her own country, Roumania. By any standards she is fascinating. She lends atmosphere and color to Rex Ingram's picture, "The Arab." Let us hope the screen will keep her

The Hollywood

Transcribed by

Above is Bessie Love answering her fan mail probably. Right is "Peter the Great," a rival of Strongheart, and his trainer, or should one say director, Chester Franklin. They are making "The Silent Accuser"

BEN TURPIN finds that the business of acting is taking too much of his time. It interferes with the progress of his art. Ben's favorite form of art is acting as an amateur traffic cop.

It began some time ago when an enterprising publicity man arranged to have Ben boss the traffic on one of the busiest corners in the business section. The experiences that he had that afternoon were like strong drink to a reformed inebriate. Every other experience in life has become tame by contrast.

Every afternoon, at six o'clock, Ben takes his station at the corner of Western Avenue and Santa Monica Boulevard—in the heart of Hollywood's heaviest traffic. Until eight o'clock, he stands there like an island in a swirling sea and bosses the passing motorists. The official glare that he gives offending chauffeurs is said to be particularly terrifying from the famous eyes built on the bias. Meanwhile Mrs. Turpin stands on the corner and watches him, simply transfixed with admiration.

Ben excused himself reluctantly from his duties the other day and I hauled him over to a corner behind a telephone post where he told me about it.

"No more of this actin' stuff for me," he said. "Wha' do I want to act fer? I got all the money I want; got lots of property and everything; my wife isn't so well and I gotta stay home and keep her company." Ben says that the producers are trying to get him to sign another contract, so he might slip back to play acting after all. Meanwhile he will not lack for entertainment—not while the traffic trundles on down the boulevard.

* * *

Charles Brabin, who is suing the Mayer - Goldwyn - Metro corporation because he was ousted as director of "Ben Hur," is returning to Hollywood. He is going to direct Colleen Moore in Edna Ferber's "So Big." This will be a big change from Colleen's flapper stories. She plays the part of a worn and weather-beaten woman who earns her own living by running a vege-

Left: They are using everything in First National's "The Lost World," from a dinosaur to a baby. This is the baby and another small actor whose name we didn't get Clarence Badger and Laurette Taylor lunching on location, while making "One Night in Rome." Dont they look cool and comfortable and satisfied?

Boulevardier Chats

HARRY CARR

table farm. Possibly to get herself en rapport with the part, Colleen has planted her whole back yard full of cabbages.

* * *

Wallace Beery, who has the distinction of having been the first husband of Gloria Swanson, is about to be married again. The bride is Rita Gilman, a motion picture actress. Wallace is building a very handsome home in Hollywood. In the process of building, his contractor suddenly left for parts unknown; wherefore Wallace had to pay all the gentleman's bills to the hired help. The consequence is that his house cost him just double the contract price.

* * *

A sprightly young lady who runs a gossip column in a local newspaper has brought word to a breathless and astonished world about "slave bracelets." It appears that the thing to do is to present your favored swain with a bracelet showing ownership. It seems that Ben Lyon is wearing one and the young lady writer has a feeling that it was Barbara La Marr who gave it to him; and John Bowers has one and Lois Wilson gave one to Richard Dix. Constance Talmadge, to tease her sister Natalie, has presented a slave bracelet to Buster Keaton, her brother-in-law.

* * *

Irene Rich returned to Hollywood from Europe the other day, and the Warner Brothers gave an immense luncheon in her honor. Irene thrilled everybody to the marrow bones by telling them how she went to the Queen of England's lawn party and another time, danced with the Prince of Wales. She said all they talked about was the movies.

* * *

Probably to start the right trains of thought in operation, many yearning Hollywood girls are having themselves photographed as Peter Pan. Gladys Hulette says that she wanted to have some publicity stills taken in a Peter Pan costume recently. Every Peter Pan costume in every costum-

Above is Nazimova greeting her director, Edwin Carewe, before beginning her return picture, "Madonna of the Streets." Left is Dorothy Mackaill trying to get fat on five quarts of milk a day

Right is Beverly Bayne, the wife of Francis X. Bushman, who is making "Her Marriage Vow," while her husband is in Italy working in "Ben Hur"

Young Mr. Ben Lyon, who has been in the limelight lately, getting an eyeful during the making of "The White Moth" er's store in town was "out" except one; and that one was literally worn to rags by over-use. Every copy of the book has been worn to pieces in the public library by ambitious young ladies seeking to get themselves into practice—if it should happen.

* * *

The month of August, by official decree of the Mayor of Los Angeles, was set apart as "Better Film Month" with street parades and all sorts of public demonstrations. The object is to stimulate interest in pictures. The big exhibitors are alarmed at the falling off in attendance. It is estimated that the daily attendance, which was 20,000,000 in the years between 1912 and 1915, has fallen off to about 5,000,000. The general opinion of picture producers is that this is not due to poorer pictures; the trouble is high prices for tickets.

* * *

Will Hays is in Hollywood at the time of this writing. He is making a great crusade against off-color pictures and off-color advertising. He made an address before a meeting of the Wampas (an association of motion picture advertising men) at which he hurled fire and brimstone against the practice of placing decent pictures before the public thru the medium of smutty advertisements.

* * *

Ora Carew's domestic affairs, which usually keep the public keyed up to a pitch of excitement, took another turn last week. Miss Carew accepted a vaudeville engagement at a local house. The second day of her appearance she appealed to the police for an armed guard because she explained that her husband, John C. Howard, was jealous of the theater manager. Mr. Howard is, by occupation, a manufacturer of salad dressing. It is suggested that he has too much paprika in his cosmos.

* * *

Shirley Mason has announced her engagement to Harlan Fengler, a dashing young automobile race driver. They are to be married in the fall.

* * *

Word comes to Hollywood by the way of private letters that Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, the first, is having hard sledding in Paris. She has dropped the name of her second husband and calls herself Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks again. She is said to have lost a lot of money in the film ventures of her son, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., whose brief picture career was a tragic failure. His one picture, "Stephen Steps Out," is down on the list as one of the worst selling pictures of the year.

* * *

Alice Terry has announced that she is a blonde for keeps. For one of the first times of her film career, she appeared with her own hair in "The Arab." Having taken one look at herself, Miss Terry has taken a never-again pledge.

* * *

Oddly enough, the three women who are always directed in pictures by their beloved husbands have all dis-

(Continued on page 70)

At the top of the page is Ben Turpin in "Two Weeks," burlesquing von Stroheim and Elinor Glyn all in one picture. Above is Fox's baby star, Marion Nixon, getting a free ride in "The Circus Cowboy." Right is George Fitzmaurice with Irene Bordoni, the popular musical comedy star, and Samuel Goldwyn

GLORIA GOULD tells why the care of the skin is vital

"THE WOMEN of the younger set today never permit the strain of many engagements or the attacks of wind and sun to mar the smooth delicacy of their complexions.

"Fatigue and exposure can leave no trace on the skin that is cared for by Pond's Two Creams. They are really remarkable."

Gloria Gould

Gloria Gould's lovely ivory complexion bespeaks exquisite care

GLORIA GOULD, who has recently become Mrs. Gloria Gould Bishop, is the youngest—and many think the loveliest—daughter of one of America's oldest families of great wealth. She commands a unique position in New York's exclusive younger social set.

When in the cream-and-blue drawing room of her smart East Side apartment she gave me her views on the care of the skin, the simple friendliness of her manner delighted me, but still more, her vividness, her enthusiasm. Even her lovely ivory skin seemed to breathe life.

"Mrs. Bishop," I asked, "what in your opinion is the most important factor in a woman's looks?"

"Three things, I think," prompted Gloria Gould, "are vital to the woman who wants to keep an important place in the social world. Fine eyes, white teeth and a lovely skin. The latter, luckily, any woman may possess, if only she'll take the right care."

Then we spoke of the young women of her set, who in their need to keep themselves looking fresh and lovely have turned to Pond's Two Creams which prevent all weariness from showing and keep the complexion satin-smooth and exquisitely protected.

The first step in the Pond's Method is a thorough daily cleansing of the skin with Pond's Cold Cream. Smooth it on generously over the face and neck. With a soft cloth wipe it all off, and rejoice at the black look the cloth gives you! Repeat the process, finishing with a dash of cold water or a brisk rub with ice.

The second step in the Pond's Method is to smooth over your freshly cleansed face a light film of Pond's Vanishing Cream. Do this before powdering and especially before going out into the wind, sun, dust or cold. This delicate cream renders a four-fold service—it protects the skin from the weather, gives it a soft, smooth finish, holds rouge and powder evenly and long, and freshens and rests it amazingly.

Like Gloria Gould and the other smart young women of the exclusive social set, you can have an exquisite complexion. Begin today with Pond's Two Creams. Their daily use will keep your skin exquisite and with Gloria Gould you'll agree they "are really remarkable!" Pond's Extract Company.

On Gloria Gould's dressing table stand Pond's Two Creams which keep the complexion exquisite despite the strain of social life

- | | | |
|---------------------------|---|-------------------------|
| THE PRINCESSE MATCHABELLI | ✓ | MRS. O. H. P. BELMONT |
| MRS. CORDELIA BIDDLE DUKE | ✓ | THE VICOMTESSE DE FRISE |
| MRS. MARSHALL FIELD, SR. | ✓ | MRS. JULIA HOYT |
| THE DUCHESSE DE RICHELIEU | ✓ | LADY DIANA MANNERS |

These are among the women of distinguished taste and high position who have expressed their approval of the Pond's Method of caring for the skin and of Pond's Two Creams.

FREE OFFER—Mail this coupon at once and we will send you free tubes of these two famous creams

THE POND'S EXTRACT COMPANY, DEPT. K
145 Hudson Street, New York

Please send me your free tubes, one each of Pond's Cold and Vanishing Creams.

Name

Address

City State

Dick at West Point

Below is Dick, dressed as a plebe, with John Robertson, his director, and Cadet Officer E. L. Johnson. Left is Dick (first row) in a real plebe drill

Above is the winning West Point class marching out to take the Oath of Allegiance. Dick is among them. Below, he stands with Mary Hay, his wife

For Richard Barthelmess' next picture, "Classmates," a West Point background was needed and the courtesy of our finest military college was extended to this young star. They spent several days up on the Hudson shooting

The young cadets got the thrill of their lives being in the picture with Barthelmess, and some interesting and original material was shot

Left is the fine old entrance gate where many scenes were taken. The routine was not disturbed, Dick was just included in the drilling

Women who use the right shade of powder are never obviously "powdered"

Your powder should always complement the color-tone of your skin—and be applied to cover it evenly.

MME. JEANNETTE

SOMETIMES we have the experience of seeing a woman approaching us on the street and we have a horrible feeling that her face is deformed. Then when she reaches us we see a very pretty person with her nose so powdered that it is accented out of all proportion to her face.

This unpleasant result is especially noticeable if the wrong shade of powder is used.

The shade of your powder should match the natural tone of your skin. If we are of the Caucasian race, we all naturally think we are "white" women, and therefore must use white powder. This is a mistake—there are several gradations of color-tone in our skins. Even sisters are frequently found whose skin-tones are as different as though they belonged to different races. So we should study our skin and determine its classification.

In a general way, there are four distinct tones of skin found among the women of America—the medium, the very dark, the white, and the pink skin. And because of this fact there are four shades of Pompeian Beauty Powder—a right shade of powder for every typical skin.

The Medium skin is more variable than the others. It is harder to determine, for it is frequently found with light or dark hair, light or dark eyes, or combinations of middle shades.

The medium tone of skin is neither milk-white nor swarthy, it is pleasantly warm in tone, with faint suggestions of old ivory, and fleeting suggestions of sun-kissed russet.

Medium skins need the Naturelle shade of Pompeian Beauty Powder. If you find it difficult to determine whether you have a light skin or a dark skin, the chances are that you really have a medium tone of skin, and should use the Naturelle shade of Pompeian Beauty Powder.

The Milk-White skin that is quite without trace of color except where the little blue veins show is the only skin that should ever use white powder.

The Pink skin can be turned into a definite asset of beauty if it is properly treated.

Women with pink skins often make the mistake of using a white or a dark powder. They should always use the pink tone of powder—the Flesh shade of Pompeian Beauty Powder.

The Olive skin. Many artists think there is no type so beautiful as the clear, dark skin we frequently see in beautiful Spanish or Italian women. The shade of powder for this rich skin is Rachel Pompeian Beauty Powder.

Pompeian Beauty Powder is made from the finest, selected ingredients. This powder has an exceptional adhesive quality that keeps the skin well covered over an unusual period of time. 60c a box. (Canada, 65c.)

The New Pompeian Beauty Powder Compact—a thin model

Thousands of women who are devotees of the superior qualities of Pompeian Beauty Powder will welcome the news that there is now available this delightful powder compacted in a smart new refillable case.

The new Pompeian Powder Compact is a graceful, round, golden-finished case—thin, of course, to avoid ugly bulging when carried in pocket or bag. The top is engraved in a delicate design, the cuttings filled with violet enamel, the color that is typical of the regal purple of the Pompeian products. The mirror in the top covers the entire space to give ample reflection—and the lamb's-wool puff has a satin top. At toilet counters $1.00. Refills 50c (slightly higher in Canada).

(Top half shown)

Get 1925 Pompeian Panel and Four Samples

This new 1925 Pompeian Art Panel, "Beauty Gained is Love Retained," size 2 8x7 1/2. Done in color by a famous artist; worth at least 50 cents. We send it with samples of Pompeian Beauty Powder, Bloom, Day Cream and Night Cream for 10c.

Pompeian Beauty Powder

POMPEIAN LABORATORIES, 2128 Payne Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio
Gentlemen: I enclose 10c for the new 1925 Art Panel, "Beauty Gained is Love Retained," and the four samples named in offer.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____

Shade of face powder wanted? _____

The Hollywood Boulevardier Chats

(Continued from page 66)

solved partnership the same week. Mae Murray is to be directed by Eric von Stroheim in "The Merry Widow," while her husband, Robert Z. Leonard, will go to First National to direct Corinne Griffith. Mabel Ballin, heretofore working only under the direction of her husband, is free-lancing, while Hugo Ballin is directing Dorothy Devore in "The Prairie Wife." And Alice Terry, who has seldom worked under any other director than her husband, Rex Ingram, is in "The Great Divide," working under Reginald Barker. In each case it was a purely business separation, no domestic storms involved.

* * *

Irving Cummings tells a quaint little story about Carl Laemmle, the big chief of Universal. While Mr. Cummings was making a picture for U, an amiable dispute came up over money. Mr. Laemmle good-naturedly disposed of it by saying they should toss up a quarter and decide the matter of the thousand dollars. The old magnate produced a quarter and Cummings tossed it—and won. "Well, I won," he said absently putting the quarter back into his pocket. "Yes, you won the thousand dollars, but you don't get my quarter," said Laemmle, laughing and holding out his hand.

* * *

Nazimova, who is working in "A Madonna of the Streets" for Edwin Carewe, says frankly that her future screen career depends upon this picture. "I didn't turn against pictures," she said candidly to an interviewer. "Pictures turned against me. This picture will decide whether or not they still want me." The truth, of course, is that pictures did not turn against Nazimova. She will be always recognized as one of the great artists of the history of the screen. She was all but wrecked financially when she tried to make a too-high brow picture out of "Salome."

* * *

Louise Fazenda

was embarrassed the other day when the owner of the pet seal "Freddie," used in the "Galloping Fish," made her a formal present of his darling swimmer. She took "Freddie" home and put him in a fountain in her yard. The first thing he did was to eat all the goldfish. Love is at times embarrassing.

* * *

They are making a picture at First National, "The Lost World," in which prehistoric monsters are seen fighting, breathing, eating, running. It promises to be one of the greatest trick pictures ever made.

* * *

How's this for a test of true love? Rod La Rocque and Pola Negri, who are reported to be engaged to be married, are to act in the same picture—"Forbidden Paradise" to be directed by Ernst Lubitsch.

* * *

At the time of going to press the producers are still deadlocked over the choice for Peter Pan. It's been worse than the Democratic convention. By the time this appears someone will undoubtedly have been chosen, but no matter who it is, CLASSIC still casts all its votes for Mary Pickford and will keep right on doing it indefinitely

John Bowers has taken a leave of absence from his film work to train for an automobile race to be held Thanksgiving Day. It is regarded as the most dangerous course over which a race has ever been attempted. In some places the grades are so steep that the wheels skid when locked, the brakes will not hold.

* * *

Ian Keith is the latest sheik to thrill Hollywood. He was brought out from New York to appear with Florence Vidor in "Christine of the Hungry Heart," at the Ince Studio. He is handsome, but haughty.

* * *

Madge Bellamy has been selected to play the lead in Adela Rogers St. John's "Inez of Hollywood." Anna Q. Nilsson, Lloyd Hughes and Lewis Stone will also be in the cast.

* * *

Samuel Goldwyn has won a decree from the courts permitting him to use his own name in his own (Contd. on page 82)

$500⁰⁰ IN ONE MONTH DRAWING

other institution in the country has such an array of artists as are on the Federal Staff.

The Federal Authors

The Federal Authors include such nationally known artists as Sid Smith, Neysa McMein, Fontaine Fox, Charles Livingston Bull, Clare Briggs, Norman Rockwell, Fay King, Frank King, Charles Russell, Herbert Johnson, Walter Wilwerding, Charles Bartholomew and over fifty others. Exclusive original lessons and drawings especially prepared by these famous artists are included in the Federal Home Study Course. They teach you everything you need to know about illustrating so that when you finish the course you will not find anything new to you. You will be prepared for any problem or emergency which may arise.

The Federal Course is a Proven Result Getter

Federal School Graduates are employed by publishers and commercial organizations all over the country. The usual salary for the beginner is from $35.00 to $50.00 a week and, with increasing experience, promotion is rapid. No previous experience is necessary in order to take this course. Every step is plain and you will be led gradually from simple sketches to complex illustrations having a high market value. At all times contact with you is direct and personal and every effort is made to develop your own individual style. What this style is can only be determined after thorough training in the fundamentals of draftsmanship.

Study at Home in your Spare Time

In studying with the Federal School you can take as long as you like to finish each piece of work. The fact that you are busy during the daytime makes no difference. The course may be completed in your own home at night or during any spare time you have. Earn while you work if you wish. Many students find a market for their drawings long before they finish the course. Some earn the price of the course several times over before they finish. Moreover, when you graduate your connection with the school is not terminated. We take a personal interest in the success of our graduates and our business connections enable us to offer many fine opportunities. In our files are hundreds of letters from students telling what the Federal School has done for them.

Send for FREE BOOK

Our free illustrated book, "A Road To Bigger Things" contains some of these. It also shows the work they have done and gives all the details of the course.

If you like to draw, do not give it up for something you do not like so well. You owe it to yourself to develop the ability you possess. Fill in the attached coupon, mail it today and start up the "Road To Bigger Things."

Federal School of Illustrating

FEDERAL SCHOOL OF ILLUSTRATING
1075 Federal School Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

Name.....Age.....

Address.....

CAREFUL, conscientious training by members of our faculty made this possible. Today, trained illustrators who draw pictures for magazines, newspapers, etc., both men and women, earn $200.00 to $500.00 a month and more. The present splendid opportunities in this field have never been excelled. Thousands of publishers buy millions of dollars worth of illustrations, like the one shown here, every year. Illustrating is the highest type of art. If you like to draw, let your talent make your fortune. Develop it. It takes practice, but so does anything worth while. Learning to illustrate is fascinating to anyone who likes to draw.

The Federal School, one of the oldest and largest art schools in America, has trained hundreds of successful illustrators. It was originally founded by the Bureau of Engraving to supply artists for its own needs. Since then Federal School graduates have become so distinguished for their high quality work that they are in great demand by publishers and art organizations. The reason for this was plainly because of the thorough training given by the school, instruction which was not duplicated by any other institution in the country.

Why the Federal "Master Course" Excels

A strictly up to date and practical art course must give thorough and comprehensive training in many different subjects such as illustrating, serious and comic cartooning, lettering, poster designing, window card illustrating, etc. No one artist is competent to give instruction in all these branches. For this reason the Federal School has established its "Master Course," in which every subject is covered by a specialist, an artist who has made a success in that one particular field. No other school can offer a course of instruction which is nearly comparable. No

SIDNEY SMITH

HERB JOHNSON

CLARE BRIGGS

NORM ROCKWELL

FONTAINE FOX

BART

NEYSA McMEIN

FAY KING

CHARLES L. BULL

FRANK KING

CHAS. W. RUSSELL

W. J. WILWERDING

Dor B.—I hope you have had a pleasant summer. Mahlon Hamilton and Lillian Rich played in "Half a Chance." Glenn Hunter played in "Grit." D. W. Griffith has signed a contract to make pictures for Famous Players, at a salary of $10,000 a week, to take effect after completion of his latest picture for United Artists, entitled "Dawn." Under his new contract, Mr. Griffith is to produce three pictures in two years.

WASHTL.—But, we promise according to our hopes, and perform according to our fears. Address Mary Hay at the Abbott Cottage, Mamaroneck, New York. Betty Blythe, Lon Chaney and Forrest Stanley have been added to the cast of "The Breath of Scandal."

BONNIE.—You must not believe all the critics. Burns once said: "Critics are cutthroat bandits in the paths of fame." Well, I am over eighty, whether you believe it or not. Plenty of butter-milk is the secret. So you didn't like Gloria Swanson in "The Society Scandal." You don't like her new personality. Well, you must grant she can wear clothes. Clara Bow is nineteen. Ben Lyon is twenty-three. Mrs. Wallace Reid is playing in "Broken Laws" for F. B. O.

RHEA R.—Thanks a lot for the fee. Ramon Novarro at Metro-Goldwyn, Culver City, California. Enid Bennett, also. Dorothy Mackaill is with Principal Pictures, 7250 Santa Monica Boulevard, Los Angeles, California. Well, I hope I am sane. The defects of the mind, like those of the face, grow worse as we grow old. Reed Hawes, the Arrow collar man, and Lefty Flynn are playing in F. B. O. pictures.

MIMI H.—Most of the players you mention are with Famous Players.

GINNY.—Well, to fall in love is much easier than to get rid of it. Enid Bennett with Metro-Goldwyn and she was born on January 22, 1896. No, I don't think Richard Barthelmess and Lillian Gish will play in "Romeo and Juliet." Lucille Rickson is only sixteen and not married.

M. C. B., N. J.—That was Joseph Schildkraut in "The Song of Love," and Rudolph is his father. No, I never did hear what happened to Irene Rich's husband. Wanda Hawley, Nigel Barrie and Pedro de Cordoba are playing in "The Desert Sheik," which is taken from the Conan Doyle novel, "The Tragedy of Korosko."

FLORENCE S.—No, I never got the cast for "The Timber Queen." I should say not, Florence, no picture of me. Yes, I like all the players, no favorites. Anna Q. Nilsson is playing in "Vanity's Price," for F. B. O. It was made under the working title of "Purchased Youth," and concerns a woman who has been rejuvenated.

ELLEN A.—You can get the September, 1923, magazine by writing to our Circulation Department, at this address.

FAY BLOSSOM.—It is difficult to define love; we may say of it, however, that in the soul it is a desire to reign; in minds it is a sympathy and in bodies a secret inclination to enjoy what we love after difficulties. No, Gloria Swanson is not dead. You must not believe all you hear. Thomas Meighan is playing in Peter Clark Macfarlane's novel, "Tongues of Flame."

CLASSIC READER.—Thanks for yours—I know that Monte Blue has been married, but he isn't now.

SUNNY.—It is impossible to love those a second time whom we have really ceased to love. Yes, the Moore boys are brothers. Ernan Hansson in "The Blizzard." He is a foreigner, you know. Tom Moore has been engaged to play opposite Bebe Daniels in "Dangerous Money."

ROBIN DE G.—It is most dangerous nowadays for a husband to pay any attention to his wife in public. It always makes people think that he beats her when they're alone. The world has grown so suspicious of anything that looks like a happy married life. I understand First National will film "The Life of Christ." Buck Jones in "The Desert Outlaw."

RENAULT.—Well, I have never found the one best seller to be the wine cellar. That was an interesting picture of the tree growing from the stone roof of the court-house tower in Greensburg, Indiana. It was a very interesting picture. The soft maple fifteen feet six inches seems to have rooted from seed carried by birds in 1872, now fifty-two years old. Address Rod La Rocque at the Famous Players Studio, 1520 Vine Street, Los Angeles, California, and Nita Naldi at Famous Players, Astoria, Long Island. Mary Pickford at Pickford-Fairbanks Studios, Los Angeles, California.

M. E. F.—Most of the players you mention are with Famous Players, at the above address.

MISS L. O.—That was good of you, and I hope you received your answer by now.

M. C. B.—Conceit may puff a man up, but never prop him up. Doris Kenyon is playing in "If I Marry Again." Sylvia Breamer and Ben Lyon also in the cast. Well, it happened this way. About twenty-eight years ago, short-length pictures were shown at the Eden Musee on 23rd Street, New York City. They were "The Crying Baby," "Jumping the Hurdles" and "Feeding the Sheep." The first three-reel subject produced in America, so far as I know, was the "Passion Play," about twenty-six years ago. It was taken on the roof of the old Grand Central Palace and ran continuously for nine months at the Eden Musee and was considered to be the highest production of the cinematograph art at that time. That was Joseph Schildkraut you speak of.

JOHN.—All right, John, see how prompt I am? Baby Peggy was born October 26, 1918. Address her at the Sol Lesser Productions, 7250 Santa Monica Boulevard, Los Angeles. Richard Talmadge is playing in "American Manners." Helen Lynch opposite him.

IRISH.—If you marry a girl who is disagreeable to every one but you, you will get your share of it—after the knot is tied. Robert Ellis is married to May Allison. Helene Chadwick is playing right along. No trouble to answer your questions. Be sure to write me again.

DREAM.—Yes, Alma Bennett is five and one-half feet tall and weighs 130 pounds. She has dark complexion and black hair and brown eyes. You are right. We are by no means aware how much we are influenced by our passions.

EDITH.—That is Irene Rich's real name. Jackie Coogan at Metro-Goldwyn. Why Marion Davies has a sister, Rosemary, and another, Renee. Glad you like the CLASSIC. Tell us what you like and what you don't like about it.

ELITA.—No, I don't mind getting old, even the old age is a tyrant, which forbids the pleasures of youth. Harrison Ford is playing opposite Rosemary Davies in "Souls Adrift," after which he will return to play opposite Marion, her sister, in "Zander." He recently played with Marion Davies in "Janice Meredith."

MARGARET R.—You want to know why Cecil De Mille had Miriam younger than Moses, when the Bible says that Miriam was old enough to care for Moses when he was a boy. I really don't know.

(Continued on page 74)

This department is for information of general interest only. Those who desire answers by mail, or a list of film manufacturers, with addresses, must enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address all inquiries: The Answer Man, CLASSIC, Brewster Buildings, Brooklyn, N. Y. Use separate sheets for matters intended for other departments of this magazine. Each inquiry must contain the correct name and address of the inquirer at the end of the letter, which will not be printed. At the top of the letter write the name you wish to appear, also the name of the magazine you wish your inquiry to appear in. Those desiring immediate replies or information requiring research, should enclose additional stamp or other small fee; otherwise all inquiries must wait their turn. Let us hear from you.

FREE: 10 DAY TRIAL!
Send no money.
Simply clip coupon below.

Now
marcel your hair beautifully

—in 5 minutes—at home!

An alluring wave guaranteed, bobbed or unbobbed
And the cost is but half-a-penny!
Coupon offers free 10-day trial

THE loveliness of softly waved hair—chic, alluring!—may always be yours, now. No more times, between waves, when the curl has gone—when hair is not as pretty as it might be—when it is hard to arrange.

For now you can do as thousands of other attractive girls and women do—whether your hair is bobbed or long. Every day, if you wish, have a fresh marcel. Right at home—in five minutes! And the cost is actually about half a cent. It is a new method, approved by hair specialists.

The coupon below offers you an opportunity to try it, without cost, for 10 days. Send no money—simply clip the coupon.

An exquisite wave

This new way to keep your hair beautifully dressed was perfected to do two things: First, to give you a really professional wave in a very few minutes at home; and second, to reduce the cost.

You use the YVETTE Marcel Waver to do it. Specially designed to impart an exquisitely soft, but very distinct wave.

Simply attach it to an ordinary electric light socket, as you would an old-style "curling iron." But the YVETTE does what no "curling iron" could ever do.

First of all, it uses less heat. So cannot possibly burn or injure the life and lustre of your hair in any way. And this heat is applied by a new principle, to all parts of all hair.

So it does not matter whether your hair is dry and brittle, or whether it is very oily. The YVETTE Marcel Waver gives a perfectly charming wave to any hair. Not a round curl, but a real, professional-looking Marcel wave!

In five minutes your hair is beautifully waved. How nice to have this help, for instance, when going to the theater some evening—with little time to get ready. What a comfort not having to bother with hair-dressers' appointments and waiting!

YVETTE
MARCEL WAVER
pronounced EE-VET'

Buy several $20 hats with what it saves!

In twelve months The YVETTE Marcel Waver will actually save you from $40 to $50 over and above its slight cost! And it will last for a lifetime. We guarantee it against defective workmanship or material, you know. Remember, too, that you take no risk at all in testing it for ten days.

Then, too, it saves you a great deal of money! More than ten times enough to pay for itself, in twelve months. The cost for electric current, each time you use it, is less than half of a penny.

A remarkable offer

This unusual, new waver will delight you as it has thousands of others. It was originally made to sell at $10—which is really a low price, when you consider the time and money to be saved. But we have determined to reduce the price—and, by selling still greater numbers, have just as large a business as ever. So we make this amazingly generous offer.

Simply clip, fill in and mail the coupon below. Don't send any money, unless you particularly wish to. We will immediately send you a YVETTE Waver. When the postman delivers it to your door, give him $4.97, plus a few pennies postage, the new, reduced price. But—note this:

Keep and use the Waver for ten days. Test it in any way you see fit. Then, if you are not entirely and completely delighted with what it does for your hair, with the saving in time and money, just send it back to us. Immediately, and without the slightest questioning, we will mail back your $4.97. Isn't that fair?

Just think what a pleasure it's going to be, having your hair freshly and beautifully waved all the time! And with enough money saved to pay for several very lovely hats, a new suit, or frock! Clip your coupon now. Mail it today, sure.

Send No Money—10 Days' Trial

Distributing Division,
YVETTE et Cie., Dept. 11
719 Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Chicago.

Please send YVETTE Marcel Waver. I will deposit $4.97 with postman when he brings it. You are to return this $4.97 to me if, after 10-day trial, I do not care to keep the waver.

Name.....

Address.....

City.....State.....

W.L. Douglas

$5, $6, $7 & $8 SHOES

BOYS AT $4.50 & $5.00

Women of fashion should know that our women's shoes are high-class, made in the most distinctive, up-to-date and exclusive styles, which appeal to those who desire stylish, comfortable and serviceable shoes at reasonable prices.

New Fall Style for Women Patent Colt, Centre Strap Pump, with Elastic Gore, $6.00

W. L. DOUGLAS PEGGING SHOES AT 7 YEARS OF AGE

New Broad Toe for Men In Black Velour Calf, also light Russia Calf, $7.00

WEAR W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES AND SAVE MONEY

FOR 38 YEARS, W. L. Douglas' name and portrait have stood for quality, for economy and for satisfactory service. W. L. Douglas shoes are exceptionally good values. Only by wearing them can you appreciate their superior qualities. The exclusive, smart models, designed especially for young men and women, are leaders everywhere.

W. L. DOUGLAS $7.00 SHOES are remarkably good value. Seldom have you had the opportunity to buy such high-grade shoes at this popular price. Shoes of equal quality, comfort and service are rarely found in other makes at our prices.

WHEREVER YOU LIVE, demand W. L. Douglas shoes. They are sold in 120 of our stores in the principal cities and by over 5,000 shoe dealers. For economy and dependable value, wear shoes that have W. L. Douglas' name and the retail price stamped on the soles. The stamped price guarantees the value. If not for sale in your vicinity, write for catalog.

W. L. Douglas Shoe Company, 174 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

The Breath of Scandal

Do you prefer to know "the truth" about the private lives of your favorite stars?

Does this make you more—or less—interested in their films?

Gladys Hall puts this question to the readers of CLASSIC in a lively fashion.

Animal Actors and Human Stars

They work together very calmly (sometimes) says Dorothy Donnell. And as for the pictures! You'll want one of the cubs, or perhaps a full-grown tiger, the minute you see these photographs we have to illustrate the story.

The Man Who Sold Himself

Monta Bell, the director of one of the best pictures of the year, "Broadway After Dark," broke all the supposedly cast-iron rules for directing. And got away with it. Jim Tully tells the story.

On the news-stands

NOVEMBER

MOTION PICTURE

CLASSIC

October 12th

That "Different" Screen Magazine

The Movie Encyclopaedia

(Continued from page 72)

ARNOLD B.—That was Marion Nixon in "Circus Cowboy." Hope Hampton is going to play in a series of one-reel fashion pictures in which she will display the extensive wardrobe that she purchased in Paris with her husband, Jules Brulatour. Buck Jones in "The Desert Outlaw."

MOVIE FAN.—You should see me in my one-piece bathing suit. Yes, Patsy Ruth Miller and Matt Moore are playing in "The Girl on the Stairs." Percy Marmont and Zazu Pitts have the leads in "The Legend of Hollywood." William Duncan is with Universal. Ben Lyon with Famous Players.

BILLY F.—Just pronounce it Ne-gree. They say she was born in Poland, of German extraction. Gloria Swanson and Pola Negri are each twenty-seven years old and Thomas Meighan is forty.

MYRTLE H.—Well, the pleasure of loving is, to love; and we are much happier in the passion we feel, than in that we excite. I'm not much of a connoisseur on the subject, being an old bachelor. Harold Lloyd at the Harold Lloyd Studios, 6642 Santa Monica Boulevard, Los Angeles, California. Edna Murphy is with Pathé. Yes, the Lloyd daughter is named Mildred Gloria Lloyd.

BILLY.—Pearl White has red hair. Norma Talmadge has dark brown. Buster Keaton has purchased the screen rights to "Seven Chances," from the stage-play.

FRENCH DOLL.—Sometimes I consume as much as two quarts of buttermilk a day. There's nothing like it. Alice Terry is with Metro-Goldwyn. No, I never heard the answer to question Number two. Ramon Novarro is with Metro-Goldwyn.

BETTY SWEET 16.—You must write to me whenever you feel like it. I nearly died with the heat this summer. Besides my movie fans, I had all the electric fans going. Yes, I read "A Tale of Two Cities," quite some time ago.

CUTIE.—Pola Negri was born January 3, 1897. You know her father was a gypsy and her real name is Apollonia Chalupez and she was once the Countess Dombiski. She appeared in the Russian Imperial Ballet and her first picture shown in this country was "Passion." She is five feet four and weighs 120. Black hair and grey-green eyes.

SERIAL FAN.—Moderation resembles temperance. We are not unwilling to eat more, but are afraid of doing ourselves harm. Marie Prevost and Raymond McKee have the leads in the latest Grand-Asher production, "Desires of Men." You refer to G. O. Williams and George Routh in "Hazards of Helen." That was some serial.

THE WESTERNER.—You can't be so bad. Wild oats never grow near wall flowers. Robert Frazer was born in Worcester, Massachusetts, and William Boyd was born in Cambridge, Ohio. Constance Binney is touring for the stage right now. That's all right, I don't mind.

BEAVER MEADOW.—Bebe Daniels in "Dangerous Money" with Tom Moore. Norman Trevor has been signed up by Famous Players as leading man in Gloria Swanson's "The Wages of Virtue."

TEENEE.—No, I am not a genius; if I were I could cheat my grocer, rob my neighbor and betray my friend's wife, and all would be excused. That is Robert Agnew's real name. He was born in Dayton, Kentucky, in 1899. His first big part was in "Clarence."

N. D. G. H.—You must not.

A COLLECTING BUG.—You've got it too,

(Continued on page 87)

Brewing Beauty

"Olive oil, oatmeal, lemons, salt, and cornmeal!"

Any bachelor would order this list of groceries for food, and for food only. But a woman buying these things might not have thought of eating them. Far from it! But she would use them in another life-saving way which is, perhaps, just as valuable—for the magic beautifying properties. It's astonishing what happiness and comeliness can be found on the pantry shelves. If you believe it isn't so, read all about what's what, in The Kitchen Beauty Shelf. And when you have read, you'll not be able to resist trying their effects on that ever-present problem that is yourself.

The Problems of the Girl Who is Not an Acclaimed Beauty is told by Alice Brady, the very attractive stage and screen star. She writes of the joys of the girl who has no worries about the sun, or the wind, or rain, but who has other cares....

The Problems of the Acclaimed Beauty are those that concern Mary Eaton. She is well qualified to write on this subject, for is she not radiantly, blondely, beautiful? And hasn't she been "glorified" by Mr. Florenz Ziegfeld in his Follies?

The mouth is a "dead give-away," says Penelope Knapp. And it isn't so much the words you speak that counts; it's what your mouth says when you are silent.

If you care to keep your five senses "until the end," you'll care for your eyes and ears and nose now. See how to do this in Coddling the Five Senses.

Beauty

For NOVEMBER

Pin a Dollar Bill to this coupon and receive the next five big numbers of "Beauty" Magazine. Mail at once to BEAUTY, 175 Duffield St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Name.....
St. and No.....
City..... State.....

On the news-stands October 15th

Adds Glossy Lustre, Instantly!

Keeps Your Hair Soft and Easy to Manage

Just moisten the bristles of your hair brush with a few drops of Glostora and brush it on your hair. You will be surprised at the result. It will give your hair an unusually rich, silky gloss and lustre—instantly.

Glostora simply makes your hair more beautiful by enhancing the wave and color. It keeps the wave and curl in and leaves your hair soft and easy to manage, so that it stays just as you arrange it—even after shampooing.

Use a little once or twice a week and you will be delighted to see how much more beautiful and attractive your hair will look and how much easier it will be to manage—whether long or bobbed.

There is nothing better for children, whose hair lacks natural life and lustre, or is inclined to be stubborn and hard to train and keep in place.

Glostora is inexpensive and you can get a bottle at any drug store or toilet goods counter.

Keeps Hair Neatly Combed

Glostora gives the hair that rich, naturally glossy, refined and orderly appearance, so essential to well-groomed men and boys.

A little Glostora rubbed through the hair once or twice a week, or after shampooing, keeps it so soft and pliable that it stays in place just as combed or brushed and does not become matted up or disarranged.

Not sticky, pasty or greasy

Glostora

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

★ Informal snapshots of famous movie stars

Just the sort of pictures you might have taken yourself had you been wandering around the studios with a kodak. They will fit in your album with your other snapshots. Any 6 for 25c or 15 for 50c.

Wanda Hawley	Rudolph Valentino	Clara Kimball Young
Jackie Coogan	Charlie Chaplin	Lloyd Hughes
Anita Stewart	Mae Murray	Tom Mix
Harold Lloyd	Hobart Bosworth	Baby Peggy
Charlie Ray	Bill Hart	Claire Windsor
Agnes Ayres	Charlie Murray	Priscilla Dean
Ethel Clayton	Lila Lee	Norma Talmadge
Mary Pickford	Douglas Fairbanks	Reginald Denny

GROVER C. MARTIN

536 So. Hope St. Los Angeles

Stonehenge, the ancient Druid temple whose mystery will never be solved, where Tess went out to die. This is the original pile of strange grey granite undisturbed for centuries

Tess of the D'Urbervilles

(Continued from page 60)

scraping old grandsire and strode into the yard where she was digging in their starvling garden, with his lordly air of owning the earth by right of inheritance, Tess only flung back the dull gold wisps of hair with one arm and listened to what he had to say.

Old flames fanned themselves to a blaze behind Alec's dark eyes as he looked at the sweet curves of her young body in the tight outgrown gown. He was sorry, he said with a light laugh, for the way things had gone with her, but he was willing to make amends.

"I couldn't forget you, Tess!" his hand was hot on her bare arm. "You were such a sweet little thing, but upon my word now you are positively beautiful! In the right clothes—with the jewels and furs that belong with beauty, why there isn't a woman in London could touch you!" He had come prepared to override her fury but this still calm disconcerted him, and intrigued his fancy. "Listen, Tess! Come to London with me—let me give you a fine apartment—clothes, luxury. I'll see that your family is taken care of for life!"

"You know," said Tess in a flat voice, "that I'm married?"

Alec D'Urberville laughed, "I heard all about that! You'll never see that sanctimonious prig of a parson's cub again. Come to London, Tess, where you'll be appreciated!" He saw himself beside this glorious creature in the opera, stared at enviously. "Damn these gaping clowns! I'm afire for you, Tess! You beauty—you cold tantalizing beauty! I want to kiss you all over from your golden head to your little feet."

"I ought to hate you," Tess said wearily, "but somehow I can't feel anything any more. Maybe I will some day, and then you will be sorry I came with you. But perhaps my heart is dead—it feels dead, and cold—and so if you will give my mother a thousand pounds so the little ones won't go hungry I will come to Lunnon."

With the voluptuous idea of giving his passion a perfect setting, D'Urberville made no attempt to claim Tess' promise until he had installed her in a handsome apartment, and bought her the clothes that would flatter her strange white loveliness. Like a marble woman, Tess stood in softly lighted, deeply carpeted rooms while they put soft silks and chiffons and laces upon her, did amazing things to her hair and skin, decked her with jewels. The winds were whirling the lost leaf into strange places, and the wind was too strong for leaves.

She moved thru the days and the new sights and sounds like one in a trance, and Alec D'Urberville, seeing, smiled a distorted smile. When the time came he would waken her, and—he drew a slow breath—the time was almost come. He had chosen the horse show as the setting for his first display of Tess in all her glory.

The world could not know it was a dead woman sitting in regal disdain of their staring eyes in the box beside the handsome, insolent young man who gazed at her instead of at the ring. They couldn't know that when she leaned forward suddenly and looked down at someone in the audience below they were witnessing a dead woman coming to life with all the agony of the birth throes. But Alec D'Urberville, following her eyes, had seen the tall, slender man who started up from the benches and was fighting his way thru the crowd.

His fingers sank into Tess' bare

(Continued on page 85)

A Thousand Dollars a Day!

(Continued from page 40)

know, but Cruze wanted to talk about far places. "How do you direct, Jim?" Cruze hates to speak in the first person.

"Dont know," he answered. "Dont like to talk about pictures. Direct on impulse; wait for occasions. Put in the thing I think is real. Dont follow rules. Never did. Never will."

"What quality is absolutely essential in directing?"

"Resourcefulness—but hell, a fellow has to be resourceful if he drives an automobile a hundred miles."

He really does not like to talk pictures, but in talking about life—he's a great conversationalist. One can see that he abhors the academic and bloodless makers of rules that real talent breaks. For the benefit of the longhairs taking walks in pseudo Greenwich villages, Cruze never uses the word "art." And for the benefit of the too well educated it may be well to remember that Cruze is a brilliant man and had less schooling than any man I know—schooling in the academic sense.

"What is your routine of directing?"

"There is none. It changes with every picture. No two pictures—no two situations—even no two leaves are exactly alike. A fellow cannot steep himself in stock methods, he's got to have guts, imagination, sympathy. He must make the story live. But I've said enough."

I once talked with an old Mormon in Salt Lake City. The conversation turned to the best-known man from Utah.

"You know," he said, "about seven years ago a young fellow came down here from Hollywood and talked to a lot of us about filming the history of our coming across country in wagons. He said he'd weave a love story thru it and make it a big picture and we'd all make a lot of money. He stayed down here with us four weeks but none of us would spend any money, for we all knew the youngster and didn't think he'd make good. So he went back to Hollywood and we decided to make use of his idea. We made a picture giving our entire history—but I guess it's no good. We're ashamed to show it to anyone now. Anyhow, the fellow who talked to all of us was that youngster we all know, Jimmy Cruze. So you see, he had that picture in his head a long time—or one like it, 'The Covered Wagon,' I mean. That Cruze boy always was a smart kid."

Jim Cruze entered pictures in 1908—rather a long time ago. In fact,

(Seventy-seven)

One Happy Day

She learned how to beautify teeth

Countless people have attained prettier teeth by making this ten-day test. They accepted this offer, they watched the results. Then they resolved to brush teeth in this new way.

Now, wherever you go, you see the whiter, cleaner teeth this method brought about.

They fight the film

Film is the teeth's great enemy—that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. No ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat it.

Soon that clinging film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That's why teeth grow cloudy.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combant which contains harsh grit.

Hardly one in fifty escaped film troubles under old ways of tooth brushing.

That's why dental research sought ways to fight that film. Eventually two ways were found. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

These methods have been proved by many tests. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

The results are so remarkable that careful people of some 50 nations have adopted this new-day dentifrice.

The hidden results

But the visible results are not alone important. Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, also its starch digestant. Thus it gives Nature multiplied power in the fight against starch and acids on teeth.

These combined results mean a new dental era. The benefits belong to you and yours. Let this delightful ten-day test show you how much they mean.

Pepsodent PAT. OFF.
REG. U.S.

The New-Day Dentifrice

A surprise

Send this coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

You will be amazed and delighted. You will want that new beauty, that new safety all your life. Cut out coupon now.

10-DAY TUBE FREE 1599

THE PEPSODENT COMPANY
Dept. 180, 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Mail 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent to

Only one tube to a family

To-morrow's Telephones

So vital a factor has the telephone become in American life that the demand for it would undoubtedly grow even without increases in population. New businesses are founded; others expand. New homes are established in town and city, in suburban dwellings and apartment houses.

To meet the needs of America, to-day and to-morrow, with the best and cheapest telephone service, is the responsibility of the Bell System. The telephone will grow with the population and prosperity of the country, and the plans of to-day must anticipate the growth of to-morrow.

The service which is given to-day was anticipated and provision was made for it, long in advance. Money was provided, new developments were undertaken, construction work was carried through on a large scale. The Bell System, that is, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and Associated Companies, has continuously met these requirements. It has enlisted the genius of technical development and the savings of investors for investment in plant construction.

Over 315,000 men and women are owners of the American Company's stock and over half a million are investors in the securities of the System. With a sound financial structure, a management which is reflected in a high quality of telephone service, the Bell System is enabled to serve the increasing requirements of the American public.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY
AND ASSOCIATED COMPANIES
BELL SYSTEM

One Policy, One System, Universal Service

A PERFECT NOSE FOR YOU

SPECIAL SIZES
FOR CHILDREN

SEND NO MONEY

BEFORE AFTER

GOLD MEDAL AWARDED
"for distinguished service to mankind" by International Inventors Exposition, New York,
Feb. 1923.

ANITA - The Genuine - PATENTED - NOSE ADJUSTER

Winner of GOLD MEDAL — Highest in Merit — Lowest in Price

Support nature and look your best. If your nose is ill-shaped, you can make it perfect with ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER, in a few weeks, in the privacy of your own room and without interfering with your daily occupation. No need for costly, painful operations. ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER shapes while you sleep—quickly, painlessly, permanently and inexpensively. The ANITA NOSE ADJUSTER is the ORIGINAL NASAL SUPPORTER absolutely guaranteed. Highly recommended by physicians for misshapen and fractured noses. Self adjustable. No screws. No metal parts. GENTLE, FIRM and PERFECTLY COMFORTABLE. Beware of imitations! Write today (just your name and address) for FREE Booklet, "Happy Days Ahead," which explains how you can have a perfect nose—and our blank to fill out for sizes. No obligations.

The ANITA Company, Dept. 1029, ANITA Building, Newark, N. J.

many of the leading financial men in pictures were still in the cloak and suit business and had not developed the spiritual in their natures in 1908.

Cruze played leads for some time and then started directing, his first picture being "Too Many Millions," in which Wallace Reid was starred. Since that time he has made many good pictures and it is claimed that he is the only man in Hollywood who has never made a financial failure. That is not a bad record for a lad brought up in tent shows and on freight trains and fishing vessels.

Cruze is the master of broad and subtle humor. Like all people with a delicate sense of humor—Cruze may be laughing at you and not with you—and you may not know it. Cruze learned so much about chivalry and all-round fakloriums in the salons of fishing vessels, just as Shakespeare learned so much about English aristocracy while holding horses in front of theaters. I said before that Cruze just is. He has something that approaches genius. A better-rounded man than Griffith—not a propagandist—an artist if you will—and like all real artists . . . unconscious of it. . . . The First American Director.

Jetta and Her Temperament

(Continued from page 21)

part out here in one of Cecil De Mille's bath tubs. It would be a change." But when she came to examine her part she found she was a young lady of unfortunate morals in a French dancehall. She sighed and made the best of it—or the worst of it, whichever way you look at it.

Her first days in the part showed her to be a thoro and a subtle artiste. She has the French instinct for gesture and the French adroitness of suggestion. Also she is really beautiful in a strange exotic way. She suggests both Pola Negri and Barbara La Marr—a more tingling and more electrical Barbara.

So far she hasn't exhibited the famous Jetta temperament except to cry when the railroad lost her trunks. But Hollywood reflects with the gooseflesh of anticipated thrills that Pola and Jetta are working on adjoining sets. And if they should ever! Oh, my. . . .

Well, they never did! Since this sketch was written, Jetta Goudal has left Hollywood and is playing in "The Sainted Devil" with Valentino in New York, and to date she seems to have the famous temperament under perfect control.—EDITOR'S NOTE.

The Romance of the Extra

(Continued from page 35)

of Princeton and his real ambition is to become a playwright. So he is studying at first hand stage direction, etc. He has one more year to go. I certainly wish him luck. He has started a play and from what he read to me I think he has a chance.

There are four boys from my home town, Oakland, California, also working as extras. They are studying art here, and between their pay and selling an illustration now and again they manage to live. Altogether I found twenty-one boys who are studying in the universities here in New York City working in "The Miracle" to defray expenses. Several of the dressers also act as extras and each one has an objective in life not seen on the surface. One is studying law, another medicine, and another is studying stage direction.

The most remarkable character of all is "Mother." She is eighty-four years old and everyone in "The Miracle" loves her. She dances and jigs with wonderful agility for one of her years and is always "the life of the party." She is all alone in the world, only six years ago losing her husband, two sons and a daughter thru the capsizing of a catboat.

She has had enough happen in her long life to kill a hundred women and certainly enough to sour her whole outlook on life. "Mother," however, is always cheerful.

I almost forgot one old gentleman who was a scout with Buffalo Bill and traveled with every wild-west show of the past. He could tell the most hair-raising stories and I believe everyone was true. Anyway, we were always willing to listen.

And there were many others, each one with a story to tell, but all, no matter how old, with hope for the future. There was not a pessimist in the lot. That is the lesson the extras of "The Miracle" taught me, and no matter how much good the rôle of The Knight may have done me professionally it is nothing compared to "the lesson" I learned among my friends of extradom.

REBUKE

By JAMES COURTNEY CHALLISS

White-hot with temper, from his raging throat
Came crimson, hell-hued words that flamed
With hate till—suddenly—the vocal cords,
With curses burnt, snapped like a string
And left him dumb!
Thru all the long years dumb—
But calm,
And kind,
And loving.

(Seventy-nine)

FACE POWDER OF SPUN MOON BEAMS AND AZURE NIGHTS

What Princess Pat did by Perfecting the Almond Base

WHEN Puck was abroad with his fairies, weaving the spell of a Midsummer Night's dream over hill and dale, his enchantments were the delicate gossamer of thought and fancy.

Sometimes in a workaday world men have achieved almost the fabric of dreams with the stuffs of sense and sight. Almost always this super-achievement has been wrought in the name of beauty, with womankind for audience and inspiration.

